Council ok's street parties for spring

By Barry Cleveland
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council Tuesday night authorized Acting City Manager Bill Schwegman to permit the closure of a section of South Illinois Avenue to traffic on spring weekend nights beginning April 21.

The council also approved designation of the weekend of May 6 as an All-America City Festival. Detailed proposals for the celebration will be presented at a future council meeting.

Although the council approved in principle seven successive Friday and Saturday nights of celebration, it left the door open to possible cancellation of the events if initial experiences are unsuccessful.

Among problems to be solved before the celebration is implemented, are possible costs to the city, the need to compensate two area service stations for lost business, fire protection and ambulance service, policing of the area, cleanup, insurance and a series of guidelines governing conduct in the area.

Under a plan drawn up by a task force to study the South Illinois Avenue situation, a section of the street from College Street to Walnut Street would be closed to traffic from 7 p.m.—4 a.m. during the 14-weekend dates.

A series of activities will be planned for the event, including games, art shows, folk music and films. Acid rock music will not be allowed, nor will the consumption of liquor on public property be permitted, the council said.

The possibility of issuing temporary liquor licenses to the Carbondale Jaycees for an outdoor "beer garden" was also discussed. However, Mayor Neal Eckert said a new ordinance will have to be passed before such licenses will be issued. The council indicated support for the idea.

The council unexpectedly refused to approve a resolution urging the Illinois General Assembly to allow the sale of alcohol on university campuses.

Several councilmen said they had reconsidered their earlier support of the resolution due primarily to a concern for people who desire to congregate in areas devoid of liquor.

The council did approve a resolution urging the state legislature to lower the legal drinking age to 18.

Inhumane treatment

Don Luce, who was part of team that exposed inhumane conditions in South Vietnamese prison camps in 1971, is in Carbondale this week telling about his findings and everyday life in Vietnam. ## Don Luce plans lecture Exhibit depicts war atrocities

By Sue Roll
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The inhumane treatment of prisoners in the tiger cages of South Vietnam was exposed over a year ago. The United States government responded by ordering three new blocks of 383 new, smaller tiger cage cells to be built.

This kind of treatment of the Vietnamese people is what Don Luce is working to correct. Luce, agriculturalist and former director of the International Voluntary Services (IVS), and two U.S. Congressmen were responsible for exposing the tiger cages atrocities.

Luce is in Carbondale this week with the Indochina Mobile Education Project which features films, lectures and an exhibit depicting the culture, history and everyday life of the people of Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

The project was in the Community Room at Penney's Tuesday and will be in the Student Center Ballrooms Wednesday and possibly Thursday. Luce will speak at a public meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the sanctuary of the First United Methodist Church.

The project is sponsored by local community groups, mainly local churches. It is not under the auspices of the Vietnamese Studies Center.

Luce will fly to Washington, D.C., Wednesday morning to testify before the Senate subcommittee on foreign relations about a bill under consideration now which would provide aid for AmerAsian children. He said he plans on returning to Carbondale in time for the Wednesday evening lecture.

Luce, 37, was brought up on a dairy farm in Vermont. He received his bachelor's degree from the University of Vermont and his masters from Cornell University, both in agriculture.

After getting his masters he went to Vietnam as an agriculturalist "with no political feeling at all," he said. Now Luce is deeply opposed to the war and Vietnamization which he says is doing nothing but destroying the Vietnamese culture.

He served as director of IVS from 1961-67, then resigned and returned to the United States. The change in the local farmers' attitudes which took place during the U.S. escalation of the war was amazing, Luce said.

"In 1958, they would talk with you about the weather or their crops," he said. "In 1965, they talked about defoliation of their crops and how they were being forced out of their farms into the city slums. Their attitudes toward Americans had changed from being very open to extreme hostility. And who could blame them?"

These conditions prompted Luce to resign from IVS and return to the U.S. He returned to Vietnam in 1968 as a journalist to find that many of his friends were now being held political prisoners under very bad conditions.

Luce explained that attempts to explore this situation through the United States Ambassador to Vietnam and other officials resulted in a wild goose chase up and down the ranks of bureaucracy, yielding no concrete action.

Then Luce met a young Vietnamese man who said he had spent 14 months in the tiger cages. After this he and two Congressmen went to investigate these "tiger cages" for themselves.

The cages were camouflaged behind the prison walls of another prison block. After some distraction of the prison officials and guards, Luce's party were able to see the cages.

What he saw was prisoners who had been blinded with lye and paralyzed

McGovern takes lead in early primary totals

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Wisconsin Democrats tested the big field of Democratic candidates for the White House Tuesday, giving Sen. George McGovern a slim edge in the first trickle of ballots counted, as President Nixon walked away with the Republican presidential primary.

In the first seven precincts counted, McGovern had 34 per cent of the vote, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota 28 per cent, with the rest of the 12-way field trailing them.

The ballots were the first tallied in a turnout expected to produce a record showing of about 1.5 million votes. A voter could choose the ballot of either party.

McGovern pronounced himself optimistic on election day as he battled for a win to propel him into the front ranks of Democratic candidates.

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace was getting 15 per cent of the vote in the early counting, and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine was running fourth with 12 per cent.

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — New York Mayor John V. Lindsay withdrew as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination Tuesday night after a far-back showing in Wisconsin's presidential primary.

Lindsay, running sixth, said "I am withdrawing as a candidate. I want you to know that I will continue to fight for the principles that I believe."

Early Wisconsin returns show slight McGovern edge

Muskie already had said it would take a miracle for him to win in Wisconsin, where he had ranked as the early winter favorite before primary setbacks last month cost him his standing as the national frontrunner.

Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama held one of the keys to the Wisconsin outcome after his most extensive Northern primary campaign.

He played to big crowds, bidding for blue-collar voters in a state where his showing could be buoyed by Republican ballots.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York openly appealed for Republican votes in the Democratic primary.

Republican loyalists urged GOP voters to stick with the party and cast ballots for President Nixon, who was certain to sweep all 28 GOP convention delegates.

He is opposed on the ballot by Reps. John Ashbrook of Ohio and Paul N. McCloskey Jr. of California, who has dropped out of the race. McCloskey has urged support for Lindsay.

At stake in the Democratic contest were 67 delegate votes at the national convention in Miami Beach, 11 for the state-wide winner, the others apportioned among congressional districts.

But political psychology was at stake, too, for the winner gained a big lift in coming contests for far larger blocks of convention delegates.

The other names on the Democratic ballot were those of former Minnesota Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, Reps. Shirley Chisholm of New York, Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas and Patsy Mink of Hawaii, Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles and Sen. Vance Hartke of Indiana.

Hartke has quit the presidential campaign and endorsed Humphrey. Wisconsin's ballot also offered the voter a chance to say no, a box marked "none of these names shown."

McGovern's managers said even before the votes were tallied that the senator had established himself among the politicians and the analysts as a man who could, indeed, win the Democratic nomination.

That has been a major problem all along for McGovern, who had

Campaign spending rules insufficient

The Federal Election Campaign Act signed by President Nixon on Feb. 7 has raised many eyebrows among candidates running for federal offices. Whether this Act "will guard against campaign abuses and...build public confidence and integrity of the electoral process," as promulgated by the President, remains a highly questionable matter.

The Act will take effect Friday, after presidential primaries are to be held in New Hampshire, Florida, Illinois and Wisconsin. Already a question can be raised as to whether the political expenditures of candidates before April 7 have to be accounted for. From this point, other ambiguities ensue.

The Act repealed the ceilings on political spending set by the Corrupt Practices Act in 1925 and fixed a 10 per cent per voter limit on political advertising by federal candidates through the mass media. Of the 10 cents, no more than six cents may be spent on broadcast advertising. This leaves a host of things not covered by the new law: direct mail advertising, telephone and telegraph tolls, pay of staff assistants and campaign aides, travel and transportation costs, hotels, meals, fees for consultants, computers, speech-writers, pollsters, researchers, media experts, expenditure for bumper stickers, campaign buttons, hats and pennants, to name a few.

The cost apportionment for using interstate media in campaign advertising is most cumbersome indeed.

Jointly-expended funds on behalf of the entire party ticket are difficult to be divided among the candidates involved.

Moreover, expenditure is hard to control because those sufficiently motivated in politics may pay for their candidate's advertising at their own expense while invoking First Amendment right of freedom of expression. This kind of volunteer contribution can help candidates bypass the ruling against contributions by federal contractors and render the formation of political committees (which are otherwise subject to registration and reporting of their finances in detail) useless.

