About 250 people participated in an hour-long aerobics class at the Student Recreation Center that attempted to break the world record for most people doing aerobics in the same place. The aerobics class Monday night was small compared to last year, when 450 people participated. The class spanned three basketball courts. The record for the largest university aerobics class, held by Purdue University, is 672 participants.

China trade restrictions vetoed

Gus Bode

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Bush, continuing a perennial battle with Congress, vetoed legislation Monday that would have required China to improve its human rights record in return for favorable U.S. trade treatment.

The veto, which had been expected, will likely be sustained. The House voted overwhelmingly to impose conditions for renewal of most-favored-nation trade status. But the Senate last month voted 59-39 for conditions, short of the two-thirds majority needed to override a veto.

The president reiterated his view that the best way to affect improvements in China's internal and trade practices is through engagement, not isolation.

"There is no doubt in my mind that if we present China's leaders with an ultimatum on MFN, the result will be weakened ties to the West and further repression," Bush wrote in a veto message to Congress. "We are making a difference in China by remaining engaged."

Bush added, "My administration shares the goals and objectives" of the bill. "My objection lies strictly with the methods proposed to achieve these aims."

Senate Democrat leader George Mitchell said, "This veto again demonstrates the president's tenacious support for the communist leadership against the interests of the Chinese people. The president's policy has failed. It is time for the Congress to change that failed policy by overriding his veto."

City to ponder tougher rules for Springfest

By Teri Lynn Carlock
City Writer

The City Council will begin discussion tonight on recommendations to alleviate problems in Carbondale caused by the Halloween and Springfest celebrations.

The Staff Liquor Advisory Committee began developing ideas in mid-December to decrease alcohol consumption, students spilling into streets and oversized block parties during Halloween and Springfest.

SLAC members have made six recommendations for the City Council to consider, including early closing hours for all liquor establishments, a ban on the retail sale of kegs and a restriction on morning liquor sales.

The SLAC reported the No. 1 problem during Halloween is people who spill out of bars on South Illinois

Clinton, Tsongas battle for front-runner status in seven primaries, caucuses

By United Press International

With the first big block of primaries and caucuses a day away, Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton and former Sen. Paul Tsongas battled Monday to see who will become the Democratic front-runner while President Bush waited to see how big a victory he will get.

After a round of individual primaries in caucuses in smaller states, Tuesday will see primaries in Georgia, Maryland and Colorado and caucuses in Minnesota, Washington, Utah and Idaho.

Bush, spending the day in the White House, was actively opposed by conservative commentator Patrick Buchanan only in Georgia. But after two straight weeks of embarrassing votes against him in Republican primaries, the Bush campaign wanted a decent showing to slow down the challenger's momentum.

"We take nothing for granted," said White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater. "We want to get as many votes as we can."

For the Democrats, the battle was getting more like a Clinton-Tsongas fight with both needing victories to show they are electable candidates and give them a boost into the

SIUC vice president to resign for Egypt job

By Christine Leninger
Administration Writer

Harry Miller, SIUC associate vice president for academic affairs and research, is taking a three-year leave of absence to head The American University's adult and continuing education center in Cairo, Egypt.

He will resign July 1 and begin his new job in August.

The offer came a year ago when someone from the university in Cairo contacted him about the position of expanding a variety of training programs and developing new ones in small business, health care and industry, Miller said. He was too busy with his duties at SIUC to accept the job at the time, but the offer was made again this year.

"I didn't really get serious about the position until I was called a second time to head the center," Miller said.

The center for adult and continuing education is The American University's largest division with 15,000 students.

Miller's position will be filled internally. Benjamin A. Shepherd, vice president for academic affairs and research, said in a statement from the University News Service.

"I want to emphasize that I will be hiring someone on the payroll, so in effect it will be

Dawgs tie for MVC title

Saluki freshman forward Marcus Timmons goes up for 2 points in the first half of the Dawgs' 70-61 win Monday over Northern Iowa at the Arena. Timmons had back-to-back slam dunks in the second half to lead the Salukis to victory.

By Tony Mancuso
Sports Editor

For the second time in three years, the Saluki men's basketball team has finished first in the Missouri Valley Conference.

The Dawgs, behind superior defense and 25 points by junior forward Ashraf Amaya, took off in the second half to top the Northern Iowa Panthers 70-61 Monday night.

SIUC improved its record to 14-4 in the Valley and 21-6 overall. Northern Iowa dropped to 6-12 in the Valley and 10-17 overall.

The Salukis finished in a tie for first with Illinois State, also 14-4 in the MVC. Southwest Missouri, which was tied with SIUC and ISU going into the final game of the season, lost to Indiana State and dropped to third.

