50 civil service workers stage walkout

Workers want benefits during layoffs

By John Racine
Staff Writer

Civil service workers from both East Campus cafeteria staged a 20-minute walkout at noon Tuesday to tell administrators they want a stronger voice in upcoming contract talks.

Sharon Broadnax, president of Local 878 of the American Federation of State County and Municipal Employees, charged that in recent years the University has turned a deaf ear on the needs of its 125 food service employees.

About 50 workers walked off their jobs in Grinnell and Trueblood halls, most still dressed in their white uniforms, and gathered outside Trueblood to discuss what they want out of the upcoming talks.

Sam Rinella, director of University Housing, said that discussions of the contract should be done at the negotiating table and not in the parking lot. He said that the union can discuss any issue with the bargaining committee.

"That is the poorest way to handle the situation," Rinella said of the walkout.

Among the concerns listed by the workers was the loss of unemployment benefits during the often long periods they are laid off.

Broadnax said that the workers are laid off during holiday breaks and for three months in the summer — from May 14 to Aug. 20 — but are not eligible to receive unemployment.

Rinella said that the state, along with the federal government, changed its policy concerning unemployment compensation last summer.

"The University had nothing to do with it," he said.

Workers are now being laid off with no guaranteed source of income.

"We are not asking to be laid off, they are laying us off. We can hardly get overtime anymore," Broadnax said.

She said that the University has not been able to guarantee jobs for workers displaced in the summer as it is supposed to. Rinella said that all 59 workers who have applied for janitorial positions have been hired for this summer.

Kathy Calbert, secretary of Local 878, was one of the more vocal people during the walkout. She said that last summer the University hired others to do grounds work instead of displaced Food Service workers.

"They laid us off last summer and didn't try to find any work for us," she said.

The union would give no solid indication of whether there might be a longer walkout before the school year ends. One leader said it was possible,

Graduate Council to address new engineering degree

By John Stewart
Staff Writer

A resolution to approve a proposed doctoral program in engineering sciences will be considered by the Graduate Council on Thursday.

This will be the third attempt to establish a doctoral program in engineering at SIU-C, according to Echol Cook, assistant dean of the College of Engineering and Technology. The two previous attempts, in 1970 and 1975-76 failed to gain Illinois Board of Higher Education approval because SIU-C's faculty had not published enough and because "the timing just wasn't right," he said.

The Graduate Council's new programs committee has recommended passage of the proposal, committee Chairman James Evers said.

But Cook said that this time he's confident the proposal will pass the Graduate Council and ultimately the IBHE. A 66-page program proposal provides that doctoral students begin at SIU-C in August, 1986. The proposal requests $436,000 in state funding over four years, and based on current projections no institutional money would have to be used to begin or support the program, according to John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs. Guyon said the state has granted SIU-C's requests for new equipment for its undergraduate program for the last two years, and he expects that money to continue.

Guyon said SIU-C received about $300,000 in state funding in 1983 for new engineering equipment to support undergraduate engineering programs, which would be used by the doctoral program. The engineering sciences program proposal asks only for money to pay for administration, faculty, graduate assistants, civil service and student employees.

The program would begin with 10 students in its first year and grow to 30 students by its fourth year, the proposal states. Between 50 to 65 percent of the doctoral students could be expected to be foreign nationals, Cook said. The nationwide average for foreign doctoral students in engineering is 40 percent, the proposal said.

Cook said 65 percent of SIU-C's engineering master's students are foreign, because there just aren't enough

Union organizer solicits faculty to join federation

By John Stewart
Staff Writer

SIU-C may have a collective bargaining representation election as early as next fall, says an Illinois Federation of Teachers union organizer who has begun recruiting members on campus.

Victor Deboer, a field service director for the IFT, said Tuesday that he has recruited about 60 faculty members in the last few weeks for the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers, the local IFT affiliate. That brings the CFUT's membership up to about 160, or about half the minimum needed to call for an election to bring collective bargaining to SIU-C, he said.

"If IFT had 10 field service representatives at SIU-C we'd have 400 members by now," Deboer said. He said he's talked to nearly 200 faculty members already, and that his reception has been good. He said about 70 of the faculty members with whom he's talked were still "digesting" the information he's provided them, but he expects most of them to ultimately sign cards calling for an election.

The IFT has a proven track record, Deboer said, and this year it successfully won a higher state appropriation for the Board of Governors schools from the legislature than what Gov. Thompson had recommended. The IFT is the exclusive bargaining agent for the BOG schools: Eastern Illinois, Northeastern, Chicago State and Governor's State

Polish May Day parade turns into protest

WARSAW — Riot police swinging truncheons charged into a May Day parade in Gdansk on Tuesday after Lech Walesa and hundreds of supporters infiltrated the official procession, unfurled Solidarity banners and flashed victory signs at surprised Communist officials.

In at least five other Polish cities, police used water cannon, clubs and tear gas to break up Solidarity demonstrations.

Western correspondents witnessed several dozen arrests in Warsaw, Gdansk, Wroclaw, Szczecin, Nowa Ruda and Czestochowa. There were no immediate reports of injuries.

In Gdansk, where the banned Solidarity labor union was founded by Walesa, he penetrated the official parade and got to within three yards of the reviewing stand. He then thrust up his hand in Solidarity's "V-for-victory" sign while supporters unfurled Solidarity banners and chanted union slogans under the noses of Communist officials.

Western reporters who witnessed the protest said surprised officials on the reviewing stand abruptly stopped talking among themselves when they spotted Walesa. One senior police officer on hand turned and barked orders to "ZOMO" riot troopers, who then charged the Solidarity group three times, the witnesses said.

Walesa and his supporters were chased out of the parade. He disappeared into the crowd and returned to his apartment.

but another said the workers did not want to hurt the students they help feed.

Calbert protested a proposal to cut one cook from the staffs at Grinnell, Trueblood and Lentz Halls. Rinella said that during talks the day and morning before the walkout it was agreed that those cuts would not be made. Calbert agreed with the proposal to cut the work week from 40 to 37.5 hours and to give an across-the-board pay increase of 6.66 percent, which would allow workers to earn as much in the new workweek as they presently do. "Sure that's some money but we want more," Broadnax said. "We haven't had a substantial pay raise in a few years." The prevailing attitude of the workers toward University administrators was "they don't care." "We put out effort and they give us little to nothing," Broadnax said.

American students interested in obtaining graduate degrees in engineering.

"Not when bachelor's degree graduates start at $27,000 a year," he said, and that's why over half of the students expected to enroll in the doctoral program will be foreign. He said not many American students would go to SIU-C for remuneration of tuition and $600 a month when private industry is paying high salaries, though engineering doctoral students graduating this year can expect to find jobs starting at $45,000 a year.

The objectives of the engineering program were to provide engineers with strong backgrounds in science and math that could adapt to and attract companies in emerging technologies, to expand research opportunities in new materials development, energy processes and coal sciences and to enhance the economic development of the state.

The engineering program allows students to choose between four different specializations: solid-liquid separation, coal utilization, coal strata and fossil fuel extraction.

Universities, which voluntarily won collective bargaining from the BCG seven years ago.

Deboer said the IFT had a successful card drive among Board of Regents schools this year. More than 50 percent of BOR faculty signed about 1,200 cards calling for a representation election. He said the election may take place as soon as this summer and could possibly win the faculties of Illinois State, Sangamon State and Northern Illinois Universities a chance to bargain this fiscal year.

Illinois law requires that 30 percent of a unit must file to call for an election, which would take a minimum of about 300 faculty at SIU-C, Deboer said. He said he hopes to get at least 500, though 800 would be ideal.

Deboer said faculty members should consider accepting bargaining because it would at least ensure keeping what they have now and give them the right to negotiate on issues they see as important.

"The IFT believes in local autonomy, and we don't tell faculty what we think they should want," he said. The IFT does, however, advocate bi-level bargaining, he said. This allows entire university systems to bargain with added weight on issues of joint importance.

With bi-level bargaining the SIU system faculty, including those in Carbondale, Edwardsville, and possibly Alton (Dental School) and Springfield (Medical School) could band together on issues of mutual interest. But local issues could be handled at each campus, and IFT might even get involved in bargaining for individual academic departments, he said.

Deboer, a former Villa Park high school teacher, said the faculty at SIU-C were underpaid, and that faculty pay would be a key concentration should bargaining take place. He said the Illinois law, which allows for bargaining on wages, hours and terms and conditions of employment, was fair, though it is vague on whether academic department chairmen may be included in the bargaining unit.

News Roundup

House OKs education funding bill

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A proposed constitutional amendment that would require the state to pay half the cost of public education was approved Tuesday by the Illinois House. But opponents argued that approval of the amendment could require the state to come up with as much as $1 billion a year in new funds.

Representatives rejected proposed amendments to limit the right to a jury trial and to help counties recoup the cost of collecting taxes for local government units.

'Crooked jurist' defends sting tactic

MARION (AP) — Brocton Lockwood, who posed as a crooked jurist during an undercover investigation of corruption in the Cook County court system, said Tuesday that a congressional panel's report criticizing such investigations "sounds like rubbish."

In a report released Tuesday, a House subcommittee said the FBI's increasing use of undercover and sting operations threatens constitutional rights and injures people and institutions "on the merest of suspicions."

