GSC head named to IBHE post

By Kathleen Takemoto
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Ray Huebschmann, president-elect of the Graduate Student Council, has been elected student representative to the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE).

Huebschmann was elected to the position by the IBHE's Student Advisory Committee at a meeting held this weekend at Illinois State University in Bloomington.

"One thing I look forward to is increased cooperation with the Association of Illinois Student Governments (AISG)," Huebschmann said Monday. He said Doug Diggle, SIU-C student president and chairman of the AISG, has invited advisory committee members to attend the AISG meeting in Springfield May 15.

"We would like to set up meeting dates at the same time and place as the AISG," Huebschmann said.

Huebschmann succeeds James Zerkle, a senior in political science at Western Illinois University. "I've worked pretty close with Zerkle and learned a lot from him," Huebschmann said. He said he and Zerkle will meet with IBHE Executive Director James Furman in Springfield during the break before summer semester.

Huebschmann will officially assume his duties with the IBHE on July 1. He said he plans to attend the board's June meeting.

Huebschmann will be directly responsible to the Student Advisory Committee, which represents students at all colleges and universities in the state.

Huebschmann has been SIU's representative to the advisory committee for the past year and has been a member of SIU-C's Graduate Student Council for the past two years.

Huebschmann said he will continue to fight the tuition increase proposed by the IBHE. The Student Advisory Committee will circulate copies of the committee's position on the proposed tuition increase and IBHE's Master Plan-Phase Four (MP-4) to Illinois legislators in May.

"I will continue Zerkle's policy of getting increased financial assistance for graduate students," Huebschmann said. "The Student Advisory Committee's position is that there should be Illinois State Scholarship Commission coverage for graduate students but not at the expense of undergraduates."

Huebschmann said the advisory committee is presently preparing a position paper on energy conservation at Illinois colleges and universities, which will be presented to the IBHE in a few months.

Huebschmann said he did not officially announce his intention to run for the IBHE position until Friday, the day before the election was held. He won the election on the third ballot by gaining a majority of the 16 votes cast. Howard Blassman, a student at Northwestern University, was elected alternate representative to the IBHE. Blassman has been the alternate representative for the past two years.

As president of the Graduate Student Council, Huebschmann will have to appoint a council member to the advisory committee to represent SIU, but he said Monday that he had not yet made a decision on the appointment.

Student unionization may evolve by 1980

By Kathleen Takemoto
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

By the 1980s, students at public institutions will have their own unions to bargain with both the administration and faculty, says Thomas A. Emmet, chief negotiator at Regis College in Denver, Colo.

Emmet, who has directed over 30 seminars on collective bargaining for colleges and universities and is a negotiations consultant to several governing boards, spoke on "Collective Bargaining in Higher Education" Wednesday in Davis Auditorium. His lecture was sponsored by the collective bargaining organization at the School of Technical Careers.

Emmet predicted that by the 1980s students "will bargain with the administration for anything short of what the legislation allows." He pointed out that students have already unionized in Quebec, Canada and Japan and said that students at the University of Massachusetts are heading toward unionization.

"I don't know who will want to run or teach in these institutions within the next few years," he said.

Emmet said that if collective bargaining is allowed at colleges and universities, the students would side with the administration because they would be "unhappy" with the threat of a faculty strike.

Emmet said that the National Labor Relations Act does not allow for student participation in the collective negotiating process, however, two states, Montana and Ohio, presently allow students to be represented at the collective bargaining table, he said.

Emmet cited both advantages and disadvantages of collective bargaining at the post-secondary institutions.

Advantages, he said, included possible resolution of conflicts, improvement in campus communication, guarantee of rights of all involved, increased faculty compensation, improved evaluation procedures and protection for younger faculty.

Disadvantages of collective bargaining would include decreased flexibility for the institution, increased bureaucracy, increased adversary relationships, elimination of merit pay, cuts in faculty governance and increased legislative pressure from outside the institution, he said.

Emmet stressed that each individual campus will have to make its own decision about whether or not to adopt collective bargaining. He said there is no pattern of collective bargaining relations at post-secondary institutions.

Emmet said that it is "fairly common" for governing boards to hold public hearings on collective bargaining, as the SIU Board of Trustees is presently doing. He said, however, that the advocates of collective bargaining were usually the only ones that speak out at such hearings. "You don't really hear from the rank and file," he said.

SIU Chicago office's function outlined

By Ray Urchel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU is changing the function of its Chicago information office to enable it to provide more services for past, present and prospective students.

George R. Mace, vice president for University relations, said, "My feeling is that we can do more for the University constituencies by putting our money in the right kind of service programs." People who receive good service from an agency will tell others about it, he explained.

Under the restructuring, the office's function was changed from a focus on public relations to concern with alumni services, athletic programs, community services, SIU Foundation programs, job placement, faculty services and admissions and records information for prospective and current students.

Mace said he is looking for a person with experience in several of these areas to coordinate the office.

Donald A. Hecke, director of communications, and Bernard J. O'Connor, coordinator of the Chicago office, are being dismissed as a result of the change.

Mace said the changes are not being made because of dissatisfaction with O'Connor or Hecke.

The office should serve as a link between the Cook County region and SIU, Mace said. He said that SIU had 3,231 students enrolled during fall semester who are from the Chicago area. SIU also has 9,397 alumni from Cook County, he added.

A new program, called Saluki Ambassadors, will be tried on a one-year experimental basis, Mace said. The ambassadors will be selected students who will represent the University in their home areas by providing information about SIU, Mace said. He said he hopes the University can hire between three and five students by next year, adding that he will try to obtain a "gratuity," such as a tuition waiver, in exchange for the work.

If the program proves successful after the first year, it will be expanded, Mace said.

The office will be able to help prospective and current students by serving an ombuds function, helping to solve problems and answer questions, Mace said.

It may also help graduates find jobs, Mace said. About 65,000 alumni reside within the state who can serve as a built-in communication network for the University in locating job openings.

Gus Bode

Gus says Mace is going to ask Ann Landers to run the Chicago office.

Last-minute record met in city workers' contract

By Tom Chesser
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Last minute efforts to negotiate a contract between city administrators and public works employees resulted in the tentative acceptance of a two-year contract late Friday night.

Asst. City Manager Scott Ratter said the contract was tentatively agreed upon by representatives of the teamsters union and is expected to be approved by the rest of the employees this week.

The contract insures public works employees the same benefits of their previous contract with a six per cent pay raise each year.

The contract affects city refuse collectors, building and equipment maintenance men, cemetery workers and street maintenance workers. Average hourly pay for this year's public works employee is $4.88.

Under the provisions of the new contract, public works-foremen have agreed to sever themselves from union influences and go onto a city payroll.

"This way," said Asst. Street Superintendent Wayne Wheeles, "the unions couldn't pressure supervisors into helping them get their demands."

Wheeles said the foremen pushed for this because the city provides a better pay plan for foremen than the union does. Wheeles said it will also help the productivity of the public works department.

The contract with the public works employees was settled after the city reached a tentative contract agreement with firefighters.

Ratter said negotiations between the city and police are continuing but refused to comment further.

All existing contracts between police, fireman and public works employees expired midnight Friday.

Earlier in the week Detective William Kilquist of the Carbondale Police Department said there would be no work speed-ups or slow downs by the city's policemen.

Both sides declined to comment on their demands.

State bill to split SIU may be reintroduced

By John L. Focht
Student Writer

State Sen. Sam Vadalabene, D-Edwardsville, says he may reintroduce a bill which would split the two SIU campuses into separate universities in the January session of the General Assembly "if the feeling and climate in both houses is right."

Vadalabene introduced the bill last year. It passed both houses at that time but was vetoed by Gov. Daniel Walker.

"I was very disappointed the bill didn't go through, but SIU-E will ultimately get its autonomy," Vadalabene said in Springfield earlier this week. "Some day it will happen. It's going to take timing, mood and proper presentation."

The bill was designed to totally separate the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses and create a new board of trustees for SIU-E. The Senate overrode the governor's veto, but the House did not.

That bill was clean as a hound's tooth," Vadalabene said. "There was no proliferation. Every attempt to water it down by adding some kind of amendment failed. We sent it to the Governor clean, with majority support."

Vadalabene criticized the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, which lobbied against the bill.

Convicted Illiopolis man sentenced to prison, fined

A 25-year-old Illiopolis man convicted of illegal delivery of a controlled substance was sentenced to serve one-to-three years in a penitentiary and ordered to pay a $1,500 fine Monday in Jackson County Circuit Court.

Paul Dunn was convicted in a jury trial of selling $1,400 worth of cocaine to an Illinois Bureau of Investigation agent on Feb. 19, 1974. The transaction took place in the parking lot of Pizza Hut, 613 E. Main St., according to the agent.

The agent testified during the trial that she had met Dunn in Decatur, which is near Illiopolis, and they had arranged the deal.

During the sentencing hearing, she testified that she had also purchased "The state chamber came in with all its bulletins and notices to oppose the split," Vadalabene said. "There were a lot of local chambers of commerce in the Metro-East (St. Louis) area that were pushing hard in favor of it."

Vadalabene said that he had contacted the late SIU-E President John Rendleman shortly before introducing the bill last year. "President Rendleman asked me if it was the right time, and I told him I thought it was ready," Vadalabene said.

He said he would not reintroduce the bill during this assembly session, mainly because its agenda deals mostly with appropriations and the state budget.

"Oh, I plan to bring the issue back if there's a favorable climate. I don't just introduce bills for publicity. When I do it, I mean it and will go through with it," Vadalabene remarked.

"The split would benefit both campuses," he said. "When you are planning the destiny of college students in the Metro-East area, you are depriving them of curricula that best suit their own needs."

"It's going to be hard to push it through again so clean. But if we can muster the support, we're going to take another crack at it," he said.

Trial of 17 anti-Park South Koreans to open

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—The trial of opposition leader Kim Dae-jung and 17 other prominent South Koreans, mostly church leaders, on charges of agitating for popular uprisings against President Chung Hee Park will open Tuesday. A corps of 25 top-notch Korean lawyers will defend the accused, who also include former President Yun Po-sun, opposition lawmaker Chyung Ihyung and his wife Mrs. Lee Tai-yung, five Roman Catholic priests and four Protestant clergymen.

The charges were drawn from a manifesto they issued at an ecumenical Mass on March 1 demanding the restoration of full democracy and Park's resignation. All were indicted under a presidential decree of last May that bans virtually all forms of opposition to the government, with a minimum penalty of one year in prison. Court authorities have ordered tight security and ruled against any photography or live radio broadcast in the courtroom, which has a seating capacity of 200. Passes for foreign news representatives were limited to 30.

Italian government sets election date

ROME (AP)—Italy's caretaker government Monday set national elections for June 20-21, giving the voters seven weeks to decide whether to entrust their futures to the Christian Democrats or turn to the Communists for leadership. The elections, which come at a time of financial gloom and violence, could give the Communists a role in the government of this NATO ally for the first time since 1948.

Simultaneous elections were set for local and regional offices in Rome, Bari and Sicily. The Communists are expected to make a strong bid to extend the domain they already have over most of Italy's major cities to Rome, the Italian capital and city of the popes. As the announcement of the crucial election was made and the political parties launched what is expected to be a bitterly fought campaign, the lira fell to a record low of 902.95 to the dollar, more than a third below the Italian currency's value at the beginning of the year.

House passes renewed campaign money bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House approved and sent to the Senate on Monday a bill to reconstitute the Federal Election Commission (FEC) and get campaign money flowing again to the presidential candidates. The House voted 291 to 81. The Senate hoped to act quickly on the measure and send it to President Ford. But Ford still has not said whether he will veto the bill—and even if he doesn't he has to nominate six FEC commissioners and the Senate has to confirm them before the checks can go out.

Seven Democratic presidential candidates and Ford's challenger, Ronald Reagan, have apparently lost their efforts to get the courts to break the money loose for them immediately. Their applications for $2.4 million in funds are tied up so far. The taxpayers' check-off campaign money was cut off five weeks ago, March 22, under a Supreme Court ruling that the FEC was a congressional commission and under the Constitution's balance of powers doctrine could not conduct executive duties like clearing the campaign checks.

Court rules on prisoners' rights question

WASHINGTON (AP)—A prisoner who objects to standing trial in jail clothes but is required to do so is denied his constitutional right to be presumed innocent until proven guilty, the Supreme Court ruled Monday. The eight justices who took part in the decision were unanimous on the jail clothes issue. But they split six to two in upholding the conviction of a Texas man despite their ruling on the constitutional question.

The practical effect of the decision is not expected to be widespread since it is common practice in federal and state courts to permit or provide civilian clothes for persons who are being held awaiting trial because they have not posted bail. The court ruled in the case of Harry Lee Williams, 64, who was found guilty in Harris County, Texas, District Court and sentenced to 10 years in prison on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder. Williams testified in federal court, on a subsequent challenge to his conviction, that he asked a sheriff's captain to permit him to change clothes before his trial but was turned down. He did not ask Judge Miron R. Love, who presided at the trial.

State commits money for coal conversion plant

SPRINGFIELD, (AP)—The Illinois Energy Resources Commission voted 11 to 2 Monday to approve a commitment of $25 million in state bond money for a proposed coal conversion plant near New Athens. The project is a combined effort of the federal government, the state and a consortium of private firms called Coalcon. Although Illinois already had offered the $25 million and was selected over five other states, approval was needed by the commission, which is empowered to commit money from the sale of $70 million in coal development bond funds.

