Vol. 32, No. 14 * Single Copy 3c * Carbondale, Illinois, Nov. 7, 1950

Vincent Sheean, Author-Correspondent, Opens Lecture Season Tomorrow Night

Name SIU as Site Of Press Meeting

Southern Illinois University has been selected as the permanent meeting place of the Southern Illinois High School Press Association, Donald R. Grubb, journalism instructor, announced today. The 1950 conference will be Nov. 17-18.

More than 90 high schools are invited to attend the meeting, which will be highlighted with an address by a guest speaker. Other events scheduled for the program are discussions, a skit by university journalism students, a movie, "Newspaper Story," news writing contests, and a dance.

APPROXIMATELY 300 students and their sponsors are expected to come from high schools within a radius of 60 miles.

A number of schools beyond the 60 mile radius also have membership in the press association.

In the news writing contests, first, second, and third place awards will be given for the best news story, editorial, original cartoon, and original advertisement submitted.

"The press association, which was organized in the early 1930's, is beginning a new phase of its expansion program by planning a larger, more inclusive conference for 1950," Grubb said.

Childhood Problems Discussed at Clinic

"Why Children of School Age Worry Their Parents" and "What Children of School Age Worry About" were the two main discussion topics at the quarterly meeting of the Child Guidance Clinic held here Thursday and Friday.

The meeting was conducted by the Illinois Institute for Juvenile Research and the Child Guidance Clinic of the university.

A PROFESSIONAL staff of Chicago psychiatrists and a psychiatric social worker conducted discussions and assisted in the case studies of children with problems in classroom and home adjustment.

Clinical cases are examined by the university Child Guidance clinic throughout the year. Children who have behavior or sensory difficulties or other maladjustment problems are studied in order that corrections may be made as soon as possible. At present, the clinic is scheduling cases for thirty days in advance, according to Dr. W. A. Thalman, clinical director.

LIBRARY OPEN SUNDAYS

In order to permit students to study for final exams, the university library will be open Sundays Nov. 12, 19, and 26 from 2 to 5 p.m.

World-famous author and correspondent Vincent Sheean will open this season's Entertainments and Lectures committee schedule with a lecture in Shryock auditorium tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Born in Pana, Ill., Sheean later studied at the University of Chicago, where his studies were interrupted by World War I. In 1921 he took a brief turn as a newspaper reporter in Chicago. Further newspaper work in New York led him to Europe and a job on the staff of the Paris edition of the Herald Tribune. Later he visited Persia and China for the North American Newspaper alliance.

He was an eye-witness to many of the events that led up to the outbreak of World War II. In 1942 he was commissioned in the intelligence division of the Army Air Corps. He participated in the African campaign, saw duty on the Sicilian and Italian fronts and in the Indo-China theatre. Placed on inactive service late in 1944, he again went to Europe as a war correspondent with General Patton's Third Army.

AFTER THE WAR he covered the San Francisco Conference for ABC. He was in India in 1948 and was an eyewitness to Gandhi's assassination. In the winter of 1948-49 he made a four-months trip to India, Arabia, Indonesia, Singapore and Tokyo. In the spring of 1949 he again journeyed to Europe to cover the Paris meetings of the Foreign Ministers council.

In addition to his writings as a correspondent, Sheean has also written approximately ten books, both fiction and non-fiction, including two books which have been selected by the Book-of-the-Month within the past two years. His "Personal History," which appeared in 1935 revolutionized book-length reporting and became an international best seller. His latest non-fiction book, "Lead, Kindly Light," discusses the relation of Ghandi and the truths he lived for.

The lecture is open to the public and no admission will be charged.

Student Council Asks Athletic Committee To Act Against Negro Ban

Student Council members voted unanimously in a meeting last week to send a recommendation to the faculty athletic committee that Southern not play in athletic events against schools who do not accept Negro players.

The recommendation was made after discussion about the recent game with Arkansas State Teachers' college. Four of Southern's players were not taken to play in the game because of an Arkansas State ruling.

ALSO AT THE meeting tentative organizing chairmen for committees to work on the Career Day conference were appointed. General co-chairmen for the conference, which is to be held here in February, are Tom Sloan, president of the Student Council, and Doris Schwinn.

Tentative chairmen of committees are Bill Waters, program committee; Jan Mayer, hospitality; Earl Cox, usher committee; Bob Smith, discussion; Jim Throgmorton, publicity; and Mona Williams, arrangements.

Other appointments made were Bill Turner and Willeta Smith who are to be the temporary Student Council chairmen of Senior Day.

