Reagan attacks groups opposing budget plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan assailed on Monday the special-interest groups standing in the way of his economic recovery program and pleaded with urban leaders to realize that "the only power needed to restore America's strength is willpower."

In his first formal speech since he advanced his budget, Reagan complained to the National League of Cities that a "political gauntlet of interest groups" threatens to dismantle it. "I'm finding it increasingly difficult not to call some of them selfish interest groups," the president acknowledged that cities would suffer their share of cuts, but he declared that "We are all in the same boat, and we have to get the engines started before the boat goes over the falls."

Reagan assured the urban leaders that he would preserve the "function" of the Urban Development Action Grant Program, which formed the centerpiece of Jimmy Carter's urban policy and quickly became a favorite of the nation's mayors.

And while the recovery plan calls for reducing federal subsidies to cities, Reagan said he had tried to "cushion the budget blows" by making block grants to local governments.

The president drew polite applause from an audience of several thousand representatives of cities and towns, especially when he attacked the "federal Goliath — unleashed, uncontrollable."

Reagan noted there has been some congressional opposition for a three-year, 20 percent tax cut. He repeatedly referred to the dangers of inaction. "For a time it appeared that Congress had more solutions than the country had problems," Reagan said.

Utilities to lobby against proposed coal usage bill

Commonwealth Edison presently operates only one scrubber out of the 16 coal-burning stations it runs. The scrubber, located at the company's production facility in front of the 37,000-megawatt generating station in the state. The Chicago Daily News said that the company would probably cost 50 percent more per scrubber for the purchase and installation.

Despite the cost, Blessington said the scrubbers are unreliable. "The technology of these things just hasn't advanced to the point where we can count on them," she said. "The filters get plugged up, and the scrubbers use them until they get fixed. In the meantime, there's no power." The Central Illinois Public Service, which burns 18 million tons of Western coal a year, also promises to fight the legislation.

Spivery named interim men's basketball coach

Spivery, an assistant coach for the past three years, has been named interim head coach of the SLC-C men's basketball team. Athletics Director Ed Liston said Monday.

Spivery will coach the Fighting Irish during the Missouri Valley Conference tournament, which begins for SLC-C with a first-round game Tuesday night at Wichita State.

The 30-year-old Spivery replaces former Head Coach Joe Gottfried, who told his players prior to Saturday's 72-67 loss to Drake that he would not make the trip to Wichita. Gottfried's resignation or firing will be announced Tuesday morning at a press conference in Student Center Ballroom C.

A native of Phoenix City, Ala., Spivery is a graduate of Ashland College, and averaged 12.5 points per game for the Eagles during 1976-78. Before coming to SLC-C, Spivery was an assistant to him at Ashland for three seasons.

El Salvador to get more U.S. aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department declared that leftist guerrillas in El Salvador may launch a new offensive, announced Monday a $25 million increase in military aid and said a 70-man increase in U.S. military training experts for that sector.

Said William Dyess, U.S. special envoy to the Salvadoran government that the new U.S. military personnel being assigned to El Salvador will train the Court battle continues over evolution theories

(SACRAMENTO, Calif. AP) A court battle reminiscent of the historic Scopes "monkey trial" opened Monday after a judge refused to dismiss a civil suit brought by fundamentalists who want California schools to teach the theory of creation alongside evolution.

Superior Court Judge Irving Perluss, saying a 9-year-old boy who authoresay may be the nation's youngest bank robber was only playing when he held a gun and 300 customers were prevented from being robbed, rejected the dismissal motion by a state lawyer at the outset of a heavily publicized non-jury trial.

Deputy Attorney General Robert Tyler contended the state had the right to make an "educational decision" about teaching the theory of evolution, instead of divine creation science. But Perluss said opponents from the Creation-Science Research Center in San Diego could try to prove that the teaching of evolution as the sole theory of the development of life on earth violated some children's religious rights.

The center's lawyer, Richard Turner, contended the state's policy was "essentially hostile to religion."

The trial pitting science against religion stems from a suit filed in 1979 by Kelly Segraves, the research center's director. He filed it on behalf of his three children, who attend public school, claiming that the state illegally prohibits the teaching of scientifically supported biblical accounts of creation.