Jackson asked to snub supporter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Civil Rights Commission called upon the Rev. Jesse Jackson Tuesday to repudiate the support of Black Muslim leader Louis Farrakhan, described by two members of the panel as a preacher of hate.

The commission agreed to send Jackson a memo saying that unless the candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination disavows Farrakhan's support the commission should discuss the issue at its next monthly meeting.

At the same time, the memo said, the commission should look into "whether other presidential candidates are unequivocal in disassociating themselves from individuals who espouse racism, bigotry, intimidation or threats of violence or those who accept the open support of those who do."

Police: Shots fired from inside embassy

LONDON (AP) — Police say they found pistols and ammunition in the former Libyan Embassy on Tuesday along with "positive proof" that the shots that set off the 11-day embassy siege came from inside the building.

The assertion came on the second day of what police said was "an inch-by-inch" search of the 70-room embassy.

"We have found evidence that totally refutes Col. (Moammar) Khadafy's version of events, which is that British armed police fired on the building," said Commander William Hucklesby, chief of Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist branch.

"We have positive proof that shots have been fired from a first-floor (second floor in American usage) window," he told reporters.

In Tripoli, the Libyan capital, authorities conducted a retaliatory search of the British Embassy for a second day. No details were available on that search.

Britain severed diplomatic relations with Libya after shots were fired at Libyan exiles demonstrating outside the embassy April 17, killing 25-year-old policewoman Yvonne Fletcher and wounding 11 demonstrators. Thirty Libyans left the embassy Friday and were expelled under cover of diplomatic immunity. Only 19 actually were diplomats.

In the House of Commons, Home Secretary Leon Brittan said police had narrowed the number of suspects in the killing of Miss Fletcher to one of two Libyans who were expelled Friday. Both had diplomatic immunity, he said.

Brittan and Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe announced various measures planned against Libya, including an "urgent review" of all arms contracts with the country and limits on the amount of time Libyans can spend in Britain.

Hucklesby said a shellcase from a 9mm submachine gun was found by a window on the second floor of the building where witnesses say they saw an automatic weapon being fired April 17. He said firearm residue was found on the carpet nearby.

Police have said Miss Fletcher was shot by an AK-47 submachine gun, which uses a 7.62 mm bullet, and there was no mention of any such weapon in the list of firearms police said they found Tuesday.

Police declined to say whether the weapons found in the embassy had been concealed. But a detective who spoke on the condition of anonymity said, "There is probably a lot more to come. The guns were found in a number of different places, and it looked as if the people inside had paricked when they left."

Reagan says trip promotes understanding of U.S.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — President Reagan said Tuesday that his six-day visit to China brought U.S. relations with Peking to "a new level and a new stage" while giving the communist leaders "an understanding and a confidence in us."

Reagan, for years a sharp critic of communism, said that he was able to establish "a personal rapport" with the Marxist leaders of the world's most populous nation.

The president, clearly upbeat about his first extended visit to a communist nation, looked back on his journey during an interview with five reporters traveling aboard Air Force One on the way home to the United States from Shanghai.

There were no evident problems, or diplomatic embarrassments, as the president conferred with Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang, President Li Xiannian, and China's paramount leader, Deng Xiaoping, and traveled from Peking to Xian to Shanghai.

A flap over the refusal of the government-run television network to carry in full one of his speeches, from which his comments about democracy, God, and the Soviet Union were deleted, did not appear to trouble him.

Standing in the aisles of the jet, he said the Chinese may not have had confidence in him "if I had backed down and not said things that I believed."

"I feel that was their right to do, whatever their reasons mahave been, just as it was my right to say what I wanted to say when I was over there," he said.

After the first speech was censored, Reagan made similar comments in an interview with Chinese television reporters, and was again edited.

And in a speech Monday to university students in Shanghai, he again discussed American democracy. His remarks were broadcast in full on regional television, but no

Chinese translation was provided.

"I felt that if we're to get along, they've got to understand us, and what we believe. That's why I did that," he said.

The president was spending the day in Alaska awaiting an airport meeting Wednesday with Pope John Paul II, before returning in the evening to the White House. The pope will stop here on his way from Rome to a visit to South Korea.

Paycheck limit hurts student workers

Letters

Here it is again — a fine example of the Woody Hall shuffle. However, this sounds more like a Catch-22. Let me try to explain it in layman's terms.

When I filled out my financial aid papers last year, I, like many other people, checked "yes" to the question asking if I wanted to be considered for the College Work Study Program. I did this for two reasons: 1) I thought that was the only way I could obtain a job on campus as a student worker, and 2) I thought I would be able to get more financial aid this way. Little did I know the headaches I would be causing myself.

Approximately eight weeks into this semester, I received a letter saying that I was starting to approach my maximum work award under the CWS Program. When I went up to the financial aid office to try to get an additional work award, the financial aid officer said there was nothing they could do for me. All that could be done, since my loan was for $2500, was to let me earn approximately $160 more due to the charges that were taken out of my loan check. This would give me about one more pay period to work.

Now for the first Catch-22. Since not everyone who signed up for CWS obtained a campus job, there was an excess of funds in the CWS account. If these funds are not used, they go back to the government. But those of us who were approaching our CWS award could not have access to these unused funds. Still no chance for me to get any additional work award.

Now for the second Catch-22. I had what I thought was a brilliant idea; why not try to get taken off the CWS program?

Again another trip to the financial aid office. But to no avail. Once a student worker is paid out of the CWS account, he/she cannot be paid out of another account. Why this is beyond my comprehension.

Actually, I feel pretty lucky. I am going to graduate in May. Fortunately, I will make it through until then, but I am sure that there are people who might not be able to pull through.

Also, I do not want to sound ungrateful. I think that the financial aid program is a very beneficial program. I would not have been able to get through four years of college without it. But the additional money that I am being denied I do not consider financial aid. I am working for this money. It is not just being given to me. I am earning it. — Kevin Rollins, Senior, Administration of Justice

Workfare won't work without restructuring

WORKFARE IS GETTING a great deal of attention in Southern Illinois. The Public Aid Department in Springfield is calling workfare, or the Illinois Work Experience Program, as its officially called, a partial remedy to the state's unemployment problem. Opponents of workfare are calling it slave labor and say that it will compound the unemployment problem.

The $1 million program, which is being tested statewide in 11 counties after a successful brief run in Cook County, requires aid recipients to work for their benefits. Administrators say workfare will give public aid recipients work skills, training and a possible reference for employment. Presently, recipients are working in jobs created by non-profit organizations that give them none of those. Those who won't cooperate don't receive their monthly welfare checks.

PUTTING THE NEEDY to work in public service jobs has its benefits but the Illinois program has yet to realize them.

The current workfare setup has the needy, usually women or minorities, entering a cycle of 90-day make-work jobs followed by "evaluation" and 90 days more work.

The program neither utilizes its participants' skills nor gives them new, marketable ones. Workfare, as it is structured in Illinois, is work as punishment. The needy do not "earn" their benefits, but are forced to jump through a hoop, or whatever meaningless pastimes IWEF finds for them to perform to prove how badly they want to survive.

THE UNEMPLOYED SHOULD work for their keep. But in an affluent society, the destitute shouldn't be forced to suffer indignity to justify their barest subsistence. The state should restructure workfare to establish a public works program that could give the needy training and support and accomplish much-needed public works in return for its benefit dollars.

The state would see its welfare rolls decrease in return for needed public service. And the unemployed could do something for themselves, until they are no longer unemployed and able to make it on their own.

Ad in DE was insult to secretaries

An ad in the April 24 issue of the Daily Egyptian greatly offended me. I found out later that many others — some not even secretaries — were also surprised and disgusted by it. The ad I am referring to is the one where all that is shown of the secretary is her "legs, short skirt and spike-heeled shoes. The ad portrays a secretary presumably talking on the telephone, lit cigarette and cup of coffee close at hand, along with a cat playing with a cord under her desk.

First, what kind of secretary, if at all professional, would have a pet in the office? Second, who ever heard of a secretary — on break or not — who has no papers or other office-related equipment and supplies nearby? You know the ones we use to work with: typewriter, calculating machine, file cabinets, paper, tape, etc.? Third, why is she shown on her break — if indeed she is supposed to be on break — as if that is how she spends the biggest part of her time?

I find it difficult to understand how the head of a department in an institution of higher education could permit an employee to suggest to an advertiser an idea for a promotion that could — and did — offend so many of its key employees. Do you not realize that this University has some very creditable secretarial academic programs, programs that are widely respected not only in this area, but all over the state and nation? Hundreds of people — not all female — go through these programs, spending an incredible amount of time and money. This ad shows a lack of good sense on the part of the advertiser, but what makes it totally unacceptable is that it was a cooperative effort between the advertiser and one of the Daily Egyptian ad representatives!

How very unfortunate for us that this campaign was not more thoroughly thought through. It is hard enough for us in the secretarial profession, especially those of us who take our chosen careers seriously, to overcome the sexist attitudes many people have about us without the media making things worse. It is no wonder that we fight a losing battle to obtain the wages we deserve, not to mention the fallacy that our job is menial and easy. I invite anyone who disagrees with my point of view to try to fill my shoes for just one day. — LeeAnn Willis, Sophomore, Administrative Assistant Program

RAs cannot be full-time guards

I am writing this letter in response to a letter from Hampton's letter to the editor in April 23. As a former student resident assistant, I must comment on Mrs. Hampton's letter.