Two public members of the commission, Dr. Boyd R. Keenan and Tor Kofflat, voted against approving the money because they said more data was needed and the project could be resubmitted later. The project's cost was estimated in 1974 at $237 million, but Coalcon president Stanley Ness said the final cost may run to $350 million. The $25 million commitment by Illinois would not change, he said.

Treasury Secretary Simon plans Chilean trip

CHICAGO (AP)—Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Monday he will visit Chile on a Latin American trip this week aimed at "strengthening all of our trade relations" with that nation and Brazil. Simon said in an interview that he will not use the promise of American economic aid to Chile to prod that nation's ruling junta to release political prisoners. Simon said the Chilean administration already has taken steps to reverse the economic course of the ousted government of the late president Salvador Allende and that the ruling generals have promised greater political freedom for their people.

Aides to Simon said that the meeting was requested by the Chileans, who have been criticized for imprisoning many followers of Allende's socialist government. Three House members returned from a trip to Chile last month and said they will attempt to end U.S. aid to Chile because with it "there is no deterrent to the military junta's repressive human rights policies."

Diggle: SGAC head fiscally irresponsible

Student President Doug Diggle has accused Student Government Activity Council (SGAC) chairperson Keith Vyse of being fiscally irresponsible for allowing the SGAC general fund to run a $1,760 deficit for the 1975-76 academic year.

Diggle said the SGAC has paid salaries to all of its nine subcommittee chairpersons but was only appropriated enough money to pay six chairpersons.

Diggle said the deficit has affected the SGAC programming because money was transferred from the budget for Springfest, an annual program that brings cultural events to SIU, to cover the general fund deficit.

Barry Richman, Springfest chairperson, submitted a bill to the Student Senate requesting $1,000 for Springfest, but the senate trimmed the bill to $750. Diggle later vetoed the bill because of his dissatisfaction with the fund transfer.

"When I found out about the veto," Richman said, "I cancelled every contract that we hadn't signed." Richman said he had to cancel some comedy films, a band and some incidental programming expenses.

Diggle said, "If you have a budget, you live by it. You don't use student programming money to pay unauthorized budgets without going to the senate for money. SGAC picked up some very fine chairpersons who could have been paid if he (Vyse) had gone about getting the money the right way. It was very poor fiscal management."

Vyse said it had been an unwritten policy of SGAC to pay any chairperson who did not already have a student work job. Vyse said SGAC tried to budget the payroll by keeping bills down and paying salaries out of Vyse's $800 contingency fund.

"When it became obvious we wouldn't make it," Vyse said, "Helen Ellison (SGAC fiscal officer) and I decided to take the $700 from Springfest to pay our general operating costs (payroll, telephone, office expenses)."

Diggle said SGAC could have remained solvent with a more responsible handling of funds.

"For any individual coming into a position as chairperson, one of the first things he does is look at his budget," Diggle said. "Especially one as detailed as SGAC's. My information is that he never even looked at the budget, even when he was warned he might go under. His attitude was that he could take money out of programming and get bailed out at the end of the year."

Ellison said the budget deficit was due to the additional salaries, the installation of a "Hotline" that announced SGAC activities and an inadequate allocation for SGAC office supplies.

Ellison said that the nine subcommittees are not in economic trouble, but the general fund was running a $460 deficit at the end of March.

Vyse presented two bills to the Student Senate requesting additional funds. The first request, for $1,760, was defeated by the senate April 14 because eight SGAC chairpersons used $80 from each of their accounts to partially finance a trip on Feb. 24-29 to Washington D.C. to attend the National Entertainment Conferences.

Diggle said the senate acted properly because not all of the chairpersons should have attended the conference.

"The conference could benefit the chairpersons from Cultural Affairs, Free School or Lectures, but what benefit is it to the Parent's Day or Orientation Committees?" Diggle asked. "It has a purpose, but it's not right to send people it doesn't benefit."

The senate passed a second bill asking for $1,111.20 after approximately $650 had been subtracted from the original request for the cost of the Washington trip.

Diggle has not yet signed the bill. "I have trouble justifying signing this one bill when we've required groups to be fiscally responsible all year," Diggle said.

Vyse said Student Government had a responsibility to help SGAC out.

"Most students could care less about Student Government," Vyse said. "They want and need their programming."

Ford on stump to stop Reagan momentum

By the Associated Press

The focus of the presidential campaign Tuesday is directly on the Republicans as Ronald Reagan attempts to extend his success in the Sun Belt to President Ford's home ground in the Midwest.

Reagan's challenge for the Republican presidential nomination is tested again Tuesday in three states, Georgia, Alabama and Indiana. The former California governor is conceded a favorite's role in the two Southern primaries and a reasonable chance in Indiana, where a month ago Ford's polls showed him 25 percentage points ahead.

Ford made a last-minute swing through Indiana and Alabama Monday, attacking Reagan's plan to trim the federal budget as a "$90 billion bloop" and continuing the debate over the Panama Canal, an issue given credit for helping Reagan sweep Texas '96 delegates in the primary there on Saturday.

Meanwhile, the 12-candidate free-for-all that was once the Democratic race has become a case of Jimmy Carter odds-on against the field. There are Democratic primaries Tuesday in the same three states and the District of Columbia, but they only stand to lengthen Carter's lead over his scattered pursuers.

Carter picked up additional strength on Monday when he was endorsed by one of his erstwhile rivals, Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana. Bayh noted that he is closer philosophically to Rep. Morris K. Udall, but said Carter is the only Democrat who can win in November.

There are 139 Republican delegates at stake in Tuesday's three primaries—54 in Indiana, 48 in Georgia and 37 in Alabama. Reagan, who now has 236 delegates to Ford's 283, could actually pass the president in the delegate count if he continues to do well in the South and pulls a surprise in Indiana.

But there is one important trump in the President's hand—a bloc of uncommitted delegates, 254 of whom, in New York and Pennsylvania, are all but committed to Ford.

Ford was asked Monday what would happen if, following the Texas debacle, he lost all three of Tuesday's primaries.

"We don't expect to lose all three," he replied. "We certainly are an underdog in Alabama and Georgia but we are making the maximum effort in both states."

Most of the attention is on Indiana. Reagan's success has been in the South and Southwest, a strategy enhanced by his sweep in Texas, and while victories in Georgia and Alabama would be nice, they would only be more of the same.

But a win in Indiana, next door to Ford's home state of Michigan, would provide Reagan with his first victory outside the Sun Belt and give him another boost of the kind that can provide not only delegates but campaigning funds.

"If I am a regional candidate, so is he," Reagan said of Ford on Monday in Fort Wayne, Ind. Reagan said he believed he had momentum in the state, but declined to predict a win there.

Reagan has going for him in Indiana a factor that may also help in Alabama and Georgia—electoral systems without party enrollment that allow Democrats to cross over and vote in the Republican primary. From all indications, Reagan picked up large numbers of votes in Texas from backers of George Wallace and with Wallace's Democratic campaign lagging, his supporters have been appealing for them to do it again.

Joe Wilkinson, Ford's Georgia campaign director, said Monday he believes that could very well happen in his state. And he added, "That could shoot us down pretty bad."

Carter is a strong choice in Indiana. His main opponent there, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, withdrew Saturday and Udall was disqualified because he failed to get enough signatures in one congressional district. That leaves only Wallace to challenge him.

The Democratic primaries in Georgia and Alabama once offered the intriguing sight of Carter and Wallace contesting each other on the other's home ground. But Wallace's waning fortunes have made the two nothing but a pro forma affair.

Carter is favored to win most of the 38 delegates selected in Georgia, where another 12 will be selected at a state convention, and Wallace most of Alabama's 27. But Carter should pick up some in two predominantly black Alabama districts where Wallace has no slates.

In addition, Udall has two slates in Georgia, one of them headed by State Rep. Julian Bond, who once supported Carter but is now one of the few black leaders in Georgia who opposes him.

The District of Columbia primary, in which 13 delegate seats are at stake, involves two uncommitted slates fighting for local control of the party. One is headed by Mayor Walter Washington, the other by Walter Fauntroy, the district's non-voting delegate in Congress. Carter, Udall and Fred Harris also have slates entered but only Carter did any campaigning there.

In addition to Bayh's endorsement, there were other signs Monday of some leaps on the Carter bandwagon.

F-Senate to meet to discuss new entrance requirements

The Faculty Senate Undergraduate Education Policy Committee is scheduled to present to the senate Tuesday its recommendations for changing entrance requirements to SIU-C.

The committee is scheduled to meet Tuesday morning to complete its report before presenting it to the senate. The senate will meet at 1:30 p.m. in the Student Center Mississippi Room.

The Faculty Senate will also review the second draft of grievance procedures for faculty and administrative staff members proposed by the Faculty Status and Welfare Committee. The first draft of the grievance procedures was presented to the senate earlier this month and sent back to the committee for revision.

The senate will also consider any faculty recommendations for amendments to its tenure document, which is scheduled to be ratified on May 11. The final draft of the document will be printed in the Faculty Handbook.

Deadline set for STS appeals

Students who want to present a grievance about the Student-to-Student grant program (STS) can request a hearing in the Student Government offices on the third floor of the Student Center, Vince Sykes, a member of the STS committee, said.

All hearing requests must be made by 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Sykes said the committee listened to 32 students on Friday, 32 on Monday and would hear student grievances until everyone who appeals an STS decision has had a hearing.

When openness policy wears out it is time to trade in the Ford

By Tom Bell
Student Writer

It was Richard M. Nixon's love and thirst for power that corrupted him, and it was his lies and deceptiveness of the American public that ultimately drove him from office. When it comes to withholding information from the American people, Gerald Ford has learned slowly, but surely, how to master the art of his predecessor.

From the time Gerald Ford was sworn in as the 38th President of the United States, on August 9, 1974, he pledged "openness and candor" in his administration. In his first address to Congress, Ford came across to some as a blunt, plain-spoken man, with a deprecating, gentle sense of humor, a man willing to listen to others, a man of common sense.

Editorial

Underneath the Ford Lambskin was a wolf. Little time passed between the speech of "openness and candor" to Congress, and the Oval Office plans to pardon Richard Nixon. With the help of Ford's lawyer, Phillip Buchen, a pardon was secretly worked out, and the information was intentionally kept from presidential press secretary Jerald terHorst.

President Ford did not even trust his own press secretary, a man he chose for the office himself, with the truth about the Nixon pardon negotiations. Ford's lack of confidence soon brought terHorst's resignation.

terHorst was replaced by Ron Nessen, who this past March threatened to resign—again because the Ford team refused to take their press secretary into confidence. On March 13, Richard Nixon sent a report to Ford about his February, 1976, trip to China. Ford, Buchen and Kissinger kept the report from Nessen because they were fearful that, under the Freedom of Information Act, a journalist would apply for it and the Nixon report would have to be made available.

It is true that by nature, Gerald Ford is warmer and more outgoing than Richard Nixon, but he shares a major fault of the ex-president—not telling the public what is going on. Ford's strategy was well planned, simply pardon Nixon without letting the public know of his plans, and thus avoid any protest.

While Ford's language isn't tendentious, studded with Nixonian platitudes and full of oratorical flourishes, the fairy tale that the Ford administration is an open one is just that, a fairy tale. Many people will agree with Ford that "truth is the glue that holds government together", but until he can practice what he preaches we should all trade our Ford in, come November.

Assistant Professor of History

Prof. Marshall and the committee on anti-Semitism at SIU have not addressed the issues I raised in letters to the Daily Egyptian. Permit me to re-state the central points.

About 1.5 million Palestinians live in various degrees of military captivity in their own homes and towns in Israel and in occupied Palestine (West Bank and Gaza). Ever-ready Israeli truncheons and guns condition their daily living. Another 1.5 million Palestinians live in forced exile. For the vast majority of Palestinians, life is harsh and threatening. Exiled Palestinian men, women and children have been subjected to hundreds of Israeli military raids, the objectives of which ranged from mere intimidation to outright extermination. The incidents have been repeatedly proclaimed as official state acts by Israeli officials. In addition, Israeli aggressions and Palestinian suffering are abundantly proven in United Nations documents. Every UN sub-commission, the General Assembly and the Security Council have condemned Israeli expansion, illegal resettlement of populations, and suppression of Palestinians. Our government recognized the truth of the UN resolutions, so what I am saying should in no way be construed as the opinion of one person.

The nub of the Middle East problem is the fact that American money is paying for the truncheons, guns and planes which are the instruments of Palestinian suffering. All Americans should give these facts very careful reconsideration, because we are responsible for what happened in Palestine, and we can restore Palestinian rights, secure Israel's 1967 borders, and achieve durable peace in the Middle East.

The other issue is the deterioration of American-Soviet relations. Cultural contacts are at a nadir. Soviet diplomats and their wives, husbands and children are subjected to terroristic acts in New York City. The Soviet airlines office was blown up, as was the building housing the Soviet trade delegation. These incidents have been reported in the inside pages of the New York Times, so there is no denying them. The same source reports that the Jewish Defense League invariably claims credit for anti-Soviet violence in New York. No American Jewish organization has denounced these life-threatening activities. I believe that a firm denunciation would certainly help curb the violence.

Soviet sports teams, dance groups and musicians are also stridently harassed at many stops across this country, and it begins to appear that America will tolerate violent crimes against and shrill harassment of Soviet guests. Indeed, I suggest that we advise the Soviets that they visit the United States at their own risk, because we cannot, or will not, guarantee their safety and freedom from harassment.

Viewpoint

American-Soviet trade is also depressed. The United States pays the whole price for this breakdown, because West Germany, Japan and other industrial countries are delighted to sell Russia what we refuse. Thus, about $2 billion of Soviet export-import trade for 1976, which ought to benefit us and which our industries could easily handle, has shifted to other industrial countries. Our anti-Soviet trade policy is twice wrong, because it hasn't slowed their industrial growth, but it has hurt us to the tune of several billions since 1972.