He and his supporters say both the "creationist" version and the evolution theory developed by Charles Darwin are part science and part religion and should be taught together as theories.

However, the California Board of Education's 1978 science textbook guidelines refer only to evolution, treating it as a theory generally accepted by scientists about the development of life forms. The theory states that the universe was formed about 18 billion years ago through an explosion called "the big bang" and that subsequently, as Darwin outlined, living things evolved from a common ancestor through natural selection.

The creationists, on the other hand, contend they have scientific evidence that God created the world in six days including every form of life in its present state. They say there is evidence the earth is only about 10,000 years old.

Consolidated election system receives favorable reaction

By Tony Gordon

The official results of the City Council primary and literary bond sales proposal were released Monday by Carbondale City Clerk Janet Vaught.

The election was Jackson County's first experience with the new consolidated election system, which places all municipal elections under the control and supervision of County Clerk Robert R. Harrell.

Harrell said he 'thought the consolidated primary worked fine,' last Tuesday, and reported no problems with the system in his office. In past elections, Harrell said, the city had 18 precincts for municipal elections and separate voter registration records under

Davies demolition ahead of schedule

By Randy Roguski

Work at Davies Gymnasium is about one week ahead of schedule and more than half of the demolition work is completed. Allen Haake, supervising architect and engineer at the Physical Plant, said Monday:

'They're just about ready to put everything back together.'

Haake said Everything except the walls, second floor and roof will be torn down before workers begin to reconstruct the 57-year-old building, he said.

Most of the demolition work, costing $82,099, is scheduled for completion in June. The work is being handled by the project's general contractor, Kiefner Bros. Inc. of Perryville, Mo. Kiefner Bros. was awarded a $2 million contract last month by the Capital Development Board, the state agency which accepts bids and finances state construction projects. Thirteen other contractors also will work on Davies Prexy, Plumbing and Heating, of Paducah, Ky., will provide $56,904 of plumbing work and $64.482 of heating work.

A note to the editor:

During work as demolition work, workers start in sulating the building's walls by laying plaster before the walls are torn down, Haake said. The structure will cost about $8,300 to insulate and will be heated through $82,475 of pipe.

Two students arrested for arguing with police

By Andrew Strong

Two SIU-C students were arrested Sunday evening for allegedly threatening a peace officer following an argument with an SIU police officer who was ordering the towing of a car owned by one of the students.

Scott Fitzmire, a sophomore in construction technology, and Brian Eichorn, a freshman in education, were arrested by SIU police at about 7:30 p.m. in the restricted parking lot of Allen Hall in University Park. police said.

Police said an officer who was about to have Fitzmire's illegally parked towed from the lot was approached by Eichorn, who told him that she knew the owner of the car. The officer agreed to wait until Eichorn could get the owner, but ordered the car towed after waiting 'a few minutes' for the two to return.

Eichorn and Fitzmire returned, and Fitzmire allegedly began yelling at the police officer, who had ordered the car to be towed. Police said Fitzmire told police that they could not tow his car, and he allegedly got in his car and attempted to back it into the tow truck. police said.

Salvadoran military in command of intelligence logistics and other skills to stop infiltration and to respond to threats.

The leftist rebels launched a major offensive on January 10 when the State Department said was carried out with the help of at least 200 tons of weapons supplied by Vietnam, Ethiopia and other countries and shipped through Cuba and Nicaragua.

Dyes said there is no conclusive evidence that a new offensive is planned but "the best way to prevent one is to prepare for it." He said the Salvadoran military performed well in early operations.

The administration also may increase the $81 million assistance and planned for the current fiscal year.

The announcement on military assistance represents another escalation in American military support for the rebels in El Salvador. But the administration has warned there is no plan to send combat forces nor to establish a Vietnam-type invasion in El Salvador.

Nonetheless, the step taken this year reflects the administration's determination to ensure there is no Marxist take-over in El Salvador.

"Uncle Vanya," Anton Chekov's human comedy in pre-revolutionary Russia, will be performed at 8 p.m. Thursday through Sunday at the McLeod Theater. Ticket prices are $3 for students and senior citizens and $4 for the public and can be purchased at the McLeod Theater box office.

