Veteran's Club may picket Thompson

By Robert Green
Staff Writer

Before his face-to-face debate with Adlai Stevenson at McLeod Theater Tuesday, Gov. James Thompson may face a picket line of angry veterans.

Ron Scott, president of the SIU Veteran's Club, said club members will picket Thompson in front of the theater to protest the demise of the Illinois Veterans Scholarship.

Scott said the Vet's club has "about 75 members, and hopefully we'll have quite a few people there. We're supposed to be there at 7 p.m."

In September 1981, Thompson signed a bill containing an amendment which terminated the scholarship for Illinois veterans who served after May 7, 1975.

Speaking at the Vet's Club meeting Thursday, Kenneth Buzbee, D-58th District, said most of the state legislators who voted for the bill were not aware of the scholarship amendment.

"The elimination of the scholarship was presented as an amendment to a bill in the waning hours without any previous discussion or indication," Buzbee said. "It was a very busy mood, and nobody realized it was going on."

Buzbee said unlike most of the congressmen, he "barely caught" the amendment and was the only one to vote against the bill.

He said a freshman congresswoman presented the bill for the Thompson administration, and even she didn't realize the scholarship amendment was attached.

"I said 'do you realize what this is doing? You are cutting out anybody after 1975,'" Buzbee said. "She expressed surprise and said she was just doing what the Illinois Office of Veterans Affairs had wanted."

Buzbee, a lieutenant colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve, said the veterans affairs office is doing what the governor wants, and is ignoring the needs of veterans.

"If they served honorably they should be given an opportunity to go to school," Buzbee said. "I'm going to fight to get it reinstated."

He said he will introduce a bill in January to reinstate the scholarship.

"It will take between $8 million to $12 million to reinstate it, but it's money that can be found," Buzbee said. "I think we should look at the cost benefit of veterans going to school."

Buzbee urged members of the Vet's Club to organize a letter-writing campaign to legislators asking them to reinstate the scholarship.

"Petitions don't impress legislators, but individual letters do," he said.

Perry Murry, coordinator of veteran affairs at SIU-C, said the termination of the scholarship for Illinois veterans who served after May 7, 1975 applies only to those who have not used the scholarship before Sept. 16, 1981, when the bill was signed by Thompson.

Murry said there are over 1,100 veterans attending SIU-C, about 1,000 of whom receive some form of veterans educational assistance. He said 167 SIU-C veterans now receive the Illinois Veterans Scholarship.

He said the state, at Thompson's request, has not been fully funding the veterans scholarship program. As a result, he said, some schools are not honoring the veterans scholarships and are requiring that veterans pay their own tuition.

Murry said partial funding is costing SIU-C over $300,000 annually, and he said the University has considered refusing to honor the scholarships.

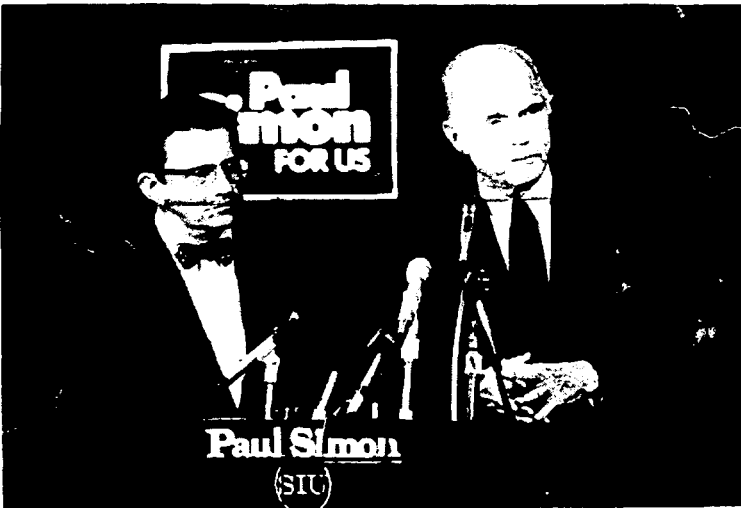

Murry also noted that there seems to be a slight increase in the number of veterans at SIU-C because of the current state of the economy.

"A lot of guys are coming back to school who are out of jobs," he said. "They know they at least have a few benefits."

Reagan's cuts ground promise of opportunity, senator says

By Bob Delaney
Staff Writer

Ronald Reagan's two-year flight as president, highlighted by spending cuts toward education and research, has grounded America's promise of opportunity, Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, said Saturday in Carbondale.

Glenn said America needs to raise its sights to opportunity and regain the status it once held in the world. But he said America could only do so by reversing a policy of funding cuts that have slammed the door on Americans.

"Democrats have learned from past mistakes," Glenn told about 800 at a $50-a-plate fundraiser for Rep. Paul Simon. "We know we can't solve problems by throwing money at them, but you also can't throw job losses at them."

The 61-year-old lawmaker is campaigning for congressional Democrats who can reverse policies set by Reagan.

Glenn, who visited about 30 states in the past year, also is testing the waters for a possible run at the presidential nomination in 1984. Glenn said a decision about his running would be made later this year.

A possible opponent in 1984 would be Reagan, who Glenn said has cheated Americans of a dream of hope. He said Reagan's promise of 1980 has broken down into the longest unemployment lines since the Great Depression, the biggest deficit in American history and spending cuts that have deprived Americans of education.

Republicans have been given a chance, he said, and with more than 11 million unemployed there is no more time for their programs.

Democrats are returning to an economic philosophy that

USO trying for 'conscientious' Halloween

By William Jason Yong
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Organization plans to send letters to about 15 Illinois public universities to "encourage visitors to be more conscientious on Halloween weekend," according to USO President Jerry Cook.

The letters will cite statistics obtained from the Carbondale Police Department indicating that the majority of criminal violations committed during last year's Halloween celebration were possible by people from out of town, Cook said.

The statistics showed that of the 32 persons arrested, 23 were from out of town, six were from SIU-C and three were Carbondale residents. The cost to students as a result of the misconduct, mostly vandalism and theft, totaled $18,868, he said.

By sending letters, Cook said he hopes to make visitors more conscientious of the community.

"Visitors are unaware of the statistics," Cook said. "If visitors realized that 72 percent of those arrested last year were from out of town, they might change their attitude."

He said that every Halloween, visitors "trash our community and leave."

"We hope that the letters to be sent about two weeks prior to Halloween, will have some impact on visitors' attitude," he said.

Cook said this year's letters will be "very different" from those sent last year.

