Senate passes draft bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of delay the Senate passed and sent to the White House Tuesday the bill extending the military draft until June 30, 1973.

Passage of the bill by a vote of 55 to 30 came with surprising suddenness after the Senate by just one vote had invoked its antifilibuster rule to limit debate on the measure.

President Nixon's signature, expected promptly, will enable the Selective Service System to resume draft inductions halted when the old law expired last June 30.

Another major section of the legislation calls for a 2.4-billion military pay increase intended to improve chances for creating all-volunteer armed forces by mid 1973.

Under the compromise reached by the House-Senate conferees, the effective date for the increase was set as Oct. 1. But the compromise—not subject to amendment from the Senate floor—was adopted by the conferees and approved by the House well before Nixon announced his 90-day wage-price freeze on Aug. 15.

His action leaves in doubt whether the increase can be granted at the date specified or will have to be deferred until after the freeze ends Nov. 14.

The Senate's action was a major victory for the President and a defeat for antiwar senators who had held out for

200 rent freeze complaints filed

By Pat Nussman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Office of Emergency Planning (OEP) soon may finally disclose whether it will be the students or the Carbondale landlords who will be "caught in the freeze," an Internal Revenue spokesman said Tuesday.

Mrs. Marilyn Clark said she has turned over about 200 Carbondale area complaints to the OEP units in Chicago and Springfield. Though none of them have been settled yet, she said she expects a general ruling within the next few weeks.

There is doubt as to the status of rent hikes for which contracts had been signed and deposits paid before Aug. 15, when the freeze began.

The justification cited for raising the rent above the spring and summer rates in these cases is that a substantial volume of transactions (deposits) were conducted at the higher fall rate before the freeze date.

According to the Cost of Living Council, even if an agreement at the higher rent was signed prior to Aug. 15, the increase cannot go into effect during the freeze. But it does not mention the effect of the deposit or whether it can be viewed as a "substantial transaction."

The council also states that even if rental rates had been increased for 75 per cent of the units under an ownership before the freeze, the remaining 25 per cent of his units cannot be increased.

Mrs. Clark said this statement might cancel the landlord's "substantial transaction" argument. However, she said that the final administration decision is uncertain since none of the council's statements are specific in this respect.

"We've been begging them (the OEP) to do something about this before the term began," Mrs. Clark said.

So far, very few students have gone to the Internal Revenue Service to file complaints, but Mrs. Clark expects a great many more after the first of the term rush, she said.

"The older people are more philosophic about it, but the younger people just will not stand for it (landlords hiking rates)," she said. "And this is good. If we're going to have a wage-price freeze, who should make it work."

After a complaint is filed with the office, Mrs. Clark seeks a voluntary settlement with the landlord.

"Some people were just not aware and they were very willing to comply. Some of them know it's on and just don't care," she added.

A great number of these landlords, she said, write to the OEP for an exception—they think they should be able to raise their rent because it was too low in the first place.

If a landlord persists in raising his rates after being investigated by the OEP, he risks having an injunction put on him by the Department of Justice.

Failure to comply with the injunction places the violator in contempt of court and liable for civil penalties escalating on a daily basis with a possible $5,000 fine for each violation.

Although the contract and deposit facet of the rent freeze is unclear, some other areas of the rental picture are more specific:

1.) If a tenant's lease expires his rent can not be raised to the level being paid by new tenants in similar units.

2.) Landlords may not require a tenant to pay utilities after Aug. 15, if utilities prior to that time have been paid by the landlord.

3.) If the landlord makes a capital improvement on the property of more than $250, he may increase the rent 1 1/2 per cent of the cost of the improvement.

4.) The landlord can increase the rent if more people are in the dwelling than prior to Aug. 15, but only in proportion to the prior rate.

5.) Charges may be made for extra services rendered, but not in such a way to circumvent the freeze.

6.) Rates may be changed according to season, if three preceding year's records show a consistent difference in summer and fall rates.

If the landlord has not been in business for three years, he is, as Mrs. Clark says, "stuck with the summer rate."

Council OK's Wilson Hall lot lease

The Carbondale City Council Tuesday night approved a lease with Wilson Hall, 1184 S. Wall, for use of city-owned land on the northeast corner of East Park and South Wall streets as a parking lot for the dormitory.

Under the terms of the lease, Howard Wilson, owner of the dormitory, will pay the city $50 per month. The total rent will be $3,000 over the five-year period, but $1,500 of that amount is earmarked for improvement of the site, giving the city a $1,500 profit.

The lease was approved after considerable discussion by the council. Councilmen expressed concern that the rental would not be equitable to the city. Rather than collect the monthly rent, it was suggested that the city install parking meters, sell monthly permits or install an automatic gate at the entrance of the lot.

After discussion, however, the council decided that enforcement of either parking meters or permits would be too costly, as would be the cost of an automatic gate.

By a 4-1 vote, with councilman Archie Jones casting the dissenting vote, the council also agreed to use the $1,500 profit for future development of the lot as a green-belt area. This means that the area would be landscaped as part of an overall proposal to make Carbondale a greener city.

In other business, the council refused to approve a resolution for the erection

Expanded library facilities should aid undergraduates

By Chuck Hatcher/
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Finding material in Morris Library should now be easier for undergraduates. The reason is an undergraduate library which will officially open Wednesday with a ceremony at Morris Library. President Robert G. Lauer will be present. C. E. Mathews, assistant director of Morris Library, said Tuesday that no time for the ceremony has been set.

The undergraduate library is a collection of approximately 40,000 books, monographic materials, periodicals, topographic reference materials, indices, vertical files and newspapers, materials specially selected to serve the undergraduate student.

Housed on the first floor of Morris Library, where the science materials were once located, the undergraduate library has a new reading lounge, expanded study space, including private carrels, a typing room and a group study room. Mathews said the new library cost approximately $750,000.

The opening of the undergraduate library marks completion of moving into the top three floors of the library left incomplete when the building was built in 1956.

Federal panel ok's redistricting map

CHICAGO (AP) — A three-judge federal panel approved Tuesday a plan submitted by three Republican state legislators for redistricting Illinois' 24 congressional districts along more equitable population lines.

The newly approved plan could give the Republicans two and perhaps three additional seats in Congress because of shifts in population.

The panel, empowered to make the decision after the General Assembly failed to reach agreement on congressional reapportionment, accepted a proposal submitted by House Speaker W. Robert Blair of Park Forest, Rep. Henry Hyde of Chicago and Rep. Ed. Madigan of Lincoln.

Of the three judges sitting on the panel, only Senior Court Judge William J. Campbell dissented on the vote. He was a Democratic appointee to the tribunal.

Serving along with Campbell and voting affirmatively were Senior Appeals Court Judge Latham Castle, and Judge Bernard M. Decker, both Republican appointees.

(In the new plan, Jackson County is in District 24 with Bond, Clinton, Marion, Washington, Jefferson, Monroe, Randolph, Perry, Franklin, Hamilton, White, Gallatin, Saline, Williamson, Union, Johnson, Pope, Hardin, Muncie, Putlaski and Alexander counties.)

The science materials have been moved to the fifth and sixth floors. All reserve materials have been relocated to the southwest corner of the library's first floor. This is under the jurisdiction of the undergraduate library.

Reserve material may now be checked out in a self-service operation and students may obtain receipts showing they returned reserve material they checked out. Clayton Highum, director of the undergraduate library, says the new facility was designed to serve the undergraduate, although it may be used by other students. Highum said no attempt was made to serve research needs, however. He did say that the material was selected and arranged to make it easier for the undergraduate to get started in his research.

French radio speculates that Mao is dead or dying

PARIS (AP) — The French national radio speculated Tuesday that Mao Tse-tung may have died, or be gravely ill, following a heart attack. There was little but circumstantial evidence to support such a report, and Peking broadcasts were silent on the subject.

In an early evening broadcast, the French network pushed the theory as a possible reason behind puzzling developments in mainland China.

It adduced as evidence the fact that two leading U.S. heart surgeons flew to Peking this week. The radio said the New China News Agency identified them only as part of a visiting group of U.S. doctors, but said this could have been a cover for urgent treatment for Mao.

Dr. Paul Dudley White and other American doctors are in China—but in fact they were invited weeks ago.

The radio also reported stories that all civil and military aid traffic inside China was halted for three days earlier this week. Another piece of evidence was a reported cancellation of the massive traditional Oct. 1 parade in Peking.

