Grenada invasion questioned

By Charles J. Hanley
Associated Press Writer

The Grenada invasion leaves dozens of unanswered questions, uncertainties, inconsistencies bobbing in its wake.

Confusion stems from strict U.S. military controls on the news media. Some stems from poor communications, hasty conclusions, or the failure of U.S. authorities thus far to release documentary evidence to support contentions of a Cuban buildup on the Caribbean island.

Since confusion apparently is the result of deliberate miscalculations.

The "credibility" problem has prompted one White House press officer to quit his job and congressional leaders to organize a fact-finding visit to Grenada.

Here, in capsule form, are the major questions mark on the invasion:

News Analysis

WHAT WAS THE MOTIVE?
Chiefly to rescue Americans? To achieve "geo-political" goals by ousting Cubans from Grenada?

In announcing the invasion Oct. 25, President Reagan said the "overriding" reason he ordered it was to protect 1,000 American residents of Grenada in the aftermath of a bloody coup.

Two other reasons: to forestall further chaos, and to help restore "governmental" institutions.

Two nights later, in a nationally televised address, Reagan reaffirmed his concern for the American residents, but focused "... sharply on the Cuban presence on the island and what he said was a communist plan to turn Grenada into "a major military bastion to export terror."

The U.S. troops "got there just in time," he said.

Prime Minister Eugenia Charles of Dominica, which contributed forces to the invasion, described the invasion as "a matter of preventing the thing (Marxism) from spreading to all the islands."

WHEN DID THE U.S. DECIDE TO INVADE?
Administration officials said Reagan made a tentative decision late Sunday, Oct. 25, after receiving a "surprise" request Saturday from a half-dozen eastern Caribbean states for intervention.

But Caribbean security forces were already assembling in Barbados by Sunday.

A State Department official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said the decision had been made in the middle of the previous week. And Tom Adams, the Barbados prime minister, said the U.S. action were in the works a week earlier.

Adams said he was informed Oct. 15 the United States was considering an invasion to rescue Grenadian students who had been taken from house arrest four days before Bush was killed in a grenade attack on the University of the West Indies campus.

Grenada invasion questioned

Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, will be seeking public support of a $3 increase in the student athletics fee when he speaks to the Student Senate Wednesday at 6 p.m. in Ballroom D of the Student Center.

Swinburne said Monday that if of the proposed athletics fee increase would be placed in a fund for the repair, replacement and modernization of SIU-C athletics facilities.

The remaining $5 would be used to offset an expected increase in the student athletics fee revenues caused by projected increases in ticket sales, student enrollments, Swinburne said.

The plan would allow SIU-C students free admission to Saluki athletic events, he said.

Professional Student Council passed a resolution by a 29-13 margin on Oct. 28 to support the fee increase proposal.

Swinburne appeared before the Undergraduate Student Organization on Sept. 7, at which time he reported on the proposed fee increase for the repair, replacement and modernization fund.

On Sept. 22, Swinburne said the "absolute minimum" acceptable fee increase would be $5, which included a $3 increase to offset expected declining enrollments.

The senate is not scheduled to consider any legislation concerning the proposed athletics fee increase at its meeting Wednesday.

The Illinois Board of Higher Education is adding state public universities to recommend that high school students take certain subjects to qualify for admission, and SIU Chancellor Kenneth Shaw says private institutions should meet the same requirements.

The IBHE unanimously approved several proposals Tuesday seeking public universities in the state to stress three areas in its requirements for high school students planning to attend college. But Shaw suggested that the board review the private college requirements.

A group of SIU-C students are seeking recognized student organization status for Students for Simon, one of several organizations forming on state university campuses to support U.S. Rep. Paul Simon's bid for the U.S. Senate.

The group has just begun the application process for RSO status which requires a first organizational meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 10, in the Student Center.

According to Jim VonBoeckman, coordinator of the Simon campaign office, the organization office "doesn't have a name" and the group will enable the group to use Student Center rooms for activities and setup tables there to distribute campaign literature.

VonBoeckman said the group hopes to receive funding from Simon's state campaign office and may conduct some fund-raising events of its own.

Voter registration and getting students registered for election day are the group's major goals, said VonBoeckman, a freshman in political science.

He said he hopes to sign up at least 400 registered voters at registration booths in the Student Center and at other locations on campus.