The play tells the story of Vanya, who works toward a productive homeestead and stable existence on his brother-in-law's estate along with his niece, mother and other estate workers. Vanya's brother-in-law, a retired professor, returns from his bourgeois city life to disrupt the daily routines of the simplistic, yet rugged country estate dwellers.

Chekov's writing has been noted for creating "centrifugal" plays, in which plots and characters seem to be constantly spinning outward, rather than moving onward in a straight line.

GSC to accept nominations for officers, student posts

By Carol Knowles
Staff Writer

Nominations for president and vice president of Graduate Student Council and five student positions on the Grad Council will be accepted at the Graduate Student Council meeting March 11, said Debbie Brown, GSC president. Any registered graduate or professional student is eligible for nomination. Brown said there is no limit to the number of nominations to be on the April 13 ballot.

Unlike the Undergraduate Student Organization elections, GSC officers are elected only by the members of the GSC. To be eligible to vote in the election, a student must have attended one of three GSC meetings immediately before the election meeting.

According to the GSC constitution, elections must be held during the spring semester. Nominations made at the meeting March 11 must be seconded. In order for the names to be placed on the ballots, Brown said only students nominated at the meeting will have their names printed on the ballots, although write-in candidates will be accepted at the time of the election.

The presidential and vice presidential candidates are elected separately, said Brown, who added she uncertain whether she will again run for president.

The five student officers who have seats on the Graduate Council have voting rights at council meetings. The Graduate Council consists of faculty, who teach the graduate level and graduate student representatives.

Tennessee publisher to give annual lecture

John Seigenthaler, one of the most prestigious newspapermen and authors in the South, will give the annual Howard R. Lang Honor Lecture at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Morris Library Auditorium.

The lecture honoring Lang, who served as director of the journalism program from 1963 to 1972, is sponsored by the School of Journalism, and is free to the public.

The 73-year-old Seigenthaler has also received numerous honors for writing during his newspaper career including the 1977 Sidney Hillman Prize Award for courage in publishing, and the 1980 Tennessean United Press International Award for best editorial. He has served five times as a member of the Pulitzer Prize Jury.

Seigenthaler has a distinguished record in public service. He was a member of the Tennessee General Assembly in 1971-72 and 1973. He is sponsored by the University of Tennessee's annual lecture program.

Michigan man writes ticket to his success

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Ronald Weger had a brainstorm 39 years ago. And American motorists have been paying for it ever since.

The 70-year-old Lansing businessman is the father of the traffic ticket, holding more than 75 copyrights on various citation forms.

His Weger Governmental Systems company sells more than a million tickets a year to states and cities across the country.

"What this did is bring order out of chaos," says Weger. "Previously, tickets were hodgepodge affairs. Some were even written on blank sheets of paper.

The postwar boom in automobile-buying and traffic accidents, signaled the time was ripe for a traffic ticket that made sense, said Weger, whose 6 x 4 inch forms were first used in Lansing, Mount Pleasant, and Kalamazoo, Mich.

Motorists may not realize it, but standardization of the traffic ticket has been a blessing, Weger says.

Frightened Americans hooked on survivalism

EDITOR'S NOTE — Some Americans are so worried about the economy, crime and foreign policy that they are preparing to take the law into their own hands. If necessary, to survive. AP Special Correspondent Peter Arnott visited hidesouts in remote areas where weapons and food are stockpiled.

DALTON, Ga. — Small but growing bands of Americans are arming themselves and learning how to kill because they are convinced the country is crumbling and they will have to fend for themselves to survive.

Attached neither to hate nor political groups, they are known as Survivalists. Americans who are remodeling their homes to play for guns and shooting lessons for their families, to professional men accumulating arsenals of military-type weapons in homes and strongholds scoured from North to South, East to West.

Midwestern suburbs, remote Western ranches and mountainside cabins in the Pacific Northwest.

Variety named retretion, survivalism or futurology by its advocates, the philosophy was found in a dozen states visited by this correspondent.

"It is a retreat to medieval times," said Brian Jenkins, an expert on terrorism and insurgency who works for the Rand Corp., in Santa Monica, Calif.