Last year, a senator used USO stationery to send letters to various universities in Illinois inviting students to come to Carbondale for Halloween. "Whereas last year's letters were sent to invite out-of-town people to come to Carbondale for Halloween, this year's letters aim to make visitors more conscientious toward public property during Halloween," Cook said.

He said the letters are not meant to be advertisements, but reminders to people that safety begins with the consideration and respect of other people and their property.

Cook said he also has requested that the City Council evaluate the installment of 20 portable chemical toilets during Halloween.

The "porta-potties" cost $40 a piece and the initial number of 20 would have been used as a try-out this year.

"If in future the city administration wanted to continue their use, the number could be increased to 40 or 60," Cook said.

However, he said the council is not in favor of the proposal on the grounds that the "porta-potties" are not safe.

"The city administrators do not want to adopt measures which would appear as though they are condoning Halloween," Cook said.

He said he suggested to the City Council that each bar along the Strip contribute two "porta-potties." The remainder would have been financed by the city, the USO and the University.

"The city government was not supportive of my suggestion," Cook said. "I guess my suggestion went down the toilet."

Officials seeking one person for Tylenol-cyanide poisonings

CHICAGO (AP) — The killer who poisoned seven people by putting cyanide in Extra-Strength Tylenol bottles is believed to have filled the capsules with poison at home and then placed the bottles prominently in stores, authorities said Sunday.

The form of cyanide that killed the seven random victims is available in school chemistry labs and metal plants, the Illinois attorney general said as chemists and detectives searched for clues to the seven killings.

Authorities were checking on several leads in the investigation, including a shoplifter arrested in late August for stealing Tylenol and reports of suspicious customers at stores where the poison was found on shelves, Attorney General Tyrone Fahner said Sunday. Police artists were sent out to interview employees.

Two police officers who picked up what are believed to have been Tylenol capsules in a parking lot became ill the next day, and authorities ran tests to see if the capsules contained cyanide.

Fahner said authorities believe the poison was placed on shelves "probably the day before" the first three deaths were reported Wednesday.

"It is an act of a random murderer who filled the capsules with cyanide and then placed them in the stores," said Fahner, who is heading a task force of some 75 investigators from 15 state, federal and local agencies including the FBI. Forty-three state chemists were working around-the-clock in the investigation.

Fahner said evidence indicates a single person "went around the Chicago area salting the store shelves with one bottle of contaminated Tylenol (at a time)." The stores were as much as 40 miles apart in Chicago and its northern and western suburbs.

"Tylenol is as much a victim as those who died," he said. "Somebody just picked on this product."

There have been no ransom demands. Fahner said investigators believe the killer bought or stole Tylenol from a store, took it home, filled the capsules with cyanide and placed the bottles in the front of store displays so they would be bought quickly.

Police also said Sunday that a fourth batch number of the capsules was involved in the deaths. A woman who died in Winfield, a far west suburb of Chicago, had capsules from lot MB1833. There was initial confusion over the batch number in that case because she apparently mixed Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules with regular Tylenol.

The first two batches implicated, lots MC 2880 and 1910MD, were recalled nationwide by the manufacturer, McNeil Consumer Products Co., a subsidiary of Johnson & Johnson.

The last known victim, 35-year-old flight attendant Paula Prince, was found dead Friday night in her Chicago apartment, a few steps from a 24-capsule bottle of Extra-Strength Tylenol she had bought at a nearby drug store. Authorities believe she died Wednesday.

All the other contaminated bottles contained 50 capsules.

The pills in Miss Prince's apartment were from a third batch, lot 1801MA. That batch has not been recalled and neither has the fourth.

So far, five bottles of contaminated Tylenol have been found, and each was traced to a different store.

Fahner cited that fact and the adulteration of bottles from four batches in saying investigators believe the tampering was not done in factories or distribution centers handling the best-selling over-the-counter pain remedy. Authorities have determined that the bottles containing the poison came from several manufacturing locations and didn't cross paths during distribution.

Fahner said authorities confirmed that the poison was potassium cyanide.

U.S. Food and Drug Administration investigators late Friday found a bottle from lot MC2880 containing cyanide-laced capsules on the shelves of a retail outlet in suburban Schaumburg. Investigators hoped to obtain fingerprints from the bottle, the only one so far that wasn't in the possession of a victim.

The FDA has urged consumers nationwide not to use Extra-Strength Tylenol for the time being, and Johnson & Johnson has offered a $100,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of whomever was responsible.

Gunmen ambush Israeli troop bus

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Gunmen ambushed an Israeli troop bus Sunday near a mountain village, and an Israeli army spokesman said there were casualties.

The rightist Christian "Voice of Lebanon" radio station said an unknown number of Israeli troops were killed or wounded in the attack near Aley, 10 miles southeast of the capital.

U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib was reported to have left Syria to continue his mission to secure withdrawal of all foreign troops from Lebanon. Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir said in New York that Habib told him the armies would leave "by the end of this year."

Teamsters chief defends his record

CHICAGO (AP) — On the eve of his trial on charges of conspiring to bribe a U.S. senator, Teamsters Union President Roy L. Williams insists he is innocent and expressed contempt for reporters and Justice Department officials.

Williams, 66, goes on trial with four co-defendants Monday in U.S. District Court.

"I will be exonerated when I have my day in court," said Williams, who is accused of conspiring to bribe Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., into voting against a trucking deregulation bill by allegedly offering him a lucrative Las Vegas land deal.

Outlook optimistic for pro-choice

WASHINGTON (AP) — The defeat of anti-abortion legislation in the Senate and successes in the primary elections have improved the chances of pro-abortion candidates in November's election, says the head of the National Abortion Rights Action League.

Nanette Falkenberg, NARAL's executive director, says politicians are more willing to support abortion publicly after seeing the New Right's failure to get anti-abortion legislation through the Senate.

Council to act on Sunday wine sales

By Mike Nelson
Staff Writer

The City Council is scheduled to decide Monday if Carbondale citizens can drink wine Sunday mornings.

The council is scheduled to make a decision on Holiday Inn owner Stan Hoye's request to serve wine beginning at 10 a.m. Sundays at its formal meeting at 7 p.m. Monday in the City Council Chambers, 607 E. College.

Under the present ordinance, no alcohol may be sold or consumed in licensed premises between the hours of 2 a.m. and 1 p.m. Sundays.

According to City Clerk Janet Vaught, the Liquor Advisory Board will recommend that the council deny the request. The board met immediately after a public hearing last Monday. Vaught said it was the consensus of the board members present to recommend denial of Hoye's request.

