Simon to introduce gas price control resolution

U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-22nd district, will propose a resolution this week to create a bipartisan commission to study natural gas price controls and make legislative and policy recommendations to Congress

Job classes, salaries framework under fire

By Phillip Fiorini Staff Writer

That study is now under fire by several ad-

SIU-C President Albert Somit approved the first step of an AP personnel management program based on the Hay study in October 1981, and last May approved a second step, which became effective July 1. Several AP staff members approved a proposal expressing "no confidence" in the first two steps of the salary system and requested that the ad-ministration not proceed with the final step. That proposal, approved at a general constituency meeting last week, will be addressed by the Ad-ministrative and Professional Council Wednesday.

Roland Keim, AP Staff Council chairman, said the constituency "felt threatened" by a system classifying jobs in relation to other positions. "felt threatened" by a system of

Keim, associate director of Admissions and Records, also said he couldn't argue with his constituency's position that the Hay study didn't accurately reflect what actually existed in the AP employment structure. Harry Wirth, director of Service Enterprise, said his concern was that the study needed ref.nements. He said a problem arose because the study didn't "fit exactly with what the AP staff was trying to get at." Wirth served on the original committee that examined the study from an administrative viewpoint, while an AP Staff Council committee addressed the study from the constituency angle. Wirth said the constituency committee had asked for a study of equity in pay at SIU-C and other comparable universities. However, he said AP employees received more than that.

The Hay study recommended that the ad-ministration identify "realistic standards of performance at clearly identified levels of per-formance." It also recommended that merit pay increases be granted for performance and not just for length of service or academic destroat for length of service or academic degrees. However, the study warned that it might be dif-ficult to distinguish factors that determine whether a particular employee merits a salary increase and how much of an increase. ## U.S. Supreme Court upholds Morton Grove gun ordinance

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The Supreme Court, in a major victory for advocates of tighter gun controls, refused on Monday to disturb rulings that there is no constitutional right to own a pistol.

The justices turned back challenges to a Morton Grove ordinance that cutlaws the possession, even in the home, of virtually all handguns. With that, the court cleared the way for other communities to copy the ban.

The court did not issue any definitive ruling on the con-stitutionality of Morton Grove's ban

But their letting stand rulings by a federal judge and a federal appeals court offered a big boost to numerous communities nationwide that have sought to ordinance, emulate the 1381 emulate the 1361 ordinance, outlawing "any handgun unless the same has been rendered permanently inoperative."

The ordinance provides ex-ceptions for peace officers, prison and security guards, licensed gun collectors and and certain others. All other residents were required to surrender their guns to local authorities.

It was challenged by eight residents of the Chicago suburb challenged the ban, who argued that it violates the Con-stitution's Second Amendment. It states: "A well-regulated It states: "A weil-regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed."

Mortar fire sends Marines on maximum alert, ends truce

BEIRUT (AP) — Gunmen fired mortars and rocket grenades at Lebanese army positions Monday, forcing Marines deployed nearby to scamper into bunkers and foxholes on maximum alert for the first time in a week-old truce

In another flare-up later in the day, army tanks fired at Shite Moslem militia positions in a southern slum after the Shiites fired mortar rounds and rocket grenades toward the Christian-populated area of Ain Rummeneh.

President Amin Gemavel President Amin Gemayel called an emergency Cabinet session, saying procedural disputes have stymied his ef-forts to conven<sup>2</sup> a national reconciliation conference among Lebanon s feuding sects. The delay has threatened to further unravel the civil war truce that began Sept. 26. Marine spokesman Warrant Officer Charles Rowe said about 30 Marines of Charlie ministers the date of holding the national dialogue has not been set yet because preliminary efforts by mediators have not overcome the new diff.culties that arose from the need to choose a new venue," a statement from his office said after the Cabinet meeting.

But U.S. District Judge Bernard Decker upheld it. A three-judge panel of the 7th Circuit court agreed last Dec. 6, concluding that "the right 'o keep and bear handguns is not guaranteed by the Second Amendment."