With the amendment of the U.S. Criminal Code, candidates can also detour from the illegal track of soliciting direct contributions from business and labor by getting bonafide loans through normal banking procedures and obtaining voluntary contributions from company officers, stockholders, employees or union members.

The Act sets no limit on individual contributions as well as total spending, thus leaving the road wide open for any thinking person to sidetrack the regulations set forth by the new law.

The Federal Election Campaign Act of 1972 is definitely not the answer to regulating political spending practices of candidates, although the fact that it has been updated to fit this modern society cannot be discounted. No doubt the Act has also provided for its own enforcement, but the extreme details involved in the Act have paid the cost of enforcement through the General Accounting Office up to the tune of at least $2 million per year.

The question remains: Is the Act's goal in policing federal campaign spending worth its cost?

Letters to the editor

War continues

To the Daily Egyptian:

Two significant developments occurred in the last weeks concerning the state of the war in Indochina. William Porter, wolf in sheeps clothing and chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks, indefinitely suspended further talks. Earlier in the month, the Pentagon announced that it would no longer identify the number of air sorties flown by U.S. bombers.

Both of these developments clearly indicate an intended escalation of the U.S. presence in Indochina. By suspending the peace talks, Nixon has indicated, contrary to his administration's propoganda, that he seeks a military victory in Vietnam rather than a negotiated settlement. By no longer announcing the number of air sorties, we can assume that this means a significant increase in bombing.

These developments however, are not drastically out of character with Nixon's policy. While speaking peace he consistently makes war. During Nixon's reign, most importantly from Nov. 1, 1971 up until the present date, he has rained down upon the Indochinese people the majority of bombs dropped in the war. In fact, "more bombs have been dropped in Indochina since Nixon took office than the total (2.9 million tons) dropped during World War II and the Korean War combined." (Indochina Chronicle, Oct. 15, 1971.) Does this sound like a war winding down?

Two years ago, such insidious moves by Nixon would have provoked nationwide protests. Today, because of the relative silence of the country, Nixon 'hinks that he can continue to escalate his policy of devastation and genocide.

On this campus, the Center for Vietnamese Studies continues, as it did two years ago, to function in its work (concerning post-war reconstruction of Vietnam) on the basic premise that Thieu and Nixon will win in Vietnam—a premise which immediately dictates that the U.S. continue its escalation and support the bloody and ruthless dictatorship.

Today, because of the relative silence of the student body, Jacobini and his fellows at the Viet Center think that they can continue, in peace, to plan the future of Vietnam (post-war reconstruction by the U.S. and further destruction of Vietnam). We must prove them wrong. In good conscience we know that nothing has changed, we know that the horror and death imposed by the U.S. and it's SIU Viet Center cronies upon the Indochinese people continues and even worsens. Spring is here. Spring is a season of life. We can make it that indeed, by opposing in every feasible manner the agencies of death (i.d., center for Vietnamese Studies) on this campus.

Another ripoff

To the Daily Egyptian:

Yes, there has been another "rip-off" in Carbondale. This time the incident has occurred in Carbondale Mobile Home Park, which is owned mostly by Parrish Enterprises. It seems that they have the power to create new rules at any time they feel appropriate and without proper notice to the tenants.

Just recently they made a rule about towing cars. I was totally unaware of this rule until I returned from Spring break and discovered my automobile was missing. Well, that's a typical business ticket in Carbondale, especially in Carbondale Mobile Home Park. But my car was towed 30 miles away to Anna, Illinois. Gee, I could take a bus to Anna, pay towing and storage fees, then have it towed back. I think I'll forget this whole episode and call it another Carbondale silly...the "All-American City."

I'll be walking from now on thinking of the wonderful people at Parrish Enterprises.

Please, be careful when renting housing in Carbondale...check out your landlord.

Hitching defended

To the Daily Egyptian:

The report by Barry Cleveland in the Daily Egyptian, March 11, 1972 was a sad story. It is indeed dreadful to hear that a girl has been forcefully taken sexual advantage of just because she asked for a ride.

I believe, instead of warning the students not to hitchhike, as was reported in the above mentioned report, it is more reasonable to ask why they hitchhike. A large number of SIU students live in places around Carbondale. There is no choice, they either have to own a car or solicit rides. And with the disastrous conditions of university parking it is better not to have a car.

The number of hitchhikers has increased this year. The reason is that the buses were stopped. Why did they stop them? Maybe the responsible SIU personnel say that it was not profitable, or it is not their responsibility to care about the students who live in privately owned properties.

Those who live in University owned housing, like Southern Hills and Evergreen Terrace, are also deprived of bus services. The approximate one mile distance between University Park and Southern Hills, which is full of pedestrians most of the times, is always dangerous, not only because of problems of hitchhiking but also because of traffic accidents and snakes, especially during the night when it is too dark there. Knowing that they increase the rents for Southern Hills apartments every year, I wonder why they do not install some lights in this area. Are they only waiting to see some people killed of traffic accidents then try to do something about it?

Anyway, if the university or whoever is really concerned about the safety of SIU students, they must do something useful. Returning the buses to service is a very useful protection for the danger of hitchhiking. Otherwise, hiring more patrolmen, or trying to arrest the raper after he raped some girls, or warning the students not to hitchhike, cannot do any good. They all already know that hitchhiking is not fun. They hitchhike because they have to.

Dumping Lainie could spell GOP defeat

By Arthur Hoppe
Chronicle Features

What's the matter with the Republicans? First they were talking about dumping Spiro Agnew. Now they're talking about dumping Lainie Kazan.

Dump Lainie Kazan! It shows you not only how calloused campaign managers are, but how myopic their vision. Wait till Mr. Nixon hears about this. Wait till an outraged Nation, Democrats and Republicans alike, rise up in righteous wrath against such grave injustice.

For it was Miss Kazan, as the world knows, who carried New Hampshire for Mr. Nixon in a landslide.

To be fair, the beautiful chanteuse had help. When Mr. Nixon declined to campaign in New Hampshire, the GOP sent not only Miss Kazan in his place, but a couple of Cabinet members, Senators and Congressmen to back her up.

But as every political expert knows, it was the way Miss Kazan hit the crowd with "A Medley from West Side Story" that brought home 69 per cent of the vote for Mr. Nixon. ("The way that there gal belts out 'Somewhere Tonight, Maria,'" said more than one New Hampshire resident, "I just can't but help vote for the President.")

Then, while they were dazed, she'd sock them with her political speech. The President, she'd tell them, "has done many things he said he would do. I believe in continuity."

Look at that. In one breath she sums up Mr. Nixon's record and at the same time delivers a profound and persuasive argument in his behalf. Yet now they want to dump her. Why? Simply because she's an unwed mother who also received maximum exposure in, unfortunately, Playboy magazine.

Once the word of her past was out, the talk of dumping her from the campaign immediately began. It was all so unthinking.

Do these hardhearted campaign managers honestly believe that some voter's going to say, "I would've cast my ballot for Mr. Nixon if that Lainie Kazan had gotten married and not appeared bare as a radish in Playboy?"

Nonsense! These are tolerant times we live in. The average voter in this great democracy is going to say: "I don't care if she is an unwed mother who appeared bare as a radish in Playboy; the way that there gal belts out, 'Somewhere Tonight, Marie,' I just can't help but vote for the President."

Furthermore, they're overlooking the unwed mother, nudist and radish vote.

Besides, whom are they going to replace her with on the old campaign trail, John Wayne? In "True Grit," John Wayne clearly called the bad guys he was charging a bunch of "sons of b—s." Right in front of all the children in all the movie theaters in our land.

Ask yourself, would you cast your inalienable ballot for a candidate on the recommendation of a man who would say "sons of b—s" in front of thousands of little children?

Surely, the political expertise of a naked unwed mother should carry as much, if not more, weight in choosing the next President of the United States.

So let's be fair. Let's ignore Miss Kazan's past and judge her as we always judge the campaign stars on both sides of the political fence—on their ability, that is, to sing, dance, act, play the guitar, whistle or imitate bird calls. That's the American way.

And once we've done that, then lets dump Mr. Agnew.

The rebirth of populism

By Harry S. Ashmore
Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Populism bids fair to replace charisma as the catchword of the now wide-open presidential primary.

It is said to account for George Wallace's strong showing in Florida. His mastery of the populist appeal is conceded by most commentators to give him new status as something more than a spoiler in the jousting for the Democratic nomination.