Last and most important, SALT II is two years behind schedule and possibly in jeopardy. To say the least, American support for limiting strategic weapons is distressingly lackadaisical. If we fail to consummate SALT II, American and Soviet people will have to divert extra billions from peaceful pursuits to redundant systems of mass destruction.

In view of the stakes, it is time we reconsider the causes for backsliding into a new era of re-primination and militarization. I hope we can arrest and reverse the current trend. A pivotal element in the present low state of American-Soviet relations is our mistaken belief that the Soviet system is anti-Semitic. James Jackson, Chicago Tribune correspondent in Moscow, reported that he finds no anti-Semitism whatever in the Soviet Union. He goes on to report that Soviet Jews are more successful in education and employment than any other national minority in the USSR. I might add that, since about half of the Jews of the Soviet Union live in Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev, they have direct access to the best schools, hospitals and employment opportunities in the country. It seems to me, therefore, that there is powerful evidence for concluding that we have been in error about Soviet Jews, and that we have good reason for ending our hostility toward the Soviets.

On the other hand, the Soviet institutions of law enforcement and justice share some of the imperfections of the American system, and perhaps some of their problems are worse than ours. Nevertheless, it is pertinent to note that our law enforcement agencies occasionally err too, and in the 1960's some American groups were systematically harassed and intimidated by law and order branches. Many Americans and a good many foreigners think that the tens of thousands of US war resisters in exile are political expatriates. The point is, the openness and repressiveness of American society fluxuates over time. I certainly have the right to suspect that the CIA read my mail while I was a student in Leningrad, since the CIA admitted it illegally perused the mail of hundreds of Americans working and studying in the USSR during the 1960's and 1970's.

Finally, I personally give the Soviet people tremendous credit for steady evolution toward political liberalism and cultural pluralism. Last summer I felt that Soviet individuals and groups were going out of their way to prove to me that the range of their freedom of expression is expanding. Back in 1967, a foreign guest had to be careful in his conversations in public. Saying the wrong thing or bringing up sensitive subjects in 1967 could bring conversations to an abrupt end. In 1975 it seemed to be the other way around. It was the Soviet people, from chauffeurs to state officials to old communists, who seemed to press me to discuss openly what I had thought were sensitive topics such as Solzhenitsyn, Soviet cultural policies, the Middle East. The Soviet system still has flaws, but I am confident the Soviet people themselves are struggling hard to improve it, and I know they will succeed in their own way and to their own satisfaction. In the meanwhile, I don't think we can demand that they be more perfect in every respect than we are.

I hope the public discussion of these issues continues, keeping the real matters at the center of the discussion.

Childish slander

To the Daily Egyptian:

I believe that the current smear-campaign against Prof. McFarlin has gone far enough. I am one of his students and would like to point out that he does not impose his views on any of his students.

I read Prof. Marshall's "Viewpoint" in utter disbelief that a University professor would imply that one of his colleagues is a member of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union. Marshall's and others' attacks on McFarlin's character are disgustingly irresponsible. It seems that since their positions cannot be supported by facts, except from the dead past, they must destroy the integrity of their opponent. It is difficult to accept the fact that educated adults are responsible for such childish slander.

Be wary of candidates' positions on South Africa

To the Daily Egyptian:

Now that the threat of war prevails in South Africa and Rhodesia (Zimbabwe), I see our Superman (Secretary of State Kissinger) has flown in to take a look. It is obvious that in the past 50 years the United States did not have a policy on South Africa of the Sahara. The United States has not sent governors, senators, or presidents to South Africa as it has done with China, USSR, Egypt, Israel and Europe. Now the President wants a first-hand report sending Superman to the rescue of another United States blunder.

Right now there are 30 major United States industries in South Africa and 15 different ones in Rhodesia. I don't have to name them—you know who they are and that means American dollars in jeopardy and American lives.

Tanzania has changed its policy of noninterference to the resentment of both countries. Mozambique has issued a blockade on all Rhodesian borders. Angola has sent guerilla fighters into Namibia (Southwest Africa) to fight South Africa Regulars. Both Zaire (Belgium Congo) and Uganda have sent threatening news statements. Zambia has even sent arms to Angola to fight the white governments.

The President and Republican Presidential candidate, Ronald Reagan, both have stated their views of "unrelenting opposition" to Rhodesia and South Africa. The Democrats have not even commented on the issues—Carter, Jackson, Udall, Wallace and non-candidate Humphrey.

America, be careful at the polls—it could be your life.

Add support to denunciation of anti-Semitism

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would like to applaud the statement of the Ad Hoc Committee Against Anti-Semitism at SIU—which I deemed it an honor to sign—that appeared in the Daily Egyptian on April 29.

The limited number of signatures suggests that the Ad Hoc Committee, given the exigencies of composition and fundraising, was not able to contact and/or approach all the many professed supporters of decency, fair play, and justice on this campus. No doubt many, many more of the community's moral and intellectual leaders would have signed such a forthright yet dignified statement if they had been given the chance.

Now, then, it seems to me is the time for our leading citizens who have spoken, in public and private, for good sense, reason, and decency in the past, to add their voices and names to that vital denunciation of anti-Semitism, "the greatest hatred in human history."

Function of fraternities

To the Daily Egyptian:

I have always wanted to comment on the function of that vital force in University life known as the "fraternity." I have never really known just what these groups of gentlemen do, but I have always viewed them with that measure of respect which I think they deserve.

Last Thursday, I discovered what the function of the fraternity is. As I walked home from school past a downtown bar, a line of panting, hollering fraternity men involved in some sort of beer-drinking race ("Chug-a-thon?") bolted out the door and ran past me. As the last gentleman ran by, he vomited all over the sidewalk, two inches to my left. I just wanted to thank you sirs, for re-affirming for me the importance of the fraternity in University life.

Lock up killers for life

To the Daily Egyptian:

This is in response to the gun control letter by Chris T. Korber—I agree wholeheartedly that there must be something done about the murders and murderer's in this country. However, since the gun is only a tool of a killer we must lock the killer up for life.

Take the guns away and they will use some other tool—knives, axes, or any instrument they can find. Richard Speck used a knife to do his work.

So do not blame the gun, blame the government. It is the same government that gives murderer's seven to ten years for the grossest inhumanity, while they do not feel any remorse by giving a drug user life imprisonment.

Give bikers some room

To the Daily Egyptian:

I'd like to voice a suggestion to those Carbondale drivers who race about town with little or no regard for others. Several times while bicycling around town I have nearly been annihilated by drivers who feel that a two or three-foot interval will suffice while passing cyclists or joggers. To those who have never biked, please understand that the stability of a bicycle is very limited on roads around this area. Unfortunately the city has not yet developed a decent bikeway system. Until we get one, remember that unless you give the biker some room, we may slow each other down for a long time.

STS program like lottery?

To the Daily Egyptian:

After waiting over a month for my results from the Student-To-Student (STS) Grant Committee concerning my eligibility for a STS Grant, I just received my notification that I was denied a grant because the funds for this program had expired. While investigating, I found that once the committee had determined who was eligible for a grant, they awarded these grants in the order they received the applications. Many students (myself, for one) who weren't lucky enough to fill out an application on the morning they were made available, (I have classes all day at Southern Illinois Airport), have really gotten the short end of the stick. The committee received over 600 applications that day, not to mention the hundreds more who applied before the deadline, and are awarding grants to approximately 400 students. The winners are first the first 400 students who were eligible and had a chance to fill out an application before some others. This is ridiculous! Why should some students who have a greater need for financial assistance, but couldn't get to the Student Center that morning come up empty-handed, while some other students who don't need the financial assistance as much, are able to laugh all the way to the bank?

It is probably too late to change the "shady way" the STS Grant Committee decided to distribute their funds for this semester, but it is not too late to start the ball rolling to put the screws to the STS Grant Committee so next term there will be a fair grant program and not a lottery.

Fund raising event

To the Daily Egyptian:

Regarding Tim Hasting's commentary, "Physical fitness is no joke." I feel some points should be corrected.

The Almost Anything Goes competition (AAG), organized by the Vets Club, was never meant to be a physical contest. Its primary purpose was as a fund raising event for the Special Olympics. The competition raised over $750 and would have raised even more money had the weather been better.

The competition also helped to bring students and local townspeople together on a friendly basis, something of which there's been too little of.

The AAG format was chosen so that both men and women of all ages could compete, (for charity), on even terms.

Although we need physical fitness, we also need fund raising events, which is all AAG purported to be.

Steel Band concert set

The Trinidad Tripoli Steel Band will present a musical concert on converted oil drums as part of the 1976 Student Government Activities Council (SGAC) Springfest. The ten-piece band will play beginning at 8 p.m. Saturday in Shryock Auditorium as a University Convocations sponsored event.

The band, under the direction of Hugh Borde, play many types of music including ethnic, cultural and pop music. Planned for the program are music of "Alley Cat" to the "Hallelujah Chorus" and selections from the rock opera "Tommy." The musicians will combine movement and chanting with pure Trinidad Calypso pieces. The Trinidad Tripoli Steel Band became famous when they toured with pianist and entertainer Liberace over the North American continent for two years. The band now tours alone nine months every year.

A 1972 Gammy Award for a gold album "Liberace Presents" was also presented to the group as was the Hummingbird Medal, the highest musical award of Trinidad. The group also had an 18-month engagement as the major attraction of Expo '67 in Montreal and presented command performances before Queen Elizabeth of England and Presidents Gerald Ford, Richard Nixon and Lyndon Johnson. The group formed after WWII when it was impossible to get instruments on which to perform calypso music. Trinidad was covered with oil drums and group members found the oil drums useful for percussion. By cutting the drums into various sizes and pounding them into concave shapes, the drums would produce a variety of sounds. The present band is a descendant of this original group of musicians.

The convocations event is free and open to everyone and will be the last event for the week-long Springfest.

'Springfest' opens Tuesday, concert, sales, lecture planned

Springfest '76 activities begin Tuesday with five events scheduled in various sections of the campus. Activities for the week-long fest include movies, concerts, lectures and a "Student Center All-Nighter" Friday evening. Highlighting the week will be a concert by "Wishbone Ash" and guests the "Slink Rand Group" Thursday.

Tuesday's activities will begin at 8 a.m. with the opening of the "A Touch of Spring" plant sale sponsored by Delta Upsilon Fraternity. The sale, to be held in Ballroom D, will run until 6 p.m.

An Arts and Crafts Sale is scheduled from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. of the Pulliam Knoll. Many types of crafts will be available.

Featured event of Tuesday's Springfest scheduled is the lecture by civil rights attorney William Kunstler. Kunstler, who will speak at 8 p.m. in Ballroom D, is the defense lawyer for Symbionese Liberation Army members William and Emily Harris. He will speak on "Justice in America." A question and answer session is tentatively scheduled for after the lecture.

Also scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday is an outdoor concert by Peter Lang on the Woody Hall Stage, behind Woody Hall. Lang, a solo guitarist, is a protégé of Leo Kottke.

The film, the "Twelve Chairs" is scheduled to be shown at 7 and 9 p.m. in the Student Center Auditorium.

School of Music gives choral, band concerts

The SIU School of Music is sponsoring a Combined Chorus concert, Robert Kingsbery conducting, at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Shryock Auditorium and a Symphonic Band concert for 8 p.m. Thursday in Shryock Auditorium. Gene Stiman conducting.

freshman majoring in guitar music, "All Good Gifts," from the musical "Godspell," arranged by Mike Melton and Mike Clancy, music majors.

Kingsbery, an associate professor of music, will conduct the concert which will feature the University Choir, the University Chorus, the SIU Glee Club and the Southern Singers. The choir and chorus will be combined for several numbers; the other groups will perform alone and all will be combined for the finale. Several solos are also planned.

The Southern Singers will perform music including a medley of vaudeville tunes called "Shall We Dance," "Consider Yourself" and "Little David," a spiritual.

The entire four groups will finish the concert with "Let Us Go Forth," an excerpt from President John F. Kennedy's Inaugural Address; and "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

The Symphonic Band concert will present "American We" by Henry Fillmore.

The University Choir and University Chorus will begin the concert with the "Coronation Mass" by Mozart. The SIU Glee Club will follow with ten numbers, including some from their yearly program.

The Symphonic Band concert will present "American We" by Henry Fillmore, "Victory at Sea," by Richard Rogers, "The Nutmakers," by Osterling, "Saturn V," by Washburn, and Lerner and Loewe's "Gigi" from the musical "GIGI."

The concert will feature James Durbin and Dwayne Gerhard, music majors, on trumpet in "Sonata for Two Trumpets," by Franceschini.

The Glee Club will sing numbers including "Step to the Rear," "For All the Saints," "Punjab," featuring Richard Stubbs, a

Jo Anne Worley picked as M.C.

Jo Anne Worley, who has been called the zaniest comedienne of all, will be the mistress of ceremonies for the "Almost Anything Goes" Roadshow scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday at the SIU Arena.

Worley is a favorite of game shows, situation comedies and variety shows on television and on stage. She is best known for her performances on the "Laugh-In" television show.

The Roadshow has been restructured to include twelve teams participating in four quarters rather than two halves with six teams. Dean Justice, Arena manager, said the changes have been made to make the show more entertaining.

Teams will include two student teams, three city teams, an administrative team, and three teams chosen from the audience the night of the show. Student and city teams were chosen April 24 in competition at Evergreen Park.

