Hall ineligible to hold trustee office

Bill L. Hall

Enrollment status blocks chance at re-election

By Brian Gross
Staff Writer

Questionable enrollment status of Bill Hall, SIU-C student trustee, led the student trustee election committee to exclude Hall from running for re-election.

Hall appealed his case to the election committee at a closed hearing last night. The committee decided not to consider Hall eligible to run in the April 11 student trustee election.

Hall is currently enrolled but was withdrawn from the University for three weeks because of a late tuition payment.

"Basically all that happened was that I had to make a late payment, and now I'm paid up," Hall said.

Darrell Johnson, committee chairman, said the committee decided Hall was not enrolled at the petition deadline.

"We had to decide whether or not he was a student at a particular crucial point in time," Johnson said.

The committee requested the academic and disciplinary standing of each of the three student trustee candidates Monday from Jean Paratore, associate vice president for student affairs.

Two other candidates, Craig Jackson and Lisa Sproule, were okayed in Paratore's reply, but Paratore declared Hall ineligible, because he did not satisfy the requirement of being a currently enrolled student, Johnson said.

"The trustees received the by-laws when they pick up the petitions, and the by-laws clearly state that the candidate must be a student in good academic and disciplinary standing," Johnson said. "The information we got from Jean Paratore was that Bill was not a student."

Hall offered two documents as evidence in support of his case.

He presented one letter from Admissions and Records certifying his current enrollment at the University.

Hall presented another letter from Paratore to Roland Keim, assistant director for registration

Clean air approved

Sponsors estimate cost of stricter limits could top $50 billion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, cracking a 13-year legislative deadlock, approved a historic clean air bill Tuesday to cut acid rain emissions in half, reduce cancer-causing industrial pollution and attack smog choking more than 100 cities.

With Vice President Dan Quayle presiding, senators approved the bill and sent the legislation to the House, ending more than two months of floor debate and backroom negotiations with the Bush administration on a bipartisan compromise.

The Senate vote was the first major step by Congress since 1977 to strengthen the Clean Air Act, an effort that repeatedly stalled on Capitol Hill in the 1980's due to strong opposition from the Reagan administration.

Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine said the failure to act had allowed air pollution to worsen substantially over the past decade.

"We've had 13 years of statements and the air in some places has gotten dirty," he said. "Now we need a law to make the air cleaner, everywhere. This bill will do that. It dramatically expands and strengthens the clean air law and does it in the most cost-efficient manner possible."

While praising the bill, Mitchell also told reporters he would seek to toughen the bill in negotiations with the House.

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas said, "The Senate is about to make history

Research may protect coal industry from bill

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

Southern Illinois' coal economy could be devastated because of the clean air bill, but new research into the desulfurization of coal through the use of ethanol may save it.

Researchers from SIU-C and the University of Illinois are developing a system that treats coal under pressure with ethanol. The compression and the ethanol pull most of the sulfur out of coal, making the coal safer to the environment when burnt.

Anthony Young, associate dean for research in the College of Agriculture, said when the coal comes out of the desulfurization reaction process, it meets the standards of the Environmental Protection Agency.

Young said the primary drawback of the process is that it is slow. Right now the coal is desulfurized at the rate of one pound per hour, but researchers are still working to speed up the process.

Before a system like this can be marketed and sold, it needs to be able to produce about 40 pounds of coal an hour, Young said.

"This system has a lot of potential," Young said. "It's a relatively simple process that's inexpensive. It may do a lot of good for the environment."

This research may have come just in the nick of time.

The U.S. Senate approved the clean air bill Tuesday that limits smog, pollution and acid rain in the United States. The bill deals a particularly harsh blow to the

MAPP protesters 'drop dead'

By Phil Pearson
Staff Writer

At the sound of the monthly emergency siren test Tuesday morning, about three dozen members of the Mid-America Peace Project "died" in protest of activities they feel are harmful to the environment.

"Casualties" in the "die in" chanted and sang songs about the environment before collapsing to the sidewalk in front of the ramp on the east side of Faner Hall at the siren test.

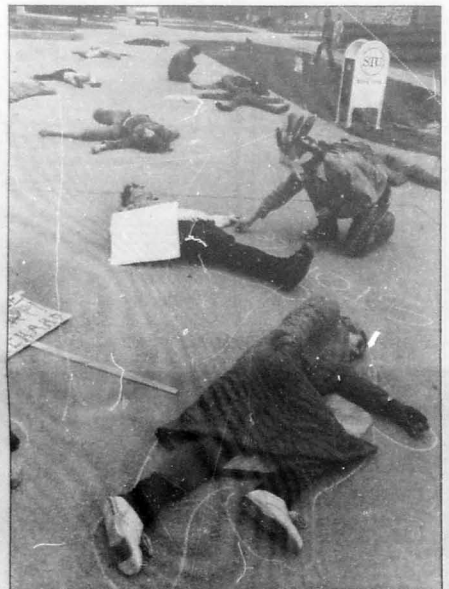

The MAPP demonstration in protest to what members call eco-cide, the destruction of the environment and abuse of people from many sources, especially big business and government.

John McHale of MAPP said, "The main crisis of eco-cide not only kills nature but it kills human beings."

McHale also handles public relations for the Student Environmental Center and attends many Earth First! activities.

According to McHale, eco-cide includes activities timber harvesting, air pollution and human rights violations.

Flyers passed out at the demonstration listed local and global issues of concern. Issues included in the list were, "drug hysteria," "the unacceptable presence of ROTC troops on campus," "the police brutality of Halloween '89," and "nuclear disarmament."

During the spirited singing and speaking before the "die in," McHale shouted "We as SIU students have resolved not to stand by and watch (eco-cide) happen."

