A hearing officer for the Illinois Fair Employment Practices Commission (IFEPC) has recommended dismissal of a 1972 sex discrimination complaint filed against SIU.

John W. Huffman, SIU legal counsel, said he received the notice Friday morning in the case involving Carolyn Weiss, former staff assistant in the cartographic laboratory. He said the IFEPC will decide whether to accept the hearing officer's recommendation in about three weeks.

Weiss joined the SIU faculty in 1970. She received notice in 1972 that her position would be terminated because of budget cutbacks. Weiss filed complaints with the IFEPC and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) charging SIU with sex discrimination.

She contended that her termination was not part of a budget cutback because male administrators had not been eliminated. Weiss also charged that she had been discriminated against because she was not allowed to change her contract from a term appointment to a continuing appointment as a male employee.

She also charged that the cartographic laboratory had not been eliminated as planned, and that her case had been transferred to the geography department.

HEW ruled in favor of Weiss in 1973 but the University filed a response and has not heard from the department since then.

The IFEPC hearing three years ago lasted 23 days with substantial evidence presented on both sides. Huffman said said the board was giving the candidate more time to consider.

The board scheduled the public meeting after receiving a letter from CEA. The letter, read by Linda Wilson, president of CEA, asked the board to call a special public meeting to explain its decision March 24 to eliminate 13 teaching positions for the 1976-77 school year.

The letter stated that members of CEA "strongly disagree" with the board's action. It stated that elimination of the Spanish instructor would keep district students from being exposed to a second language, and that elimination of the Director of In-Service Training would allow "less than qualified" teachers to get tenure and that the quality of education would be hurt by increased class size.

The letter also stated that the district teachers are "perplexed" about the board's inaction in trying to save the "overide of Gov. Daniel Walker's veto of the Full Funding Bill, which would have given schools the money needed to balance their budgets.

Superintendent Lawrence Martin defended the board, saying that it sent a letter to the governor and talked with state legislators about full funding.

Wilson told the board it should not view the letter as an attack. "It is not an attempt to get more money; it is an attempt to get together and talk about this as an educational community, not in our own individual bodies," she said.

After hearing Wilson, Board President Donald Tindall said the time to discuss budget matters is during the board's budget workshop in July. Board member Linda Branden asked the board to consider talking about the budget and teacher layoffs before July "in a room large enough for the public to attend."

"Surely, we are not going to wait until then to discuss teacher layoffs," she said. "We will lose some very good teachers.

Board member David Rosenthal said he viewed the letter as an attack on the board. He said CEA should prove that the quality of education would be hurt.

Board members James O'Donnell and Charles Reno favored the public meeting. Reno said, "We're working on a recommendation that is very flexible. Let's open it up to the public."

After unanimously passing the motion to call the public meeting, the board went into executive session. While waiting for the board to reconvene, Wilson told reporters CEA wants cooperation between the board and the teachers.

"If everyone working together," she said. "The teachers are not objecting to the teacher cutbacks. We have our own ideas and we want to share them with the board and the administration."
City Council to review fire protection contracts

By Tom Chesser
Daily Egyptian Writer

The City Council will review on Monday fire protection contracts which expire soon between the City of Carbondale and its surrounding townships.

City Manager Carroll J. Fry said at a news conference Friday he is going to recommend the council of the contracts' expiration dates and will make no recommendation for or against renewal of the contracts.

Fry said, "The city and the townships are currently paying on a per capita basis included in the contract. Fry said he was unhappy with the present contracts because the city's fire department costs were not evenly shared by all who contracted for fire protection. "Personally I don't think city fire equipment or manpower should leave the city limits," said Fry.

Annual fire department costs average several hundred dollars per capita. The City pays $100,000, Carbondale Township pays $40,000, Makanda pays a smaller amount.

Fry said he was worried about the evaluation of the fire department. He is going to the rating bureau, a group of fire insurance underwriters, at the Illinois Department of Commerce for the Illinois Department of Commerce. The department also wants to share school communications for the Illinois Department of Transportation.