Mayor Hans Fischer and Councilman Archie Jones have both publicly stated their opposition to the request.

In other business, the council will discuss upholding a city policy requiring that all organizations except the United Way pay the standard fee for placement of banners downtown. The council is acting on a request from the Undergraduate Student Organization to place banners heralding Carbondale Cleanup Day at specified locations without charge to the USO.

At the USO's monthly council address Aug. 23, Cleanup Day chairperson Jody Patton said she thought that the council had formally approved installation of two Cleanup Day banners at no charge to USO. When Assistant City Manager Scott Ratter informed Patton that this was not the case, she requested that the matter be returned to the council for formal consideration.

precludes the economy trickling down from the power, according to Glenn. He said Democrats need to control federal spending without using an axe on social programs, reform the tax system without employing "Alice in Wonderland" theories and end unemployment.

Glenn criticized Reagan's $25 million tax cuts spread over three years when a tax hike was passed this year. He said Senate reports predict a $160 billion deficit this year and a $180 deficit next year.

"The president has a lot of gall," Glenn said. "He's got to stop this policy of telling people he is resolved from responsibility."

Reagan, after losing a battle in Congress to pass a balanced budget amendment, blamed it on a partisan vote and suggested that names should be taken and those politicians opposed for re-election. But Glenn said Reagan "could submit a balanced budget to Congress tomorrow."

Glenn, who vowed Americans in 1962 when he became the first American to orbit in space and is considered a hero to Americans, said Americans should once again raise its sights. "We did something to Americans," he said. "It wasn't just the resources we had. We became a beacon of hope and opportunity."

That beacon has been tarnished in the past two years, he said. He told listeners that education and research is the base to restoration of American hope and industry.

Americans have always prized education since they first migrated across the country, he said, but now people will not be able to return to school in the fall because of spending cuts.

"People on the wrong side of the tracks may lead a blighted life if not given the opportunity."

At the same time that

America is being surpassed by Japan and other countries in research and education, there are billion dollar education cuts, he said.

Simon, speaking at his own fundraiser, predicted Saturday that America would be well-served by a John Glenn presidency.

Simon knocked Republican challenger Pete Prineas, who has promised to have "tunnel vision" for Southern Illinois in order to return jobs to the depressed area.

"Tunnel vision won't produce results," Simon said. "You can't help the Southern Illinois economy without paying attention to national interests."

The Democrat defended his record of bringing jobs into the region as well as protecting existing jobs. In 18 out of 22 counties in this district, unemployment rates over the past five years haven't risen as fast as in the rest of the state, he said.

Opinion & Commentary

Editorial and Letter Policies—Opinions expressed here do not necessarily reflect opinions of the University administration. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the newspaper's Editorial Committee, whose members are the student editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a Journalism School faculty member.

Letters for which authorship cannot be verified will not be published. Students submitting letters must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department. Letters should be typewritten and must not exceed 250 words. All letters are subject to editing.

Set-up portable toilets for Halloween crowd . . . or stink!

Crisis is one of the most common words in the world. But in the welter of crises facing us today, there is one that touches almost every individual sometime or other, often more than once. Simply put, it is the crisis of needing a toilet at an awkward time and when no toilets are available.

Come Halloween, many a beer bloated bladder is going to be in trouble. With over 15,000 revelers expected this year, toilets are going to be at a premium during the celebrations.

The Undergraduate Student Organization has proposed that City Council place chemical "porta potties" on the Strip on D-Day. The City Council, unfortunately, has found it wise to decline. According to Assistant City Manager Scott Ratter, portable Johns may spawn other crises. Ratter thinks they could prove a safety hazard if the crowd takes fancy to passing potties instead of bodies — especially when there is someone in.

Some kind of temporary sanitation is in order for Halloween. Potties could be located in isolated spots, a little away from heavy crowd concentrations, with little markers showing the location. Unruly as it may be, the crowd can be expected to draw the line at passing potties. Even if they did it would be an obvious operation, easily spotted and easily stopped.

Perhaps even some way of securing them should be explored instead of giving the idea up.

To say providing extra sanitation facilities is tantamount to condoning Halloween is too big a jump in logic. By the same token, even providing first aid could be construed as support for Halloween.

Halloween will come with all its attendant problems. It must be handled in the best possible way. Providing toilet amenities is part of doing our best.

DE judgement in question

I write in response to the several letters printed by the DE by Khalid Suleiman. I can only guess that the DE editor seeks to elicit opposing letters by the repetitious printing of Mr. Suleiman's opinions. His letters are so hate-distorted, however, it makes reasonable rebuttal difficult, if not impossible.

It also raises serious questions about the judgment and integrity of the DE. Mr. Suleiman has been permitted lavish exercise of his right to free speech. We are all quite aware of his racist opinions, and his viewpoint contributes nothing to understanding the tragedy in Lebanon. He has had his say. Now, it is time for the DE to exercise responsible editorial judgment, or we shall have to assume that the DE's editorial judgment indeed reflects DE opinion. Ann-Janine Morey-Gaines, Religious Studies.

Paper can become hate-sheet

I object strenuously the decision of the DE to publish the scurrilous hate-sheet which constitutes Khalid Suleiman's article (DE, Sept. 23).

The DE must seriously evaluate its role as a college newspaper and there must be some decision of its editorial board as to what constitutes legitimate opinion and what constitutes hideous propaganda of the ilk of the late Joseph Goebbels.

There is a critical need for some moral standard in any newspaper; the alternative is to degenerate into a hate-sheet patronized by likes of the American Nazis, the Ku Klux Klan and others of society's lunatic fringe. — Meir Lev, Chairman, Microbiology.

Peltier controversy revived

By Jennifer Phillips
Staff Writer

Leonard Peltier. Not a household name.

Peltier is a native American presently serving two consecutive life sentences in Marion Federal Penitentiary for the killing of two FBI agents at Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota in 1975.

He and his supporters say he didn't do it.

The government says he did.

But, even after five years of prison (he was convicted of the crime in 1977), Peltier is not ready to give up.

"I was framed," he told the press. "I did not kill those agents."

The Leonard Peltier Defense Committee has been working diligently to inform the public of the facts surrounding his case and to tell them that he was wronged.

His supporters, who include the American Indian Movement and Amnesty International, contend that FBI hostility toward AIM is one reason Peltier has been framed. Peltier was a known leader in the group. Also, the FBI needed someone to pin the murders on, they say.

The government believes seven people were involved in the agents' murders. But, of those, two were acquitted, one killed, two received immunity for their testimony against Peltier and one was never prosecuted. That leaves Peltier.