Because they won both games against ISU, the Dawgs clinched the top seed in the MVC tournament. SIUC will play No. 8 seed Wichita State at noon Saturday in the St. Louis Arena.

Coach Rich Herrin said it was tougher for his team to win the Valley this time than it was in 1990.

"When you are picked to win it all, it's just added pressure," Herrin said. "Everybody guns for you."

The Salukis, who led 31-17 at the half, allowed the Panthers to close within 9 points with 11 1/2 minutes left in the game on a bucket by UNI leading scorer Cedrick McCullough, who finished with 16 points.

But the Salukis got rolling with the fast break and went on a 10-0 run that put the Arena crowd of 6,258 on its feet.

After Amaya scored on a post-up play, sophomore point guard Chris Lowery stole the ball and fed freshman Marcus Timmons for a monster jam. Seconds later Timmons stole the ball and jammed home 2 more.

"That had to excite a lot of people," Herrin said. "We had some tremendous runs tonight."

But he added that it was defense that put the Salukis on top early. The Dawgs' defense held the Panthers to five-for-27 from the field in the first half.

"We did a tremendous job," Herrin said. "We shut down their perimeter people the entire first half."

Junior Tyrone Bell and Lowery did not allow Panther guards Dale Turner and Louis Armstrong to score before halftime. The duo combined for 49 points when the Dawgs lost at Northern Iowa earlier in the season.

"We turned up the defense on those guys tonight," said Bell, who was part of the MVC title team in 1990.

He said the first place finish was sweeter this season than it was when he was a freshman.

"This was a little more special," Bell said. "But we still have to win the tournament."

"We are looking for the automatic bid (to the NCAA's) so we don't have to rely on a committee."

Sandberg, Cubs close deal worth $30 million

MESA, Ariz. (UPI) — Ryne Sandberg became baseball's highest-paid player Monday, agreeing with the Chicago Cubs on a five-year contract worth $30.5 million.

The 32-year-old second baseman signed the deal shortly before 1 p.m. Monday, nearly 12 hours after his self-imposed negotiating deadline expired with both sides still at the bargaining table.

"It's been a long road, a lot of hard work," Sandberg said at a news conference announcing the deal. "With a lot of hard work and time, just waiting, I guess good things happen. I'm just very proud and happy to be in Chicago for the next five years."

The deal, which contains an option for a sixth year at the Cubs' decision, supercedes the final year of Sandberg's current contract that would have paid him $2.1 million. He will earn $30.5 million through the 1996 season and can make more through such incentives as being named Most Valuable Player, winning a Gold Glove and making the All-Star team.

Sandberg's guaranteed money tops the deal signed in December by New York Mets outfielder Bobby Bonilla, who will be paid $29 million over five years.

"Ryne is someone who we are now looking to retire as a Cub and go to the Hall of Fame as a Cub," said Larry Himes, the Cubs' executive vice president.

Baseball team takes wrong rout to open season

By James T. Rendulich
Sports Writer

Coming off a weekend series that saw the SIUC baseball team drop two games at Mississippi, head coach Sam Riggelman said he knows his squad has some work to do this week.

The Dawgs opened the 1992 season by stumbling out of the blocks and falling to Ole Miss 16-0

Saturday and 12-1 Sunday.

"We know know what areas we have to work on now, and we are going to get after them this week," Riggelman said.

In the opener, SIUC junior starter Mike Van Gilder gave up four runs in the bottom of the first and three runs in the bottom of the second.

In the fourth, Ole Miss pushed two more runs across and knocked out Van Gilder, who took the loss.

While Ole Miss was feasting on Saluki pitching, SIUC was fanning against Ole Miss starter and winner Tom Luke.

On the day, Luke fanned two, walked one and gave up only one hit to senior Brian Heather.

After Van Gilder's exit, Riggelman tried sophomore Bob Richardson, seniors Tom Giese and John Etel on the mound, but they faired no better. In 5 2/3 innings the three yielded 11 hits and seven runs.

The one area Riggelman was looking to for stability—the defense—also had a deficiency as the Dawgs committed five errors in eight innings.

In the second and final game of the series on Sunday, the Salukis came back with what Riggelman said was a better effort, but the result was the same.

For the first two frames, SIUC senior starter George Joseph held Ole Miss scoreless, but in the third Joseph ran into trouble.

A leadoff double by Ole Miss third baseman Jeff Johnson and an error on a sacrifice gave Ole Miss runners on the corners with no outs.

Rolling Salukis bounce back with victories at tournament

By Norma Wilke

The wheelchair basketball team had lost three games by a total of 8 points, but this weekend it was SIUC's turn to win.

