Higher ed budget sparks dismay

By Mike Anthony

Staff Writer

Chancellor Kenneth Shaw said Monday he was "disappo.

tized" by Gov. James Thompson's fiscal 1983 higher education budget recommendations. "I'm very disappointed," he said.

Shaw said Thompson's proposal provides $4 million more in cost increases, $17 million less than the Illinois Board of Higher Education had requested.

As has been his practice, Thompson released his 1983 education budget recommendations early. He is scheduled to present his full budget to the General Assembly on Wednesday.

The majority of funds appropriated in Thompson's proposed budget come from the state's general revenue fund, and Thompson's proposed budget called for appropriation of $18 million less than in fiscal 1982, Shaw said.

But according to Richard Wagner, executive director of the IHBE, Thompson recommended a 6.8 percent increase in general revenue funds for all needs other than retirement.

"Excluding funding for retirement, the governor's proposed budget is $94 million or 9.9 percent below the board's recommended level. This includes a $27 million and $26.6 million or 2.8 percent less than the current general revenue fund level for higher education," Wagner said.

Shaw agreed, saying that the net effect of the governor's proposed budget "is a reduction of $2.8 billion in the state's general revenue fund and a 21 percent increase from other sources.""Shaw said.

However, Shaw said that the money in the university income fund comes from three sources: tuition, bond retirement fees and other non-budgetary base programs but that doesn't necessarily mean we will get more total money.

Thompson's proposed higher education budget already has been hit with heavy criticism from higher education officials.

"We have been using our funds as a cutback mechanism since 1974," said Shaw. "We will have to continue to do that until the state's fiscal crisis is over.

"We view this as a serious threat to the future well-being of the state," Margret Schmid, union chief adequate revenues to fund necessary public services." Wagner

Schmid said. "We view this in great alarm as a serious threat to the future well-being of the state," she said.

David Fields, assistant press secretary to Thompson, said the governor's "realities if inadequate funding does not meet the expectations of students, faculty and staff in education, social services and other public services.

"The governor's budget is the toughest he's ever recommended." However, Fields said, "More money will be available for the General Assembly passes the proposed liquor tax, and some of that money will go for higher education." Schmid said.

If the legislature refuses to approve the liquor tax, "higher education will have to live with their cuts as will many other state agencies," Fields said.

"But Schmid said that if the liquor tax was approved, "it would only generate about $40 million and that is not enough."

"The proposed liquor tax is not an adequate increase," she said, and the state "ought to generate enough money to solve the problem.

Shaw warned that income tax reform already on the books will result in about $450 million less in the state treasury by 1984, but he said that Thompson told educators in Springfield last week that "if the liquor tax is approved, higher education would be the first to get help.

"Shaw said.

If there is any silver lining in the governor's recommendations, that's it," Shaw said.

Wagner said. "There is no question, however, that the proposed budget of funding leaves many needs unmet.

Those needs include funds for cost increases, accumulated pension deficiencies, enrollment growth, student aid and high-contributes to the state's economy. Wagner said.

"Although it is too early to know the exact impact, the Thompson's proposed budget, some former ative conclusions can be reached.

We are being asked to operate with less money," Shaw said, "and the system will be forced to absorb price increases, utility increases and we can't put money into high-graduation programs such as computer science and engineering.

"We are going to have to live with their cuts as will many other state agencies," Fields said.

"Finally, it's going to be very difficult to improve faculty and staff salaries, and given the current picture. I don't think we will be able to improve salaries," Schmid said.

"For us as faculty members, it's unclear what we're talking about in terms of salaries and positions for students who are facing 15 percent tuition increases. It's a disastrous situation.

"If passed, the governor's budget will only many students the opportunity for higher education," she said.
Five arrested on drug charges

Five Murphysboro residents, including a married couple, were arrested on drug charges Monday morning. Murphysboro police, Jackson County Sheriff's, and Southern Illinois Enforcement Group agents made the arrests at about 6 a.m.

Robert and Cathy Miller of 165 N. Jackson St., were arrested on warrants issued by State's Attorney John Clemmons. Robert, 24, is charged with making five drug sales to undercover SIEG agents during the investigation, which took "several months," deputies said.