After collapsing to the ground, some individuals drew chalk outlines of the bodies and penned

City unveils $21.5 million budget; train depot renovation proposed

By Nora Bentley
Staff Writer

Highlights of the proposed $21.5 million budget were presented by City Manager Steve Hoffner at Tuesday's City Council meeting.

Welcome signs at the city limits of Carbondale, extensions on West Sycamore and Iris Avenues, rubberized railroad crossings at Jackson and Oak streets, funds for sidewalk repair, the Mill Street underpass, and landscaping for the downtown area were some of the projects Hoffner emphasized.

Final action will be taken on the budget at the April 16 council meeting or at any special meetings that may be needed before the end of April. The budget must be approved before May 1.

Councilman John Yow proposed that the council consider additional funds for the renovation of the old Illinois train depot. Some funds for this had been allocated to the Carbondale Uptown, Inc., but Yow said more money may be needed.

He also said that several people had shown an interest in making the depot into a railroad museum.

Exterior work such as paint removal and roof repair is needed, Yow said. The cost is estimated at $15,000 to $20,000, he said.

Hoffner said the city is in the final stages of acquiring the building from the railroad. He said funds could come from projects such as Christmas lights for the downtown area and from the uptown budget.

Mayor Neil Dillard, added that the budget is always subject to change.

In other business, Hoffner was

Rules committee cuts timeouts in basketball

DENVER (UPI) — College basketball teams will be limited to three timeouts in televised games next season in an effort to speed up the final minutes, the NCAA rules committee announced Tuesday.

The NCAA allowed four timeouts per team this season.

The committee also decided that with the 10th foul of each half, players will shoot two shots instead of one-and-one. The changes came after Ed Steitz, the secretary-editor of the rules committee, called the final three minutes of a game "an eternity."

"These are attempts to minimize the time it takes to play the ballgame," Steitz said Tuesday.

The nine-man committee, chaired by Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps, said that taunting, baiting or undesirable language on the part of a player would result in a technical foul.

"This includes gesturing, taunting, shaking a finger at, or questioning his birthright," Steitz said. "All that kind of thing does is lead to fighting."

Steitz said the rule stemmed from the "totally undesirable" language used on the court.

The committee refused a move to change the 3-point shooting line from its current 19 feet-9 inches to the 20-6 used in international competition. Teams, however, will be allowed to experiment at the longer distance.

"Shooting accuracy (from 3-point range) has fallen from 38.6 percent to 36.6 percent over the last three years," Steitz said.

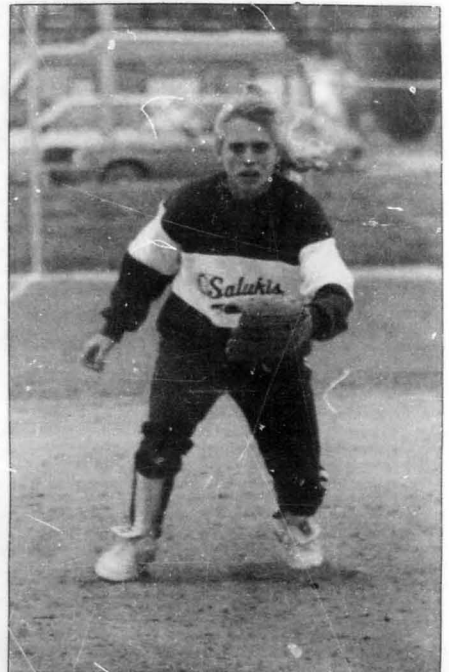

"The committee feels that the college game has never been more exciting, as evidenced by the 30 games in the 1990 Division I Men's Basketball Championship that have been decided by five points or less.

"We think that at this time there is no reason to alter the distance."

The rule in which a coach is ejected after his team receives three bench technical fouls remains.

Other changes for next season include: A player fouled on an unsuccessful 3-point field goal attempt will receive three free throws; the 45-second clock will not be reset when a blocked shot goes out of bounds; a player may grasp or hang on the rim only if fouled or to avoid injury to himself or another player; only four players from each team may line up on the lane during a foul shot; the channels on the ball may be deepened and widened (such as the ball used in the NBA) to accommodate better ballhandling and better shooting.

Steitz said five items were listed as "points of emphasis" for officials next season. They are coach and play decorum; rough low-post play; principle of verticality; palming the basketball; and the charge-block call.

Salukis split with Evansville

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

After losing the first game of a doubleheader Tuesday at Evansville, the Saluki baseball team avoided a sweep with an 11-7 victory in the nightcap.

Evansville defeated the Salukis 10-6 in the first game.

Junior right-hander Tom Strabavy (2-1) picked up the victory for the Salukis in the second game.

Strabavy pitched five innings and yielded six earned runs on eight hits. He struck out two and walked five.

Junior right-hander Dale Meyer pitched the final two innings and shut out the Aces on two hits. Meyer had two strikeouts during his stint.

Brian Gibson (0-2) was the loser for Evansville. Gibson pitched only three and one-third innings, yielding nine Saluki hits.

Evansville scored three runs in the bottom of the second and led 3-0. But the Saluki offense came alive with an eight-run third inning. The big blow was a grand slam home run by senior shortstop Dave Wrona. The Salukis led 8-3.

SIU-C (19-4) added three more tallies in the fourth inning. Senior right fielder Brad Hollenkamp hit a two-run homer and SIU-C led 11-3.

Evansville scored a run in the fourth and three in the sixth, but came up short against the Salukis.

In the first game, Evansville jumped out to an early 5-0 lead and never looked back.

Sophomore right-hander George Joseph (2-1) was the losing pitcher for SIU-C.

In four and two-third innings, Joseph yielded four earned runs on nine hits. He struck out four and walked two.

Brent Baker (5-2) was the winning pitcher for Evansville.