Fair employment commission gets police bias complaint

By Dan Holmman

A complaint alleging discrimination against the Carbondale Police Department has been referred to the Illinois Fair Employment Practice Commission.

Sue Kolker, director of Communications for the Illinois Department of Labor, said in a news release that the complaint has been referred to the commission following an interview by the town's Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

"Like that approach because that way no one branch is dominant," Simon said. He addressed a meeting of the Parent-Teacher-Student Association of the school Thursday night.

Simon said he opposed the idea of complete funding of school districts by the federal or state governments. He said that by providing some of the funding, education, local communities would still have an input into the curriculum of their schools.

Advance warning needed to limit injuries, damage

By Scott G. Bandle

In dealing with a tornado the name of the game is warning. There is nothing that can be done to stop such a storm but you can speed the warning and then leave. They're hard to plot because tornadoes are not bounded within an hour before a tornado is expected to hit because people may not know of their shelters too soon, Alexander said.

Most tornados run on the ground for a while and can be plotted. Tornado sirens are not bound within an hour before a tornado is expected to hit because people may not know of their shelters too soon, Alexander said.

It's like the boy who cried wolf. It is important that people believe the warning sirens and they may not if there is too much time between siren and storm, he explained.

Sgt. Larry Hill of the Carbondale Police Department said the police station's main function during a storm is to serve as a referral agency. People call in tornado sightings and the information is relayed to the ESDA.

After a tornado hits, the department becomes a reactionary force, applying first aid, directing traffic and preventing looting.

Unlike the ESDA, which is underground, the Carbondale Police Station is exposed to tornado damage. Hill said if a tornado did strike the station, radio communications could be kept going with emergency generators and radios and walkie-talkies in the patrol cars.

SIU Security Police also lend a hand during a tornado. Before a storm hits, Hill said if a tornado warning were issued he would broadcast the warning, post the information at the weather teletype, the time, "he said.

The Midwest is now in the middle of its peak tornado season—March, April and May—although tornados can occur at any time of the year.

Robert Alexander, coordinator of emergency services, describes the work of the ESRA.

"Objects get flung outward at such speeds that pieces of straw can be driven through plate glass windows," he said.

Birwald said if conditions are right for tornado formation, the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., will issue a tornado warning.

Newcombe said if a tornado is reported and can be sighted by radar, the National Weather Service at St. Charles, Mo., will issue a warning.

"The frequency of taking safety precautions in the event of both warm and cold tornados is the same," he said.

Alexander advises that if a watch is issued, people should turn on their radios, television and listen for further information. He also suggests keeping an eye on the weather outside.

If a tornado warning is issued, Newcombe says, people should be prepared to take shelter in an appropriate place.

"If the sirens blow, or you see or hear it, you may have 30 seconds to five minutes to take cover," he said.

If the sirens do go off, Jones suggests going to the northeastern corner of a basement. If there is no basement, then the attic, a bathroom in a very small room or go to an automobile shelter. If you can't find shelter, he said, "face down in a ditch or ravine.

"If someone is in a car and spots a tornado, they should pull off and drive at right angles to the funnel. You should never try to outrun it," he said.

And if someone is in a car and spots a tornado, they should pull off and drive at right angles to the funnel. You should never try to outrun it, "he explained.

The department has enough men.

Lt. Marvin Brashwell said in the case of large gatherings at the SIU Arena or Student Center, the people in charge would be notified of an approaching tornado and they would be responsible for informing the audience.

SIU Security Police would also help the Carbondale Police and other agencies after a tornado hits, he said.

In an emergency, there will be help," Alexander said. "The citizens will not be left alone."

Housing safety officer keeps eye in the sky

By Peggy Sagona
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Ray Schlager, housing safety officer, has a full time concern with severe weather conditions and informing people how to protect themselves in case of danger.

"The eye on the sky" is Schlager's primary source for determining severe weather conditions. He keeps a radio beside his desk which is activated by the state police to inform him of bad weather conditions.

Schlager said that if an alert is issued over the radio, he calls a housing administrator to contact the on-campus living areas. In the event of a tornado warning, sirens sound a long, steady blast.