Ray Quintanilla, coordinator of student and Hispanic communities for Simon's state campaign, said students are "a natural constituency" for the Makanda Democrat.

"Every piece of student financial aid legislation goes through the House of Representatives on higher education, " Quintanilla said, and "Paul has stumped it all, 100 percent."

Quintanilla said chapters of Student For Simon have been working on every state university campus and will be instrumental in organizing activities when the candidate visits the campus.

Voter registration work is essential, Quintanilla said, and may be dovetailed with telephone calls and door-to-door registration to encourage eligible voters to cast ballots.

"SIU-C Students for Simon will do whatever it takes to promote Simon's campaign," he said, such as mailing campaign literature and staffing information booths at SIU-C's Student Center.

VonBoeckman said he expects about 50 members of the SIU Democrats group to join Simon for Senate.

IBHE approves new standards for college admission

It ought to be good advice since we're making recommendations for state higher education in general," Shaw said after the IBHE's November meeting in Chicago.

"There are a number of students who are making college visits," Shaw said. "What will be the consequence of the lack of communications, hasty conclusions, or the failure of U.S. authorities thus far to release documentary evidence to support contentions of a Cuban buildup on the Caribbean island."

The study of a foreign language for two years is also encouraged.

Simon fans to apply for RSO status

Senate tables nuclear freeze but proponents still optimistic

By Karen Terry
Staff Writer

The proposed nuclear freeze bill that Senator Paul Wellstone faces a setback in the U.S. Senate Monday. But a Senate official says the resolution is still alive.

The Senate voted 56-41 to table the resolution. That would have added the freeze resolution to a critical debt limit bill, which must be approved for the federal government to continue borrowing money and stay in business.

Four Senate votes would have ended the debate and sent the resolution to the House of Representatives. The Senate official said Monday that 53 senators opposed the freeze.

"We've learned from this that we must keep up the pressure because they will target it, we must do this as a whole issue if we don't," Nick Rion, a beard spokesman for the Michigan Freeze Project, said Tuesday.

Rion criticized Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., and said the Senate needs a "balanced freeze" resolution, but called Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill., "a vote to not table it a victory."

"We're pleased to see that Dixon did this, especially in light of his record for weapons," said Rion. "The largest is Percy."

"Percy has told the freeze movement that we have to put some sanity back into international policies and negotiate in earnest to stop the nuclear arms race," said Rion, who accused Percy of "smokescreening" the freeze issue. "And then he has the gall to vote against the nuclear freeze support of the nuclear weapons "build down."

The build-down proposal, supported by freeze opponents, calls for the United States and the Soviet Union to destroy two nuclear weapons for every new one built.

However, after the build-down vote, Cohen moved to strike a "sense of the Senate" amendment that was intended to only "show the sentiment of the Senate" and was expected to "build down," according to Robert Spess, a psychologist and family therapist, and will have a panel which includes Ernesto Croatto, a professor of political science, and Jeffrey Kellogg, a child psychologist experienced in dealing with drug problems.

The second part of the seven-hour panel will be on the two stations next Wednesday, Nov. 4 at 7 p.m. and will be followed by a live call-in panel show. The panel program is called "Community Answers," and is designed to help parents and young people to use the resources available to them to affect drug abuse.

"The last thing we need is another panel of experts who will be telling us what to do," Spess said. "This is an action oriented type program." he said, "and that's the kind of it for our stations."

The program was produced by WQED Pittsburgh for Public Broadcasting Service. The show is hosted by the lady Nancy Reagan and has been produced through the efforts of the American Association of Public Broadcasting. The show will be seen by nearly 300 PBS stations across the nation.

The program talks about the use and abuse of drugs and various experiments, regular use, abuse and dependency.

American's most of them medical school students, were threatened with arrest or being turned over to the Grenadian military junta, repeatedly assured U.S. authorities that the Americans' safety was guaranteed.

The students sounded divided. After evacuation, some said they believed that Grenada's "shoot-on-sight" policy was lifted before the invasion. All were terrified during the invasion.

Last Friday, senior Reagan administration officials acknowledged to the Senate Intelligence Committee there had been no actual threats or arrests of American residents of Grenada.

THEnapTIVE CUBAN HOSTAGES?

Secretary Caspar Weinberger said last Friday that he had directed the "intelligence reports" of plans to take American hostages on Grenada.

But U.S. intelligence sources later said there was evidence any of the Americans were in danger of being taken hostage.

