Derge gets lawyer for IRS dispute

By Sue Hall
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

President David R. Derge has retained local attorney John C. Feirich to represent him in his case with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) involving a disputed $50,000 salary.

Aside from Derge's case, the IRS is also investigating salary raises approved by the SIU Board of Trustees for John C. Feirich, president of Edwardsville: James Brown, chief of board staff; and Robert G. Lauer for their offices in which he served as president.

T. Richard Mager, SIU legal counsel, said his case still affects the entire SIU case, but that Derge's attorney is handling his case separately.

Derge is out of town until Monday and could not be reached for comment concerning the matter.

Mager said the Derge salary dispute is being approached somewhat differently in that Derge left his job in Indiana, to accept a new position in Carbondale; his case involves a new salary rather than running salaries increases.

Concerning the entire IRS case, Mager said all persons involved had responded to the IRS Springfield office and are now waiting for its decision on the legality of the raises.

If the IRS finds the University violated federal regulations on salary ceilings, the case will be referred to federal court. Mager said he did not know when to expect a finding.

Feirich could not be reached to comment on Derge's case.

IPIRG gives Carbondale banks high marks

Council delays action on organic food stand

By Barry Cleveland
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Action on a proposal to allow the growing of a vegetable garden near U.S. 51 one mile south of Carbondale was delayed by the Carbondale City Council Tuesday night.

A group of 12 young people living on a farm in the area south of the city hope to open a year-round stand to sell vegetables grown organically on the farm, Steve Bagdon, a representative of the group, told the council. The stand would be located in an old building formerly used as a fruit market, on a lot of less than an acre west of the highway.

The Carbondale Planning Commission voted last week to deny a rezoning request for the property, which would have allowed the growth and implementation of the vegetable market plan.

The principle objection of the commission was that the property was residing at the edge of the community, and the plot from rural residential to business might allow future development in the area inconsistent with the approved land use.

However, several councilmen indicated they favor some action short of rezoning which would allow the stand to be operated. The matter was referred to the City Attorney Brock Lockwood for further study.

The council also tabled an ordinance providing fines for owners of dogs caught running loose and a request by the Buncombe Water District for water service.

An ordinance providing for a fee of $5 for police escort of vehicular parades and funerals and $30 for escort of currency transfers was approved. The council also approved a two-year contract with Local 1961 of the Fire Fighters Union.

The IPIRG survey ranked the banks in Carbondale and the surrounding area on the best banking services offered.

The data was collected from April 24 to 28 and indexes were prepared on the basis of rates for checking and savings account. IPIRG has published the findings in advertisement form in Wednesday's Daily Egyptian to provide general information for consumers.

The checking account index was based on the expense of opening and maintaining an account. The savings account index was based on the rates of interest and cost of withdrawals per month.

IPIRG says at least a fermis wheel isn't the same old merry-go-round.
British folk singer Kay Britten slated for Convo Thursday

By Sue Millen
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Kay Britten, a folk singer from England, will present a program of traditional folk songs, broadside ballads and old songs from various European countries, for Convocation Thursday at 1 p.m. in the Arena.

Miss Britten is an actress-singer-guitarist. She writes much of her own material and builds her performances around dramatic themes, embodying many small dramas in song and poetry.

Born and educated in England, she studied at the Royal College of Music for a career in light opera and musical theater. The dramatic quality and all-encompassing concept of folk songs appealed strongly to Miss Britten's own inclinations, and she has devoted herself to this field and the study of folklore.

She has toured extensively in concert throughout the United States and overseas, playing classical guitar, autoharp and dulcimer.

She has appeared frequently on TV and radio, including her own talk show. She also made a short movie for television and a film for Michigan State University.

In 1968 and 1969 Miss Britten toured throughout the United States in a play of her own, "In Search of Dylan," a drama about Welsh poet Dylan Thomas.

Critics have called her "delightful, witty, educational, enchanting and a natural entertainer."

One critic said of her, "Kay Britten brings to folk music a dimension all her own. She has a warm witty personality, a high sense of drama and an extensive knowledge of folklore."

Wheelchair student makes parachute jump

By Jas Tranchila
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

His legs dangling outside the door of the plane, he was wondering just what he was doing up there when the jumpmaster yelled, “Go!”

Dressed in leotards, James Covino had plenty to wonder about.

The plane, hanging outside the plane, was useless. They had been there for four years, ever since Covino had had a bout with a cancer virus. His mode of transportation has been the wheelchair.