Also during the meeting the Council voted to sanction the World Student Service fund after Jan Mavers-presented material on it. The Student Council plans to conduct a drive for this fund which was established to help universities in need in other parts of the world. Plans for the drive will be made at a later date.

Concert Climaxes SIU Choral Clinic

Approximately 1300 students from 35 Southern Illinois high schools took part in the tenth annual Choral Clinic-Festival at Southern Illinois University Saturday.

Guest director of the clinic was Dr. Burnet Tuthill, nationally known choir director and chairman of the college of music at Southwestern college in Memphis. Floyd V. Wakeland, director of the university choir and founder of the clinic, was in charge of arrangements.

After spending the day in rehearsal, the choral group presented an evening concert at Shryock auditorium. A feature of the program was a group of selections by a combined Madrigal group from Benton, Carmi, Murphysboro, and SIU.

TO ATTEND MEETING

Miss Marjorie Savage, instructor in home economics will be in Chicago Nov. 17 for a meeting of the State Home Economics association.

Forty SIU Men Enter US Military Service

By BOB COOVER

The United States armed forces have attracted, called, or demanded the services of forty Southern Illinois University students this term, according to reports released by the Dean of Merf I. Clark Davis.

Although only three have been drafted, 13 have been recalled into various Marine, Army and Navy units. Thus far National Guardsmen have been spared Uncle Sam's call.

On the other hand, 24 men have enlisted on their own initiative since school began in September. Ten have joined the air force, six have signed up for terms in the navy, and eight listed their choice as "armed forces" or army.

AT PRESENT Southern is following the credit policy for students entering the military service that was followed the beginning of World War II.

At that time a student who left to enter the services before the first half of the term was over received half credit for each course he was taking. Those who attended more than one-half of the term received full credit, with the grade he was making at the time of withdrawal.

All fees will be refunded if a student withdraws within the first two weeks of a term for military service.

Robert F. Etheridge, assistant dean of men, was recently appointed Military Service Officer for SIU by Dean Davis. The appointment was made as a service to students subject to military duty either through the reserves or through the draft.

Etheridge, through contact with various branches of the service and draft officials, will maintain a file containing up to date information on existing regulations as they affect the college student.

ALTHOUGH the general interpretation of the law is that induction of college students is postponed until the end of the school year, providing they are in the upper half of their class, Etheridge said, "most draft boards are following their own private policies."

He added that he plans to keep in constant contact with the local draft boards about the state concerning their draft policies, in order to keep the Southern student better informed.

Those who have been drafted thus far are Charles Brown, Carbondale; Carl Hess, Christopher; and Thomas Robinson, West Frankfort.

Hopson Eugene Haile, Eldorado; Rodney S. Gawlik, Brookfield; Joseph Budde, Belleville; Ernest Bozarth, Carbondale; Frank Turok, Murphysboro; Clifford R. Williams, Makanda; Robert L. Steele, Hartford; James Barth, Marion; Donald E. Hood, Carbondale; Le roy Dale Siville, Hoopeston; Francis Matthew Weber, Murphysboro; Hampton William Lillard, Clinton, Ky., and Jack David Entsminger, Carbondale have been called back into the service.

THE UNITED States Navy has attracted Bill L. Piper, Salem; Gene Rehn, Carbondale; Robert Griggs, Galatia; Thomas C. Barton, Herrin; Donald E. Cook, Harrisburg; and Kenneth E. Anderson, Streator.

John Pete Licos, Jr., Carbondale; Frank Bird, Jr., Carlyle; Lester Verlin Boone, Mt. Vernon; John Andrew Fly, Carbondale; Thomas R. Mabry, Thompsonville; Melvin Rull, New Douglas; Leon Scroggins, Harrisburg; George Starasta, Christopher; Ellis McMillan, Centralia; and William H. Fraley, Carbondale joined the US Air Force.

Eight men listed "armed forces," "armed services," and "army" as their choice when they enlisted. They were Arvelle Isbell, Carbondale; Richard E. Chapman, Herrin; Carl Ferrell, Jr., Jonesboro; Robert F. Mutz, Alton; Walter H. Dorgan, Jr., Chicago; Raymond G. Hollman, Jacob; Eugene T. Sanders, Christopher; and David King, Jr., Mulke;town.

prentices is already underway and another for retail salespeople is planned to start in the next few weeks.

The program is the university's vocational-technical institute under the direction of Dr. Ernest Simon, director of the state board for vocational education. At SIU, he will serve as associate director of adult education as well as director of the institute.