Suit against company proceeds

By Anne Plazza

SIU-C is still pursuing a $45,000 civil suit charging the overage of American television production company with breach of contract, according to Shari Rhode, chief attorney.

The suit, filed on March 25, charges William C. Addison, owner of the St. Louis based company with breach of contract, and seeks from him both the $22,500 still owed and an additional $22,500 in costs incurred in trying to collect the money.

Eleven of eight Phoenix VI enjoyed last year, now are being not televisable. In addition to the three Phoenix II's, about carried by three outlets, the company had contracted to cover three basketball games, a gymnastics meet and a swim dual.

Rhode said that because of construction work under way at the Jackson County Courthouse no court date has been set. She said she could not estimate when a date would be set.
At least a $5,000 contract bond for performance, given to the University by Addison, cannot be released until the court rules breach of contract, Rhode said.

"Right now there's some controversy as to who that money belongs to," Rhode said.

Speakes said that WCIU was the only station where some services performed, it would be up to the court to determine if there was a breach of contract, she said.

"USC had the rights and we still have the contract," she said.

"WCIU and the champs of what we're taking," she said.

"We're thinking that it's not a party," she said.

"If we didn't win the contract, we wouldn't have that money," she said.

"In terms of the lawsuit we have received benefits for this," she said.

"If we didn't have the contract, we wouldn't have the money," she said.

"But we'll be willing to go on in terms of the lawsuits," she said.

"I think that the costs of the lawsuit will be more," she said.

"Right now we are using it for our own operation," she said.

EXAMINATION OF HIGH SCHOOL REQUIREMENTS, REQUIREMENTS

"Homeward Bound" is a theme of the SIUC Veterans Association's entry in this year's Homecoming Parade. This entry is designed to draw attention to, and support for, the 2500 U.S. servicemen still held as Prisoners-of-War or listed as Missing-in-Action in Southeast Asia.

We need your support in making this one of the most powerful statements ever made by a student organization during Homecoming festivities. A parade formation of as many persons as wish to participate would be very instrumental in helping create community awareness about the plight of these servicemen and friends.

Anyone wishing to join us in this cause is more than welcome. Formation will be at 6:30 a.m., Saturday, Nov. 5, in parade position #6 on Monroe St. (betweem University and Illinois Avenues, directly across from Al Baba's). For more information, call Kevin Jane at 325-1782 (leave message), or Penny Murray at 635-7341, 8 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., Mon. thru Fri.

Our thanks to the National League of Families and the Illinois Department of Veterans Affairs for their support of this cause.

Alan Dixon: three-dimensional politician

By Brad Lancaster

Dixon is a three-dimensional politician, to be one of Illinois’ most interesting public figures. An examination of Dixon’s reputation not only gives us insight about him, but also uncovers some of the characteristics and processes of the American political system.

For Illinoisans Dixon is well known as a “winner.” While we have been able to vote him up, his votes, it may well be that Dixon has accumulated more votes than Illinoisans from any other Illinois politician. Dixon started career in 1967 and has won every election since.

Dixon’s first office was a judicial one. At age 21 he was elected to the position of police magistrate, a position which since has been eliminated by judicial reforms.

In 1969, when he was 22, Dixon ran for and won a seat in the Illinois House of Representatives. After serving six two-year terms, he became Speaker of the House for two four-year terms. Still only in his 40s, Dixon has been a member of the Illinois House for 28 years, and a member of the Illinois Senate for 21 years.

In 1978 Dixon won the Democratic nomination for treasurer in a close general election he won 50 percent of the vote. As Dixon put it in his book, “Illinois Blue,” he had “secured the nomination for treasurer in a primary election.”

In 1982 Dixon won the Democratic nomination for governor in a close primary election he won 50 percent of the vote. Dixon was re-elected to the Illinois House of Representatives in 1982.

Dixon’s proposal is a long way from realization, but it is clear that Dixon may well have the time and skill to put together the needed political coalition in his behalf.
One-room school principal may be lowest paid

McLEOD, N.D. (AP) — At $6,500 per year, the principal of a one-room school in North Dakota may be the lowest paid teacher in the United States, according to a survey being conducted by the National Education Association. For 14 years, Janice Herbranson, 49, has taught at the Sandland School in McLeod, which has five students.

She figures she can make ends meet only because she owns the only bar in town.