He is charged with selling between 30 and 50 grams of marijuana to agents on Nov. 18 and less than 30 grams of LSD on two occasions — Nov. 26 and Dec. 22.

Cathy, 24, is charged with selling between 30 and 500 grams of marijuana on Nov. 18. Both Millers also are charged with selling substances represented as amphetamines.

Mark Davis, USO election commissioner, and Debbie Brown, GSC president, each said they are looking for a method to ensure that each student votes only once.

Petitions of candidates for president and vice president, who run as a ticket, must have 360 signatures from each of the geographic voting districts — Thompson Point, East Campus, and the off-campus east side and west side districts.

A senate candidate’s petition must have 50 signatures from the geographic or academic district the senator will represent.

Senate seats up for election are one for Thompson Point, two for East Campus, six each for east side and west side and one each for the colleges of agriculture, business, communications, education, engineering and technology, general studies, human resources, liberal arts, science and the School of Technical Careers.

Petition signers must be an enrolled student and cannot be an academic or disciplinary probation. Signers of a petition must live in the same geographic district or be members of the same academic district.

Safety and regulation of X-rays is subject of hearing at SIU-C

By Randy Rendfeld Staff Writer

The Department of Nuclear Safety requires annual inspections of X-ray machines but a recent hearing in Chicago on medical radiation showed "a recent hearing and inspection for ten years and over five years ago."

State Rep. Wayne Alstat, R-Vergennes, said, "Another 66 have not been inspected for ten years and almost 1,300 were last inspected over five years ago," he said.

Alstat, chairman of the House Subcommittee on X-ray and Radiation Safety, has scheduled a public hearing on X-ray safety and regulation for 10 a.m. Tuesday in Ballroom C in the Student Center.

This will be the second hearing, and Alstat said another might be scheduled, perhaps in Central Illinois, if not enough information is presented to make a ruling.

"We have a situation in Illinois right now where two-thirds of our X-ray facilities go without inspection every year," Alstat said. "That means people may be getting unnecessarily high doses of radiation. Something needs to be done about this, and it needs to be done now."

Alstat stressed the importance of public participation in the hearings. "We need to know how you feel about this issue and we need to know from medical professionals what the X-ray situation really is," he said.

"All facilities where inspections have taken place, problems have been found. Safety violations have been identified in three out of every four X-ray devices inspected," Alstat said.

City man charged in shooting

City police arrested a Carbondale man Sunday and charged him with shooting another Carbondale man.

Jerry Lee Cole, 26, of 920 N. Borden, is accused of shooting Billy C. McDade, 22, of 504 N. Barnes, in the leg. The State's Attorney, John Clemmons said Cole has been charged with attempted murder and aggravated battery.

Police said they were called to the intersection of Oak and Washington streets to investigate the shooting at about 9 p.m. Sunday. Police said that on the way to the scene they were dispatched to The Bar at 213 E. Main, because the victim was reportedly in that area.

At The Bar, police said they were told that someone had given McDade a ride to Memorial Hospital.

"We may have people's health endangered with this situation. And you just can't put a price on that. We have to move now to find a workable solution," he said.

Alstat said the Department of Nuclear Safety doesn't have the money or the manpower to keep up with inspections. The hearings will attempt to determine whether there needs to be some sort of criteria for operators of X-ray machines.

Alstat said, X-ray machines in Illinois "need to be inspected methodically rather than hit and miss," he said.

Put a lid on chemical weapons

By Tom Travin
Newspaper Editor

ON APRIL 22, 1915, German forces released a cloud of chlorine gas near Ypres, France. It was not until 15 minutes or so after the release that the United States joined the war. The results were not favorable. America was forced to retreat, losing thousands of soldiers.

Of course, the war was not just about chemical weapons. It was also about political and economic factors. But the chemical weapons played a significant role in the outcome.

THE SOVIETS AND VIETNAMESE deny the use of chemical weapons in their wars. However, many experts believe that these countries have been using them extensively.