Baker went the distance allowing six earned runs on eight hits. He struck out two and walked four.

The Salukis committed an uncharacteristic four errors.

With Evansville leading 5-0, the Salukis attempted to come back with three runs in the fourth inning.

Kurt Endebrook and Doug Shields drew walks to begin the inning. Endebrook scored on an RBI single by Tim Davis. Shields scored the Salukis' second run of the inning on an RBI single by Brad Hollenkamp to make the score 5-2.

One out later, the Salukis scored another run on a single by Matt Giegling driving in Davis to cut the Aces' lead to 5-3.

But Evansville scored five runs in the fifth. Two errors in the inning hurt the Salukis.

Pat Schulz, Brian Gibson and Sal Fasano each homered in the game for Evansville.

SIU-C scored three times in the sixth on a two-run home run by Hollenkamp and a solo homer by Dave Wrona cutting Evansville's lead to 10-6. But SIU-C couldn't get any closer.

Hollenkamp went five-for-seven in the doubleheader, with two home runs and five RBIs.

Wrona went four-for-seven with two home runs and five RBIs.

The Salukis play at 3 p.m. Thursday at St. Louis.

SIU-C woman golfer named Gateway-Golfer-of-the-Week

By Kevin Simpson

Senior Lisa Johnson garnered Gateway Conference Golfer-of-the-Week honors for the second consecutive week.

Johnson fired a 78 in the Southwest Missouri State University Co-ed Invitational. Her score was the lowest among women golfers. She tied junior Britt Pavelonis for the best score on the co-ed 10-member Saluki squad.

Her score marked the first time that a woman has broken 80 on the Highland Springs Country Club in Springfield, Mo.

The Glendale, Wis. native

Jennifer Brown named Gateway Pitcher-of-the-Week

Saluki senior Jennifer Brown was named Gateway Conference Pitcher-of-the-Week for last week. Brown went 2-1 with a 0.33 ERA to win the award.

Brown, the only senior on the Saluki softball team's pitching staff, shut out 12th-ranked Missouri 1-0 in the championship game of the Mizzou Invitational Sunday afternoon and was named MVP of the Invitational.

Brown also downed Southeast Missouri State when she threw a four-hit shutout in the Dawgs' 4-0 victory March 27.

Brown is 5-2 with a 1.21 ERA for the spring season.

Softball team to play Eastern today

EIU led by preseason all-conference pick Martha Wendt

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

The SIU-C softball team, coming off the Mizzou Invitational championship, opens Gateway Conference play at 3 o'clock today against Eastern Illinois in Charleston.

The 15-6 Salukis defeated national powerhouses Indiana, Missouri and Louisiana Tech last weekend on their way to the championship in Columbia, Mo.

Eastern brings a 6-4 record into the contest. They were picked to finish sixth in the preseason coaches' poll, while the Salukis were picked fourth.

In the series' history, the Salukis are down 15-23. Last year the Dawgs went 2-2 against the Panthers, losing 3-1 in the Gateway Conference Tournament.

The Panthers are under the direction of new head coach Kathy Arendsen.

Arendsen hopes to return the Panthers to the success they enjoyed two years ago. Before last year's 13-23 record, Eastern had won three consecutive regular-season conference titles.

The Panthers are led by preseason all-conference pick, Martha Wendt, who led Eastern's pitching staff with a 1.24 ERA last year to land her in a tie for third in conference pitching. This year Wendt's ERA has fallen to 2.45, while posting a 2-1 record.

Left-handed pitcher Jill Richards also has compiled a 2-1 record for the Panthers with a 1.64 ERA.

Offensively, Eastern is sparked by the bat of outfielder JoAnn Barnes.

Barnes has been on fire the last four games, going 10-14 at the plate and driving in six runs. Her season batting average is .483.

The Saluki pitching staff was a big question mark for coach Kay Brechtelsbauer at the beginning of the season, but the staff has come on strong for the Salukis.

Sophomore Dede Darnell posts a 6-1 record, while compiling a 1.23 ERA. She has thrown three shutouts and has completed four of her eight starts.

Senior Jennifer Brown is 5-2 on the spring season. Opponents have batted a mere .179 against Brown, who holds a 1.21 ERA.

Trojan candidates share their views

Student body has the power, Contile says

By Richard Hund
Staff Writer

Michael Contile stresses the representation of all students under the Trojan party if elected Undergraduate Student Government body president on April 11.

Contile, a 20-year-old junior in pre-law and speech communication from Des Plaines, said the USG president must know how the system runs while listening to the needs of the students.

"The student body is the true power, the true force behind student government," he said. "We need a student government that's going to stand up to administrators for what the students want, not for what (the USG president) wants."

Contile, currently a student senator in academic affairs, has been involved with USG for nearly a year. He serves as president of Gamma Beta Phi, an honor society of 1,600 members, and as a member of the national executive committee that oversees all honor societies.

He also serves as president for the Society of Creative Communication and is a member of Alpha Tau Omega.

Contile said the Trojan party, the largest of the four parties based on senatorial count, picked issues that express the interests of all students, including international, black, athletic and Greek students.

"This is what the majority of

the students want," he said, "and we're here to represent them fairly and equally."

"We've worked with every kind of student on campus, and we're there to listen to their wants and needs."

This representative policy would be used especially in bills of utmost importance to students.

"I will veto any bill that is not in accordance with what the students want," Contile said. "If the students want it, they should get it."

Three student athletes are running for the senate as Trojan party candidates, and Contile said the party is "totally in support of athletes."

"The students want the football team," Contile said. "Even if we lost money, what about school spirit? It's an important integral part of the University."

"We're here to get results for the students, and that's the most important thing," he said.

V.P. hopeful: Student awareness needed

By Richard Hund
Staff Writer

Brian Hawkins, vice-presidential candidate for the Trojan party, wants students to learn more about their government and become involved.