Student winners to compete are the Smith Hall Intellectual Team, lead by Scott Schmitt, a freshman in electronic data processing, and the Spacers, representing Abbott Hall, lead by Larry Panno, a freshman in administration of justice. Both will compete against a team of SIU administrators, lead by George Mace, vice-president of University Relations, in the first quarter of competition.

City teams will include West Frankfort, of the Franklin County representative, Herrin as the Williamson County team and Carbondale representative, Herrin as the Williamson County team and Carbondale as the Jackson County team. All three will compete in the second quarter of the finals.

The third quarter will feature teams from area towns such as Benton, Murphysboro and Marion, said Jim Abel, assistant manager of the Arena.

The fourth quarter will feature three teams chosen from the audience. Everyone who holds a ticket, is willing to sign a waiver and is 18 years old or older can sign up on Friday as they arrive for the performance. Costumes and other props will be provided by the roadshow crew.

Following all four quarters is a one event runoff between the first and second quarter winners and the third and fourth quarter winners. The winners of the two halves will then compete to determine the evening's championship team.

SIU graduate to be guest star in 'Laverne and Shirley' show

Brenda Verrett, a 1972 graduate of SIU, will be a guest star on Tuesday's telecast of "Laverne and Shirley." Verrett will play the role of Hilite in the 7:30 p.m. broadcast.

The actress, who received a bachelor's degree in theater in 1971 and a master's degree in speech in 1972 from SIU, has played small roles in other television shows including "All in the Family," "Good Times," "Sanford and Son" and "The Grady Show." She has also won $4,000 from "Let's Make a Deal." Walter Ellis, a close associate of Verrett and physical education instructor, said this role is her first major speaking role.

While at SIU, Verrett performed on "Kaleidoscope," and played major roles in many SIU theater productions including "Who's Afraid of Modacious," "The Roar of the Grease Paint and the Smell of the Crowd," "Dracula," "The Crucible" and "Oh What a Lovely War."

The captain usually goes down with his ship and in Saturday's annual boat race, he lived up to the old adage as boat number 28 sank in Campus Lake. Students in Design

Sailors test their ships in cardboard boat race

Thirty-six participants braved the waters of Campus Lake Saturday in Design 102's annual cardboard boat race.

The yearly class project gives students "an unlikely material and then poses the design problem of how to best use that material to make a workable boat," according to lecturer Davis Pratt who co-teaches the class with instructor Larry Busch.

Winner of this year's race was the boat designed by Steve Shaefer. Second place went to Linda Tansil's boat and third place went to the boat designed by Charlie McLaughlin and Mike McCarthy.

Other awards given were The Most Spectacular Sinking (also called the Titanic Award) which was won by the boat designed by Matt Thiell and Nick DeJohn and the best team award won by Jill MacGregor and Carol Landstrom.

"All boats had to be constructed out of corrugated cardboard but could use any type of propulsion. One of the boats this year used a paddle wheel, Pratt said.

Busch said, "Many people ask us why we have students make cardboard boats and I usually quote them something Ben Franklin said, 'Tell me, I forget; Teach me, I remember; Involve me, I learn'."

Parents get involved, pupils improve

ANNA, ILL. (AP) — An Anna grade school experiment shows telephone answering devices can be valuable classroom extensions.

In a 30-week project run by Dr. Ronald Bittle, an Anna State Hospital psychologist, one of the machines was used to plug parents into the educational process. The result was a marked improvement in pupil performance.

Bittle said the idea was so simple he's surprised he hadn't thought of it before.

Half the educational battle is won or lost on the home front, he said in an interview. Parents have to support the teacher's efforts by overseeing homework, providing help and offering encouragement. But, he said, the gap in parent-teacher communication is difficult to bridge, and often parents don't know what, specifically, is going on at school from day to day.

Though report cards give them an indication of where help is needed, Bittle said they often are not issued until it's too late. Some teachers try to span the gulf by sending notes home. But that chain of contact is only as strong as its littest link.

Bittle said teachers often do not have enough time to contact parents regularly by telephone. And parents are often reluctant to dial up the teacher.

For example, Bittle found that in his test class of 20-first graders the teacher had received just five calls from parents in seven months.

"They feel ill at ease," he said. "They feel unqualified or they don't want to bother them."

A machine, he reasoned, could distribute information to parents in far less time, cut the children out of the circuit and make the communication unthreateningly impersonal.

"First of all we just wondered if parents would be interested enough to call," Bittle said. "What we did was just give them general information, lunch menus and so forth. The first week we got 260 calls."

When the novelty wore off, that fell to about 100 calls a week - but that was still a surprising average of one call per pupil per day, Bittle said.

"We did a controlled experiment," he said. "What had been happening was the teacher had been sending a spellings word list home each day with the student." Spelling errors under that arrangement averaged 35 per cent for the class. When the words were added to the three-minute, teacher-taped messages, the rate dropped to about six per cent.

Bittle repeated the experiment with the same results.

"Every single student in the class improved in their spelling just as a function of their parents knowing the words they were supposed to spell," he said, adding that the poorest spellers had shown the greatest improvement.

Non-academic experiments brought the same results. For the first time in anyone's memory, for example, all the parent permission slips for the school picnic came in on time—saving the teacher some administrative time, Bittle said.

The 38-year-old psychologist thinks the system could be used in any academic subject.

He said the system is also inexpensive—about six cents a day per pupil the first year and three cents the second.

Honor accorded; officers elected

An SIU senior has been named Tau Omega social fraternity's Thomas Arkle Clark Award.

Randy King, a senior from Elmhurst majoring in marketing and administrative sciences, was selected to represent the fraternity's Province 27, which includes ATO chapters at SIU, Austin Peay, Murray State University, University of Kentucky and Western Kentucky. King will compete against 27 winners representing 127 other ATO chapters in the United States and one in Canada for the 41st annual national award.

Named for Thomas Arkle Clark, former national ATO president who was dean of men at the University of Illinois from 1902-1932, the award is given to the ATO member best exhibiting the ideals of "scholastic excellence, fraternity leadership and manly character."

Kevin Wright, political science major from Bridgeport, has been elected president of Alpha Tau Omega (ATO) social fraternity chapter for the 1976-77 academic year.

Other newly elected ATO chapter officers include: Vice-president—Steve Seely; Secretary—Joel Meagher; Treasurer—Craig Reinmuth; Historian—John Whicker; Usher—Donald Vincenti; Sentinel—Mark Peitzmeir.

'Little strokes' first sign of real thing, doctor says

Doctors call them "little strokes." Short episodes of dizziness, slight confusion or double vision may occur and the victim rarely suspects anything is wrong.

"Little strokes are often a signal that a full stroke is impending. Although it may be days, weeks, months or even years away, danger is still there," said Dr. A.R. Esposito, president of the Jackson County Heart Association.

Usually, the effects of "little strokes" aren't noticeable. As a result, victims dismiss the symptoms, unaware of the damage a full-blown stroke can cause.

Strokes can be avoided with long-term treatment, Dr. Esposito noted, adding that prevention can come only with knowledge and recognition of a stroke's early warning signs.

Warning signs include sudden temporary weakness or numbness of the face, arm or leg; temporary loss of speech, or trouble in speaking or understanding speech; temporary dimness or loss of vision, particularly in one eye; an episode of double vision; unexplained dizziness or unsteadiness. A change in personality, mental ability or the pattern of headaches may also occur.

A stroke occurs when the blood supply to a part of the brain is blocked. When it happens, millions of brain cells die. By halting the oxygen supply for just a few minutes, irreversible brain damage can result.

In 1976, more than 200,000 Americans will die from stroke. An additional 1,700,000 persons will be afflicted, many with crippling after-effects of stroke.

"Stroke stems from the same basic risk factors as heart attack,"

Esposito said. "High blood pressure, high blood cholesterol and excess cigarette smoking are the major ones. A diet high in saturated fats and cholesterol, a lack of exercise and being overweight are also factors."

"The most significant risk factor for stroke is high blood pressure. Research at Veterans Administration hospitals shows a sharp reduction in stroke deaths among persons who have their blood pressure controlled," he remarked. The Heart Association's "Stroke Risk Handbook" for physicians points to the same evidence, Esposito added.

"Data based on long-term studies of residents of Framingham, Mass. has shown that control of hypertension, the medical term for high blood pressure, may prevent stroke. Therefore the key to prevention is early detection and control of hypertension," noted Esposito.

He said stroke, long viewed as an affliction of old age, hits young men and women and even children, as well as elderly persons.

"That is why we emphasize regular blood pressure checkups, and adhering to a proper diet and heart healthy lifestyle beginning at an early age," Esposito said. "The American Heart Association and Jackson County Heart Association emphasize education of both physicians and the public regarding prevention of stroke. High blood pressure control is essential to achieving this goal."

LITTLETON WINS

(CHICAGO AP)—Littleton Public Schools was the top winner in an annual competition recognizing U.S. school systems for achievement in providing exemplary library media programs at the elementary level.

Representatives Moore, Herter, Stubbs, Fleming, and all council members will be eligible for the chairman post. A person must be on the council for one year in order to be elected chairman.

Other members of the council include David A. Reed, John Robinson, Wilma L. Morgan, H. Leo Hester, James D. McKeown, Afton M. Morrissy, William H. Herter and Geraldine Kelley.

Civil Service Council representative elected

Representatives were elected last week to serve on the Civil Service Employees' Council, a constituency group which serves civil service employees at SIU. A chairman will be elected Wednesday by the new representatives.

Elected representatives include: Administrative—Joe A. Moore; Custodial—William H. Herter; General—Bonnie S. Stubbs; Professional—Jean L. Zapp; Secretarial—Carolyn J. Fleming; Services—Lois B. Scott; Trades and Occupations—Darrell Huppert (a write-in candidate).

Wisconsin educator to head public relations program

Donald MacDonald, a veteran educator in communications from University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, has been chosen to head the public relations sequence in the Department of Speech at SIU.

Edward McGlone, chairman of the department said MacDonald, 53, will assume his duties as associate professor Aug. 15, pending formal approval by the Board of Trustees. The position became available when Raymond D. Wiley, assistant professor of speech, resigned.

"Public relations is an area of potential in the department. It has come a long way with Mr. Wiley and I think this new man can pick up and carry it," McGlone said. "I foresee a continued expansion-oriented program."

MacDonald, a retired Air Force staff information officer, received his M.A. and Ph.D. in communications from Michigan State University. He was department chairman at the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, 1971-1974. He has published works in communications research with emphasis in organizational communication.

Two students win contest

Two seventeen-year-old students were recently the winners of the annual "Youth-to-Washington, D.C." contest, sponsored by the Egyptian Electric Cooperative Association of Steeleville, Ill.

Beth Ann Buser of Carbondale and Julie Holloway of Sparta wrote 1,000 word essays on "The Role of the Electric Cooperatives in 1976." Buser had the highest score in the category of "off-of-the-service-line" and Holloway had the highest score in "on-the-service-line."

The twelve junior semifinalists were guests of Egyptian Electric Cooperative in Springfield, April 28, attending the Illinois Rural Electric Youth Day, as proclaimed by Governor Dan Walker.

Buser and Holloway will join other Illinois youths in Springfield on June 11, and leave by bus for Washington, D.C. They will return to the state office of the electric cooperatives on June 19, and continue their return trip home from Springfield.

Slogan contest planned to aid pollution control

By Terri Bradford
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

High school students are invited to participate in a theme and slogan contest supporting a planning program for control of water pollution. A.S. Kirkakis, water resources director said.

Sponsored by the Citizens' Advisory Committee of the Water Quality Task Force, the contest is open to students in Jackson, Franklin, Gallatin, Williamson, Hamilton, Hardin, Jefferson, Perry, Pope and Saline counties.

The winning slogan will be used during the water quality project's public participation program scheduled for development in 1976-77. Top prize is a ten-speed bicycle. Students entering the competition will receive a certificate and a complimentary pass for a bi-centennial ride on the Crab Orchard and Egyptian Railroad.

Details for Jackson County entrants in the contest may be obtained in the superintendent's office at Carbondale Community High School. Deadline for entries is May 26.

The Water Quality Task Force is composed of residents of regions appointed by the Greater Egypt Regional Planning and Development Commission. The Task Force serves as an advisory group to commissions in operation of the water quality planning program.

Known officially as the 208 Water Treatment and Water Quality Management Planning Project, the program is authorized by the Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972.

Design student John Kaneer plays with Ralph who enjoys the attention of being hitched to the cart. Kaneer built the cart for about $40 as an independent class project.

Pooch-powered load wagon is owner's answer to hauling

"Ralph's an attention-hound," says his owner, John W. Kaneer, a design student at SIU.

A hound he may loosely be called—Ralph's parentage includes both poodle and shepherd. But there's no doubt that he's an attention-getter as he trots around campus hitched to a plywood cart. The cart was designed and built by Kaneer for about $40. He had two things in mind: getting credit for an independent studies project in design, and getting somebody else—namely Ralph—to tote the load on walks between his home and school or stores.

"I carry a lot of stuff for (design) projects—tools and the like—from my home to school," Kaneer said. "It's a lot easier for Ralph to carry them in the cart than for me to lug them around."

The cart weighs 40 pounds and can hold up to 100 pounds. Ralph weighs about 75 pounds. "I've put 100 pounds in the cart and Ralph didn't even notice it was there," he said. "He could pull up to 1,000 pounds."

Besides, said Kaneer, Ralph loves the attention the cart brings him.

"He's learned that with this cart people will stop and pet him. Without that cart, he's just another dog. And Ralph'll do anything for attention."

Plumbers and Pipefitters Local 160 wants Ralph for a special role in the Loyalty Day Parade in Marion May 8. The cart will be getting some special touches from union members with an eye to the Bicentennial. And Ralph, attention-hound that he is, will be a centerpiece attraction, pulling a float adorned with a reproduction of the Liberty Bell.