So why are so many people seemingly backing Peltier?

He and his various support groups claim that the prosecution knowingly used falsified evidence against him and FBI documents finally obtained under the Freedom of Information Act seem to prove it.

The government says the documents prove nothing.

A government response filed in the U.S. Federal Court in Fargo, N.D. stated: "From examining the government's work papers, (the defense) has found no evidence that any government witness committed perjury at trial or the government knowingly or unknowingly use perjured testimony to obtain the conviction. They certainly have not found evidence that the government has uncovered the 'true murderer' and forgotten to tell the defense about it."

The government also made it clear that it was not denying that more people were probably involved in the incident but that that does not free Peltier from his liability.

At Peltier's trial, the only witness who testified that Peltier shot the two agents was Myrtle Poor Bear, who signed three affidavits which helped extradite Peltier from Canada, where his defense says he fled thinking he would never get a fair trial.

The first affidavit said that Poor Bear had been Peltier's girlfriend and that he had told her he had killed the two agents. Peltier and other witnesses later testified that he had never heard of her.

Her second affidavit, signed two days after the first, added that she was present at the incident and that she saw Peltier shoot the agents.

A third affidavit, signed later, gave a detailed account of the shootings.

Well, as columnist Jack Anderson pointed out, why would Peltier tell Poor Bear he shot the agents if she was there to see for herself?

It doesn't matter anyway, because Poor Bear later told the judge that it was all fabricated and that the FBI had threatened to take her daughter away if she didn't incriminate Peltier.

The government doesn't seem to have too much to say about this whole affair.

Peltier's defense said the government called his motion for a new trial "frivolous."

Even so, his defense has filed a Writ of Habeas Corpus, and the issue is now pending in court whether to grant Peltier a new trial or not.

Confused yet? Good, because that is what this whole mess revolves around — confusion... something the government seems to thrive on.

If the request is turned down, Peltier will most likely appeal it and keep on appealing it until he's eligible for parole in 1997.

There are two issues that stink here, one big and one even bigger.

For one, somebody's money is being wasted — either Peltier's for appealing the court's decision or the taxpayer's for housing an innocent person in our glorious corrections system.

But there is also a question of justice. One problem with crime-solving is that, usually, only the defendant knows "whodunit." But, if an injustice has been done, Peltier deserves another chance. And, with the evidence that has been unearthed stacked up against the government's typical, close-mouthed attitude, it seems that a new trial is in order.

Women's rights not dead issue state senate candidate says

By Cynthia Rector
Staff Writer

Those who label the Equal Rights Amendment a dead issue "have been reading their history books upside down," Ben Brinkley, candidate for the Illinois Senate in the 59th District, said Saturday.

Brinkley and William J. Kilquist, Democratic candidate for Jackson County sheriff, both said they support equal rights at a rally in the Free Forum area Saturday after the fifth annual Movathon, which was sponsored by the National Organization for Women.

Ten people "moved" six miles to raise money for women's rights before the rally. The amount of money raised has not yet been totaled, but Sal Stacey, president of Shawnee NOW, said pledges were down from last year.

Brinkley said his political career is a direct reaction to the defeat of the ERA last June. He's running for Illinois Senate on the Southern Illinois Equal Rights Party ticket.

"Women are realizing their role at the ballot box is the great social equalizer," Brinkley said. Politicians must listen closely to "the collective voice of American women" in order to be successful, he said.

Brinkley, a graduate of SIUC, said he had no political experience prior to his decision to run for Senate. He taught for 20 years in the Saline County public schools, before becoming involved for 12 years in the Illinois Education Association and its national counterpart.

Brinkley retired in March, intent on spending a year or so "in the slow lane. But with the defeat of ERA, I knew I had to do something."

"I felt I had to become involved in this election campaign because Southern Illinois party politics had reached the point where more and more people were refusing to vote."

He said the two parties have become so much alike that there is no longer a real choice for voters within the two-party system.

Win or lose, Brinkley said, he hopes to make the people in office more "accountable" to the women of the state.

Kilquist also began his speech with a focus on equal rights.

"I support your movement," but he said he was also at the rally as a candidate for Jackson County sheriff.

Kilquist, who is the investigator for the Jackson County State's Attorney's Office, said he has solved murders, rapes, armed robberies, burglaries and child-molesting offenses.

Rape is a special concern of his, he said. "Rape is not a crime of passion, or a crime of sex. It's a crime of violence."

Kilquist said rape is "one of the most disgusting things one human being can do to another."

He said he supports the Women's Center "and its efforts to educate and support women who have been involved in rape, sexual abuse and domestic violence."

If elected, Kilquist said he would seek to sponsor activities like the Women's Center in Carbondale and outlying parts of Jackson County.

'Twelfth Night' witty, bawdy

By Abigail Kimmel
Entertainment Editor

Some people feel that Shakespeare is too highbrow to bother with, that it's stuffy and boring and nobody goes to see it anyway.

But the McLeod Theater production of "Twelfth Night" was too bawdy to be highbrow, too fast-paced and witty to be stuffy and boring and the audience nearly filled the house for the Saturday night performance.

Performed on designer Jay Fenger's gorgeous set of rocked terraces covered by greenery and vines, with ships' masts and mountains in the background, the play takes place in the country of Illyria, now non-existent, on the Adriatic Sea.

All aspects of the production complemented each other well. The lighting, designed by Lang Reynolds, and the costumes, designed by Richard Bors, were lovely, particularly the sunrise opening the production. And the direction by Judith Lyons pulled together a storyline that puts the imagination of today's soap opera writers to shame.

The cast of "Twelfth Night: Or, What You Will" worked together as an ensemble, creating a natural feeling not always found in Shakespeare productions. There were times, in fact, that they worked too well and some of the wit was lost in the quick repartee.

And though they all worked well, some performances made the whole thing even more fun than the confused comedy usually is. Sherrie Stricklin as the heroine, Viola, who poses as a man after her twin brother supposedly drowns, was excellent as the "young man" who falls in love with her master.

David Nava as Sir Toby Belch and Lars Timpa as his doltish companion, Sir Andrew Aguecheek, were a riot as the Countess Olivia's lecherous uncle and his partner-in-crime. Their scheming with Maria, a gentlewoman smartly played by Mary Jane Prather, to make a fool of Olivia's steward, Malvolio, sets up the funniest scenes of the show.

Frank Trimble was simply wonderful as the clown, Feste, who makes some of the most witty double-entendres in the show. He moved and took money indiscriminately like an organ-grinder's monkey.