It follows, then, that concerned handlers are urging populist politics and campaign practices upon the other Democrats running in the broken field. Rallying the folks, Wallace-style, is being touted as the only means of heading off the feisty Alabaman this side of Miami.

Webster's Third International Dictionary defines a populist as "a member of a party purporting to represent the rank and file." This is suggestive but hardly definitive, since all political parties claim to represent all of the people.

The name derives from the agrarian political movement of the 1890s that rallied disaffected voters in the Midwest and South, polled more than one million votes in the presidential election of 1892 and elected a few governors and congressmen before fading from the scene early in this century.

It is not insignificant that the only name among the Populist leaders still remembered is that of William Jennings Bryan, the champion of free silver and the scourge of the trusts. He was the leading spellbinder of his day and drew a mighty response from farmers and small-town citizens who considered themselves oppressed by remote combinations of wealth and privilege.

But no one ever accused Bryan of being overburdened with ideas, and he wound up a pitiable buffoon devoting the frayed remnants of his oratory to the prosecution of a Tennessee schoolmaster for teaching evolution.

The new populism, like the old, feeds upon the genuine resentment of the mass of people against those who are presumed to be in charge of public affairs. It identifies the rich, the powerful and the educated as enemies of the people, and demands retribution. But, unlike the radicalism of the left, it offers little in the way of affirmative dogma.

Populism depends upon the force of negative emotional response to remove the necessity of setting forth a program of action. Everyone knows what George Wallace is against—busing, uppity blacks, taxes, pointy-headed intellectuals, social planners, long-hairs, do-gooders, the press, crime in the streets and so forth. Once he has set this litany to guitar music no one bothers to ask what George is for.

Because populism is largely a simplistic diversion from real and complex issues, it is not surprising that with rare exceptions those who have attained power under the populist banner have never met the minimum test of their proclaimed devotion to the people's interest. For example, there is no evidence that the lot of the rank and file of Alabama has been improved during the years George Wallace has served as governor in his own right or through the agency of his late wife, Lurleen. But it can be readily demonstrated that Alabama's government continues to be dominated by the usual special interests, and there have been money scandals that touched Wallace's closest associates. Populism has provided the populace of Alabama with a three-ring circus, but precious little bread.

It ought to be noted, too, that the two Democrats who sought to meet Wallace on his own ground in Florida are both identified with long devotion to special interests. Hubert Humphrey keeps his campaign going by calling old debts owed him by organized labor. "You don't need a new face," he tells union audiences. "You need somebody that's been tested." And Henry Jackson's devotion to the aircraft industry has earned him the sobriquet, "The senator from Boeing."

The lesson of the past is clear enough, and contains a fair warning. While all populists may not be demagogues, all demagogues are populists.

Professor Liang Tsai-ping examines instruments to be used in the performance of Shantung traditional music.

Lu Sheng Ensemble to present Convo concert of traditional Chinese music

By Sue Millen
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Lu Sheng Ensemble, known in the United States through Lyrrichord recording, will kick off the spring quarter Convocation Series Thursday at 1 p.m. in the Arena.

The ensemble performs music which is primarily ceremonial in nature. The centuries-old music uses mainly wind and percussion instruments.

Liang Tsai-ping, president of the Chinese Classical Musical Association and renowned musicologist and cheng player, will be the director of the ensemble and will act as lecturer.

The program of Shantung music will include "Lamentation over the Lo River" and "Romance of the Returning Hero." Also featured in the program will be the p'i-p'a, a four-string lute; the cheng, a 16-stringed zither; the nan-hu, a two-stringed fiddle and the t'i, a flute.

The lively music which Y.K. Chen will play on the p'i-p'a will demonstrate his technique and will contrast with the melodic strings of the cheng and the tones of the nan-hu.

This program is designed to bring to American audiences Chinese music, which is virtually unknown in this country.

Critics have called the performance outstanding, captivating, and a unique listening experience.

Student Government will sponsor a coffee hour immediately following the Convocation Show in the Student Center on the first floor.

EnAct maps quarter projects

EnAct, student environmental action group, will hold its first meeting of the quarter at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Lawson Hall, Room 231.

Ray Lenzi, faculty adviser to EnAct, said purpose of the meeting is to discuss four projects which the group plans to undertake during the quarter.

The first, he said, is a Southern Illinois Environmental Game Workshop, which "will involve mapping the environmental and human resources of 14 Southern Illinois counties. The concept, said Lenzi, is based on the Department of Design's World Game.

Members of the workshop will be responsible for making transparencies relative to proposed damming and channelization of rivers and streams, Lenzi said. Also, he said, maps of the concentration of strip mines in Southern Illinois will be made.

Those who are participating in the workshop, said Lenzi, will meet from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. every Tuesday in the Student Center, Activities Room B.

The second project, he said, is the publication of an environmental newsletter. Participants in this project will meet from noon to 4 p.m. every Wednesday in the Student Environmental Center office on the third floor of the Student Center.

The third and fourth projects will be done as part of the Environmental Game Workshop, said Lenzi. These are a compilation of a Southern Illinois dams and channelization survey and the mapping of the growing number of recycling projects in Southern Illinois.

Also to be discussed at the meeting are two field trips planned by EnAct, said Lenzi. These are a canoe trip in the Ozarks and a channelization survey of the Kaskaskia River, he said.

Anyone interested in joining EnAct is invited to attend.

Indo-American meeting planned for Friday

A meeting of Indo-American Friendship Association will be held at 4 p.m. Friday at College Square B according to T.R. Gopinath, president of the association. The election of officers is on the agenda.

While some people might find the surroundings of this sign appropriate, with scattered remnants of an ancient car nearby, city personnel apparently did not share their feelings, recovering the stolen sign late Tuesday afternoon from near this shed on Willow Street. The sign, one of five originally erected in the city last month, will probably not be re-erected, Harold Hill, city streets and sanitation director, said Tuesday. Only two signs remain posted, Hill said, with vandals making off with the others. Jeffrey Stevens, a junior from Joliet majoring in photography, took this shot before the city crew arrived to reclaim the sign.

Butz planning trip to Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, with a mountain of U.S. surplus grain to back him up, is going to the Soviet Union to offer the Moscow housewife a hand with her meat budget.

The trip, announced Tuesday by the White House, is the result of a growing demand in the Soviet Union for more beef, pork, poultry and dairy products, according to government analysts.

Butz and a team of U.S. negotiators will arrive in the Soviet Union on Saturday.

Discussions will follow to see if the Soviets want to buy some of the U.S. grain surplus.

American farmers have produced far too much corn and other grain in recent years. Exports are vital to the U.S. farm economy and a new pact with the Soviet Union would mean large benefits to American producers.

Southern Illinois is subject of round table

By University News Service

A new organization dedicated to stimulating and disseminating information on Southern Illinois history, sciences, economics and culture, composed of faculty and staff members at SIU as well as interested citizens of the area, has received the endorsement of University President David R. Derge.

Tentatively called the Southern Illinois Round Table, the organization will be funded through the office of John O. Anderson, assistant to the President for area and public services, according to Basil Hedrick, SIU Museum director, who is serving as chairman pro tem.

"We hope to have the services of Rex Karnes, staff assistant in area and public services, who has long been involved in University area activities to help direct our work in the field," Hedrick said.

The organization meeting of a nucleus group will be held Thursday, at 3 p.m. in Woody Hall C-125 (South Wing).

"The Round Table Program will work in cooperation with off-campus or mixed campus and community organizations such as the Jackson County Historical Society, Southern Illinois, Inc., and others," Hedrick said.

In addition to encouraging the accumulation and dissemination of Southern Illinois materials the new group also hopes to develop programs, projects and publications pertaining to the area, Hedrick said.

Word play featured at Calipre

An experiment in the blending of interpretive movement and oral interpretation will be featured when a 10-member cast of the Interpreters' Theatre presents "Past-Perfect-Future" in the Calipre Theatre at 8 p.m. each night, Thursday through Sunday.

John Lee Welton, a graduate student in speech, will direct the two-part program which deals with how words can become personalities, how sounds can paint pictures, and how man keeps going in never-ending circles, with humorous and sometimes disastrous results.

The production uses singing, choral speaking, abstract movement and a chamber theatre approach to present the sardonic commentary of Ray Bradbury and Lawrence Ferlinghetti, the wacky humor of James Thurber and the earthy philosophy of Carl Sandburg.