But on the jumpmaster’s command, he jumped, wondering and jumped.

He pushed himself out of the plane, and within three seconds the ground after the jump. “Then be glad,” Jim said.

When Jim made the jump, his knees and ankles were tied to keep him legs together. Another jumper, Mike Johnson, and Lasley drilled Covino in practical training up until jump time.

Initially, a water jump was planned for afternoon. Lasley said, But Jim became restless and wanted to jump. The jumpmaster and jumpers made some special provisions to soften the impact for him.

“Dynamite!” Jim said is the one word he describes the feeling. He jumped from 3,200 feet at about 110 miles per hour with a large parachute at the normal height and speed of 2,800 feet and 75 miles per hour for beginner jumpers.

Lasley said.

Covino had received the go-ahead for the jump from a physician who told him he was not going to jump with plans to make the next day.

Covino did a military jump which meant pushing himself out of the plane rather than a sport jump which is more like falling out of the plane.

“That of canopies opened up and I felt as good as I can,” Covino said.

“I told a friend who is a Jesus man that I shook hands with Jesus,” said Covino.

He had almost stood up a leg together. An other instructor said to him, “I had made the jump and that his father, who is in the Air Force, would probably kill him.

“Can’t I do anything unusual things so they wouldn’t be so surprised.”

“This chapter will be held to join the new sorority and anyone wishing to join is welcome to attend the meeting.

WSIU-TV special features ‘The Great Radio Comedians’

A nostalgic return to the days when radio was America’s chief entertainment medium and Depression Years morale booster will be featured on the WSIU-TV special ‘The Great Radio Comedians.” It will be shown Thursday May 11 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. on WSIU-TV, Channel 8.

Performing on the show will be many of the great names which survived the transition from vaudeville to the "new entertainment medium of the 1930s and 40s," including Jack Benny, George Burns, Jim (Fibber McGee) Jordan, and Edgar Bergen. Appearing on some old films and tapes will be W.C. Fields, Fred Allen, Gracie Allen, Fannie Brice and Eddie Cantor.

Some of the memorable moments in radio history which will be re-created are the Benny-Alien feud, Charlie McCarthy’s outrageous in-Scotty with W.C. Fields, Fibber McGee’s ball cliff, and scenes of the “Allen’s Alley” characters including Senator Casey Grump, Minerva Poinc and Tim Moody.

From classroom to courtroom

SU's Legal Counsel staff is growing, the latest addition, John W. Huffman, former Ken State Director of Legal Affairs, started working as SU's Legal Counsel T. Richard Mager's assistant. Huffman's addition brings the full-time staff to five.

The expanding staff is a result of at least four major legal actions facing SU. There is the all too well known Dean Allen case in which Allen was denied tenure by the Board of Trustees. The other cases are: A law professor assailant, C. Harvey Gardiner and the ACLU charged him was denied a pay raise by the University because of a "disservice to the University." These two cases, the only two facing the University which seem to be related, are the result of the efforts of the trustees coming down hard on politically active members of SU's teaching staff following the May disturbances of two years ago. The only trouble is the Legal Counsel is now snowed under in work because of it—as Huffman's appointment seems to indicate.

Another case pending against the University is the Internal Revenue Service's ruling that a pay raise granted four SU administrators is in violation of federal law. The pay raises were granted SU Presidents David Derge and John Rendleman, former president Robert Layer and James Brown. Chief of Bond Staff. The IRS's pay raise veto comes on the heels of President Nixon's Phase II economic program and is probably very similar to other such actions taken against large corporations.

These three cases, plus the Canuti-Amoros case in which former SU professor Marassa Canuti-Amoros charged the University with sex discrimination, seem to be a part of a University's growing pains. They also seem to indicate, especially in the Canuti-Amoros case, that many people are willing to go quite without their rights.

So Huffman's addition to legal counsel staff should cut down on the workload. Adding another member to the staff might even get SU out of the court room and back into the class room where it belongs.

Disband the University Senate

Call Connolly...we've got a new type of inflation

Ernie Schweit
Staff Writer

To the Daily Egyptian:

Isn't it about time to dissolve the University Senate and look for a new way to coordinate the activities and needs of the various constituencies of this University? The University Senate started out on a divisive note almost two years ago and today is apparently still a divided body. The only difference is that one side attends the meetings and the other side stays away, apparently feeling the futility of attending. I really can't blame them since it does tend to be a waste of time to attend a Senate meeting and have one's voice politically misplace. Group of professors dominate each meeting and cause many of the excellent student members to play into their hands without the knowledge that they are being used. The smooth maneuvering to close off discussion, substitute motions, etc. stifles and disbands those with opposing opinions, i.e., the kind who are not brought up in the smoke-filled caucus rooms.