Some of the background, but not the actual speculation, came from French writers who are stationed in Peking. The Chinese government has not allowed American correspondents to be stationed there.

The government-owned television channel said of Mao: "There are reports in Hong Kong that he has suffered a major heart attack, and some people are whispering that he is dead."

This newscaster added that the Central Committee of the Chinese communist party may be meeting in Peking.

One thing that could be happening in Peking is a meeting to determine finally whether it will join the United Nations if the Taiwan regime retains membership. This matter is due for settlement next month. Peking has insisted that Taiwan be excluded.

The SIU Board of Trustees recently revised the rules concerning student possession of motor vehicles in the Carbondale area.

Under the new rules, the University will not attempt to regulate off-campus possession and operation of student-owned motor vehicles. On-campus use and parking of motor vehicles will be restricted as before. Only vehicles having SIU parking stickers will be allowed on campus.

The sale of stickers is open to junior, senior and graduate students; students over 21; married students, commuters, handicapped students or those showing special needs.

Although this new policy is unquestionably the most fair thing to do, some thought should be given to its impact on traffic in Carbondale.

There are presently 14,274 motor vehicles registered through the Parking Section. Robert Brown, assistant supervisor of parking, estimates there are some 300-500 unregistered vehicles belonging to SIU students in Carbondale. This makes an approximate total of 20,000 SIU-connected cars that are in Carbondale and the surrounding area.

There will be, beginning this quarter, 7,487 parking spaces open on campus, according to the Campus Architect's Office.

This means there are 12,500 more vehicles than SIU parking spaces and an extra 12,500 automobiles, motorcycles, etc. will have to be handled by the Carbondale street system.

The intent of the new motor vehicle regulations is laudable, but practicality is another point. Perhaps more study should have been given before this ruling was made. Consultation with city officials and planning consultants is certainly in order.

Perhaps the problem will not be of great proportions. It is possible that this fall's traffic will not be significantly greater than a year ago. Everything could work out fine—or it could be one of SIU's greatest fiascos. Only time will tell.

The Butcher runs free

Courtland T. Milley Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Butcher still runs free in Morris Library. Armed with a small pocket knife or razor blade, he is costing the University about $4,000 annually in terms of material replacement alone. This does not include the time and other costs required to procure missing materials, nor does it include the inconvenience caused to students or the loss in the library's stock of materials for scholarship. With one eye cracked, the Butcher heads for the periodicals. As he is cutting and slicing away, little does he realize that the replacement of that one magazine may cost up to $100, because the entire volume must be purchased.

The average cost of a book at Morris Library is about $10. However, some books run as much as $125 a copy. Hence, the Butcher's work gets more expensive.

There is no sure fire way to curb the Butcher. However, it is known what kind of books the Butcher likes. Books in the areas of sex techniques, drugs, birth control, car repair and cooking seem to strike his fancy.

Since mutilation of these books out number others by such a wide margin, a closed shelf section which would include these books may help.

On November 23, 1967, Sidney Matthews, assistant director of the Library, requested that immediate disciplinary measures be taken, including suspension, against any person removing library materials without proper authorization.

Though the books are government property and thieves are subject to a federal penalty, no such action has ever been taken against an offender.

During fall quarter, the situation will be even worse. With more undergraduates at SIU during this quarter, mutilations and thefts will rise sharply. During this quarter alone, the Butcher may run up a bill of more than $1,500.

According to F.S. Randall, Library director, "if we could get these students to realize that they are depriving another student of the privilege of using the books they mutilate, then we could ease the problem."

The Butcher would probably laugh at Randall's statement. The Butcher knows what he is doing. The Butcher must be stopped!

Comment on prisons

To the Daily Egyptian

The recent massacre of guards and inmates at Attica Correctional Facility spectacularly reflects the rampant deterioration of the American penal system. Overcrowded and unsanitary facilities, nutritionally deficient food, brutal incarceration of potentially reformable wrongdoers with callous recidivists schooled in sodomy and sadism—these are but a few symptoms of an entrenched decay warranting immediate eradication.

We might expect the federal government to initiate overdue reforms in state, as well as federal, penitentiaries and assume primary financial responsibility. But, then, we can only be guardedly optimistic upon recalling the real priorities of federal spending, e.g., the Pentagon budget.

Hopefully, Americans will not always have to reconcile themselves to the fact that what happens in prison is a crime.

Obelisk criticized

To the Daily Egyptian

I found the article about the Obelisk in the August 26 edition of the Daily Egyptian very interesting. Moreso, I thought the comments of Claudia Christy, immediate past student editor, and W. Manion Rice, fiscal officer, vividly depicted the problems of the Obelisk. Miss Christy could not have said it better when she said that the students are more "interested in people, attitudes, policies, and outlooks" than the traditional "historical account."

There is no doubt in my mind that SIU's yearbook is well put-together. In fact, I feel that the book is very good-looking. Unfortunately, the contents leave a little to be desired. The student body is tired of a yearbook that looks like what has been called a "1960 version of the Stanford Redbook." This is 1971. College life is different today from the life of 10 years ago. As it has changed, so must our yearbook. The yearbook must tell it like it is, not like what an administrator would like it to be.

Dr. Rice stated that the Student Senate wishes more student control of how the book is edited. He's right, they do. As Chairman of the Student Senate, I can easily justify such a desire. The Obelisk is nearly totally funded by the students, especially through the Student Activity Fee. It is the philosophy of Student Government that if an organization is to be subsidized by student monies then there should be a system of student input for control of these funds. I fail to see such a system incorporated in the management of the Obelisk. What I see is a faculty member who can "veto" any suggestions supplied by students.

This should be reversed. The obligation of the fiscal officer is simply to see that the money is spent legally. The students involved, I'm sure, can be trusted with the responsibility of editing and managing the yearbook. I am also convinced that if more student control was implemented and less student suggestions were discouraged that there would be no problem selling the annual to the students. Dr. Rice seems to know the problems of the yearbook, so why doesn't he do something about it?

Choate defended

To the Daily Egyptian

In reference to the letter from Clyde Morgan that you published in your Tuesday, August 24, 1971, paper, I would like to express my complete and utter disgust at his trying to put the blame on Clyde Choate of Anna, Illinois for the budget being cut and hundreds of people being laid off work.

You have only to check the House record in Springfield to find that he supported Amendments to increase budgetary items for the Southern Illinois University budget. These particular Amendments did clear the House completely. But, they were not approved by the Senate, so I do not see how you can possibly put the blame on Clyde Choate.

I think if you will check the Record, you will find that he has helped and assisted Dr. Morris in many ways in building Southern Illinois University to what it is today.

On being afraid

By Arthur Hoppe
Chronicle Features

It was a lovely summer day, white clouds scudding in a blue sky. Coming toward me on the sidewalk were two young men, one short and mustached, the other tall and wearing dark glasses. And I was afraid.

I felt the ugly fear rising in me while they were still half a block away—the ugly fear that becomes more familiar with each passing day. As always, the fear was impersonal. I had never seen either one of them before. Our lives had never touched.

I was afraid simply because they were young and poor and black.

They walked the way more and more young blacks from ghettos seem to walk these days: with a certain cool defiance and (perhaps I imagine it) a secret pleasure in the knowledge of my fear.

And, make no mistake, I feared them. I fear all who are young and poor and black and walk that way. We were still 50 yards apart. I thought of crossing the street. The traffic was too heavy. I hated the fear that grew within me.

It wasn't always that way. I thought back on how it used to be. Was it only ten years ago? Remember? We worked together then. We marched together then. We sang, "We Shall Overcome" together and listened to Martin Luther King together and talked together over endless cups of coffee of how the day would soon come when the color of a man's skin would no longer matter. That's how it was then—ten short years ago.

And now my stomach churned with fear. Ten years ago we were slowly closing the gap. Remember? We were slowly getting civil rights laws passed. We were slowly integrating neighborhoods, slowly achieving equality of opportunity. All too slowly. And now the gap that was closing then has somehow widened into a fearful chasm.

Now the militant young black leaders talk not of brotherhood and love, but of killing the pigs and of flogging the honkies. So pigs are being killed and honkies flogged. Nor do they talk to us. No, we no longer work or march or sing or listen or talk together.

I like to think I understand a little of what these young blacks feel. Every man needs something from his fellows. And if he can win neither their love, their respect nor their admiration because the game is stacked against him, he will gladly settle for their fear.

As these two young blacks drew closer, I thought I understood something else. I thought I understood the fear a young black must have felt in the South when the Ku Klux Klan was riding high. And my black friends (they are all too few now) might well say there is a justice in my reaping what my fathers sowed. Maybe so.