DEFENSE SECRETARY Caspar Weinberger has said that the United States should continue to work towards a ban on the use of chemical weapons.

Recent studies have shown that the United States has been secretly developing chemical weapons for use in the Middle East.

DURING THE 1970S, the United States continued to maintain a huge stockpile of chemical weapons. There was no new production. But now, the Reagan administration has been secretly producing chemical weapons and releasing them into the public domain.

I must admit the first time I listened to the new WTAO I liked most of what I heard. I thought it was a good show. But I thought I would give them the benefit of the doubt and listen further. As I listened, I noticed that the show was lacking in personality. It was just a collection of news stories and interviews.

There are many things that we as students have to adjust to upon returning to SIU after winter break. Some of these adjustments are relatively easy - not having your parents wash over you, the slightly warmer weather and more scene surroundings.

Other changes are not as easy to adjust to. For example, dorm food, doing laundry and washing clothes. There is probably no other way to do this, but it is a difficult thing to adjust to if you are the type of person who likes to eat healthy and exercise.

Phoebe's experience with WTAO has been valuable. She has learned a lot about the organization and its goals. She has also learned how to deal with different types of people.

Petition expressed questions about Muslim student group

By Patricia Olson
SIU Purchasing Secretary

AS AN INDIVIDUAL who is concerned with the plight of Islam and with the U.S. State Department's decision to recognize the Republic of Islamic Republic of Iran, I felt compelled to express my disagreement with the letter written by Garry Murphy and the Coalition of Progressive Social Scientists (Daily Egyptian, Feb. 24). It referred to the petitions that were handed in to the Daily Egyptian and printed on Feb. 16, concerning the status of the Muslim Student Association.

I do not believe that the petition was intended to be part of a slander campaign against the Muslim Student Association, as Murphy implied. Nor was it an attack on Garry Murphy or on the integrity of his column. It was simply intended to make the student body and administration aware of the activities of the Muslim Student Association. It also meant to raise some questions as to the function and objectives of this group on the SIU-C campus.

In regards to the accusations made by Murphy, I think it is not representative of one group under the leadership of Rabbi's. His name has not been used to be one of the organizers of the petition. It was, instead, a joint effort of a number of groups and individuals, both Muslim and non-Muslim, who share the frustration and anger over the coercive political activities occurring on our campus.

THE IRANIANS who wrote the petition did not say that they support or encourage violent activity in order to express their ideas. Also, they believed that the use of violence is far from the spirit of Islam or the United States or the SIU-C campus an extension of the violence in Iran. Furthermore, they do not say that this is a propaganda campaign against the MSA or any other organization. There are many people who take a great deal of time and money, and like most SIU students, these people do not have the time or energy to engage in a full-fledged type of activity.

Murphy also implied that Rabbi “rounded up” 127 signatures. The 127 Iranian students who wrote the petition are students who agreed with its contents. They were not coerced and were free to sign.

It also must be understood that the letter and petition were not written as an ultimatum to the right to exist; to threaten the existence of a MSA. I assume that as a member of a social coalition, the right does not exist. It is a means of making a statement to a group or person in authority and signed by a number of people.

ANOTHER FALSE assumption made by Murphy is that Rabbi and his “associates” are un-American and anti-Iranian. The fact that they choose to express their dispute with the media with a protest is evidence of their desire for peace in the Middle Eastern manner. This can hardly be seen as a violent act.

Yes, there is bitterness and sometimes violence among various Iranian persons and groups. But what can you expect when individuals are fearful of returning to their home country to live or visit because their lives may be in danger? How would you feel if your mail was opened or censored, your phone calls were tapped, and it was implied that you comfort those who have lost family members in torture or execution? All this because they don’t happen to be Muslim and or agree with the political leadership of their homeland.

Therefore, I feel that the call to investigate the MSA must be rhetorical and realistic. I agree that a group that represents Muslims and the practice of Islam should have the right to exist. To express this group in question is representative of all the Muslims, it is none of us. They are a small faction that uses the religious sounding name of the MSA to hide their harsh political activities.

