Incumbents dominate city elections

CARBONDALE ELECTIONS

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

Carbondale residents gave a stamp of approval for City Council incumbents Tuesday in the city elections.

Richard Morris received 932 votes and John Mills received 914 votes, to win their second terms as councilmen. There were two seats up for election. Challenger Kyle Englert came in third with 294 votes.

Mayor Neil Dillard won his second term with 1054 votes. He was unopposed.

"I think the people who did take the time to vote felt it was important to let their feelings be known," he said.

Mills said he is happy he retained his seat and is glad the election is over.

"We're (councilmen) right in the middle of a lot of projects and we want to keep them going," he said.

Englert said even though he lost, he wants to become involved with city projects by being on a board or commission.

"I'm disappointed, but it's always hard to beat incumbents," he said.

Englert said he does not know if he will run for City Council again.

Of the two student precincts, Precinct 23 and 25 located in Brush Towers and Thompson Point, only 16 ballots were cast despite the fact that there are nearly 450 student are registered to vote from that area.

But lower voter turnout, especially among the students, was expected by city officials.

Dillard said there are a number of reasons why students did not vote in this election.

More students vote when they are dissatisfied, he said. And many felt they did not have a choice.

Carbondale has 11,076 registered voters, but only a tenth of those

SIUC awarded $1.5 million coal grant

By Brandi Tipps

SIUC was awarded $1.5 million by the Illinois Coal Development Board Monday to start designing a new coal-burning boiler on campus.

The estimated $30 million fluidized bed combustion/cogeneration system is expected to be completed by 1995, said John Mead, director of the Coal Research Center at SIUC. The money will be used to hire an architectural engineer to design the boiler.

Clarence Dougherty, vice president of campus services, said the Robert Eurkhardt firm from Chicago has already been selected

Universities may be forced to raise tuition

Illinois colleges and universities would be forced to raise tuition by 5 percent or more under a fiscal year 1992 budget the state Board of Higher Education accepted Tuesday.

SIUC already is considering the 5-percent increase and will vote on it at its Board of Trustees meeting this month.

Opposition leader killed in Albanian unrest

SHKODER, Albania (UPI) — Anti-communist protesters, disappointed over Sunday's election results, battled with security forces Tuesday in at least two Albanian cities in an explosion of violence apparently triggered when an opposition leader was shot in the back and killed.

Three people were reported killed in the clashes, including Arben Broci, 24, a senior coordinator for the fledgling Democratic Party in Shkoder.

Broci was shot from inside the communist party headquarters as he tried to calm a crowd of pro-democracy demonstrators.

A total of 59 people were reported injured in a day of rioting in Shkoder, a northern city where demonstrators angered by Broci's death tore through several government buildings and set fire to two armored personnel carriers.

More violence flared Tuesday night in the capital city Tirana, where witnesses said police attacked a group of 2,000 protesters.

Witnesses said the police in Tirana waded into the crowd with truncheons and the demonstrators responded by throwing rocks and bricks.

Financial aid policy key issue at next session of Congress

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

Congressman Glenn Poshard wants to make sure students and their families get the best deal when Congress revamps the Federal Higher Education Act.

The act will be one of the most important domestic policies to be decided upon in the next congressional session, said U.S. Rep. Poshard, D-Carrollville, said Tuesday when he visited the campus.

The act, first introduced in 1965, is brought up for review and reauthorization every four to five years.

The reauthorization of the act will be one of the key issues of the next congressional session, Poshard said.

With the gulf war tension subsiding, the focus on domestic policies has been brought into the limelight and will test the President's ability to incorporate programs on the homefront.

Poshard wanted to get input from students and financial aid officials on what areas of higher education need to be changed and what those changes should be.

The key part of the Higher Education Act will be reauthorization of Title IV, the federal financial aid policy.

Federal funds support 78 percent of all financial aid given in the United States, Poshard said.

Despite the large portion of federal funds given to financial aid, the overall share of federal funding for education has been decreasing in comparison with other government programs, he said.

In 1980, the federal commitment to education was $157 billion and $158 billion was spent on defense, Poshard said. By contrast, $171 billion went to education in 1990, while the defense budget soared to more than $400 billion dollars.

"The defense of our country is important, but other things make up our defense. Education is one of them," he said.

Poshard said claims that education can do fine without any additional funding were ridiculous.

"No one would say defense can get by without additional money," he said.