SIMON, WHO has been on campus since Sept. 1, is rapidly putting plans into action to begin special training in trades and crafts. The

FINAL ASSEMBLY OF TERM TO BE HELD THURSDAY

What is the pancratium? That question will be answered at the fifth and final assembly of the fall term Thursday at 1 p.m. in Shryock auditorium.

The assembly is being sponsored by Southern's Student Council.

Case of the Wrong X

Numerous wrong crosses were made today as elections were held across the nation, but we feel the biggest mistakes in marking ballots were made by those who put an X at the top of the ballot in either the Democratic or Republican circle, thereby indicating a straight ticket.

We agree with the interesting letter which appears elsewhere on this page that no party has all the good men—be it a national, state, or campus election.

WE THINK THAT marking a straight ballot in most cases indicates either ignorance or laziness. A person either is so lop-sided in his political beliefs that he thinks his party has all the best men or he is too lazy to try to find out which candidates (on both sides) are the best.

We do not mean to condemn political factions, but we do want to condemn the persons—be it in voting for national officers or class officers for voting a straight ticket—unless the person really feels all of one's parties' candidates are the best.

When persons wake up to this fact and start splitting their ballots, then we will be on the way to having better officials. B. H.

Let's Hold the Line

State budget officials have issued a warning to colleges and universities that they face an uphill battle if they expect big appropriations from the 1951 legislature.

Officials hinted that if the money isn't available, then colleges may be asked to raise their tuition fees to pay more of their own costs.

We realize that the natural reaction would be to say, "Students can't afford another hike in tuition fees. It will cut the enrollment."

NATURALLY, every student wants to go to school as cheaply as possible and still get a good education. No one likes to pay excessive tuition costs.

Although we probably will be gone from this institution by the time any increase would go into effect, we agree with Board President Dr. Leo J. Brown who says that any increase in rates probably would affect Southern more than any other state school.

Why? Because many students at Southern are going to college on a very limited budget. We know several students personally who are on such a small budget that even minor increases in tuition, room rent, or board could easily force them out of college. We personally know of a few who have quit school because of increased expenses. Others go only two terms a year and then work the other six months to get enough money to come back to school.

FURTHER EVIDENCE of this is brought out by a poll of Southern students made a year or so ago when a huge number of students said they are coming to Southern mainly because its expenses are cheaper than others. We realize that this may not build Southern up very high in the eyes of many educators, but the low tuition rates certainly enable many of us to go to college.

We think every possible move should be made before Southern's tuition rates are again boosted. We feel almost certain that there is a better solution.—B. H.

One Sentence Editorial: If the weather we experienced in October and early part of November is called "Indian summer," then we say "Three cheers for the Indians."

Lack of ammunition is no problem in Western movies. Modern times have converted the famous "six-shooter" into a "Sixty-shooter."

Pocket Size Books Can Be Big Help To SIU Students

by Harry Reinert

Most students have noticed lately that on the main floor of the library is a section of pocket size editions, with a sign overhead which reads, "For Inspection Only." For the benefit of those who are puzzled by this unaccountable phenomenon, the secret is out.

In brief, the showing displayed so far is the beginning of a student service to be offered by the library. Most people are not aware that many pieces of the very best literature—both fiction and non-fiction—have been published in this small size. In order to bring this to the attention of the students, and to make it easier for the students to acquire some of these for their own libraries at a low cost, the university library is collecting the better low-priced editions from each company for display, and will also furnish order blanks for use by the students.

The procedure will be somewhat on this order. The student finds certain books that fit his interests and pocketbook. He fills out an order blank for the book and gives it to one of the clerks at the circulation desk. The order is sent to the publisher through the bookstore. When the book arrives, the student is notified and can pick it up at the bookstore.

The library staff is to be highly commended for its far-sighted and practical approach to the problem of student personal libraries. It is an indication of an understanding of the growing emphasis on learning at Southern, and furnishes a means whereby the student may have some of the best books at low prices.

A vote of thanks also goes to the Student Council and the advisory council for changing the Christmas holidays schedule in order to allow students an opportunity to work during the rush season.

This fall we said we felt that registration had become about as painless as possible. This week we heard of a new system which will probably be used winter term, and will make registration absolutely painless.

Letters to the Editor . . .

Reader Attacks Campus Politics, Sphinx Club

Deaf Editor:

Everyone in America is screaming these days in connection with the shady tactics employed by some of America's politicians.

Playing politics to the extent that our very country is governed by political schemes is looked upon as one of the faults of our government. But looking at the situation locally, it can be seen that political schemes are just as much in evidence on this campus.