New furniture in Faner Hall causes rejoicing

Faner Hall is the newest building on campus, with the newest furniture. But the departments occupying the building were not always so lucky, said C.D. May, campus interior designer.

Some of the departments, especially English, moved from old offices with old wooden chairs and desks, May said.

"There's no comparison," said Joanne Marks, English department secretary. "We moved from the barracks where Faner is now to Woody Hall and the blue barracks with desks that were carved on top."

The alumni offices, which are also located in Faner, went through similar difficulties before they moved from Forest Hall, north of campus.

"We couldn't do a whole lot with it (Forest Hall)," said Jacob King, assistant to the director of the alumni office. "This is a suite of offices, those were dorm rooms."

The new furniture in Faner Building was bought through the "Faner account." The account is funded through the Capital Development Board, a state project, May said.

May chooses the furniture out of catalogs from companies which actively bid for the business.

"We mainly deal with about three of the largest firms," May said.

Furnishing Faner is not quite complete, said May. "All that we are waiting for is some technical equipment for some of the departments, then we'll finally have that building done."

Egg bill may cut small farmer's cost burden

By Rick Taylor
Student Writer

State Rep. Vincent A. Birchler (D-Chester) has introduced legislation to remove some costly burdens from small farmers and storekeepers who handle eggs.

Birchler's bill would exempt small farmers and storekeepers from a recently enacted licensing, inspection and grading act.

The Illinois Egg and Egg Products Act requires persons buying or selling eggs in Illinois to obtain a license and file a surety bond with the State Agriculture Department. Other provisions of the law require the grading and inspection of all eggs sold.

"My amendment would allow the little Ma and Pa general stores and the small farmers to sell and trade their eggs without being forced to register with the Agriculture Department," Birchler said.

Birchler's bill would permit the retail sale of eggs on or off the retailer's premises without being forced to go through a grading process. It also reduces the license fee of a retailer purchasing under 150 cases of nest eggs per year from $30 to $5.

Birchler said the point of his new bill is to allow the small producers of nest eggs to sell their eggs on a limited basis. "This bill would not affect the major retailers of eggs, only exempt the farmers who regularly trade eggs for other services or products," Birchler said.

Computer expert to lecture on new technique Thursday

A computer expert will lecture Thursday at SIU on a communications technique which is claimed to be cheaper than first class mail as fast as a telephone call and as easy to use as a typewriter.

The technique, computerized conferencing, will be discussed by Murray Turoff, associate professor of computer and information science at the New Jersey Institute of Technology.

Turoff's lecture will be at 8 p.m. in the Technology Building Auditorium. It is being sponsored by the College of Human Resources.

Computerized conferencing is a system in which people communicate by keyboarding messages through a computer. Like the telephone, computerized conferencing eliminates barriers of distance—but it also overcomes time barriers not eliminated by the telephone.

The computer can hold messages for minutes or months while one party ponders a reply. And the computer can be ordered to send messages to all participants in the conference, or to only selected participants.

Turoff was one of the originators of the technique. He has estimated that by 1980 more individuals will be using computers for conferencing than for any other application.

Saul Bellow takes Pulitzer for best fiction

NEW YORK (AP) — Saul Bellow's "Humboldt's Gift" won the Pulitzer Prize for fiction Monday while "A Chorus Line," directed by Michael Bennett, won the drama award.

The Chicago Tribune staff won the prize for special local reporting for its disclosure of "widespread abuses in federal housing programs in Chicago."

The prize for national reporting was awarded to James Risser of the Des Moines Register for his disclosure of "largescale corruption in the American grain exporting trade."

The other journalism awards were: Editorial writing: Philip F. Kerby of the Los Angeles Times. Editorial cartooning: Tony Auth of the Philadelphia Inquirer. Spot news photography: Stanley Forman of the Boston Herald-

American.

Feature photography: the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times photo staff.

Commentary: Red Smith, sportswriter of The New York Times.

Criticism: Alan M. Kriegsman of the Washington Post.

The Pulitzer Prizes are awarded annually by the trustees of Columbia University on recommendation of an advisory board.

A special award was given posthumously to America's "king of ragtime," Scott Joplin, who finally made it to Broadway with his opera, "Treemonisha," last year.

The prize for poetry was awarded to John Lawrence Ashbery, a Brooklyn College English teacher, for "Self-Portrait in a Convex Mirror," the latest of his many poetic works.

Campus Briefs

A meeting for women graduate students will be held from noon to 1 p.m. Tuesday in the Student Center Thebes Room. Lynn Kinsell-Rainey, graduate student in guidance and educational psychology, will discuss current research perspectives on women.

Human Sexuality Services will present "Sex Without Worry: A Contraceptive Rap" from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Student Center River Rooms.

Women's Programs will sponsor a film and discussion on the concept of women's taking over routine medical care of their own bodies. The program will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. Tuesday in the Student Center Kaskaskia Room.

The Southern Illinois Sailing Club's free sailing day for the handicapped, scheduled for Saturday at Crab Orchard Lake, was cancelled because of poor sailing weather. Persons interested in joining the club for the summer may attend club meetings, which are held at 9 p.m. Thursdays in Lawson Hall, Room 151.

David M. Vieth, professor of English, presented a paper at the annual meeting of the Northeast Modern Language Association, held April 8 to 10 in Burlington, Vt. The paper was entitled "Divided Consciousness: The Trauma and Triumph of Restoration Culture." Vieth has been commissioned by the University of Nebraska Press to participate in the Regents Restoration Drama Series with a publication of Dryden's comedy "Marriage a la Mode."

Olga Orechwa, assistant professor of foreign languages and literatures, has been elected secretary of the Northeast Modern Language Association's Easter Slavic Literature Section. She also presented a paper at the association's annual meeting, held April 8 to 10 in Burlington, Vt. Orechwa also received a stipend to attend a summer session from June 21 to Aug. 13 at Yale University, under sponsorship of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

College of Science students should come to the Neckers Building, Room A-160 as soon as possible for remaining early advisement appointments for summer and fall registration.

Seymour L. Bryson, Brockman Schumacher and Walter G. Robinson, faculty members of the Rehabilitation Institute, are listed in the 1975-76 edition of "Who's Who Among Black Americans."

Wayne S. Ramp, professor of occupational education, presented a paper at the U.S. Office of Education Project Director's Conference, held April 23 in Washington. The paper was entitled "Leadership Development Program Recruitment and Placement Practices."

A group of Forestry Club members and faculty have planted a tree south of the Agriculture Building in honor of Mr. John R. Stamen, a former forestry student who lost his life in a tractor accident last fall while working in Union County.

Edmund House, a 1969 SIU graduate in music, has been awarded a Fulbright grant for 1976-77 to study at the Hochschule fur Musik in Munich, Germany. House is currently completing his master's degree in music at the University of Washington.

John H. Wotiz, professor of chemistry, wrote "Higher Education in Chemistry in Some East Asia and Pacific Ocean Countries," which appeared in the April issue of the Journal of Chemical Education.

Dorm residents report thefts

Four students in east campus dormitories reported items stolen from their rooms over the weekend, said SIU Security Police.

Stuart Burchard told police his room in Wright 1 was entered sometime between 10 p.m. and 3:50 a.m. Sunday. He reported a loss of items totaling about $320.

Mark Koprcina, 629 Schneider, told police early Sunday that about $485 worth of items had been taken from his room.

Thomas G. Reynolds, 19, 308 Allen I, reported Friday that his wallet had been stolen from his room sometime between 2 and 8 a.m. April 27 while he was sleeping. The door was unlocked, he said.

Richard Moore, 21, 314 Allen III, also told police Friday that his wallet had been taken from his room sometime between 7 and 11 a.m. Thursday while he was out of his room.

Vicki Simpson of the SIU staff reported 12 tennis racquets and a canvas bag taken from the Physical Education Department storage room in the Arena Friday. The items were worth about $127.

Jeffrey Bayles, 22, 434 Lakewood Park, was charged with driving while intoxicated early Friday after he hit a Carbondale police car.

Officer James Reed said he had parked his car in front of the Fox Eastgate Theater and it was struck. Bayles left the scene and was stopped by Reed at East Main and South Marion Streets, police said.

Many senior citizens avoid politics

By Tilden Parks
Student Writer

Senior citizens are the forgotten segment of society when one speaks of political activism. Some senior citizens love to become involved with political campaigns. But most of the 65-and-older age group do not.

Some legislation has been passed in recent years involving the aged. Social Security benefits have risen. Titles III and VII are now in effect.

Title III is the Older American Act. It deals with funding for transportation, information and referral services and an outreach service for the elderly. It also provides money for health related expenses, welfare, recreation and education for the senior citizens.

Title VII deals with the "Meals on Wheels" campaign. Through federal funding, balanced meals are offered to senior citizens at centers throughout the nation.

Another bill, Title XX, was passed recently. This piece of legislation deals with a homemaker service for the elderly.

So Congress has not completely forgotten the elderly. But few of the older folks seem to get enthused over the issues. However, there are a few groups of senior citizens who are politically active.

On a nationwide scale, one of the largest organizations is that of the Gray Panthers. Their leader is 70-year-old Maggie Kuhn. In an interview three years ago, she gave her highest priorities for older people. This group does not believe that older people should try to keep up youthful appearances; instead they should be proud of their age.

Kuhn also dislikes the discrimination against people on the basis of chronological age. This vibrant woman, who has worked with Ralph Nader on several projects, thinks there should be more social change for the aged. She has even recommended that retirees by "recycled" back into the work force in some capacity, with health permitting.

However, the Gray Panthers do not exist on a local level. Ms. Jaci Hayse, who works at the Carbondale Senior Citizens Center, said that most senior citizens in Carbondale are complacent. She added that there are two types of older people in this city. They are the upper-middle class and the poor. There are not too many middle class citizens in Carbondale among the elderly.

Hayse explained that the upper-middle class is usually more politically involved than the poor class. The former group is usually in favor of school taxes and other youth-related government expenses, while the poor look upon it as more money wasted.

Many problems exist which prevent the realization of "gray power." One problem is education. Many of these people did not even receive an eighth grade education. Thus, they do not understand many of the issues. Many cannot read very well.

Hayse pointed out that the majority of older people are women. Despite women's lib, this segment of society still does not have the say-so of men. The main concern of many elderly is health. Most must spend a lot of money on medicine and doctor bills. Medicare does not pay for such things as eyeglasses, hearing aids, custodial care and orthopedic shoes.

The main issues which the elderly do become interested in are the ones which would affect them. These include Social Security, Medicare, food stamps and public housing.

Hayse remarked that most politicians do not seem to play up to the older people. Most of their campaigns seem to be earmarked for the middle-aged and the young.

Most of the older people are afraid of change.

Law students discuss juvenile rights at Southern Illinois high schools

By Mark Raeber
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Students from the SIU School of Law gave presentations on the legal rights of juveniles last week to students at area high and junior high schools.

Thirty-five law students accompanied by 12 attorneys made the visits as part of the Law School's observance of Law Day on April 28-30.

According to Phillip Lenzini, senior in law and a member of the Law Day program committee, "The programs were centered around juvenile problems such as curfew, drug and alcohol violations and search and seizure."

"We haven't had a formal debriefing of the participants yet," he said, "but I think most of the people enjoyed it. It's a good program.

"Students gave presentations at Herrin, Marion, Carbondale, Murphysboro, Elverado (Elkville) and one or two other high schools," he said.

They also gave a presentation to students at Lincoln Junior High School in Carbondale. "This is the first year we've gone into the junior high schools," Lenzini said.

"We have been getting some different feedback from the junior high schools. Some people felt that the problem—juvenile rights—was a bit too heavy for the junior high students," he said.

"We felt the junior high students did an outstanding job of discussing the issues," he said. "We're betwixt and between as to whether we should develop a different problem for discussion in the junior highs. That decision will be made next year."

Lenzini said, "This year there were a lot more freshmen involved as teachers than upperclassmen. This is good, because it means that next year we'll have a larger group of students to draw from."

"Our goal is to serve more students," he said. "We presented material to about 950 students this year. We were limited by driving distance and time."

"We are thinking of expanding. We would like to spread as far over Southern Illinois as possible. This would require more help from the bar associations in the counties where we go."

Lenzini said, "Participation by the 12 attorneys who accompanied the students varied with each attorney. Some participated a lot in the discussion and some just sat and answered questions and clarified issues based on experience."

He said, "We were pleasantly surprised by how close they (the high school students) can come to the legal issue without legal training. Of course, the questions were developed to guide the discussion toward the proper analysis of the issues."

Lenzini said, "It was up to the schools to decide which classes would participate in the discussion."

Harold Emme, a government teacher at Carbondale Community High School, said, "The kids were pleased. The law students did an excellent job. They touched on a lot of things that the kids were interested in. It was very appropriate."

Friends of Morris Library to hold buffet-dance Thursday

Members and guests of the Friends of Morris Library at SIU will hold their annual meeting Thursday amid a half-million books as they mark the 20th anniversary of the University Press.

Surrounded by huge storage and picking racks in the Press's warehouses on McLafferty Road, the Friends will dine, dance, meet the University's new Dean of Library Affairs, Kenneth Peterson, and hear guest speaker Elmer Gertz, author, lawyer and professor at the John Marshall Law School. Gertz is best known as the man who won a parole for Nathan Leopold (convicted in the Leopold-Loeb murder of Bobby Franks in 1924), who won a retrial for Jack Ruby (who shot and killed Lee Harvey Oswald) and who successfully defended Henry Miller's book "Tropic of Cancer" against obscenity charges.

