Students Protest At Morris's Office

Several students expressing dissatisfaction with University social and educational policies demonstrated in front of President Deloy W. Morris's office Wednesday night by wearing paper bags over their heads. The idea for the bags, bearing student ID numbers on the outside to represent the impersonality of faculty-student relations, was Thomas M. Davis, assistant professor of English. Davis offered the idea Tuesday night at a meeting at the Student Christian Foundation.

The meeting was attended by about 40 undergraduates, graduate students and faculty members, and was chaired by Student Body President Ray Lenzl.

It had been called to discuss recent rumors about a student seizure of a campus building and a possible sleep-out by girls living in dormitories who are still regulated by hours.

Another meeting had been held Monday night in an off-campus residence and was followed by talks with girls at Neely Hall.

Davis said students at the University of Colorado attempted to occupy a building and that nearly 60 of them were suspended by the university. He added that Vice-President Robert MacVicar has already said that the University will not tolerate unlawful activities on the SIU campus.

President Carmichael Speech

By John Eppretherman

A cheering crowd of 125 who said they were present to "put pressure" on the Student Senate Wednesday night heard the Senate:

- Agree to sponsor the May 19 SIU appearance of Stokely Carmichael and ask that the administration provide the $1,500 fee Carmichael is asking.
- Ask that "Approved Housing" classification be withdrawn from Imperial East and Imperial West in anticipation of the grounds that the management will not rent to Negroes.
- Declare that conclusive medical tests on the effects of marijuana exaggerated; that marijuana be classified a minor misdemeanor and that the University police be lax in its enforcement of the ban against marijuana.
- Urge amnesty for students engaging in actions to secure student rights, such as protesting on or off campus, that protest women's hours rules.
- Seek renaming of the General Classroom Building to Martin Luther King, Jr. Hall.

Glenore "Doe" Dougherty, director of the University Center, did not meet with members of the Southern Illinois Peace Committee (SIPC) Wednesday to discuss their demand for the opening of the Center and permanent end to military recruitment on campus.

Paul Artwood, SIPC member, said the group had delivered a letter to Dougherty stating its position and warning it would be forced to take appropriate action if military recruiting was not permanently halted. He said he had asked for a meeting with Dougherty at 4 p.m. in the Student Government Office.

Speaking for the SIPC at the Student Senate meeting Wednesday night, Mike Harty said the action against recruiters would be "non-violent and non-blocking."

Artwood said he was "personally disappointed that Dougherty did not meet with them and did not indicate that he would not attend. He said he thought they might arrange a "temporary" halt in military recruiting through the meeting.

According to James Sheppard, assistant director of the University Center, Dougherty was "unable to give the SIPC any further information until he discussed the matter with his superiors."

Sheppard said he was not certain whether the meeting would be reviewed and discussed by Dougherty and other officials.

He said the University Center will continue to permit military recruiters to use Area II.

Dougherty could not be reached for comment.

Lenzi Denies 'Blackmail' Charge

Student Body President Ray Lenzi told a large meeting of students at the Student Christian Foundation Tuesday night that many of the statements about him Tuesday in a Daily Egyptian editorial were "untrue.

Regarding the editorial's allegation, Lenzi said he might have used either the word "damn" or "hell" in a telephone conversation with Harry Hix, journalism graduate student.

Lenzi said he had no intention of trying to "blackmail" the Daily Egyptian or any of its staff. "I was only stating my conditions under which I would advocate continued support of the paper. This is one of my responsibilities as student body president," Lenzi said.

Lenzi reiterated his position that the entire paper should not be run by any special interests, either in the Department of Journalism or any other department. Students should have control of the student newspaper," Lenzi added. He was not ordered to leave the Student Senate hearing room as the editorial stated. Lenzi said "Perhaps voices may have gotten a little shrill or intense, but this happened on both sides, and at no time was it shouting.

Lenzi said he was upset by the lack of coverage given to a prepared statement seeking student and faculty support of last week's peace demonstration in front of Morris Library. But he said he did not demand to have the entire statement printed on the front page.

"If felt that the story should have been given more than three lines on page nine," Lenzi said.

Lenzi's remarks were in reference to a news story about the demonstration.

Lenzi was ordered to make $25 to the campus financial aid office. The money will be earmarked for small tools.

The program includes a nine-month evening recreation program two nights a week at Carbondale Community High School and Attucks school.

Councilman Joseph Ragdale was the only member opposed to the adoption of the program. He said he endorsed the job corps program but not the rest of the program because it does not benefit the entire city.

The Council asked City Manager William Norman to figure the program into his budget and then indicate what programs could be delayed to give the low-income program top priority.