The drop in funding comparison can be attributed partially to the tarnished image of the financial aid programs, he said. In 1990, more

Salukis suffer double loss to Aces

By Todd Eschman
Staff Writer

After dropping three games to Southwest Missouri State during the weekend, Coach Sam Riggelman and his baseball Salukis were looking to bounce back with a doubleheader sweep over the University of Evansville Tuesday.

The Salukis' bats fell silent at Bosse Field, however and the Purple Aces shut them out in both games.

Evansville won the first game 7-0 and the second game 1-0. The Dawgs dropped to 11-12 while Evansville improved their record to 15-7-1.

Purple Aces pitcher John MacCauley allowed only three hits in shutting out the Salukis in game one. The junior right-hander struck out seven SIUC batters while walking only two.

Junior Sean Bergman continued to struggle on the hill for Southern. He allowed six earned runs on eight hits and six walks in 4 2/3 innings. Control continued to be his problem enroute to his third poor outing in a row.

"You're not going to be successful when you're pitching from behind," Coach Sam Riggelman said about Bergman. "That's a continuing scenario right now with him. It's not a mechanical thing. He just needs to go out and make up his mind that he wants to succeed with what he is doing."

Evansville opened the scoring in the second inning. Right fielder Kevin Krizan singled, stole second and advanced to third on a sacrifice bunt by catcher Tim Marx. Brian Siebert followed with a walk.

With one out, Brad Smith blooped a single to left field driving in Krizan. Siebert went to third on an error by senior third baseman Dale Meyer and scored on a groundout to short.

The Purple Aces added another run in the third inning making the score 3-0. Krizan, who went 4 for 4 in the first game, singled and scored on a base hit to right field by Siebert.

The Salukis began to fall apart in the top of the fifth. Marty Watson drew a walk to lead off the Aces half of the inning. He stole second when catcher Derek Shelton threw the ball in the dirt.

Shelton was ejected from the game arguing that the batter had interfered with his ability to make an accurate throw. Riggelman was also ejected while defending Shelton.

"Our feeling was that the hitter had interfered with Derek's ability to throw the ball," Riggelman said.

"Our job is to protect Derek. Frankly I did not think that it was a situation that warranted him being removed from the ball game.

"There was no need for that kind of situation. The fact is we were fighting for our lives at that point."

Watson scored on a single by Krizan. Bergman then walked the next three batters forcing Krizan across the plate.

Aaron Gries collected two RBI with an infield single. Junior George Joseph relieved Bergman and held the Aces scoreless for the remainder of the game.

St. Louis no threat to Saluki women

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

After mauling the St. Louis Billikens Tuesday in a double header, the SIUC softball team finds itself tied for the school record of 10 home runs in a season.

The record of 10 home runs in one season was set in 1989 and the Salukis, only 20 games into the season, seem bound to break it this year.

The Salukis, who haven't played in over a week because of Austin Peay's cancellation March 27, walloped St. Louis 8-0 and 15-1, bringing the Billikens record to 5-16.

Only five innings were played because of the eight run rule after five that states if a team has scored eight runs in five innings, it is officially the winner.

The team would have held the Billikens scoreless except for their one unearned run in the second game.

Sophomore right fielder Colleen Holloway is to be credited for tying the schools home run record as she belted out the only grand slam of both games. This is Holloway's second home run of the season.

"We hit well and hard all day long," Saluki Coach Kay Bretchelsbauer said. "We just attacked well from the very start. Colleen really got us started with her home run."

The Saluki's pitchers, sophomore Angie Mick and senior Lisa Robinson, kept the momentum going with Mick pitching a shutout in the first game and Robinson, pitching her first complete game of the season, having only one unearned run in the second.

These games bring Mick's record to 6-2 for the season and Robinson's to 6-0.

The team continues to keep its errors low and runs scored high.

In the first game it had only one error with eight runs on 12 hits and in the second game it had three errors with 15 runs on 12 hits.

"I was pleased with the team's performance," Bretchelsbauer said. "I just hope these two games got us into the swing of things since we

Gallagher honored by Gateway

SIUC women's tennis player sophomore Lori Gallagher has been streaking through the Gateway Conference.

Gallagher's 11-match win streak in singles play has upped her spring record to 12-1 and brought her the honor of Gateway Conference Player of the Week.

"It would be really hard for me to lose a match right now," Gallagher said. "I've been putting a lot of pressure on myself not to lose. I'm not even thinking about losing. I'm just thinking about winning."