The Rolling Salukis won the four-team Wright State University Wheelchair Basketball Classic. Temple University and Ball State also participated in the tournament. SIUC is 10-13 this season.

Coach Todd Hatfield was happy to see the players come out and play the way they did, he said.

"After losing our last three games, we were at a crisis point," Hatfield said. "We weren't coming in and making our plays. This tournament it was either sink or swim, and the players came in and did well."

Both SIUC and Wright State entered the final game of the tournament 2-0 on Sunday, but the Salukis jumped out to a 11-0 lead and never looked back, winning 50-33.

Senior Rich Swanson led the Salukis with 16 points, and sophomore David Neimann, who made the all-tournament team, had 12 points and 15 rebounds. SIUC saw help from a new player sophomore Earl Jordan, a

After going 7-0 in the fall, the SIUC women's tennis team started the spring 0-6, but coach Judy Auld said the team has played excellent competition.

The Salukis dropped three dual matches this weekend to Marquette, Michigan State and Drake. Auld said she saw an improvement in the players' tennis game this weekend.

"The sets were close against Marquette and Michigan," Auld said. "They were not outclassed but were a little flat. Against Drake, the team was more competitive and more into the matches even though the score doesn't indicate it."

"Since the start of the season, the players have worked on and improved on setting the points up and putting the ball away. The players are lacking on mental toughness, but that will improve as the season progresses."

U.N. URGES HELP FOR DEVELOPING NATIONS

A U.N. official of the coming world conference on the environment urged Monday industrialized countries to provide an additional $70 billion to developing countries so they can implement environmentally sound economic development. The proposal by Maurice Strong appeared to set the tone on the question of finance for the 4th session of the committee of the U.N. Conference on Environment and Development.

GADHAFI REJECTS REPATRIATION OF LIBYANS

Libyan leader Col. Muammar Gadhafi Monday rejected a Russian proposal that the United Nations take custody of two Libyans charged with blowing up Pan American World Airways Flight 103 over Lockerbie, Scotland, in 1988. "I have no authority to hand over the two Libyan citizens to the United Nations," Gadhafi said in a speech broadcast over state-run Libyan Radio and monitored in Cairo.

TURKEY UNLEASHES ATTACKS ON KURDS

Turkey has launched a new military offensive in northern Iraq aimed at smashing bases used by the rebel Kurdish Workers Party, officials said Monday. The operation, which began late Sunday, was the fourth inside northern Iraq in the past six months and included bombing runs by several Turkish warplanes. Turkish military officials said no civilian areas were targeted or hit. There was no word of a ground attack.

MOLDOVA VIOLENCE CLAIMS THREE LIVES

Armed separatist forces stormed a Moldovan police station in a disputed region of the former Soviet republic Monday, and three people were reported killed in the resumption of violence in the area. Moldova's Ministry of National Security, the successor to the KGB in the republic, said three separatists were killed, at least five people were wounded and 32 policemen were taken hostage in their own police station.

PERSONAL INCOME FALLS 0.1 PERCENT

Personal income fell 0.1 percent in January, while spending rose 0.2 percent, the government said Monday. Personal income dropped $2.7 billion to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $4.923 trillion, the Commerce Department reported. The January drop in income followed a 1 percent increase in December. Consumer spending, which accounts for two-thirds of the nation's economic activity, rose to $4.078 trillion.

LAWYER SUES MAGICIAN COPPERFIELD

A Florida lawyer filed suit Monday seeking more than $1 million from magician David Copperfield, contending the performer subjected his audiences to the aggravation of producing a television program and did not present the show for which they had paid $20 to $27 a ticket. Among other things, the suit contend that performances were continually stopped and started, and more than once, Copperfield performed the same magic tricks.

Bill Ramsey, a coordinator of the Caribbean Festival and Rally for a Free Haiti, said Dunham could be released from the hospital as early as Monday.

IDOT STOPS TESTING MATERIALS FOR ROADS

Illinois roadbuilders have mixed opinions about a new program that get the state Department of Transportation out of the business of testing materials used to construct state highways. Some say it will cut red tape and allow contractors to build better roads for less money. Critics of the plan contend it will raise the cost of building highways and encourage unscrupulous builders to cut corners.

State's tough DUI legislation set to reduce traffic fatalities

By Scott Wuerz
Police Writer

Illinois is making strides to eliminate alcohol-related automobile fatalities with some of the toughest DUI laws in the country.

Mark Schloemann, a therapist from the Carbondale DUI Counseling Program, said getting tough on intoxicated drivers has sent a strong message to Illinois motorists.