As mentioned earlier, this Senate started out under strained relationships caused by certain bulldozing activities on the part of the guiding lights. I frankly thought relations were cementing until the last few Senate meetings and perhaps the most recent one of last Monday night. On this occasion one of the "professor" senators made the comment that the President's choice of the task force to study salaries, promotions, e.g., was made up of too many people from the "other side." From the smoke curling among many other Senators present, I gather they enjoyed this comment.

The University Senate will never be representative of the various constituencies until all constituency groups feel they have as vital a contribution to make as do some of my galen colleagues. If the University belongs to the people, it should not belong exclusively to an outspoken, aggressive, poetically savvy, small group of professors, nor to an intelligent, aggressive group of undergraduate or graduate students. Instead, these aggressive groups should be working to keep the Senate alive by getting all groups to actively participate. They should be forthright and honest rather than full of chicanery and intrigue.

What keeps Hubert running?

By Arthur Hoge

Dear Mr. Hoge,

Yes, I still feel that there is another chapter of "Uncle Hubert and His Friends" -- the heartwarming story of the mayor and his cronies. The wheels of justice can grow up to run for President. And Hubert usually does.

As we join Uncle Hubert today, he's just scored a tremendous victory. On his third try for the Presidency, he's finally won his first primary.

There is now, bustling into the kitchen with his warm and friendly smile as his attractive wife, Muriel. She prepares his breakfast.

HUBERT: Good morning, my fellow American. Let me show you what a great house and pleasure it is to have in our great American kitchen this morning.

MURIEL: Yes. dear. How would you like your eggs?

HUBERT: Boiled. Please boil one for two minutes as I love soft-boiled eggs and one for ten minutes as I also love hard-boiled eggs. I don't care what others know about this.

MURIEL: You sure you wouldn't like them fried?

HUBERT: Yes, I would love them fried. One sunny-side-up, as I love them sunny-side-up, and one over-easy, as I love them over-easy. regard less of shape, breed or color. Wasn't that a tremendous victory? I saved, I saved.

MURIEL: Yes. dear. I'm so glad you finally got to give me. I attribute my great victory to the many firm stands I have taken on the issues.

HUBERT: I have no one's taken as many stands as you, dear. Particularly on busing. However, I really am a liberal. Have I shown you my design for an all-new school bus to meet this urgent crisis? See? It has a driver at each end and a teacher in the middle.

MURIEL (puzzled): I'm afraid I don't understand your position.

HUBERT (nodding happily): Good. And my great victory also proves that what the people want is a new HUBERT.

I've been meaning to say how much I love scrambled eggs. I love all eggs. Go! Los! Credibility suffers

Connally reported that the arguments against the bombing were mainly concerned with the adverse effects on the Vietcong's support. "It's just a chance to test the future of this country, then it is questionable whether I would have a viable foreign policy ever if we were re-elected. If by doing what I think I must do it means the election of someone else, it will at least give him the chance to take a credible foreign policy in his Administration."

This has a noble ring, but what exactly is it that the President and his whole wisdom has decided must be done? Connally explained that at stake are not only the President's political capital and the withdrawal of U.S. forces or the success of the Vietnamization program, but "whether the United States or the world is going to be able to continue its role in the leadership of the Free World."

In other words, the fact that still seen as dependent upon the kind of American military resolution in Indochina most experts have regarded as a declining possibility, since the U.S. has been forced to withdraw American forces.

Early on, the President asked that his Administration be judged by what was done, rather than what was said. But, in the case of Vietnam at least, the credibility gap now extends across both ends of the equation.

City plans street improvements with prospects for outside funds

By Rita Pong
Student Writer

Various improvements for Carbondale streets are now being planned by the city with the prospect of getting federal and state funds to help finance the projects, Bill Schwegman, acting City Manager, said in an interview recently.

Besides developing a five-year street improvement program, Carbondale is also contracting Crawford, Bunte & Roben, a traffic engineering firm in St. Louis, to study the traffic problems and street needs at area intersections, Schwegman said.

Recommendations from the firm will be referred back to the city for appraisal, he said.

Items cited in the street improvement program include resurfacing and general construction work for Lewis Lane and West Freeman Street, widening North Marion Street and installing traffic signals at the intersection of Illinois 113 and C. F. Penny Company's northeast entrance.