I have a hard time accepting the accusations hurled at the Muslim student group. Islam is an empire of words, and narrow mindedness. A small group of people has a way of using the false argument of devotional God, to engulf the entire population of Muslims. It is none of us.

I hope that in the future these people who agree with the group called Progressive Social Scientist, it appears that they have taken a giant step backward.

Counseling Center made her feel more depressed

I am writing in regards to the treatment I received at the Counseling Center. On Feb. 3 I was in a state of depression and needed to talk with someone about the situation. I went ahead to schedule an appointment and was assigned a counselor since I have not been to the counseling center for future appointments.

While sitting in the waiting room, I overheard the counselor who was assigned to me say that she could not see me and told the secretary to tell me that she wasn’t in and to reschedule the appointment. The secretary came in and asked me to reschedule the appointment. The duty was called in and I overheard her tell the secretary that she could not make it for the time that I agreed upon. The director then told the counselor to make sure that she took the appointment.

I want to tell you that the counseling center could use the help. I hope that they will be more considerate in the future.

I am outraged! Why is it that we never see any photos of Undergraduate Student Government members at events with the public? Senate meetings are dull. Not a single senator groupe or senator has had a picture taken or been published in some official news.”

The Daily Egyptian could help spread some good news about the serious position of events like the new fee increase. But never a photo of some event in the middle of the paper.

And WBB’s record isn’t much better; but then again, I guess that is what the album rock is a busy job. If you can’t do the job, then don’t do it. I am easy on the publicity. Senate meetings are dull. Not a single senator group or senator has had a picture taken or been published in some official news. And what about those side sales. Have you ever heard of some serious events at parties? The Daily Egyptian could help spread some good news about the serious position of events like the new fee increase. But never a photo of some event in the middle of the paper.

World goes adrift without moral base

That was great coverage by the Daily Egyptian concerning the Senate’s petition to the Administration on the Feb. 5 issue.

I am upset over the fickleness or narrow interpretation that has permeated some of the thought processes relative to State Supreme Court’s decision about injecting into our education system more serious attention to moral consideration. For years, there shouldn’t be any question about this serious omission in society’s list of priorities. If there is a “hang-up” on the use of the word moral, we can easily add the words ethic or value. The way the Moral Majority has abused the word moral, it will not be its real meaning for any tae.

This is why the Supreme Court of 1961 had an appropriate article, Five-Enduring Values. More was reed in Southern Illinois for Feb. 18 reproduced an address by G. Rcover that is worth nothing about the question. He says: "A failure of reasoning with the so-called bottom line of profit and loss statements, coupled with a lack of open discourse, is creating an environment in which few people are understanding values (ethical or moral); where responsibility is in practice, the exercise of power; where we can no longer value more than actual knowledge and experience in the betoken, where attention and effort is directed mostly to short-term, regardless of longer-ranged consequences. Political and economic power is increasingly concentrated among a few with all assuming any of the possibilities and without being subject to public scrutiny."

In other words, while so many well-meaning citizens are in imminent seem to fiddle over words and narrow interpretations, Rome burns - intellectually, ethically, morally. To get the world adrift economically, politically and socially when so many of our so-called leaders in the economic, political, social, and educational arenas give so little thought to the idea of an ethical, value or moral base. If complete social degeneration or moral apathy were the importance of values, ethics or moral base it was my experience in the educational experience since that the present generation is not prepared to place democratic principles in their proper perspective. It is amazing to find that we are leader of the most powerful nation and that we are being the only one that is finding around — that is has not been realized. Because we are so sloppy in our ethic-vals-moral attitudes and buying society has such a struggle. When we were busy in our modernism in going to have our democracies become "sin-god-like" type of leaders or managers, and bring into being more or less an alien, intrinsic value-oriented character. Persecution of Baha'is told in students' letters

By Charles Victor
Staff Writer

Reality means a lot of things to a lot of people. To many students at SJC, it is often not much more than study during the week and parties on the weekends. But to Iranian students, especially those of the Baha'i faith, it means the possibility of never seeing their homeland or loved ones again. It means fear in almost everything they do in the United States, because of possible persecutions in Iran.