The panel, which split 2-1 on the issue, relied heavily on a 1939 Supreme Court decision it interpreted as meaning that the constitutional right extends only to those weapons a militia might need. The appeals court said it did not even have to reach that conclusion, however, because the Second Amendment is not a limitation on the powers of state or local governments - only Congress

"Reasonable people may differ about the wisdom of (the Morton Grove) ordinance," the 7th Circuit court said. "Such 7th Circuit court said. "Such issues, however, are not before the court. We simply hold that the ordinance is a proper exercise of Morton Grove's police power."

The dissenting judge voted to strike down the ordinance, saying it "has been shown to be necessary to protect the public welfare and thus violates the fundamental right to privacy."

The two-judge majority, however, said there is no fun-damental right to possess a handgun

Would it be? Wirth said "to say we need an evaluation system without saying what it's needed for doesn't make sense make sense." Brandt said the University hasn't signed a contract yeta with Hay for the appraisal system. The first step of the plan, job content evaluation, provided a point rating sytem for employees based on administrative levels and difficulties of jobs. In 1981 when the plan was approved, Somit said it was for developing a classification system and eventually a salary system for AP staff. The compensation plan approved in May provided a way to make salaries "internally equitable and externally competitive" with those of comparable universities, according to Somit. The plan was to be "flexible but consistent" for controlling salary costs to maintain competitive pay levels.

Brandt said universities comparable to SIU-C are those that have operating budgets between $100 and $150 million annually. Salaries of those below the minimum range were brought up to the midpoint level, Brandt said, as recommended by the Hay study.

Three sets of equity adjustments have been made for AP staff since March 1982 to hasten this process, Brandt said. One in April of this year and another in July raised all but three employees to the minimum level.

There are about 335 AP employees covered by the compensation plan.

Brady, 43, is scheduled to arrive by car next Monday with his wife, Sarah, and son, Scott, 4. A nurse will accompany them.

Brady's mother, Dorothy, 76, said Monday that a police escort will bring Brady into town where the Centralia High School band will welcome him.

Bus-route abandonment hurts Southern Illinois, Simon says

John Schrag Staff Writer

In an effort to stop further loss of rural bus service in areas such as Southern Illinois, U.S. Rep. Paul Simon has proposed legislation that could make it tougher for bus companies to reduce or eliminate service.

The proposal, which is sup-ported by several Illinois Congressmen and Sens. Alan Dixon and Charles Percy, would given to the state by bus lines which are considering reducing which are considering reducing or eliminating service. The proposal would make amendments to the bus deregulation act which was supported by Simon and adopted by Congress a year ago. Simon has claimed that the deregulation bill has led to the discontinuation of bus routes through nearly 100 communities in Illinois and about 1,300 communities nationwide. David Carle, Simon's press aide, said that an amendment similar to the one now being proposed was deleted from the deregulation bill after the bill's authors assured Congress that "massive abandonment" of bus routes would not occur.

But, according to Simon, abandonment has occurred and it has herred and it has herred and the past year, eight bus routes have been abandoned in Illinois, according to the Illinois Commerce Commission. Three Commerce Commission. Three of those cut through Southern Illinois: Gulf Transport's Carbondale to Evansville route and Greyound's St. Louis to Evansville and Chicago to St.Louis routes. The amendments would beigalfur upwide a cit would

The amendments would basically provide a six-month waiting period between the time when a bus company announces its plan and when the state makes a decision. In Illinois, there is currently a four-month writh wait

The additional time would allow state and local com-munities to gather more information about the use of a route and come up with alter-native transportation or subsidy plans. Carle said.

He said supporters of the proposal hope that it will help ensure the continuation of less-profitable routes, such as the Gulf Transport route between Carbondale and Springfield. A Gulf Transport official said that although ridership has declined on the daily route there are no plans to reduce or discionate eliminate it.

"The passenger count has decreased some but I don't see any problems with it at this time," said D.A. Allen, superintendent of operations at the Gulf station in St. Louis.

He said the Carbondale-Springfield route is popular among SIU-C students. The bus leaves Carbondale at 7:10 a.m. and arrives in Springfield at 11:10 a.m. At Springfield at passengers can transfer to another bus which arrives in Chicago at 3:35 p.m.