Cost of the buffet-dance is $12.50 per person and includes a one-year membership in the Friends organization. Ticket information may be obtained from Glennie King, secretary of the organization, at 453-2516.

Wildlife lab begins research on underground coal mining

By Chris Moenich
Student Writer

The SIU Cooperative Wildlife Laboratory is researching subsurface coal mining operations in Illinois.

The project, which began July 1, 1975, is attempting to identify and focus on the problems arising from abandoned and current coal mines. The final report is expected in March, 1977.

Conditions to be identified include utilization, reclamation efforts and natural rehabilitation of the mining sight.

William Klimstra, professor of zoology and principle investigator for the project, said, "We are not providing an overall plan for coping with the problems. We will make recommendations but our major concern is establishing a record to be used in improving our environment."

Others, particularly the State Geologic Survey and the Illinois Department of Mines and Minerals, have monitored coal mines for type and location. No one, though, has looked at regional, local and statewide impact on environment. Illinois will rank among three or four other states that have done subsurface mining research. Klimstra said, "I don't know of any research that has taken on the whole state. Most intensive studies on problem areas," he said.

Workers, those who have completed their master's degrees and several SIU graduate students, will collect samples, such as slurry or gob, at the mine sight. Others will analyze samples at the research laboratory.

From the analysis they hope to identify environmental problems from coal debris at the loading sites. Effects on adjacent land and water will be studied as well as aesthetic damage.

Klimstra said, "What we analyze in the lab will determine what characteristics of the wastes are adverse to the plants and animals. We will also evaluate revegetation, and reuse of the land."

The project is now in the sample-analysis phase. Researchers have established the preliminaries such as size, ownership and what type of mine.

The preliminary is written thumbs sketch. For example, in Peoria County, 191 mines were located. Some 30 per cent of these had reverted to natural conditions, 52 per cent were altered for residential or other land-use. Eleven mines, listed in a previous survey, were not located.

Many mines have been forgotten because of different land use; other were small operations and there is insufficient information of their exact locations.

"It will be lucky to find 3,000 to 5,000 abandoned mines," Klimstra said, "but chances are certain that we'll find all of those where problems do exist."

The deep-surface mining research is a follow up to the surface-mining project completed in 1975 by the lab. There have been 2,000 requests for the data concerning surface mining effects, said Klimstra, who hopes researchers will pick up subsurface results and intensify the study.

Klimstra, who has been doing research at SIU for 27 years, said, "We want to find where we are and what to anticipate since coal is a major aspect in providing energy needs."

Nurse-midwives in home is new childbirth trend

By Patricia Lauten
Student Writer

Childbirth, for most women, means agonizing hours spent alone in strange surroundings with bright lights and unfamiliar faces. Today, efforts to relieve the loneliness of childbirth have made it more of a family affair.

Patient teaching, home births and an awareness of the trauma a baby experiences at birth were several new trends discussed by Ann Bradford and Kathy Goodwin, two St. Louis nurse-midwives, in a recent seminar on Childbirth at the Student Center.

Although they call themselves nurse-midwives, Bradford and Goodwin are quick to point out that they are not just midwives but registered nurses, trained to handle complications should they arise.

"We are trained to pick up complications. We are trained on how to handle complications but that is the reason we work as a team with the obstetrician, because we use his expertise to handle the complications," explained Goodwin.

Goodwin and Bradford work out of City Hospital in St. Louis and handle only normal births. They work as a team, usually with other nurses, a nutrition expert and an obstetrician.

Their goal, Goodwin said, is "to handle the normal childbearing family in ways that they will have the best experiences as possible in the childbearing process."

About 90 per cent of pre-natal care is patient teaching Bradford explained. This includes teaching the woman as much as they can about her body so she will understand exactly what is happening during birth.

In addition to helping the patient prepare for the birth, the nurse-midwife answers any questions the family might have and counsels them on exactly what procedures are available and what they can refuse if they so desire.

During the birth, Goodwin and Bradford function as both coach and friend, trying to alleviate the loneliness by helping the patient with her breathing, explaining what is taking place and encouraging her so she does not feel left alone.

Post-natally, Goodwin and Bradford often visit the homes of patients and maintain telephone communication after the birth giving guidelines for exercises and future checkups.

Christian Science teacher to speak at library Thursday

Norman B. Holmes, Christian Science teacher and lecturer from Chicago, will speak at Morris Library Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Holmes' lecture is entitled, "Who Runs Your Life?" and will emphasize that divine guidance and control are "available to everyone."

A former Chaplain in the U.S. Navy during World War II and the Korean Conflict, and a graduate of Northwestern University, Holmes will describe how job and marriage difficulties were solved and tuberculosis healed through spiritual means alone.

In 1946 he entered the healing ministry of Christian Science and in 1958 became a teacher of Christian Science. He is currently on an extensive speaking tour as a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

No one loses at the Special Olympics. Everyone goes home with something.

"The whole spirit of the Special Olympics is that it gives the participants a chance to achieve and receive attention. Everybody who participates gets a participant's ribbon," said Debi Althaus, public relations Olympics.

Althaus said that an important group of attention givers are the "huggers."

"They stand at the finish line of every race and reassure the athletes they've done a good job and that we're proud of them," she said.

Timothy O'Neal, Special Olympics chairman, contended that entertainment is also a big part of Special Olympics.

"We want to make this fun for the athletes so we put as much entertainment into it as we can. That's why we have things like the clowns, the medals ceremonies and the magic show," he said.

O'Neal said that Special Olympics is a year-round physical fitness program. Tournaments, such as floor hockey, basketball and bowling, are held throughout the year. The two-day affair held in the spring is "the big day for these kids."

According to Althaus, the number of participants in the Special Olympics is getting smaller every year. There were 1,200 athletes in 1974. This dropped to 1,000 in 1975 and to 825 this year. This, she said, is because the number of Special Olympics regions in Illinois is being increased.

"This year there were seven regional meets. Next year there could be nine meets. The thought behind this is that the smaller the meet the more services you can provide for the participants," she said.

Radio-TV professor wins preceptor award

Charles T. Lynch, chairman of the Department of Radio-Television at SIU, was awarded the Broadcast Preceptor Award in recognition of his academic leadership and continuing contribution to excellence in broadcasting education at the 26th annual broadcast industry conference in San Francisco April 25.

Lynch, an SIU faculty member for nine years and department chairman since 1974, was nominated for the prestigious award by the SIU-radio-television faculty.

Lynch said, "I was very thrilled to get the award, especially considering the other people who received it with me." Others receiving the same award were Cleveland Amory, Alistair Cooke, Hal Holbrook and Norman Lear.

Marketing professor named best instructor at banquet

Marketing professor R. Clifton Andersen was named the outstanding instructor of the school year at the annual College of Business and Administration awards banquet.

Andersen was chosen outstanding instructor by a poll of graduates and undergraduates.

Also honored at the banquet, held last week in the Student Center, was Kathi A. Basso as the outstanding senior. The award is based on grade point average, leadership ability and contributions to the College and University.

The Society for the Advancement of Management made several presentations. The Dean Rehn Award was presented to Al Kuschel. Gregory S. Hoard, Mark Heffington, Tom Memmesheimer, Donna

Soderquist, Steven Bontz, Sheila Nelson and Bob Comstock received distinguished service awards.

The Sammy award, which is an award for outstanding service by a member who is not an officer, went to Reid Baran.

The Accounting Club's Annual Service Award was presented to Bob Lane.

The recipient of the Joe A. Moore award was Beverly Freeman. This award includes a $200 Scholarship.

Janice Lee received the Leah Reef Scholarship for $100.

The Susie Ogdan Scholarship for the outstanding accounting senior was given to Shirleen Weis. This award is for $100.

The outstanding administrative science major award was presented to Julia M. Cochrane.

Althaus said that the most important competition was the track and field events.

"The reason for this, unfortunately, is that it costs less for the agencies to train participants for track than for swimming and gymnastics," she said. "You don't need expensive equipment for track."

Althaus said that Southern Illinois Special Olympian, Inc. raised about $7,700 from its Tag Day activities, its volleyball tournament and from individual contributors.

Other Special Olympics support comes from people such as Jim Hart, quarterback for the St. Louis Cardinals, Dan Dierdorf, tackle for the St. Louis Cardinals, and Ivory Crockett, co-world record holder in the 100 yard dash.

Dierdorf, who was at the track and field events presenting awards, said he was invited to Special Olympics by Hart.

"I've never participated in Special Olympics before and it's a real experience. It's inspiring to see how hard these kids try," he said.

Crockett, another newcomer to Special Olympics, also awarded medals at the track and field events.

Pat Condon, Special Olympics Illinois chapter director, said the state meet, to be held July 15 and 16 in Chicago, will probably have about 2,200 competitors.

Elderly save with cost-of-living programs

By Kathleen Takemoto
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Eula Burger, a petite, well-dressed, elderly woman, sat quietly with friends at a table in the dining room of the Carbondale Senior Citizens' Center, waiting for lunch to be served.

The rising rates of inflation present no real problems for her, she said, fingering her expensive-looking necklace. Her hair, snowy-white but well-styled, was swept back off her forehead, enhancing the demure features of her fair-complexioned face.

Eula lives comfortably from interest on her bank savings account and from renting a room in the house which she owns. "I don't really do anything to save money, but I don't spend a lot," she said.

Eula said she takes advantage of discounts and special services offered by local merchants, such as the free delivery of medicine offered by one drug store. But she said she spends a lot on groceries. "more than you'd think I would for just one person."

Queen Esther Nelson silently ate lunch by herself in the corner at one of the dining hall tables. Queen, a stocky black woman, wore a plainly-styled dress and no jewelry. "I can buy only two pieces of clothing a year," she said. "I don't have enough clothes now as I'd like to have." she sighed, then smiled nervously.

Queen lives in a housing project on the northeast side of Carbondale, where she pays for all her utilities except water. Her Social Security and Supplementary Security Income checks allow her enough to pay the rent and bills without going into debt.

Queen said she has been coming to the Senior Citizens' lunch program three days a week for two years. She agreed that the lunch program helps her stretch her income a little more since participants are asked only to pay what they can afford for the meal. She is able to travel around the city using the Senior Citizens' Center van service or by catching a ride with her nephew.

These two women illustrate the financial situation of many senior citizens in Carbondale. On one hand, there are elderly persons like Eula who have saved up enough during their pre-retirement period to spend their later years without too much financial strain. On the other hand, there are many elderly people like Queen who live on Social Security and other forms of government assistance which barely cover living expenses.

A survey a few years ago by the Senior Citizens' Center staff revealed that about 77 per cent of the participants in the center's programs had incomes of $3,000 or less, said Carol Johnson, center coordinator.

"Senior citizens are on a fixed income," she said. "Their pension does not increase over the years and any Social Security increase is not equal to the cost of living increase," she said.

The Senior Citizens' Program, which is funded by federal and city money, offers many money-saving services for local elderly. The lunch program, offered every weekday at noon, provides a balanced meal for whatever amount of money each senior citizen can afford. "The suggested donation is 75 cents," Johnson said. "Some give more, some give less." She estimated that each lunch served costs the program about $1.70, although the federal government provides some food commodities without cost to the program.

For homebound people, a "Meals on Wheels" program offers special diets for a minimum of a dollar for three meals each weekday. Costs to each participant are assessed on a sliding scale for each individual.

Johnson said that elderly in need of food are helped out by the "Emergency Pantry" program sponsored by Ananda Marga, although a spokesperson at the Ananda Marga House said that most of the people helped by the program have been persons between the ages of 30 to 50 years.

"Transportation is probably the biggest need a lot of the elderly have," Johnson said. Senior citizens needing transportation anywhere in Carbondale can call "Dial-a-Ride" between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. on weekdays to be picked up by one of two vans operated by the Senior Citizens' Center. Although only donations are presently requested for the van transportation, a fee may have to be set for each ride if the costs of the program increase, Johnson said.

The Senior Citizens' Program staff also works with the Jackson County Housing Authority to help find inexpensive housing for the elderly. The housing authority operates two highrises in Carbondale as housing for senior citizens.

A spokesperson for the housing authority said that the average rent for each highrise unit is $40 a month, including all utilities. Rent rates are based on each individual's income after deductions are made, but there is no set rate for assessing rent, he said.

The maximum income allowed for admission to the highrises is $5,100 a year for an individual and $6,000 a year for two people. There is also an asset limitation of $15,000 per year he said.

The Senior Citizens' Center also offers free services, such as assistance in filling out income tax forms, aid in preparing for written drivers' examinations, a "home helpers" program and an escort service, Johnson said. The center also sponsors the "Calico Cupboard," small store where senior citizens can sell their crafts to supplement their incomes.

Senior citizens can get discounts on eyeglasses through the Lions Club, inexpensive hairdressing and beauty treatments at John A. Logan College and free teeth cleaning at the dental school at SIU.

Retirees lifestyles unfold over breakfast, coffee

By Jim Durbin
Student Writer

"I look forward to everyday. I'm just waiting... I don't know what for, just waiting."

So marks the contrast in attitudes of people facing retirement. On a Saturday morning at the Kitchen Cafe in Murphysboro, many of the area's older retirees gathered for breakfast, or just for coffee and conversation.

"I've only myself to look out for now," Leonard Welstein 68, a retired salesman explained. "I can go as I please and I plan on going." Welstein leaves Tuesday for a 13 day group tour of Canada.

"It's hard to leave," Jim Sharrod, a retired electrician, warned. "When you're old and alone, you don't feel like traveling."

People facing retirement have a wide variety of ways to cope with their new lifestyle.