The council delayed action on a proposal from the Planning Commission that Free man street between University and Illinois Avenue be made one way with traffic moving east. Action was postponed until the council receives reactions from merchants and residents.

Civil Liberties
Individual Decision

Problems concerning civil liberties cannot be resolved by executive proclamation, congressional legislation, or even the interpretation of the courts. For injustice is the reflection of attitudes, and attitudes are the decisions of individuals.

In appealing for "black unity," for example, Mississippi Senator John Chafee has not seen how the movie-goers should be heed of the movie industry, some people are rallying forces to stop the swing toward liberal use of sex in movies so that for people who are not to stop the pendulum, and perhaps give it a different, more appropriate direction, are the non-movie-goers.

A recent study by Daniel Yankelovich, Inc., the consumer research Motion Picture Association, found that those who protest about the trend toward sex are over 29-year-olds. The strongest objections come from those who had not seen the movie but had heard about it through friends or radio of it.

The 16-24 age bracket, the larger category of movie-goers, has little objection to sex in movies. America has a long tradition of small segments of society striving for "cleanliness" for both themselves and for the people that do not at all agree with them.

This is one of our most profound example of a ridiculous attempt to preserve a fading taboo, resulted in chaos. A small but vocal lobby of rural dwellers, who for the most part already live in dry areas, got the government to endorse their view on urban centers and men who were in French trenches unable to block the legislation.

Another example is literature. It remains incomprehensible as a medium of expression until men like Theodore Dreiser devote their lives fighting for the right for them to be able to read what they please, not what a small group of censors supposedly approves of.

The one hope movie-goers have of warding off the curb on liberalization of movies is that the public will have a hard time making such curbs constitutional.

The Supreme Court has thus far upheld the movie industry's right to show what it likes. Through the Court's rulings, those who have protested have been minimized, while still recognizing the need to restrict what can be viewed by the very young. It ruled a month ago that minors under 17 a more restricted right than adults to see most films.

Thus a person who has the ability to choose his own viewing, according to the Court's ruling.

The allied will of the Supreme Court and the movie-goers should be headed by the critics of today's movies. Let us not embarrass on yet another misadventure of the minority imposing its morality on the majority.

Instructors May Lose by Default

To the Daily Egyptian:
Several days ago you carried a news item stating that the graduate council—representing several thousand graduate students—endorsed last Friday's student strike and its objectives.

I was surprised by the action by the graduate council as most disturbing. Did that council take a poll to see if the students they supposedly represent favored such immaturity action? If so, they failed to contact this graduate student.

Although I have no way of knowing how many graduate students did not favor such an endorsement, I am certain that I am not alone in disapproving of this. However, I do not presume to speak for, or represent, anybody other than myself. But speaking for myself I heartily disapprove of the student strike and at least one of its stated objectives!

I also have a suggestion for Prof. Flynn who was quoted in print last Friday's Egyptian. In that let- ter he explained that his condition as a teacher was fundamentally absurd in that his "students will be drafted to kill and be killed in Vietnam". I find his position more absurd than his letter—the latter I find somewhat pathetic, I would suggest that he also recognize the real and present danger to the U.S. and the free world and the real service one is performing for all of Southeast Asia—a service readily recognized by virtually all the nations of the area—and teach his students accordingly, he would not find his task absurd, but rather challenging and fulfilling. He would be helping any Vietnam-bound student to understand the need for his service and possible death.

It is indeed unfortunate that the extreme liberal element of the faculty and teaching assistants are the only ones who take the time to express their views, thus making it sound like this minority speaks for all. That it is a minority—and a small one at that—was clearly demonstrated by the small attendance at last Friday's rally, in spite of good weather.

It was interesting to note that the attendance was far less than half the number of persons who signed the petitions in support of the strike. It seems that a large number of people merely wanted an excuse to take a day off. Of course, the fact that some names, including at least one professor's, appeared twice on the petition may have been partially responsible for the lower head-count.

I urge the majority of teachers (both professors and graduate assistants) who, like myself, disagree with the vocal minority of ex- tremists, to join me in making our views known lest the students get the wrong impression from their instructors, and we lose the battle by default!

Sex in Movies

As the pendulum swings, knocking out of existence Victorian and inconsequential sex in the movie industry, some people are rallying forces to stop the swing toward liberal use of sex in movies. With McCarthy There's Hope

To the Daily Egyptian:
Last Saturday, having finally decided which man I was going to support for President, I took the SIU-for-McCarthy bus to Vincennes, Ind. Shortly thereafter, I was handed several housing lists and was back on the bus heading for the town of Washington, Ind. There, I was let off and thus I began what was to be the most direct and informative look into American life that I have ever had. The neighborhood was extremely old and very poor. But, of course, the most interesting experience was with the people of Washington, most of whom were well up in years.