"We are also planning to resurface the part of South Wall Street between the Quadrangles and Pleasant Hill Road because the new population figures from the 1970 census show even we can get more money," Schwegman said.

He said that the section of East College Street at the railroad tracks also has been considered in the program.

"Something ought to be done there, the only reason we aren't doing anything is because we have no money," Schwegman said.

Among these street improvement projects, the only one eligible for federal TOPICS funds is the North Marion Street widening scheme. Other projects under consideration in the program will be entirely city-funded, Schwegman said.

TOPICS (Traffic Operations Program to Increase Capacity and Safety) funds are granted to city street projects which are undertaken to increase street capacity, safety and visibility. The most recent project that benefited from the funds was the installation of traffic lights in downtown Carbondale. Other jobs like rounding off street corners, widening streets and installing traffic signals are all eligible to be covered by the funds, Schwegman explained.

Through the funds, 50 per cent of the cost of a street project will be paid by the federal government. The other 50 per cent has to be sustained by the city in a federal state or interstate highway is not involved in the project. However, if a highway is involved, the state will pay 25 per cent of the project cost, Schwegman said.

"The state would approve one project per year, but this limit may be stretched somewhat," he said.

Schwegman indicated that some of the area intersections being studied now by the St. Louis firm are Grand and Wall, Mill and Poplar, Mill and Oakland, Poplar and Freeman and a few others. It was recommended by the firm that pavements, lane markings and more traffic signals are needed at such areas.

"What I'd like to do, if money is available, is to have more traffic signals installed next year," Schwegman said. "I would like to make further adjustments of the signals by electronic data processing through a computer so that all cycles can be changed by changing the computer program. This method would be more flexible to meet the needs at rush hours and to work around the train schedules," he said.

INTERNATIONAL GROUP PRAISES AREA SUPPORT

By University News Service

SIU, an active proponent of a state-wide tie with an area of Brazil, was visited by the directors of the Sao Paulo Association of the American last week. The group came to express appreciation for the support given this unique organization since its founding in 1963.

"The whole thing is a labor of love," said Kenneth O. Page of Elmhurst, president of the Illinois Partners. "Things are done virtually without money, which disprove belief that programming must have big financial backing." Page was here with the Illinois view president, Mrs. Stephen Jarvis of Arlington Heights; and Robert L. Broadbent, director, from Chicago, and Charles Eikker of the SIU Latin American Institute in the Illinois group's secretary.

The visitors explained that 42 states in the U.S. are paired with states and regions in Latin America in a bi-cultural-were organization and that Illinois is paired with the state of Sao Paulo in Brazil. Good work already has been done including help from SIU's Guy Renzaglia, who visited Sao Paulo in August of 1971.

Private citizens, organizations, government and industry are pooling their resources to help such vital programs develop and standing, cultural and educational, is the reason we aren't doing anything," Mrs. Jarvis said. Most of the Partners projects involve the transfer of knowledge and know-how with little fanfare but with enormous effectiveness, she added.

Mrs. Jarvis, who is chairman of PIP-P (Partners for Rehabilitation and Education Program) for Brazil, said rehabilitation is not only a priority but a primary reason to seek the most qualified resource people we can find and send them to Sao Paulo to help with the human rehabilitation needs.

She said that Renzaglia, who heads the SIU Rehabilitation Institute, did such an outstanding job that he received the top evaluation by students and faculty at the United Cities Colleges, where he organized a training program. Currently two staff members from Sao Paulo are working on master's degrees at the Rehabilitation Institute here.

Renzaglia said that Sao Paulo is years behind in rehabilitation and the state is trying to set up an organization of persons trained with the handicapped and users of drugs and alcohol.

The Illinois group hopes in the future to send a delegation to the Brazilian state to confer with college and state officials to evolve a definite plan of action to make legislators aware of needs.

The data in this survey were obtained by IPiRG from banks in Carbondale and the surrounding area between April 24-28. Indices were prepared on the basis of rates for checking and savings accounts and listed in order ranging from most to least desirable. The additional information has been furnished for your convenience.

The checking account index was based on the expense of opening and maintaining an account. (15 checks and 2 deposits per month) The savings account index was based on the rates of interest and cost of withdrawals. (3 withdrawals per month)
This is one panel of the graphic-relief mural, which will be 27 feet long when finished, created by Dina Yellen for a wall of the Student Center. It's meaning, she says, is up to the viewer.