Full contact practice sparks hope

By Wayne Frazer
Staff Writer

It's spring and football is in the air for the Salukis.

The Dawgs are in the middle of their annual spring practice session. The team is allowed 15 practices in 22 days by the NCAA, only 10 of which can be full contact.

"Though it might be early in the season, the team is not holding back. The sounds of helmets cracking during the full-contact drills today filled McAndrew Stadium. The Dawgs worked on putting in new plays and running game-situation scrimmages. Saluki Head Coach Bob Smith said the team is moving in the right direction.

"I've seen a lot of improvement over the spring so far," Smith said. "We're stronger on the offensive line and deeper overall."

The Dawgs are trying to replace graduating players with junior college transfers and freshmen recruits. Key players that graduated included tight end Yogi Henderson, linebacker Kevin Kilgallon, defensive lineman Marty Hochertz and running back Antonio Moore.

The team is beginning to feel the addition of the new recruits. Defensive back Scott Walker and wide receiver Dante Wright have both stepped in to fight for starting jobs. Smith said the recruits are ready to make their mark on the team.

"With five or six practices under our belts, we're getting an idea of who can play," Smith said. "I've been impressed with Walker, Wright, Jay Snyder and Doug Amaya. All of the kids will be contributors over the season."

Snyder is a part of the recruit pipeline Smith has established with Ricks Junior College in Idaho. The 6-4, 275-pound offensive tackle played with Walker and quarterback Brian Downey at the junior college.

Amaya, the younger brother of Saluki basketball player Ashraf Amaya, is a 6-3, 215-pound tight end. He had played one year of football at the University of Illinois before leaving school. Smith is pleasantly surprised by Amaya's performance so far this spring.

"Doug hasn't been in uniform in three years," Smith said. "That's a long lay-off for an athlete. But Doug has been outstanding so far this spring."

Amaya joins a talented group of wide receivers and tight ends. Newcomers Wright and Amaya are competing with sophomores Kevin Jones and Billy Swain, junior John Roots and senior Ian Oliver. Smith said the receivers are very deep coming into the season.

"We are very talented at the receiver position," Smith said. "We have possession-type receivers and the addition of Dante Wright gives us another dimension. He's small, but he's very quick."

At the end of the practice, Smith gathered his team and restated his goal for the spring session.

"There will be no wasted time out here," Smith said.

Amy Rakers selected to Kodak district squad

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

Women's basketball player senior Amy Rakers is known for her success on the court.

All of her practicing has paid off by being named to the Kodak District 5 Women's Basketball Team.

This is Rakers' second year in a row to be selected to this team.

"I was surprised to be elected to this team," Rakers said. "I didn't think I had that good of a shot at it this year because I didn't think I had that great of a season. But I certainly am honored I was chosen for the team."

Every year the members of the Women's Basketball Coaches Association choose 45 girls out of the nation's nine districts. Out of the 45, the top 10 are selected as Kodak All-American players. These girls are considered the 10 best players in the nation.

Rakers was selected to the Kodak District 5 Team, but not to the nation's top 10.

"I think this is a fitting honor for Amy," Saluki Coach Cindy Scott said. "She has been a tremendous player for our program. Any honors that come her way she more than deserves."

Rakers is only one of two Salukis in SIUC's history to be selected for this team.

In 1987 Bridgett Bonds was selected as a junior and nobody was selected again until Rakers was chosen in 1990.

"This is a very prestigious award among women's basketball circles," Scott said. "It is a great honor to be named to the top five of your district."

Rakers said she owes much to her teammates, who have helped her throughout the years.

"I give credit to them because

Communist group supports Yeltsin's bid for presidency

MOSCOW (UPI) — A group of Communist Party deputies in the legislature of the Russian republic threw its support Tuesday behind Boris Yeltsin's drive to establish a popularly elected president for the Soviet Union's largest state. Alexander Rutskoi, a former hero pilot in Afghanistan, stunned the sixth day of the Russian Congress of People's Deputies by breaking with Communist hard-liners and forming a new bloc of 179 deputies called Communists for Democracy. The announcement was a major blow to the hard-liners, who have blocked the Congress from even placing on the agenda the question of changing the Russian Constitution to guarantee that the Russian Federation will have a popularly elected president. The 179 votes, if Rutskoi can deliver them, could break the deadlock at the Congress, where the Communist conservatives and liberals have about the same number of supporters.