Reagan missile talk twists Soviets' arms

WITH THE DEPLOYMENT of Pershing II and cruise missiles in Europe imminent, President Reagan is trying to come off as a 'peacenik.

Stating in a speech to the United Nations General Assembly last week that he is "proceed to thick that the holes of the an assembly hast new arms reduction proposals that he hopes will be not so much accepted by the Soviets as by the Western Europeans — as a accepted by the Soviets as by the western Europeans — as a counter to anti-Reagan-policy sentiment in those nations. After deployment of Pershing II's in December, that opposition could take a violent twist — public violence that the Soviets hope will sway Western European governments against U.S. policies. So Reagan is trying to assert allied harmony before the lid blows off.

THE PROPOSALS, HOWEVER, are far from substantially effective.

The president called for all major powers to disengage from hostilities in the Third World. While this is a noble request, no one believes it can happen. But it makes great political copy. Other U.S. proposals ring with a willingness to compromise. Unfortunately, though, they are compromises the Soviets will not accept.

The president is willing to focus strictly on Soviet missiles aimed at the European continent, effectively leaving the U.S.S.R.'s Asian-based missiles off the agenda. He is also willing to come to an agreement with the Soviets on the number of planes in Europe, as well as missiles. And he has left the door open for reduction in the number of Pershing II and cruise missiles scheduled for deployment in December.

BUT ONE POINT Reagan is unwilling to compromise on is an effective means of bilateral verification of warhead numbers. He cites rigidity in arms control on the part of the Soviets, Soviet cheating on past agreements and the downing of the Korean airliner as reasons for his distrust of the Soviets.

Reagan's rhetoric may be reassuring to some. But rhetoric does not lessen the threat of a nuclear holocaust. The president offered proposals he knew the Soviets would not accept. By making those proposals, he has put the burden of international concern over the arms race on the Soviets, and may have mollified some of the inevitable opposition to Pershing II and cruise deployment in Europe.

Letiers-Grade question a misunderstanding

The question of grades in the College of Education (com-pared with other units in the University) is perhaps clouded by a misunderstanding of norm-referenced grading systems. When grades are used as a "sorting" mechanism, it is "appropriate to use a normal distribution system which identifies where each student distribution system which identifies where each student performs in relation to peers. In this system "C" is, by definition, the mean, median and mode. This is appropriate in many cases, such as in determining admission to graduate level programs and awarding honors. When, however, the purpose of grades is to ascertain whether any student has reached a certain level of competency, then a criterion-referenced system is employed. Nationwide, citizens are con-cerned about the competency levels of students (and their teachers). To meet that challenge, most courses in teacher education programs are now set up with minimum competencies required in order toget a grade (of A or B; sliding by with C-level knowledge or skill is just not good enough for those who will be teaching our future generations!) A student who performs at the stated level of competence has the potential for being an excellent teacher for our children.

What appears to be grade inflation to those accustomed to norm-referenced grading represents instead a tightening of requirements and setting performance criteria which students must demonstrate in order to obtain their grades and Continue in the program. - Lyn Muldoon, Graduate Student, Higher Education.

Take a stand against nuclear destruction

I was listening to the radio the other day while setting up my room for the new school year. I had been tacking up posters when this song came on the radio that sent a chill up my spine. I had heard the tune many times before, but it had never occurred to me that it was anything more than into a never occurred to me that it was anything more than just another tear-jerker love song. Oh, but the words came ringing true to my ears this time. It is a love song, but it is not "just another silly love song" as Paul McCartney would call it. It is a tune by the Fixx, a fairly new rock-nroll band from Fundand and its about the 'bw England, and it's about the '80s generation.