Herbranson said she was surprised but understood the situation when told last week she might be the country's lowest paid teacher.

She said she asked herself, "If I'm the poorest paid, am I the poorest teacher?" The answer is no, she said.

"It would bother me if they were sitting on loads of money and felt that was all I was worth," Herbranson said.

"I don't suppose I could live on that salary if it was my only income."

The Department of Speech Communication's Calipre Stage will present their rendition of Joseph Heller's "Catch 22" Thursday through Saturday.

Ken Hawkinson, a graduate assistant in speech communication, adapted and directed the performance. He said that it is an ironic tale about a World War II pilot who tries to convince his fellow pilots and commanding officer that they shouldn't be involved in the war.

Hawkinson said the performance is a chamber theater production, in which the characters themselves take over the narration and explain their inner feelings and emotions.

"Chamber theater is very true to the story of the novel. We didn't change things to enhance the performance. We just changed things to enhance the novel," Hawkinson said. "Four of the nine members of the cast play four to five different characters. And they have to be so convincing in these roles that the audience will be able to distinguish, between these characters."

Hawkinson continued, "I had to indoctrinate the actors into a character, one minute they have to be one character and the next another. But these guys (the cast members) were so energetic about being in the performance, getting in, it wasn't any problem."

Hawkinson said the eight males and one female of the troupe handled the biggest task of switching from conventional theater to this type of narrative theater extremely well.

In the last 3½ weeks, the relatively young cast has developed a great camaraderie during the duration of the production, Hawkinson said. "They rehearsed on their own together, they partied together and ultimately formed it from a really strong ensemble," he said.

The faculty adviser for Catch 22 is Ronald Felias, who Hawkinson said aided him in putting the script together and suggesting different styles and techniques of directing.

"It is sort of a tradition in the Department of Speech Communication for students to direct a performance by providing different styles and techniques of directing. And ultimately formed from it a really strong ensemble," he said.

The director also said the SIU-C branch of the Army ROTC contributed to the performance by providing uniforms and props for the actors.

"ROTC even fit each member individually with a pair of boots," he said.

Some of the actors in Catch 22 are: Tyler Vazfield, sophomore in radio and television who will play the narrator; Alan Stevenson, a freshman in theater who will play the protagonist 'Yossarian,' the sympathetic pilot; and Bill Ferguson, a junior in radio and television who will play the role of Colonel Catilcare, the villain of the story.

The performances will be held in the Calipre Stage Theater in the Communications building.

Tickets may be obtained in the Calipre Stage box office for $2.50 each. For more information, persons may call the Department of Speech Communication.

Body Heat
Eatery reviewers’ new forte is food in addition to Freud

By Terri Levecke

Entertainment Editor

A pair of psychology professors, after eating their way through Morocco, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, and Mexico, have eaten their way through Southern Illinois — and decided to write about it.

Stephan N. Haynes, professor of psychology, and Linda R. Gannon, associate professor in psychology, have been friends since Stephen began teaching here seven years ago. They’re both single and the two eat out often.

“We eat out 10 to 12 times a week,” from fast food to full meals, Haynes said. Gannon isn’t quite as extreme, she eats out an average of five times a week.

Their book, “The Southern Illinois Epicurean,” contains tidbits about 41 restaurants to their liking from all over Southern Illinois and over-the-border Missouri towns.

The book humorously depicts restaurants from traditional Carbonton spots like Booty’s and The Garden to places like Jerry’s Big Jigger in Wamac, where the atmosphere is described as a combination of an Icar Mountain saloon, a Polish wedding, and a Sonic drive-in.

“We simply eat out a lot, like to have a good sense of humor and travel around Southern Illinois a lot,” Haynes remarked.

Researching this book wasn’t all pleasant, butfortastes and pleased palates, though.

The pair also visited 47 “lively arts” establishments, some of which they “felt thankful to escape unmaimed.”

Thirteen of their favorites are included in the book.

The book is for anyone who likes to eat out, Gannon said. “People who move to Carbondale get the impression that there’s only Burger King and McDonald’s,” she said.

The authors plan to continue writing editions of the book each year. Restaurants that were rejected for the current edition will be revisited.

“Now that we’re doing this, we’ve heard of all kinds of new restaurants, like a five-star Korean restaurant in Belleville,” Haynes said.

“One of our goals was to provide incentives to restaurants.” Haynes said.