'Textbook' countdown begins for Atlantis

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Engineers started a "textbook" countdown Tuesday for the shuttle Atlantis, readying the ship for blastoff Friday on a flight featuring the first post-Challenger spacewalk and the launch of a new astronomy satellite. Atlantis' engine compartment was sealed for flight Monday and engineers started the shuttle's countdown on time at 4:30 a.m. Tuesday after resolving minor problems with the ship's robot arm that delayed closing the payload bay door. "Things are looking good, the launch team is back in the saddle again," said NASA test director Al Sofge. "Everybody is very happy to be getting ready to launch after a four- to five-month hiatus here and things are running very, very smoothly. I couldn't ask for much better." Atlantis' five-member crew was scheduled to fly to the Kennedy Space Center later in the day for final preparations.

Iraq may blame coalition for town's devastation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department expressed concern Tuesday that Iraq will blame the U.S.-led coalition for devastation to a northern Iraq town caused by a furious attack by Saddam Hussein's forces. Spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said the government of Iraq "seems to be in the process of leveling substantial portions of the Turkoman town of Tuz Khurmatu, which is located approximately 40 miles south of Kirkuk. "This area was the scene of heavy fighting between dissidents and government forces last month," she said. "My point in telling this to you, in bringing it to your attention; if true to past form, the Iraqis may well start claiming that the damage was done by the coalition or in the fighting."

Daley re-elected as mayor, despite low voter turnout

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Richard M. Daley was re-elected Tuesday amid record-low voter turnout, winning his first full term in the office his father held longer than any other mayor. In an unofficial count of 991 of the city's 2,912 precincts, Daley had 151,401 votes to 46,337 for Harold Washington Party candidate R. Eugene Pincham and 8,185 for Republican George Gottlieb. The easy victory is expected to pave the way for Daley to take a more vocal leadership role in the city's administration. As he served the last two years of the late Harold Washington's term, he spent much of his time in low-key coalition building. Elections officials said Tuesday's turnout was only about 46 percent of total registration.

Hospital to expand surgery, radiology to meet future needs

By Amy Cooper
Staff Writer

Improvements to the Memorial Hospital of Carbondale will give employees and patients more room to meet the future.

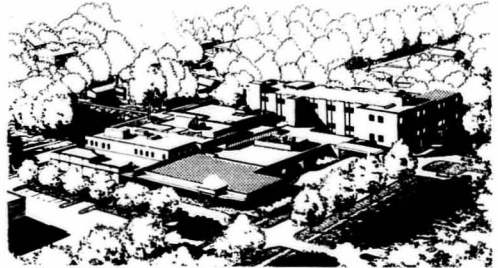

Memorial Hospital will start designing plans for expansion within the next three months and construction is scheduled to start January 1992, Hospital Administrator George Maroney said.

The five-year, $22 million project will help the hospital correct its inefficiency problems and offer more advanced medical technology, he said.

"We have a whole host of things to improve," he said. "We've simply run out of space."

Funding for the improvements will come from hospital operations, loans, expected profits and fundraising projects, he said.

Maroney said the first phase of the project will improve the

Shaded areas represent future expansion of hospital capacity of the outpatient surgery unit. Modern technology will be more geared toward outpatient surgeries versus in-patient procedures, he said.

A major emphasis of the project will be a trend toward same-day surgeries, he said.

Jon Landt, technical director of radiology, said his department needs the extra space the second phase of the project will provide.

"We're all looking forward to getting new quarters to kind of stretch out in," he said. "We wish it could have happened sooner."

Autopsy performed on student

Officials are awaiting the results of an autopsy to determine the cause of death of a 19-year-old SIUC student.

Tiffany A. Hartman, sophomore in special education from Milan, was pronounced dead at 9 p.m. Monday at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale.

Jackson County Coroner Don Ragsdale said Hartman may have died of severe pulmonary edema, a congestion of the lungs, but autopsy results would be more conclusive.

According to SIUC Police reports, at 6:18 p.m. Officer Maudie Hamilton was dispatched to 1435 Neely in reference to a female having heart problems.

When the officer arrived, Hartman was lying on a bed in the room. Hartman's boyfriend, Phil G. Taylor, and her roommate, Melinda A. Anderson, were in the room at the time.

They told the officer Hartman's heart was beating fast and although it was something that had happened to her before, it had never lasted so long.