There are inner perimeters In America today, places people are reluctant to leave for fear of their own safety. The national perimeter no longer seems secure.

No official figures exist on the number of people engaged in survivalism who agreed to be interviewed insisted they knew of thousands of others.

William Pier, a California survival supply distributor, claims to have 200,000 names on his nationwide mailing list and says he made a million-dollar profit last year by selling freeze-dried food and other items. Pier said scores of similar businesses across the nation sell items ranging from portable toilets to radiation suits and gas masks.

"Survivalism will be one of the great growth industries of the '80s," said Peter Weiland, a Washington computer specialist whose firm is establishing a survivalism referral service.

The emphasis of these Survivalists are stock-piling food and building shelters as primitive as dirt foxholes or as sophisticated as concrete bunkers. Some are learning how to defend these resources against all comers.

GOING BEYOND THE bomb shelter craze of the '60s and '70s, many advocate extreme action in time of emergency.

"If there is nuclear war, I hope everyone in the cities is killed. I don't want them coming out afterwards expecting me to feed them or to take what I've got," J. Allan Croft, 30, a foreman from a Phoenix hardware store, said at a weapons training camp where his 10-year-old son, John, was learning to fire a rifle.

His view was shared by many who believe civil war will come not from nuclear devastation but from economic collapse. The believers seem to share an attitude among people not similarly prepared: "Stay away from me and what I've got. What would I do if my neighbor came for help in a major catastrophe?" asked Ron Burns, a freeze-dried food manufacturer who has a hideaway in Utah's mountainous Heber Valley. "I might help him, but some of my customers say they would rather kill him."

ACUMULATION of guns is one characteristic of survivalism. Those seriously concerned are buying up to a dozen firearms per family.

The Treasury Department says private citizens in this land of 226 million own at least 140 million rifles, shotguns and handguns. That makes 50 million more weapons in private hands than there were 10 years ago when the population was 231 million for a 36 percent increase in weapons ownership on a population increase of 11 percent.

They differ from such paramilitary groups such as the Wisconsin-based Peace Corps, which advocates tax revolt, and the Minutemen, law-and-order advocates based in Missouri and Kansas.

They are part of an evolving social pattern where gun owners look at their weapons not as recreational but as defensive weapons. "They are crossing that threshold in greater numbers," said Dr. John Crothers, police writer, author of a study on fear in America.

SOMEWHO CROSSED THE threshold from recreation to defense gathered in the northern Georgia woods this winter for the first session of a Harold's American Survival School, set in a forest glade near Dalton.

"I sort of wonder if I should really be doing this, but I guess my husband is right," said Dorothy Priest, a transplanted Californian cradling a 12-gauge shotgun in her arms. She said she and her husband had come to Georgia to escape "too many drugs, too much crime.

Just down the road, an organic chemist, said they had spent $600 of their vacation money to tour four days of courses on armed and unarmed self-defense, advanced first aid and radiation detection. The Priests' next step will be to stock pile food, buy a dozen guns and maybe build a bomb shelter in their rural home.

The Minority Business Conference Day, scheduled for April 21, will feature the General Classroom Building, part of the College of Business Administration and the Administration Business Week, said Ken Hunter, head of the programming committee for RIB.

Students will attend about ten representatives from various companies at the conference, said Alfred Moore president of RIB. A committee, which will start at the meeting, will select topics for each representative to discuss.

RIB members also unanimously decided to initiate a recruitment program for minority students from Carbondale Community High School. We want to get to the students and tell them that there is more to SIUC than just partying," Moore said.

Informal question and answer sessions with high school students are being planned and a letter will be drafted this week to ask the administrative permission to do the service project, said Deines Porter said in marketing.

Porter said the offers of Admissions and Records and Financial Aid have agreed to help publicize the program if the students are qualified to guarantee a student's ad

Porter said.

Representatives of RIB plan to give students a synopsis of the Black Affairs Council and the College of Business and Administration programs.

In other business, RIB members decided to start membership drive for Carbondale campus majors.

Seminars stress responsibility of city liquor establishments

By Mary Anderson
Student Writer

Much of the blame for underage alcohol consumption is placed on liquor establishments and employees during a series of three liquor law seminars recently held by the Carbondale Police Department.