The book was published by Wayne County Press in Fairfield and will be distributed in local bookstores, Arnold’s Market, and Cloud Nine in University Mall for $4.95. Books can also be obtained by mail.

Symphony Orchestra to give concert

The work of Rossini, Vivaldi, Shostakovich, Ponce and Mozart will be included in a concert presented by the SIUC Symphony Orchestra set for 8 p.m. Wednesday in Shryock Auditorium.

The 56-piece orchestra will be conducted by Robert Ketman, assistant professor of music, and a concertmaster of violinists and a faculty member of the School of Music and Dance.

Joseph Bzrnikar on the guitar and Terry Norman on the oboe.

Ketman is also a School of Music faculty member, and Norman is a student assistant.

The concert will feature the humorous, tongue-in-cheek “Overture to the Divine Comedy” by prankster composer Gioachino Rosini; “Concerto for Oboe and Orchestra in A Minor” by the violinist priest Antonio Vivaldi, and "Symphony No. 3 Allegretto” by composer Dimitry Shostakovich, who sometimes composed to conformist standards and sometimes departed into free expression.

“Concerto del Sur For Guitar and Orchestra” by Mexican-born Manuel M. Ponce is a superb vehicle for the soloist, and the concert will conclude with the happy and free-spirited “Marcha Vaquera” by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart.

The concert is open to the public and is free of charge.

Carpet cleaner turns $12 in Lotto tickets to $6 million

CHICAGO (AP) — A 26-year-old carpet cleaner who turned $12 into $6 million when he won the Illinois Lottery's Lotto game says he plans to spend it on travel, "wine, women and song."

Kenneth Natzke, a bachelor from south suburban Burbank, learned he'd won the top prize Sunday morning when his roommate awakened him with the winning numbers.

The final — and winning — combination of numbers Natzke played last week was 24-25-26-31-33-36. He also spent $33 instead of the $6 he routinely spends on the game each week.

Natzke said Monday he plans on quitting his job with Carson Pirie Scott & Co. Asked whether he'd be bored without a job, Natzke replied, "I think I could sell my own shoes.

As the second $6 million winner in Illinois, the 26-year-old Natzke will receive checks of $300,000 during each of the next 20 years.

Betty Gless of Glen Ellyn became the first $6 million winner in the Lotto game two weeks ago.

In addition, 196 people picked five of the six winning numbers to receive $1,105.50 each, while 11,419 people picked four of the numbers and will receive $79.50 each, Lottery spokesman Joel Feldstein said.

"Those individual second and third prizes are the largest second and third prizes in the history of Lotto," Feldstein noted.

Lottery officials select the six winning numbers as well as a seventh, alternative lotteries.

Applications are now available for the positions listed below for Spring Semester.

Bald Knob Cross will be setting for ‘dream’ Passion Play series

By Debra Colburn
Staff Writer

Robert Cundiff would like to see the Bald Knob Passion Play become a tradition.

Cundiff, a doctoral degree student in theater, is writing the play which will be presented at Bald Knob Cross near Alto Pass.

Passion plays typically cover the last week of Jesus Christ’s life. But Cundiff says he plans to broaden the subject matter of his play beyond the last week: “I’d like to start with John the Baptist and end with the ascension.”

Fifty-seven performances of the play are set, for June through August. They will be held in addition to the annual Easter sunrise service, which has been held at Bald Knob Cross since 1931.

As amphitheater and stage for the play will soon be under construction, Cundiff estimates construction costs will exceed $60,000. The budget for the first-year performances is $115,000, Cundiff said. Funds from private and public sources are being raised by Cundiff and the Cross of Peace Foundation, which owns the Bald Knob Cross.

Cundiff chose to write the passion play because he said it tells the story of the most important week in history. The play is one of three that he is writing to fulfill requirements for his doctoral dissertation.

The major characters of the play will be the same as in the historical records, with Jesus Christ as the central character. He said he may develop other minor personalities in the Biblical account. Cundiff, 38, has taught and directed plays at Pillsbury Christian schools, Baptist Bible College in Minnesota, where he received his bachelor’s degree. Cundiff said he came here a couple of years ago with a great interest in SIU-C’s playwriting program. He hopes to cast the play with people from Southern Illinois.

The desire to write plays for Christian schools, groups and churches is what brought Cundiff to this area.