"Illinois used to be perceived as one of the more lenient states in the area of DUI prosecution," he said, "but that definitely isn't the case anymore."

—Mark Schloemann

Dave Osborn, president of the Alliance Against Intoxicated Motorists, said changes that occurred in Illinois DUI law have made Illinois one of the toughest states in the country.

The changes, most of which have been implemented since 1986, include a comprehensive statewide monitoring of DUI offenders conducted by the secretary of state, Osborn said.

The monitoring system is designed to keep track of repeat offenders who could receive lighter sentences as first-time offenders for several individual cases before the modification in policy.

Drivers must take a breathalyzer test at the time of arrest or risk automatic loss of driving privileges for six months, an increase in the penalty for alcohol-related reckless homicide to a class II felony with a possible seven-year prison sentence, and up to 14 years for multiple deaths, he said.

Convicted drunken drivers face a loss of about $2,500 to $5,000 in legal fees and increased insurance costs, Schloemann said.

These changes, coupled with tough enforcement, have forced inebriated motorists to find alternate transportation, he said.

According to Illinois Department of Transportation figures, the tough Illinois laws have pushed total fatalities to an all-time low, Osborn said.

More than 60 percent of all traffic deaths in Illinois involve motorists, who exceed the 0.10 legal limit.

"Illinois used to be perceived as one of the most lenient states in the area of DUI prosecutions, but that definitely is not the case anymore."

Statistics show a drop in the number of highway fatalities in 1991 from 1,589 in 1990 to 1,444 last year—a drop of 9 percent—the lowest total since the end of World War II gas rationing.

Carbondale Police chief Don Strom said the drop is indicative of the fact that there are less drunken drivers on the road.

"We may never get to a point where we can achieve total elimination of drunk drivers," he said, "but the decreased figures in accidents and in DUI arrests lead us to believe that there are less drunk drivers on the road," Strom said.

Despite the level of success, current legislation has achieved, Illinois legislators would like to see the law get even tougher.

Mike Murphy, spokesman for the Jackson County State's Attorney's Office, said Secretary of State George Ryan is pushing for tougher standards.

Ryan proposed the legal blood alcohol limit be decreased from 0.10 percent to 0.08 percent in 1991.

The measure failed, but Ryan is expected to reintroduce it in 1992.

If passed, Illinois would match Oregon, which currently uses the 0.08 standard, the lowest legal percentage in the United States.

"The Secretary of State has taken a proactive approach," Murphy said. "The best way to eliminate alcohol-related accidents is to make an impact on potential drunk drivers before they hit the street."

Cut now, worry later; Bush strikes again

President Bush still has a long way to go to earn his self-issued nickname the education president. His latest proposal calls for a 76 percent cut in the nation's library services for 1993.

THIS PROPOSAL WILL FORCE LIBRARIES TO cut back their future plans and ignore the opportunities to take advantage of state of the art technology becoming available.

The libraries will survive, but only at the current level. The cuts would cripple their ability to offer new learning devices in the form of increased computerization and expanded databases.

AT SIUC, STUDENTS CAN ACCESS MATERIALS from other libraries through the Illinet system at Morris Library.

Future University proposals include the expansion of the system to a global network allowing library users to explore new areas of research and access the best possible sources.

THE INFOTRAC AND ILLINET COMPUTER systems at Morris make the library's massive amount of documents organized and easily accessible for library users.

The efficiency of computerization has proven its advantages over the seemingly archaic card catalog system.

WITH THE LIBRARY MATERIALS USUALLY IN some form of disorder from user abuse and neglect, the organization of the computer systems cuts down on the time and hassles it takes to find needed materials.

IN THE FUTURE THE LIBRARY WOULD be able to convert more information into digital form through CD ROM technology. Federal funding is necessary for the library to expand and offer greater services to its users.

Local and state funding will keep libraries functioning, but Bush is cheating students out of educational opportunities that will be available as new technology becomes incorporated into the education market.

IN HIS STATE OF THE UNION ADDRESS IN January, Bush called federal support of libraries "a bargain." No sooner had the public read his lips than the president was proposing to cut this apparent educational blue light special.

THE INEFFECTIVENESS OF TODAY'S POLICIES must not be passed on to future generations. Education has become the bail out bucket for all levels of government.

Straight forward support to education has been cut to the bone, but aiming the budget axe at indirect educational programs cannot be tolerated.

LIBRARIES ARE KEY TO LEARNING— even Bush admitted this. It is time the president started reading his own lips and putting some money behind them.

Japanese investments in U.S. profit American business also Rejecting Japanese ownership of American enterprises, including baseball teams, is irrational. Like the refusal to buy Japanese products, it is not only chauvinistic and racist, but also counter-productive.

