DIGIOVANNA, PATTERSON MARRIAGE AT CAIRO MARCH 6

The marriage of Vincent Digiovanna and Miss Alice Patterson was solemnized Saturday, March 6, at Cairo.

IN MEMORIAM

The following tributes to the late Charles Neely, Jr., of the English department, have been submitted by his colleagues and friends:

"In Charles Neely, the College has lost one of its most promising young men. At the University of Iowa where he was completing the work for the doctor's degree...

"Charles Neely was a good man. He had been connected with this school a long time, but most of us came to know him only this past year when he returned to the campus as a member of the English department...

"An abhorrence for the petty, tragically the unfair; an admiration for the dignified, the beautiful, the just; these traits which made Charles Neely a man of genuine worth."

ENROLLMENT STANDS AT 1,276; MORE WILL ENROLL AT MID-TERM

Final registration figures for the spring term total 1,276. The enrollment is expected, however, to increase at the mid-spring term with mid-spring registration courses. It is expected that about 250 students will enroll. Last year's mid-spring figure was 251.

STATE CHANGE IN REQUIREMENTS TO APPLY HERE

At a recent meeting of the Carlebury Committee it was decided to change slightly the graduation requirements in order that S. I. N. U. candidates for the degree may be eligible to take a new ruling for a limited state high school and a limited state supervisory certificate to be issued upon college credentials.

The Illinois State Examining Board for Teachers Certificates at its annual meeting in December, 1935 passed a resolution requiring three maps of sixteen semester hours each in subject or group of related subjects for a limited state high school and a limited state supervisory certificate to be issued upon college credentials. This rule will become effective July 1, 1937.

WUOH OPERATOR TALKS TO U. S. SENATOR NORRIS OF NEBRASKA

While listening over the short waves, Tuesday March 2, it was the very good fortune of the operator at WUOH, S. L. N. U., radio station to get in contact with U. S. Senator Norris who is in Chicago that night. A very pleasant hour was spent in talking to the Senator during which the supreme court bill now pending was discussed along with many other pertinent questions of the present time. While the senator was not in favor of the change on the grounds that it would, if passed give the executive branch of the government too much power, he nevertheless agreed that it was a pleasant evening and that the weather was unusually warm for this season of the year. The operator here, Harry Tichenor, quoted it one of his most enjoyable contacts of the year, and is looking forward to hooking up with the Senator again some evening.

JUNE VICK WINS ZETETIC PLAY AND STORY CONTEST

At the regular meeting of the Zetetic Literary Society of March 17, William Insenjaeger gave a talk about the best selling books of 1936 and Mary Anna Miller read a short story written by June Vick. The short story by June Vick won the story and play contest given by the society in the winter term. The rest of the meeting was given over to a discussion of presenting a musical comedy at the end of this term and action plans were made. A publicity committee was selected by the president with Gasaway Ravinet as chairman, and Edward Mitchell was chosen to be chairman of the committee that will select the musical comedy.

AROUND WASHINGTON

By MARVIN COX
(A. C. P. Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, D. C.—This city is teeming with rumors, reports, inside information and fantastic schemes concerning the President's proposal to enlarge the Supreme Court and overhaul the Federal judicial machinery. Nobody knows what the final outcome will be, so no one passes it on to another. Washington hasn't enjoyed itself so thoroughly since the hectic days of the NRA.

consils, and Representative Coffee of Washington State issued statements in support of this bill which would appropriate $500,000,000 annually for aid to young people.

About 2,000 young people will make a pilgrimage to Washington February 19 to demonstrate their support of this measure.

College students who like to recall the famous period of their high school days may well envy the alumni of the Capitol Pages' School. A school is maintained in the basement of the Capitol building and the pages of the House and Senate attend high school there, a few days from the Congress school chambers where history is being made.

Schedules are arranged so that the pages attend classes early in the morning and in the evening after Congress has adjourned. A stipend amount is deducted each month from the pages' pay to defray the cost of the school.

Those boys, when they reach college, can tell what Senator Woodruff said to them when the Securities Act was being debated, or recall the boys at the chapter house with tales of Speaker Bankhead, Minority Leader Clegg, Senator Brock, Senator Pat Harrison, and the other notables whom they knew when they were attending the Pages' School and running errands for the statesmen.