They were close now. Suddenly, I realized that I not only hated my fear, I hated them for making me afraid, for making me less of a man. So now it is their turn to sow fear. But soon it will be their turn to reap hatred, for we come to hate what we fear. And then it will be our turn to sow fear once again.

At that moment, I knew what I should do. I should look up into their eyes and smile—smile with love and respect and admiration we human beings should have for each other.

I didn't. I didn't because I was afraid. So we passed, I looking down, they... I don't know if they even looked at me. Perhaps. Perhaps not.

As always, once the immediate danger was gone, the immediate fear eased. But now, having thought back over the years that have passed, a new kind of fear grows within me. It is a fear for the years to come.

What kind of world?

Artistic freedom or smut license?

by Harry S. Ashmore
Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Anyone who has recently visited a newsstand, bookstore, nightclub, theater or movie house must conclude that there are no longer effective restraints against what used to be identified as obscenity and banned from public view.

There are legal confusions in the absence of clear-cut precedents by the U.S. Supreme Court, and here and there a latter-day Comstock stages a raid against an exhibition or impounds a cargo of hard pornography. But this usually turns out to be another case of Canute against the tide.

Television and newspapers still censor their content in the name of taste, but even here the standards are shifting toward a permissiveness that would have been unthinkable a decade ago. Outside the mass media there is no check at all, except the artistic integrity of the perpetrators, and this clearly is nonexistent in the case of much of the current output.

It is not rationally possible to invoke artistic intent in defense of public fornication performed in a barroom or of a book or film that adopts the explicit sexual format of an old-fashioned stag movie. When such practices are challenged in court they must be justified on the ground that prudence is healthy -- or at least does not violate prevailing standards of community taste.

Where there evidently is artistic intent, however, coupled with a high order of artistic skill, the result of the new freedom can be most gratifying. The current movie, "Carnal Knowledge," is a case in point. It is a serious, even somber statement on our sexual mores which, without losing its sharp dramatic focus, also stands as an implicit commentary on the emptiness of contemporary life.

Since Jules Feiffer wrote the screenplay, there are moments of humor, mostly black, and under Mike Nichols' direction, the entertainment values of plot and symbolic scene are not neglected. Yet, with it all, "Carnal Knowledge" stands as a remarkably tasteful treatment of the subject denoted by its title.

If we are treated to an occasional glimpse of Ann-Margaret in the buff, a recurrent orgasmic puffing and heaving in the shadows, and the explication of the plot in the locker room language of two aging college roommates, this is intrinsic to the theme. One who finds a touch of titillation here and there cannot avoid the movie's joyless implication that sex in America has degenerated into a sort of contrived escape therapy, when it is not a trivial gratification on a par with a good meal and a crisp martini.

It is arguable whether "Carnal Knowledge" is high art, but it surely is a work of integrity, and it could not have been made under the old restraints. I suppose a case can be made that the public welfare does not necessarily require this particular treatment of this subject, but this is highly treacherous ground. I do not believe myself that we conceivably would be better off if Messrs. Feiffer and Nichols had been denied the opportunity to make their own statement on the human condition in their own way.

There is, heaven knows, a great deal of dross on the surface of the new brew made possible by the effective end of censorship of the arts. The bookracks are filled with sensational trash, and some of the more serious film producers so far have not been able to resist the temptation to gratify audiences with patched-in sex scenes even when these constitute fatal diversions to their own dramatic purpose.

But there is increasing evidence where it counts, at the box office, that this may be a passing phase -- that both artists and audiences are moving beyond the initial sensory excitements made possible by the new freedom. Hard core pornography doubtless will continue to ride piggyback on the relaxed standards of taste. It is not too high a price to pay if in the process the novel and the drama are permitted to break new ground in the effort to tell us a story that provides new insight into ourselves and our chaotic society.

U. S. jets hit N. Viets heavily

SAIGON (AP) — An armada of 200 U.S. planes swarmed over North Vietnam Tuesday and delivered one of the heaviest raids in the North in the past three years.

The supersonic jets flew through antiaircraft fire to bomb surface-to-air missile SAM and gun sites, supply depots and trucks, parks in a six-hour attack from daylight to noon.

The U.S. Command said fighter-bombers launched 200 bombing strikes in North Vietnam's southern peninsula, concentrating on an area from the demilitarized zone to about 25 miles north of it.

About 50 other aircraft supported the strikes. These included jet fighters flying protective cover, electronic planes to jam the radar guidance systems of antiaircraft guns and SAM missiles, rescue planes and helicopters, and reconnaissance planes to take photos of bomb damage.

The U.S. Command said all of the American planes returned safely to their bases in South Vietnam and Thailand. No assessment of damage to the North Vietnamese positions was readily available, the command added.

Pilots reported light to moderate antiaircraft fire but said they encountered no SAMs.

The U.S. Command said the raids were ordered because of a recent increase in North Vietnamese missile and antiaircraft fire at unarmed U.S. reconnaissance planes over North Vietnam and at American aircraft attacking in Laos near North Vietnamese territory.

In addition, sources said, the raids were prompted by heavy North Vietnamese attacks across the DMZ last month against allied frontier defenses.

A large North Vietnamese troop and supply buildup has been reported recently just north of the DMZ.

Moreover, South Vietnamese field commanders say that more than half the 15,000 to 18,000 North Vietnamese troops once deployed in the region immediately below the DMZ have pulled back into North Vietnam in recent weeks.

The pullout came in the face of incessant U.S. B-52 raids and a 13,000-man South Vietnamese ground sweep of the sector. The 200 strikes Tuesday also could have been aimed at catching some of the retreating North Vietnamese troops and equipment.

The U.S. Command described the raids as "protective reaction strikes against military targets in North Vietnam constituting a threat to the safety of U.S. forces."

They constituted the 60th so-called protective reaction attacks this year. These attacks are usually undertaken when a U.S. plane is fired upon or when it detects North Vietnamese ground radar is tracking in preparation for firing. Most of the protective reaction strikes have been by two or three planes.

Testing office sets dates

By University News Service

Harley Bradshaw, coordinator of National Testing, has announced dates for medical college, law school and graduate study in business admission tests and for the national teacher examinations.

All tests will be given at SIU and information can be obtained at Counseling and Testing.

Medical college admission tests, to be administered to students desiring to enter medical colleges in the fall of 1972, will be given Saturday, Oct. 14. Deadline for receipt of applications is Sept. 20.

The law school test, required of candidates for admission to most American law schools, will be given Oct. 16 and Dec. 18 this year and Feb. 12, April 8 and July 29, 1972.

Since many law schools select their freshman classes in the spring preceding entrance, candidates for next year's classes are advised by Bradshaw to register for the October, December, or February administration. This half-day test does not constitute application for admission to law school. The registration form and fees must reach Educational Testing Service at least three weeks before the desired test date.

The admission test for graduate study in business, required by more than 270 graduate business schools or divisions, will be offered this Nov. 7 and on Feb. 6, April 13, and Aug. 12, 1972. Bradshaw urged applicants to register for either the November or February administration of the aptitude test, designed to measure abilities and skills developed over a long period of time. The registration deadline is three weeks before a test date.

College seniors preparing to teach school may take the national teacher examinations on either Nov. 13 this year or Jan. 26, April 8, or July 15, 1972.

Bureau says short TV ads are dominating

NEW YORK (AP) — Settle down to watch a television movie this season and chances are you will see not less than 22 commercials—nearly twice as many as a year ago.

The networks are not selling more time for commercials, but they are running more commercials in the same time.

The 60-second commercial has become a rarity on the tube this season. The 30-second commercial, from a toehold a year ago, now dominates the medium.

The voluntary code of the National Association of Broadcasters limits networks in prime time to three minutes of commercials a half hour, six an hour and 14 minutes during a two-hour movie.

Until January, 60 seconds was the shortest time the networks would sell a sponsor, although some advertisers were sneaking in 30-second "piggyback" spots by splitting a minute. Then CBS began to sell 30-second spots and the rush was on.

The TV Bureau of Advertising says that by June 65 per cent of the commercial shown on the networks were 30's. The figure is believed to be even higher with the opening of the new season.

"It came about because the advertisers wanted it," said a bureau spokesman. "The networks didn't want it. But the advertisers said it was more efficient to use 30's. Surveys showed that viewer awareness of a 30 was 75 per cent that of a full minute."