You are the one who is naive to think that RAs do not know how much alcohol comes into the residence halls. RAs know that a tremendous amount of alcohol and other drugs enter the buildings and are consumed, but there is only so much an RA can do. RAs cannot be standing guard at all windows and doorways waiting for someone to try to sneak alcohol in. That is not the duty of an RA. Do you honestly feel the need for RAs to check all of your belongings 24 hours a day?

To be quite frank, that is not why universities have RAs, though I hate to clear up this popular misconception. RAs are there for the general welfare of the people who live in the residence halls. But more importantly, an RA is there as an informer, a counselor, a teacher, a friend, and last, but not least — a student.

Furthermore, if you feel you are compelled to brag about sneaking alcohol into the residence halls, perhaps you should seek help from the Alcohol Awareness Center. Either that, or learn to act more like the responsible adult that college students should be. — Cathy Dysin, Senior, Public Relations

Students ignore grave injustice

As concerned students of life, we at SIU have been exposed to myriad issues confronting society as of late. We have heard impassioned cries against nuclear weapons proliferation, U.S. sanctioned terrorism in Central America, decreasing social services and increasing tuition. We have responded laudably. We reserved buses, we had conferences, we passed non-binding resolutions.

Theater price hikes may warrant boycott

I noticed that all the theaters in town have raised their prices 23 percent from $5.00 to $6.15. Since they all have done this at the same time they must have decided among themselves to fix their prices. Isn't there a law against this? Why with inflation between 4 and 5 percent, are they raising their prices at 23 percent. Perhaps a little investigative reporting is in order here. If the theater owners do not have good answers to these questions perhaps we students, who make up a majority of the movie going public, should consider some boycotting. — Ken Hawkinson, Doctoral Student, Speech Communications

All of this is fine and well (who says contemporary students are terminally apathetic), but I think it is time we confront the most glaring miscarriage of justice facing the citizens of the United States today. I'm not sure why we have chosen to ignore this issue, but it must be addressed sooner or later. I'm talking, of course, about the fact that we have been watching reruns of Hill Street Blues for the last several weeks.

I was under the impression that summer was the season for reruns, and I don't know about you, but as I am nearing the end of a hard week, I look forward to putting down my books and relaxing with the adventures of the gang on the Hill. But lately, all I see are reruns of the fall season episodes. Now I hate to say good-bye to Sgt. Esterhaus as much as anybody else, but life goes on and so must the show. Perhaps now is the time to write your congressman and your local NBC sponsor. Hopefully, our newly elected Action party will get involved and we'll see results. We could even have a bake sale. I truly hope that we, as a body of students, will unite in an effort to undo this serious wrong. — Todd P. Williams, Sophomore Liberal Arts

Views conflict on need for plea bargaining

State's Attorney John R. Clemons discusses a case with Patricia Morris, Jackson County public defender, in Clemons' office in the county courthouse.

America is losing the battle against crime.

No one has found a scapegoat or been able to pin the blame, but plea bargaining is an ever-popular target.

Plea bargaining, criticized on the ground that it distorts the values and undermines the goals of the criminal justice system, has become embroiled in a controversy strong enough to split even the members of the justice system.

In Jackson County, criminal justice officials are far from agreement on the role plea bargaining should play in the county.

WHEN JACKSON County State's Attorney John R. Clemons took office in 1980, he carried through with a campaign promise to institute a policy of limited plea bargaining, an about-face from the open-bargaining practice of his predecessor, William Schwartz.

In a statement written in late 1979, Clemons said he favored limited bargaining because "to bargain extensively is not in the interest of sound law enforcement in Jackson County."

Proponents of plea negotiating counter such claims with the argument that negotiating enhances justice and tailors it to the individual.

RICHARD E. RICHMAN, Jackson County presiding judge, views plea bargaining as a valuable tool for adjusting a case disposition to better aid the defendant.

"There must be plea bargaining unless we want a police state," Richman said. "To eliminate plea bargaining would imply that the initial charges by the police are always correct. It also implies that there is no mercy in the justice system."

The courts have recognized bargaining as an acceptable practice, and Richman couldn't agree more.

"It's political hay," he said. "That's all it is. It's a political and emotional tool that those in power use to enhance their positions.

"THERE'S NOTHING wrong with plea bargaining. I've been in this court 20 years and haven't seen a reason cases can't be negotiated. It's a legitimate method of disposing of cases.

'There must be plea bargaining unless we want a police state.'

-Richard E. Richman

"On the civil side of the law, we expect that a settlement will be arrived at. In divorces, society expects people to settle their disputes. But because someone is charged with committing a criminal offense, people feel there is something morally and ethically wrong with negotiating."

As Clemons' fund during his campaign, he public is increasingly concerned with the opportunity for criminals to "cop a plea" and get away with less than they deserve. Candidates advocating a hard-line approach rate high with the public.

Richman said the trend in the United States has been to abandon a traditional criminal justice goal — rehabilitation.

Stories and photos by Sherry Chisenhall

"PEOPLE HAVE given up on the concept of rehabilitation," Richman said. "We're just punishing. We're sentencing more people to longer sentences and it's having no effect on the crime rate.

"What are the goals of the system? Beats me sometimes."

While opponents argue that bargain ng tends to create inequality in the system, Richman maintains that uniform treatment of offenders would be a major obstacle to assuring justice for everyone passing through the system.

Clemons said. "I'm just saying that it can be done and is more effective in Jackson County."

CLEMONS SAID a primary effect of his policy has been to take some discretion out of the state's attorney's office.

"This office has a lot of discretion, but the judiciary has the final say," Clemons said. "The public doesn't understand that the judge can keep the case from even going to trial, through a directed verdict.

"My philosophy of limiting plea bargaining elevates the judiciary. In counties with plea bargaining, the judge does nothing.

Richman isn't fond of limited plea bargaining, yet he's an advocate of a strong judiciary. "To me, that's a contradiction. Of course, with a plea bargain nothing prevents the judge from saying, 'Sorry, but I can't go along with this.' But it's very rare."

RICHMAN DISAGREES that plea bargaining lessens judicial discretion.

"It's not a rubber stamp," Richman said. "We can reject negotiated pleas. I think it's absurd to go through a trial and the person gets a similar sentence as he would have with a negotiated plea."

Clemons lends little weight to the theory that the absence of plea bargaining takes away the opportunity to tailor justice to the individual, because "a judge can do that in his sentencing."

"The problem is actually that when you begin to plea bargain, you begin to treat everyone the same," Clemons said. "My policy puts a lot more discretion with the judiciary, where it belongs. That's what they're getting paid for."

RICHMAN SAID he views plea negotiating as a method for making justice fit the individual, which is especially important with the student population in Jackson County.

"A crime might be a one-time act," Richman said. "There are degrees of criminality. There are some real bad dudes out there, and there are some people who are stupid. Some do things once just to see what happens.

"I've seen many kids in the county who have made one mistake and have gone on without going to the penitentiary. There are many who, if treated fairly, have only that one experience with the law."

CLEMONS SAID that if he or one of his assistants negotiates a case, it's for a definite reason, usually multiple charges. An example is Cathy Cremer, who entered a negotiated guilty plea for her role in three incidents covering three counties, ending with the Campbell Hill bank robbery on Dec. 1, 1983.

Cremer pleaded guilty to armed robbery in Jackson and Randolph counties and home invasion in Williamson County.

She entered her plea in exchange for the dropping of other charges, under the condition that she testify against her accomplice.

Figures support Clemons' claims

Negotiating rare in county

John Clemons' claims that he's reduced plea bargaining in Jackson County aren't empty chatter.

When Clemons took office in 1980 and instituted a policy of limited plea bargaining, the voters of the county got what they paid for — a hard-line approach to negotiated pleas.

Clemons has documented his case dispositions since taking office, while two researchers have assembled an unpublished study with figures reflecting the case dispositions of two former state's attorneys.

The study of dispositions by Howard L. Hood and William G. Schwartz was done by Joseph Coughlin, director of the SIU-C Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections, and Sherwood Zimmerman, of the Office of Program Development and Research in the New York State Division of Criminal Justice Services.

Clemons' policy is modeled on Hood's limited-bargaining policy, while Schwartz, Clemons' immediate predecessor, bargained openly.

The national average for bargaining is 90 percent of all criminal cases.

In 1981, Clemons' first year in office, he negotiated 23 percent of all criminal felonies and criminal misdemeanors. That figure dropped to 18.9 percent in 1982.

Figures are not yet available for 1983.

From 1977 to 1979, Hood negotiated pleas in 28.4 percent of criminal felonies and misdemeanors.

Schwartz was in office one year, during which he bargained 53.7 percent of felonies and misdemeanors.

Clemons' conviction rates have not suffered under his policy.

In 1981, Clemons' office tried 66 criminal felonies and misdemeanors, including bench and jury trials. The figures reflect cases terminated in that year, not cases filed.

Of the 66 cases, 43 were felonies and 23 misdemeanors. Clemons obtained 38 felony convictions, with one hung jury, for an 88 percent conviction rate. Nineteen of the misdemeanors resulted in convictions, for an 83 percent rate. Clemons' total conviction rate in 1981 was 86 percent.