"Women of Glamour", coming to our local theatre on March 26, starring Melvyn Douglas and Virginia Heuser, is of legitimate entertainment value. Douglas is a wealthy young artist engaged to a society girl but in love with his model and safe dancer. The society girl and the model fight it out for the prize—the artist. A capable cast handles a gripping plot with amazing skill.

The other feature on the same date is "Nancy Steele Is Missing," Victor McLaglin, star of "The Informer," Peter Lorre, and Walter Connolly lead a strong cast in a fast re-creation of the incident which cost June Lang and Robert Kent are also featured in the cast. "Nancy Steele Is Missing" is an emotional wallop that takes hold and never lets go an unforgettable experience.

Sunday and Monday, March 25 and 26, brings us "Seventh Heaven", starring James Stewart and Simona Simon. To prevent Simona Simon from being arrested by the police, James Stewart tells her that he is her husband, and in order to carry out their plan they will always be together. When Stewart comes back, they rejoice that they have each other. "Seventh Heaven" is directed primarily by the tremendously moving picture of this, and an excellent cast. The picture is based on the famous stage play by John Golden.

Fal Day, March 30, presents "Men Are Not Gods," starring Miriam Hopkins and Gertrude Lawrence. Miriam Hopkins finds in love with a young actor, Sebastian Shaw. A newspaper reporter, Rex Harrison, leaves Miriam. Gertrude Lawrence is Shaw's wife and leading lady. A triangle of strife results. "Men Are Not Gods" is a bright, modern comedy with a powerful dramatic climax.

TRIP TO NEW YORK OFFERED IN NEW CONTEST

Chicago, Ill.—(ACP)—An all-expense trip to New York City, plus a total of $1,000 in cash prizes, is being offered students in a prize competition for essays on "How Advertising Benefits the Consumer."

The contest is open to all undergraduate students in colleges and universities. It is being sponsored by Advertising Age, The National Newspaper of Advertising, Chicago, for the purpose of inducing college men and women to take more intelligent and careful thought to the functions and value of advertising in the social and economic life of the nation. There is no entry fee, and nothing to buy.

Essays are limited to 1,000 words, must be mailed before midnight, May 4, 1937, to be eligible. The writer of the best essay will receive $200 in cash, plus an all-expense trip to New York City. Second prize is $100, third prize is $50, and ten honorable mentions of $20 will also be awarded in a similar essay for high awarded. Identical prizes will be school students, which will be judged separately.

Essays will be judged by a group of prominent individuals representing consumer and educational interests, and including Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson, President, General Federation of Women's Clubs, and Prof. Herbert W. Hess, professor of merchandising at the University of Pennsylvania.

Complete details of the competition will be secured from the Contest Secretary, 100 E. Ohio Street, Chicago.

The account of the United States first election, that telling of Washington's selection as president, was printed on the third page of newspapers of that day.

LENTZ ATTENDS SECOND TEMPERANCE MEETING

Dean of Men E. G. Lentz spent the past weekend at Old Normal at Bloomington, where he took part in the program of the second annual Illinois State Conference on Temperance in the Schools. Not much is known or has been said about this conference as it is comparatively new, having had its origin only last year at the University of Illinois.

The purpose of this conference was to discuss temperance in the schools and how it might be brought about. The meeting was of the round table type with representatives of the various departments of education in the state taking part. Dean Lentz represented the teachers colleges of the state in this discussion.

Dean Lentz is a strong advocate of the temperance movement and be-WELCOME HOME! That's what the comfort of railway travel really means nowadays. On the railroad—and on the railroad alone—you can fully enjoy yourself while traveling.

As you ride at high yet safe speeds, free from jolts and skids, you can eat, sleep, read, write, stretch, relax, listen to the radio, breathe cool, clean, sweet air and make yourself fully at home under the kindly ministrations of courteous attendants alert to your every need.

For these and other benefits, you must credit thorough air-conditioning, smart interior decoration, up-to-date car construction, improved roadbeds, heavier rails, adequate power and—most important of all—a personnel interested in service.