No better example can be given than the recent class officer elections. As usual, one party practically ran away with the honors, placing their candidates in all but two or three positions. This could be the case in some instances. But one party does not ALWAYS have the top candidates, nor does one party deserve to fill ALL the positions. Thus it can clearly be concluded that the students at Southern are not voting for the person, but for the party. And in our case, that is hardly a homogeneous condition.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE is the so-called honor organization of this university, the Sphinx Club. Students who have stood out clearly in scholastic, campus, and various extra-curricular activities deserve to be elected to this type of an organization. Even the platform of Sphinx Club would have one believe that this is the case. But the Sphinx Club has not been practicing what it has been preaching. Certainly, this club has named to its membership outstanding students. But it has also let politics creep into its platform, so that now a person with four or five friends in the club can be elected thumbs down. In the process of these elections, a "turn about is fair play" policy has been closely followed. In other words, if I get your man in, you must help me get mine elected. In effect, we have a very fraternal group organized, but we do not necessarily have Southern's outstanding students.

Since most of us like to think we turn up our noses at dirty politics, it is ironical that we are currently rubbing these noses in the political grime of the campus. Certainly there is better use for the proboscis.

Sincerely yours,
(Name Withheld)

Alumnus Directs Alumni Services

Wayne Mann, a graduate of Southern, has returned to take the position as director of Alumni services here. Having just completed his work for a doctor's degree, Mann, formerly of Shattuck, Ill., replaced Dr. Orville Alexander in this position.

Since graduating from Southern in 1942, Mann has, in addition to completing his education, spent three years in the army and has made a name for himself in the business and educational fields. He is married to the former Ruth Barkley, an alum of Southern, and they have two children.

Mann is perhaps best known for his establishment of an organization known as Mann Enterprises in Palo Alto, Calif. Upon his discharge from the army in 1946, he originated the business in order to develop new inventions and patents. Since its beginning the business has grown nation wide.

WHILE IN THE army Mann served as a first lieutenant and as a special agent in the army engineers on Gen. MacArthur's staff in the South Pacific. He toured the west coast last summer as a reserve officer and lectured on communism.

At Stanford university he received a master's degree in guidance and then completed work for a doctor's in educational administration. While going to school he was employed as a director of a night school in Palo Alto, served as a high school counselor, and taught history and health classes.

While at Southern, Mann was an editor of the Southern Alumnus. He was also a member of the student council, Sphinx Club, and a member of Kappa Pi Kappa, Pi Delta Epsilon, Gamma Theta Epsilon, and Nu Epsilon Alpha fraternities. At Stanford university he was a member of Pi Delta Kappa, PTA, and the American Society of Military Engineers.

Talks, Area Tours To Be Featured at Forestry Meeting

In connection with Forestry Week Nov. 6-12, recently proclaimed by Governor Stevenson, Southern is sponsoring a forestry conference tomorrow, Nov. 8, to which students and faculty members are invited, according to Dr. W. E. Keeper, chairman of the agriculture department and the committee on arrangements for the conference.

Highlights on the conference program are tours of Southern Illinois forest sites. Two such tours will be offered—one through territory surrounding Murphysboro and the other to scenic places around Harrisburg.

THE TOURS are open to the public. Meeting place for the Murphysboro tour is at the Murphysboro Ranger station on Highway 144 at 9 a.m. Thursday. The Harrisburg tour will leave from the Horning hotel at 8:30 a.m. Friday.

Conference meetings will be held tomorrow from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. with talks and panels conducted by professional forestry and agriculture workers. Some of the speakers will be Charles Shuman,

Illinois Agriculture Association president; Dr. J. Nelson Spaeth, head of the U. of I. department of forestry; John F. Preston, Soil Conservation service, Washington D.C.; and Jay Price, regional forester from the U. S. Forest Service.

AT 2:30 p.m., True D. Morse will speak on the subject, "Put 'Waste' Land to Work." Mr. Morse is president of Doane Agricultural Service, the oldest and largest farm management and rural appraisal and research organization in the U. S.

Speaker during the evening session will be Dr. Leonard Hall of Possum Trot farm in Missouri. Although a well-known lecturer, Dr. Hall is most widely known as a writer. For the last several years, he has written a column which appears in the St. Louis Post Dispatch.

The evening session will begin at 7:30 in the Little Theatre. The public is invited to hear both lectures. There will be no admission charged.

DURING THE conference an exhibit of forest products and equipment will be on display at the barracks next to the Art Center.

The University Library has two forestry exhibits currently being displayed under the direction of Miss Ruby Kerley, head of the reference division.