"Students need to know USG (Undergraduate Student Government) is created by the student and for the student in order for them to get help," Hawkins, a current member of the student welfare commission, said.

The Trojan party, along with three other parties, is vying to win the USG elections on April 11.

USG should make students aware of their government by starting at the "grass roots level," Hawkins said.

"USG needs to tell incoming freshman that there is an Undergraduate Student Government for them," he said, "(but) we want all students to know about USG."

Hawkins said exposure to the government gives students the frame of mind to get more involved.

This lack of involvement may explain the low election turnout, he said, in which approximately 10 percent of the students vote.

"The more people that know what you're doing (in government), the more support you have," he said, "and the more power you have."

A column in the Daily Egyptian would reach those students who cannot come to the student government office, he said.

Hawkins, a 21-year-old junior in political science from Bowling

Brian Hawkins

Brook, is involved with ROTC and Alpha Phi Alpha. He also belongs to the Student Programming Council Springfest committee as well as being a Miss Ebony coordinator.

Two parties get warnings

The Trojan and Progress parties, both running in the April 11 elections, received written warnings from the election commission Tuesday night for illegal campaign practices.

Mykal V. Lee, election commission member, found each party placed more than one poster in the same location, which violates specific campaign guidelines.

Kris Fab'ian, Trojan campaign manager, also wore campaign buttons in the Undergraduate Student Government office, which remains neutral ground during campaigns, Tami Todoroff, head of the election commission, said.

Trojan's platform and goals

- Incorporate a date-rape hotline.
- Establish cultural centers.
- Establish a non-traditional student day care program in the Recreation Center.
- Reduce international students' fees.
- Provide equal funding for students other than just registered student organizations.
- Incorporate a biweekly USG newsletter in the Daily Egyptian.
- Provide support and representation for all athletic programs.
- Support environmental programs on campus.
- Extend hours in computer lab (funded by USG).
- To pay attention to the students' every need.

Parking problems need fresh approach

THE INFAMOUS TRAFFIC and parking committee made a wise decision last week when it opened up 37 parking spaces to vehicles with blue decals.

That means 37 less cars with red decals will be allowed to park on campus. A little like musical chairs, except only University faculty (blue stickered people) got to play this time.

Parking has been perceived as a problem at the University for quite awhile. While solutions are much easier sought than implemented, the facts have not changed.

PARKING IN THE LOT next to Faner for a class in Faner, for example, would be prime parking. But parking in the Arena lot, the one lot on campus that does not discriminate, always is an option when the Faner lot is full. And why not park behind Lesar Law Building once the lot next to the Communications Building is full?

To members of the University community who are fed up by talk of Arena parking, please decide which walk is longer: The one from home to campus, or the one from campus to campus.

THE MOVE TO GRANT faculty 37 additional parking spaces may force some students to whine even louder. Or it may drive some students to seek viable solutions.

Students who live on campus do not need to park their vehicles outside their dormitory door. Parking on the edge of campus would leave more spaces for students who must drive to campus.

But what about those student who live on campus but work off it? The University's transit service could be put to good use. You know the old jingle: Let your fingers do the walking...

STUDENTS LIVING next to campus are asking for a longer wait driving to class than walking. In fact, students who must drive to campus and must also park in the spot closest to their class also are asking for a longer wait than the time it takes to walk from the Arena to any building on campus. Ask and ye shall receive.

DEMANDING that more fields and woods be dug up to plant a parking lot is an irreversible solution to a not so irreversible problem.

Suddenly, it seems that all the talk over the years about the University parking problems has been misinterpreted. Although parking on campus is annoying, it need not be. Resolving to walk distances up to 15 minutes—and it can be done—may put an end to the parking "problem."

Then, some people may prefer whining to walking.

Satanic music gets exorcized

By Mark Russell
Los Angeles Times

New York's Catholic Bishop O'Connor describes rock music as "satanic" and says that several exorcisms have been performed there recently. I know about Ed Koch being driven out of City Hall, but, what else?

The bishop-approved exorcism procedure involves tying the rock-possessed victim to the bed and forcing him or her to sing "Feelings" in Latin.

If that doesn't work and the person's head is still spinning 360 degrees as she growls obscenities and vomits a green torrent, she is locked in a room where the only sound is Jim Nabors singing.

Often, the growling and the vomiting bear an astonishing resemblance to a recording by the group, Twisted Sister.

Authorities have also discovered that when copies of Rolling Stone magazine and Louisa May Alcott's "Little Women" are placed under an ultraviolet light, dirty limericks will appear.

All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. ### Rec Center users to blame for impair

The Student Recreation Center provides a variety of physical activities to the students here at SIU. In one day the Rec Center averages between 4,000 and 5,000 participants. Although not each one of the persons are destructive beasts, a good percentage can be described this way. Most people participate in one of three activities: basketball, aerobics and weightlifting. The last seems to receive the most damage by this destructive percentage.

A recent article in the DE portrays the administration as negligent and irresponsible. But in this case, the student body seems to be the culprit. The reason given for the condition of the weightroom and the method by which that equipment was purchased was greatly misleading.

The weight room—though not perfect in condition—is much better off than the article reflected. A protective maintenance schedule is implemented nightly. This includes preventative maintenance such as tightening, lubrication and general cleaning seven days a week. A new, more comprehensive schedule has been in effect since January. All this has kept the weight room very operational. Repairs are costly and take time to implement due to the fact that parts must be shipped in from Iowa.

The actual reason why the machines are in disrepair is very basic: an undisciplined, abusive and untrained user. I use the facility daily and have observed perpetual abuse that no machine was designed to withstand. A few of the machines such as the total hip (center bolt) have design flaws, but they already are being corrected. Abuse to these machines only complicates repair. Ripping off out-of-order signs to increase one's testosterone level is as helpful to the machine as a shotgun enema.