"I'm not sure how long I will," Sharrod mused.

"Thin with a full head of hair, he looked much younger than his 72 years. "I spent two days at the doctor a couple of weeks ago for a pain he says is imaginary. It's not imaginary. I don't know if I'm going back or not."

"Unlike when you're young," Brian Schomacher, 66, a retired railroad clerk said, "if you break your leg at my age, you are crippled for life. That's when you can't live on your own anymore."

In reference to nursing homes Schomacher said, "I would never want to go there. Never."

The crowd on the counter stools ate slowly. Most enjoy their free refills on coffee. Some sipped slowly on their first and refuse the second.

"I've never been rich and I know I never will be," Sharrod said. "But I'm happy for what I've got."

What Sharrod has is a paid home, a relatively new car, some savings and Social Security.

Many retired people have much less.

"I had the same breakfast here three years ago and it was 60 cents less than I pay now," an unidentified man said. "Prices go up and savings go down. I don't know, it's a damn shame."

What occupies good part of these retired people's days are memories.

"When I was young I listened to my grandfather's stories and I loved them," Welstein said. "My family is gone, but the people my age, they still like to listen. I have friends I talk to and talk to. Do you listen to your grandfather?"

One by one, the men finished their coffee and left by themselves. The conversation seemed finished and they went elsewhere. Some went home, others went shopping. One man sat in front of the Jackson County Courthouse.

"Just being alive becomes awfully important when you're old," Sharrod said.

SIU student's go-go dancing career ends with sour music

By Craig M. Sinclair
Student Writer

The life of a bikini-clad go-go dancer is not one of fame and fortune, says an SIU public relations senior.

Jane (not her real name) threw out the first dance step a little more than two years ago when the Peppermint Lounge inaugurated the go-go concept in Carbondale. But for the 22-year-old New York native who had spent most of her college career as a waitress, her new $10 an hour job turned out to be the same old song and dance.

"I took her because the money sounded real good," she said. "You know, I felt like my time was worth more than $2 an hour."

She was apprehensive prior to her bikini audition before the bar's management. She had few inhibitions that bothered her, but she knew that she couldn't dance too well.

"I got the job, anyway," she said, while a grin spread across the dark features of her face. "They were more interested in a body."

Opening night, curious customers crammed into a dim, smoke-filled room that vibrated with rock music. Onlookers waded across a beer-soaked concrete floor to get into position before the spotlights of a small mirrored stage.

"It was packed that night," she recalled. "Every one of us was nervous. Then five streakers got up on stage and started dancing with me. I think that's the first night really established the place."

Jane got drunk four or five times during her dancing career, but she said the alcohol wasn't necessary for her to do her work. She never felt as though she had to exploit her body and she tried to think of dancing as being a good way to exercise while having fun.

During her performance, customers rarely bothered her. It was only the occasional "dirty old businessman's stare" that would unnerve her. Bouncers held back any of the customers' physical advances and Jane was able to take a break from the action after each 20 minutes of dancing.

Her real annoyance with the job came from whispered customer comments.

"The girls that came in would say to my face how well I danced," she said, "but then they'd go into the bathroom or somewhere and I'd overhear them saying, 'Oh, isn't she disgusting.'"

DeSoto student wins educational television contest

David Gooden, seventh grader from DeSoto Elementary School, will receive an award Thursday night from the Southern Illinois Instructional Television Association (SITA). David will be presented the award at the association's annual meeting at Rend Lake College, for winning the 1976 SITA art contest held earlier this year.

The meeting will include musical entertainment from the Southern Singers, a choreographed choral group from SIU.

The guest speaker of the evening will be Niles F. Calhoun, mathematic coordinator for the Mississippi Authority for Educational Television. Calhoun is responsible for creating several nationally known instructional television series and is one of the country's foremost authorities on metric education.

Also at the meeting awards will be given to two departing members of the SITA Executive Committee: Edward Wisner, superintendent Fairfield City Schools District No. 112 and LeRoy Harris, superintendent, Edwards County Community Unit District No. 1. Gooden's artwork, judged as best from a field of over 500 entries, will be used as the front cover of SITA's in-school schedule booklet for 1976-1977. The booklet lists SITA's televised courses broadcast over Channel 8 in Carbondale and Channel 16 in Olney and is used by over 200 schools from 95 school districts in Southern Illinois.

Bartenders routinely passed on to Jane male customers' inquiries such as "How much is she?"

Her boyfriend nagged her because he thought she exploited herself in front of the hundreds of male customers. And she soon learned that $10 an hour was applicable only to the time she spent on stage.

When Jane was denied a pay increase last fall after working for two years, quitting was no hard decision for her to make.

"You have to learn to take the bullshit," she said. "You just can't let people upset you."

Jane is now a cocktail waitress in a crostown motel bar. She works fully-clothed in an atmosphere of polished hardwoods and mellow music while serving men in business suits who lounge in leather chairs.

Jane now deals face-to-face with her customers, most of whom are from Carbondale's merchant or business sector. She feels as though the regular customers are her friends and that makes her job more enjoyable, but certainly not free from advances.

"Here, I'm waiting on people," she said. "Of course men are going to get, well, some guy the other night told me that my boobs were crooked. Now when people get drunk, well I just told him he was pathetic."

But each new encounter helps to build up her public relations background, she says. This will help her in a clothing or wholesaling career she hopes to have after graduation in May.

1976 Spring Semester Final Examination Schedule

The examination schedule attempts to avoid examination conflicts by providing separate examination periods for Tuesday-Thursday lecture classes. Some questions might develop for which answers can be provided at this time.

1. Classes that meet longer than one hour on Tuesday and Thursday, such as four credit hour classes, should use the examination period established for the earlier of the hours. For example, a class meeting from 11:00 to 12:50 on Tuesday and Thursday would hold its examination at 10:10 a.m. Saturday, May 8. This applies also to non-lecture type courses such as laboratory or seminar type courses. Classes that meet for one of the 75 minute periods on Tuesday-Thursday are assigned a specific examination period. For example, 3:35 to 4:50 Tuesday-Thursday classes have their examination at 3:10 p.m. Thursday, May 13.

2. Classes should plan to hold their final examinations in their regularly scheduled class rooms. The space scheduling section of the Office of Admissions and Records will forward to departments information relative to the location for examinations for those classes that cannot hold their examinations in their regularly scheduled rooms because of a space conflict. This will be done sufficiently in advance of the final examination days to provide sufficient notice for all.

The following points are also pertinent relative to the final examination schedule:

1. A student who finds he has more than three examinations on one day may petition, and a student who has two examinations scheduled at one time should petition his academic dean for approval to take an examination during the make-up examination period on the last day. Provision for such a make-up examination does not mean that a student may decide to miss his scheduled examination time and expect to make it up during this make-up period. This period is to be used only for a student whose petition has been approved by his dean.

2. A student who must miss a final examination may not take an examination before the time scheduled for the class examination. Information relative to the proper grade to be given a student who misses a final examination and is not involved in a situation covered in the preceding paragraph will be found in the mimeographed memorandum forwarded to members of the instructional staff at the time they receive the final grade listing for the recording of grades.

Agencies urge students to apply for federal jobs

Representatives from various federal agencies agree that interested graduates should start applying for jobs with the federal government July 1.

The agencies will receive their budgets at that time, and will know how many employees they can afford, agency representatives said Wednesday at Government Career Information Day.

John Malich, from the U.S. Railroad Retirement Board, said persons interested in working for the federal government should take the Professional and Administrative Career Examination (PACE) and get on the Civil Service Register before applying. "Only people who have taken PACE will be considered for most jobs with the government," he said.

The next PACE exam will be given in October, Malich said.

The Career Day, sponsored by the Career Planning and Placement Center (CPCC), brought representatives from 11 federal agencies to the SIU campus. Most agencies were not here to recruit, but to give information on opportunities in their department.

Civilian Personnel Office of the Chanute Technical Training Center has 22 openings for technical instructors, said the Center's representative Leonard M. DeMuth. However, no one will be hired until the Center receives its budget allocations, he said.

The representative from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), Mary A. Froberg, said the Social Security Administration is the only HEW agency that is doing a considerable amount of hiring. "Social Rehabilitation is hiring a limited number of people in the social sciences, but other than that, there isn't much open right now," she said.

Dept. of Labor hiring graduates

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration of the Department of Labor will be hiring qualified physical science, natural science and engineering graduates for positions as industrial hygienists. Numerous positions will be opening in the Midwest beginning this summer.

The work of an industrial hygienist involves the study and control of occupational disease and environmental factors affecting employee health. Fifteen semester hours of chemistry are required.

Interested persons should contact Inge Rader at the Career Planning and Placement Center, Woody Hall A-302, for applications and further information.

The Social Security Administration may be hiring about 50 people out of the Chicago office after July 1, said John Nathan from the Social Security office in East St. Louis. He said applicants should be mobile so they can go where the jobs are.

Tim McCarthy, representative from the Peace Corps, said many jobs are open in the Peace Corps. Dedicated people with "skills to teach underdeveloped countries how to advance themselves" are needed, he said.

Lee Chenoweth, CPCC placement consultant in charge of government opportunities, said the U.S. Civil Service Commission has reported that federal hiring will be down this year.

Trends for 1975-76 seem to indicate that federal hiring of liberal arts graduates will not be as high as 1974-75, Chenoweth said. Federal hiring of business and accounting people is down 15 per cent, he also said.

LONG TABLE

UPLAND, Calif. (AP)—A mile-long picnic table on Euclid Avenue Parkway between Upland and Ontario, Calif., is probably the longest in the world.

Residents of the two cities gather there every 4th of July for their "All States Picnic."

About 2,000 pepper trees line the picturesque parkway.

Starter gets meet on track

By Rick Korch
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Except for the participants and SIU track coach Lew Hartzog, Russ Deason played the next biggest role at last weekend's Illinois Intercollegiate Track and Field Championship held at McAndrew Stadium.

Who's Russ Deason? Deason was the starter for the meet. He is the man who wore the red sleeve on his left arm and who was constantly running back and forth getting the races started on time.

He is also the man the crowd heckles when he calls a false start on a runner.

"My primary job is to see that everyone gets a fair start," Deason said. "And the competitors have to know that I'll see an even start."

The track meet was held under NCAA rules which state that a runner is disqualified from a race after one false start. Deason didn't have to call many false starts at the meet.

One that he did call was against Saluki sprinter Joe Laws in the Friday's trials of the 100-meter

Softballers lose to Eastern but gain invitation to playoffs

Despite dumping two games to Eastern Illinois on the road, this weekend was good for the softball team, as it received an invitation to the state tournament.

SIU received the invitation Sunday which will be held at Illinois State University, Thursday through Saturday.

However, SIU found out the tournament will be no cakewalk as the Salukis lost to Eastern Saturday, 7-2 and 3-1. Eastern is the number two ranked team in the state tourney. SIU is seeded fifth.

A major part of Eastern's success rides on the arm of Debbie Davis. She was the winning pitcher in both games Saturday, striking out 10 in the first game and six in the second.

SIU also went with the same hurler for both games and Helen Meyer was tabbed the loser both times. Meyer struck out two all day.

The two losses gives Meyer a 3-3 record and the Salukis 6-5 slate.

Away from the mound, Davis fished a wicked bat. In the first game, she hit a home run over right fielder Pam Towry's head with nobody on base in the second inning. The homer was really need as the Salukis were out hit 5 to 4. SIU also committed three errors.

Single runs in the fifth and sixth frames provided the winning margin for Eastern in the second game. SIU only made one error, but again the hitting attack was limited

Three students get brown belt

Three SIU students were promoted to brown belt in judo in their PEM 330 class.

Bill Ahrbeck, Darrell Jordan and Charles Stephens are now San Kyu, which is the third degree brown belt. They were promoted by C.C. Franklin, who is Ni Don (black belt).

The three students were promoted in Kodokan Judo, which is the Japanese form of judo, and also the first form of judo.

dash. Laws could be seen jumping up and down protesting the call, but it didn't stop Deason from doing his job. The shorter races are the hardest for Deason to call since the sprinters need every advantage to give them that extra tenth of a second.

"I don't watch them closer," Deason said. "But I am more conscientious."

Other than starting the race, Deason has to make sure the races are started on time.

"The track meet should start on schedule and I don't want time killed (in between races)."

"It's more interesting to the spectators when the races start on time."

"The clerk (SIU assistant coach Jan Johnson) also helps start the races on time," he said.

But most important the athletes need to know that their races will start on time, Deason said.

Deason, now retired, graduated from SIU in 1934. He was born and raised in the Carbondale area and was a hurdler on the Saluki track team (back then they were the Maroons) in 1934.

After SIU, he was a track coach at high schools in Villier, Nokomis, and Decatur, Ill. In 1945, he went to La Grange, where he was track coach for Lyons Township High School for 29 years. During those years, his teams won five state track championships.

"I keep my interest in track by starting meets," he said.

Deason starts between eight and 10 meets each year, including college and major high school meets. In the past, he has assisted in Big Ten and NCAA meets, and later this month he will start the Big Ten championship.

"It's quite an honor to start the Big Ten meet," he said.

Hartzog asked him to start the Illinois Intercollegiate track meet after he had seen Deason start several other meets.

During Friday's trials, Hartzog was overheard saying "I can't believe how screwed up everything

"It's a tough assignment on the part of the home school coach to run a meet of this caliber, but Coach (Hartzog) did a good job."

Deason has been on the track scene for almost 50 years, and he said that "The athletes are better than they were 20 years ago."

"Track gets better as time goes on. The shoes, poles and tracks are all better.