Models of the two winning creations in the Student Center Art Contest went on display Tuesday in the Ohio Room of the Student Center. Winning artists, Dina Yellen and Guy B. Hughes, graduate students in art, have been awarded commissions of approximately $8,000 each to permanently install their works in the Student Center by next September.

Ms. Yellen, whose 27-foot ceramic graphic-relief wall mural will be built opposite the main post office near the south entrance, described her work as having "no deep philosophical meaning." It just simply means what you want it to mean," she said.

Ms. Yellen said she spent about four weeks constructing her model, and indicated she will probably have to change her design somewhat before she begins actual construction.

The final version of Hughes model of a plexiglass and aluminum sculpture, entitled "Prana," will be erected in the International Lounge. Unlike Ms. Yellen's work, Hughes' sculpture is built around a technological theme. Loop-like tubes on top of the sculpture are lighted by neon, and the whole structure revolves.

Basically, he said, "it's a comment on the current state of science and technology, with the emphasis being placed on the need for more information."

Hughes said he spent 80 to 100 hours building the model, and that problems arose because he had to order parts from St. Louis and Chicago. He said he hopes to complete the final sculpture soon because he's looking for a teaching position in art.

Both winners said that if it takes less than $8,000 to construct their works, they will be allowed to keep the difference—contrary to a previous report.

Both models will be on display in the Ohio Room until Friday.

The loops glow with blue light and the vertical tube of aluminum and its base revolve operated by an electrical motor—Guy B Hughes sculptural comment on technology which he calls "Prana."

Ohio bill would ban beer and wine drinking in taverns, lower the legal drinking age to 18

Amid warnings that the bill would let high school students take their books down to the tavern for a noon beer, the senators refused (52-17) to release it from a committee which has bottled it up for six months.

Even though the measure was backed by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, a number of Republicans opposed it.

Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, argued that approval of the bill would help "destory the morals of our people."

The measure, which was supported by 66-5, was killed by charges that the bill consisted of Chicago Democrats.

Sen. Philip J. Rock, D-Chicago, Senate sponsor of the measure, told its foes to think not of beer-drinking high school students but of "that same young man and those same books walking into the draft board."

"If he's old enough to march off to Vietnam with a rifle on his shoulder, he's old enough to drink beer," Sen. Charles Crew, D-Chicago, added.

Rock said he sees "a definite inconsistency in lowering the age to 18 without including the bill to include whiskey."

"But we have to be realistic," he added. "That kind of bill would not be passed and would not be signed into law."

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Dakota, was approved by the House last year. It would have lowered the age only for 2.2 beer.

Women's caucus to discuss female curriculum program

A push to establish a women's curriculum program at SIU will be organized at a meeting of the Curriculum Committee of the Women's Political Caucus at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at 375 W. Walnut St.

All faculty and students interested in the development of courses dealing with women are urged to attend, said Delina Lindroth, member of the caucus.

"We need student support," she said, "because if we don't have student support, we don't have the power."

Grad students to meet about 30-day clause

A special meeting of graduate students concerning contracts containing a 30-day termination clause will be held at noon Wednesday at the Wesley Foundation.

The Graduate Philosophy Union called the meeting. Jim Roberts, a spokesman for the union, said the meeting will deal with the structure of faculty and graduate research assistant contracts. The meeting will be open to all graduate students.

Chris Jensen, secretary of the Graduate Student Council, said he would be present to answer questions.

Last week, a new contract which provided for termination with only 30 days notice by the president was mailed to an underdetermined number of assistants. The contracts, which did not have a 30-day clause, were distributed to the different departments by Clark Davis, special assistant to the vice president for academic affairs.

Davis said the Graduate School has suggested a clause be included in the contract for terminating assistants who fail to perform their duties. In trying to incorporate this suggestion with advice from legal counsel, Davis said, "I came out with something which was never intended and was not compatible with either us or them."

Davis said neither President David R. Derge nor the various vice presidents saw the form before it was distributed. Willis E. Malone, executive vice president, said the contracts were going to be recalled.

If you think Kodak is just pretty pictures, you ought to have your chest examined.

When a chest x-ray shows that you have a potential killer like TB or cancer, it's not a pretty picture. But it's an important picture because it can help the doctor detect and catch the killer in time.

When doctors are out to catch these potential killers, they want the sharpest, clearest x-ray films they can get. And that's why people at Kodak spend so many hours creating new and better x-ray film equipment. Already, the results include convenience for the patient, economy for the hospital, an even more useful tool for the radiologist—and, most important, reduced radiation exposure.