The advertisers figure they are getting three-quarters of the attention for half the price.

Archery clinic, area clean-up slated Saturday

A clean-up starting at 10 a. m. and an archery clinic at 7:30 p. m. are scheduled Saturday at the Crab Orchard Wildlife Refuge.

Those interested in archery and in helping to clean the public hunting area will meet at the wildlife headquarters at the intersection of Route 148 and Old Route 12. Larry Murphy, bow-hunting representative of the Illinois Archers Association and staff assistant in the Department of Electrical Science and Systems Engineering, said trucks and tools will be provided by the refuge management.

Jerrod Garver of the Illinois Department of Fish and Game will be guest speaker at the night clinic. He will talk about Illinois deer. In addition, three archery movies will be shown, Murphy said. Deer prizes also are planned.

Anyone interested in either activity should contact Murphy at his office, 483-2842, or at home, 980-2545.

Oceanographers urge limits on use of oceans

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Oceanographers have launched man's most extensive study of pollution for at sea and of little-understood rivers of cold water that affect circulation in the deep.

They say it is becoming increasingly urgent for man to learn the limits on his ultimate use of the oceans, and whether such activities as dumping wastes might someday alter circulation and cause regional or even global weather changes.

Experts at Scripps Institute of Oceanography, one of seven universities and institutions joining in the $4-million, four-year study, say recent tests in the South Pacific of a key research instrument were better than expected. The instrument automatically measures water temperature, depth and salt content, feeding the data into a computer.

It will measure these variables from ocean surface to bottom at 120 stops during cruises along north-south tracks in the Atlantic, Pacific and Indian oceans. The data will enable scientists to map the rivers of deep cold water.

More than 5,000 samples will be collected during two years of cruises and analyzed for natural and manmade radioactivity. The radioactivity levels will serve as sensitive "clocks," indicating how far a pollutant has traveled since it entered the ocean.

Atmospheric tests of nuclear weapons, for example, introduced radioactive elements into the sea unique to many of the detonations. Tracing movement of these elements will tell how fast currents move and how quickly contaminants on the ocean surface find their way into the deep currents.

Combining this data, the scientists hope eventually to predict how fast and in what directions a pollutant will spread from any depth or location during hundreds or even thousands of years.

The answers about pollution are needed most urgently, Joe Reid, a Scripps oceanographer, said in an interview.

"We're essentially operating in a vacuum as far as ocean pollution is concerned," he said. "Ecologists tell us terrible tales of ocean pollution but they cannot really justify what they're saying. On the other hand, one can't prove them wrong. There's always the possibility things are even worse than we think."

Understanding ocean circulation is important because many experts believe it plays a major role in determining regional and global weather.

Student Senate sets orientation meeting

The Student Senate will hold an orientation meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday in activity rooms A and B of the Student Center. All senators are expected to attend the meeting. Jim Peters, student body vice president, said Tuesday.

The Senate will review procedures for the composition, submission and consideration of bills. Committee functions and the possibility of limiting debate time also will be discussed, said Peters.

The tentative committee members, drawn up by last year's committee on committees, also be considered, according to George Camille, student body president.

Edward Hammond, assistant to the president for student relations; and Larry Cox, coordinator for student governance, will also attend the meeting.

The first regular meeting of the Student Senate will be at 7:30 Sept. 29 in Lawson 131. Bills may be submitted at that meeting, though none will be acted upon until the following session.

Consumers ask for equality after freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon wound up his survey of post-freeze proposals Tuesday and was reported planning to unveil his new economic program about mid-October.

This will "give everyone 30 days to prepare themselves" for what comes after Nov. 14, said Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania in disclosing the President's plan.

Scott said he assumes Nixon will go on radio and television to announce the measures that will form Phase II of the anti-inflation program he started Aug. 15 with a 90-day freeze on wages, prices and rents.

In the sixth and last of his sessions with economic groups, Nixon met Tuesday with consumer organizations. They asked him for an "equality of sacrifice" wage-price program.

On Capitol Hill, congressional revenue raisers decided tentatively to revise the President's investment tax plan. Instead of the two-step investment tax credit proposed by Nixon, the House Ways and Means Committee agreed on a flat 7 per cent credit for the purchase of new equipment.

The decision is subject to a final vote, and the effective date also remains to be settled, although it is expected to be set back to April 1, 1971 instead of the Aug. 15, 1971 date proposed by Nixon.

Nixon asked Congress to pass a 10 per cent credit the first year, dropping down to 5 per cent thereafter. Some committee members argued this would produce a rush of equipment orders followed by a slump.

Overseas, West Germany's Central Bank intervened in the foreign exchange market to stave off a record decline of the dollar. The dollar has dropped sharply in the last two days because of reports, denied by the U.S. Treasury Department, that the United States is pressing for a 15 per cent revaluation of the mark.

The Senate securities subcommittee opened its long-awaited probe of the stock market and was told that the Securities and Exchange Commission will approve a new schedule of commissions for brokers next week, to take effect some time after the 90-day price freeze ends Nov. 13.

SEC Chairman William J. Casey said that under the new schedule small investors will not have to pay the present $15 commission surcharge, but in some cases will wind up with a higher commission bill. At an hour and 40-minute White House session, the consumer organizations told Nixon that his post-freeze wage-price stabilization program had "better be fair," insuring that big business shares the economic sacrifices with consumers.

They urged controls on interest rates, profits and dividends. They also asked for full participation in the program to follow the freeze so that consumers "once more will not be left holding the bag."

Nixon took notes, listened carefully but did not indicate what he will propose for Phase II, said Don S. Willmar, president of the Consumer Federation of America.

Churches providing new housing for needy

NEW YORK (AP) — On a booming front, American churches are producing new housing for the poor, the elderly and other needy people. And it can be done without costing members a dime.

That is, "if it's done right," says the Rev. Dr. John Vanderbeck, of Valley Forge, Pa., a Baptist who has become the No. 1 "housing man" for churches in this country.

Dr. Vanderbeck, 45, a specialist in the technicalities of financing developing and managing housing as well as a minister, is president of the American Baptist Service Corporation, the nation's biggest producer of nonprofit housing.

"The key of what we're doing is the word 'service,'" Vanderbeck said in an interview. "Our main strength is that we care for people."

Because of the Baptist agency's experience and know-how it has become the technical planner, funding processor and coordinator for housing projects sponsored by church groups of many denominations.

Since 1968, when the Baptist agency was handling 18 projects costing about $12 million, its work has grown to its present 239 projects across the country involving outlays totaling $587 million, and when completed, housing about 60,000 people.

The projects at various stages from preliminary paperwork to finished, operating, housing for the poor, old, mentally ill or nursing homes are sponsored by local churches or associations of them.

"We help any group that is religiously based," Dr. Vanderbeck said. "We become their consultant, help find the site, develop project design, process the loan, set an operational budget and arrange qualified management."

Seven denominations which the agency serves, the United Methodists, United Presbyterians, Episcopalians, American Lutherans Church, southern Presbyterians, United Church of Christ and the Christian Church disciples have formed an Interreligious Coalition for Housing.

Under the National Housing Act, the Federal Housing Administration will insure loans covering 100 per cent of costs of such locally sponsored nonprofit housing, if, as Dr. Vanderbeck says, it is soundly carried out.

Weekend show opens year for dance company

The repertory dance company will open its fourth season of dance-theater productions Saturday night with a three-part show called "Satie, Christ, & c."

The production involves a motional study of birth and rebirth using the music of Erik Satie, a work titled "Second Dement" which is based on a poem by W. Grant Gray adapted from Dostoevski's "The Grand Inquisitor," and a group of light excerpts from the past summer's "Musmer Rem-um."

Curtain time is 8 p.m. in Furr Auditorium.

On Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m. in Furr Auditorium, the company will present an original show, "Shhh," a work built on human relations to objects.

As a departure from the dance company's usual format, the show will be done with no musical or sound accompaniment.

Direction of both performances is by W. Grant Gray, assisted by Nancy Lewis. Gray said the 14 dancers in the company returned to campus two weeks early in order to prepare these productions for the first week of the new fall term.

Admission is free, but donations are accepted, Gray said.

Wildlife refuge opens nature path

A one-mile circular walking trail has recently been opened to weekend visitors at Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge, Arch Meinhoff, project manager, said recently.

The trail, which will feature wildlife management practices, is known as the Chammestown School Trail. It will be opened Saturday and Sundays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Previously the trail was only used for school groups. It was opened to the public in order to benefit more people.