LIVING LIKE A KING

Those of you who have read the success story of Mrs. Karras' boy, Johnny, which has recently appeared in Colliers and Sport magazines, have no doubt been laughing a bit at the way which Karras' financial situation has been explained. For aside from being one of the greatest football players the game has seen, Karras is also reputed to be one of the best off financially.

And do you know how he got that way?

Well, frankly, I don't! After all, if Karras gets only what has been said in print, he wouldn't be well off financially at all. This is what he gets above board: A job in the P. E. department, which pays $50 per month, free room and board at a local fraternity house, and a mentionable allowance from daddy, who owns a tavern in Argo.

Of course, all of us could struggle along with that. But it is probable that Karras gets more, much more, than that. For in most of the Big Ten schools, each big-name athlete has a financial father, who usually is a wealthy alum. These second fathers take the athlete under their wing, and provide him with treasures that even the pro's can't obtain. In fact, when Karras eventually graduates and turns professional, he'll probably have to take a cut in salary.

Johnny Karras is probably living the best years of his life right now. So if you younger readers have any ideas about obtaining quick success, here's how to do it: Just be an All-American.

HOME SWEET HOME

Now let's bring the matter closer to home. The job in the P. E. department, for instance. Most of our athletes can acquire a similar job at the same salary. But the rest of it...

Karras, as has been mentioned, gets free room and board from the fraternity to which he belongs. This is a policy at many of the larger schools throughout the country, and it looks like a good idea. Of course, it has its drawbacks, and at once brings up the question, "Where do they get the money?"

We won't attempt to delve into the financial situation, we'll leave that up to the frat men themselves. But a homogeneous condition could be created between the athletic department and the fraternities here if a similar plan could be carried out. To put it bluntly, we'd have better football teams.

Naturally, this puts a tremendous amount of responsibility on the fraternities in which this plan is carried out. But it would reap rich harvests. For instance: If we had a great athlete living, free of charge, at each of the five fraternity houses on the campus, we would have five great football players on our first eleven. And right now, five great football players would put us at the top of the I.A.C.

It is asking a lot, and puts a lot of weight on the shoulders of the fraternities. However, no better example of cooperation could be given, and we think few better plans worked out under our circumstances.

It's a big step, but it's something to think about. Who knows, we might even have another Johnny Karras here someday.

Maroons Meet Michigan Normal After 21-7 Loss To Eastern

The Southern Maroons are looking up to Friday's encounter with Michigan Normal after their 21-7 defeat at the hands of Eastern State last Saturday. For now, after suffering two successive setbacks, the Maroons have but two games left on the agenda, and the nocturnal encounter Friday looks like their best bet for victory.

Although the Maroons played one of their best games of the season at Charleston, it just wasn't good enough. The Southern line played without a doubt a commendable game, but the pass defense left as usual, something to be desired.

Passes set up all three Charleston scores, and resulted directly in one tally, for Eastern would take to the air, after the Maroon line held on numerous tight occasions, and attain their end. Actually, Southern's line outplayed Eastern's and the boys from Charleston are, by their coach's admission, crippled for the season.

In all, five Eastern men left the game via the injury route, one man suffering a broken ankle, and the other four suffering other leg injuries. And for the second time this season, the Maroons luckily escaped without any serious defects, other than coming out on the short end of the score.

Southern scored in the second period, after the Panthers had taken a 7-0 lead at the end of the initial stanza. The Southern boys took the ball on their own 45, and Harold Call climaxed a sustained drive when he went off tackle from the four to score standing up. Chuck Oyler booted his third consecutive extra point to make the score read 7-7 at halftime.

But the Panthers took over in the scoring department during the second half, and were able to score twice while holding the Maroons scoreless.

This Friday night, the Maroons are slated to play their first night game in the school's history, provided the lights are ready for use. Michigan Normal, a new conference foe beginning next season, will provide the opposition.

Although Michigan is rough and while they have fared well against other I.A.C. members, the Maroons will have a little better chance with them than will be the case the following Saturday against Western. This Friday's contest, which is the second annual Shrine classic in Southern Illinois, is expected to be the Maroons' biggest drawing card of the season. Tickets and advanced sales point to one of the biggest crowds in the school's history.

The Maroons should definitely be "UP" for the contest, inasmuch as most of their injured men are rounding into shape. However, Lou Bobka, the first-string right guard, is still out and probably will be for the remainder of the season with a head injury. The Maroons may operate out of a single wing formation, as they did against Eastern. Bob Ems made his first sustained appearance of the season, and should be ready to go strong