The poster that I had been hanging up was a drawing of Uncle Sam as a skeleton with a handful of missiles offering them over the edge of the globe to Western Europe. Western Europe was depicted as a hand with a white glove on, shaking back and forth as if to say 'no thank you.'' The missiles were, of course, the Cruise and Pershing II intermediate range strategic weapons being offered strategic weapons being offered as a counterbalance to the new Soviet SS-20's (the placement of which will be decided by December of this year). The song in the background cried, "It's the Europe theater! Stand or fall, state your peace for the children who must grow up in the shadows of ICBMs. With massive doct destruction just minutes away, the children do not give a damn about anything. Their grand-parents are flustered and parents are flustered and unable to answer the many "why" questions. This is the reason that I have joined the Mid-America Peace Project. I cannot defend the need for the maintenance of huge stockpiles of nuclear warheads. I am not so naive as to think that nuclear weapons will ever eo away but do we will ever go away, but do we really need so many? Can national security really be measured in megatons? I think not

Rather than join the swollen ranks of the apathetic I have decided to help fill the ranks of the activists. For the most part, one person cannot normally make any difference. # Gays: They're at it again

The gay and lesbian folk are at it again with their silly little antics. I am writing this on behalf of myself and, I hope, the so-called "straights" of Car-bondale. The article in the Sept. 29 Daily Egyptian is infuriating, and I would like to know when and I would like to know when all this stuipidity is going to end. Blue Jean Day — such original clothing. Half of the SIU students don't own anything but jeans. You "un-straights" should be tactful. Go out of your way to prove your own sickness! For example, gay males should wear something like panty hose and tutu, the gay females should wear something like con-struction boots and flannel Tshirts. Originality will probably get you new members.

I also wonder about some of those facts quoted in the article. It sounds like you GLPUs (Gay, Lesbian People's Union) are recruiting for Uncle Sam's military. For example, "60 military. For example, "60 percent of all American college students have had homosexual relationships. Where was this poll taken at, Biff's Fine School of Acting? Then the line about of Acting? Then the line about educating the straight is really blind. I don't think we straights need to be educated because if homosexuality is normal, why didn't God put two Adams, or two Eves on this world to frolic around with. The actual pur-pose of sex is reproduction; it is like magnets. Opposites attract. Face it, GLPUS, you are going against ill laws of nature. Weil, you GLPUS are in luck because it is anti-gay liberation army week. That means no one really cares about your childish games. Personally, I am not games. Personally, I am not going to wear jeans because my morals won't let me. But on the morals won't let me. but of any other hand, maybe I'll wear my other hand, maybe I'll wear my jeans and wear a sign saying "I'l am glad I don't have AIDS." I think it is terrible the way you degrade the human race. I guess I am a firm believer in locking your kind in a closet, and throwing the key away.— Michael J. Hinchliffe, Junior, Aviance

Jeans day unfair

In a recent Daily Egyptian, Ray Bradford of the Gay and Lesbian People's Union Steering Committee was quoted as saying "On Thursday (Oct. 6), everyone who supports the right to live an alternate, gay lifestyle should wear blue jeans

Jeans. Unfortunately many students either don't know about Thursday or else own nothing but blue jeans; these people will be counted as supporters, and I find this unfair. It would be just as unfair for me to say as unfair for me to say "Everyone who supports Reagan should go the Strip on Halloween." In both cases something nearly everyone does is used to show support for something that not everone might agree with. I believe that the GLPU should re-examine this idea and pick something more distinctive to show sup-port for their ideas. Otherwise, they are being unfair to themselves because there will-be no accurate way for them to be no accurate way for them to determine actual success. — Michael A. Phillips, Non-supporter, Sophomore, Computer Science.

_Viewpoint_ Beer will make the party bigger ...

By Morgan Falkner Student Writer

It has been a traditon for almost 11 years, and despite efforts by the Carbondale Police and City Council, it has remained the biggest event in town

I am referring, of course, to Halloween Carbondale style. With crowds estimated at between 10,000 and 15,000 annually, there are no signs that, as sports commentator Don Meredith puts it, "the party's over." It is a nationwide attraction, and one of the largest Halloween celebrations in the country.

If it were up to the council, however, the party would be over. Since 1980, ordinances have been passed by the council in an attempt to control the October festivities. The council passed an ordinance in 1980 limiting the hours that bars on South Illinois Avenue may stay open, and another ordinance prohibiting the sales of beer and "pop" wine in glass con-tainers during the week prior to Halloween.