In 1982, Clemons had an 80 percent conviction rate. Of 44 felonies tried, 34 were convicted, for 77 percent. Twenty-five of 38 misdemeanors resulted in convictions. Clemons' total for felonies and misdemeanor convictions in 1982 was 59 of 77 cases.

Memorabilia shop serves baseball buffs

BELLEVILLE (AP) — Whether you're hungry for a Milwaukee Brewers chocolate bar or nostalgic for a chunk of the Astro turf on which the Cardinals won the 1982 World Series, you can find both at the Baseball Card Shop.

Tim Howell, who manages the shop, says baseball memorabilia "increase in value like antiques do."

"A player's first card is always more valuable than any of his subsequent cards," he said.

Shoppers can buy everything from 5-cent cards of players most people have never heard of to a $50 Pete Rose card from 1964.

"Sometimes we have 15 to 20

Big Muddy Room open for studying

The Big Muddy Room on the second floor of the Student Center will be open in the evenings through final exam week for students to use as a study area.

The room will be open until 1 a.m. Wednesday through Saturday and from 7 p.m. to midnight Monday through Thursday of next week, according to John Corker, Student Center director.

Corker said food will be available during the extended operating hours.

people in the store," said Howell, whose shop is open only on Friday nights and weekends.

For $1.49, they can take home a 3-square-inch piece of Astroturf from St. Louis' Busch Stadium.

For $2.50, they can buy a ticket stub from the Sept. 23, 1983, Busch Stadium game where Steve Carlton of the Philadelphia Phillies recorded his 300th win. For $1, there's a stub from the September 1983 game when Bob Forsch pitched a no-hitter.

If you'd prefer to feast on a Cleveland Indians candy bar rather than a Milwaukee Brewers bar fine. For 50 cents, you'll get about 3 ounces of candy in either wrapping.

Among the shop's costliest items is a $134 set of 1974 baseball cards still in good shape.

The most expensive card Howell knows of dates to the early 1960s and isn't for sale at Belleville. It's a tobacco card — one with a player's picture on one side and a tobacco advertisement on the other. This one shows Pittsburgh Pirates shortstop Honus Wagner.

"He was opposed to smoking," Howell said. "When he found out his picture was going to be inserted in tobacco packages, he ordered the distribution stopped. I think there are only 20 to 30 known to exist. They're worth from $19,000 to $25,000 each."

But the shop has other tobacco cards dating to 1909 and selling for $5 each.

Popular items also include fouled-up World Champion Coca-Cola bottles made after the Cardinals beat the Milwaukee Brewers in the 1982 World Series. For $4, a collector can buy a bottle that erroneously says the Brewers tallied 12, instead of 17, hits in the first game. The bottle also reverses the teams' total hits in the second game. Correctly labeled bottles sell for $2.50 each.

Also for sale are $4 Cardinal helmets, $1.99 Illini Rose Bowl plates, $7.50 autographed baseballs and old sports magazines.

The store has sold a few bats, too — among them one used by the Cardinals' Willie McGee.

The shop has football, basketball and hockey cards also, and some soccer cards and non-sports cards — like Bo Derek cards, M.A.S.H., Star Wars, Incredible Hulk, he said.

"But the baseball cards are head and shoulders above the others," he said.

"They've been in circulation much, much longer," he said. "They have an establishment about them."

comings of the criminal justice system, but he discounts the importance placed on plea bargaining.

"People are so afraid of crime, and there appears to be an increase in violent crime," he said. "The causes of crime are being ignored, such as cultural value changes and poverty."

Clemmons' policy is not well received in other portions of the criminal justice system, either.

Patricia Morris, Jackson County public defender, says that the state's attorney's policy disregards an important party — the defendant.

Morris' office is charged with providing legal counsel to indigent defendants, and she estimated that 85 percent of the county's criminal cases are handled by the public defender's office.

MORRIS SAYS that building trust with a client is difficult, because Clemmons' policy is not specifically outlined.

"A real common question people ask is 'What's going to happen to me?'" she said. "We can only tell them what the statutory requirements are, what it says in black and white. That doesn't give them much assurance."

"It's a problem especially with the student population. A person in a new environment, away from home, will make some bad judgments. I see so many cases where a student gets drunk and does something dumb. It may be a felony. If the student is looking for a career, carrying a felony conviction around will hurt them considerably. We can't assure them the charge will be reduced."

THE CONFLICT comes from lack of concern for the defendant's welfare, Morris said.

"We have to tell our clients that we're in a county where the state's attorney doesn't plea bargain," she said. "We can't assure them that we can arrange a plea bargain for them. We have to tell them, 'You're charged with a felony, and you can expect to be convicted of one.'"

"It's real hard to get the state's attorney to look behind the circumstances and police reports. Their standard argument is, 'I can prove it — why reduce it?' They won't look at a case from a humanistic standpoint."

THE DEFENDANT'S welfare is the main concern of the public defender, Morris said.

"It's not our job to determine if the person is guilty," she said.

John Clemmons discusses the new cases that arrived in the morning and the day's court docket with his staff.

"That's the court's job. Our concern is, 'Can the state prove the charge?' Most of the time it can."

"We do plead a lot of people guilty. A private attorney doesn't have to take a case. We have to take every case that walks in the door. A lot are bad cases because the police have done their job well. Our job is taking a case and arguing it vehemently. Our loyalties are with our clients."

THE MAJOR effect of Clemmons' policy has been a heavy caseload, Morris said.

"It makes more work for us," she said. "It gives us no incentive to plead. There's no reason for us to plead guilty if we can go through trial and possibly be acquitted."

"We have huge, crowded dockets and a massive number of cases. There are more delays, more motions filed. We find more ways to attack a case."

The time factor is an important one for Morris. Her office has three assistants and no investigator.

The limited negotiating policy has translated into an increase in trials, which means added costs for taxpayers. As some criminal justice officials argue, however, justice can't be measured in dollars and cents.

"A TRIAL IS like a rolling of the dice," Morris said. "It's a gamble. The state must convince 12 people that a person is guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. You never know how a jury will decide."

Morris said tailoring justice to fit the individual is important in charging a defendant.

"You have to look at a defendant and decide what is just," she said. "The system loses a lot when you look only at the numbers, which is done here. Justice is not 'I got this number of convictions this month.'"

Morris said she emphasizes examining factors leading to a crime.

"WHEN SOMEONE'S committed a crime, there's a reason," she said. "Those things need to be taken into account. Part of what I emphasize is that the person has other problems than what is on the sheet."

"I'm social service oriented. I try to help with the other problems, to get counseling and help with the basic needs of the person."

"The way defendants are treated here can make them bitter. They may think, 'No one ever gave me a break, why should I give someone else a break?' It can lead to a lot of problems."

who gains from the policy, because he's able to say he got those convictions.

"With plea bargaining, I could feel that the punishment fit the crime better."

MORRIS SAID defendants are hurt the most by Clemmons' policy. She said the public also loses because of the cost involved in an increased number of trials.

"There could have been restitution or fines in many cases if the state's attorney had been reasonable," Morris said. "The state's attorney is the one

Regardless of disagreement with Clemmons' policy, members of the criminal justice system in Jackson County must abide by the rules Clemmons has set. While Morris and Richman disagree with the policy, it was the one that voters in the county picked in 1980 and Clemmons has carried it through.

Woman hospitalized for insanity released a year after slayings

DECATUR (AP) — Thirteen months after being charged with stabbing her two toddlers to death, Kathleen Johnson of Urbana is scheduled to be discharged from a mental hospital.

"She has successfully passed the anniversary of the killing of her children without signs of depression and psychosis," said Jack Beebe of the Adolf Meyer Mental Health Center. "(She) has met the goals of in-patient hospitalization and her condition is stable."

Mrs. Johnson was found innocent of murder by reason of insanity and was assigned to Meyer for treatment.

Beebe, a mental health specialist, told Circuit Judge Harold Jensen of Champaign County that Mrs. Johnson plans to work in Decatur and receive out-patient counseling.

Mrs. Johnson, who now uses the name Kathleen Burke, has been on a "trial home visit" for two weeks with a Decatur couple, and plans to stay with them until next fall, Beebe said in a report to the judge.

Mrs. Johnson has done janitorial work at Meyer and attends classes at Richland Community College. She has made "progressively more independent trips into the community of Decatur," Beebe's report said.

She was taken into custody April 8, 1983, at an apartment near the University of Illinois campus, where her husband, Eric Johnson, was a student.

Johnson found the mutilated bodies of their children — Jeremiah, 3, and Mike, 2 — and called police. Pathologists said the children died instantly from stab wounds to the heart; one was decapitated and disembowled.

Johnson and police testified during the five-day trial that when they arrived at the scene, Mrs. Johnson did not acknowledge their presence and continued stabbing the body of one of the children.

A high school honors student, Mrs. Johnson had had emotional problems before the killings. Psychiatrists testified that when the killings occurred, she could neither appreciate nor control her conduct.

Americans owning fewer homes; high costs and economy blamed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The share of Americans who own their own homes has declined for the first time in at least 20 years, the Census Bureau said Tuesday.

Housing costs and other economic factors were blamed by housing experts, who were questioned about the figures.