But perhaps the most fortunate and certainly the most popular actor in the show was Calvin MacLean, who played the pompous, stiff-necked steward who is led to believe that Olivia loves him and makes a fool of himself.

MacLean played Malvolio to the hilt and was incredibly funny. It seemed as though Shakespeare wrote the role with MacLean in mind.

Satan rules rock 'n' roll, minister says

By Juliana Anastasoff
Staff Writer

Selling one's soul for rock and roll is more than a contemporary rhyme — it's a reality. That's what Bob Duvall believes and he is committed to exposing and changing that reality.

"Where I'm coming from is that there is evil in this world in the form of Satan revealing himself and I have a desire in my heart to see this change because I am interested in life," said Duvall, a traveling minister with the Maranatha International Ministries, a fundamentalist Christian church.

Duvall spoke to a jam-packed crowd in the Student Center Thursday night at Maranatha's "Rock and Roll Seminar," including music, slides and history of subliminal technique used in contemporary rock music, which Duvall believes is a hand of Satan, snatching the attention and allegiance of young people.

"There is no neutrality here," said Duvall. "Music is either positive and constructive, or negative and destructive." Duvall said that music affects people physically and spiritually, and has a gradual, unmeasured effect on our lives.

"One quick way to destroy a society is through music," he paraphrased the Russian revolutionary Vladimir Lenin. He also quoted great thinkers throughout history, from Plato to Thoreau, who have commented on the effects of music on society.

Duvall's slides dealt with apparent satanic influences which appear on album covers and music of rock groups such as AC-DC, Black Sabbath, Rush and the Stranglers.

Duvall interpreted the art on these covers as heavily laden with symbolism typical of occult and satanic practices, such as inverted crosses, lightning bolts and pentagrams (five-sided stars).

The most startling aspect of this satanic influence, Duvall said, is the presence of high-speed subliminal messages or "backward masking," messages heard when the songs are played in reverse.

The most well-known example, said Duvall, is a line from Led Zeppelin's "Stairway to Heaven," which when played backwards says "My sweet Satan, no other made a path, for it makes me sad, whose power is Satan."

"My question is why is this stuff there? It could be an accident, but a song that reveals a complete thought and sentence when played backward is no accident. And if it is a gimmick, why not suggest to the listener that they buy more albums instead of turn away from Christ?

"If Satan appeared to a musician with hot pitchfork and warm breath, handing him a blood-filled pen as I saying 'sign on the dotted line, the musician would run to the nearest church and fall on his knees to God," said Duvall.

"...young, talented players, all first class!" NY Times

The Student Center in conjunction with Southern Illinois Concerts Incorporated invites S.I.U. students and members of Southern Illinois Concerts Incorporated to attend the 1982-83 Dinner Concert Series. This series consists of a buffet dinner in the Old Main room, located on the second floor of the Student Center, followed by a concert in Shryock Auditorium at 8:00 p.m. The Old Main Room will be open from 6:00 to 8:00 p.m. each night of the concert series. For buffet reservations, call 536-6633 during the day. Concert tickets for students may be purchased at the Student Center Ticket Office. The Aurora Trio appearing Tuesday, October 5.

This unusual ensemble was first organized to perform in the Concert Artists Guild's St. Stephens Series during the 1974-75 season. Since that evening, this unique and captivating group has delighted audiences across the nation with their brilliant performances. Each member of the Trio is an accomplished soloist as well as chamber musician, and together they bring an astounding list of credits to their growing number of concerts. Individually, Aurora's members have appeared as soloists with orchestras internationally and in many major music festivals.

YMCA to hold fall festival

A fall festival will be held by the Jackson County YMCA in coordination with SIU-C sports clubs from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday at the National Guard Armory, located at the corner of Sycamore and Oakland streets in Carbondale.

During the festival, SIU-C sports clubs and the YMCA will give demonstrations and information on classes, with opportunities to sign up for them. The classes offered will include a variety of activities for children, teen-agers and adults.

Some of the classes include frisbee golf, self defense boxing, soccer, water polo, the Southern Synchers and the Road Runners.

The classes and activities to be offered this fall will be held at the Armory, YMCA, Student Recreation Center, and St. Andrews school and the Christian Academy in Murphysboro.

The festival is open to the public free of charge. Door prizes will be awarded at the festival, including free YMCA family memberships (worth $110), YMCA swim passes and assorted other prizes, donated by Carbondale merchants.

Grant fraud probe goes statewide

By Jennifer Phillips
Staff Writer

Charges of theft and perjury have been filed against 14 illegal aliens, living in the Chicago area, in connection with a "large-scale fraud scheme in government funded student grant programs," according to Tyrone Fahner, Illinois Attorney General.

Fahner said the investigation will spread to the rest of the state. "We will now expand our probe into suburban and downstate colleges," he said.

Fahner said more than 100 indictments will be returned as a result of the investigation, which has determined that about $370,000 has been stolen in the Chicago area alone.

He said the illegal aliens, who were charged Thursday, were using "bogus" identification cards, Social Security numbers and possibly birth certificates and applied for and received student grants under the Pell Grant program.

"Our investigation has shown that the illegal aliens, using fraudulent identifications and resident alien status, have stolen hundreds of thousands of student grant dollars," he said.

Six of the 14 charged have been arrested, said Kim Shepherd, of Fahner's office. Their native countries are Nigeria, Liberia, Jordan, Syria and Mexico, she said, and the colleges attended include the Loop College, Truman College, and the Illinois Institute of Technology, all of Chicago.

The individual grants ranged from $1,500 to $8,000, she said. The crimes charged are Class 3

Risk workshop is cancelled

"Coping with Risk," a workshop scheduled for Oct. 4, has been canceled due to "insufficient enrollment," according to Judy Pauri of the Department of Continuing Education.

Pauri said the workshop will not be rescheduled. It was sponsored by the Coal Research Center.

felonies, punishable by up to five years in jail and $10,000 in fines.

The Attorney General's office was assisted by the U.S. Department of Education, the Office of Inspector General and the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, Shepherd said.

"What makes this type of crime particularly offensive," he said, "is that the sons and daughters of our taxpayers can't always get assistance because the funds aren't available, yet we have this massive fraud in the system."

The problem will become more acute, he said, because student funds will be slashed by more than 40 percent in the upcoming fiscal year.

Rich characterizations mark simple folk tale performance

By Shelia Washington
Staff Writer

The set consisted only of dimmed lights and a rocking chair, but the magic of show business was still there when Tom Doman acted out the folktales of Southern Illinois to 30 people Saturday in Faner Hall.