IN 1981, the noise level ordinance mark famous by last year's police raids on Oak Street parties was passed. Also, a related ordinance prohibited taking donations at house parties to pay for kegs. These ordinances have proved to be more

but not necessarily any better

By Debbie Colburn Staff Writer

Black cats, vampire bats, witch's brew, goblins too. Excitement begins with the turning of the calendar. Children plan their costumes, parents plan the treats and worry whether they'll get tricked. Yet Halloween isn't what it used to be, especially for Carbondale's children

The time of scary fun and excitement has ebbed away from the meaning of Halloween and in its place has come an excuse to throw a party — not just any party, but a party that draws crowds from all over the country.

This year the gala event isn't limited to Illinois Avenue, but will be expanded to Grand Avenue, thus multiplying old problems.

Six beer booths, complete with portable toilets, will line Grand Avenue. I have no ob-jection to the potties, but the beer booths are another matter.

ARE BEER BOOTHS really necessary? Aren't there already enough places to buy alcoholic beverages lining both sides of Illinois Avenue? Why must another street be left reeking of booze, cigarette smoke, trash and vomit

With an increased area to party also comes an increased area to patrol. More patrolmen are needed — the cost to the city climbs. SIU-C successful at inconveniencing Carbondale partiers than in limiting Halloween weekend. Now, finally, it seems the council has come to the realization that it can't stop Halloween outright. So the council has passed yet another Halloween ordinance — one that's long over-

The ordinance will permit six beer booths to be set up on Grand Avenue Oct. 28 and 29, the be set up on Grand Avenue Oct. 28 and 29, the Friday and Saturday prior to Halloween. The measure is a clear move by the council to alleviate congestion on South Illinois Avenue created by the inevitable mass of people. With beer booths strategically placed on Grand Avenue, the council just mignt get what it wants

THIS IS NOT to say that the Strip will be barren — far from it, the Strip will be as alive as in the past. But with a viable attraction for students — and let's face it, anything short of alcohol won't attract anyone — not only will the Halloween celebration be expanded but the city will make money as well. Actually, it might not profit, but Halloween revenues will help defray the cost when clean-up time arrives. The council, it seems, has decided to take an

"if we can't beat 'em" attitude, and the results should be favorable for the students and the council alike.

Security Police will be out in full force and the city police will beef up their patrol. And partiers won't be the only ones waking up with headaches, either. Only a few short hours after the party dies down, clean-up begins. In 1980, about $8,000 was spent on extra police and city clean-up. Cost has been rising with each year. How much more will it cost to clean up and patrol a larger area?

ONCE THE PARTY'S over, a quick glance at the newspaper will show the increase in crimes and injuries that occurred over the weekend. In 1981, the weekend brought 36 arrests and 85 injuries related to the activities. One of these injuries occurred when a young man tried to jump on a moving train and had to have his leg amputated. Everypody knows Carbondale's a wild place, but are these the kind of things we want people to recall when they think of our city?

I'm not foolish enough to suggest that the city I in the toolist endoging suggest that the city try to phase out Halloween. That was tried and din't work. Yet the city seems to be adopting an "if you can't beat 'em, join 'em'' attitude which really isn't going to be profitable either.

EXPANDING the party area is a mistake. It'll cost the city more in money, manpower and reputation and no city can afford those kind of expenses, even for one weekend out of the year.

Oingo Boingo offers dance tunes

By Joe Walter Staff Writer

Oingo Boingo's lastest vinyl effort "Good for Your Soul" has to be the best dance alternative to the Euro-disco-synth-beat that has been around in in nauseating abundance this year.

year. Oingo Boingo incorporates an irregular ska bcat with singular sounding blasts from the horn section and layers it further with bare keyboards. The octet, led by Danny Elfman, creates some of the most distinctive ska music available. That is quite a claim since ska can easily become since ska can easily become redundant.

Elfman wrote the songs on this album, which deliver some guirky dance tunes and slower quirky dance tunes and slower numbers that avoid sounding like reggae — score one for originality. The music is combined with funny lyrics stating old hat new wave themes like conformity, war and of course 1984 (Hey! It's only three months away) in a decidedly off-beat way. "Little Guns," for example, contains an off the wall anti-war sentiment: "Tiny soldiers, with little guns; Little tanks, no ittle guns, Little tanks, no bigger that your thumb ...little airplanes, with tiny bombs; little squadrons, dropping thimbles of napalm; they want you." It sounus like armed cenflict in Munchkinland. ""Io Spill Blood" offers the listener a scenario of primitive men obeying the mindless law of conformity seeming?"

of conformity seemingly written in stone. To break the law means to face "ridicule, laughter and a trip to the house of pain.