Wildlife such as deer, foxes, beaver, muskrat, heron, ducks, mallards and geese can be seen from the trail. The area is closed off except for the one-mile trail.

Judge allows questioning of Panther jury to continue

CHICAGO (AP) — A circuit court judge ruled Tuesday that grand jurors who indicted State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan may continue to be questioned by the defense to determine if they were pressured into handing down the indictment.

Judge Philip Romiti made the ruling in denying a motion by special prosecutor Barnabas Sears that the defense stop the questioning because it violates the secrecy and integrity of the grand jury.

At the same time, Judge Romiti refused to strike from the record three affidavits and a statement from some of the jurors saying that Sears pressured them into ruling for the indictment.

Romiti said, however, that the affidavits were entered prematurely when they were not "german and relevant" and should be resubmitted along with other possible affidavits when the defense files a motion to quash the indictments.

Hanrahan, an assistant state attorney and 12 policemen were indicted Aug. 31 on charges of obstructing justice in the aftermath of a police raid nearly two years ago in which two Black Panther leaders were killed.

In another ruling Romiti said the lengthy transcript of the grand jury hearings would become part of the court record, but he ruled that it shall be read by the defense only within the confines of the courtroom and not be made public.

Despite the ruling which allowed continued questioning of grand jurors, the prosecution maintained Tuesday that the court should establish a "procedure to determine what the defense can do with the grand jurors.

"There is a pressing need—an overwhelming need—for a protective order in relation to interviewing the grand jurors," Howard Savage, an assistant to Sears, told the court. He maintained that whenever the defense interviews a juror, a prosecution attorney should be present. Judge Romiti said he would "consider" the request but made no ruling.

Sears, who was not present at Tuesday's hearing, said Monday that secret stenographic transcripts of the grand jury sessions would prove that the three affidavits from the jurors accused him falsely.

"We've got a transcript that is not nearly as barren as some people might think," said an aide to Sears after Tuesday's court session.

Judge Romiti has given the defense until Sept. 30 to file motions to quash and set a hearing on that motion for Oct. 1.

Court told My Lai was called VC lie

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP) — Some five weeks after the My Lai massacre, Col. Oran K. Henderson wrote his commanding general that soldiers in his troops slaughtered civilians at the Vietnamese hamlet were the product of Viet Cong propaganda, Henderson's court-martial was told Tuesday.

"No civilians were gathered together and killed," Henderson wrote in a letter April 24, 1968, to Brig. Gen. Samuel Koster, then commander of the Americal Division. Henderson said in the letter he had conducted an investigation of the My Lai operation.

Henderson, who commanded the division's 11th Brigade, told Koster that 20 civilians had died accidentally from artillery and cross fire as U.S. troops killed 128 Viet Cong at My Lai March 16, 1968.

"The allegation that 450-500 civilians were killed is obviously a Viet Cong propaganda move to discredit United States troops," Henderson wrote.

The letter was read to Henderson's My Lai cover-up trial by Col. William V. Wilson the officer who conducted the initial Army investigation of atrocity reports reaching Washington slightly more than a year after the massacre.

The document—the only written report on My Lai to surface during the trial—said the allegations were made by the village chief in the My Lai area but were given no credence by the chief of Son Tinh district.

Henderson, who enclosed a copy of a translated Viet Cong tract saying U.S. soldiers "went crazy" at My Lai, suggested to Koster that a counterpropaganda campaign be initiated.

Wilson, now stationed in Spain, said that at the conclusion of his 2½-month investigation in 1968 he "didn't feel Col. Henderson had done anything wrong."

Earlier Tuesday, another government witness said he could not recall ever being asked by Henderson to survey helicopter pilots about whether they had seen wild shooting or of civilians at My Lai.

Mining law ultimatum for states is sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top federal environmentalist urged legislation Tuesday to give the states two years to develop mining reclamation regulations or surrender the job to the federal government.

Russell E. Train, chairman of the Council on Environmental Quality, testified at a House Interior subcommittee in support of an administration-proposed bill to fight adverse environmental effects of coal and other mining.

Other bills before the subcommittee would either ban coal strip mining or impose strict regulations requiring restoration of torn-up land. Some would give the Environmental Protection Agency control of the regulations.

The administration's proposal, giving the Interior Department control, "makes a comprehensive attack on the adverse environmental effects of both surface and underground mining," Train testified.

"It would give each state a two-year opportunity to develop effective regulations for the environmental aspects of mining activities," he said.

"It thus recognizes the initial responsibility of the states in this area," he said, "but it also establishes nationwide criteria to guide the states and to assure that industry is placed on an equal footing in each state."

If a state fails to develop an acceptable regulatory program, or fails to enforce its regulations, the bill calls for the secretary of the interior to promulgate and enforce regulations for both surface and underground mining within the state.

HEW ruling expected on Canut-Amoros case

By Sam Hall
Daily Express Staff Writer

A finding is expected within two to three weeks that the resignation of Mrs. Canut-Amoros from the State University of Health, Education and Welfare.

Mr. Canut-Amoros was a professor of applied science in the School of Engineering and Technology until her resignation was accepted by the Board of Trustees on July 16 meeting.

Judge orders halt canal project to federal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge Tuesday ordered the massive Tennessee-Tombigbee waterway project in Mississippi halted until he can determine its effect on the environment.

The ruling stirred up immediate resentment among congressional backers of the presidentially blessed project and Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., called the decision "judicial tyranny."

Senate passes

draft extension

The end of the draft debate, which has occupied more than half of the Senator's time since early May, came within minutes after proponents of the draft measure succeeded by the barest of margins 61 to 39 in mustering the two-thirds vote needed to limit further debate.

As the defeated leaders of the campaign to delay the draft, Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, and Alan Cranston, D-Calif., huddled on the floor. The Senate moved right into the vote on the bill, however, while not expected by Senate leaders until Thursday at the earliest, had been expected since last Thursday's 47-38 vote, on which the Senate refused to send the draft bill back to conference.

The measure includes a 2.4 billion military pay raise, authorized President Nixon to drop undergraduate student deferments this fall, extends procedural rights of draftees before their local boards and limits extensions to 120,000 this year and 160,000 next year.

The initial objection to the resolution came from councilman Hales J. Packer, who opposed mounting the lamps on wood poles as outlined in the resolution. Packer said he objected because he felt administration poles should be used in this new area of town. He was told that CTRs would not agree to this.

Following Packer's initial opposition, the council agreed that the city has not received fair treatment from the current CTRs contract. City Manager William Schmidt said that the staff would investigate possible alternatives.

He said he would personally hand-carry a statement of the office's findings to SIU administrators.

The other of Civil Rights would not be the one to make the findings public, Spurr said.

U. S. officials expect U. N. to accept two China policy

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States expressed "overflowing" confidence of success in seating both Chinas as the United Nations General Assembly opened its 26th session Tuesday.

The United States said it had rounded up a dozen sponsors for two resolutions aimed at seating Communist China in the General Assembly and on the Security Council and retaining Nationalist China's place in the assembly. Delegation spokesmen said the proposals would be put forth this week.

Eighteen backers of Red China have submitted a resolution that would seat Peking and oust Chiang Kai-Shek's Taiwan regime.

Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik, newly elected president of the assembly, focused on the China question in his address. He urged the organization to forge "a universality of membership" for the United Nations.

Edvard Hambro of Norway, the previous assembly president, said the steps Washington and Peking were taking to normalize relations "will undoubtedly have considerable significance" for the United Nations "and may lead to increased possibilities for the organization to perform its functions under the charter." The assembly voted three new members into the United Nations at its opening session, bringing total membership to 130 countries. They are Bhutan from the Himalayas, and Bahrain and Qatar from the Arabian Peninsula.

Informed diplomats expect the pro-Peking delegations to fight the U.S. proposals in the steering committee on Wednesday or Thursday, with claims that the U.S. plan is both a duplication of their own and a dodge to bar Peking, which has said it will not come to the United Nations as long as Nationalist China is a member.

The committee's agenda recommendations will be subject to approval of the full assembly, which meets Friday. This will give the first indication of the two sides' relative strength.

Debate and voting on the China resolutions is expected on the 10-day period beginning Oct. 11.

In Moscow, the Soviet Union reiterated Tuesday night that it would seek U.N. membership for Communist China and expansion of the Taiwan regime.

As the 26th U.N. session opened in New York, a telephone caller reported that 26 sticks of dynamite had been planted on the third floor of the Secretariat building. Security guards found nothing.