The warning sirens are operated from the Physical Plant or the Communications Building. When activated, sirens go off at Southern Hills, Evergreen Terrace, Small Group Housing the Physical Plant and near the center of campus by Morris Library.

Schlager said the most important thing to be concerned about during a tornado is flying glass.

In all single-student living areas, bathrooms are the safest place to be since residents are protected from flying glass. Schlager said the buildings are designed so there is "no way" the structures could come down.

The violent change in pressure accompanying tornados causes most of the destruction, he said. The high winds, made of reinforced concrete, have so much glass that pressure would be equalized almost immediately by the explosion of glass, sending the winds rushing through the building, Schlager said.

The Triads in University Park and the dormitories on Thompson Point have windows on both sides, although the pressure in the Triads may not equalize as fast, he said.

"It is our responsibility to give a warning with as much notice as possible," he said. "We wait until the last minute to give the warning, but the consequences are too dangerous.

"The main point is to be prepared so as not to be surprised or scared," Schlager said.

Robert Wence, manager of family housing, said residents of Southern Hills should take cover in the small interior rooms on the lowest level of the apartments.

"When there is a tornado warning someone opens the community room in the basement of Building 18," he said. "Those who can get to that room safely should do so.

Residents of Evergreen Terrace should stay in the kitchen areas or the bathrooms, Wence said. Residents of Elizabeth Apartments and University Court Apartments are instructed to go into the basement room.

Revising parking problems

By Terrence O'Sullivan

It is difficult to imagine that 10 years ago there were 5,000 to 6,000 motor-bikes and cycles in use on this campus; that a small billboard near Thompson Point proclaimed this the "motor-bike capitol of the United States," and that an undergraduate could commonly stop 10 miles more and find a parking space in less than 20 minutes, or closer than several blocks from where he needed to be.

That is, however, the way it used to be here, according to Clifton Andersen, the chairman of the 10 member Parking and Traffic Committee and professor of marketing.

Now there are nearly seven thousand cars with red decals competing for less than half that many eligible spaces. In fairness it must be said there is the Arena lot and the newly paved lot beyond the Health Service. Those two lots, however, are a long walk in the rain or cold if you need to be on the opposite side of campus.

Since there is a shortage of "convenient" parking spaces the Parking and Traffic Committee should recommend to President Brandt a method of either allotting decals in less than a two-to-one ratio of cars to spaces, or perhaps, running a shuttle bus between the distant lots and the campus via Lincoln Drive.

As it is now, students who must drive to campus from out of Carbondale often must walk farther after they park some than students who live near campus, drive.

Eligibility for red decals is met under present regulations by all seniors and juniors, by freshman and sophomores who live off campus, by freshman and sophomores who live on campus but work off campus, and freshman and sophomores who live on campus but drive "home" on weekends or during breaks.

To be ineligible for a red decal, in other words, you must be a freshman or sophomore who lives on campus, works on campus or not at all, and doesn't want to drive "home." As Augment Lemarschal, coordinator of the Parking and Traffic Office put it, "We've sold as many red decals as demanded.

The possibility exists the two hundred thousand plus dollars generated so far this year by decal sales and parking fines casts a favorable light on the present system. Whether or not this is the case, the present parking system is unfair to those students who drive considerable distances to attend SIU.

The Parking and Traffic Committee should study this problem and find a way to more fairly distribute parking privileges. The situation is almost certainly going to get worse and now is the time to do something about it.

Broadcast industry fears regulation

By Cheryl Debes

Associated Press Writer

Broadcast industry spokesmen say "dangerous government attitudes" towards regulating the industry's "freedom in fact" infringing on the First Amendment right to a free press.

Vincent Wasilewski, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, said a "bureaucratic nightmare" would be created by a court decision that requires the Federal Communications Commission to rule on programming format changes.

Regulation of programming constitutes "a First Amendment intrusion which we cannot tolerate," he said at the opening assembly of the NBA's 54th annual convention.