Though the lyrics are witty Though the lyrics are wilty and irreverent, they lack the imagery one would associate with great rock or even ska. This brings to mind "Syn-chronicity" by the Police. The lyrics on that album are not only intelligent and at times withy, the words also describe images, themes and emotions with rich clarity.

No such universal imagery is present here but the lyrics still beat the trite omnipresent banality exhibited by the words oozing like sticky sap from groups like sticky sap from groups like Journey or REO. The lyrics here also beat the pants off of most of what has been offered by the Euro-disco bands like Haricut 100 and Culture Club, which deserve a gut-wrenching "Yeeech!"

Bob Duvall was spreading the word that rock'n'roll music was evil

By the time he had finished his 30-minute speech in the mid-day heat Wednesday, a small group of persons had stopped to listen to what the Maranatha Christian traveling minister had to say.

had to say. One young man stepped forward. "Just what's wrong with rock music?" he asked. After a little pondering the 6-foot 4-inch former insurance salesman responded. "Well," he laughed, "maybe you had better reword that to say, what isn't wrong with rock music."

better reword that to say, what isn't wrong with rock music." That night Duvail continued his crusade of warning college students about the evil of rock music. Nearly 150 persons gathered in Ballroom B of the Student Center to hear what the born-again preacher had to say. "Rock'n'roll has left the entertainment business and has entered into the stages of being entered into the stages of being a religion," he said. "It has its a rengion, ne said. "It has its own prophets, priests and kings. It has its dogmas and its do's and dcn'ts. And if that offends you then you can leave right now." now

Now there is more evidence that it also affects a person mentally and more important, spiritually." "The influence of music has never been neutral and never will be," he proclaimed. As an example Duvall cited the music of Bob Dylan, saying "music like this means something." """ like limi Hendrix once

Duvall also played samples of music by Black Sabbath, Styx and the Electric Light Orchestra

According to Duvail, another common way that "messages" make it onto records is a technique known as "back masking." This method in-volves reversing a message on a Divall explained that part of the problem was technical difficulties with the sound system. At times his voice could be heard on only one of the two speakers set on each side of the podium.

The symbols on the cover of an album are another way that the rock industry influences people, he said.

He cited the pentagram that is common on the LP covers for groups such as Rush as evidence of the influence much rock music has.

"The pentagram," he said "is a symbol used to call or conjure up demonic spirits.

"Now some people are gonna turn to me and say 'Bob, you know that that's just a gimmick to get people to buy the record. And all I have to say is sure. Some of it's going to be for the sake of sales, but not all of it.

"There's a reason why I believe that it's intentional," he continued. "Rock musicians want to mock something that is powerful. Why mock someone like Buddha? Buddha isn't powerful but God is."

Duvall will present another program on rock'n roll at 7 p.m. Wednesday in Ballroom B of thc Student Center. His visit to SIU-C is sponsored by the Maranatha Christian Center.

When a slide projector breaks down this year, a quick repair job is not guaranteed.

If a faculty member needs help in processing research data, the graduate student who helped last year may have been laid off.

When an instructor wants to show a film, the paperwork will take two days longer. The film will cost the academic depart-ment $5 an hour for the services of a student worker. These are some of the effects of budget cuts in the Learning Resources Service, according to Douglas Bedient, director of the service. ' Funding reductions have forced the service to trim nine staff members and leave one faculty position unfilled. A reduction in student workers was also made, according to Bedient. Funds for staffing were reduced about $150,000 and money for student wages was cut about $11,000, Bedient said. Two percent of the Learning Resources budget that was put aside in a reserve fund was eliminated.

The total budget for Library Affairs was cut about $243,00 Of this amount, about $150,000 was slashed from Learning Resources, according to

Was slashed from Learning Resources, according to Kenneth Peterson, dean of library affairs. Peterson said the decision to cut the Learning Resources budget was made by John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs. Last year, University officials set up a Non-Academic Priorities Committee's purpose was to belp administrators identify areas where the budget could be cut. cut

In the spring, the committee reported that funding for Learning Resources should be "maintained at current levels." Guyon nevertheless cut the LRS budget, which amounted to three-fifths of the total cut from Morris Library. Guyon said he didn't agree with the committee's recom-

"It's unfortunate one of the major library units has to suffer such a fate," Bedient said.