This unusual approach to life through words and movement also uses the works of e.e. cummings and other writers.

Reservations for "Past-Perfect-Future" can be made by calling the Speech Department, 453-2291, from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. weekdays. Admission is $1.

Registration date for Vets benefits moved to April 14

The deadline for veterans to register for benefits under the G.I. bill has been extended from April 7 to April 14.

Mrs. Myra Lopez, veterans coordinator at the Student Work and Financial Assistance Building, said that warning letters will be sent out Thursday. She added that the sending of warning letters is done on a quarter to quarter basis due to the cost of mailing them.

Mrs. Lopez also said that there is a bill in the U.S. Senate to increase benefits under the G.I. bill, but has not yet been passed.

Report discloses donation cutback for universities

CHICAGO (AP)—Six of the state's seven universities receiving the largest amount of private financial contributions received less in 1971 than they did in 1970.

In a report released Monday by the Council for Financial Aid to Education, a New York-based firm, only the University of Illinois received more in 1971 than in 1970. Private contributions there, according to the report, were up 10 per cent.

Other universities and colleges named and the amount that contributions decreased were: University of Chicago, down 26 per cent; Northwestern University, down 32 per cent; Illinois Institute of Technology, down 21 per cent and Loyola University, down 48 per cent.

According to the report contributions also decreased at Roosevelt University and at Wheaton College, but no figures were listed.

The University of Chicago received $28.2 million and Northwestern received $16.8 million, the two top universities in Illinois in terms of private contributions.

Eight million vets may waste, study reveals

EDWARDSVILLE (AP)—"If things continue as they are, most of the eight million Vietnam-generation veterans will be wasted men."

That statement tops the list of 24 major themes and recommendations in a report based on interviews with nearly 650 veterans of the last seven years in the St. Louis metropolitan area.

The study, conducted at the SIU-Edwardsville campus by the Veterans World Project, is critical of state employment services, veterans organizations, alleged discrimination in job and education opportunities, military training and various transition programs.

The report, issued Tuesday, said government agencies generally fail to relate to young veterans and society generally has a negative attitude toward them.

"Hundreds of thousands of veterans are experiencing a long-lasting sense of isolation, confusion, loneliness and rejection on their return to their native land," according to the report.

"The psychiatrists in Veterans Administration hospitals and other treatment centers are encountering an unprecedented 'Vietnam veteran syndrome' which frequently appears in unusual ways and over much longer periods of time than has ever been the case before," according to the report which was financed by a $24,000 grant from the U.S. Office of Education.

The report said that Vietnam veterans have "almost always" been discussed in terms of "what is or might be wrong with them, in terms of violence, drugs, mental illness—antisocial attitudes."

Another readjustment problem, according to the reports, is that "tens of millions of Americans have allowed their frustration and resentment about the Vietnam war to turn itself against the men who have had to fight it."

The report said that the difficulty of Vietnam-era veterans to readjust to civilian life begins with their military experience.

The tour in Vietnam is normally set at 365 days. "This is lost, dead time...Nothing but time is really at stake for the American fighting man. He can be stationed anywhere from Okinawa to Saigon and experience the same stultifying boredom," the report said.

The "debilitating existence in the war zone," the report added, leads many men to dependence on narcotic drugs. "The incidence of this dependence may or may not be higher than in other wars, but with yearly replacements the numbers are vast."

The veterans surveyed indicated they would prefer a longer processing period when they are released from the military and suggested that a month-long troopship return to the United States would be beneficial.

"A soldier can, within 72 hours, go from a combat environment to his front door," said the report. "It may be incomprehensible to someone who has not experienced what it can do to a man to travel halfway around the world through 12 time zones and back into a yesterday lost a year ago within the span of a 15-hour flight."

The report said that many employers are unwilling to hire Vietnam-era veterans and that there is little awareness of "project transition," a federal program designed to train veterans in areas with job openings.

Two more students enter campus race

By Randy Thomas
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Two more students tossed their hats into the SIU political arena Tuesday afternoon by announcing their candidacies for president and vice-president of the student body.

Presidential candidate Thomas Johnson, a junior from Skokie majoring in economics, and his running mate Jan Takehara, a junior from Skokie majoring in art, said that if elected, they will commit themselves to honesty.

"We will demand truth from the administration, the faculty and—most important—the student government," Johnson said.

In a prepared campaign statement, the candidates said they were running on the "Perpetrators of Truth" party ticket. Officially they are running as unaffiliated candidates because their party is not recognized by student government.

"The way we see it," the statement said, "telling the truth at SIU is the same as committing a crime, and seeking the truth is likewise criminal." The statement also said that when the million dollar University House was exposed the critics were the ones condemned for trying to present the truth. Likewise, it said, "the people who desired the truth about the Center for Vietnamese Studies were beaten, harassed and arrested."

Listed in the statement were six goals which Johnson said are achievable because they are student-orientated, and not at all far fetched.

First on the list was active participation on the Board of Trustees by students. Johnson said student government should select six candidates out of which three should be appointed by the governor of Illinois to serve on the board.

Next on the list was honest and responsible spending of University money to allow more funds for student activities. When asked how he would alter the present system of spending and where cuts might be made, Johnson said he would have to study the current fiscal situation before making any decisions.

Other items on the list include mandatory evaluation of all courses and instructors to be published regularly, more free and low-priced student activities such as concerts and movies, support of bills in the Illinois legislature to allow 18-year-old drinking and beer on campus, the serving of health foods in dorms and in the Student Center cafeterias and the establishment of a campus transit system to alleviate the parking and traffic problems and to prevent rapes.

Johnson said because he is not tied to any special interest group, he will be better able to serve the entire student body. He said student government has the potential to become a powerful and effective organization in University and community affairs.

"We see the force that student government can exert and are quite aware of the benefits it can bring to the entire community," Johnson said. "We will try to build and use that power effectively."

U-Senate elections under study

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Governance Committee of the University Senate decided Tuesday that the election of senators will be the first topic the committee will work on during spring quarter.

William Simeone, former senate president and graduate faculty representative on the committee, suggested a three-stage plan for working on the election process.

"The committee should urge the president of the senate to urge the constituency councils to hold elections between now and May 15," Simeone said. "The committee should put the idea of the senate controlling its own electoral process before the senate to get its reaction." The third part of Simeone's plan is to have a new electoral system written.

"The present system is total chaos," Simeone said.

Currently, the individual constituencies have total control over its U-Senate representatives. The constituencies can hold elections whenever they want.

Tony Catanese, chairman of the committee, said he would have one of the senate interns look through the Senate's bylaws to find out what changes would be necessary for the senate to control its own elections. He said he will also try to get some feedback on the electoral procedure from the heads of the constituencies.

The second topic the committee will deal with is the structure of the joint standing committees with special emphasis on the appointment of personnel. Simeone suggested the senate withdraw from the appointment process because the joint standing committees do not report to the senate.

"I didn't find any special virtue of having the Executive Committee making the committee appointments," Simeone said.

Currently, the Executive Committee of the senate appoints the members of joint standing committees. Half of a constituency's members on a joint standing committee must come from a list submitted by the constituency.

Inhumane handling of prisoners told

with legs shriveled and wasted from being kept in shackles for so long. He said the guards would urinate down on the women in the cages to humiliate them. These are just a few of the atrocities he saw there, he said.

"At first I was very sick to my stomach," Luce said. "But my next reaction was to dissociate myself from it, to show them that I wasn't part of the thing that was doing this to them, that I was not one of those people."

After the tiger cages were exposed, the Saigon government said it would do away with them. Those cages are no longer used, Luce said. The prisoners from the cages were then ordered to build new cages as part of a self-help program, Luce said. "When they refused, they were put in shackles."

Then followed the U.S. contract to build the new cages—some two square feet smaller than the previous ones. They have since been completed by the firm of Raymond, Morrison, Knudson, Brown, Root and Jones. Luce said Root and Jones are part of Lady Bird Johnson's financial empire.

"This is why it is so frustrating—that despite all the publicity, that our government would build 384 new ones even smaller than the former ones," Luce said.

After exposing the tiger cages, Luce was followed, the U.S. Embassy ran a security check on him for possible Communist ties, his house was broken into and his press card and visa withdrawn.

Luce has received correspondence telling that the inhumane treatment of the prisoners has returned along with the new tiger cages. One letter reported of torture a student leader in South Vietnam received while in prison.

Since his return to the United States this time, Luce has traveled around the country talking about the war and its destruction of the Vietnamese people and culture.