Wasilewski also cited the prohibition of cigarette advertising on radio and television as a "disturbingly punitive action against broadcasting." And the FCC's license renewal process keeps stations off the air for as long as one year, which can be jerked periodically if we show signs of getting out of line," he said.

In recent years, Wasilewski said, government attitudes toward the industry have "ranged from indifference to hostility." He called upon broadcasters to "become militant in order to match the influence of others in our society.

"In broadcasting, the day is over when a strong sales force, good engineering and imaginative programming are enough. In effect, you have another department at your station -- government," he told an audience of 3,000 broadcasters.

"If we are going to be effective with our government, then we have got to be tougher and more militant than we have been in the past," he said.

A member of the Board of Directors and a chief executive officer of the National Broadcasting Co. warned that the FCC's fairness doctrine was the "chief opening for those who would place themselves between broadcasters and the public.

Brown in 1980?

By Timothy LeGear

Student Writer

It's no secret that the United States is taking a beating, home and abroad, because the country's highest office is occupied by officials who are unfamiliar, unproven, unheralded and often unqualified personnel. The result is low moral and rising agathy of the people, which inevitably leads to internal devastation. The future of the country relies on motivation and identification of those who can solve the problems, avert others, and learn to live with the rest. This can only be accomplished by rejuvenating the people's faith in the nation's highest officeholders, beginning at the top.

It is apparent that the blight he is going to retain his position until 1980, only because of lack of a better choice, Americans must look to that year with faith in the up-and-coming Democrat from California--Gov. Edmund "Jerry" Brown, son of former California Governor, Governor Hiram "Pat" Brown.

Brown presents an impeccable record. Besides receiving a B.A. from the University of California, Berkeley, and graduating from Yale's School of Law, he attended a Jesuit seminary for three-and-one-half years. He later served as a member of the L.A. Crime Commission and also of the California Narcotics Rehabilitation Advisory Council. And prior to running for Governor in 1970, he was the Secretary of State of California.

After narrowly winning the gubernatorial election, he shocked the public by closing down the $1.4 million Governor's mansion by and selling the Governor's plane and limousine. He also reduced his staff's salary seven per cent and blocked a $15,500 raise for himself.

But Brown's appeal began to grow when the public became aware of his "anti-political" approach to handling political issues. Newsweek magazine reported Brown has mounted a full-scale war against the old orthodoxy that no public problem is beyond solution by money, technology and six-point programs. Brown says, "American Government must promise less, deliver more, and spend within its means."

Prognosticators may have predicted a more controversial public reception for the 38 year old bachelor, who is said to lack the "pizzazz" and charisma believed necessary to win an election. But Brown subsists on hard work and discipline. He and his staff work a regular 12-hour day. As for his accomplishments to date, he proudly refuses to speculate on his first year in office. He vetoed only 14.

The U.S. needs restored faith and new blood in the oval office. It needs to regain the respect of the other nations of the world. If California is any indication, America can look forward to an office free from the Democrats' usual weapon secret weapon, a candidate the people can trust more, rather than an alternative one they don't want.

Students trap deer in research study

By Dan Hofmann

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The deer that roamed Restricted Area 13 in the southwest section of the Crab Orchard Wildlife Refuge now forage through the clover fields undisturbed by cannon fire.

Cannons were used during the winter to pull a 40-40 foot net over the deer, allowing research assistants from SIU'S Cooperative Wildlife Research Lab to capture up to seven deer at one time. The captured were made to obtain data for an on-going study of the ecology of the white-tailed deer on the refuge.

Bill Beid, Ray Marshalla and Martha Hunt, graduate students in the SIU Department of Zoology, have captured, banded, tagged and tabled over 125 deer in the past two years. The project began in the early 1960s to study the socialization, productivity and food utilization of the deer.

Deer are drawn to the sight by spreading corn around the area. After trapping the deer and checking that no fires had started during the laupch, the researchers blindfold the deer.

Softball team faces NIU

Three losses in a row to the same team can breed dissatisfaction in any sport and it's no exception in softball.

The Saluki fast pitch softball team faces Northern Illinois University in a doubleheader scheduled for the softball field in Abe Martin Stadium, which is part of the recreation building on Grand Street. The first game starts at 6 p.m. The Salukis have dropped their last five games to Northern University, falling by a score of 13-2.

