Sign Buddy Morrow for Spring Festival Band

Buddy Morrow with his RCA Victor dance orchestra has been officially contracted to play for the fifth annual Spring Festival concert and dance, according to Dr. Amos Black, faculty sponsor of Spring Festival.

The concert and dance will climax the week-end of festivities on Saturday evening, May 3: The concert will be at 8 p.m. in Shryock auditorium, and the dance will follow in the men's gym from 9:30 until 12 p.m.

After leaving Juilliard, he played with Paul Whiteman, and later joined the orchestra of the late Eddie Duchin.

LATER, MORROW signed a contract with Artie Shaw, and following that he signed with Vincent Lopez.

The next band with which Morrow played was Tommy Dorsey. Then he accepted a position on the staff of Columbia Broadcasting System. After serving three years in the U. S. Navy, Morrow joined Jimmy Dorsey.

Now Morrow is under recording contract with RCA Victor.

In regard to the type of music Morrow plays, as he himself puts it, "Do not try to educate the public from the bandstand, instead play the type of music that they want to hear."

Betty Dorris is in charge of all physical arrangements for the dance. Aileen Anderson and Lou Steinberg are co-chairmen for the dance decorations.

Sue Smith will compete in the discussion section, and she and James Gibbons will represent SIU in extemporaneous speaking.

What We Leave Behind

"In the spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love," but that's not all—an SIU man's fancy also turns to thoughts of the outdoors when those birds start singing and that grass starts sprouting.

As soon as the weather turns "over a new leaf," classes seem to grow smaller and smaller, for off we go to Giant City, Crab Orchard, Little Grassy lake or other area recreation centers for an afternoon of fun.

We grant that all is well and good—that is, if those afternoons of fun don't come too often and if everyone doesn't get too excited or in so much of a hurry that accidents might result.

It's a fact that when we students take leave for such an afternoon of picnics, or what have you, that we leave in one big mad rush. Then again, when it gets close to that curfew time, everyone's in another mad rush to get home.

And here we finally come to the point—the least we can do is leave the territory we visited, whether it be Crab Orchard or Giant City, as well off as it was when we arrived—even if we are in a hurry and the time has gone by far too fast.

After all, Southern's students are pretty lucky considering the many places for outdoor recreation that are within only a few miles of SIU.

So, after that next picnic, it would be to our own benefit if we would take time to at least make an attempt to clean up what we've left behind. B.V.B.

And Then There's Southern

We notice in The Decaturian, student newspaper at Millikin university, that Millikin's chapter of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity has booked Vaughn Monroe to play a two night stand there in Decatur May 16 and 17.

On May 16, Vaughn Monroe will play for the Teke spring formal dance and the next night for a public concert. Monroe and his entire Camel Caravan will broadcast from Decatur Saturday night, May 17.

We've often wondered just what it is that permits a small group of approximately 60 men at Millikin university to schedule a band like Vaughn Monroe for a fraternity dance. When, for big, all-school events, Southern is not so fortunate as to get bands of such national fame. B.V.B.

Take Poll Concerning Practice Teaching On and Off Campus

"What is your opinion of practice teaching in a fully equipped training school as compared with practice teaching in schools over a wide-spread area?"

Opposite opinions were voiced on this subject by fifteen students, some practice teaching now and some who plan to practice teach in the near future.

A Benton senior, now practice teaching in West Frankfort, stated that he preferred teaching off campus because the system is more flexible. "The teaching conditions are better and they are not so strict in that they don't interfere with the way one teaches. Whereas on campus one has to teach as the supervisor indicates."

A SENIOR, now practice teaching in Carterville, said, "In the training school one does not find conditions that would be found in other schools. Although the supervisors may be more qualified at the training school, off-campus is where one meets with the lack of educational equipment that is prevalent in other schools in the United States."

A second term sophomore answered the question by replying that when the time came she would rather teach off-campus. "One would find conditions which would prove to be more helpful. For it is under those conditions that one would be more likely to teach. In the absence of supervisors one would be more capable of planning his school program."

"There wouldn't be direct supervision and the practice teacher would be on his own," replied a sophomore from Vienna.

A MOUNT VERNON junior believes that when one teaches off campus he is getting closer to actual teaching experience than one would find in a regular training school.

Another junior stated that she would rather teach off campus. "You would be more likely to meet with the usual teaching conditions when you get a job of your own." A Belleville freshman agreed by stating, "You find conditions that are not the same off campus."

"A fully equipped training school can be detrimental to teaching habits you have formed. I believe practice teachers should plan to teach in a school which would be more nearly the type of school in which they would accept a job," said a West Frankfort junior.

IN CONTRAST with these theories were statements made by people not only practicing off campus but on campus as well. A senior from Benton, who is practice teaching at the training school, said that practice teaching should be done in one place under a supervisor who has been trained for the job.

A practice teacher in Carterville stated that practice teaching should be done on campus because of the better equipment. Three other people also gave as reasons for wishing to practice teach on campus the fact of better equipment.

However, this much-debated question was summed up by a graduate student who made the following answer in reply to the question. "I believe in teaching under a trained supervisor who has had experience in this field, and who is up to date on the methods of a teacher specialist. I wonder if people who are teaching under supervisors in other schools are getting the benefit of the new method."

Answer to today's "You Name It" picture may be found on page four.