While other foreign students wait with glee for letters, some Iranian students dread news from home because it often means yet another member of the family had been executed. One such letter was read at a press conference Saturday during a memorial service for Baha in a house. The letter, from the mother of an SJC student, was smuggled out of prison. The news came in the wake of earlier news of the execution of the father.

The mother described her capture: "Seven Islamic soldiers surround our house and asked us to come in the back door. Grandma and I were alone and asked us to open the door. Two days later they took us to another prison. The news means the death of those attending were Rev. Theodore Gill of the Campus Christian Ministry and individuals of other faiths, including Iranian Muslims opposed to the Shahen regime.

The service was opened by Frank Alas, a prominent Baha'i engineer from Peoria who emigrated to the United States 26 years ago.

In a short speech Alas said, "We are not here to mourn the dead but to honor them. They are martyrs to the faith and we should be proud, not sad."

Earlier Alas told reporters at a press conference, "We want people to be aware of what's going on in Iran. We don't want what happened in Germany during World War II to happen again."

The service coincides with a four-day Baha'i celebration which began Feb. 26, called Ayyamihis "Days of Sharing." According to Joel Smith, chairman of the Carbondale spiritual assembly, Ayyamihis is like Christmas, a time for gifts and fun. It precedes the Baha'i New Year.

In a short speech, "Spicing, Laughter, Love," a silent comedy by Keaton, Chaplin, Laurel and Hardy and live piano accompaniment, popcorn and lemonade will be served.

Spend an old fashioned evening with us. The Nickelodeon will be March 6th in the STUDENT CENTER BALLROOM B.

Self-renewal plan designed for city

By Randy Konfeld
Staff Writer

Eight miles north of Cairo is a 350-family community called Klondike. It is populated by poor black families, of which nearly 60 percent are over 60 years old.

There is little in Klondike other than a tavern, church and one supermarket. They have no meeting place, no health services and no sound economic base.

But some of Klondike's citizens wanted a plan to change their living environment, to solve some of their social and physical problems.

So some citizens formed a committee called "Workers to See Klondike Grow." and they approached Stanley Mendelsohn, a faculty member of the SIUC Design Department.

Mendelsohn considered the people of Klondike, their age, their needs and their likes and dislikes. He concluded that a development plan for Klondike should focus on their social needs.

He realized that the citizens had little money, and they liked to grow their own food.

Mendelsohn decided that greenhouses were a possible solution, and he proposed that several small greenhouses be constructed, each at minimal expense, and they can be the basis for business.

Mendelsohn refers to his plan as "A Farmer's Market for the Independent Elders." The comprehensive plan for Klondike would include land- and building-use plans, a demographic study, layout and design of between 12 and 20 units, and construction of models. The complex would include health and social facilities and accommodations for arts and crafts center.

The plan, however, is still a plan. But Mendelsohn believes it is a "breakthrough in planning for people."

One of the problems Mendelsohn said Friday at a press conference is that elderly people often are "get a gold watch, thank you, and then are left to oblivion. There has to be some sort of continuum."

Mendelsohn said he is looking not only at the needs of the people of Klondike, but at what they want. "We can't tell the people what to do," he said. "We can only make our ideas, the initiative and enthusiasm must come from the people. We need to be concerned by them."

The project must come from the grassroots level. This can be a gigantic waste of time if we impose on them. Rather, they must be participants in the project. This is not the type of program that uses people as pawns. For our gain, our design must start with the people." According to a press release, the Alexander County Housing Authority has already donated $7,000 to develop the project. It will be administered through the SIUC Foundation and will cover travel, typing and other incidental costs.

When asked about further funding, Mendelsohn said if the people of Klondike approve the program, "it will happen."
Paying taxes? Help is available.

Saterially IRS-sponsored assistancs program from an accounting society, and the Accounting students will man booth to assist students using the 1040 or 1040A forms.

The program is not a tax preparation service and students must sign their own returns. David Sommemer, chairman of the program, said. Forms will be available but students are asked to bring own forms, their W-2 and any other documentation of deductions or expenses they plan to report.