The Salukis have been outscored by 39-16.

Delores Neary, the Salukis' third baseman, is batting .375, and Pat Marucci is batting .333. Neary is also hitting a .438 average in the stolen base department.

Saluki third baseman Pat Marucci is tagged out sliding home in last Saturday's game against Indiana State. SIU lost the game, 7-1. Saturday, the Salukis take on Northern Illinois in a doubleheader, with varsity games at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. (Staff photo by Linda Hensler.)

Junior varsity has 17.

If Meyer can't play left field, she'll be moved to center field.

Despite the location of the game, Soccer Club President Jose Echenbar said, "We should be able to beat them here." In last fall's meeting against Illinois, the Salukis played them to a 4-4 tie.

SIU is coming off a 6-5 loss to Southeast Missouri State (SEMO) in Cape Girardeau, and last weekend's tie would even SIU's record at 1-1.

Soccer starts at SIU

The SIU Soccer Club will host the University of Illinois in their first home game of the spring season Saturday, at 2 p.m.

The game will be played on the south field of the area near Abe Martin field. McAndrew Stadium was unavailable for this game.

George Davis, SIU facilities director said the stadium will be used for the Women's Saluki Invitational Track meet which begins at 10 a.m.

"Varsity athletes come first, then intramural, and organized clubs come third," Davis said. Soccer is an organized club.

Even spring football practice has to bow out for the only women's track meet of the year at home. In the spring, track comes before football," Davis said.

The artificial turf in McAndrew Stadium gives the ball a more consistent bounce. McAndrew's outdoor track is a poor track.

Tennis squad in Tennessee

SIU Coach Dick Lefevere and his tennis-playing Salukis will be in Memphis, Tenn., Friday, for matches with Tennessee Tech and Middle Tennessee.

Saturday the Salukis will take on Memphis State. SIU does not play at home until April 20 and SIU-Edwardsville comes to town.

Saluki nine hammers Miami twice

By Dave Wieorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Make that five in a row for the Saluki diamondmen.

SIU baseball squad swept a doubleheader from the Redhawks of Miami of Ohio Friday afternoon at Abe Martin Field and clinched the four-game series.

Thirteen Salukis went to bat in the fourth inning of the second game and the result was seven runs in the inning. SIU collected seven hits in the inning and finished the game.

Rickey "Buster" Keeton started at shortstop Friday for the first time since he became the Salukis' third baseman in the second inning, his first of the year. Centerfielder John Howesd, connected for his third circuit of the season, scoring two runs in the sixth.

When asked where all the power is coming from, SIU Coach Rickey Jones just shook his head and said, "If they sure are hitting them out, aren't they?"

After pitching five innings and allowing only three hits, Tim Verpaele tired in the sixth. The Redhawks' hitting came from the soutimpse for seven hits and five runs. Jim Keller relieved Verpaele in the seventh inning and finished the game. Verpaele is now 3-1.

After a couple of SIU defensive blunders in the late innings, Murray got the last out of the game on a sparkling play at third. Dave Wieorek, for a hard hit grounder, lifted himself to his knees and threw back to secondbaseman Bert Newman for the force out at second.

This was the third time the twin bill was a big lighter. SIU did most of the damage in the second inning when they scored four runs on a two-run double by Steve Wright to score three players to the plate.

Pat Hankers led the off with a double into the left field corner. Designating hitter Wayne Rempe, pinch ran, scored to give the Salukis the early run over the slow-running Hankers and Murray promptly singled him home.

A double by Locascio and singles by Jim Reeves and DeCiccone produced four more runs. Hoesd hit a put down a bunt to squeeze Neil Flaim in from third base before an error scored the sixth in the top of the sixth inning.

Freshman Rickey Keeton improved his record to 4-0, despite breaking down and giving up three runs in the third inning to the Redhawks. Keeton remained in the game for the entire game.

"I got my curve working and hit them and hurt," Keeton said after the game. "When I got behind the batters, I tried to skip my fastball away from them and only got farther behind.