The lengthy method used to obtain the new equipment was also reported in a misleading manner. First, a committee of advisers was formed to help the administration make proper choices. This was made up of weightlifters from all areas including bodybuilding, powerlifting and general fitness. Timely letters of justification had to be written by the coordinator to defend the choices of the advisers. With 90 percent of the Rec's lifters being general fitness, most materials ordered fit that type of function. Special machines which are not used by the average user also were granted, such as the power rack and the smith machines.

Generally there has been nothing but praise of the fine facility on our campus. However, if the continual abuse is to be endured, materials and programs provided by the Rec Center will be confined due to budget restraints. If a few students want to whine, they can help the situation by controlling their hormone flow or driving to Iowa to buy replacement parts for us.—Thomas H.R. Cox, senior administrative student supervisor, assistant weight room supervisor.

Greek system not liable for society's problems

It must be nice for the Daily Illini, task forces of all kinds and the University to have something like the Greek system to blame everything from A to Z on. The Greeks have become the scapegoat for everything short of murder and rape, and from involuntary manslaughter to stealing candy from babies.

Why is it that none or very little of the good things that Greeks do get publicized? The bad things get front page headlines. Yet the philanthropies, blood drives, recycling and the days we spend at the Special Olympics hardly get a half square space on page 30, if that. I'd like all of you who are in opposition of the Greek System to think about this. It will require an open mind so it may be hard for some of you.

It is the opponents of the system who are trying to destroy it. They will not succeed in any way, shape or form. We won't let them. It is the people who don't know anything about the system who are bashing it. It is the ones who never gave it a chance who are trying to make it look bad.

Well I have 1 news for you. You don't have to be a Greek to drink, get plowed and fall out of a 3-story building. You don't have to be Greek to rape women. This was proven in the Lipscomb DNA trial. There are worse evils in the world other than the Greek system. And it is by no means an evil.

The system at the U of I is the largest in the United States, and we are going to keep it that way. Also, the Greek system adorns colleges all over the state of Illinois and the United States.

We pay for tuition, housing, food and entertainment just like everyone else who goes to college. Yet we are experiencing restriction after restriction, some of which violate our basic fundamental constitutional rights.

Know that terrible things like rape happen. Unfortunately, sometimes members of the system are the perpetrators. But keep in mind that members of churches, city governments and your local knitting club commit crimes too. There are a few bad apples in every bunch, but that is no reason to destroy all the good of an institution.

It's time the individual houses and chapters as well as the system band together to combat this image that is being thrust upon us by the task forces, the University and the press. It is time to start fighting the evils that have befallen us and bring the system back up to its well-deserved strong position. Perhaps the public and the University could help if the negative press was curbed and the positive issues brought forth. Going Greek was the best decision I have ever made.—Kyle T. Kirts, senior, Liberal Arts and Sciences, University of Illinois - Champaign.

Quotable Quotes

"Boy, I could really go for some chow mein." George Barr's comment after fully recovering from a 15-minute lapse in spontaneous breathing. Thirteen minutes after his doctor declared him dead, Barr surprised a nurse cleaning up the room so the family could pay their last respects. Barr, an 82-year-old amateur magician from Oakland, N.J., apparently completed what Harry Houdini only promised to try.

and records, that rescinded the cancellation of Hall's registration. The letter was dated the same day as Paratore's letter declaring Hall's ineligibility. "It's interesting that there's one letter saying (I am) withdrawn, while there's another letter saying I'm paid up," Hall said. Hall also continued to attend classes during the time he was withdrawn with permission from his instructors and his dean, he said. Though Hall was given the opportunity to offer evidence in support of his case, the committee decided to exclude him during its contemplation and voting. Hall said he is referring his appeal to Harvey Welch, vice president for student affairs. "I'm optimistic because I'm confident that the office of Admissions and Records will confirm to the vice president of student affairs that I'm enrolled for at least half the time during the semester in which the election is held, as regulated by article 1-101 of the student trustee election laws," Hall said. Hall's wife Susan said it was clear that he intended to re-enroll or else he would not have picked up the paperwork to re-enroll. "It's easy to say, 'Why didn't you get back in sooner?'" Susan Hall said, "but it's not that simple. It took us three weeks (to come up with the money for the payment), and I don't think that's an unreasonable amount of time." The letter from Paratore stating Hall's ineligibility was written on Friday, before the information was requested by the committee, Johnson said. However, the letter was dated Monday and submitted by her secretary on Monday. Johnson said Paratore has been out of town since 4:30 p.m. Friday at a convention. The reply included academic standing information for a candidate Paratore presumed would run, but who did not file a petition, he said. This violated the Buckley Amendment, which says information on individual who do not sign releases cannot be given out, Johnson said.