WSIU-TV will broadcast an hour-long call-in tax assistance program at 9 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday. Bari Bas, chairman of the Accounting Department, Christopher Pflaum, faculty member in finance, and an IRS agent will discuss the various income tax return forms and will take questions from viewers through a call-in number.

Free tax help is available through the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance program. An IRS-sponsored tax preparation service. The IRS trains VITA volunteers to prepare returns. VITA assistance will be available from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. March 11 and March 15 in the Student Center and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. March 12, April 3 and April 10 at the Law School.

Basi said students should be aware of several facts about filing income tax returns. First, if students haven't received a W-2 or a 1099 form from an employer they worked for during 1991, they should contact the employer and the IRS.

Tips and compensation for services which were paid in form other than money are taxable income, and must be reported. Basi said. Also, students who have income investments, such as trust funds, investment property and in interest earnings on a bank account, may have to file the long form 1040, he said.

Students who own small businesses should be aware that, unless they prove that they are in business for profit, they can't claim expenses on their tax return. Basi said.

Matmen out; netters win two

Grapplers Jerry Richards and Tim DiLuccia were unable to make the cut for the NCAA tournament, and the qualifying meet at Louisiana State over the weekend. Richards, at 158 pounds, got a first-round bye in the championship round, but then lost a three-point decision in the second round. Richards dropped a three-point decision in the consolation round.

Coach Linn Long said the 118-pound division was "a real good weight class." Richards said he thought he had "wrestled poorly."

Tim DiLuccia, who had been the team's standout wrestler all season, lost his only championship bout, and then split two bouts in the consolation round. DiLuccia was h Hammered by a sprained ankle the week before, but he recovered in time to race marathon last week. The junior said he never knew how much he needed the right side of his body to "hope, ride, and throw" his legs.

"A healthy Tim DiLuccia would have went to the nationals at either 142 or 134 pounds," he said.

In tennis, the Salukis won twice over the weekend, beating Indiana State 8-3 on Friday and Illinois State 5-4 on Saturday. Despite the injuries of senior Mike Lipton and sophomore David Desilets, both of whom played, SIU-C managed to win two of its three doubles matches and four of six singles to beat the Hoosiers Friday in Belleville.

Even more exciting, according to Saluki Coach Dick LeFevre, was the come-from-behind victory over the Illinois Saturday. Only Brian Stanley and Gabriel Coch were able to win singles matches but the Salukis' doubles' team of Jerry Gist-David Lipton, Dave Desilets, and Stanley-Coch preserved an SIU-C victory by winning all their matches.

"Coming back to beat Illinois after being down 4-2 was really something," LeFevre said.

the Salukis grabbing the defensive rebound and racing the ball upcourt before the Aggie defense could get set up.

Byrd, SIU's scoring leader this season with a 12.7 average, may not even be at New Mexico State Tuesday night. His mother is terminally ill, and Byrd has been with the team on a day-to-day basis.

However, New Mexico State Assistant Coach Greg Perry said his team will be worried if Saluki 6-10 center Rod Campbell plays and is playing well. Campbell was heavily recruited by the Aggies when he played ball for New Mexico Junior College.

"I think the Salukis believe in themselves," Perry said. "And if Camp plays and really gets going, he has the ability to dominate the game. Frankly, I hope he doesn't get to play because he had a bad game here last year and he may want to redeem himself."

Here is a look at the other first-round games of the MVC tournament:

Indiana State at Bradley

Bradley compiled a 13-3 conference record en route to finishing first in the MVC and has lost only once at home this season. The Braves' Indiana State twice this year - 68-67 at home and 79-77 in Terre Haute.

The Braves' All-American leading scorer, 6-6 forward Mitchell, averages 16.7 points and eight rebounds per game. He is a powerful all-around forward but forward David Thillard, who averages 13.7 points and seven rebounds, may not see action Tuesday night because of a sprained ankle suffered in Saturday's 81-74 victory over Illinois State.