Doman squeezed his fists, twisted his face, bucked his eyes and gestured almost every expression possible as he told of how Southern Illinois was in yesteryear.

Doman's presentation, entitled "Trouble is a One-Eyed Mule," was part of a storytelling project given by the Community and Educational Arts Association.

Donna Burhorn, project coordinator, said the stories that Doman told have been handed down for generations and that the presentation was a way to keep them alive.

"It's an oral tradition in Southern Illinois to talk about the folk tales here," Burhorn said. "We decided that it would be interesting for people to hear these tales instead of reading them, which loses the story's flavor."

Doman told about how his grandfather started to Texas on a one-eyed mule but ended up in Illinois instead. That was when all his trouble started and he either learned of or experienced the tales of Southern Illinois.

Doman told the audience that Southern Illinois is called Little Egypt because once, as the story goes, the nation was cold year-round — all except Southern Illinois. Everybody came here to take advantage of the rich soil and the good corn. He said this was like the Bible story of everyone going to Egypt to get corn.

Most of the tales were long, but genuinely portrayed. He told of his grandfather who wanted to hunt one day, but only had 10 shells for his shotgun. Like all Southern Illinoisans, Grandpa was smart and was a good shot, so he went to a pond where seven ducks were swimming in a line. He shot the first one and the bullet went through the other six.

Before the day was done, Grandpa had killed ducks, fish, a whale, turkeys and anything else he thought Grandma could use for supper.

Doman's stories challenged the imagination and stretched it a little, too. But, he said his stories were true and that they are on record.

Near the end of the session, Doman talked of how Grandma and Grandpa argued about everything, including what they wanted him to be. "Grandma" wanted him to be a doctor because his father was one, but "Grandpa" wanted him to plow the fields and raise chickens.

Doman, who has acted in Chicago, Atlanta and Los Angeles for six years, said now he can be a doctor, farmer or anything else by being an actor.

INCREASE YOUR
READING SPEED
ON THE SPOT!
(BRING A FRIEND)

We'll give you the way to higher grades and more free time.

Would you like to:

- Raise your grade average without long hours over texts.
- End all-night cramming sessions.
- Breeze through all your studying in as little as 1/3 the time.
- Have more free time to enjoy yourself.
- Read 3 to 10 times faster, with better concentration, understanding, and recall.

Evelyn Wood's new RD2 reading system makes it all possible.

Evelyn Wood works — over 1 million people, including students, executives, senators, and even presidents have proven it. A free 1 hour demonstration will show you how to save hundreds of hours of drudgery this year (as well as how to increase your speed immediately with some simple new reading techniques).

It only takes an hour, and it's free. Don't miss it.

EvelynWood RD2
will open your eyes.

Nobel Prize winning chemist to speak Friday

By David McAnally Student Writer

Nobel Prize-winning chemist William N. Lipscomb will be the featured speaker at the seventh SIUC Chemistry Conference Friday and Saturday.

Lipscomb, a professor at Harvard University, was awarded the Nobel Prize in 1976 for his work on structures in the bonding of atoms in molecules. Norman Doornbos, dean of the School of Science, called Lipscomb an "absolutely brilliant individual."

Lipscomb will speak at 8 p.m. Friday in the Student Center Ballrooms on "Recent Studies of Boranes and Carboranes."

Borane is used in the field of high-energy fuels for jet planes and rockets, and as vulcanizing agents for natural and synthetic rubbers.

Studies in the field of carboranes have led to an expanded understanding of chemical bonding and structure.

Juniors, seniors and faculty members from area colleges and universities can attend the biennial conference, according to D. Wayne Bolen, chemistry professor.

Exhibits of "state-of-the-art" implementation, equipment, chemicals and supplies" will be displayed by area companies. Bolen said.

Exhibits will be on display in Room 240 in Neckers.

The conference will offer people the chance to meet others in the field of chemistry and biochemistry, and allow for the exchange of information, Doornbos said.

Research papers written by individuals attending the conference will be presented.

Steve Scheiner, faculty member in chemistry and biochemistry, worked with Lipscomb at Harvard on research projects as a graduate student.

Scheiner said Lipscomb is involved with "very fundamental work" related to chemical bonding.

The "three-center bond," instead of the traditional two-center bond, was developed by Lipscomb, Scheiner said.

Lipscomb, 62, is also known for his research in defraction of crystals and molecules of biochemical interest.

Other speakers will be Eric Oldfield, chemistry professor from the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign, and Robert J. Moolenaar of Dow Chemical Co.

Agency may cap gas rate increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans beleaguered by skyrocketing natural gas bills may be getting a respite, courtesy of the agency that is usually cast as the villain, responsible for the escalating costs.

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, the target of consumer groups criticizing huge price hikes, has warned pipeline companies that increases may not be tolerated in the future.

The commission has said it will begin considering whether the price a pipeline pays for its natural gas is so high that it is driving industrial customers off the system.

Many industries have the capability to burn either natural gas or fuel oil in their boilers. When the price of natural gas gets too high, they simply stop buying natural gas.

As a result, residential customers have seen their rates rise to pay for the pipeline's fixed operating costs.

But the commission said it will now consider forcing a pipeline's shareholders to foot the extra costs if the loss of customers is a result of purchasing too much high-priced gas.

Pipelines' purchases of higher-priced natural gas have been the object of a raging dispute before the commission for more than a year. Consumer groups charge that there is no justification for homeowners' facing huge price increases at a time when there are huge surpluses of natural gas.

The Energy Department predicted last week that residential users of natural gas would pay 19 percent more this winter than last, bringing the average homeowners' winter bill to $461.

The department said the increase would result from Congress' decision in 1978 to gradually remove price controls from new supplies of natural gas — the only fuel still under federal price controls.

The consumer groups contend, however, that the pipelines have been negligent in negotiating cheaper prices for new supplies since the commission routinely has let them pass the higher costs to consumers.

Softballers win piece of title

By Brian Higgins

It was anything but lonely at the top this weekend in Normal at the Redbird Gateway Invitational Tournament.

When the dust had cleared, no fewer than four of the tourney's six participants were clinging to a piece of the title. Among them was Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer's soundly swinging Salukis.

The softballers finally pulled their bats out of the deep-freeze and collected 36 hits at the Illinois State festival. In the numbers game, that came down to an outstanding team batting average of .298.

The Salukis began the tourney by outitting, but not outscoring, a strong Missouri club that had defeated SIUC twice last weekend. Mizou took advantage of the hits they did come up with and dropped SIUC for a third time, 7-3.