Seminars were presented and suggestions made Tuesday on how to prevent underage drinking. Topics included ways of checking for positive identification, enforcing operating hours, health and safety issues, and the operation of liquor outside the business and the use of force in a disturbance.

While employees of liquor establishments had taken a seminar on their task as ID watchers, city officials reiterated their position that it is the responsibility of the owners and employees of the liquor establishments to enforce the law.

"The city ordinance technically does not prohibit anyone under the age of 21 from being in a bar or liquor store," Police Chief Ed Hogan said. This is left up to the establishment owners. They may refuse entry to any person with just cause, as long as it is not discriminatory.

Hogan said since the liquor establishment owner controls the employees, and not just the underaged drinker, the owner is held responsible for violations of city liquor ordinances, if it is the establishment's duty to prevent or stop any wrong doings. Hogan added that no age check card is needed.

Police training officer Robert LEDBETTER said, "In order to control alcohol abuse, the beverage must be 21 years old and in possession to present positive identification. The ID must contain a proof of age and be issued by a public official in the performance of his official duties."

"A photograph is not required on the ID," Hogan said. "Any type of identification may be refused if it is reasonable to doubt the validity of the ID."

According to Ledbetter, acceptable identification includes any state driver's license, Illinois driver's license, personal identification card, and military ID card. An expired license, license exceeding 21 years of age, or an ID transferred to another person, are not acceptable identification, he said.

The form of identification altered most in Carbondale is the 21 ID, according to Ledbetter. Hogan said a University ID can be recognized as invalid by the computer matched photo and color of its background.

"The problem with the ID could be eliminated with a new ID not showing the date of birth," Hogan said.

If a person is found possessing a fake ID, Ledbetter said it should be confiscated and the holder turned over to the police. If the person is found guilty of violating a city liquor ordinance, a fine of between $10 and $500 can be levied.

The responsibility of checking and verifying IDs is making it extremely difficult to sell alcohol and do their jobs, employees complained. If a person orders more than one drink, the bartender or waitress must be sure that all those receiving the drinks are of legal drinking age. An employee must confiscate the beverage or be held responsible, according to the employees on hand at the seminar.

Employees said they feel that since they have made a legal transaction that it is not their hands and responsibility rests on the person who gave the underaged person a drink.

"The employee must do everything possible to prevent it, or else they share the responsibility with the others," Ledbetter added. Enforcement closing hours also has posed problems. Elizabeth Byrnes, assistant city attorney said, "From 11 until 2 a.m. No alcohol may be sold or consumed past this time. These refusing to leave can be arrested and have charges filed against them.

"The force you use cannot be out of proportion to the amount of force being used against you," Ledbetter said.

Sweeping changes proposed for state Open Meetings Act

CHICAGO (UPI) - Attorney General Tyrone C. Fahler Monday proposed sweeping changes in the state Open Meetings Act, including a tight definition of the term "meeting," which he said will probably make public officials unhappy.

Fahler said the proposed revisions would make it easier for the public and the news media to challenge public officials who may be violating the law.

The proposed revisions would define the term "meeting" and "pending legislation," permit, for the first time, action other than criminal charges against alleged violators, call for stiffer voting procedures to close a meeting, require officials in a closed session to provide written minutes of that session, clear up ambiguous language, and make it easier for any individual to bring action against suspected violations.

Rep Jim Reilly, R-Jacksonville, will introduce the legislation in the House.

He said he expects the bill to move through the legislature quickly and hinted it has bipartisan support. "I have a great deal of support," he said.

Fahler predicted public officials will object to the stiffer standards prescribed in the bill until they understand them.

"It's not so much a bill to satisfy the media as it is to satisfy the public and the public interest. It'll make public officials' jobs easier," the attorney general said.

"These changes are not an attack on government officials. From my observations, it is apparent that many violations of the current act are caused by misunderstanding or ignorance of the law and even some of the officials' unsubstantiated fears about the role of the media in our society."

The bill would define, for the first time, a public meeting as a gathering of two or more members of a public body at which public business is discussed.