Much has been written and said about how, before Senator McCarthy, the young people of this nation felt a sense of helplessness against the political and money machines. What was very sad for me to see and hear when I talked with these people was the same sense of frustration and helplessness that I myself had felt. These people were almost cynical in their attitudes. One elderly gentleman commented that he really doesn't mind who wins, because once in power politicians are all alike. Others also felt that nothing could do any good.

But this is the very attitude that Senator McCarthy has known to exist and in the very reason for his candidacy. Control of our government is slipping out of the hands of the people. It is being run more and more by political machines and big money candid-dates.

The thing that really impressed many Indians was the simple fact that here was someone who had actually taken the time to personally come around to see them and was not trying to "sell" them a candidate.

Our (the McCarthy workers') approach was simple; there is an alternative and that the people of Indiana really have a great opportunity to let themselves be heard on something. The people of Washington were also generally appreciative that we would give them some of Senator McCarthy's campaign literature and then leave them alone with it. The most successful approach was giving them the material (in which Senator McCarthy explains his position on all the major issues) and then urging them to read it and make up their own minds about him.

Next weekend is the last one before the Indiana primary on May 7, and I will be going back again. All those who really want to know a great deal more about America should not miss this opportunity to show and tell Indians there is indeed hope. Senator McCarthy is a man attempting to feel the pulse of America to see what can be done. Next Friday I will be working for Senator McCarthy and carry to the people the message that somebody cares about what they think. Call 9-2484 or 9-2663 for information.

Cold Nose of Law

Puts Paw on Marijuana

By John Fatima
Copely News Service

SAN YSIDRO, Calif. — An inquisitive German shepherd with a cold nose is hot on the trail of marijuana smugglers at the border.

Rebel is the first dog in the country to be trained to sniff out marijuana, said Bob Gore, supervisor of customs inspectors at San Ysidro. Gore is also the dog's handler.

On the job for two months, Rebel has chalked up an impressive number of successful searches. He has worked at the San Ysidro, Tocate and Calexico border stations.

He takes a few sniffs for Rebel to discover the contraband concealed in clothing, purses, or hidden in vehicles.

The 103-pound silver and black dog is trained not only to find marijuana, but to tip off investigators to vehicles which have carried marijuana in the past.

"He's a fantastic dog," Gore said. "Controlled breathing is the secret of his success." Rebel doesn't put his nose to work until Gore puts his "Association collar," The collar makes Rebel associate with his job.

Without the collar, Rebel couldn't caper less about marijuana.

Rebel has been working at the border stations since he was flown here from training school in Michigan.

He was one of 175 German shepherds screened by Charles Art, owner of a police dog school in Plymouth, Mich., where Rebel first went through a police dog training course.

"The others failed to come up to standard either because they had a bad nose or a bad disposition," Gore said.

When Rebel was ready, he was brought to San Diego by a dog trainer, assistant to the deputy commissioner of customs enforcement in Washington, D.C.

"Mr. Richards wondered a year ago if it would be possible to train a dog to detect marijuana," Gore said. "We found out that it was."

Now Rebel is considered so valuable, he has a personal veterinarian, Dr. A.D. Hyland of La Mesa.

Rebel's only reward when he finds marijuana is a friendly pat on the head. Finding the contraband is actually rewarded enough for the 4 1/2-year-old dog, Gore said.

When the canine sleuth is off duty, he lives in Lemon Grove with Gore and his wife, Connie, and their daughters, Carolyn, 11, and Patty Jeanne, 7.

Rebel eats about three pounds of food a day from a special diet prepared by Hyland.

A deep friendship has developed between Rebel and the Gore family, especially between dog and master.

"Whenever I move from room to room in the house, Rebel is right behind me," Gore said.

"When I go to sleep, Rebel rests on the floor beside my bed."

And every morning—exactly at 6:45—Rebel pushes his nose into Gore's neck—a signal that it's time to wake up and begin a new day.

How Dangerous Is Axel Springer?

BERLIN — During the short span of a few weeks, West Germany's leading, and in some circles, most successful publisher who is most unsuccessful as a critic of the so-called left-wing intelligentsia.

He was one of the students who have brought into the service of their cause, sheds little light on the decisive questions, and for many Germans remains a meaningful answer much less important.

The "students" have succeeded in making themselves the heart of the problem, leaving solutions to the real problems of the German press untouched.