Southern Illinois coal economy and other states with high-sulfur coal. The bill requires a 10-million-ton reduction of sulfur dioxide emissions by the year 2000, reducing the toxic emissions that produce acid rain by more than 50 percent. Southern Illinois, which produces 85 percent of all coal in Illinois, yields coal with a high level of sulfur dioxide. If the bill is signed into law, coal production in Illinois will be decreased by 38 million tons a year, cause the loss of 22,000 jobs and cost the state up to $745 million a year in clean-up costs, a report from the Illinois Corn Growers Association said. Besides the economic devastation to mine workers, and other coal industry employees, Illinois taxpayers will have to pay enormous costs to clean up the coal. State Sen. Jim Rea, D-Christopher, said he hopes the desulfurization project will help the future of coal production in Illinois. Rea said he was working to secure a $492,000 grant for the University and the U of I to keep the desulfurization project alive. "The desulfurization process is pivotal to the future of Illinois coal, agriculture and ethanol," Rea said. "It would protect thousands of jobs in the coal industry, provide farmers with a new market for corn and create new jobs in the ethanol industry." Four years ago, the General Assembly approved a $1 million grant to initiate the desulfurization efforts. "Approval of the new grant for further coal desulfurization research would be an investment in the future of Illinois and the future of our area," Rea said. If approved by the legislature, the grant money would come through the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs. Desulfurizing coal through the use of ethanol is only one way in which ethanol is being used to rescue the Illinois economy. U.S. Sens. Paul Simon, D-Makanda and Alan Dixon, D-Belleisle, co-sponsored an amendment mandating large cities use ethanol fuel in the winter months, reducing toxic carbon dioxide emissions from cars. The ethanol amendment, expected to boost the Illinois corn economy, may offset some of the economic devastation Illinois may suffer as a result of the clean air bill.

slogans on the pavement with chalk as passersby watched. Robert Cashon, a senior in recreation management, said he thought the demonstration would prompt awareness of environmental problems among the student body. "I think the big problem is apathy. (Citizens) are making their money and don't see past that," he said. Another spectator, Loie Morris, freshman in political science, said she was impressed with the demonstration. "This is a great. It's a great start to let everybody know what's wrong," she said. Another student onlooker spoke soberly in explaining his observations of the activity. Joe Raycraft, a senior in economics from McHenry, said, "I think it's great that someone has the guts to stand up and say something. "Most of us were raised to get what we could and be successful in our parents' eyes," he said, explaining why he thinks many people aren't involved in action on behalf of the environment. After the scheduled demonstration outside, the group made an impromptu trip through the Student Center and up to the administrative offices to protest the McDonald's restaurant that could be replacing H.B. Quick's this fall. T.J. Rutherford, a departmental business manager in the Student Center, said contract negotiations with McDonald's are underway and construction on the restaurant should begin this summer and be completed by mid-August. MAPP was formed in the early 1980s, McHale said, but went dormant several years ago. The organization has been rejuvenated in the past year, he said.

given authorization to accept the offer of Coldwell Banker Havens, Inc. for the city-owned Tower Road property. Councilman Keith Tuxhorn, proposed a stipulation of allowing the land to be divided into eight lots only, but there wasn't a second for the motion. Carbonale fair days for the Sunset Concerts Series and "Arts in Celebration '90", in Lenox, Turley Park and Evergreen Park respectively, were also approved despite opposition of several citizens and Yow.

Councilman John Mills said there haven't been any problems with the event in the past. "It's a situation where people will always disagree." He also pointed out that during one year when the resolution wasn't passed the events nearly failed.

with the passage of the clean air bill. We will be laying down a marker that future generations will look back upon and say, thank you." Efforts to tighten the bill—particularly automobile exhaust provisions—could provoke a showdown with President Bush, who says he will veto any bill that costs industry too much. Senate sponsors estimate the stricter emission limits on cars, factories and coal-burning power plants will cost the economy $21 billion a year, on top of $32 billion now spent by industry on pollution control. Industry groups say the bill actually will cost $46 million more. Some Senate opponents said the bill has too high an economic toll. Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., said he could not support it because its acid rain provisions would devastate his home-state coal industry. "Clean air need not be bought with reduced economic growth, job losses and human suffering," he said. Environmental activists expressed unhappiness the bill does not go farther. "This is not a bill that will achieve healthful air quality across the country," said Richard Ayres, chairman of the National Clean Air Coalition. Ayres said the coalition would work for stronger legislation in the House. In the House, action continued on parallel legislation with members of the House Energy and Commerce Committee voting 43-0 to adopt an important compromise on curbing toxic industrial emissions. The House is expected to act on its bill by early summer, leading to a House-Senate conference to set the shape of final legislation. Whatever its final form, the legislation will touch every American's pocketbook through higher utility bills, increased auto and gasoline costs and other effects rippling out from pollution controls affecting industries ranging from coal mining to petrochemicals to the neighborhood dry cleaner.

New York comedian to use musical talents for laughs

By Stephanie Steiner
Staff Writer

New York comedian Paul Venier will play musical jokes tonight at the SIU-C Comedy Cellar.

Venier started his career in the entertainment field during the 1970s as a member of the rock 'n' roll band "Salty Dog."

One night after the band's show, Venier, from Long Island, N.Y., went into a local bar on the New Jersey shore and started playing the piano for a less than enthusiastic crowd. Shortly after this performance, Venier landed a nightly gig.

He started using comedy in his performances to gain a greater audience. The result was Venier's musical-comedy show.

As his popularity grew among the bar's audiences, Venier increased the length of his show to four hours with no breaks — not even to go to the bathroom.

Venier increased the amount of comedy in his routines and created a full-time comedy show, which he now performs five nights a week for comedy clubs all over the East Coast, including the "Improv" and "Catch a Rising Star," both in N.Y.

Student health insurance fee hike on agenda at USG meeting tonight

By Richard Hund
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Government will vote on a proposed rate increase of student health insurance at 7 tonight in Ballroom D of the Student Center.

The rates for Blue Cross/Blue Shield would be raised from $44.50 to $72.57 for fall and spring semesters and from $26.75 to $45.29 in the summer.

These figures differ from those offered by Sam McVay, health service director, which would raise fall and spring semester fees to $109.50 and summer semester to $65.75.

Psychiatric care and lower annual coverage amounts, which McVay's figures included, were not included in USG's proposal, Tim Hildebrand, USG president, said.

Expanded coverage under USG's proposal includes annual coverage limits raised from $50,000 to $100,000; accidental death and dismemberment increased from $3,000 to $10,000; and campus insurance to cover out of area claims.