"We chose the two or more because it's the only figure that is all-inclusive," Fahler said.

Questions over the definition of a meeting stemmed from a 1978 private meeting of nine members of the Urbana City Council before a scheduled council session. The "Urbana Nine" were found guilty of violating the act.

The trial court held that any gathering of two or more members of a public body constituted a meeting, "over which is being run a muddled waters to such a degree that the case could not be given broader application.

Fahler said public officials will not be able to run from each other to avoid a possible illegal meeting.

"That's not the intent of the law," he said.

But, he said the bill would keep two members of a three-member panel from meeting on the street and plotting to vote down the third member.

For the first time, the bill would outline civil action against alleged violators. Fahler said the act may not have been firmly enforced in the past because cases had no sentencing options other than a $100 fine and of a 30-day jail sentence.

The bill would give a public body power to close a session only after a public vote of a majority of a quorum present. "We can't have two or three members of a five-member body voting to close a meeting," Fahler said.

Morambique The second runs from Afghanistan, through Iran, to South Yemen and Ethiopia. The third belt, from Syria to Libya, is under construction.

He said he offered Egyptian military facilities to the U.S. and Western European nations so they could defend their positions in the Persian Gulf.

The Egyptian president cautioned. "The collapse of the oil facilities there could mean the collapse of Western civilization. We are ready to give them our limited means every facility to reach the Gulf States to protect its interests.

But Will My Insurance Pay?

BY DR. ROY S. WHITE
Doctor of Chiropractic

The second most important question we are asked by our patients is, "Will my insurance cover my spine disorders?" That is, we are asked about the different insurance covers and their benefits.

In brief, the usual answer is:

1) AUTO ACCIDENTS: the repair your insurance company will pay or the total amount or the car owner's insurance company will pay.

2) WORK INJURIES: your employer is required by law to pay for your medical care when you are injured in the "course of your employment.

3) GROUP HEALTH-Most group plans have a deductible amount and then pay 80%.

4) MEDICARE: public assistance to those who are 65 or older and meet certain poverty levels.

5) ALL OTHER INSURANCE: and if the above don't pay, many companies will give you a discount and then your insurance company will pay your share of the cost.

Many doctors will extend credit or partial credit to patients when there are insurance benefits that fall into the first two categories. Occasionally, we encounter doctors that some companies make such unreasonable requests of the doctors that the insureds of those companies must pay their bill and be reimbursed. I tend to believe that I would describe as "searching for ways to avoid paying claims," is becoming more widespread.

We also have to deal with the cost of insurance reporting averaging 25% of the entire insurance receipt. We sometimes wonder if we are in the "doctoring business" or the "insurance business."

Whenever you have a question about costs, don't hesitate to discuss it with your chiropractor. The usual practice is to search for a way to extend credit by the way we charge. "IMPORTANT QUESTION is Doctor can you help me and we are proud to relay that "98% of the time our answer is 'YES.'"
Doing things their own way is the style of Texas religious group

KEENE, Texas - AP

Travellers driving into this north central Texas town on Highway 6 might not notice the Last Church at the end of the city line.

With a long, sloping street, they wouldn't know that the post office is closed on Saturday instead of Sunday, and that the local grocery store has one of the most extensive arrays of natural foods and meat substitutes in the state.

The product-frame and brick houses that line the highway reveal little about this town of 4,400, located 50 miles south-west of Dallas. The only hint comes from a small sign that points the way to Southwestern Adventist College.

The college, built in 1893, is the hub of the town - and its largest employer. The college president, Dr. Don McAdams, estimates that 12 percent of the town's residents are Seventh-day Adventists, and says most of them are involved with the college.

That's because the college owns most of the town's businesses, including the motel, the gas station, the Loma Linda Food Store, the car wash, the shop that makes the macaroni, the Kitchen Cabinet Co. and Southwestern Color Graphics, a print shop.

Together, the college and its businesses gross $15 million a year, McAdams said.

Southwestern Adventist has only 704 students, but its tuition is among the highest in the state and the college owns some of the largest businesses in town, and the managers are 100 percent employed by the college.

Diversified Industries. The college business manager is the managing editor of Southwestern Adventist College's newspaper, The Keene News.