When they see foreign businesses investing in the United States, promoters of such sentiments let their imaginations run riot with paranoid fantasies of foreign domination, even though they rarely criticize Americans for selling to foreigners or buying their enterprises: this is chauvinism.

Racism magnifies these negative feelings toward Japan. When other North Americans or Europeans invest in United States companies or sell to our consumers, few people criticize them; contrast this with the demagogues who find it easier to appeal to anti-Japanese prejudice.

Questions of morality aside, if we block foreign investment and imports, we will be the losers economically.

Japanese as well as other foreign companies are investing the United States because they have the capital and American companies do not.

If they cannot invest here, our companies will have less money, and among the losers will be the workers whom they fire.

"Protecting" our businesses from foreign imports will remove their incentive to innovate and to improve their products.

The lack of competition will also result in higher prices for American consumers.

If you believe that American business is so feeble and incompetent that it cannot survive without "protection," go ahead—keep out the "foreign devils."

But you'll owe the rest of us a subsidy to put up with fewer jobs, poor quality, and higher prices.

—Charles E. Hammond, assistant professor, foreign languages.

Mail service requires overhaul

The purpose of this letter is to inform those who have control over campus mail policies, and those of you who are served by the mail service of certain conditions that can no longer be tolerated.

The mere appearance of our facility from the outside is an embarrassment to the University. The majority of buildings that I have delivered mail to have gone through some type of renovation over the last few years. Why not the mail service?

The equipment which we must operate with is in poor condition as well. The carts that the mail carriers push around campus have been used way beyond their limit. It's hard to deliver mail when a wheel on your cart falls off. The mail bins that we sort your mail in to are also in poor condition. Mail can fall through cracks or loose boards without us even knowing.

The vehicles we use are also equally embarrassing, here are some headlines: Sliding doors that fall off, doors that won't shut, gear shifts that won't go into park, heaters that won't work, broken turn signals, and missing sun visors.

Obviously the current budget crunch will prevent improvements to be made in the near future. However, up until now, no significant changes have been made, so unless something is said, what guarantee is there that there ever will be? The campus mail service under the control of Harry Wirth, head of Service Enterprises, has a large enough role in this university to warrant a few basic improvements.

In the time that I have been with the mail service a few changes in policy have been made, but whether or not these are significant is questionable. One example would be the change in policy, directed by Harry Wirth, that mail carriers are no longer allowed to wear hats while delivering mail.

Let me see some changes that actually improve the efficiency and overall operation of the mail service, and then, Harry, I'll take my hat off to you.—Douglas Kimmel, senior, aviation management.

Japan trade not fair trade

I found your articles on trade with Japan interesting. As food for thought, I would like to tell you of two personal encounters with trade I have encountered.

In 1987 I came through Hong Kong after being in China. I purchased Washington state apples for $.26 each. When I went on to Tokyo I priced Washington state apples. They were over $5 each. This last summer I was in Singapore and purchased Washington state apples for $.23 each. Again, when I came back through Tokyo they were $5 each. Fair trade?

Senator Paul Simon tells me one of the largest selling items in the Los Angeles International Airport is a 10 pound bag, (boxed) of rice the Japanese tourists buy to take home. It sells (in the airport) for about 10% less than what rice sells for in Japan.

Oh, yes, the Japanese government will not even let in samples of U.S.-grown rice. An attempt to displace U.S.-grown rice at a trade fair resulted in it being forcibly removed.—Jack L. Collins, co-director, Double Mission Outreach, Murphy, Sboro.

Writer: Japan baseball buy disgraceful

That Americans would lower themselves to such an insult as selling an "American tradition" to the Japanese is disgraceful, disgusting and without moral cause! Money-hungry pigs are disgracing themselves and the rest of the American people with sorry actions such as this one.

If we don't pull ourselves together, we may as well kiss our beloved country goodbye! Edna Hand is correct—"Wake up, America!"—Chris Rothe, sophomore, radio and television.

Avenue into the streets late at night. The Carbondale Police Department reported the individuals who cause the majority of problems during Halloween are ones who had been drinking in the bars.

For the past three years, the regular closing time for liquor establishments has been 2 a.m. The peak of problems occur between midnight and 2 a.m.

In an effort to prevent this, SLAC suggests that all liquor sales be prohibited after 10 p.m. and liquor consumption be prohibited after 10:30 p.m. Oct. 30 and 31 in 1992.

SLAC does not recommend the early closing hours be enforced during Springfest because most of Springfest's activities are during the day. However, if the street problems increase during Springfest, the early closing hours may be considered.