In a speech after his election,

Malik said man's ability to survive until the end of the century requires a new global awareness.

Malik named the population explosion, poverty, harnessing technology and destruction of the ecology as some of the major problems of the next 25 years.

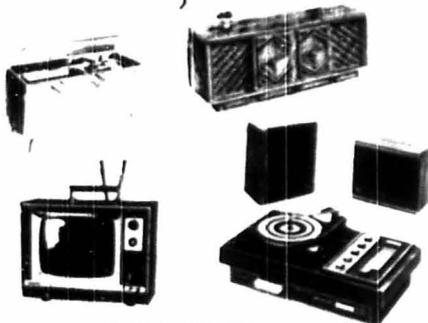

Leading issues besides China among the 160 nations on the proposed agenda for the session are how to make peace in the Middle East and who should be U.N. secretary-general after U Thant leaves at the end of this year.

Blast rocks home of Viet labor leader

SAIGON (AP) — Terrorists touched off a bomb Tuesday night at the home of a labor leader once mentioned as a running mate of President Nguyen Van Thieu. It seemed to be an assassination attempt.

The bombing came at the end of a politically turbulent day of student demonstrations and oral blasts at Thieu by two opposition groups.

The bomb exploded at the home of Tran Quoc Bau, president of South Vietnam's million-member Confederation of Labor.

The explosion destroyed the living room of Bau's home behind the labor union offices. Bau, who had retired to his bedroom a few minutes earlier, was unharmed.

The bomb about five pounds of plastic explosives, blew a 4x6-foot hole in the wall of the house and wrecked the living room. It also shattered windows in the nearby three-story confederation headquarters, located near the headquarters of the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Bau told newsmen he believed the Viet Cong were responsible for the blast.

He said the Viet Cong had made previous threats on his life because he is the principal organizer of the Farmer-Labor party. The party competes for members among the same farmers and workers that the Viet Cong seek to recruit.

Earlier in the day, 100 students at the Saigon University faculty of science burned effigies of Thieu, sang peace songs, and chanted anti-Thieu and "Bunker go home" slogans on the street in front of their compound. Ellsworth Bush Jr. is the U.S. ambassador to Saigon.

Police responded with tear gas and made a brief charge into the compound, sending the students scattering into class buildings.

The leader of one of South Vietnam's Buddhist sects, Nguyen Tan Dat, sent an open letter to Thieu urging that he resign and cancel the Oct. 3 election. Dat called for new elections and the invalidation of the election law that requires all presidential candidates to be endorsed by 40 national assemblymen or 100 province and city councilmen. Dat is rector of the Bau Son Ky Hsiang branch of the Vietnam Buddhist Church.

Pentagon Papers go to printer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon Papers, which caused such a hullabaloo when they first appeared in the press, were sent to the printers Tuesday en route to general sale. But unless the public shows more interest than congressman they'll make no best-seller lists.

The officially declassified documents dealing with U.S. involvement in Vietnam were sent to Congress Tuesday and rushed to the government printers at once. Four volumes dealing with peace negotiations and prisoner-release negotiations were not released for publication.

Public printer A.N. Spencer said they'll be ready for public sale within a week—but he foresees no heavy demand for them at $60 a set.

House Armed Services Committee Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., said only 20 of 430 House members have looked at the "top secret" copies of the 47-volume Vietnam study that have been available to them in his committee room for three months.

The declassified version promised by Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird was wheeled by uniformed soldiers Tuesday morning into the House and Senate Armed Services and Foreign Affairs Committee offices with no advance announcement.

Hebert immediately turned one of his copies over to Spencer with instructions to print it for Congress and for public sale as rapidly as possible.

Spencer estimated 2,000 copies would be ready for public sale by Monday for sale at $60 a set.

He said the 7,000-page "History of U.S. Decision-Making on Vietnam Policy" study would probably be printed in 11 or 12 volumes.

Rady A. Johnson, Laird's legislative-affairs assistant, notified the four congressional committees that four of the original 47 volumes had been eliminated entirely.

"They deal exclusively with sensitive negotiations seeking peace and the release of prisoners of war," Rady said in a cover letter. "Their disclosure would adversely affect continuing efforts to achieve those objectives."

Laird announced June 22 a declassified version would be released in 90 days.

Spencer said Hebert ordered 700 copies printed for the 535 senators and House members and their committees.

Miss Jarowsky's wine bottle and cups

Student artists win design contest prizes

Two student silversmiths from SIU have won prizes in the 1971 Sterling Silver Design Competition, sponsored by the Sterling Silversmiths Guild of America.

A sterling wine bottle and two cups, designed by Doris Daedalus Jarowsky, is winner of one of the top five Guild awards. The group, which won Miss Jarowsky $300, is decorated with a chased design of surrealistic figures and topographic features combined with animal forms. Judges noted that the "surface treatment of the silver is both inventive and sophisticated from the standpoint of design and craftsmanship." Miss Jarowsky, who will receive a master of fine arts degree in June, commented that the design consists of "surrealistic figures from my fantasy world."

An honorable mention award went to Elliott Pujol, who won $50 for a melon pot, described as a "very fresh treatment" by judges. The piece is made of oxidized sterling formed into folds

1 dead, 2 hurt in gun battle

An auto theft suspect was slain and two policemen wounded Tuesday in a shootout west of Marion following an attempted auto theft at Egg's Motors near Carbondale.

The suspect, Robert S. Cole Jr., 26, of Lewisburg, Tenn., died about 5:30 a.m. Tuesday while in surgery in Marion Memorial Hospital for multiple gunshot wounds, according to Paul Joyner, deputy Williamson County coroner.

Richard Hilliard, 29, a Marion policeman, was shot through the left wrist, and Paul Davis, 32, of Herwin, a Williamson County deputy, was wounded in the right hip. Both officers underwent surgery Tuesday.

Marion James Ingeneri, Cole's companion, was not injured.

According to police, the shooting started after Hilliard and Davis pulled over a van in which the two suspects were riding to question them about the attempted auto theft. Cole reportedly jumped out of the van and began firing at the policemen with an automatic rifle. Hilliard said he emptied his .38-caliber pistol into Cole.

Ingeneri was booked at the Williamson County sheriff's office for attempted murder and robbery. Cole's body was taken from the hospital to the Wilson Funeral Home in Marion for an autopsy and blood study.

Judge previews instructions for jury in Medina case

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — The judge in Capt. Ernest L. Medina's My Lai trial previewed for opposing lawyers Tuesday a set of jury instructions reducing the charges against the officer.

Col. Kenneth Howard, the judge, said he will give the case to the jury Wednesday after hearing final arguments. His instructions, based on rulings he made last week, dismiss outright one murder charge, and reduce to involuntary manslaughter a charge of premeditated murder in the death of at least 100 My Lai civilians.

One count of premeditated murder, the reduced charge of involuntary manslaughter and two counts of assault will be before the jury when it begins its deliberations, Howard said.

Medina, 35, Montrose, Colo., who earned the Silver Star for gallantry in Vietnam, commanded Charlie Company when it attacked My Lai in 1968.

Lewis suggests state combine 4 elections

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Secretary of State John W. Lewis is recommending the Oct. 5 legislature consolidate four elections scheduled next year into two to save $6 million.

Lewis has jurisdiction over the index division which gives election advice to county clerks. The division also serves as recorder for state elections and in a clerical capacity to the state electoral board of which Lewis is a member.

Lewis said Tuesday in an interview that three elections in three months next spring would confuse voters and create havoc for county clerks trying to meet legal timetables for each election.

Lewis said this could be avoided by creating one primary and one general election.

Current laws, he said, require a primary in February for county board members; a primary in March for federal, state and county officers; and April election of county board members.

The general election for federal, state and county officers other than board members will come Nov. 7 next year.

Lewis said he is recommending the primary election scheduled for March 21, next year, be used to nominate county board candidates as well as candidates for other county, state and federal offices.

Lewis said a House bill is alive in the Senate to require the general election of county board members be held at the regular November election, Nov. 7, next year.

If the bill passes, Lewis said, the primary for county board members would be held at the same time as for other offices, on March 21.

Witness testifies no survey taken

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP) — A government witness said Tuesday he could not recall ever being asked by Col. Oran K. Henderson to survey helicopter pilots about whether they had seen wild shooting or the killing of civilians at My Lai.

The testimony by Lt. Col. Glen D. Gibson, who commanded a helicopter company supporting the My Lai operation, was important to one of the four charges against the 51-year-old defendant.