Improving and creating better x-ray films is good for our business, which is why we went into them in the first place. But it does our society good, too—which isn't a bad feeling. After all, our business depends on our society—so we care what happens to it.

More than a business.

24-hour gimmick fails to lift bars out of red
By Tim Bruder
Student Writer
Jackson County’s new law allowing taverns outside of Carbondale to stay open 24 hours per day has yet to prove profitable, according to a pair of tavern owners. But Dennis Immen and Dennis Calufetti, the tavern owners, hope the situation will soon improve. Calufetti, owner of Midland Inn, Rt. 2, Murphysboro, and Immen, who runs the Road Runner near Delnora, are mainly responsible for the new closing law.
They said they promoted the law because they realized the only way for them to compete with Carbondale tavern owners was to find a new gimmick. In interviews, they said the last night hours are that gimmick.
“Four years we’ve had to struggle and he laughed at it,” Calufetti said. “We have to have something going our way to draw the crowd, and everything we get our business going good, do they something in town to take it away.”
For instance, when he first took over Midland Inn in 1965, Carbondale taverns were only open until midnight, and then closing time moved to 2 a.m. “Then came the move that almost put me out of business—allowing the taverns to be open on Sunday.” Calufetti said. “This is what forced me to join forces with Immen to try for the new law,” Calufetti said. “Why not.” Other businesses are open, like gas stations, restaurants, law enforcement offices. We might as well be open, too.
At the Road Runner Club, Immen said, “I have to have something to draw the kids from places like Benaparte’s and Merivans, and having mine till 3 a.m. in the morn on weekends is the only way I can do it.”

Ombudsman signs for football post
By Monroe Walker
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
Isaac Brigham. University Ombudsman, has taken the job of offensive line coach of the varsity football team at SIU, leaving the University Ombudsman position vacant for the second time in three months.
Brigham signed the papers Tuesday to partially fill the vacancies left by two coaches. One of which was Bob Ledbetter who resigned his position as freshman football coach to become head football coach at Norfolk State College in Virginia.
Brigham graduated from SIU in 1969 after playing offensive guard for five seasons. He also played professional football with the Dallas Cowboys and the Atlanta Falcons. He received his bachelor’s degree in education and is finalizing work on his master’s degree in recreation which he expects to have in June.
In addition to coaching, Brigham will do some recruiting of football players in the southern region. He will also teach in the Department of Health Education.
About two weeks ago a 71-year-old high school counselor, Kristina R. Hoederich, was appointed provisionally as a University Ombudsman, succeeding Mary Walker who resigned in February to become director of SIU’s health care plan.
According to Donald J. Stucky, acting chairman of the ombudsman advisory panel, recommendations are being forwarded to the administration in regard to Mr. Brigham’s resignation.
Brigham’s job transition leaves the other ombudsman position vacant.
He said that something would be done about the vacancy but that he preferred to wait until the administration sees the recommendations before disclosing their content.

City technician seeks new industry
By Ernie Schmidt
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale's new industrial development officer, Dr. Ralph Fasold, said Monday he would like to see a large pharmaceutical house or electronic plant come to the city. Department of Commerce Director William National, said, "The competition is very stiff." Dr. Fasold has been in the department five years.

"Carbondale was once a coal mining city and then we depended on one industry. Now in a sense we are still relying on one industry, the university," he said.

At the present time Carbondale has a large number of small retail stores employing only a few people each. Bond said most of this type of industry is not needed.

"I'm not saying we couldn't take this kind of industry," he said, "Let's just say we're not actively seeking it out."

Bond explained the secrecy surrounding his search. He refuses to release the names of industries he contacts from the community, because he said, he wishes to keep the companies' confidence and trust.

Horticultural group cites SIU for 'valuable help'
By University News Service

Among resolutions adopted by the Southern Illinois Horticultural Society (SIH) last week in Carbondale are two conveying appreciation to SIU and its agriculture and horticulture departments for their "valuable assistance" to horticulture and cooperation with the area fruit industry through the years.

The resolutions also called attention to the fact that both SIU and the University of Illinois to horticulture and the fruit growers. The hope of continued good relationship with SIU in serving horticulture industry in employment of the Society members.

The Illinois Horticultural Experiment Station has been in operation at SIU as a joint project of SIU and the University of Illinois since June 1928, with present superintendent, James B. Moore, professor of plant industry, joint professional employee of the two institutions. Under an agreement made at the end of 1958 between the two institutions to better serve the fruit growers, SIU was to provide the land, buildings and part of the personnel, and certain facilities.