Directing the play will be Don Ryerson, of Bob Jones University in South Carolina, where Cundiff earned his master’s degree in dramatic production.

Special effects will be used in the play, but only if they are an important part of the story, Cundiff said. The ascension of Christ will probably be one of the scenes where they will be used. Commenting on how that would be accomplished, Cundiff smiled and said, “It won’t be done the way the original was.”

He said he would also like to have an earthquake during the resurrection scene that would require a careful combination of lighting, sounds and scenery. “I believe the story of the crucifixion and the events of Christ’s life has the power to change lives and historically has changed the lives of many people,” Cundiff said.

In addition to writing the play, Cundiff will also serve as general manager.

Last phase of study begins

By Charles Victor
Staff Writer

A group from the Organization for Economic Cooperation studying the problem of financial constraint on higher education in the United States got off to a brisk start on the third phase of their study at SIU-C, Monday afternoon.

The delegation, which had broken up last week into three groups for detailed investigation of the effects of financial constraint on staffing policies at the State University of New York, academics at University of Michigan and financial management at Ohio State University, reunited at SIU to analyze their findings and devise ways to present them to larger European and American audiences for implementation.

Both SIU officials and members of the 14-member delegation were very enthusiastic about the visit. "The responses from people on our campus have been very encouraging," said Charles Klasek, director of International Education at SIU.

"People have been calling our office and coming in to talk with members of the delegation," he said.

For David Laughton, chairman of the Higher Education Authority for Finance in Ireland, the visit has been "both exhilarating and exciting but more of the former," he said laughingly.

O'Laoghaire who was one of the members of the study group, Jan Gevers from the University of Michigan, said, "We usually thought American universities were free enterprise affairs but I was surprised at the many regulations you have, almost as much as Europe. This makes management more difficult." Gevers was impressed with way American university officials approached problems. "They are all so cheerful and creative in the face of problems," he said.

The visit, a brainchild of John Davies, assistant dean of the Anglo-American Regional Management Center, came as a result of a need for "more answers to the problem of financial constraint facing European universities." Davies said, "We could have gone to one of two places, Australia and New Zealand or North America, but chose America because it is nearer and the bulk of literature on the subject comes from here.

Davies also said, "In the last five years there hasn't been enough communication between OECD and American universities except for a few presentations. We needed to get beyond presentations by coming here and investigating specific universities to get an actual feel for things," he said.

According to Davies, the visit would have been more possible without the help of Klasek, and Robert Berdahl, director of the Institute for Research in Higher Education at the University of Maryland. "Chuck and Bob were the two American corners of a triangle," he said. "Bob was our academic advisor who organized the orientation and chose the universities to be studied and Chuck was the financial manager who organized the final week and handled the administration of the visit," he added.

The delegation is expected to complete its work by the end of the week and leave on Friday.

Master teacher criteria set

By Anne Flasza
Staff Writer

Gov. James Thompson's advisory committee on master teachers was椅子 to the areas of instructional effectiveness, school-community activities and professional activity and development. A fifth category, which Parker said was called "other information," would deal with an instructor's reasons why he should be selected as a master teacher. Each of the committee will not recommend a specific philosophy of teaching. "It's been shown that there is not one philosophy that seems to be more effective," he said.

Funds totaling $637,000 have been appropriated by the state to provide $1,000 awards to 500 outstanding teachers from each of the elementary, middle, and senior high school levels. In return for the awards, the teachers selected will be asked to spend three days of their time working with other teachers Parker said, "If they don't want to do this, or are philosophically opposed to the idea of awards, we're not going to ask them." Parker said that teachers will comprise at least one-half of each selection committee, with other committee members coming from school boards, business community, and do what they can to better the field.

Because master teachers will be asked to observe, lecture or participate in workshops with other teachers, Parker said instructors will only be considered if they file applications for the honor with the superintendents of their education service region. Parker said teachers who are recommended for the award by other instructors or employers will not be considered unless the instructor being recommended has filed an application. "They are going to be asked to spend three days of their time working with other teachers," Parker said. "If they don't want to do this, we're philosophically opposed to the idea of awards, we're not going to ask them." Parker said.

Selection committees formed in each of the state's 13 education service regions will then consider each applicant within that region. Parker said that teachers will comprise at least one-half of each selection committee, with other committee members coming from school boards, business community, and do what they can to better the field. If all goes as planned, Parker said selection committees could be reviewing applicants by April 1. Application forms will probably be distributed through schools, Parker said, and notices will be placed in professional journals.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Scientists said Monday, a nuclear war would find themselves starving would be even worse than had been believed.