Blue Cross/Blue Shield claim they have lost about $657,000 on SIU-C as of March 27, 1990.

Freight train hits student

By Chris Walka
Staff Writer

Patrick G. Robinson, a 31-year-old University student with an undecided major, was hit early Tuesday by a southbound freight train by the traffic crossing at SideTracks bar, Carbondale police said.

Robinson was hit about 12:10 a.m. Tuesday morning, Police said. He was immediately taken to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, where upon being stabilized, was transported to Barnes Hospital in St. Louis, a hospital spokesman for Memorial said.

A spokesperson for Barnes said Robinson was listed in serious condition and was in the hospital's intensive care unit.

A Carbondale Police spokesperson said Robinson was apparently dancing on the railroad tracks and was waving his arms at the train when it struck him. The spokesperson did not know if Robinson was under the influence of alcohol.

according to the agenda. The company has not asked for any increases since 1987 and must cover the inflation rates in that time, McVay said in a previous Daily Egyptian article.

In other business, USG will decide whether to impeach six senators for missing more than two senate meetings in the last academic year.

Classical guitar ensemble to perform at Student Center

By Tracy Sargeant
Staff Writer

Before television or radio the music of Bach, Beethoven, Mozart and many more composers delighted, enthralled and entertained the masses.

The SIU-C Classical Guitar Arts Ensemble hopes to keep the classical memory alive by reviving the music of the past.

The group will perform from 11:45 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. today in the Old Main Restaurant of the Student Center.

Gregg Goodhart, president of the Classical Guitar Arts Ensemble said the SIU-C Guitar Ensemble class may be confused with the Classical Guitar Arts Ensemble. But, he said the Arts Ensemble is more or less an extension of the class, which is directed by Joseph Breznikar.

Goodhart said the Arts Ensemble was recently approved as a Registered Student Organization.

"Last semester someone mentioned the fact that we should get a group together, but we had no idea we were going to become a RSO," Goodhart said.

Breznikar said it was through the dedication and love of the guitar that the Arts Ensemble formed.

"The group wants to show that there is another side to the guitar, as opposed to rock music," Breznikar said. "In being an RSO, the group hopes to raise enough money to attract artists from outside the University."

Goodhart said one of the group's goals was to raise enough money to travel to Washington, D.C., in April to see Breznikar, adviser for the arts ensemble, in concert.

"Breznikar took a sabbatical in 1988 and wrote 12 études, which are study pieces for guitar," Goodhart said. "He is going to world premiere all of the collection, along with other artists, at the Kennedy Center."

Breznikar, who has played at musical festivals around the world, said this is a great opportunity for the classical guitarist.

"This is a wonderful experience and should be a good platform to present the études," Breznikar said. "The last time technical études for the classical guitar were premiered was in 1929. This will have an important impact for classical guitarists."

"I am happy for the group and hope they have a lot of success," Breznikar said. "This is a big plus to have a group of young people involved with classical guitar."

Goodhart said the arts ensemble is open to anyone interested in playing the classical guitar. The only set requirement to be in the group is to have a classical guitar, which is an acoustic guitar with nylon strings.

"It doesn't matter how good the person is," Goodhart said. "We can set them up with lessons and bring them up to the level of the rest of the group easy. You don't have to be a music major, just have an interest."

Goodhart said one of their basic interests in becoming an RSO was to promote and raise interest in the guitar program at SIU-C.

"People don't know that there is a guitar program at SIU-C. They know you can major in piano or flute, but don't realize you can major in guitar," Goodhart said. "We have a very good program."

Goodhart said one main difference in classical guitar playing is that you use your fingers instead of a pick.

"Each of your fingers is a different instrument," Goodhart said. "It was said that Beethoven heard the guitar once and he commented how it is a mini orchestra."

"In a musical score, you are actually playing more than one instrument at a time," Goodhart said. "For instance, in a fugue you can hear four different melody lines being played at once."

Presbyterians to celebrate the last week of Jesus' life

By Dale Walker
Staff Writer

Children and adults alike will try to experience the events of the last week of Christ's life during a special event at the First Presbyterian Church of Carbondale at 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

During the church's Palm Sunday education hour, events to be commemorated will be Jesus entering Jerusalem, the last supper, the crucifixion and the resurrection, Judy Beyler, coordinator of Christian Education and Family Nurture at the church, said.

Palm Sunday begins the holy week that ends with Easter Sunday, according to Christian religion.

Many religions recognize it as the day that Jesus entered Jerusalem. The palm in Palm Sunday comes from the belief that as Jesus entered Jerusalem, the people who welcomed him spread palm leaves in front of his donkey, Rev. Gary Gummershimer of the Newman Center, said.

"Palm leaves were a symbol of victory, and many people thought that Jesus was coming to become an earthly king and defeat the Romans," Dee Armes, minister at First Christian Church, said.

"The laying of palms was the welcome of kings at that time," Armes said.

There were many people who just came to see what miracles Jesus was going to perform, Armes said. Some political people waited for him to eradicate the Romans, and then there were the people who believed that Jesus had come to save them from sin, Armes said.

"Palm Sunday is an event all Christian churches would recognize," Tom Steed, minister at Church of Christ, 1805 W. Sycamore St., said.

Women excluded from priesthood in statement from Catholic bishops

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Arguing the "sin of sexism" has corroded civilization, a new draft of a pastoral statement on women by the nation's Roman Catholic bishops released Monday calls for greater secular equality for women, but said ordination to the priesthood remains impossible.

The 99-page document, which declares "the basic equality of all" persons, praises the work of Christian feminists who work to "liberate women from attitudes and actions that stand in the way of women using their gifts and talents for the good of society and the church."

But it also cautions feminists not to advocate "abberations" such as "liberation" from the church's teachings on sexuality or "acceptance of abortion as a legitimate choice for women under pressure."