Adventists shun all drugs and alcohol, eat only vegetarian fare, and low intakes of salt, sugar and fat.

Adventists believe that when a person dies, he dies completely. That's all. But at some point in time, there will be a resurrection, McAdams said.

When the resurrection comes, Adventists believe, the dead will rise bodily, mind and spirit. This belief is an important doctrine.

Another characteristic of the Adventist lifestyle is that they worship on Saturday, the seventh day of the week.

The town has no movie theaters or bars, and students adhere to strict curfews.

Blue jeans are in abundance, but female students may not have hemlines above the knee, low cut necklines or noticeable makeup.

In the college's vegetarian cafeteria, 20-year-old James Worgand was campaigning for student body president, running on a platform of more service projects and more spirituality.

Jeff Bromme, a 20-year-old social science major, doubles as the state's youngest newspaper publisher. He bought the Keene College for $5,000 last year at age 19.

A staunch Democrat, Bromme jokes at the town's size, calling himself the youngest newspaper publisher. He bought the Keene College for $5,000 last year at age 19.

A staunch Democrat, Bromme jokes at the town's size, calling himself the youngest newspaper publisher. He bought the Keene College for $5,000 last year at age 19.

He plans to sell the newspaper before leaving Keene to attend law school, probably at the University of Texas at Austin. If Bromme doesn't leave for graduate work, he may be an exception.

If the people should go out and be a part of the society and influence others, he said.

IM teams build 'title' waves in swimming and diving meet
By Keith Maceini

The Egyptian Divers and Spoons won the men's and women's titles Saturday at the Student Recreation Center.

Seventy-six entrants participated in the individual and team events. Teams were allowed to place from eight points for a first-place finish down to one point for an eighth-place finish. Point totals were doubled for relay events.

The Egyptian Divers and Spoons won the men's team competition with 126 points. Second-place honors went to bathtub Ringers III finishing with 84 points. "Clumsy" Tactics finished third with 51 points and the Hydrophobes, a team of medical students who entered half the events, were last with 14 points.

The women's championship was won handily by Tsunami, which scored 122 points. The race for second-place honors went down to the final event. The Egyptian Divers edged Hydrophobe, 78-76.

The 500-yard freestyle was the determining event. The Egyptian Divers edged Hydrophobe, 78-76.

Two SIC-U intramural swimming records were broken during this meet. William Stout of bathtub Ringers III shattered the record in the men's 50-yard freestyle with a time of 23.84, and Dennis Zeigler of bathtub Ringers III took the record in the women's 50-yard freestyle at 30.28.

Kris Hansen set a record in the men's 30-yard breaststroke during the preliminaries with a time of 29.21. However, he lost to Ron Werber in the finals.
No. 4 Cairo picked to win sectional meet

By The Associated Press

Madison, Lawrenceville and Cairo, Southern Illinois' top hopes of regaining the Class A Illinois High School basketball championship were unanimous selectors to win their respective sectional tournaments this week.

Madison, 24-2 and ranked No. 2 in the state, was the overwhelming choice to win the Vandalia Sectional while No. 3 Lawrenceville, 26-2, was the pick at Bridgeport and Cairo, 25-4 and ranked No. 3, was solid at Benton.

Each team received all 19 first-place votes cast by a panel of sportswriters and sportscasters.

Four other teams missed being unanimous by one vote. They were Marenisco in the Morgan Sectional, Tokiwa in the Spring Valley Hall Sectional, Waverly in Petersburg and Chadbuck at Pearl City.

New Lenox Providence, the state's No. 1 team, missed unanimous ranking by two votes in the Aurora Sectional. The other two went to fourth-ranked Providence-St. Mel.

These two powerhouses collide Tuesday night and the winner of this game could take the sectional crown.

Other teams favored to win their sectionals were Franklin, Danville, Schardman, Decatur St. Teresa, Lewistown and Moms.

Eastwick's arm impresses Cubs

MESQUITE (UPI) - Rawly Eastwick, the one-time free agent who has spent the majority of the 1980 season in the minors, has been "the most pleasant surprise" of the Cubs spring training camp, Manager Jack McKeon said Monday.