The government contends that Henderson knowingly lied to a Pentagon inquiry Dec. 2, 1969, when he said he questioned Gibson two days after My Lai to request his aviators about the assault on the Vietnamese hamlet.

Gibson also said that despite another Henderson statement to the inquiry, he did not recall ever informing the defendant he had surveyed his men and that none of them reported anything unusual during the March 16, 1968, operation by elements of Henderson's 11th Brigade.

Henderson, a decorated combat veteran, is accused of intentionally failing to properly investigate strongly reported, if not reporting actual or suspected war crimes and of twice lying to the Pentagon inquiry headed by Lt. Gen. William R. Peers.

Gibson twice was asked by the prosecutor, Maj. Carroll Tichener, whether he was ever approached personally by Henderson and asked to survey members of the 174th Assault Helicopter Company.

"I do not recall any specific requests he made concerning any specific operation or survey of my people concerning any operation," Gibson answered.

"I do not recall any such conversation with Col. Henderson," he added.

Under cross-examination by Henry Rothblatt, the civilian defense counsel, Gibson agreed that he made a statement to the Peers inquiry conceding the possibility of his being asked by Henderson to question helicopter personnel.

The statement, as read from the still-classified Peers transcript said "If it was done to me, it was done on an informal or casual basis that I didn't understand it."

Few new students to be affected by new draft bill

Few incoming freshmen students will be drafted in the future, even though the bill phasing out student deferments has been passed, Curtis W. Tarr, Selective Service Director, said recently.

According to the bill, which the Senate passed 85-30 Tuesday, young men who entered school for the first time this summer or fall will not qualify for student deferments.

In a Selective Service System release, Tarr reported that 80 per cent of the incoming freshmen males are 18 years old and only 20 per cent are 19 or older.

The 18-year-olds, he said, will receive their lottery numbers in 1972, and will not be subject to induction until 1973, when draft calls should be low.

The 19-year-olds received their numbers Aug. 5 and will be subject to induction next year. At least half of these should have high enough lottery numbers to exempt them from the draft and of those remaining, he said, about 50 per cent will be disqualified on mental, moral or physical grounds.

This means, Tarr said, that a maximum of 50,000 men will be directly affected in 1972 by the student deferment phase-out and one-half of these probably will not be inducted because of enlistments in Regular, Reserve or National Guard units, participation in commissioning programs and because of procedural delays.

Tarr advised incoming freshmen not to file applications for student deferments, even though the current law authorizes the granting of deferments.

"If the pending Selective Service legislation does not pass," Tarr said, "it would not be in a registrant's best interest to obtain a student deferment which would extend his liability until age 35."

"Should Congress change the legislation to provide for deferments for new incoming freshmen, which is most unlikely, applications for deferments will not be jeopardized by delaying their submission until after the passage of the new law."

Tarr said that college students will not be drafted in the middle of a term, and if they are in the midst of their last academic year, they will be able to postpone induction until after graduation.

The President's authority for the induction of all men under 35 except for those who have or who have had deferments, expired on June 30, Tarr said.

This means that if Congress does not reinstate this power, the President could draft those who held or who have held deferments.

In this event, officials believe that requirements could be met by inducting those young men who have recently dropped deferments because they graduated, dropped out or changed occupations.

College students who were enrolled full-time in the 1970-71 school year will be eligible for student deferments in the 1971-72 year if they continue satisfactory progress.

No population bomb here

LEADVILLE, Colo. (AP) — This mountain town stands on a treeless site because early-day miners cut all the trees to build shacks and get firewood.

Student, faculty grants announced

June R. Westerfield, Carbondale, recently received a check for $500 as winner of a scholarship presented to the outstanding student in the School of Business.

The scholarship check was presented by Charles H. Hindersman, dean of business, for the Illinois Club of the Wisconsin Graduate School of Business. Miss Westerfield is majoring in accounting.

Two student wives residing at Southern Hills, Mrs. Carol Genaine and Mrs. Prema Sastry, have been awarded educational grants sponsored by the Southern Hills Advisory Council.

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie has reappointed Wendell E. Keeper, dean of agriculture, to the Board of Agricultural Advisors in the Illinois Department of Agriculture. His new term expires in January, 1973.

The 17-member board reports to the governor and the director of agriculture on farm policies and programs. The board also informs officials on problems facing farmers and suggests legislation and programs to assist agriculture.

The National Science Foundation has granted anthropology student L. Carl Kuttruff $6,100 for a one-year archaeological survey near New Athens. Kuttruff will be working on a Ph.D. dissertation project titled "Late Woodland and Mississippian Settlement Systems in the Lower Kaskaskia River Valley."

Jon D. Muller, assistant professor of anthropology, will direct the project. It will begin Sept. 1.

Frank H. Thomas, chairman of the geography department, will spend a sabbatical leave during the 1971-72 school year in the Washington, D.C., area, where he will be engaged in writing and post-doctoral study.

Plans call for writing a college textbook on economic geography in collaboration with two other persons and for research on transportation problems in Washington. Filling in for Thomas as acting chairman of the department will be Prof. Douglas Carter, climatologist.

A new volume of Southern Illinois lore, "Folk Songs and Singing Games of the Illinois Ozarks," has gone to press from the SIU Museum.

Written by David S. McIntosh, retired professor of music and collector of regional folk music, the volume was edited by Dale Whiteside, museum musicologist. It is scheduled for release in the fall of 1972, Whiteside said. The volume contains heretofore unpublished materials collected over a period of 30 years by McIntosh and his wife, Eva.

Experience key to ISU Sycamores' success this fall

Experienced

This describes the Indiana State Sycamores who have split their first two games. The Sycamores lost their opener, 23-21 at Western Illinois. Last weekend ISU defeated Eastern Illinois, 20-7.

"We've got a group back that played quite a bit for us last fall with eight starters both on offense and defense," said coach Jerry Huntsman, entering his sixth year as a Sycamore boss.

"We lack depth, like anybody else, but as long as those fellows stay okay, we'll have a representative squad."

The returning nucleus from last year's 5-6 team, 20 lettersmen plus 20 others, has been so impressive only one of 25 sophomores cracked the starting units.

That's Glenn Damato, a 5-10, 185 pound flanker. Most Valuable Freshman last fall, he led the yearlings with 34 points and a 28.6 yards per catch average.

But it's not very likely Damato will lead his first varsity team in scoring. Returning in the offensive backfield is Gary Brown, 5-10, 197-pound tailback who reached the endzone 11 times in 1978. That was tops among all Indiana college tailbacks.

Sharing tailback duties with Brown again this year is 1970 rushing leader Milt Allen, 440 yards and four touchdowns. Despite his scores, Brown gained only 349 net yards rushing.

"Gary is a true breakaway runner while Allen is the power man," said Huntsman. "We hope they can complement each other well again."

After two games, Allen leads in rushing yardage, 196, and touchdowns, two. Brown has 85 yards and no touchdowns.

Alongside either Brown or Allen are fullback Rich Rem and slotback Lenny Cannon. Both are small boys, standing 5-8. Rem added 214 yards to the 1970 rushing attack while Cannon had 174.

To supplement the rushing attack, ISU has placed great emphasis on passing this fall, said Huntsman, sixth winningest college division coach in the country with a 769 percentage.

"We think we've got the two good running backs (Allen and Brown) and if the passing game can come along, this should also help them."

The top two signalcallers return and Huntsman hopes last year's experience will be this year's gain.

Ray Voorhis started the first five 1978 games but was sidelined with a shoulder separation against Ball State, the fifth game. From that point, the ball belonged to junior Ray Volkish.

And he's still got it. The 6-1, 197 pounder was awarded the starting quarterback slot when his spring performance put Voorhis, a junior, back on the bench.

Volkish has tossed 45 passes in the first two games, completing 23 for 225 yards.

Charlie Karaszka, tight end, is the leading receiver with 11 receptions. Karaszka beat out Mike Vance, last year's No. 1 tight end. Vance has three catches this fall.

While the Sycamores search for a stronger passing attack, their defensive secondary trio that yielded only 1,159 passing yards last fall returns intact.

If opponents find passing difficult, they might find running even tougher. Holding down the middle of the six-man line are guards Jerry Geising, 6-4, 254, and Mike Costello, 6-4, 223. The tackle line is somewhat smaller, averaging 227, while the defensive ends average 207.

Linebacking is also aided with lettermen at both positions.

Moore new track coach at Glassboro

Oscar Moore, SIU's seven-time track All-American, has left SIU to accept a coaching and teaching position at Glassboro State College in Glassboro, N.J.