The drop in ownership between 1980 and 1983 was disclosed in a special study on homeownership trends, which also indicated that the decline may have eased by the end of last year.

The share of U.S. households that owned their home dropped from 65.6 percent in 1980 to 64.6 percent last year, after gradually declining in 1981 and 1982, according to the report, part of a series prepared for several years but not previously published.

That was the first "statistically significant" decline since the bureau began quarterly reports on homeownership in 1962, said Wallace Fraser of the bureau's Current Surveys Branch.

But Fraser added that the quarterly ownership figures for 1983 remained almost constant, which may indicate that the decline has slowed or that homeownership rates are remaining steady.

"We've noticed the trend. It is disconcerting," Ken Kerin, vice president for research of the National Association of Realtors, said of the decline from 1980 to 1983.

A decline of about 1 percent in ownership doesn't sound like much, but it represents over half of the gain made during the entire decade of the 1970s, Kerin pointed out. The Census study shows an ownership increase of about 1.5 percent during that decade.

"The reason is affordability," said Kerin. "We talk about affordability a lot. It is real and it has an impact on people.

"Unfortunately, we do not see the affordability situation getting better in the next few years," he added.

Realtor News, a publication of his organization, warned last December that unless housing sales improve, American homeownership could fall below 60 percent by the turn of the century.

Housing sales picked up a bit last year, but haven't improved much this year, Kerin said, adding that he has no reason to be very optimistic about next year.

Cook County judge accused of being drunk, insulting girl

SPRINGFIELD (AP) -- A Cook County judge was accused Tuesday of being drunk on the job and insulting a 17-year-old girl by asking her about her sex life, the first time in more than two years a state jurist has faced official misconduct charges.

The complaint against Associate Circuit Judge Francis P. Butler of Palos Park was filed by the Illinois Judicial Inquiry Board. The panel investigates complaints against judges, and if it decides discipline is needed, it lodges complaints with the state's Courts Commission.

The commission does not have to accept the recommendation.

Among other things, the document alleges Butler was found drinking beer on top of a file cabinet while on duty and that during a court hearing he accused the girl of being promiscuous.

The document filed with the Courts Commission alleges that because of Butler's behavior Sept. 2, he demeaned the judicial profession and hampered the administration of justice. Specifically, Butler was accused of violating various state Supreme Court rules.

Butler, reached by telephone in his suburban Chicago chambers, said judicial ethics prevented him from discussing the pending case.

According to the board's complaint, Butler was observed one afternoon "drinking beer while sitting on top of a filing cabinet" in a suburban office of the Cook County state's attorney.

A couple later brought their 17-year-old daughter to the office to file a complaint against the girl's former boyfriend for allegedly harrassing the family, the Judicial Inquiry Board said.

An assistant state's attorney subsequently escorted the family into a conference room and asked Butler to certify the family's complaint.

"When he entered the conference room, (Butler's) appearance and manner indicated that he was intoxicated," the board said.

Butler "appeared confused and had obvious difficulty reading the complaint. His speech was slurred," the board said.

The judge began questioning the girl "in an insulting manner," the board said.

When the girl said she no longer liked her ex-boyfriend, Butler told her: "You're a whore, or words to that effect," the complaint said.

Students, faculty may borrow maps for summer from library

Students and faculty needing maps during the vacation period before summer semester may borrow them from the Map Library, located on the sixth floor of Morris Library.

Road maps, topographical quadrangles, city plans, national forest and park maps are available for those traveling and hiking and

'Grassroots' winners awarded

By Terry Levecke
Staff Writer

Paul Deffenbaugh, Kate Griffin and Matthew Kirksey were awarded first, second and third place, respectively, for their entries in the 1984 edition of "Grassroots," a student literary magazine.

Deffenbaugh, of Carbondale, won first place for "Breathing Cats," a story about a room filled with cats from top to bottom. English graduate student Kate Griffin was second for her poem "Waking the Dead." Kirksey, who earned a bachelor's degree in English last fall, was awarded third place for his short story "Dying."

"Grassroots" has been published annually since 1969, and will be sold Friday in the solicitation area of the Student Center.

The 36-page magazine contains poems, fiction, a one-act play and art work created by undergraduate and graduate SIU-C students.

"This is a student literary magazine, but there are stories I would prefer to read in this magazine than in any other literary magazine," said Philip Graham, assistant professor in English and faculty advisor for the magazine.

Subject matter of the magazine ranges from the serious to the absurd. One story is about a man talking to a pizza, while another is a serious story examining the relationship between a man and his brutal father, Graham said.

The magazine will be available through next spring semester at the Obelisk II yearbook office in Green Barracks 0946. The magazine sells for $2.

MEMORANDUM

To: SIUC Undergraduate Students
From: Joseph Camille, Director
Student Work and Financial Assistance
Subject: Satisfactory Progress Policy

In response to new federal regulations, published October 6, 1983, by the U.S. Department of Education, it was necessary to revise SIUC's policy defining our standards for "satisfactory progress." Although we did not receive clarification of the federal regulations until late January, 1984, the new guidelines called for the effective date to be January 1, 1984. Therefore, the revised "satisfactory progress" policy is effective retroactive to January 1, 1984. It has been approved by the Financial Aid Advisory Committee* and all appropriate SIUC officials.

SATISFACTORY PROGRESS POLICY FOR UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS AT SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY AT CARBONDALE

PURPOSE

The Federal Government, the States, and Southern Illinois University at Carbondale have invested large sums of money in order to provide financially needy students the opportunity to attain a post-secondary education. Financial aid recipients are responsible for using the funds provided in an acceptable manner. Therefore, a student who wishes to benefit from the receipt of financial aid funds must maintain "satisfactory progress" as defined in this policy.

AUTHORITY

The Higher Education Act of 1965 as amended and the final regulations set forth by the Department of Education in 34 CFR 668 require that institutions of higher education establish reasonable standards of "satisfactory progress." A student who does not meet these standards is not eligible to receive federally funded financial aid. Southern Illinois University at Carbondale shall make these standards applicable to all state and institutional aid programs for the purpose of maintaining a consistent and reasonable financial aid policy.

SATISFACTORY PROGRESS STANDARDS

Southern Illinois University at Carbondale requires that a student be making "satisfactory progress" toward a degree if that student wishes to receive financial aid funds. A student is making "satisfactory progress" toward a degree if successfully meeting two basic academic standards. First, a student must complete a reasonable number of credit hours toward a degree each academic year. Second, a student must maintain a scholastic standing, derived from grades, that allows for continued enrollment at the University under current academic guidelines. The following parameters will be used to define these two basic academic standards:

MODEL FOR FULL-TIME ATTENDANCE

Academic Terms Completed	Number of Credit Hours Completed
	Per Term	Cumulative
1	8	8
2	8	16
3	8	24
4	8	32
5	10	42
6	10	52
7	10	62
8	10	72
9	12	84
10	12	96
11	12	108
12	12	120

1) Maximum time to graduate: A full-time, eligible student is expected to complete a degree in six academic years (12 semesters). A half-time, eligible student is expected to complete a degree in twelve academic years (24 semesters). In order to be sure that a student is progressing toward that goal, each student's progress will be measured annually after Spring Semester to determine the progress made for the last academic year of attendance. Each term of at least half-time attendance shall be included in the annual review whether or not the student received financial aid for the term. The following chart will serve as a model to determine if each student is meeting this requirement of "satisfactory progress."

2) Grades: A student must remain in compliance with the University's policy concerning scholastic standing, grades, and grade point average as defined under the topic "Grading, Scholastic Regulations, and Credit" in the current Undergraduate Catalog Bulletin. A student who is on Scholastic Suspension is not maintaining "satisfactory progress." A student who is scholastically suspended may be readmitted under Scholastic Probation status by the appropriate academic dean and remain eligible for financial aid. Each student's scholastic standing will be monitored after each semester or term of attendance.

A student who does not meet either or both of the standards set forth above and who cannot show "mitigating circumstances" is not maintaining "satisfactory progress" toward a degree and is no longer eligible to receive financial aid funds. (See Appeals)

Nothing in this policy shall be construed as a reduction of external requirements by other federal, state, public, or private agencies when they award or control financial aid. Examples of such agencies are: Veterans Administration, Vocational Rehabilitation, and the NCAA.

DEFINITIONS

Credit hours completed shall be defined as the total number of academic credit hours for which a student receives any grade other than a failing grade. Incompletes, withdrawals, audits, and remedial courses which do not count toward a degree shall not be considered as credit hours completed. Credit hours received for repeated courses shall be counted only once. Eligible students shall be defined as those students who are admitted to the University in a degree-seeking classification. All other students are not eligible for financial aid. Full-time attendance for undergraduates shall be defined as enrollment in twelve (12) hours or more per semester. Half-time attendance for undergraduates shall be defined as enrollment in more than five (5) hours and less than twelve (12) hours per semester.

NOTIFICATION OF TERMINATION

It shall be the responsibility of the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance to publish this policy and to notify by letter any student who is no longer eligible to receive financial aid funds. Said notice shall be addressed to the student's most current home address on file with the University. IT SHALL BE THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE STUDENT TO INFORM THE UNIVERSITY OF A CORRECT HOME ADDRESS AT ALL TIMES. Student's academic deans shall receive copies of all notice letters.