"He picked him up because our scouts said he was having some success with a Bruce Sutter-type fork ball," McKeon said. "We were going to expect a thing from his fast ball but we didn't expect his velocity to be this amazing."

Eastwick is on the Cubs' Des Moines roster. He will be competing with Dick Tidrow, Lee Smith and Bill Caudill for right-handed relief jobs.

CAMPING OUT-Bad Camp tries to shoot over Drake's Lewis

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Chicago White Sox outfielder Chet Lemon has begun a special program of extra running designed to prevent the type of injury that slowed him down in spring training last year.

Before many of his teammates arrived at camp Monday, Lemon had run six sprints across the outfield and three from home to first base.

"I don't want any leg injuries this year," the 28-year-old outfielder said. "Last year I played only nine games in spring training because of a pulled hamstring."

BLUFFTON - That is the best way to describe the SIU-C men's track and field team's performance at the Missouri Valley Conference men's indoor championships on Saturday in St. Louis.

The Salukis took back as they had six first-place finishes, eight second-place finishes, four second-place finishes in the finals. The Saluki-Redbird conference highlighted each weekend at Terre Haute, Ind.

The only senior on the SIU-C was well represented in the top three places. Joe Gormall, a 31-year-old, won the 800-meter run, with a time of 2:06.13. The Salukis were placed second with a time of 1:53.64. The Salukis were also placed second with a time of 1:53.64.

As for Jones' chances in the nationals, Long was neither optimistic or pessimistic. "If he gets a good break, he'll be able to win the next 10-year-old," Long said. "You have to remember that he's in a bracket with 31 more of the nation's best wrestlers at that weight."

Another Saluki who performed well at the qualifying tournament was Dave Wray, SIU-C's entry in the 100-pound division. Wray already qualified for the championships, as he finished fourth in his division.

Hartsgord said, "When you get after some of these guys, you can really see how much they are thinking about what they are doing. You take the heart out of them. If you have each one have a goal, give its best effort, even though he doesn't have the same speed as he used to. We got 100 percent effort out of him all the way through the second place for the people who want to win."

The greatest point we made in this meet was the last race of the meet showed the strong team feeling, when the entire squad raced together. The Salukis did not have to run as far as the relay team, which had a spread of 3:14.44.

"I wasn't worried about the 40-point deficit at the end of the semi-finals because he had not expected his team to do well in the field events," Long said. "I began to worry right after the first event Sunday, the mile, when the Salukis' Mike Jones placed third and fifth and basically killing any Redbird victory hopes."

Grad students win St. Louis marathon

SIU-C was well represented in the Third Olympiad Memorial Marathon, which was run in St. Louis Sunday. Two graduate students won the men's and women's races in times good enough to qualify them for the Boston Marathon.

The Road Runners Club of America sponsored the race, in which 423 runners raced through downtown St. Louis, St. Louis County, and then back into the city.

Jan Johnson, 25, graduate student in physical education and defending women's division champion, won the 26-mile, 13.8-mile race with a time of 3:16.58. Johnson overtook Beverly Miller of Macomb in the last mile of the race. Miller's time was 3:16.58. Johnson and Miller were ranked as the top two seeds going into the race.

Johnson bettered her time from last year when she ran a 3:19.18. This year, Johnson ran a time of 3:16.58. She improved her time by almost two minutes, better than the previous best of 2:59.2.

Waythomas crossed you have to line almost two minutes ahead of second-place finisher Stuart Jenkins, 21, from Principia College in Elsah, Ill.

A 19th place finisher last year, Waythomas ran a time of 2:59.44. The Salukis were placed fourth before the race behind four Salukis who finished first from Chris Lynch of Bellesville. Lynch finished 2:58.14. Lynch was the first place runner, said he felt confident he could win. "I was running next to a gap, and I felt really relaxed," he recalled. "I wasn't pushed hard at all. If it was pushed I could have had a better time.

Waythomas said he started running because he enjoyed it. His good times in running in marathons in 1987. He said, "I was in the Boston Marathon twice.

Johnson went to California Poly State University in San Louis Obispo, Cal. on a track and field scholarship before coming to SIU-C.