"Since the elections in October of 1971, there has been an increase in the number of Vietnamese people being arrested," he said. "Vietnamization means that even more American aid is being used for political repression."

Luce displayed charts of the use of American aid money. These show that there has been an increase in funds to paramilitary functions such as the police and prisons, and a decrease in economic-social functions such as education and agriculture.

He said that Vietnamese textbooks are produced in the United State—"most of them by the advice of the SIU contractors". Luce said that these books take out the history and struggle the Vietnamese people have had against the Chinese and the French and, thus, very subtly break down the spirit of nationalism of the Vietnamese people.

"Winding down the war is obviously a farce," he said. "The recent statements of General Creighton Abrams, commander in Saigon) portray the United States as a nation willing to use massive bombardment of Vietnam as long as this doesn't result in large numbers of American casualties. Apparently it is alright to kill Vietnamese farm people."

Luce said the main flaw of Vietnamization is the assumption that Richard Nixon can Vietnamize the Vietnamese. He said some Vietnamese refer to this by a Vietnamese word meaning "killing of the southerners."

"The real problem is the war itself. When we pull our troops out, the Vietnamese people can solve their own problems for themselves," he said.

Luce said he will testify in favor of the bill for aid to AmerAsian children, but likened it to "putting a bandaid on an amputee. It's better than nothing."

Luce said the main problem is that this aid would be administered through the Saigon government.

Nixon weighs options to halt Cong onslaught

on the Vietnam situation.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration officially held its options open Tuesday on how to stem North Vietnam's onslaught. It also noted Moscow's arms aid to Hanoi.

On neither item, however, did officials at the White House, State Department and Pentagon suggest privately that the United States will go beyond the type of action previously indicated as North Vietnam mounted its offensive across the demilitarized zone.

From a military standpoint, the U.S. officials said, it is plain that stepped-up air attacks are the main recourse left for U.S. forces in Vietnam. U.S. ground troops have dwindled to the point where they are no longer available for much combat action. And the U.S. withdrawals will be proceeding, they said.

Publicly, White House press officer Gerald Warren said that President Nixon is keeping all options open on what the United States might do. The administration's inside crisis unit, named the Washington Special Action Group, met for the second time in two days

At the State Department, spokesman Robert J. McCloskey said that the Hanoi forces striking into South Vietnam "are supported in a very large way by heavy military equipment from the Soviet Union."

At the Capitol, Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said he opposed any use of air power or U.S. combat troops to counter the new offensive.

As for the Viet Cong demand in Paris that the allies return to the peace talks Thursday, McCloskey backed South Vietnam's refusal to attempt a session at this time.

The United States is saying that negotiations cannot be held under the pressure of an enemy offensive.

Both Moscow and Peking have been aiding Hanoi for years.

The Soviets are reported by U.S. intelligence to have shipped some $100 million worth of weapons to North Vietnam in 1971, up from $70 million the previous year.

Charlie Chaplin back after 20 year absence

NEW YORK (AP)—Charlie Chaplin, hailed by many critics as the greatest comedian of the 20th century, returned to the United States Monday 20 years after he left amid accusations of Communist associations and immorality.

"I am very happy to be in New York again," he said as he left a plane from Bermuda.

Although he walked slowly and unsteadily, Chaplin, who will be 83 on April 16, waved and blew kisses to a throng of newsmen who greeted him at Kennedy Airport.

Slightly behind him, her hand on his shoulder, was his wife, the former Oona O'Neill, daughter of playwright Eugene O'Neill, and mother of eight of his children.

David Rockefeller, Jr., chairman of a "Salute to Charlie Chaplin" scheduled Tuesday night at Lincoln Center, led the couple to a waiting limousine.

Featured at the Chaplin gala will be one of his most famous films, "The Kid," in which the character he made world-famous—the baggy pants, painted mustache 'little tramp'—introduced the first of Hollywood's famous child stars, Jackie Coogan.

After four days in New York, Chaplin will go to Hollywood where he will receive a special Oscar from the Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences. It never gave him one during the days when he was winning critical plaudits.

Chaplin, born in London, had been a resident of the United States for 40 years when he left in 1952, but had never become a citizen.

As for the charges of fostering Communist ideology, he said: "I'm not touting for any ideology. I'm for the progress of the human race. I'm for the little man."

The Communist charges were brought to the attention of the Justice Department as was his having been found by a court to have been the father of a child born out of wedlock in 1943.

When he left for Europe, then Atty. Gen. James P. McGranery, ruled he could not return without undergoing an inquiry into both charges.

Chaplin's re-entry visa was taken away and he refused to comply with the conditions.

"I have been the object of lies and vicious propaganda by powerful reactionary groups," he said, "who by their influence and by the aid of America's yellow press have created an unhealthy atmosphere."

"Under these circumstances, I find it virtually impossible to continue my motion picture work and I have therefore given up my residence in the United States."

Chaplin traveled here on a British passport, as did his wife who has renounced her American citizenship.

They plan to return to their Switzerland home on April 12.

Some People Think Speed Reading is a Phony

- That it doesn't work on tough material
- That it wrecks your comprehension
- That it doesn't last
- That it's unreliable on tests
- That all speed reading courses are alike

If they're talking about conventional speed reading courses, all of those complaints are valid. But not the Evelyn Wood Course. It's the only course that two Presidents have personally recommended (John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon). It's the only course that numbers among its graduates vast numbers of responsible people who can attest to the value of the course. You may not agree with their politics or like them, but you can recognize their ability to 'spot a phony.' (Marshall McLuhan, St. Hayakawa, 25 U.S. Congressmen, etc., etc.) So much for generalities. Here's what happened to students in this area who took the Evelyn Wood Course during 1969 and 1970 (list of 43 schools includes University of Pennsylvania, Temple, Fairleigh Dickinson, Swarthmore, Ursinus, Fordham, etc., etc.)

Hot water to be piped into Mississippi River

DES MOINES (AP)
Construction of a controversial diffuser-pipe system at the Quad Cities nuclear generating station received the go-ahead Tuesday from the Iowa Conservation Commission, apparently clearing the way for operation of the facility.

The commission, like the Iowa Water Pollution Control Commission, reversed its previous decision and allowed the issuance of a permit for construction of the two pipes which will diffuse heated water from the plant into the Mississippi River.

The diffusers will be in use until another cooling system for the plant is completed. Target date for the completion of the other cooling system is May 4, 1975.

After that, the diffusers will be used only on an emergency basis. The permit for construction of the diffuser at the station, owned by Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric of Davenport and Commonwealth Edison of Chicago, was approved by the commission 4-1.

Commissioner John Link of Burlington called the diffuser issue "a whole new ballgame" as a result of the firm's decision to build the more expensive closed-cycle cooling system.

Commissioner Edward Weinheimer of Greenfield said he had objected to the diffuser last month because he was concerned with the long range damage the system might do to the Mississippi River. But he said the threat of damage seemed to be ended as a result of the closed-cycle plan.

Part of the agreement between the commission and the firms calls for an advisory group of Iowa and Illinois officials to set guidelines under which the diffuser could be operated.

The decision of the firms to construct the closed cooling system was announced last week by Illinois

Atty. Gen. William J. Scott. Scott, the Izaak Walton League and the United Auto Workers had filed suit in federal court in Washington to prevent the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) from allowing the plant to begin operation while the diffuser cooling system was part of the plans.

After the new cooling system was announced, the suit was dropped and the AEC issued a temporary operating permit for up to 20 per cent of rated power. Officials at the facility said the station should begin operation next week.

Illinois Asst. Atty. Gen. Nicholas G. Dozoryst, who appeared before the Iowa Conservation Commission, said his office was pleased with the new agreement. "It is an environmental victory we can all be proud of," Dozoryst said.

The agreement, said Dozoryst, shows that state "agencies can protect the environment very vigorously and at the same time provide the public with needed power."

Officials of the firms had said the area to be served by the Quad Cities station would face a serious power shortage this summer if the facility weren't in operation in time to meet peak air-conditioning needs.

Byron Lee of Commonwealth Edison told the commission the diffuser would be in operation in about five months.

In the meantime, the plant would be operated using a side-jet diffuser which would squirt heated water from the plant into the Illinois side of the river. Iowa would have no jurisdiction over that system. The diffuser pipes would spread the water clear across the river.

The Illinois Pollution Control Commission had given the utilities permission to use the side-jet operation until last Friday.