REINSTATEMENT

Students will have their eligibility to receive financial aid reinstated when they have reached the level of satisfactory progress required of them by this policy. They may achieve this status by the completion of incomplete grades, correction of incorrect grades, and by earning more than the required number of completed hours for a term or terms without the benefit of financial aid.

APPEALS

Any student who cannot meet the grades requirement or the cumulative credit hours completion requirement, shall have an opportunity to appeal in writing to explain "mitigating circumstances." The appeal should be sent to the Financial Aid Advisory Committee within 15 days of the notice of termination. The Financial Aid Committee will review the "mitigating circumstances" documented in the appeal and provide a written decision within 20 days after the receipt of the appeal.

Best rates in nation no bargain; Cumberland flats are ... cheap

CUMBERLAND, Md. (AP) This down-at-the-heels mountain city in the skinny panhandle of western Maryland is billed by the government as the cheapest place in the nation to live, but living in Cumberland isn't necessarily a bargain.

The U.S. Census Bureau reported last week that at $165 a month, this city had the lowest median rent cost for 1980. Some local folks expressed skepticism about the figure, but others said it's because some people are too destitute to afford better housing.

"If they are renting for $165 it's because they are real dogs," said rental agent Linda Deremer.

Mayor George Wyckoff Jr., who has his own rental property, scoffs at the Census figures, calling them "possibly ridiculous."

The study said the national median rent in 1980 was $243 a month, meaning half the prices were above and half were below that point.

"The accuracy of the study just depends on what people incorporate into things," Wyckoff said.

But there's one thing for sure. Cumberland, a factory town wedged between West Virginia and Pennsylvania, is shrinking.

Cumberland's population dropped from 39,000 in 1940 to just under 26,000 in 1980.

Rows of wooden shacks built to house railroad workers are testaments to Cumberland's busier days as a center of commerce at the end of the C & O Canal.

Unemployment was at 11.3

percent here in Allegany County in February, compared to 7.8 percent nationwide and 6.2 percent in Maryland.

Last fall, the Celanese Corp. shut down a fiber-producing plant here, throwing about 250 people out of work. At peak production in the 1940s, the Celanese plant employed about 10,000 people.

The local Kelly-Springfield Tire Co. plant, the area's largest employer, had been cutting back workers, and by early this year, about one-half of the plant's 1,000-person workforce was on furlough.

But in early March, Kelly announced it was beginning a recall that would put about 350 people back to work by June.

Wyckoff concedes that high unemployment could drive the cost of housing down.

Sorority chapter to bestow eligible students scholarships

The Gamma Kappa Omega Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc., will award academic scholarships to high school seniors and college undergraduate students who meet the specified requirements.

Eligibility for the scholar ships is based on a grade point average of 3.0, the completion and submission of required documents and compliance with stipulations written by the sorority.

Applications and all requested documents must be submitted no later than May 18.

USO to consider amendment to grant more funds to Greeks

The Inter-Greek Council will have its last opportunity to receive more fee allocations, as the Student Senate will consider an amendment Wednesday to add $775 to IGC's allocation passed April 23, in addition to two other funding bills and bills to recognize three new student groups.

At its last meeting, the senate granted IGC $9,245, or $255 less than it received in 1983. Two amendments to add to IGC's funding at the last meeting both failed by a two-to-one margin, after several senators stressed the fact that IGC had no self-generated funds in 1983.

The bill to amend IGC's fee allocations was submitted by Kevin Aagard, a senator from the School of Technical Careers and a member of Tau Kappa Epsilon. It provides for funding for two orientation week programs and the printing of a new student orientation booklet about fraternities and sororities.

All of the additional funding requested in the amendment was originally included in IGC's fees request, but was not included in the USO Finance Commission's recommendations to the senate.

The Finance Commission will bring bills recommending the senate fund the Southern Publishing Information Network for $1,228, and the Synergy Student Auxiliary for an undetermined amount, said Ron Orr, a Finance Commission member.

Bills to recognize the SIU-C Rodeo Club, SIU Students for Unicef and the Tolkien Fellowship will also be considered.

Irish chef resigns after printing slurs in letter

DUBUQUE, Iowa (AP) -- A retired Irish chef who has printed racial, sexual and ethnic slurs in a neighborhood newsletter has resigned from the city Human Rights Commission to avoid giving the city a "black eye."

The latest controversy surrounding Clarence Duffy, 52, was stirred by the April edition of his private newsletter, The Little Dublin News, in which he commented about slow mail delivery.

"Our out-of-town mail has been slowing down. Maybe it's due to all those stupid broads they have working in the post office now," he wrote.

Duffy characterizes his newsletter as a neighborhood publication understood by people who remember when ethnic lines were more clearly drawn.

Previous comments in the newsletter have characterized people of German descent as being of limited intelligence. The newsletter also has described blacks as "jungle bunnies" and has carried remarks yearning for the days before the human rights "bull" started.

The newsletter is published for current and former Dubuque residents of mostly Irish descent. Duffy's wife says its circulation is about 5,000.

Dubuque's population is 98.9 percent white, figures show. Most residents are of German or Irish descent, with the Germans probably edging out the Irish, said Father Tom Ralph, editor of the Roman Catholic archdiocesan newspaper The Witness.

When the remark about mail delivery appeared in the April newsletter, Bruce Clark, president of the American Postal Workers Union local, told city officials the union would push for Duffy's resignation at the next City Council meeting.

"We feel it is completely inappropriate for someone who prints that kind of stuff to be a member of the Human Rights Commission," said Clark. He said about 10 of the 60 members of his union are women.

Duffy headed off a City Council confrontation by agreeing to resign Saturday at the request of commission chairman Dave Simon, who said he was backed by at least five of the seven other commissioners.

The Human Rights Commission, established by city ordinance, meets at least monthly to handle discrimination complaints. Executive Director Matt Lorenz said.

Duffy said he didn't resent being asked to resign. He said he does not want to give the city a "black eye" and said he feared that if he remained on the commission it would hurt tourism in the city on the bluffs overlooking the Mississippi River.

"When you are on the Human Rights Commission you have to be on the straight and narrow," said Duffy. "I know I goofed."

Subcommittee: FBI's tactics threaten constitutional rights

WASHINGTON (AP) -- FBI undercover operations should be subject to judicial control because growing use of this investigative technique poses "a very real threat" to constitutional rights, a House subcommittee said Tuesday.

"The record provides ample evidence that anyone may become a target of such an investigation," the Judiciary subcommittee on civil and constitutional rights said in a 100-page report.

The report cited several FBI investigations, including Operation Greyford, which probed corruption in the Cook County court system Illinois.

The panel said its Abscam-inspired, four-year study of the FBI "demonstrates that many, if not all, of the potential dangers inherent in undercover operations are being realized."

The document was particularly critical of the internal Justice Department process for approving and monitoring undercover investigations and said the FBI should be forced to obtain a judge's permission before starting one.

But subcommittee chairman Don Edwards, D-Calif., said he did not expect legislation this year to implement this recommendation. "It takes education to get the votes," Edwards said.

Instead, he said, he hoped Congress would force the Justice Department to add lawyers specializing in civil law and civil rights to its undercover review panel and to make annual reports to Congress on undercover operations.

The subcommittee said the review process "in practice is conducted without a critical review of the evidence; with no tolerance for internal dissent; and with little or no sensitivity to the concerns which prompted the (January 1981) promulgation of the safeguards and guidelines."

"The subcommittee has come to the inescapable conclusion that the safeguards in practice were little more than rhetoric, offering at best limited constraints upon the investigators, with little or no protection to the public," the report said.

David Divan, an FBI spokesman, said the agency recognizes the report is "critical." The findings are being reviewed, and "in the days ahead we're going to take such action as we consider appropriate."

"We believe that our undercover operations are effective and that they are indispensable in combatting the kinds of crimes that resist detection by traditional investigative methods," Divan said.

Misleading credit card ad referred to Attorney General

By Sheila Rogers
Staff Writer

A complaint about an advertisement that appeared in the Daily Egyptian has been referred to the Attorney General's Office by a legal clerk in the Student Attorney's Office, who said that he did so because he thought the ad was misleading.

Dan Winnett, a legal clerk in the Student Attorney's Office, said he first saw the advertisement when a student complained that she had sent $30 to First National Bancard in San Jose, Calif., under the impression that she was applying for a Mastercard credit card.

Instead of a credit card, however, she received a 50-page booklet that explained how to apply for a credit card. Winnett said that small print in the ad explained that people would receive a booklet and not a credit card, but that the print was very small and hard to read.

"Everything in that leads you to believe that you are applying for a credit card," Winnett said. "The only reason I saw the small print was because I was reading the ad with a critical eye — otherwise I wouldn't have seen it."

"This ad, very carefully, didn't say that they would send a credit card, despite the picture of a Mastercard on it," Winnett said.

Winnett said that he was suspicious of the company because the address listed was a post office box. The student had sent her check for $30 to California on Jan. 17 and it cleared her bank in Chicago on Jan. 27.

Winnett said that he sent a letter to the San Jose company after he received the complaint.

"I indicated in the letter that the contract was fraudulent inducement," Winnett said. He said that the company has not yet responded to his letter, which he mailed in mid-April.