Campbell, who tied West Texas State for the cellar in the Valley with a 3-13 record, said his team should have problems on Bradley's home court, even if Thillard doesn't play. Drake at Illinois State

The Redbirds, like the Salukis, compiled a 6-2 home record and won three MVC games to place second in the Valley. Illinois State, 6-7 in MVC play, and Drake, 7-9, split two games this season, with the Redbirds winning at Normal, 50-49, in a game in which Drake shot only 17 percent in the first half. The Bulldogs beat the Redbirds in Des Moines, Iowa, 49-46.

Illinois State center Rick Lamb leads the Redbirds with averages of 14.4 points and 8.9 rebounds per game. The Redbird starters are supported by a good bench. Dale White, who doesn't usually start but sees a lot of playing time, leads the Valley in free throw accuracy, .834. Barring any freak baskets by Drake in the closing seconds of the game, Illinois State seems to hold the edge when you average it out. This is a game to watch.

Tulsa at Illinois State

A home-court advantage by a bit of good fortune could give the Golden Hurricane some advantage in this game.

Gary was injured last year and did a fine job."

Backing up Richardson will be Steve Boyd, an all-state catcher from Columbus, Ohio, and walk-on Frank Navarez.

"Navarez is a very good fielder, said Green. "He has excellent mechanics behind the plate and a quick, accurate arm."

Wednesday: The Salukis' defense, speed and hitting could be a factor in this game.

Sizzlin STEAK HOUSE"
Van Winkle says 'anything can happen'
Salukis to battle Aggies in 'death trap'

By Bob Morand
Staff Writer

To Saluki basketball Coach Allen Van Winkle, the Missouri Valley Conference tourney, which gets underway Thursday night is the beginning of a new season.

"SIU-C will be at New Mexico State Saturday afternoon," he said. "Then the team will be back on the home court at the Pan American Center Sunday. That's the Tourney, which starts at 9 p.m. CDT. Through the Aggies boast a 1-10 record this season, and are not a home court floor at the Pan American Center, it's a question whether their success that most of the Valley teams have had on their own court will continue.

"We had a chance to beat New Mexico State, but we thought we lost that game because of the mistakes of the season," Van Winkle said.

"I think we match up pretty well with New Mexico State," he said. "They've beaten some teams that are at home this year, but if we can catch them on an off day, we might be able to control the game."

The Pan American Center is a new nemesis to "A Valley teams. This year New Mexico State is third in the league, with an 8-3 record at home, slaying Valley giants Texas, Iowa, and Wichita State, 8-3, 7-1, respectively. The Aggies are tied in the MVC with a 12-4 record, and their pitching has been so good that it's been almost impossible to play in the tournament. The Aggies are 14-3 in third place with a .672 win-loss percentage for the season.

"But Van Winkle said its not make a difference the Aggies on their court, solely because its 'a tournament time and anything can happen, especially in the Valley."

"I like to think of it as a situation where we are three games away from the NCAA tournament. So we're a little nervous for thinking that we can relax and relax before," he said, alluding to Mississippi's surprise win of the SEC tournament last Thursday, and SIU-C's win in the MVC conference tournament last week with a conference record of 9-0.

"When you're in the MVC championship game, with the winner getting an automatic bid for the NCAA tournament," he added.

"But before anyone looks too far down the road, SIU-C will have to contend with the same Aggie team that beat the Salukis, 'arely, at the arena in overtime, 64-60.

"In the only meeting of the two teams this season, the Aggies were led in scoring by 6-4 center Renaud Moultrie with 22 points and 6-7 forward Jaime Penna with 21 Pena is the leading scorer in all Valley games this year with a 17.7 average.

"Moultrie and Penna are the scoring threats that must be stopped if SIU-C is to win this year.

"Moultrie is a good inside player," he said. "And Pena, well, everybody knows about him - he's about the finest outside shooter there is."

The Salukis' strategy for routing one is simple: staunch defense and run, run, run. Van Winkle and most of his players believe if they can get the Aggies out of their zone defense, SIU-C may be able to run on them all night. If they can't do that, and if SIU-C is having one of its cold outside-shooting nights, disaster might be the final score for the Salukis.