"You can get everything here from projectors to consultation on teaching, studying and learning," Bedient said.

The Self-Instruction Center, Student Media Design Lab, a film library and repair of audiovisual equipment are some of the services offered by Learning Resources. LRS faculty also helps in instructing teaching assistants in the College of Engineering and other departments.

in instructional programs. Bedient said

Bedient said that this year three fewer repair technicians will be available to repair audio-visual equipment. The service in the past has repaired equipment for the entire campus. However, with only one full-time technician and student workers, LRS will barely be able to keep its own inventory in repair, Bedient said. said

Reality, government statistics don't jibe in economic picture

By John Cunniff Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — In this day of instant, computer-derived numbers, a lot of statistics seem not to add up. When big computers were first used to track the billions of pieces of data that government uses to build a picture of the economy, it was thought that numbers were hard things that wouldn't bend.

Maybe thev don't. but something happens to them that can't always be explained easily. And big decisions are made on the basis of numbers.

There are some obvious explanations. Early reports of retail sales, for example, are subject to revision because of additional data. And data on jobs are subject to seasonal adjustments by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. And those who follow job statistics know that the number of people actually employed can fall, while the seasonally adjusted jobless rate also falls. That is, that the job picture can weaken while the statistic strengthens. Statistician Albert Sindlinger likes to say, that seasonally adjusted, Lake Erie never

But what do you do, other than scratch your head, when you are presented with these statistics, as you were during the past month:

the past month: —An 8.4 percent rise in August housing starts to the highest level in nearly five years, despite a simultaneous rise in mortgage rates that almost everyone concluded would bring homebuilding to its knees knees. —A sharp increase in the amount of automobile credit outstanding in August at the same time that auto sales declined.

The ubiquitous and often anonymous "analysts," who seem to be quoted all the time, are dodging interviews as they seek to determine what to make out of these apparently con-flicting numbers.

There is, however, a type of statistics watcher who is ac-customed to conflicts and mysteries and who, never-theless, remains on the battle front. He is the Fed Watcher, front. He is the Fed Watcher, the person who each week awaits the Federal Reserve report on the nation's money supply, hoping to find in the numbers some guidance to the economy's direction over the weeks to follow.

That he receives conflicting reports never seems to daunt him, nor does it discourage the millions of people who avidly follow the reports on whether M1 and other symbols of money in circulation have risen or fallen

It's all done in an attempt to understand ... to create order where no order can otherwise be discerned.

But when you consider that sometimes the numerical symbols might be wrong, and that some of them will be revised or adjusted, and that some of them also are derived from subjective assumptions, you are entitled to wonder.

To wonder, for example, if the numbers really clarify, or if, perhaps, they might not add to the confusion.

"If Cuoch had made some outstanding saves, she could have saved the game for us. You can't blame the goals on the goalkeeper. When they go through our whole team and score in 14 seconds it is not the goalie's fault."

After the Toledo game, Illner made changes in the midfield and switched fron: a 44-2 alignment to a 4-3-3 which utilizes three links. Disaster struck the SIU-C women's field bockey team last weekend.

SIU-C which finished 1-2 in the Saluki Hockey Fest, lost to Toledo 5-4 in one overtime period and to Indiana State 2-1 in double overtime. The Salukis notched their only victory over winless Western Illinois (1-0).

Five teams participated in the Hockey Fest, which wasn't a tournament but was designed for schools to play a series of games at a central site. ISU and Southwest Missouri State each posted a 2-0 record, while Toledo finished 2-2 and Western Illinois went 0-3.

Illinois went 0-3. "It was not a good weekend for us," admitted SIU-C women's field hockey Coach Julee Illner, whose team slipped to 2-1 in the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference and 5-4-1 overall. "The thing that is so frustrating is the skill is there. Position-wise we are at the right places, but the stick-work wasn't there this weekend."