Under Prof. Moore's direction the station has been concerned mainly with fruit trees: testing varieties, working on defect and disease problems and cultural practices, and helping fruit growers with specific problems. Other work is used by horticulturists of both institutions for research and demonstration projects and teaching.

A new campus expansion moved into the original south and west units of the station. SIU has acquired new acres west of the campus on Chautauqua Road for relocation of disused experiment station. Besides the work with tree fruits the site also includes facilities for demonstration work with ornamental and garden flower crops.

Student trustee proposal defeated
SPRINGFIELD (AP) - A measure which called for the board of trustees at the University of Illinois to have four student members elected by students was defeated in a House committee Tuesday.

The House Committee on Higher Education voted 11-3 not to pass the proposal onto the floor, virtually killing its chances this session.

Roger Pague, a junior on the board of trustees, testified that the students would have "a conflict of interest and a dual accountability" if they were allowed on the board.

Sally Rudnikski, a U of I student, said in reply that students presently do not have adequate access to the board. "Students want to be integrated into the system," she added.

During the voting, Rep. Paul Strangwood, D-Champaign, declared, "You can't have students governing the universities." He voted no.

The Yaba monkey virus, which produces tumors both in monkeys and man, is slower than other poxviruses in starting the chemical "machinery" to work initiating its own replication and creating the cancerous process. An SIU team of virologists reported this in Philadelphia before the American Society for Microbiology at its annual meeting. Mrs. Mary Lou Rohandhe and Hassan Rohandhe, director of the Laboratory of Molecular and Cancer Virology, described their study of how they hybridized the RNA (ribonucleic acid) produced in cells infected with the Yaba virus—first discovered in 1958 when a tumor epidemic broke out among imported rhesus monkeys in Yaba, Nigeria, and was found to be caused by a virus of the cowpox group.

The SIU researchers have found that Yaba virus is slower than other pox viruses in directing the manufacture of RNA which results in the synthesis of the enzymes necessary for its replication. The Rohandhe's research is supported by the National Cancer Institute.

Brugu Gruber, professor of physics, will deliver an invited lecture on his recent research at a conference June 15-16 at Drexel University in Philadelphia. This conference is sponsored jointly by Drexel and the Society of Industrial and Applied Mathematics.

Five faculty members served on the evaluation team of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools last week at Edward County Senior High School in Alton. They were John D. Mees, professor of secondary education and Region 10 coordinator of the association; Dorothy Kremen, professor of home economics; James A. Sullivan, associate professor of industrial arts; Fred Armistead, professor of education administration; and Michael Jackson, assistant professor of secondary education.

Three graduate students participated in the meeting of the Midwest Economic Association last week at the Chace-Park Plaza Hotel in St. Louis. Donna Bury, doctoral student in economics, presented the paper, "Stability Conditions for Exponential Nonautonomous Differential Equations," and William Beebe, doctoral student in history, presented, "International Trade in Oregon." Eden Yu, graduate student in economics, discussed three papers at a session called "Economic Theory and Policy."

"I will say that approximately 350 branch plants relocate each year and about 50,000 areas are being used for their locations," Bond said. "The competition is very stiff." Bond said four years agoZenith sold 53,300 units, "not very much in comparison to the large pharmaceutical house or electronic plant that we are trying to bring here." When a public announcement was made, it did not.

"At the time no one knew what effect this public announcement would have. It just happened out of ignorance," Bond said.

SPORTS FANS!

BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW
By Steve Shafer

Here's quite a baseball oddity. There was once a pitcher who started games and ended games, was a no-hitter. His name was Bob Holbrook. Despite pitching a no­ hitter in the American League in 1955, Holbrook and his teammates were able to pitch another complete game in the majors before that or after that.

Here is an oddity from annals that nobody seems able to explain: The scoring in tennis is "15" for the first point; "30" for the second point; "40" for the third point and "game" for the fourth point. Why don't they just call the points 1, 2, 3 and 4?

I bet you didn't know that college graduates have a longer life expectancy — on average — than lower. They are living five years longer on the average than non-college men. The lower death rate of college men makes possible broader benefits and greater cash values in college life insurance. This certainly makes good sense, doesn't it?

Chicahgo (AP) — Construction of 13 Southern Illinois buildings, hailed as the largest urban renewal project in the nation, got underway today with the employment of 125 workers.

The project, which will cost $100 million, will include the construction of a new downtown shopping center, a new hotel, and a new office building.