Saluki forward Ken Byrd, following his 18-point performance in the win against Drake State, said, "If we can be there and be tough on the boards, we can get a good transition game.

"The transition game which Byrd referred to would involve

Baseball team's improvement to rely on 'consistent pitching'

Editor's note: This is the first of two previewing the Saluki baseball team.

By Steve Metcalf
Sports Editor

If the Saluki baseball team is to continue its .500 record of a year ago, it will need good, consistent pitching from its starting pitchers and relievers according to Assistant Coach Brian Green.

"Last year we had control problems at the start of the season," he said. "This year assistant to Head Coach Johny Jones. "But the starting staff can't start out more consistently."

Green and Jones get their first look at the starting pitchers' consistency, their staff is Tuesday when the Salukis open the season with a doubleheader at Arkansas-Fayetteville against the Razorbacks.

Jones said Sunday that he would probably use hurlers Rob Clark, Dan Murphy and Tim Klemp, with Lynn Wynn as the "number one" on Tuesday. "These pitchers are not currently in shape and will need some work," he said.

Like professional baseball teams, college baseball teams are out to develop a single pitcher that can go eight or nine innings.

"I'm not sure yet what kind of season we'll have," he said. "Our team has good offensive skills, but I'm not sure if our starting pitchers can come out with the good performances of a year ago."

The Salukis, who have performed well in third place from Cincinnati, has impressed the Saluki assistant coach this week.

"Clark is a heady pitcher with excellent control and a good breaking pitch," said Green. "The coach said Hatfield, a senior at Arkansas State, "probably see a lot of action. The Salukis are looking at four appearances last year and was 2-9 with a 3.71 ERA. Klemp was also a "righty" player this season. Last season was Hatfield's on the mound, and a .655 record with a 3.73 ERA, in addition to his five appearances in six innings.

"I'm not sure yet what kind of season we'll have," he said. "Our team has good offensive skills, but I'm not sure if our starting pitchers can come out with the good performances of a year ago."

The Salukis have been throwing in the batting cage on the arena's upper concourse for the last week or so, said Green.

"If we can take advantage of several newcomers, we can make a good conference record this year."

Swim coaches see two-team NIC duel

Editor's note: This is the first of two articles previewing the NIC swimming and diving championships.

By Janae Markowski
Staff Writer

This year's National Independent Conference championships were held over the weekend at the Palace through Saturday at South Carolina, will be one of the most competitive swimming events this year coaches agree. Fast times for all of the teams are expected and a tough battle for first between SIU-C and Miami.

"We're very much a conference meet," said Miami Assistant Coach Jay Winters. "The crowd will more like a dual meet between the two of us. The conference meets will be head-to-head."

The Salukis are looking for their fifth consecutive championships. Last year, it appeared Miami had won, but points were subtracted from their total after it was discovered that Miami had done "some funny stuff", thus giving the victory to the Salukis.

Though the coaches agree that either team is capable of winning, Miami Coach Roger Gribble, a junior from Jersey City, N.J., said Florida State coach John Stafford. "Both teams are "very strong," they will be tough for either one to win. "I give a little edge to Miami because there's a revenge factor."

"South Carolina, Florida State and Miami are all pretty even," continued Gribble. "Each team has points they are able to take away from Miami and SIU-C equally. It's going to be determined by the coach."

"We've been breaking school records unshrunk," said Democrat. "I said if the Salukis aren't rested for the meet, the chances for Miami NIC is "We're a much stronger team than last year," the Hurricane coach continued. "We covered our weak areas - depth and diving."

Miami has several talented swimmers, including junior supreme Jesse Vassallo, the 61st individual medley world record holder, and Matt Groble, a sprinter and butterfly man who has came in this year, said coach said Green.

The Salukis have been throwing in the batting cage on the arena's upper concourse for the last week or so, said Green.

"If we can take advantage of several newcomers, we can make a good conference record this year."

Steve Collins said of Miami, "I don't think Miami will be the underdog. We don't have much any of Southern Illinois, but I think the outcome depends on who will be setting the meet."