Because the request for block parties is increasing, placing a ban on the retail sale of kegs also is an alternative for decreasing complaints about noise and parking. SLAC recommends a "Keg Ban" be adopted for both Springfest 1992 and Halloween 1992.

For both occasions, beer keg sales would be prohibited from Monday prior to the Springfest and Halloween weekends through Sunday of those weekends, a total of seven days for each celebration.

Early morning drink specials have been growing in popularity, and causing people to arrive on South Illinois Avenue early in the day and stay until night, the police department reported. SLAC recommends that liquor sales be prohibited until 11 a.m. on April 25, 1992, for Springfest. The current city code allows liquor to be sold at 8 a.m.

The Carbondale Police reported that the alcohol consumption in downtown beer gardens has resulted in people spilling out onto the sidewalks and streets throughout the day and night of Springfest. SLAC recommends the sale of alcohol be prohibited in beer gardens on Springfest to prevent problems on South Illinois Avenue.

The City Council also will consider establishing a ban on the sale of alcohol in glass containers and changing the year-around closing time for liquor sales from 2 a.m. to 1:59 a.m. to avoid the problem of extended liquor hours when the time changes the last Sunday of October.

The SIUC Undergraduate Student Government is not in favor of any of the proposed recommendations with the exception of the banning of glass containers, said Brad Cole, USG chief of staff.

"The banning of glass containers is a safety issue they can best judge and that's fine," he said. "But the ban on kegs of a seven-day period—now that's really overreaching."

Cole said he does not think the city and University need to go the route of accepting the proposed recommendations.

"We are going to let students know about this issue and voice our opinion," he said. "The city will realize that students are a large part of this community and our voice should be heard."

Halloween '92 will be the last year for the University's fall break to correspond with Halloween. In 1993, SIUC will return to the week-long break at Thanksgiving.

The last community and city sponsored Halloween celebration was in 1988. Following this celebration, SIUC President John C. Guyon called for the Halloween party be discontinued and the University be closed during Halloween.

The Halloween Core Committee, a group of representatives from the City, Chamber of Commerce and University who organized new activities for Halloween to encourage people in a positive way, and City Council passed an ordinance that essentially put the part in its grave.

The fourth and final fall break at Halloween was a reconsideration of Guyon after the initial university schedule listed the fall break in mid October and City Manager Steve Hoffer and Police Chief Don Strom urged Guyon to coordinate the fall break with Halloween one more year.

Hoffer said scheduling fall break during Halloween is an effective way of reducing the crowds.

"It is absolutely an effective way," he said. "The past two years have shown that."

Springfest is beginning to resemble the Halloween celebration, Hoffer said.

"We (city officials) met with students and administration after Springfest last year to discuss how it was taking on the look of the Halloween celebration," he said, "especially with the respect of consumption of alcohol."

The City Council will discuss the six recommendations but will not take action on the issues until March 31. Each issue will be discussed and passed separately.

University Museum exhibit features rain forest artworks

By William Ragan
Entertainment Writer

Of 1 anthropologists Norman and Dorothea Whitten traveled to South America in 1968 and experienced a rain forest culture that created functional art with strong roots in tradition but used modern culture as an influence.

Ceramic figures and pottery, created mostly by women, and wooden carvings of animal crafted by men make up the majority of the pieces in a new University Museum exhibit, "We Are Living," which opened last month and runs through Dec. 10.

The exhibit focuses on crafts created by Ecuadorian natives, the Canelos Quicha.

The Whittens collected the pieces that comprise "We Are Living" when they visited the Amazon in 1968.

"We've been doing field work since 1970," Whitten said. "Little by little, we put together a quality exhibition."

The couple began piecing together the current collection in 1973, after assembling a similar exhibit for South American Museums.

Much of the ceramic pottery was created to prepare and store manioc, or cassava, a staple food among the Canelos.

The Canelos peel, wash and boil the manioc root and pound it into a pulp with a mortar and pestle. The women then gently chew the root, introducing an enzyme into the mash which aids in fermentation.

The crushed root, which resembles liquid sourdough bread, then is stored in massive, handmade pots, decorated with traditional patterns.

"We didn't know what the connection was between the ancient culture and modern culture, until we found this," Whitten said, pointing to a scrap of ancient pottery unearthed in an archeological dig that bears a distinct pattern.

A modern Canelos vase also bears a strikingly similar pattern.

In addition to the vases, the exhibit features wooden carvings of toucans, decorated with vibrant colors.

The toucans have become extremely successful in the ethnic art market, and the Canelos sell the carved birds to European collectors.