"We have a very good reason to be scared," Paul R. Ehrlich of Stanford University said at a conference on the long-term effects of nuclear war. Ehrlich and Carl Sagan of Cornell University spoke for more than 100 scientists who participated in the two-year study.

"The extinction of the human species would be a real possibility," Sagan warned. He said that even a relatively small nuclear war could trigger major changes in climate which would destroy crops and endanger millions of people. Sagan estimated that a major nuclear exchange would kill 1.1 billion people and critically injure a similar number.

"The blast would inject a huge dust cloud into the atmosphere cutting off sunlight and causing temperatures to drop well below freezing for weeks," Sagan said.

Newly-appointed team captain Roy Birch gave an accurate assessment of Perry's strong point. "The important thing about Kenny is his size," Birch said. "For a man that big he's very quick. He can go mix it up inside and he can play outside. He'll have no problems for opposing centers trying to guard him."

He's long and lean and takes up a lot of space in there when he extends those long arms. Defensively, I like for Kenny to block some shots and get some rebounds. Kenny should be an intimidating factor.

BIRCH was also red-shirted last year and had the opportunity to see Perry in action during Saluki practice sessions. "There were times when Kenny was intimidating in practice," Birch said. "He was a force out there. If he plays hard there isn't anything I'll like.

Following a productive freshman year at Evansville, Perry sustained a stress fracture in his foot his sophomore season. As a result, the big guy lost his starting position and about 20 percent less for Evansville Coach Dick Walters.

He was about an average player role, he decided to transfer to SIU-C.

Halas funeral set Thursday

CHICAGO (AP) — The doors of Halas were closed. Old Bears no longer will be returning to the alumni party to share memories with the man they loved and gave their all.

George Halas died Monday night in his apartment from pancreatic cancer at the age of 88. He had been in and out of hospitals since spring.

Old Bears who are still around will have one more gathering Thursday — at the funeral of the man they revered. Visitation will be Wednesday from 4 p.m. CDT to 9 p.m. CDT at the Birren and Son Funeral Home. Mass will be said at 11 a.m. CDT Thursday at St. Ha's Catholic Church and burial will follow at St. Alasbert Cemetery.

Meeting scheduled for Goodtimegirls

Any women interested in assisting with the varsity swimming meets are invited to attend an organizational meeting for the group, the Goodtimegirls, at the Recreation Center observation area at 5:15 p.m. Thursday or by the pool house, 2 and 5.

Duties include timing, scoring, ticket taking, hosting and various clerical duties necessary for all outstanding meets. Home meets this year include Southern Methodist, Arkansas, Indiana, Miami, Conference USA Invitational with eight teams, one of which is the University of New England, and the Saluki Invitational. Jennifer Spahn is chairman of the Goodtimegirls.

Jenny Perry

"It was hard playing hurt because it affected my concentration and enthusiasm," Perry said. "One of the reasons I decided to red-shirt was to give my foot a chance to heal and get stronger. It feels great now."

PERRY has been married three years and has a 13-month-old daughter, Lyndsay, who he calls his "pride and joy." He said he chose SIU-C over other schools because it's near his hometown, Evansville, and he feels he has respect for Van Winkle and assistant Coach Stafford Stephenson. Stephenson was an assistant coach at Evansville Perry's freshman year.

Perry doesn't think his one-year layoff will hinder his play. "I've heard different things about setting out," he said. "Some say the comeback can be slow-going. But I think we'll surpass it by what we accomplish in practice. I think we'll be ready to play when the season starts."

Van Winkle wasn't concerned about the layoff, either. "The layoff isn't ideal but it's not worth worrying about," Van Winkle said. "Kenny worked hard over the summer and he practiced with us last year. He's hungry to play basketball."

"He may make a few mistakes at first, but hopefully they'll get worked out in time. A layoff has a greater affect on the team than the individual. I think as an individual Kenny will come back and do a super job."

set and four match points in the second set and a couldn't muster the win.

"It was pure luck for Miller that I lost to him," Wadmark said. "I was playing so well. My volley was going well, my serves hitting the spots and I was so consistent. But he was so quick at the net and he played well in the clutch."

Wadmark said the tournament will help him in the future.