New East-West Couple

A temporary east-west couple using Main, Walnut and two connector streets was approved by the Carbondale City Council Tuesday night.

Approval followed a recommendation from the Planning Commission in order to bring about a solution to Carbondale's traffic problems.

The couple will be only temporary. Plans are being made for a permanent east-west couple to be constructed under the supervision of the Illinois State Highway Department. The permanent couple would use Main and Walnut streets.

The change will make Main Street one way going west, and Walnut Street one way going east. It will begin at Poplar Street and extend a short distance past Wall Street.

Faults...

A heated exchange took place between Davis and Lenzi over the possible outcomes of student demonstrations, with Lenzi holding that a demonstration would be beneficial. Davis said that he was not opposed to demonstrations, but that he was concerned with the possible negative outcome from a radical demonstration at SIU. Davis then suggested the paper bag idea.

Bag-wearing students, questioned about their specific grievances, failed to state any, however.

Lenzi said he agreed with the paper bag idea, but added that he hoped other action would develop to demonstrate dissatisfaction. Lenzi said that the University would have to listen to a large number of protesting students, regardless of what certain administrators might threaten. He concluded that additional student support and participation would be needed to continue action.

Blind Instructor's

Boots, a seeing eye dog belonging to Randall H. Nelson, SIU Professor of Government, died Tuesday from a kidney ailment.

The five-year-old dog had served Nelson for three years as his guide across the city and campus. Nelson is also a member of the Carbondale city council. Nelson has made an appointment with the Leader Dogs for the Blind in order to bring about a solution to Carbondale's traffic problems.

The council directed C. William Norman, city manager, and Bill Schwegman, director of Public Works, to begin working on the installation of the couple.

Projects now in progress include Community Action Programs directed by Jerry Lacey and an all-day Youth Conference, planned to improve inter racial communications among teenagers, being arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Lin Compton.

Proposed projects being investigated by committee members include a "brotherhood day" with a city-wide picnic and a trip in a St. Louis baseball game for youngsters 6-13 years of age.

Medal Awaits Kristoff In Mexican Olympics

By Barb Leehens

A superb wrestler, a high school teacher, a graduate student in physical education, and a father are only a few terms that apply to former Olympic wrestling star Larry Kristoff.

Kristoff, 25, a 1966 graduate of SIU, has been married for eight years and is the father of two boys, four and eight years old.

A standout wrestler both at Carbondale High School and SIU, Kristoff has compiled a record of 217 victories, 13 defeats, and seven ties since he began wrestling as a senior in high school in 1960.

To add to this admirable record, Kristoff has won 10 national championships, placed first in the Pan American Games in 1967, second in the World Games in 1966, and placed third in the World Games in 1965 and 1967.

Presently Kristoff is a physical education and driver's training instructor at Carbondale Community High School. He teaches until 3:30 p.m. daily and then works out at the SIU Arena for two hours in preparation for the 1968 Olympic team tryouts at Amea, Iowa, May 8-10.

Kristoff predicts that his toughest competition will come from Curly Culp, an All-American football player from Arizona State. Culp was this year's top football draft choice of the Dallas Cowboys.

"I've met Culp five times in the past, so far I've beaten him every time," Kristoff said.

Kristoff likes to eat any kind of food, especially steak or any type of meat that will keep his six foot, 250-pound frame in shape.

In buying clothes, Kristoff finds that his size often causes some problems.

"Not everyone has 48-inch shoulders. I have to buy a suit to fit my shoulders and have the rest of the suit tapered to fit my lower half," Kristoff said.

Another problem that I have is buying shirts. I have an 18 1/2 inch neck and they just don't make shirts in that size. So I need to have mine tailor-made. Where a normal person spends $5 or $6 for a shirt, I have to pay a dollar or more extra," Kristoff said.

Wrestling competition has taken him around the world several times. He has been to Japan, Hawaii, Finland, Sweden, Germany, India, Thailand, Vietnam and England.

"I enjoy traveling—not only do you get to wrestle many different men, but you get to see how the other half of the world lives," Kristoff said.

Kristoff plans to win a gold medal in this year's Olympics. "I've put too much work into the preparation; I can't afford not to win," Kristoff said.

"After the Olympics who knows what I'll do. Maybe I'll retire, but you know that most wrestlers don't reach their peak until around 29 years old so I guess it gives me a little more time yet," Kristoff said.

15 Schools Compete
Golfers to Defend Invitational Title

SIU's Women's Recreation Association will be defending champions in the Fifth Annual Illinois Women's Invitational Golf Tournament today at Normal.