Visitors of the exhibit can sit on stools carved in the shape of jungle animals and watch a video presentation of the art and the artists.

The exhibit also features elaborate headdresses used for ceremonial events and made of bird feathers, repule beetle, bee wings and cotton fiber.

"We Are Living" illustrates a link between the legend and gods of the Canelos and the hectic musings of the modern world, Whitten said.

"It shows that there are modern and ancient continuities between cultures," he said. "A lot of Amazonian people want to interact with other people."

In 1970, the Whittens received funding from the National Science Foundation to conduct a study that disproved the theory that native people cannot function in modern society.

"The stereotype is indigenous people cannot cope with modern life," Whitten said. "We found that they travel back and forth to towns."

Not only do the Canelos function within the bounds of contemporary society, they have given new energy to the burgeoning art scene of South America.

Change, however, is not always for the best.

The rainforest is slowly shrinking, being cut down bit by bit. Whitten said it has been a struggle for the Canelos to retain their land.

"You hear chainsaws as often as you hear bird calls," he said. "But they still like the forest and prefer to live there."

Dorothea Whitten said the Canelos have grown accustomed to outsiders who visit the rain forest.

"They've seen missionaries since the 1500s," she said. "There have always been intruders in their territory."

A ceramic miniature of Godzilla, crafted by a Canelos woman after she saw the film, and a ceramic schoolhouse reflect the clash between the ancient and contemporary cultures of Ecuador.

The Whittens also have sold some of the pottery and wood carvings of the Canelos people, establishing a medical fund for them with the profits.

The program serves 500 people a year, and doctors treat everything from serious ailments such as spinal meningitis and tuberculosis to common problems like broken bones and snake bites.

The Whittens hope to raise enough money to bring Esthela Dugua, a native artist, to Southern Illinois to conduct workshops.

"We Are Living" runs through Dec. 15 at the University Museum at the north end of Faner Hall. The museum is open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays and from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Sundays. Admission is free.

WSIU starts annual festival to raise money for programs

By Jeremy Finley
General Assignment Writer

WSIU, a non-commercial public television station, has started its annual festival to raise money to continue viewing programs. The festival will continue until March 15.

Jerri Uffelman, membership manager for the broadcast service, said the festival is vital to the continuing efforts of WSIU, and donations during the week are vital to the festival.

"Twenty percent of WSIU's operating budget comes from donations," Uffelman said. "That money is used to purchase the programs we offer. People don't realize how much those programs cost."

WSIU is unique not only for what it does with the specialized programs, she said, but for what it does not do with the programs.

"Our station does not cater to commercial interest," Uffelman said. "We concentrate more on newer topics with objective perspectives and that look in a more in-depth manner."

A main goal during the festival is to promote and increase membership.

Those who donate have the option of giving $30 to become a official member, she said. Members receive free-of-charge the WSIU Premier magazine that shows what programs are offered during the month.

Any amount of donation money is welcomed, but to become a member, the $30 donation is needed.

"When people call in and donate money, we ask them what programs they already enjoy or like to watch often," Uffelman said.

'Rainbows' to bridge world's tales with life lessons for local children

By Fatima Janvekar
General Assignment Writer

International Programs and Services has produced a collection of stories called "Rainbows" to attract young readers and expose them to other cultures.

"Rainbows" is a significant contribution of international students to community education and enrichment, said Naseem Ahmed, IPS program coordinator.

"International students at U.S. educational institutions are a wealth of cross-cultural information and experience, and I have always respected efforts that are willing to acknowledge and utilize this potential," Ahmed said.

Nearly four hundred copies of the book have been distributed to day-care centers, kindergartens and primary schools in Southern Illinois.

"Rainbows" has received an enthusiastic response from teachers and principals, but the authors do not have any plans, yet, to stock it on bookstore shelves, Ahmed said.

Kashum Anthinarianyan, junior in computer science from Malaysia, said she spent last summer "riding the tale of 'The Clever Sang Kanchil and the Selfish Beruk' for the book.

"I was inspired by my niece, who liked the tale of the Sang Kanchil, a wise mouse—dear so much, that I felt it should be shared with children in local Carbondale schools as well," Anthinarianyan said.

"The book is excellent reading material for kids, because the words are in bold letters for easy understanding, and there is a glossary of terms at the back to help them find meaning in the stories," she said.

Priya Banerjee, author of "Hira the Magic Parrot," said her story originated in ancient India, where people believed in the power of stories to learn lessons about good and evil, falsehood and truth.

"It was taken from the Panchatantra, a collection of ancient folk tales about the animal kingdom," said Banerjee, a graduate in speech communications.

Sunitha Ragal wrote the story with Banerjee.