Lugenia Richardson, coordinator of trademark registration and protection for Mastercard, said that she is aware of First National Bancard using Mastercard's name and symbol in their ad and that she notified the company to discontinue the ad or to change it so it is not misleading.

Cathy Hagler, advertising manager for the Daily Egyptian, said that she received a complaint from a student about the ad.

Hagler said that the first time the ad ran, the salesperson who accepted the ad was not aware of the newspaper's policy, which requires that before an ad can run that asks for people to send money the company or person responsible for the ad must send the product being offered to the ad department for examination.

When the company wanted the ad run again, Hagler requested that they send her the product being offered, which was the 50-page booklet.

"They sent me the booklet, which is all that was required of them. It's not up to us to decide if the product is worth $30 or not. The policy is to see if the students are getting something for their money," Hagler said.

A guarantee in the ad states that if a person doesn't receive a credit card by following the steps outlined in the service guide, the company will refund the money.

"I couldn't help the student that complained to me unless he followed the guarantee in the ad. If he did follow the steps and didn't receive the credit card and he didn't get his money back, then we could help him," Hagler said.

John C. Taylor, the Daily Egyptian's business manager, said that if the ad is offered again the newspaper doesn't plan to run it.

"We've had a complaint about the ad so we'll stop running it," Taylor said.

Ordinance passed outlawing ownership of certain animals

BELLEVILLE (AP) — Mountain lions, bears, hyenas and the like have been outlawed in St. Clair County, east of St. Louis.

Monday night, the County Board unanimously approved an ordinance, banning possession of lions, tigers, bears, cheetahs, margays and wolves within the county limits. The measure also outlaws leopards, ocelots, jaguars, mountain lions, Canada lynxes, bobcats, jaguarundi, hyenas, coyotes and poisonous reptiles.

The ordinance exempts zoological parks, circuses, animal refuges, veterinary hospitals and research laboratories.

Maureen Lawrence, assistant administrator of the county's Animal Control Center, said Tuesday that the ordinance was drafted "because evidently sometime back in January or February someone had purchased a bear, and the neighbors were quite upset."

She said the black cub "is darling now."

Buster Hymen, Phi Sigs, capture softball titles

By Steve Koulos Staff Writer

The Intramural Softball playoffs concluded Monday with Buster Hymen and the Phi Sigs rallying to win the men's B and co-rec B championships, respectively.

Buster Hymen overcame a 18-9 deficit by scoring 10 runs in the fourth inning to take a 19-18 lead. After the Skydogs tied the score at 19-19, Buster Hymen scored three runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to seal the victory.

Surprisingly, Buster Hymen was led by its No. six through nine hitters in the lineup — shortstop Vic Hudson (three for four, three runs scored), center fielder Marty Lennon (four for four, four runs), first baseman Dan Fogarty (four for four, three runs), and right fielder Pat Cosgrove (four for four, three runs). Third baseman Mike Casper was four for five and scored two runs.

The Skydogs were paced by left fielder Dave Wiseman and pitcher Bill Nikolick, who each reached base four out of five times.

Buster Hymen, which finished 10-2 overall, advanced to the finals by defeating Gotta Grow Up, 9-7 in Friday's semifinal. The Skydogs, who defeated Sagenhemmy's 7-5 in the semifinals, finished 11-2. Men's B had 78 teams entered in the playoffs and was the largest division in softball.

In co-rec B, the Phi Sigs were behind 15-11 before erupting for six runs in the bottom of the fifth inning to win, 17-11.

The Phi Sigs hitting attack was led by Kari Lindbeck and Joel Ludwig, who each went four for four and scored three runs. Goonyghus was led by Matt Lanenga, who was five for five and scored three runs.

In semifinal games, the Phi Sigs defeated Ace's Angels, 13-11 and the Goonyghus nipped the No Names, 4-3. The Phi Sigs completed its season at 9-2 and the Goonyghus finished 10-1.

The Ultimate Frisbee playoffs began this week in men's A and B, and co-rec A and B. A total of 17 teams made the playoffs.

In men's A, the Urban Frogs advanced into the finals by nipping Ultimate Bud, 10-9 in Monday's semifinals. The Urban Frogs (6-0) face Wednesday's semifinal winner between the Bearded Bees (4-1) and the Dragons (4-1), in the finals Thursday at 6 p.m.

Disc-Graze beat the High Boys 9-7, in men's B in the semifinals on Monday. Disc-Graze (5-1) faces Wednesday's winner between Big Twist (4-3) and the New Mutants (3-4) in the finals Thursday at 6 p.m.

In co-rec A, The Big Twist clobbered Ultimate Bud CoRec, 8-3 in Sunday's semifinals and the Fris People beat Dragons Too, 11-8 in overtime. The Big Twist (4-2) and the Fris People (5-1) meet in the finals Wednesday at 6 p.m.

The Grateful Discs (4-1) received a bye in co-rec B and face the Frogs CoRec (3-4) in Wednesday's final at 6 p.m. The Frogs CoRec defeated Freudianair 10-3 in Sunday's semifinals.

has he come to terms. His agent is Jack Mills, of Boulder, Colo. Dempsey recommended Mills to Taylor.

"He's the best agent in the country," Dempsey said. "Seven out of 10 agents don't care at all about the players. Two out of 10 care some, but not much. The remaining one cares a lot about the players. Jack Mills cares a lot about the players."

Former Saluki defensive backs coach Fred Manuel, an assistant coach at Memphis State, was on the phone with Taylor when the call came from the Seahawk on another line informing Taylor that he was their No. 1 draft pick.

"That young man deserves it," said Manuel, who coached Taylor for the last two seasons. "It makes me feel great." Taylor, 5-10, 178 pounds, runs the 40-yard dash in 4.33 seconds and has a 39-inch vertical jump. Taylor intercepted eight passes last year, including five in the I-AA playoffs last year, and ranks No. 1 on the SIU-C all-time interception list. He blocked five kicks last year.

With the USFL previously having signed the top quarterback and running back — Steve Young of Brigham Young and Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier of Nebraska, respectively — there was little interest in those two glamor positions.

There was no quarterback taken on the first round for the first time since 1974, when Danny White was selected by Dallas on the third round as the first quarterback.

This time, the first signal-caller to go was Boomer Esiason of Maryland, whose injured passing shoulder might have hurt his first-round chances. He was taken as the 10th pick of the second round by Cincinnati, which is seeking an eventual replacement for veteran Ken Anderson. The next quarterback picked was West Virginia's Jeff Hosteder, by the New York Giants with the third pick of the third round.

In all, 17 of the 28 first-round choices were defensive players and so were the first eight on the second round — making it 25 defensive players of the first 36. Of the 25, 10 were linebackers and nine were linemen.

Despite one of the strongest linebacking corps in the NFL, the New York Giants made linebacker Carl Banks of Michigan State the third man drafted.

Then came the onslaught of defensive players.

Kansas City, which had wanted Banks, settled for defensive tackle Bill Maas of Pitt; San Diego, always looking for defense, took cornerback Mossy Cade of Texas; Cincinnati chose Arizona linebacker Ricky Hunley; the Colts went for Vanderbilt cornerback Leonard Coleman.

Then it was defensive tackle Rick Bryan of Oklahoma to Atlanta; defensive back Russell Carter of Southern Methodist to the New York Jets; linebacker Marshall to Chicago; defensive end Alphonso Carreker of Florida State to Green Bay; defensive end Keith Millard of Washington State to Minnesota; linebacker Jackie Shipp to Miami, which traded up for Buffalo's choice; defensive end Ron Paurot of Arkansas to the Jets, and defensive end Pete Koch of Maryland to Cincinnati.

Babcock wins gymnastics meet

Former Saluki gymnast Brian Babcock now an assistant coach on the SIU-C men's squad, won the United States Gymnastics Federation Championship of the Midwest region last weekend in Madison, Wis.

Each gymnast who scored at least a 104 on his compulsory optional all-around routine in the USGF meet qualified for the Championships of the USA, which will be held May 11 in Evanston. Seventy-two gymnasts will be at the Evanston meet.

SIU-C's John Levy and David Lutterman placed fourth and sixth, respectively, in the USGF meet, while Charles Lakes of Illinois took third. Babcock scored 113.55 points, Levy 109.55 and Lutterman 109. Of the 20 gymnasts who participated in the meet, 15 qualified for the Championships of the USA.

The top 18 gymnasts in the Championships of the USA meet will perform June 2-3 in the U.S. Olympic trials at Jacksonville, Fla. The top six gymnasts from that meet will make the 1984 U.S. Olympic Gymnastics squad. A seventh gymnast will be an alternate.

After finishing seventh in the nation this year, Saluki Coach Bill Meade recruited an all-arounder last week. Three-time Junior Olympic gymnast Bill Armand from Menomonee Falls, Wis., will join the Saluki squad next season. According to Meade, Armand has proven himself to be a "hard worker who does things well."

"One of Bill's better events is his pommel horse, something we'll really need next year," Meadesaid.

From this year's squad, the Salukis will lose pommel horseman Herb Voss, who finished third in the nation this year, all-arounder Levy, Murph Melton and Kevin Mazeika.