Typical of railway modernization for comfort is the fact that by the end of the year the Illinois Central will have in service 157 air-conditioned cars of its-own, in addition to air-conditioned Pullman equipment. All the railroads and the Pullman Company together now have more than 8,000 such cars.

REMINDER . . . Railway travel today is a thrilling experience, full of the spirit of youth. On your next trip learn how delectably enjoyable, coupled with economy in price, has increased railway patronage in recent years.

TRIP THROUGH GREAT SMOKY MOUNTAINS

OF CAROLINAS DESCRIBED INCLUDING INDIAN LIFE, CUSTOMS, EDUCATION AND ATHLETICS

By VERNON CRANE

The following description of Indian life in the Great Smokies of the Great Smokies, written by the author and Edwin Gossett, Christopher freshman, spent most of the spring vacation touring Tennessee, Kentucky, the Carolinas and Georgia. The story is of interest to S. I. N. U., not only for its readability, but also for the educational and cultural descriptions.

A brief, soft wife was followed by a sharp, clean snuck, as she cleared through the small shrubs. Chief Standing Deer, of the Great Smoky Mountain Cherokee reservation, and stayed the prize bow and arrow to the patience practice.

The beautiful Little Tennessee River flows splendidly by in its mountain valley shaded, while the red and brown peaks of the Great Smokies, and around by the glittering little town of Cherokee, North Carolina. Back up the smaller mountain valleys was the Cherokee Indian Reservation, where live 3,000 Cherokees, descendants of those brave red men who, a century ago, refused to be deported by a government operating in greedy interests.

Straddled by the truly lovely Great Smokies, the Cherokee Reservation, upon the lands of their forefathers, is next to the newest and most beautiful of these lovely red men, Smoky Mountain National Park. This park, visited by more than a million tourists last summer, is expected to receive even millions of nature pilgrims the coming season, and the Cherokee Indians, well aware of their attraction, are preparing to make the most of their opportunities.

Husky Chief Standing Deer, former track leader, and now chief of Archery, is greeting his specialty archery for the entertainment of the tourists this summer. Now champion of the reservation, he has also been champion of North Carolina, competing with local archery clubs, and outstanding them, until they quit on me, and went home.

Chief Standing Deer who appeared to be about 55, like most of the rest of the North Carolina Cherokees, speaks good English, and is friendly. He is like most of the Indians on this reservation, who are proud of his lineage, and of his full Indian blood. He is a graduate of Carle Indian School, like many of the other generation of Indians on the reservation. Many of the young ones have attended or are attending Haskell Institute, Lawrence, Kan., Indian school. Of late, Chief Standing Deer reports, many of the tribe have gone to nearby colleges and universities.

Education is not a novelty to these eastern Cherokees. While they still learn a great deal from an inspection of the school system on the reservation, a system maintained by the U. S. government, but conducted almost wholly by Indians. In the town of Cherokee, where an ornate, brick school, where Indian and whites attend together, with the principal, and the enrollment Indian. Of the athletic progress of this little high school, Chief Standing Deer was heartily proud. "We've got a mighty football team down there," he said, "of course, the boys are a little off weight, but they're sure what they can do—shifty."

On the reservation itself, which comprises slightly more than 200 square miles, all of it mountain country, there are four grade schools, with educated Indian instructors. A visit to one of them revealed a clean, well-kept building with kitchen in building called a practice house. Here, under supervision of trained home economics teachers, Indian girls to their lives here for week periods, receiving practical training in home-making.

At the school, the principal was a fine looking young Pawnee Indian from Oklahoma, who looked like the answer to a football coach's prayer for a half back. One of the teachers was a full-blooded Cherokee, a robust and pleasant young kid, who spoke perfect English. Another was a white woman, who was working with English Indian primary students. During the visit, the older boys were not in school, having taken a day off with the principal to repair a fence around the school farm. Slightly more than 100 are enrolled in this school.

Chief Standing Deer, obviously a victim of the tourists around the reservation, was taken to a typical Indian home, perched up on a small mountain side. A handsome and husky young Indian gave pleasant greetings. John Littlejohn, former Haskell athlete, admitted he was "just fooling" around, waiting for his call to the next season to get a call to his territory down in North Carolina. "The down was, we supposed, vertically, and not horizontally." The little lion car home was in fair order, and seemed comfortable enough.