"The idea for the story came after I had watched a traditional play in Telegu, my language, at home in India, which left an indelible impression in my mind," Ragala said.

Ragala, a senior in biological sciences, said she also used to read the story as a child in Amar Chitra Katha, an Indian comic book, and since Indian children enjoyed it very much, she hoped U.S. children would, too.

"The story is about how greed takes over a person's life, and its outcome," Banerjee said.

A poor old man laments his miserable fate while sitting under an ancient tree. On the boughs of the tree, Hira the magic parrot is perched.

The bird hears the old man and decides to help him, by singing gold ragas, or tunes, which the old man can sell to live a decent life.

The man becomes greedy and tries to kill the bird, in the end gaining nothing out of his venture.

"It is similar to the golden goose story, but with cultural modifications," Banerjee said.

"We tried to infuse a sense of culture, by using Indian terminology such as bazaa's and ragas, to expose children to India, to its sights, its people," she said.

Traditional tones again, were used to illustrate fantasies children have about the sky in "A Gift from the Star," a picture-book gift from Japan.

Sangiam Bamrunt, with her husband Bamrung, penned the Thai tale of "How the Tiger Got His Stripes" for Southern Illinois schoolchildren, to teach them the tactics of negotiating with others.

Other stories include "The Mouse-Fairy," from Costa Rica, "Two Mules" from Taiwan, "Gabby Diego" from New Mexico and "The Magic Paintbrush" from China.

Local boxing night draws crowd

By Thomas Gibson
Sports Writer

With more than 1,000 people in attendance over the weekend at Fight Night, the event's sponsor called the second annual boxing tournament a success.

The attendance did not surpass the totals from a year ago, but a great crowd turned out, said Ray Donahue, junior in the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, one of the event's sponsors.

"Because of Mardi Gras, things didn't go as anticipated," Donahue said. The Amateur Boxing Federation co-sponsored Fight Night.

Receipt totals for the weekend were around $2,500 to $3,000. "We probably broke even,"

Donahue said.

Friday and Saturday featured 10 to 15 bouts. The championship bouts were Sunday afternoon.

The event was divided into eight weight classes, with 36 amateur boxers competing in these classes.

Four of the eight winners were SIUC students, and SIUC assistant football coach Tim Richardson won in the superheavyweight division.

Senior Seth Moore won the heavyweight class.

"Fight Night was a great learning experience," Moore said. "In the championship bout I had to pull every ounce of character I had to win."

Other student winners included Mark Leslie in the light middleweight class, Grant

Shoenbeck in the middleweight class, and Fred Gray in the light heavyweight class.

"Fight Night's a good idea. I learned a lot," said Gray, president of the SIUC boxing club.

Winner's received medals and certificates. Admission was $3 and profits went to the sponsors to pay for the cost of promoting Fight Night.

The purpose of Fight Night was to have boxing at SIUC, Donahue said.

"Other schools have a fight night, and we didn't," Donahue said. "It gave our fraternity a chance to do something for the community," he said.

The University of Illinois and Illinois State are other schools who have a fight night.

SIUC lost Saturday to Marquette and Michigan State 8-1.

Senior Lori Edwards, No. 2, had the only win against Marquette. She beat Beth Mulcahy 6-2, 6-4. Edwards said she was pleased with her play this weekend.

"I played smart, and I maintained a certain power that kept me mentally in the game," Edwards said. "I think I've played exceptionally well this spring even though I haven't won all my matches."

"The team is struggling right now because not everyone is at 100 percent. We're lacking confidence because we've lost all of our matches, but they're just looking at the record. We've been playing tough teams, and I think we'll be ready to play conference matches later this spring."

The doubles tandem of junior Karen Wasser and freshman Irena Feofanova, No. 3, beat Gina Leo and Meg Wilson of Michigan State 6-2, 7-6. Wasser, who sprained her ankle two weeks ago at Eastern Kentucky, said she is doing better.

"The team got better as the weekend went along," Wasser said. "Even though we lost, and the scores don't indicate, we were playing really well. We were in every match for at least a couple of hours. The competition has been tough so far this season, but it will help us to be more prepared for our conference matches."

Conference rival Drake swept SIUC 9-0 Sunday.

The netters are taking a break, but play again March 27.

transfer from Kennedy King Junior College. Jordan, who was the tournament MVP, had 14 points, 11 rebounds and eight assists.

Hatfield said the Salukis have never had an athlete of Jordan's caliber.

"He's quick, strong and he has long arms," he said. "We retooled our offense, so we could work to get him open. He's the point guard, so he has the ball 70 to 80 percent of the time."