Commission on VD says new campaign not enough

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Commission on Venereal Disease said Tuesday the government's stepped-up campaign against gonorrhea and syphilis is not enough to control what it called an epidemic striking 2.5 million Americans each year.

After a year of study, the advisory panel of 16 physicians and one os. math recommended federal spending of $296 million over the next five years for VD control.

Specifically, it proposed a 19-point program including VD instruction down to the seventh grade in public and private schools, more research and a search for vaccines and restored VD courses in the curriculum of medical schools.

In the fiscal year starting July 1, the commission urged that federal spending be boosted to $46.1 million compared with the $31 million President Nixon has requested.

But, Dr. Merlin K. DuVal, assistant secretary for health and scientific affairs in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said the administration request represents a 250 per cent increase over two years and questioned whether more money could be spent effectively.

Noting a historic rise in gonorrhea and a 20-year high in reported infectious syphilis cases, the commission blamed the outbreak on public and medical complacency following the introduction of penicillin in the early 1950s.

Dr. Bruce P. Webster, Cornell University professor emeritus who headed the study, said the recent breakthrough in developing the vaccine against meningitis "gives stimulus and hope that such a possibility is available" for gonorrhea.

Officials from the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta said, however, that it takes 7 to 10 years to institute a new vaccination program.

Untreated syphilis can lead to brain damage and blindness, and be passed on by an expectant mother to her child. Gonorrhea may cause sterility, blood infections and arthritis.

Protection for land buyers urged

CHICAGO (AP) — An attorney for the Illinois department that regulates land sales recommended Tuesday three changes in the law that protects buyers of lands in other states.

Department of Registration and Education attorney Dennis Alexander, land buyers and land developers spoke about out-of-state land sales at a hearing conducted by the consumer-protection division of the Illinois attorney general's office. The registration department supervises subdivision land sales.

Alexander recommended that the department have formal authority to review all land sale advertising, that subdivisions have roads and improvements completed or bonded before lots are offered for sale in Illinois and that certain types of sales now exempt from regulation be brought under the department's control.

Under the present land-sales law, developers must file extensive property descriptions and financial information with the department, Alexander said.

At the hearing, land purchasers told of not being able to see lots, of difficulty in reselling them and of misrepresentation at land developers' promotional dinners.

Experimental 'Project Capstone' offers easy JC student transition

By University News Service

Graduates of job-related programs at junior colleges are being given a chance to design their own courses toward a bachelor's degree at SIU.

"Project Capstone," an experiment which will start next fall, will guarantee selected students that they can earn a baccalaureate in a maximum of 96 quarter hours if they provide that much in transfer credits.

In the past, graduates of two-year occupational programs at community colleges have had to sacrifice some credits that wouldn't apply to normal four-year degrees at SIU.

Jerre Pfaff, director of admissions, said 15 JC graduates selected for the experimental project will be given credit for work experience as well as "general competency."

Object of the "Capstone" program will be to train personnel for industrial management and as occupational instructors for junior colleges. Such a training program has been requested by the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

Pfaff said candidates' classroom and work performances, high school records and references will be considered by a selection committee.

Once a student has been picked, he can tailor-make his own degree program with the help of his dean and the SIU Office of Admissions and Records.

Four academic units of SIU will be involved in the project: The Schools of Business, Agriculture, Home Economics and Engineering and Technology.

Pfaff said the self-designed degree courses will "build heavily on the transfer students' background in occupational courses and the real world of work experience."

He said the combination could provide "one of the best means for filling the jobs available in junior college-occupational teaching and in industry."

'Workers aren't dingbats,' union replies to Archie

WASHINGTON (AP)—Miffed at what it sees as a television movie that portrays Archie Bunker as a typical working stiff, the Teamsters Union said Tuesday, "The average worker is no dingbat."

"For some reason the writers of those shows decided the average worker is a dingbat-fat, more than a little dumb, a committed racist and most of all, very comical," the union said in its new publication, Focus.

Bob Kasen, editor of Focus, says many of the two million Teamsters and members of other unions resent it.

Archie Bunker, chief character in "All in the Family" is portrayed as a slob-type worker in a blue-collar job that is never quite defined. He calls his wife "dingbat," his son-in-law "meathead," makes racial and ethnic slurs and likes President Nixon.

Kasen said there is increasing irritation among workers about the Bunker image and references in national newspaper columns to "the Archie Bunker vote."

"It means 'the stupid worker vote,'" Kasen said in an interview, and added that the real-life typical worker doesn't like it, even if he laughs occasionally at Archie.

"Maligned in public, he knows he's being made fun of by the so-called opinion makers."

Senate to discuss housing, foreign student senator

By Randy Thomas
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The University's off-campus model housing contract and elimination of the foreign student senator seat will be the main topics of discussion at a Student Senate meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in 131 Lawson Hall, according to Jim Peters, student body vice-president.

Peters said Tuesday that the senate also will discuss a proposal to extend Thanksgiving break to one full week and the impeachment of several senators for poor attendance records.

Last quarter the senate voted to approve the voluntary model contract but will reevaluate its decision because of a legal decision by the University during spring break which affected the document. The senate voted last quarter to eliminate the foreign student senator seat because it provides for double representation of foreign students and discriminates in favor of a minority group. The issue has in the past been the source of heated debate between the senators. A bill is expected to be introduced at the meeting calling for reinstatement of the seat.

The meeting is open to the public and all interested students are invited to attend.

Police report banner worth $125 stolen

SIU security police Tuesday reported the theft of a canvas banner advertising both the Royal Horse Show and the Ike and Tina Turner concert from where it was hung on South Illinois Avenue.

Police said the banner, valued at $125, was apparently taken some time Friday afternoon.

A dual turntable worth about $130 was taken from the observation room in the University Theater Sunday afternoon. Police said the door to the room was not locked at the time.

John Funtall, 25, of Carbondale, reported the theft of a 12-volt battery from his car parked in the Southern Hills parking lot Monday evening. He said the battery was worth $30.

Two black Sears speakers were removed from the car of Ralph E. Lingelbach, 22, of Carbondale, Sunday night. Lingelbach said entrance to the car was gained by picking the lock with a coat hanger. He said the speakers were worth $30.

A three-speed Schwinn Breeze bicycle worth $70 was stolen over the weekend from near the trailer of Phyllis B. Maynard, 20, of Carbondale.

Nixon authorizes dollar devaluation

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon signed legislation Monday formally devaluing the dollar, saying the action is only part of a move toward a more stable international economic order.

The dollar has been devalued, for practical purposes, since last December to a varying degree in terms of other currencies.

The law Congress enacted at Nixon's request carries out the formal devaluation in terms of gold agreed on with major trading countries. Raising the price of an ounce of gold from $35 to $38, the move cuts the gold value of the dollar by 7.89 per cent.

One formality remains: official notification of the dollar change to the International Monetary Fund.

Undersecretary Paul A. Volcker told newsmen the Treasury has not yet decided exactly when to do this, but that the matter is technical and "not terribly significant" since money markets already have adjusted to a lesser-value dollar.

New Worlds Week, technology conference slated for May 15-21

By Debbie Polston
Student Writer

Individuals and groups actively involved in all facets of society will meet May 15-21 to discuss the future of mankind's potential.

This will be New Worlds Week. The new worlds concept was developed by Earl Hubbard, artist-turned-space philosopher.

New Worlds stems from Hubbard's concept that man must move on to the universe in order to survive. That means all countries of the earth must unite for the same purpose, to conquer space.

According to Hubbard's writings, man now has the energy and soon the technology to move and live in the universe. And furthermore, man must leave earth because of the population increase, which produces more pollution and famine. Man is outgrowing the earth. Extinction will be the end, his writings claim.

Hubbard and his wife, Barbara, formed the Committee for the Future in June of 1970. The first conference was held then in their home in Lakeville, Conn. The committee agreed that investing immediately in means of developing new worlds would be man's only hope for solving the problems on earth and provide a future for mankind.

The committee proposed the new worlds concept would mean employment for all, encouragement of world unity, education opportunities and would produce creative invention.

The Committee for the Future has since held two more conferences. The next conference will be at SIU in May.

SIU will be the first conference ever to test the Syncon method of solving problems. Syncon stands for synergistic convergence.

Participants will be placed in the Syncon wheel which will provide the opportunity for people of different interests to work together and form new solutions to their own problems. The wheel will be built in the Student Center Ballroom D.