Lambert questions about athletic director position

By Dave Wieorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

SIU basketball Coach Paul Lambert said he is not really concerned about the athletic director position that will be vacated June 1 by Bob L. Hartzog when he becomes the new director at Georgia Tech on that date.

When asked if he has applied or will apply for the AD job, Lambert took several seconds before answering.

"I'm not trying to be coy," he said. "Let's just say I've been asked if I would be interested in the job.

Asked whether he is qualified for the AD job, Lambert said, "I really don't think I could handle the job. Everyone thinks they can handle it and they can't.

Lambert did not want to say much about the athletic director position due to the mid-point of the recruiting season. He said if he were to apply, the job might decide it wasn't for him or the administration might decide that they didn't want him.

"When we were in Florida I tried to throw my fastball hard to impress everyone. I learned quickly that you can't do that if you're going to be a good pitcher."

Concerning the three-run inning, it looked like Keeton just lost my concentration. I should be concentrating more. I had better control than what it looked like. I wasn't thinking about getting by them."

Keeton struck out five and walked four batters.

"The pitching was not that effective today," Jones said. "But they stayed out there and battled. We'll keep bringing them along."

Valley champs meet Thincads compete in triangular

By Mark Kazlowski
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

It could be billed as the "Battle of the Salukis" against the defending Missouri Valley Conference Outdoor Champions SIU at the defending Ohio Valley Conference outdoor champions Western Kentucky.

Host Murray State is the third team in the meet.

Western Kentucky was ranked 13th in the 1973 dual team rankings by Track and Field News while SIU was listed 12th.

SIU Coach Lew Hartzog termed the Hilltoppers a powerhouse.

"They have an outstanding track team year in and year out," he said.

One thing that could alter the outcome is the rash of injuries afflicting the Saluki thincads.

Sprinter Mike Kee has been ill, in the steeplechase and triple jump.

Mike Stipe had a few comments on Kee. "Kee should be okay to go by the Illinois all the distance runs, they aren't great, but they could be great."

Kee's teammate Mike Moore may be ready by the Illinois all the distance runs, they aren 't great, but they could be great.

SIU faces this same Miami team in a doubleheader Saturday, beginning at noon. Sunday SIU plays Quincy at 1 p.m. at Abe Martin Field.

Rigby Kevin Waldrop (1-3) will start the first game Saturday. Either Lefty Miller (1-4) or Steve Robinson (1-6) will hurl the second game.

Western Kentucky is extremely strong in the distance events. Hartzog in the same in all the distance runs they aren't great, they're super. They'll almost shut us out in the steeplechase of distance team.

The Hilltoppers also sport a pair of good long and triple jumpers, but Hartzog said he would go with his own. Philip Robins in the favorite's role in the triple jump.

He said it would be a tossup for first place in the long jump. "(Rick) Rock is really going to have to work to win it," he said.

The SIU coach also listed pole vaulter Gary Hunter and javelin thrower Bob Reggi as probable favorites in their respective events.

Murray State won't be standing around observing, however. Murray also has some fine distance runners and a triple jumper who has leaped 6 feet 6.675. Hartzog said the 440 and mile relay teams are also strong.

"I anticipate a very competitive track meet," Hartzog said.

The triangular will be the first in a series. The site of the meet will rotate each year with the first time SIU will host in 1978.

Before they leave we'll give them a program of what they should work on this summer.

Lambert also had a few comments about Mike Glenn's decision not to attend the Olympic tryouts this spring. "It was the same decision he had to make last year about the Pan American Games tryouts. Glenn was limited, hut he had a choice to make, and with his course of study (math) it would be difficult because courses are alternatives. If he missed a course it might take him a year to pick it up. I respect his decision," Lambert said.

Had Glenn gone to the tryouts and made the team, he would have had some development time with the high school coach, and with some good competition," Lambert said, "and then with a few college meet, they said they couldn't play. They just couldn't make it. We've had a couple of weeks of vacations."

"I respect Mike's honesty. A lot of guys wouldn't have done what he did."