The project is expected to create 2,500 jobs and will be financed by a combination of federal and state funds.

It is the first phase of a $1 billion plan to revitalize the city's downtown area, which has been in decline for decades due to a lack of investment and the rise of the suburbs.

The project is being carried out by the Southern Illinois Urban Renewal Authority, which was created in 1968 to oversee the revitalization effort.

The authority is financed by a combination of federal, state, and local funds, as well as private investment.

The project is expected to take 10 years to complete, with construction expected to begin in late 1972.
Shooting club finishes third in nationals

SIU's new trap and skeet club took third place honors last weekend in the American trap division of the National Interscholastic Trap and Skeet Tournament in Linn Creek, Mo.

The Saluki shooting team broke 947 of 1,000 targets to finish third behind winner Edmonton College and the University of Missouri. Southern was eight points from the first spot.

The affair was the first major competition for the Saluki squad. Southern hosted West Point and the Air Force Academy, among others. Vance Schmall paced Southern with a third-place finish in class A competition. Jim Swartwout finished third in class B while Tom Summers grabbed a fourth-place tie in the same division.

Brian Lucente took 16th in class A while Brian Weege finished 44th in the class B action. SIU's second team, which finished 21st, was paced by Kevin Mekel. He broke 85 out of 200 clay pigeons to finish fifth in class A while Mike Chlapay, Paul Skelcher, Fred Randecke and Gary McGrath also competed.

Blue signs for about 63 grand

But Tuesday's deal is not the end of Blue signs for about 63 grand.

Joe Wallis hits mammoth homer in 13-1 win

By Mike Klein

The long homer easily cleared trees bordering the fence and sailed "at least 25 or 30 feet beyond," according to Wayne Boultinghouse, Aces coach. "I'm especially impressed with Wallis," Boultinghouse said of the Saluk center fielder. "Nobody's going to embarrass him." Richard "Tich" Jones couldn't name a longer homer but wouldn't commit himself to Wallis' blow either. "It's like Willie Mays says," Jones related. "I hit 'em, you measure 'em." It was Wallis' third homer of 1972 and he "really didn't hit it very well. Those other three balls I hit -- the liners to left and first and the one up the middle -- those were hit much harder." Wallis lined out to left field and first base in the opening and sixth innings respectively. His third single up the middle preceded KraI's No. 3 season homer which put SIU up on top, 3-0.

Wallis' long homer two innings later made it 5-0, and that quickly became 8-0 as SIU scored three more fifth inning runs. The Salukis added another five in the seventh, three on Mitchell's third homer. Wallis tripled off the right field wall during the same inning.

All three homers, 13 runs and 16 total hits were off Meyersoo who fell below 500 at 2-3. He struck out three and walked one.

"We're trying to educate him to keep the ball down," Boultinghouse said in explaining Meyersoo's delayed start. "If he's going to pitch against tough competition, he might as well start here.

'Southern Illinois is a fine ballclub. It's great for our program to be playing you but we're far from being in your league," he said. "We wouldn't want to play everyday." The Salukis now stand 23-1 while Evansville fell to 9-12-1. But Evansville has won nine of its last 12 after a 12-11 beginning.

Randall pitched seven strong innings for his third win. He struck out seven, three in the fifth, didn't walk anybody, and yielded four harmless singles. Randall was aided by double plays in the first and fourth. SIU added another in the ninth.

Horn relieved in the eighth had allowed the Aces' only score an inning later. He opened the ninth by hitting Jim Garrett, then watched helplessly as Steve "Whale" Weimer drilled a run scoring double to right center.

'Southern Illinois had been seeking its 11th shutout, one short of the season record.

The Aces collected seven hits, three by shortstop Mike Piechocki and two by Weimer.

'Southern Illinois opened scoring in the first when Mike Eden singled, stole second and scored on Dan Radison's base hit to left.

For a brief moment, it looked like a close ball game when SIU loaded the bases an inning later but was set down one-two-three afterwards.

Weimer strode a walk to Calabetti, left field single to Mitchell and bunt single by Sian Meas. But he settled down, getting Randall and Eden on (4) pops and Danny Thomas on a fly to LF.

An inning later, Meyersoo wasn't lucky, yielding KraI's homer as the deluge began.

Wallis gives Ken Kral congratulations after Kral homered during the third inning of Tuesday's 13-1 win over Evansville. Two innings later, Wallis, a mammoth blast to center. Howard Mitchell homered in the seventh. (Photo by Nelson Brooks)