"For ten miles back up the hill and the Chief pointed up into the blue haze of the Smokies peaks to the north 'the Indian families'." The occupation of most of these Indians is farming small and fertile mountain valley plots subsistence farming only—and in manufacturing, either for sale to tourists. Some of the young men were in road repair projects, intended to better give the route to the Great Smoky National Park.

Following a brief tour of part of the reservation, the Chief returned with his tourists to the Indian agency at Cherokee, the home where I had the honor of my first dinner. Then came the chief's private moment, as he was proud to give an exhibition of his archery prowess. For half an hour the arrows flew from the Chief's imported African New York bow. Sadly, disarranged was standing deer, who was standing as he urged their mark and his morning indicated that he, Chief Standing Deer, wasn't used to that sort of thing.

For the most part, his accuracy was sufficient, and it was necessary to the rest of his performance. Now Chief of the Archery, he was formerly Tribal Chief, but "didn't run again." "They all wanted me to, but then you see."

PYLON

Spring is here, children? This is the season when youth succumbs to the charms of Eros and Petae write rhymedolies about stings and springs and flowers. "See the little pussies grow: Don't you think they're pretty? What rhymes with pretty? I don't know. The poem ends, what a pity!" The madness of the poet is deplorable, of the lovers. Nevertheless, Spring is a glorious thing—full of sunshine and spring fever and fishing. Just think of them!

Teacher—Tommy, why are you sitting at that clock? Tommy—Well, teacher, you said I'd get a licking if I weren't on time to day.

Speaking of spring and youth, our school was heard letting this sonnet recited bit of verse to herself.

"Down in the valley where the green grass grows
There sits Mary pretty as a rose,
Along the stream and kissed her
On the cheek,
How many kisses did she give her,
The names weren't Mary and John
And I'll wager she didn't use a Jumping rope to answer his question."

Falling in love is like falling into an old trap.
The willows are smooth,
Oh your entrance,
You slide into it,
But with a feeling of exaltation:
But when you try to climb out,
The willows close against you.
Their points protruding
Into your flesh
Like forest thorns,
With barbs
Like barbs their passion
Lining up behind in your soul.
The willows close against you.
Watch out for chain thorns, they Are already being swept down the mountains with the spring freshets to Denver and are predicted to go eastward rapidly.

The bottom trees are in flowering bloom.
Their fragrance wafted up the scented and
I leaned out to inhale their fresh perfume.
And such the sweetest blossoms of my land.
I gazed my heart on a forest
thing,
The blood was so deep red upon the flower
Like ripples on white velvet; they were both.

I'm sure at night in some thicket showered.
For what an earth could hold such purity.
As honey bubbles on a forest tree?

JOURNALISM CLASS SELECTS LEADING NEWS STORY OF 1936

The abdication of Edward VIII from the throne of England was named the newest story of 1936 by S. L. N. U. Journalism students this week. Second and third rankings went respectively to the Spanish Revolution and to industrial recovery news, both part being the winner. The ten choice stories selected by the leading editors of the nation were used as nominees for first story honors.

Selections were made on a basis of the ten ingredients named by the press, which constitute good front page news; immediacy, proximity, significance, prominence, drama, oddity, conflict, sex, emotion and progress. The abdication story, it was found, contained each one of these factors in a high degree, being especially spicy in heart-interest and alive with emotion, drama and oddity. The class plans a further analysis of the typical news story in its continuance of the course.

The John and Josephine Geminis of the high-school classroom got right on starting in college, says a professor at the University of Cincinnati. Of the 24 freshmen who received state scholarships last fall, 23 have done above average work in their first university semester.

Nerve threads to the number of 17,000 have been counted in the marrow of the human spine, and their diameters, some as small as .001 millimeter, measured.

Among those visited were McLennan, Dubuque and Brounston.

Burnett Shryock took a studio in the French quarter at New Orleans during spring vacation where he did some sketching.