"Fidelity to the example of Christ and to the practice of the apostles requires the church to stand by this tradition" of an all-male priesthood, it said, arguing that exclusion from the priesthood is not "rooted in a view that women are inferior as persons."

And it appeared to back off from a promise in the first draft to "foster a dialogue" in the church with "those who find prohibitions against artificial contraception unacceptable," dropping its call for "a spirit of compassion towards those who in good conscience ... have not lived in accord with the ideals set forth by the church."

Instead, the bishops pledge to promote an awareness of natural family planning and "birth regulation in the light of gospel values and a pro-life stance."

In preparation for almost seven years, the new draft, styled a "pastoral response to the concerns of women," was written by a committee of six bishops headed by Bishop Joseph Imesch of Joliet, Ill. It is greatly pared down from a 164-page first draft released in 1988. The new draft is expected to be debated and voted on in November.

"The one clear and universal sentiment that arose in consultations (between the bishops and Catholic women) was this: women want to be treated as persons," the draft said. "They want to be accepted as equals in a world that has been dominated by men, not relegated to 'second class' citizenship."

"They want full participation and inclusion, not just in view of particular 'feminine' gifts and experiences, but in the whole business of life," it said.

In denouncing sexism, the proposed pastoral said women suffer from the "sexism resulting from sin" and that sexist attitudes "can and do foster sins of rape, prostitution, adultery, emotional and physical abandonment and the exploitation of women through pornography."

"The corrosive sin of sexism has seeped into the fabric of our civilization, invading economic and governmental systems as well as social and ecclesiastical structures," the statement said.

Like the first draft, the new statement calls for expanding a number of ministries inside the church—short of the priesthood—to women, including the diaconate (one step below the priesthood) and allowing women to serve as lectors and altar girls. It also said theologically trained women should be allowed to preach.

The new draft also called on each diocese to form a "commission for women that will assure the rights of women on a continuing basis."

The bishops said they support changes in economic structures "to stem the rising tide of poverty among women," would back legislation "that respond to the needs of women," condemned pornography and urge establishment of affordable day-care centers.

Petition sours King's Wok liquor bid

By Nora Bentley
Staff Writer

Several Carbondale residents opposed to the issuance of liquor licenses in the Route 51 South area have started a petition to rally the support of other residents.

To many Glisson and Velma Halstead, owners of Roxanne Mobile Home Park and two of the residents who began the petition, said they are against all liquor licenses in the area, not just Class A licenses.

The request for a liquor license for King's Wok, a Chinese restaurant at 2721 S. Illinois Ave. along Route 51, by the owner Lin Chang brought out the opposition at the March 20 meeting of the Local Liquor Control Commission.

A number of residents spoke out against the issuance of a Class A license for the restaurant, and the commission postponed the decision until the April 17 meeting. Class A liquor licenses allow both package sales and sales by the drink.

The petition now being circulated states: "The undersigned property owners and residents of the newly-annexed south highway water district and other concerned citizens of Carbondale are unequivocally opposed to the issuance of any class of liquor license to any business or individual wishing to locate in the south highway water district, in that liquor sale in the south highway area and the resulting inebriation would be detrimental to the safety and the social and environmental well being of our total community."

Glisson said he is concerned about having establishments with liquor licenses in the area because there are no sidewalks and the highway is used frequently by bicyclers and joggers.

The Unity Point School is also in the area, and Glisson said he is concerned for the safety of the children waiting at the bus stop.

He said it is his sentiment that accidents would increase if the sale of alcohol is allowed in the area.

On the subject of King's Wok in particular, Glisson said that the problem of noise is a big issue with him since he lives next to the restaurant.

He said that when the restaurant had a bring your own liquor policy the noise was only a problem occasionally, but with a liquor license he believes that noise would become a bigger problem.

"Noise was just once in a great while, whereas this would be continuous," Glisson said.

He also said that there is trash and tall grass around the restaurant, and he believes that the manner of business conducted inside a business is connected to the outside appearance.

"If that's the care that's placed outside then that's probably how the inside is taken care of. They have no responsibility in keeping themselves up so how can you assume they can take care of other humans. When you are intoxicating others you are responsible," Glisson said.

Chang responded that she has never had any problems with the city code enforcement office, and that she has had people clean up the area since the subject was brought up at the March 20 meeting.

She also said she plans to put gravel around the building to solve the problem with the grass.

"I do the best I can for my side, and I've never been charged with anything by the city," Chang said.

About the petition, Chang said, that she thinks people have the right to speak, and added that she hopes people think about it twice before they sign the petition.

Glisson also said he knows of four other groups wanting licenses, and said that if these are issued then problems may arise.

"When there's too much of anything there will be a loss. Then illegal things can occur like selling to underage drinkers," he said.

He said that he is against all liquor licenses because a Class D license is a stepping stone to a Class A. A Class D license allows the sale of beer and wine, only by the drink, and is available to businesses with at least 51 percent of their sales in food and non-alcoholic drinks.

City Manager Steve Hoffner said that he isn't aware of any other business owners thinking about applying for a license.

Hoffner also responded to a comment made by Glisson about a statement by Hoffner that the city would make every effort to maintain the peaceful and quiet atmosphere that currently exists by providing adequate police patrols and enforcement of noise ordinances.

The statement was made to Glisson and Halstead when they expressed opposition to the annexation of their property. In the statement, Hoffner also said that the city could not promise that licenses would never be issued.

Hoffner said, "If they have any problems we will respond as quickly as we can as in other cases. I'm confident we can do that with our police department."

He also said that the Local Liquor Control Commission is aware of the opposition and that they are sensitive to it.

Glisson said he believes the city knows what it can and can't do, but that it would be morally wrong if they allow a license to be issued.