The wheel will have a center core. From the core, the wheel will be divided into six pieces separated by walls. The core will act as the data and feedback center. The pieces will be government, society, space, environment, industry-commerce-labor, and other regions of the planet.

The space and environment parts will be the first to set a 10 year plan for the future. Once accomplished, three of the walls will be removed. That is, three seemingly opposed views will have to work together to set up a 10 year plan.

Finally all the walls will be removed. All interests will have to work together in terms of their own resources and needs with what technology and manpower is available.

At the rim of the wheel will be the growing area. This consists of people in the fields of arts. They will synthesize a picture of the new man and the direction he is going.

Beyond that, a circle will contain non-verified phenomena. They will be concerned with subjects such as parapsychics and parapsychology.

Alan Ladwig, coordinator of the New Worlds Week, said the entire proceedings will be backgrounded by 100 hours of CBS's video coverage of the entire space program. This will include man's first satellite attempts to the next moon shot. "At the time of Neil Armstrong's landing on the moon, there will be a celebration honoring man," Ladwig said.

"A musical theme is being composed for the occasion by Prof. Gunnar Johnson of the University of Wisconsin," Ladwig said.

"Attempts are being made to set up a phone call all over the earth for like minded people to talk to each other," Ladwig said.

Ladwig said another part of the celebration will be a video tape showing of the series "Star Trek." Gene Rodenberry, its creator, will bring tapes and also participate in the wheel.

Ladwig said, "A daily TV news show covering the events of Syncon will be presented at 6:30 p.m. in the ballroom." This will provide an opportunity for everyone to know the wheel's progress, said Ladwig.

"The new worlds week will provide maximum involvement for all and at the same time be entertaining," Ladwig said. "There is no reason why it shouldn't be fun and knowledgeable," Ladwig said.

Besides the celebration which will be Friday night, students will have other opportunities to participate. They will be encouraged to work in the Syncon wheel. Students can exhibit their art work. A shuttle system display for space will also be exhibited.

Besides students participating, not only from SIU but from many universities, people throughout the country are planning on attending the conference.

The producer of all the CBS Apollo coverage will help construct the wheel and participate. Earl Hubbard and his wife will attend. Other people include Dr. Karl Harr, president of Aerospace Industries, Thomas Wilson, vice-president of International Institute for Environmental Affairs, Gen. Joseph Bleymaier, developer of Titan IIIC, Mrs. Charles Babcock, president of the Harold Foundation and others.

The Southern Illinois Committee for the Future is sponsoring the entire New Worlds Week. It is not being funded through student activities, said Ladwig, but rather through a private fund.

Ladwig said SIU was chosen for four reasons. "It hosted the Mankind in the Universe conference last year. It is geographically and ideologically central. It has many open-minded faculty and students. And SIU is an emerging institution."

Students can get involved in many facets of the new worlds. Much help is needed. A meeting will be held for all interested at 8 p.m. Thursday in Lawson 221. Additional information may be obtained through Alan Ladwig, Office of Student Relations, barracks T-40.

'Antigone' auditions slated for this week

Auditions for "Antigone," by Jean Anouilh, will be staged on Wednesday and Thursday from 6 to 8 p.m. in the Communications Lounge of the Communications Building.

The play will be directed by Darlene Peitz and requires a cast of four women and six to eight men.

For the auditions the director has asked that anyone interested prepare a short (2-3 minutes) selection of his own choosing from either a piece of fiction or drama. The selection may be either comic or dramatic in nature or may be taken from "Antigone." The play is on two-hour reserve in the library at the reserve desk. The selection need not be memorized and may be read with a partner.

The play is the story of Antigone who because she has buried her brother at the end of the war, against the King's decree, is put to death. The story is based on the Sophocles' "Antigone," but was rewritten in 1942 by the French author Jean Anouilh. The play was first performed in France in 1944 while that country was under the government of the German Occupation Forces of World War II. "Antigone" is a thesis production and will be performed on May 12, 13 and 14 in the Laboratory Theatre of the Communications Building.

Anyone who is interested but unable to attend auditions is asked to contact the director either through the theatre office or at home by phoning 549-1650.

Answer possible on grad-employe issue

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A decision on whether graduate students will be classified as "employees" under the state health insurance program may be announced at the meeting of the Graduate Student Council (GSC) at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in the Mississippi Room of the Student Center.

Chris Jensen, GSC secretary, and Charles Newling, a GSC representative, went to Springfield Wednesday to discuss the insurance question with Alan A. Drazek, director of personnel, and Dr. Bruce Flaschner, director of the Department of Public Health. The results of these discussions will be announced Thursday.

Previously, Drazek has ruled that graduate students do not qualify for the insurance plan because the students are not "employees." Drazek's definition of "employee" is based on what constitutes an "employee" under the retirement plan.

The GSC has sent letters to Flaschner and Michael Bakalis, superintendent of instruction, attempting to obtain a favorable ruling on what is an "employee." If Drazek does not change his position, the GSC can take the question to attorney general William Scott, in order to receive a ruling.

The council also will try to fill 16 vacancies on various University Senate committees and subcommittees. The largest number of vacancies occurs with the Campus Management Committee and its subcommittees. There are 12 graduate student vacancies on this committee.

June 1 target date announced for Carbondale multi-purpose center

By Lynn Burris
Student Writer

June 1 has been set as a target date for the construction of a $70,000 social service center to be built in the northeast section of Carbondale.

However, Bob Stalls, Model Cities director, said this date is not certain because construction will begin approximately 60 days after Carbondale issues bonds in mid-April for the construction of the center.

The Multi-Purpose Center, as the

Berrigan jury wants more time

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A jury trying the Rev. Philip Berrigan and six others on kidnap-bomb conspiracy charges asked Tuesday for more time for deliberations, saying: "For the past two hours there has been progress made."

The foreman, Harold Sheets, told U.S. District Court Judge R. Dixon Herman, however, that he foresaw no verdict before Wednesday at the earliest.

He suggested that the jury be relieved of its duties for the day at 6 p.m., and the court agreed.

Nine women and three men on the jury reported Sunday that they were deadlocked in the key features of a government indictment charging Berrigan and six other antiwar activists with a plot to kidnap White House aide Henry Kissinger and blow up a government tunnel heating system in Washington, D.C., and vandalize draft boards in various states.

Selective service answers student draft misconceptions

By Bill Berra
Student Writer

Many draftable SIU students erroneously think the University routinely reports a student's academic status to his local draft board at the end of each academic quarter, according to Rick Holt, SIU selective service coordinator.

"My job is to report a student's academic status to his local selective service board only if he requests it," Holt explained.

Holt, who is attached to the Office of the Registrar, maintains an office in the north wing basement of Woody Hall.

A second misconception that SIU students have concerns stopping academic status reports from going to the local selective service boards.

"Many people think once they have asked for the local boards to be informed of their status there is no way to stop them from receiving the reports," Holt said. "This is not true. All the student has to do is fill out a deletion request form. This form stops any report at any time."

"Students tend to view my job as part of the selective service system. My only job is to serve the students as a part of the registration process."

Holt complains that many students receive incorrect selective service classifications because they fail to fill out forms properly.

"The information they give us must be correct," Holt said. "It's twice as hard to correct a selective service error than to be sure you are giving the correct original information."

"Selective service numbers are

Nine to attend PR conference

Bob Baumstien, SIU chapter president, and a tentative total of eight members plan to attend the spring conference of the Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA) April 14-15 at the University of Oklahoma, Norman. "Careers in PR" is the conference theme. Representatives of many companies will be there to give job interviews, Baumstien said. The SIU chapter of PRSSA has 25 members.

invariably reported wrong. They either give their draft number or social security number but not their selective service number. There is a difference. All the student has to do is look at his draft card."

Holt doesn't see any change in his job with the advent of the all volunteer army.

"There will always be a selective service system no matter what type of army you have," Holt said. "According to Curtis Tarr, national selective service director, it will be on a standby basis dealing with national defense or manpower needs in the time of crisis."

The all volunteer army is viewed with mixed emotions by Holt.

"I used to think an all volunteer army was the answer," Holt explained. "But now I have serious reservations about it in the light of previous military coups in other countries."

"The only way I would endorse an all volunteer army would be if there were adequate safeguards from the civilian sector to prevent a military takeover."

"An all volunteer army will also tend to employ members of minority and culturally disadvantagged groups and this will delude us into thinking that somehow we have disposed of the problems of poverty and injustice. A person who is paid will perform his service to the highest bidder. This prospect scares me."