Miss Mary Crawford gave a series of dinner parties at her home in Jonesboro, Friday and Saturday nights of last week for Mrs. Charles Whitley of New London, Connecticut. Mrs. Whitley is the granddaughter of Dr. Robert Allen, the first president of S. L. N. U. The guests were early friends of Mrs. Whitley.

COLLEGIATE WORLD (By Associated Collegiate Press)

When days are flat, marks will be low. Professor John Madigan, at the College of St. Thomas, makes his students pay through the nose.

Displaced with poor grades on a recent quiz, Mr. Madigan, aided by fellow colleagues, conveyed sensually his general opinion that most of the answers were arrived by scenting the papers—2000 and land.

Those of the A and B class were sprayed with "Daisy Night" and "Jean de Cologne"—perfumes that reminded the boys of letters from "beautees" back home.

C and D papers wrinkled noses with the indium-strength odor of rotten eggs—hydrogen sulphide.

But the seven of the E and F-class reeked stomachs with the staggering smell of stank butter—butteric acid.

Coldish—especially yellow ones by the name of Othello, can rarely be found flushing around a clean glass bowl on the desk of a college newspaper editor.

And Othello wouldn't have made his temporary home there if his mistress hadn't abandoned him at the office of the Rice Institute Treasurer. Hasty postscriptaries on a white sheet of paper led under the howl, exhaled tearfully, that a "poor woman" could not afford to support little yellow Othello any longer and would the editor, "a kind man," take care of the poor fish? The note was signed, "Broken Hearted."

"Broken Hearted" can now gather up the scattered bits, for the "kind man" is sponsoring a fish-boat contest which will decide the fate of the selfish.

A writer of the most well-remembered story "no longer than five or six words" will win Othello.

Old Man Opportunity, beating a knock-knock into couldn't, even get a certain University of Texas professor to open the door once the bell has rung and the class has begun.

Likewise, all late students are barred. They might just as well go home as try to force the locked door.

Amused at his unusual procedure, members of the class turned inwardly and waited for a chance to get back at him.

"We'll have an exam during our next lecture meeting," announced the professor, not long ago.

On the day of the test, all the students were in their seats long before the ten o'clock bell rang. But no professor. Two minutes passed. Hurried footsteps sounded in the corridor, but before they stopped at the door, one of the revenge-seekers had turned the lock.

Ignoring the pounding, students stayed in their seats. Five minutes later they all went home.

SOPHOMORE DANCE WITH SOPHISTICATED SWING OF SOUTHERNERS BIG SUCCESS

Swing High, Swing Low—and the Sophomore Spring Swing got underway with our theme melody! Sophisticated Swing, starting things off, couples drifted in and began to dance. Lights were dimmed, and the show was on. There wasn't a huge crowd there—just what's wanted to make dancing enjoyable and just enough people for everyone to have a good time. If you don't believe me ask Wesley Bovinet who certainly appeared to get a kick out of the whole thing.

As is the case at every dance we play, there were several requests for "Stardust" more requests on the average than we have for any other time. Feature acts brought to the microphone the voices of Henry Kile and our own vocalists. Miriam Bowden did a tap dance to "Scampin' At The Dance."

This was one of the finest campus dances I've ever played. The crowd was swell, the boys in the band were happy, Wesley Bovinet was happy.

enough we just up and had a short jam session after intermission. Then it was all over, packing up was begun, and then another campus musician came up to the band in the manner that someone always does, kidding. "Aw come on, play some more. You say quit too early, play another piece." Well, I packed up the old bass fiddle on that and got out.

PULLIAM ATTENDS CHILD WELFARE MEET IN CHICAGO THIS WEEK

President Roscoe Pulliam left early last Friday morning to attend the meeting of the Child Welfare Legislative Committee in Chicago, of which he is the Chairman. Here the committee discussed the problems that confront the children of Illinois—and possible legislation for child welfare was proposed.

On Saturday, President Pulliam attended the Lake County Teachers Institute meeting in Waukegan, where he was a speaker of the evening. In his talk, "How Much Can the Public Afford to Spend for Schools," he contended that the cost of school and most of penitentiaries and reform schools. The President returned to Carbondale Monday of this week.