The mild-mannered Moore will serve as head track coach, assistant cross country coach and instructor in physical education.

Moore, who represented the U.S. in the 1964 Olympics in the 5,000-meter run, holds most of SIU's long distance records.

He received his B.S. in recreation from SIU in 1969 and completed his M.S. last June.

Joining Moore in Glassboro will be another SIU graduate, Bill Fritz, who will serve as cross country coach and assistant track coach. Fritz is a former graduate assistant of the SIU track team.

Illinois and Southern will clash again at the Illinois Intercollegiate Oct. 30 in Champaign.

Although the cross country schedule began more than a week before the fall quarter opened, there are still six dual meets coming up, including all four home affairs.

"We've picked up a pretty tough schedule," said head coach Lew Hartzog. This Friday's competitor, Indiana, placed fourth at the NCAA meet last year.

Meets will Illinois State, Kansas, Western Illinois, Murray State and Air Force Academy round out the dual schedule.

The following is the SIU cross country schedule:

terested parties may submit their names to Howard Stanis in the Zoology department, Oval Myers of Plant Industries and Botany department, Hazy Soderstrom at Vocational Training Institute (VTI) or Henry Villani at the bowling alley on campus.

Ten months ago at Arkansas State, SIU ended its "second" 1970 football season. The first was all success—six victories, five at-home. But the "second" season was a total reversal—SIU lost its last three games, all on the road.

Ball State, Drake and Arkansas State stopped the Salukis with aggressive defenses that shut off the tailback power play Southern used for three years.

But when the three schools visit McAndrew Stadium this fall, they'll face a different offense and a club that promises to get even.

"Yes sir, those three games will be real rival games for us, especially Ball State and Arkansas State," said Lionel Antoine, SIU's 6-7, 255-pound All-American who will see action at offensive tackle and tight end this fall.

"We want to beat Ball State because they broke our winning streak (seven games, dating back to 1969). Arkansas State was the No. 1 (college division) team in the country last year and we want to show that as good as they are, we're better."

Southern hosts Arkansas State Oct. 9. Ball State seven days later and Drake on Nov. 6.

Although an effectively defended rushing attack is the primary reason Southern lost last fall, a mental lapse didn't help. And Antoine isn't afraid to admit it.

Three plays and punt offense killed Salukis in late season fizzle

"We'd just played two easy games (defeating Illinois State, 45-24, and Bradley, 69-3) and looking at Ball State's record (4-4), we went at 'em like we'd beat 'em pretty easy. We realized they were a better ball club than we thought too late." Seven points too late, in a 24-17 loss.

"We just weren't ready again," Antoine said about the 21-9 Drake game. To the team's credit, it was prepared for Arkansas State and made the game closer than the 27-3 score indicates. An SIU fumble and a busted play touchdown by the Indians made the difference.

Underlying each loss was an offense that couldn't score, couldn't succeed on third down and, in short, couldn't do much but punt.

It hadn't always been that way. At home, Southern was a high-flying offensive machine that slaughtered four opponents by a total 128 points and stole a come-from-behind opening game win over Louisville, 31-28.

On the road, everything changed

Perhaps Southern's two point road win over East Carolina, 14-21, was an indication of upcoming problems.

After averaging 39 points per game through six contests, Southern accumulated just 29 points in the final three games.

Of the three schools, Drake bottled up Southern best, holding it to 71 yards rushing and 70 passing on a cold day in Des Moines. Iowa Arkansas State yielded 57 yards rushing and 127 through the air. At Ball State, Brad Pancoast passed for 214 yards and SIU rushed for 126 in its first loss.

As the offense ground to a virtual halt, the third down success rate diminished markedly. On third down plays, Southern gained needed yardage two of 13 times at Ball State, once in 18 attempts at Drake and five times in 20 attempts at Arkansas State. Many times, long yardage was needed.

To make the offense more versatile, coach Dick Towers and his staff have installed an option rushing attack this year. The passing attack will remain a dropback series.

"We'll still be running the power play but not as often," Antoine said. "It won't be our bread and butter play."

Patterned after the University of Houston offense, Southern's quarterback option will be engineered by Pancoast, who passed for 1,326 yards last fall and 178 in last Saturday's 31-14 upset win over Dayton.

In the option offense, the quarterback: 1) pitches to the fullback who dives into the line, 2) pitches to the tailback who runs outside the defensive end, or 3) keeps the ball himself and cuts upfield.

Installing the option will make Pancoast much more susceptible to injury and is a big risk since he is SIU's only proven quarterback.

Billy Richmond, the regular No. 2 man, is out for the year with an injured right knee. Sophomore Larry Perkins played well throughout fall camp and in a brief stint at Dayton but needs game experience.

With Pancoast in the lineup, Towers said Southern "might throw 30 to 30 times a game, not because we're behind but because we think it's the best way to win the game."

Relying heavily on Pancoast's arm and now also his running, the option attack is a big injury risk. But Towers insists you must gamble to win.

Besides, three 1971 opponents have already proved they can stop the tailback power play.

Schaake praises predecessor

Abe Martin's prodigy intramural boss now

By Ernie Schweit
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Remember the old story about the kid who got a job running errands for an office, and after many years and many miles of running became boss?

That story isn't as old as it might seem, though. Just ask the new coordinator of intramural athletics, Larry Schaake.

Schaake, who took over for Glenn "Abe" Martin, wasn't exactly an office boy. But while he attended SIU from 1963-67 he began the climb to his present position by working in the intramural department and playing baseball under Martin.

"I was always interested in athletics," said the 26-year-old Schaake, "but my interest grew under Abe."

Martin took over the head intramural spot in 1954 and built it up to where it is today—one of the best in the country, according to Schaake.

"You might take a single activity like flag football and find a better program on another college campus," Schaake said, "but on an overall basis ours is one of the nation's finest. Abe made the program go."

Season over for McAnelly

A right knee injury has forced SIU defensive end Ken McAnelly out of action for the remainder of the season. Surgery will be performed Wednesday to correct damage to his ligaments that was sustained in the Dayton game.

Couch Dick Towers said McAnelly will be replaced by defensive tackle Jack Rushing, offensive tackle Mike Kaczmarek, linebacker Craig Erokian or defensive end Ed Dixon.

"I can't say enough about Abe and what he did for this program," he said. "Everything he did turned out good and he didn't stop when he got to intramurals either."

But Martin is gone and the intramural department that serves 23,000 students is now under the direction of Schaake.

"We are actually a service-oriented organization," he said, "more so in fact, than any other organization on campus. Our program is solely for students to enjoy intramural activities and campus recreation."

If the intramural department is a "service organization," then Schaake appears to be the perfect person to head it. His love of people make him a natural for the position.

"One of the rewarding aspects of this job is to see the development of the people involved," he said. "You can see the complete change for instance in our flag football officials."

"You can see a complete change in their posture and it seems to show up in everything they do."

Schaake doesn't think that the IM program is entirely responsible for these changes, but "you can see it more here than in any other department on campus."

With the proposed recreation center and general expansion of the program, intramurals at SIU have a bright future. There are a few problems, however, that must be dealt with first.

"Our main problem is the physical need for more space for football and softball fields," Schaake said.

"I think there is more need in this day and age for recreation," Schaake continued, "there are a lot of pressures on students with grades, girl friends and things. Intramurals offer opportunities for students to direct their energies into other areas."

Keep it up, line

Bob Mazze, offensive line coach, does a good deal of yelling during the course of a game. Saturday night, most of Mazze's yelling was of the happy variety as the line did a good job blocking for quarterback Brad Pancoast and running backs George Loukas and Thomas Thompson. ## Tug-of-war over Senators

BOSTON (AP) — The president of the Washington Board of Trade made a strong pitch to purchase the financially troubled Washington Senators and a Texas delegation went to bat for a franchise shift to the Dallas-Fort Worth area Tuesday at a meeting of American League owners.

Joseph Danzansky, a Washington supermarket chain operator and lawyer, spent one hour behind closed doors at the meeting called by league President Joe Cronin to discuss and act upon the baseball future of owner Bob Short and his Senators.

Then, after a 1½-hour break for lunch, the owners heard a nine-man Texas group headed by Mayors Tom Vandergriff of Arlington, Wes Wise of Dallas and R.M. Stovall of Fort Worth. They spent about two hours presenting their case.

Danzansky declined to disclose terms of his offer. However, he was believed to have offered $4 million.