In the second game, the Salukis found that their born-again bats were no fluke, and outpointed an even-hitting Southwest Missouri squad, 5-3. Meredith Stengel started the game, but Sunny Clark picked up the win after relieving her in the fourth.

Saturday belonged to Stengel, however, who, according to Brechtelsbauer, was "absolutely superb" in defeating Western Illinois and Wichita State to give the Salukis their piece of the title pie. In the WIU contest, SIUC-C shelled Cathy Brueck for 10 hits and five runs. Brueck had no-hit the Salukis in the season's second game.

In between the two Stengel wins, the Salukis dropped a 4-0 decision to Illinois State, a club they blanked last weekend in Carbondale.

EIU beats women harriers—again

For the fourth year in a row the women's cross country team of Eastern Illinois defeated the Salukis, this time by a score of 18-37 in a dual meet at Midland Hills Saturday.

The Salukis were in good position until three-quarters of the way through the 5,000 meter race, said Saluki Coach Claudia Blackman. She said that Rosa Mitchell and Lisa Riemund were in third and fourth place behind Eastern's Gina Sperry and Margaret Smith, who led the race from start to finish.

But the Panther's Nancy Kramer "just kept coming." Blackman said. With only three-quarters of a mile remaining, the Salukis tightened up and Eastern relaxed and had four runners finish before Mitchell crossed the finish line, Blackman said.

Blackman also said the Salukis didn't use the downhill as effectively as the Panthers. "They let their downhill carry them," she said.

Eastern's Sperry, Smith, Kramer and Carrie Mortell finished first through fourth. Mitchell, however, finished behind Morell by only .25 of a second.

Mitchell was followed by Reimund and Lori Ann Bertram. Following Panther Anne Ogle, SIUC-C's Karen Russell, Kathy Blasingame, Dyane Donley and Odette James finished ninth through 12th.

The Salukis are now 0-3 in dual competition.

losing 5-1 to San Diego, while the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Baltimore Orioles 10-2 on the final day of the season to capture their first American League East Division championship.

The Braves finally won the division when the San Francisco Giants defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3 on the same afternoon.

Atlanta came into the contest leading Los Angeles by one game in the division, and with what Manager Joe Torre called a chance to finally "quit playing scoreboard."

The Braves were forced to back into the title, and avoid a one-game playoff with the Dodgers, when San Diego came up with five runs in the fifth.

Robin Yount smashed a pair of home runs and a triple, and Ted Simmons and Cecil Cooper hit solo shots to spoil Baltimore's storybook weekend comeback on Earl Weaver's final day as manager of the Orioles.

Baltimore had won three in a row to tie the race, but the Brewers won the one game they needed.

The Brewers, who led the major leagues with 216 home runs, played longball against Jim Palmer, ace of the Oriole staff.

The discoveries continue...

Hughes Story

In 1947 a man flew the Flying Boat, "Hercules" — the largest airplane in the world.

The man was Howard Robert Hughes.

His ingenious ideas and explorations brought new discoveries in aerodynamics, communications, avionics, electronics.

And the early years of Hughes Aircraft Company.

Today, Hughes no longer builds airplanes but the discoveries and exploration of ideas continue.

The company's long history of technological firsts, including the first working laser, first 3-D radar, and first synchronous-orbit spacecraft, position Hughes as a world leader in today's electronics industry. If your degree is in:

Streaking harriers burn Racers

By Dean Kirk
Staff Writer

Not only was the weather hot at Midland Hills Friday, but the SIU-C men's cross country was as well as they defeated the Murray State Racers 17-42. With the win the Salukis increased their dual meet record to 4-0. Murray is 0-1 in dual competition.

The Racer's large number of freshman among their 12 competing runners, their lack of depth and the fact that the Salukis are "awfully tough" were the factors what contributed to their defeat, said Saluki Coach Bill Cornell. He also said that some of the Racers, like Will Jordan and Jeff Stipp, are more oriented toward running track than cross country.

Unlike last week's double dual meet with Bradley and Illinois, Cornell said there was no time in the race where he was concerned about SIU-C not finishing well.

Like he's done all season, SIU-C's Mike Keane finished first with a winning time of 25:50. He also led the race from start to finish. Tom Ross and Tom Breen placed second and third before Murray State's Gary Ribbons interrupted the Saluki dominance by finishing fourth. Cornell, who coached Murray State to a 27-29 victory over SIU-C last season said that Ribbons ran about like he expected.

Following Ribbons were SIU-C's Gary Munson and Mike Gonzalez. Mike Elliott and Dave Behm finished eighth and 11th for the Salukis.

Cornell was especially pleased with the way Gonzalez and Elliott ran. "They showed some definite improvement," he said. Munson finished about the same distance behind Keane, while Behm just didn't have a good day.

Neither did SIU-C's Kevin Sturman, who turned his ankle over when his foot went into a hole about halfway on the course

Women netters let down by NU

By Brian Higgins
Staff Writer

It was a roller coaster-weekend for the Saluki netters, who began their three-game road trip in grand style but finished it with a tough lesson in humility.

Coach Judy Auld's netters began the trek by blowing a hapless Eastern Illinois squad off the courts, 9-0. It was SIU-C's second victory over the Panthers in as many weeks.

The netters peaked at Wheaton College, where they pounded their hosts 8-1, and handed Auld her 100th career victory. The only Saluki loss occurred at the first singles position, where Lisa Warrem was surprised by Jane Nelson, 3-6, 2-6.

The bottom dropped out on the netters, however, when they rolled into Evanston on Saturday to take on powerful Northwestern. Their 10-1 record did little to impress the stingy Wildcats, who walloped SIU-C 9-0.

In that match Mary Pat Krammer (11-1) and Maureen

Harney (10-1) suffered their first setbacks of the season. The Salukis only redemption came at the exhibition eighth singles position, where Kris Stauffer beat Karen Foti, 6-3, 6-0. Stauffer then teamed with Harney in the exhibition fourth doubles spot to defeat Foti and Carolyn Spengler, 6-3, 6-3.

"I know the score doesn't look good," Auld said. "But we were in the match all the way. We had a chance to win some sets."

The only set they did win, however, occurred at the third doubles position.

Quarterback Rick Johnson was off target, leaving the Salukis floundering on offense. Johnson was 16 for 29 for 136 yards, three interceptions and two fumbles Saturday.

Johnson falters as Salukis drop second straight game

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

The Saluki playoff hopes, running rampant when the season began, and then fueled by a three game winning streak, have started to flicker. SIU-C lost a dreary, error filled 26-10 game at Southwestern Louisiana Saturday and watched their record fall to 3-2.