PHYLLIS MCKENZIE gave a report on the results of the Anatolia College Drive. She reported that magazine subscriptions for Anatolia College were still coming in from organized houses in addition to further contributions. Jerry Fear moved that the Student Council contribute the remaining amount needed to complete the $125 goal if there is a shortage when final reports are in and the contributions are completed. The motion was seconded by Carroll Cox, and it was passed unanimously.

Plans for Honors Day were discussed.

The president called for nominations for a sophomore replacement to the Council. Boyd LaMarsh, John Loy, and Paul Morris were nominated. The election was postponed until the following week in order to check qualifications and availability of the three nominees.

Budgetary Council Now Publishing Reports

Dr. W. C. McDaniel and Dr. James W. Neckers, faculty representatives on the university budgetary council, are preparing reports on Southern's budget and how it is used. The first series of these reports appears in the March 25 news bulletin to the faculty.

According to the report the budget of Southern Illinois University consists of two principal parts. One part is the Current Funds which is divided into several groups such as educational and general, auxiliary enterprises, U. S. government contracts, and student activities. The other part is Plant Funds which includes the purchase of land and construction of buildings.

The budgetary council will publish more information regarding the budget in the next faculty news bulletin.

SIU Internship Program Illustrated By Slides

The graduate internship program, designed to give graduate students practical experience in public schools while they are working on masters degrees in education, is now depicted on colored slides. The slides show scenes from public schools in nine communities and help to tell the story of the internship program as developed here at Southern.

According to Dr. Charles D. Neal, director of teacher training, the slides will serve several purposes. They will suggest an approach to the improvement of graduate training, present a method of combining theory and practice, stimulate public school teachers to further their professional training, stress the benefits of training master teachers, supervisors and administrators in a public school laboratory, and will present a successful program of graduate internship in the field of education.

Gordon K. Butts and Donald A. Inghl of the Audio Visual Aids service produced the slides. The slides and a university narrator may be obtained by contacting Dr. Neal.

The Know How—

Selling Experience Taught In Class

by Gwen Applegate

Salesmanship 337 is an unique class offered by the business administration department here at Southern. The class is interesting in the fact that each student enrolled in the class is required to give an actual sales demonstration in front of the class on any product or service he desires.

Nineteen students were enrolled in the course, which was taught by Paul Hoffman last term. Marketing 330 is the only prerequisite for the course, which will not be offered again until next winter term.

The object of the class is to give every student experience in salesmanship and talking before a group. The student is graded on such traits as knowledge of his product, poise, appeal, personality, ability to close the sale, etc. Each student is required to be both buyer and seller of products or services.

ONE SALES demonstration was presented by Charles Cutrell, sophomore from Herrin, who brought a registered beagle hound from a Herrin kennel and proceeded to sell it to Ed Schweinberg, junior from LaGrange.

Merchandising majors are also now required to gain practical experience in retail selling when they enroll in the course Retail Store Management. This past Christmas season, approximately 16 students enrolled in this class were employed in retail stores which covered an area that reached from Chicago to Anna.

Chi Delts Hold on To Two Game Lead In Bowling League

In the most heated session of the SIU Hellenic bowling league the Chi Delta Chi quintet took an important step toward the championship when they nosed out Sigma Pi in two games to take a two game lead.

SIGMA TAU GAMMA, sharing second berth with Sigma Pi, kept their championship hopes alive by racking up the season's high score of 2503 to sweep their series with Tau Kappa Epsilon.

Theta Xi, aided by Bob Miller's 465 series, used the whitewash brush on Sigma Sigma. Connie Conatser and Virginia Stringer were high for the Tri-Sigs with efforts of 429 and 424.

In the remaining match Delta Sigma Epsilon upset the ambitions of Pi Kappa Sigma by taking the odd game as Louie Taylor, Libby Mars, and Jane Ross parlayed their series of 460, 406, and 402. Mary Ann Klingenberg and Jo Ann

Salukis Meet Weed-End Of Rain and Idleness

Inclement weather in two states halted all intercollegiate competition for the Saluki athletes this past weekend. A track meet between coach Leland (Doc) Lingle's crew and Western Illinois scheduled here last Friday was washed off the schedule by a steady morning rain.

Coach Glenn (Abe) Martin's baseball squad ran, into the same type of foul weather after traveling to Jonesboro, Ark., to open their 1952 season against the Arkansas State Indians. Martin's squad will travel to Macomb Friday for an IIAAC opener with the Western Leathernecks.

Southern Netmen to Open Season With Three Straight Home Matches

by Jack Nettland

Coach Jim Wilkinson's SIU tennis team takes a whack at the first three foes on the 1952 schedule this week when it plays host to Elmhurst this afternoon, Beloit Friday, and Illinois Normal Saturday. If there is anything to the adage of "home-court advantage" then the Salukis should be off to a running start this season.

WILKINSON, however, opens up with a green squad, one with no lettermen of last year, and may need that home-court voo-doo. Little is known about Elmhurst at this writing, but sport reports from both Beloit and Normal show that each has plenty of talent on hand.

The Beloit College News Service reports that tennis prospects at the Wisconsin school are the brightest in several years. Returning from last year are the Midwest Conference and Wisconsin State College doubles champions. One other letterman is on hand also. In addition, a sophomore and former member of the Illinois state doubles championship team, Tom Nelson, is a good prospect.

SATURDAY'S match with Normal also shapes up as no "breather." In fact, it looms as possibly the toughest net struggle of the year. The Redbirds have won the IIAAC title for the last three years, and from the looks of the talent this year, show no signs of willingly releasing hold.