"This tournament gives me more confidence now," Wadmark explained. "I used to be a little scared to play someone I knew or heard was good. Now, I'll play anyone."

Wadmark and the Salukis will be playing some of the best when they participate in the Oak Hill Invitational this weekend in Belleville.

and gives me a boost when I see her playing in from nowhere, illner has been pleased with Lauer's progress this season.

"There has definitely been improvement this year," Illner said. "I feel she has a tendency to feel the ball one way and it pulls the other. She had a tendency to hold the ball too long and that's the big thing she has improved in.

Lauer will probably never forget her audition at Wham Field when she visited SIU-C as a senior in high school.

Lauer tore ligaments in her right knee playing basketball her senior season in high school. Because of the injury, Lauer's audition in March was switched to late May. Within the first 15 minutes of the audition, Lauer re-injured her knee when she went up against Weil on a one-on-one.

"I thought J.J. (illner) didn't want me there and I was holding my breath," Lauer said. "She held my scholarship until I showed her that my knee got better. My doctor didn't believe in surgery and I worked out a summer to rehabilitate it."

One of the variables which influenced Lauer in choosing SIU-C was that she has relatives in Cobden. Another variable was she could get away from home.

"One of the reasons I came to Southern was so I could reach out to other people," Lauer said. "If I went to school back home I would be with my friends and I wouldn't reach out to others. I love to travel and it gives me an opportunity to go to different places and meet different people.

Lauer was recommended to Illner by her high school coach, Libe Bartley, and former SIU-C player Lynn Dooley, a high school official in New Jersey. They have recommended former player Karen Trons, Linda Brown, and starting right wing Jennifer Bartley.

Lauer prepped at Middletown North High School in Belmar, N.J., and was a three-year starter on the varsity. She was an all-conference selection and the team's co-MVP her season.

Do you remember when losing was the fashionable thing for Illinois college football teams to do?

Not anymore. In fact, several university squads have made losing a joke. SIU-C, Illinois-Chicago, Eastern Illinois and Northern Illinois have all turned the losing mode around.

I suppose Northwestern is doing well this season, considering the history. The Wildcats are 2-4, 2-10 in the Big Ten. Since Dennis Green arrived on the Wildcat campus in 1981, his squads have gone 5-25, including four in his inaugural season in 1982.

THAT DOESN'T SOUND too good, but in the five years before Green took the coaching job, Northwestern went 3-24-1, with nine losing seasons in a row. So maybe Green deserves some credit for lifting Northwestern out of its doldrums. But if you want a real success story, just look over to McAndrew Stadium and watch the Salukis. They are not from a tailgate party. Coach Ray Dempsey has a 50-36 record and is in his ninth season at SIU-C.

More importantly, though, he has his squad at 9-0 this season while holding the No. 1 ranking in 1-AA football. The Salukis are in the midst of an 11-game winning streak, which is the longest in 1-AA football and just four short of the school record set more than 39 years ago.

Dempsey took over a program that went 8-11 in the four seasons before he showed up in Carbondale. His first year here, in 1980, his squad had a 7-4 record. He has had only two losing years at SIU-C, both in his first year with the program.

PROBABLY THE ONLY collegiate team in Illinois with more exposure than the Salukis is the Fighting Illini. The Illini are in the driver's seat for the Rose Bowl. They have a 7-1 record, 6-0 in the Big Ten.

Before White and his passing attack areatin' at Illinois, the Illini squad managed just one winning year since the Saluki team went 6-4. With this season, White is assured of his third winning year in a row. His passing attack made Bo Schembechler of Michigan a little upset, and after Saturday's 14-6 win over Michigan, Bo's probably a little more upset.

The goal posts have gone down after wins over Iowa, Ohio State and Michigan this season. The Illini have brought Rose Bowl fever to Champaign, and if they win the Rose Bowl, they probably be drinking champagne also.

ANOTHER SQUAD that has made winning excpetptional this year is the Illinois football team. It is the Fighting Illini's first bowl bid since 1978. That was the year when Darrell Mudra arrived as coach, finishing 1-11-1. All his squad did was go 1-10 while winning the Division II championship.

Last year, his squad finished 2-9 and had not had a winning year in 15 years.

So the next time fans from Notre Dame or Georgia start knocking Illinois football, go ahead and agree—but point them to Soldier Field and mention the Bears.