"Given the fact we will always have war and will always need manpower to fight the war, the only equitable way we have right now would be the all volunteer army, even with its defects."

In his day-to-day dealings with the local selective service boards Holt finds that most are not friendly with the students they classify.

"A lot of the boards are almost vindictive toward the people they try to draft," Holt explained. "When you deal with a large number of people it's easy to forget individual problems. I find myself falling into the same rut. I have to remind myself constantly that if I make a slip up, it could possibly cost a person two years of his life in the Army."

The most inquiries made to Holt concern keeping a 2-S deferment. Only two conditions must be met, according to Holt. A person must be a full time student during the academic year and must complete one-fourth of his college career every year.

Qualifying test for scuba diving set Wednesday

A qualifying test for the scuba diving class will be given at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Pulliam Pool for all students planning to take skin and scuba diving either summer or fall quarters.

Students who plan to enroll in the class are required to take and pass the test, according to course instructor Pete Carroll.

The test includes 15 minutes of treading water, a 300-yard crawl swim and a 45-foot underwater swim. Students who pass the test will be able to enroll in the class which eventually leads to a YMCA Scuba Diver certificate.

Both men and women are eligible for the course and may call 453-2575 for more information.

Gifts being accepted for banquet

Letters of appreciation and monetary contributions are now being accepted for the Glenn "Abe" Martin celebration being planned for April 29-30.

Martin, who retired last fall after 43 years service to Southern Illinois athletics, will be honored at a testimonial banquet, April 29, and at the SIU-Western Kentucky baseball game, April 30.

Letters should be written on business-size stationery. They will be presented at the banquet as a "message gift" to Martin.

Checks for the monetary contribution should be made out to the "Abe Martin Testimonial Fund." The money will be used to purchase an appropriate recognition, which will be presented to Martin during ceremonies prior to the baseball game.

Both the letter and fund contribution should be mailed to: Bill O'Brien, Chairman, Dept. of Recreation, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Ill., 62901.

Lambert signs 6-6 forward

NCAA gym may draw 14,000

By Jim Brown
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

AMES, Iowa—The hotel rooms are still half empty and the 14,000-seat Hilton Coliseum is unoccupied. But Harry Burrell, Iowa State sports information director, predicts a full house for this weekend's 30th annual National Collegiate Gymnastics Championships. The Cyclone ticket office has already sold over 3,000 advance tickets for the national affair and Burrell predicts a larger sale at the gate when the meet officially opens at 10 a.m. Thursday with the compulsory exercises.

Ed Gagnier, Iowa State coach and nine-year mastermind behind the school's gymnastic dynasty, feels his defending team champion Cyclones are rated as even favorites with four other schools in the eight-team field.

"This is probably the most balanced bunch of teams in history," Gagnier said. "Other nationals at the most had three schools with equally balanced teams."

Gagnier saw his 1970 squad fall to Michigan by a skimpy one-tenth-of-a-point margin. Cyclones took it all last year by almost three points. He later called the 1971 Iowa State group "the best college gymnastics team assembled in history."

The loss of Pan-American games performers Brent Simmons and Dave Butzman from the 1972 Cyclone team has removed Iowa State's super star label. Now Southern Illinois, New Mexico, Penn State and the University of Iowa are tabbed as even choices by Gagnier along with his Cyclones.

The absence of Big Ten team Michigan in the team competition comes as a slight surprise to some observers. The Wolverines had the third highest scoring average (161.362) in 1972, trailing only the Salukis (163.00) and Iowa State (161.56).

But darkhorse Iowa captured the conference title last month over Michigan due to strong compulsory exercises.

To qualify for the national meet a team must finish first in its conference meet.

Despite Southern Illinois national scoring lead on optionals, the Salukis point total during the Midwestern Conference meet (313.25) ranked fifth as compared to the eight participating teams totals in conference meets.

Iowa State (317.05) led the qualifiers while Penn State (317.00), New Mexico (316.00) and Iowa (315.25) ranked through fourth ahead of Southern.

Georgia Southern (306.10), Washington (296.15) and Air Force (294.55) round out the eight qualifying schools.

Southern Illinois fans can take heart on two accounts, however. Coach Bill Meade thinks his squad has greatly improved its compulsory exercises since the conference meet. If the Salukis make the team-finals Saturday afternoon, they will have the advantage of performing optional exercises. Compulsories and optional preliminary exercises constitute 50 per cent of the team score while Saturday's optional final make up the rest.

So as the town and Iowa State make final preparations for the NCAA meet, the 100 or so gymnasts here groom for what they call "adrenalin pumping days."

Golfers stop UM Rivermen.

The SIU golf team won its home opener against the University of Missouri-St. Louis, 364-402, Tuesday in West Franfort.

Saluki Geof Young led all golfers with a three under par-69. The rest of the Southern team scored as follows: Vito Saputo, 72-even; Richard Tock, two over par-74; Jay Wikenson, two over par-74; and Jack Olson, three over par-75.

Lynn Holder's men now will travel to Sewanee, Tenn. for the South Classic Invitational on Friday.

Following the weekend trip to the Mid-South, the Salukis will participate in two more invitationals, a triangular meet and a rematch with Missouri-St. Louis before the Midwestern Conference Championships in May.

Moorhead today

Danny Thomas beats a pickoff attempt during the first of three weekend games against Memphis State. Southern Illinois will host Moorhead State at 3 p.m. today. Austin Peay will be here for a 1 p.m. doubleheader on Thursday. (Photo by Nelson Brooks)

Strike wipes out Cincinnati baseball opener

The Cincinnati Reds, seeing no sign of a break in the major league baseball player strike, postponed Tuesday their 1972 National League opening game against the Houston Astros.

More than 50,000 fans had been expected Wednesday afternoon for the opener.

Meanwhile, the big league owners meet at 6 p.m. Tuesday near Chicago's O'Hare Field to hear a report on the status of talks with the striking Major League Baseball Players Association by John Gaherin, the owners' negotiator. No word on the outcome of the talks had been released by 10 p.m.

On Monday the owners rejected a proposal made earlier in the day by the players association which called for a 17 percent hike asked in pensions to come from the increased interest the pension fund is currently earning.

The delay of the Reds opener stirred hardly a ripple in Cincinnati.

Even the most avid fan appeared to realize postponement was in the cards. There was little reaction to the announcement by Francis L. Dale, the Reds' president.

No one would venture an estimate of the losses to the Reds, to the players or to concessionaires. Dale said the club itself was "willing" to take its share in withered gate receipts.

Pitcher Jim Merritt, Reds' player representative, said Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, would be in Cincinnati

Tuesday night for a meeting with the Reds' players.

The Reds' front office said date and details of an opening game would be announced after the strike ends. Under the original schedule Cincinnati would have been on the road after Wednesday's opener until April 10.

No decision was announced on the tickets held by fans for the season opener.

Some of Cincinnati's on-strike players worked out Tuesday on the artificial turf at the University of Cincinnati's football stadium.

Baseball players working out on a football field appeared appropriate. The temperature stood at a sunny, chilly 44 degrees.

Most players will be off the Cincinnati and Houston payrolls beginning Wednesday.

Black Hawks open NHL playoffs

Boston and Chicago are expected to take advantage of a new format for playoffs as the post-season bid for the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup begins Wednesday night.

Contrary to past years, the Nos. 1 and 4 teams in each division meet in the first round, which could cause sweeps, while the Nos. 2 and 3 teams take to the ice in toss-ups. The Boston Bruins, No. 1 in the East, open their best-of-seven series at home against the Toronto Maple Leafs, who finished No. 4, and Chicago's Black Hawks, who ran away with the West title, take a home rink advantage and a couple of stingy goalies against the Pittsburgh Penguins, who barely squeezed into the play-offs.

In the other East game, New York opens at home against Cup defender Montreal while in Minnesota, the North Stars meet the St. Louis Blues. All four series are best-of-seven.

Boston, knocked off by the Canadians in the first round last year, had injury troubles.

Center Derek Sanderson, who scored 25 goals this season, is suffering from an intestinal inflammation and is listed as uncertain. Star defenseman Bobby Orr, with a bad knee, and wing Ken Hodge, nursing a bruised ankle, are marginal. But center Phil Esposito who missed the last two regular season games because of pulled knee ligaments, is expected to start.

The Rangers, missing injured Jean Ratelle, held a 3-1-2 advantage over Montreal during the regular season.

The Black Hawks, who lost only three home games all season, defeated Pittsburgh five times and tied once this season.