"And the athletes work harder than I would ever have worked a boy."

As for the track meet, Deason said, "I was treated well and the hospitality was great. I enjoyed it."

Tigers stop Salukis twice but baseballers beat Murray

By Dave Wiecek
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

It's amazing what a victory and a subsequent day off can do to a baseball team.

The Salukis, coming off a double loss to Missouri Saturday, beat the Murray State Racers 5-1 Sunday in Kentucky. Tim Verpaale went the distance to earn his eighth victory of the year against one loss. SIU is now 34-12-1.

With Coaches Itchy Jones and Mark Newman off on recruiting missions, the team was given Monday off. The players were spread far and wide Monday afternoon and most were unreachable for any comment on recent baseball activity.

However, senior centerfielder John Hoscheidt was at home and the veteran had a few comments on the weekend's action.

"The most important thing about Sunday's game was Verpaale's pitching," Hoscheidt said. "They got one unearned run off him in the last inning. Tim went the full nine innings and that's the first time anyone has done that in a while."

Most of the Saluki run production came from Frank Hunsaker, the senior catcher. He smashed a two-run homer in the fourth inning and added a base hit that drove in another run. On the hit, a Murray fielder committed an error and another SIU run scored.

Thirdbaseman Rick Murray also drove in a run.

SIU beat Missouri twice Friday, but lost twice to the Tigers Saturday.

"We thought about it after the losses," Hoscheidt said. "The team was really down, but it was good to see the team the way it was on Sunday."

"We played really relaxed. I think we played Sunday like we know we can. Murray was as good or better than Missouri and they beat Missouri twice.

"We had that 'to hell with it all' attitude and just went out and had fun and played hard."

"We lost more games at home this year than the other years put together."

"We played some better teams this year, but that's no excuse. We should have taken Missouri in all four games."

"I think if we beat Eastern (Illinois) and Cincinnati this weekend we'll be in good shape."

By this time of the year, the Salukis are usually in championship form. However, injuries and sloppy field work has put the team slightly behind schedule.

"I don't think we have reached our potential yet," Hoscheidt said. "Guys have been hurt, including our pitchers, but hopefully we're ready to go now."

"I don't think any one position has hurt us. We've had trouble in the infield and we've had trouble at the plate sometimes."

"I think we have to improve our overall defense and pitching and play overall heads-up ball."

Saturday's SIU doubleheader loss was the second twinbill setback of the year in Abe Martin Field for the Salukis. Earlier they were beaten 2-1 and 6-5 by the Louisville Cardinals.

SIU was never in a good position to win the opener Saturday. After loading the bases with no outs in the second inning, three Salukis were struck out by Tiger pitcher Pete Woods (8-0).

Missouri went on to score eight runs with the help of six SIU errors, four by shortstop Jerry DeSimone. Wayne Rueger hit a solo homer in the sixth to make the score 8-1, but the situation still looked hopeless. However, in the seventh the Salukis realized they were supposed to be playing baseball and pushed six runs across the plate behind six hits, including doubles by Hunsaker and John Hoscheidt.

The Tigers had to hold their breath for a few moments when the lefthanded-swinging Chuck Curry came to bat with two out, one man on base and the score 8-7 in the bottom of the seventh. Curry swatted a high fly to the opposite field that had the Saluki bench pouring out on the field in anticipation of a game-winning homerun.

The fly, however, was just that. It was caught by the leftfielder just short of the warning track.

Jim Kessler, who came on in relief of Kevin Waldrop, took the loss.

In the second game, Saluki fortunes looked better. Their hot-hitting bats remained red hot as SIU scored six runs in the first inning. It looked like plenty of breathing room for Saluki hurler Rob Simond.

Missouri never gave up the whole weekend, even after two tough defeats to SIU Friday (the Tigers, at one point or another led all four games). The Tigers picked up runs in the first, second and third innings. The shocker came in the sixth inning when Missouri put six runs on the scoreboard with the help of five hits.

After SIU had scored its six runs in the first inning, Tiger pitcher Jeff Cornell limited the hard-hitting Salukis to just two hits.

The Saluki home season definitely ended on a sour note. Their record is now 34-12-1 after Sunday's win. Two games remain with Eastern Illinois Wednesday and three in Cincinnati this weekend. Those five games have to be considered "must" games if the Salukis are to keep their hopes alive for a bid to the District 5 Playoffs. Bids for the tournament will be made no later than May 17, with play to start May 21.

SIU also has four games with Eastern Michigan remaining on its schedule, but it is not certain yet whether the games will be played.

If both teams should win their districts (Eastern Michigan is in District 4) the games may still be played so each team can stay tuned for the World Series which gets under way June 11.

Kicker title won

By Lee Feinsow
Student Writer

Four second-half goals by forwar Ahmed Abbas led the International Club "A" (ICA) to a 5-2 victory over its counterparts International Club "B" in the championship game of the men's intramural indoor mini-soccer playoffs.

ICA was down 1-0 after the end of the first half. Kavouth Kuy missed a chance to score on a breakaway, but scored on the next play as he converted a rebound into the half's only tally.

ICA came out firing in the second half, and Abbas scored his first goal just 2:30 gone, drilling from 20 feet out on the right side.

Ashin Razani scored for ICB just three minutes later, to gain a 2-1 lead, but that was the last time any offense power was displayed.

Abbas took a pass from defenseman Ray Leki to make it 2-2 at 6:50, and one minute later, dribbled through the middle, went to his right and powered one home for his third goal. Abraham Adda scored for ICA to make it 4-2, and then Abbas kicked a goal from mid-court to wrap up the scoring.

Salukis don state track crown again

By Mark Kazlowski
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

The SIU track team reaffirmed its position as the state's best outdoor squad Saturday with its sixth consecutive victory in the Illinois Intercollegiate Outdoor Track and Field Championship at McAndrew Stadium.

The Salukis literally sprinted to the victory with eight of the 21 championships and 185 points. The University of Illinois was second in championships and points with five firsts and 121 points.

Eastern Illinois led the field of also-rans with 85 points. Western Illinois was fourth, Northern Illinois fifth, Illinois State sixth and Chicago Circle seventh. Wheaton, St. Francis, North Central, Loyola and SIU Edwardsville rounded out the 12-team field.

Nine meet records were set in the ninth annual state meet. Five were set on Friday when the weather was clear and warm.

Saturday the meet opened with a slight drizzle and overcast skies. Although four more records were set, the weather seemed to have an adverse effect on some of the athletes.

Saluki Bob Roggy who shattered his state meet record of 226.9 in the javelin with a throw of 240.3 mentioned the weather as causing a psychological problem.

"I just can't get up after it rains," he said. "It was just so down after it rained at the last four meets (Florida Relays, Kansas Relays, Drake Relays and Illinois Intercollegiate).

"It changes my whole style. I couldn't get my steps down."

SIU Coach Lew Hartzog agreed Saturday's performances were not up to par with Friday's when the SIU 440-yard relay team and SIU 100-meter dasher Mike Kee broke meet records.

The 440-yard relay team of Joe Laws, Earl Bigelow, Mike Kee and Mike Monroe ran like a well-oiled machine in the sunny preliminaries Friday for the first time this season. Saturday in the drizzle the crew looked rusty. Lubbed two key passes and was second to Western Illinois.

Kee, the freshman from Boston, won the 100 in 10.24 in the preliminaries and semifinals Friday. Saturday he won the race in 10.29. He is unbeaten this season in university 100-meter and 100-yard competition.

"I did not feel we were awfully sharp today," Hartzog said Saturday after the meet. "We were not like we were yesterday."

Still he felt well enough about the team to say, "I really think this is the strongest overall team we've ever had."

After the fourth event Saturday, the 400-meter dash, there was little doubt except in the Illini camp about the outcome of the meet.

SIU scored 18 points when Earl Bigelow, Scott Dorsey and Ed Wardzala finished 2-3-4 behind Eastern's Ed Hatch. That put the Salukis 15 points up on Illinois.

The strong 100-meter dash field had the crowd on its feet for the finals. Saluki Mike Monroe was supposed to give Kee a run for his money but pulled up after about 50 yards with a pulled muscle.

"I wasn't as psyched as I have been for this race, but when I saw Mike Monroe pull up, I knew I had to come through for the team," Kee said. "I really pushed hard for the win."

Kee, the only double winner in the meet, came back three events later to capture a first in the 200-meter dash with a time of 21.05. He edged teammate Joe Laws who was second in 21.3. Monroe started the race with a bandaged leg but did not attempt to finish.

In the 800-meter dash, SIU freshman Mike Bisase, defending champion in the state meet 880-yard dash indoors, sustained his first setback of the outdoor season.

Bisase led going into the final turn but Charlie White of Illinois caught him at the head of the straight for the win. White said the exciting finish is his type of race.

"A lot of them like to take it out fast, but I like to catch them down the stretch and I did today," White said.

Illini distance star Craig Virgin ran only the 5,000-meter race after straining a hamstring in practice Wednesday. He won the race easily in 13:53.22, which was expected. But what was not expected was SIU's Mike Sawyer taking second place. Another Saluki, Jack St. John, was fourth.

Hartzog said Sawyer's finish in the 5,000 was a big and pleasant surprise. "We were beginning to hurt for distance runners," Hartzog said.

The Salukis capped off the running events with the championship in the mile relay.

Earl Bigelow, running the anchor leg for SIU, passed Tim Smith of Illinois who was leading at the halfway mark of the leg.

"I started to make my move and (Eastern's Jerry) Holloway came with me," Bigelow said. "I could hear his footsteps. I was running scared."

Holloway, the winner of the 110-meter high hurdles, could not catch the streaking Bigelow who came in at 3:11.09. Western was second with a time of 3:11.9.

Saluki senior triple jumper Philip Robins showed why he is the top collegiate triple jumper in the country. He won his specialty easily with a leap of 54.9. Charles Hollis of Eastern was second with a jump of 50-10 3/4.

Robins said later he was disappointed with his meet and stadium record performance. He had set a goal of 56 feet coming into his final state meet.

Kim Taylor and George Haley were the other SIU champions Saturday. Taylor captured the high jump with a leap of 6-10. Haley won the 400-meter intermediate hurdles with a time of 52.62. He was third in the 110-meter high hurdles.

For the first time this year, SIU's Gary Hunter lost a head-to-head battle with Illinois' Doug Laz in the pole vault. Every other time the pair has met in meet finals, Hunter has won. Saturday, Laz won on misses. Both cleared 15-6.

Golfers claim SIU-E tourney title

The SIU men's golf team won their first tournament in a year as they took first place in the eight-team Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville Spring Invitational held last weekend.

"The boys played great golf both days," Coach Lynn Holder said, "and the team is one of the best in the Midwest."

The Salukis had an 18-hole average of 73.25 for the two-day contest and ended with 586, seven strokes ahead of second place Western Illinois. Bradley was third with 616.

Keith Swindell of SIU-E was the tournament medalist with his 36-hole total of 144. He was followed by four Salukis: Jerry Tucker, with rounds of 76 and 70 for a 36-hole total of 146; Larry Giacone, 74 and 72 for 146; Bob Tierney, 72 and 75 for 147; and Jim Brown, 71 and 77 for 148. Mark Durham was the non-qualifying Saluki with his still-respectable scores of 75 and 77 for 152.

"You win championships with those kinds of scores," Holder said. "The boys played marvelously."

The Salukis' Friday score of 292 was played at Sunset Hill Country Club in Edwardsville and Saturday's score of 294 was shot at Belk Country Club in Woodriver.

"There was no way that anyone could beat us with those scores," Holder said. "They're indicative of how the team can play golf."

The first place finish was the first win for the Saluki golfers since the Mid-South Classic last spring at Fort Campbell, Ky. Two years ago, the squad won the same SIU-E tournament that they won last weekend. In their most recent match a week ago, they finished third at the Drake tournament in a field of about 15 teams.

The linksmen now have two weeks off before they travel to Amarillo, Tex. for the Missouri Valley championship May 20-22. The MVC teams will play 36 holes at both Tasaco Country Club and Amarillo Country Club, the home of conference rival West Texas State.

"The team has already beaten six of the Missouri Valley teams (in tournaments)," Holder said.

The Salukis are in District Five for the NCAA meet, which will send four teams and four extra players to the national meet. Holder isn't sure whether the second place finisher in the MVC championship will go to the NCAA meet or not.

SIU signs cager Abrams

Coach Paul Lambert ended his basketball recruiting season Saturday by signing Wayne Abrams to a national letter of intent.

Abrams, a 6-foot-5 guard who is the younger brother of Saluki forward Corky Abrams, was called "the best all-around high school basketball player in Georgia" by the Atlanta Constitution. He averaged 22.5 points, 10 rebounds and 6.3 assists per game and earned all-state and All-America honors while leading Atlanta Douglas High to a 26-4 record and runner-up in the Georgia class AAA state tournament this year. Abrams hit 55 per cent from the field and 84 per cent from the foul line.

"The signing of Wayne is the culmination of a great recruiting year for us," Lambert said. He has already signed 6-foot-11 Alford Grant of Cedartown; 6-foot-6 Barry Smith of Eldorado and 6-2 Mike Vosbein of West Frankfort.

"We have signed four excellent players who can fit in well with our present squad," Lambert said. "The signing of Wayne gives us tremendous versatility."

"Wayne is one of the top big guards in the country. He plays with enthusiasm and intelligence to go with his overwhelming physical talent. His team play is outstanding."

Abrams, a half-miler in track, is a member of the National Honor Society with a 3.60 (of 4.00) grade point average. He plans to major in business and eventually attend law school.

He was a three-year starter at Douglas, which compiled a 75-15 record during those seasons.