Illinois State College won the title for the third three years of existence of the tournament. Southern won the title last year over delegates representing fifteen other schools.

The Salukis, coached by Miss Charlotte West, women's physical education instructor, plan to take six women to represent Southern. Competing for SIU will be Dotty Germain, Lynn Hastie, Paula Smith, Charlie Smith, Sharon Smith, Jackie Panchor and Lynn Taylor.

The tournament is a two day affair and the team which completes the lowest team total over the 36-hole tourney is declared the winner. Sixteen teams will compete for this year's title.

SIU, a two-year-old school, has entered its third year of competition, and the Salukis are expected to compete for the title.

"This is the first year that this competition has taken part in the Invitational," Miss West said. "I predict that SIU will win the tournament. The girls are all ready and eagerly awaiting their opportunity to defend their title."

This will be the first big test for the WRA golf team. The team will travel to Macomb for a dual meet with Western May 11. The Salukis will go to Michigan State May 18, and will be at home May 25 for the Carbondale Invitational.

"All these matches will be stiff tests for the girls, but it will help prepare them for the invitational."
Track Team to Face Kansas, Season’s Major Relays Over

Having concentrated on major relays for the first five weeks of the outdoor season, the track team now faces a string of dual meets this weekend prior to closing out the campaign with three championship meets.

The Saluki challenge powerful Kansas at Lawrence Stadium tomorrow before traveling to Champaign for a dual meet with Illini next Tuesday afternoon.

Lions Trophy

LOUIS ANGELES (AP) — Quarterback Bill Munson and a third-string draft choice were traded by the Los Angeles Rams to the Detroit Lions Wednesday for three players.

Southerns only home appearance of the season will be May 11, when Western Ken- tucky and Lincoln are here for a triangular meet. The meet will start at 3:30 p.m. at Murray, Ky., May 21 will wind up the season.

Conceding the Kansas coach, Lew Hartzog is hoping to produce something on the SUU card closer competition.

Top individual performers to date this season have been quarter-milers Chuck Benson and Ross Mac- fer Munson.

The Rams announced they are quitting their Mill Plut, flanker Pat Snodell and half- back Tom Watkins in the National Football League deal.

Kenzie and triple-jumper John Vernon, Benson captured the Invitational 440 at the Drake Relays in 48.2 seconds last week while Vernon was second with a jump of 51 feet, 8 3/4 inches. The latter's effort was a new SIU record.

Bond Makes Hot Target For Opposing Pitchers

By Dave Palermo

The pitch was a fastball, chin-high, and the cracking sound was made when it bounced off Jerry Bond's protective helmet chilled the partisan crowd.

He fell near home plate, gripping his head in apparent agony, for a few moments before getting to his feet. Aided by a teammate, he staggered to a waiting automobile and was taken to the Health Service.

It was the sixth time this season the Saluki centerfielder had been hit by a pitched ball, but this time it resulted in a stay at St. Heden Hospital.

The blow had pushed a bone in his temple against his skull.

JERRY BOND

Target for Pitchers

he's batting .290, and occasionally has connected with power. He is also an above-average fielder and has good speed on the bases.

An example of his determination occurred earlier in the season when he singled, stole second under a tag of the second baseman, went to third on a ground ball and scored moments later on a wild pitch.

"He's a real competitor," Lutz said. "You could compare him to Curt Flood of the St. Louis Cardinals. They're built along the same lines: they both have good arms and wrists and they have the same speed."

"He has good power for his size," continued Lutz, "and good coordination." Bond might be his own best critic. Sitting on a black leather couch and watching television at his Park Lane apartment, he talked about baseball.

"I've got a lot to learn about baserunning," he said, "I don't get a good jump on the ball and I have a tendency not to get a good lead off." Even so, he leads the team with 10 stolen bases and has been thrown out only twice.

Bond added that he has trouble throwing accurately and isn't a consistent long-ball hitter.

"I'll hit the long ball if I get my pitch," said the physical education major. "But I won't go for a curve on the outside corner of the plate and try to hit it out of the ballpark." Still he has three home runs to his credit going into this week's action, including a grand slam against Wisconsin State College.

Bond, who likes to work with kids, wants to give professional baseball a try after graduation and then possibility go into coaching.

While still in high school, he participated in a good will tour through the Chicago slums.

"It was set up to help the underprivileged kids," said Bond. "I benefited from it quite a bit." "He's an outstanding young man," said Lutz. "He has a plesant personality, integrity, and is an asset to our program. He also has leadership qualities," said the veteran coach. "Whether he can excelt himself at the front is the question."