The Salukis continue their road trip at national power Florida State next week, and then at Missouri Valley Conference favorite Tulsa.

Nobody has to tell Coach Rey Dempsey that the Saluki season could be falling apart. Dempsey was visibly upset Sunday afternoon, and refused to comment on the game.

The Saluki coach appeared stumped by the poor play of meal-ticket Rick Johnson, who had single handedly driven his team's offense to its early season success. Johnson had his first bad game of the year — probably one of the worst of his career — and the SIU-C offense was lost without him.

Johnson was 16 of 29 for 136 yards with three interceptions and two fumbles. His first interception was run back 30 yards for a touchdown that tied the game 7-7 in the second quarter, and his second errant throw led directly to the score that put the Ragin Cajuns ahead for good.

USL led 14-7 at halftime, and after the Salukis closed to 14-10 with a 35-yard field goal by Allen Leslie, the Cajuns widened the gap with field goals by Oscar Speer. The Salukis never seriously threatened a comeback.

Johnson has led the Salukis to dramatic comebacks the last two weeks, but he wasn't around to try it again. Dempsey had him watching most of the fourth quarter from the bench.

Rick Williams came on and led the Salukis to one first down in their final three possessions. He finished four of nine with 10 yards passing.

Despite a solid running game that helped roll up 299 yards of total offense, the Salukis had few sustained drives and seldom threatened the Cajun goal line. Except for a 54-yard scoring drive in the first quarter that gave it a 7-0 lead, SIU-C was unable to consistently move the ball. After scoring with 2:40 to go in the first quarter the team didn't have a drive longer than 20 yards.

A 36-yard Johnson pass to Marvin Hinton gave the Salukis most of the yardage on their touchdown drive, which was capped by a six yard run by Derrick Taylor.

That pass to Hinton was the only Saluki pass of more than 11 yards.

The USL running game amounted for only 126 yards. Quarterback Don Wallace, the Cajuns' major running threat, had just 14 yards on 13 carries. Wallace threw for 88 yards, and backup Dwight Prudhomme added 87 yards in the air as the Cajuns tallied 301 total yards.

The Cajuns didn't need to roll up much offense yards though, not with Johnson making rare mistakes in his own territory. USL had better field position throughout the game, and got away with two interceptions and two fumbles.

Allen Leslie's 35-yard field goal, after a 16-yard-six play drive, was the only offense SIU-C could muster in the second half. Cajun field goals of 45 yards and 22 yards nailed down the verdict.

The Salukis were a beaten team in the fourth quarter. With four seconds left in the game, Dempsey sent in Frank Pasquino to punt.

Spikers win and lose

By Jackie Rodgers
Sports Editor

The SIU-C volleyball team again showed its Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde tendencies this weekend in Memphis.

On Friday, the Salukis displayed their good side in beating Memphis State 15-6, 15-3, 15-10. Sonya Locke's attack up the middle was the key to the Salukis' victory.

The Salukis jumped out to a 6-0 lead in the first game, and put it away on an ace by Locke. The Salukis trailed most of the second game before tying the score at 12. The Tigers went ahead 13-12, but Locke served for the final three points.

The Salukis were behind most of the third game as well before knotting the score at 10 on a Barb Clark serve. SIU-C then scored the next five points for the match.

On Saturday, however, Mr. Hyde emerged, and the Salukis played "a very disappointing match," according to Coach Debbie Hunter, and lost to Tennessee 11-15, 15-7, 3-15, 5-15.

Both teams played poorly. Tennessee, which had beaten

No. 13 ranked Penn State this season, showed none of its explosive power. In fact, if the Salukis would have played anywhere near their capabilities, they could have easily knocked off the Lady Vols.

"I think the entire match was a disappointment to the sport of volleyball," Hunter said. "The atmosphere (in the gym) was dead, and the play on the court was dead."

It appeared the Salukis were on their way to a rout, jumping out to an early 7-0 lead in the first game. It was all downhill from there.

"We had a mental picture of Tennessee in our minds," Hunter explained. "That picture was of a ball-busting team. We started off great because we were so up for a high-intensity game. When that didn't occur, we let down. I guess we let down too far."

The Salukis played without starter Chris Boyd this weekend, who is out with a back problem. Hunter admitted that hurt the team's offensive punch, but that freshman Natalie Sisley did a good job.

Fielders pile up wins

By JoAnn Marciszewski
Associate Sports Editor

Winning was not just everything, it was the only thing for the field hockey team this weekend as it beat all five of its opponents in the SIU-C Hockey Fest.

Only one goal was scored against the Salukis as they defeated Eastern Kentucky 5-1 and Louisville 2-0 on Friday, Central Michigan and Indiana State 1-0 on Saturday, and Northern Iowa 4-0 on Sunday.

The 13 Saluki goals were scored by nine different players, one of the strengths of the team, according to Coach Julie Illner.

"I've said all along we're an offensive team and everyone is capable of scoring," Illner said. "They (opponents) will key on our high scorers and someone else will score and then they'll have to watch them. It makes a big difference."

One of the highlights of the weekend was the defeat of Indiana State. The Sycamores had defeated Miami (Ohio), the team that handed the 12-1 Salukis their only setback of the season, and were considered the strongest of SIU-C's foes.

"I don't think there's any question that Indiana State was the toughest game of the weekend," Illner said. "We played well and they played well. But during the second half, we were definitely playing the best we've played this season. If we had played like that against Miami, we would have beaten them."

The game remained a scoreless tie until Barb Donahue connected at 20:45 of the second half for the only goal of the game.

Ellen Massey, the Salukis' leading scorer, added three this weekend to bring her season total to 11. The center sat out the Central Michigan contest after being sliced through her shin guard by a Louisville stick. Massey, who scored two goals against Eastern Kentucky, returned to start both the remaining games.

"It's okay now," Massey said after Sunday's game. She said it didn't hurt to run, but wishing to avoid being hit again made her hesitate a little.

"I played chicken at first," Massey said. "But after I got going I forgot about it."

The Salukis kept their momentum despite the heavy schedule and the hot weather on Friday and Saturday.

"I was afraid there might have been a let-down after the Indiana State win because we were so up for that one, but they came back real well today," Illner said after Sunday's game. "We had a good weekend, the girls played hard and did real well."

Braves, Brewers clinch titles

By the Associated Press

Atlanta clinched the National League West championship Sunday, capping a roller-coaster season that finally saw the Braves win their first division title since 1969 despite