Meade's bid to get another recruit failed when Mark Steves, a highly touted all-arounder from San Antonio, Texas, signed with Oklahoma. Meade had hoped that since SIU-C's Mark Ulmer and Brendan Price were from San Antonio, that it might influence Steves to come to SIU-C.

"It apparently didn't work that way," said Meade, who's been recruiting and coaching the Salukis for 28 years.

Women gymnasts sign two

By Jim Lexa

The SIU-C women's gymnastics team signed two recruits to national letters of intent this week.

Gretchen Koepf-Baker, of Phoenixville, Pa., and Diana Cook, of Iitca, Mich., will be expected to make an impact on the Salukis next season, SIU-C Coach Herb Vogel said.

Koepf-Baker was the 1983 Pennsylvania United States Gymnastics Federation Class I floor exercise champion. Cook is a two-time qualifier to the USGF Class I National Championships.

"Gretchen comes into the Saluki program as a freshman, virtually unknown, with talent very similar to SIU's 1984 freshman standout Michelle Spillman," Vogel said.

Spillman broke the all-time SIU-C scoring records in vault, bars, floor exercise and all-around.

Cook has the potential to develop into a 36-point all-around scorer for the Salukis, Vogel said. She qualified for the USGF championships the last two years. Cook is a strong tumbler and has a strong interest in dance, which Vogel thinks may project her to be a strong floor worker.

Both signees have SIU-C connections. Cook's club coach was Steve Whitlock, a former member of the SIU-C men's gymnastics team. Koepf-Baker's grandfather was a faculty member at SIU-C in the mid-1960s. Salukis' Margaret Calcott, Jeanice Nieto and Steele also were coached by former Saluki men gymnasts.

Men ruggers close season with win

By George Pappas
Staff Writer

The SIU-C men's A rugby team finished its 1983-84 season with a 19-3 record with a win over the Paducah rugby club 22-0 last Saturday at the SIU-C rugby pitch.

The SIU-C B team lost to Paducah 8-6.

In the A game, John Hefernan, Davey Nolan and Jed Popeye each scored one try while Ric Rickerson scored two. Saluki kicker Don Berda made only one of the five extra kicks.

The Salukis' roaring offense and tough defense led them to one of their best winning percentages ever in SIU-C history, with a .864 mark.

The Salukis were also informed that they got the top seed in the Rugby Unions Midwest Region.

Coached by Mac McCurdy, the ruggers tramped through plenty of obstacles this past year, including a one-year suspension by the Recreation Center, to gain the top seed in the Midwest Region. The last regular season game the Salukis will play this season will be the Old Loads game this weekend, in which alumni from previous SIU-C rugby teams will participate.

Berda, Nolan and McCurdy are graduating for the Salukis.

In the B game, the only Saluki scoring came in the first half when Mike Madden tossed a line pass to Humpy Hanna who scored a try. The extra kick was good.

The Old Loads game will be played at the rugby pitch behind Abe Martin Field at noon Saturday. A pigroast will be held after the game. It is sponsored by the ruggers.

Saluki catcher Steve Boyd threw out Creighton's Steve Blutz, who was trying to steal second base in the sixth inning of the first game Saturday. Mike Gellinger applied the tag for SIU-C. Since Boyd returned from a knee injury, the Salukis have shut down enemy base stealers.

Salukis in first place, almost at .500 mark

By Daryl Van Schouwen
Staff Writer

Indiana State's double-header sweep of Illinois State Monday put the Saluki baseball team in a tie for first place in the Missouri Valley Conference.

The Salukis, who take on Illinois in a non-conference twin-bill at Champaign Wednesday, are 17-18, but 7-3 in the MVC with four games to go — against 6-4 Indiana State at Abe Martin Field this weekend.

The Salukis are tied with 7-3 Illinois State, which managed just one win in its four games played on Saturday and Monday at Indiana State. Illinois State plays four games at home against Bradley this weekend.

"Being in first place doesn't feel any different," said Saluki Coach Itchy Jones, whose team has been slowly gaining on the .500 mark the past three weeks. "We still have to approach every game the same way, and that means going out and winning every one."

The first-place team in the regular season hosts the MVC tournament, held May 12-15. The winner of the tourney receives an automatic bid to the NCAA Regional.

The Salukis have won five straight games and eight of their last 10. Jones said the difference in his team's play has been a turn-around in one-run games. Until two weeks ago, SIU-C had lost nine of 10 by one run. Since then, the Salukis have captured five of six.

The Saluki hot streak, Jones said, coincides with the return of junior catcher Steve Boyd, who has provided leadership behind the plate while putting an abrupt end to the base stealing tactics of SIU-C's opponents.

"I like to call him our equalizer," Jones said.

Jones said the insertion of senior Dan Cassidy at shortstop "has stabilized our defense." Cassidy stepped in about the same time that Boyd returned.

Although the Salukis are not hitting with the zeal Jones would like, they've done some little things to strengthen their offensive attack, Jones said.

"We've executed the sacrifice and hit behind the runner," he said. "And we're hitting the ball sharper."

Still, Scott Bridges is Jones' only regular hitting over .300. He's batting .361. Cassidy is at .313, but he's had only 32 at-bats.

Although Wednesday's games are non-conference matches, Jones wants them as bad as any other. SIU-C hasn't had a losing record since 1954, when the Salukis went 10-11. A Jones-coached Saluki team has never been under .500

Moreover, the 22-25 Illini represent a fierce in-state SIU-C rival.

"I've always said we've done them a favor by putting them on our schedule," said Jones. "We never had anything to gain by playing them. They had everything to gain by beating us back when we had our better teams."

Jones said he may use as many as seven pitchers in Champaign, since he wants to keep every one strong for Indiana State. Right-hander Jay Bellissimo, who has been out for two and a half weeks with an ankle injury, could get some work in, Jones said.

Illinois will probably start a pair of lefties, Terry Wells (3-3, 5.49) and Joe Oiker (4-3, 3.76). Illinois used its top starters in Big Ten double-headers Saturday and Monday. The Illini own a 3-6 conference mark.

Wells was second in the country in strikeouts per innings-pitched last year. This year, he has 42 strikeouts and 47 walks in 11 games. Oiker, who doubles as a center fielder, is one of the 44 finalists to make the U.S. Olympic Team.

Seattle takes Taylor in first round of draft

By Jim Lexa
Sports Editor

Terry Taylor, former SIU-C cornerback, was selected 22nd by Seattle in the first round of the National Football League draft Tuesday.

Taylor, the All-American, who helped lead the Salukis to the NCAA Division I-AA national football championship last year, was the fourth cornerback taken in the draft. He was the first player drafted who did not play I-A football last year.

Taylor is the second football player from SIU-C to be drafted in the first round. In the 1972 draft, former Saluki offensive lineman Lionel Antoine was selected by the Chicago Bears in the first round.

"Terry's the type of football player you can line up with and win," Seattle Head Coach Chuck Knox said. "I've got no qualms about a rookie starting at cornerback."

The Seahawks lost two of their top cornerbacks from last year's playoff team that lost in the American Football Conference championship game.

Terry Taylor

Kerry Justin started the team's last 11 games at left cornerback and Gregory Johnson was the team's nickel back, before both left to play in the USFL.

Dave Neubert, the assistant public relations director for the Seahawks, said Seattle went into the draft with a "special need" at cornerback, and that the Seattle coaches liked Taylor's "toughness and speed."

"We thought Terry would be gone when we picked him."

Neubert said. "Our coaches had Terry going higher in the draft than when we actually got him."

Former Saluki Coach Rey Dempsey said he was not surprised Taylor was taken in the first round.

"I felt last year that he would be drafted in the second round," said Dempsey from his Memphis State football office. "I thought he was among the top 40 to 45 players in the country. After the USFL draft, I felt that he had a good chance of going in the first round."

"What really helped him out was that he kept going to more and more of the football camps and he was doing real well at them. I know a lot of people really liked him."

Taylor is the first player coached by Dempsey drafted in the first round.

"I'm so excited. It made my day," Dempsey said. "He's a great one. He's the best defensive back in the country."

Taylor has not signed a contract with Seattle yet, nor

Defenders dominate NFL draft

NEW YORK (AP) -- The National Football League went heavily for defense and offensive linemen while choosing only one quarterback and one running back in the first two rounds of its annual draft Tuesday.

After New England ratified its choice of wide receiver Irving Fryar of Nebraska, already signed to a four-year, $2.6 million contract, and Houston did the same with Fryar's ex-terminator, guard Dean Steinkuhler, the NFL shifted emphatically to defense.

Of the next 14 picks, 13 were defensive players. Only Philadelphia, which used the fourth pick of the draft to take Penn State wide receiver Kenny Jackson, broke the mold.

The Chicago Bears, picking 11th, took linebacker Wilber Marshall of Florida. The choice was thought to be a calculated risk. Expected to go much higher, Marshall apparently scared off other teams with his reported demand for $1 million a year over four years that surfaced during his talks with Houston, which wanted to take him with the second pick in the draft. There also were reports that he was locked up by Tampa Bay of the USFL. But Marshall said those reports were untrue.

"I wanted to play in the NFL all along," he said. "It was a childhood dream."

The St. Louis Cardinals, picking 17th, chose one of the few offensive players — wide receiver Clyde Duncanson, who spent most of his career backing up the Chicago Bears' Willie Gault at Tennessee.