When the ambulance arrived, Hartman was conscious. After the paramedics started monitoring Hartman's heartbeat, she lost consciousness, according to police reports. Another ambulance was contacted for assistance.

Hamilton reported that she and the paramedics applied cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Hartman was stabilized and transported to the hospital about 8 p.m. and pronounced dead an hour later.

Brady Bill provides better gun legislation

IF PRESIDENT BUSH WANTS to take a shot at successfully fighting U.S. crime, his best bet may lie in supporting the Brady Bill.

This federal bill would require a seven-day waiting period before any over-the-counter handgun purchase could be completed. In this week-long delay, police could check up on buyers before issuing a gun.

Such measures did not exist in Texas 10 years ago, when John Hinckley Jr. purchased the revolver in Dallas he used in his assassination attempt on President Reagan in Washington.

IN FACT, HINCKLEY SAID IN 1989, "I believe I would not have gone forward with the effort to shoot the president" if a purchase waiting period had been in effect.

The bill refers to James Brady, the White House Press Secretary shot in the head during this attempt. It would keep certain persons, such as criminals or the mentally-disturbed, from easily buying guns in states where gun sales currently are not regulated.

In 1988, 22 states carried legislation for waiting periods ranging from 48 hours to 15 days. This bill would require remaining states to adhere to the seven-day rule.

WAITING PERIODS, THEN, PROVIDE a "weeding-out" process for buyers and inevitably protects the general public from certain individuals purchasing weapons for illegal means.

The delay also upholds the constitutional right to bear arms; the bill would merely postpone—not prevent—people from purchasing arms.

But under this law, citizens would be evaluated for the benefit of others.

Bush and his administration have been opposed to such legislation because they feel it would fail to catch the criminals who obtain guns illegally rather than through gunshop purchases.

INSTEAD, BUSH WANTS legislation with tougher mandatory sentencing and more severe federal penalties for the use of guns in crime.

Both proposals, however, work hand-in-hand; while Bush stresses deterrence through consequences, the Brady Bill pushes for deterrence through means.

Bush's support of the bill would not only be a right move in tackling the domestic issues his critics feel he ignores, but it would advance the fight against crime in a major way.

Quotable Quotes

"There's a definite need for sarcasm when the situation is so bleak."—Student Craig Wilson said in reference to the April 1 mock protest on campus proclaiming the lack of problems in the United States.

"No matter how good your grades are, no matter how many courses you've had, there's just something about leaving your own culture in order to experience another."—said Associate Professor of Design Larry Busch about students attending a Greek campus through an SIUC program.

"One guy wrote me, 'When you're in first place, why don't you put a stick of dynamite on your head and blow yourself up?'"—Brandy Johnson, the 17-year-old U.S. gymnast in the 1988 Olympics, said about her retirement from the sport after receiving threatening calls and having nightmares about gym injuries.

SIUC needs to act now to save its environment

Southern Illinois University, unique style and diversity. Beautiful land and beautiful people together.

Learning of life in its finest form, apartment, trailer, house of dorm. So much to see, so much to do.

But we've got to do our homework too. We are concerned about the earth. We represent this country's rebirth. We make a difference with immeasurable worth.

Our planet is in serious danger, so don't be a stranger. Get involved and let's get this problem solved.

The world of the future can be water-conscious and trouble-free: Solar energy should be the norm for cooking our food and keeping us warm.

No longer should we clear the land. Tears will fall and trees will stand. The air will become fresh and clean.

And our blue-white marble will be green.—John Burhop, freshman, science.

Letter writer uninformed on Greek organizations

This letter is directed to Steve Lucas, regarding his letter about the bomb threats at Wham.

While we agreed with many of your points about the bomb threats, one certain point was not taken so easily.

We felt that your remark about it being a "fraternity stunt" was way out of line and completely unsubstantiated.

Granted, you are a freshman and obviously don't realize the responsibility it takes to be a member of a Greek letter organization.

Perhaps as you mature, you will become less close-minded.

We (everyone except you) no longer live in an "Animal House" atmosphere.

Many community service projects would not get done without fraternities.

When was the last time you wrote a letter to a disabled person, or worked at the Special Olympics?

Because you are clearly misinformed about our Greek system, we can only hope that with the continued years of college experience, you will not jump to hasty and unsupported conclusions.—Keith Souza, junior, marketing; Ken Garry, senior, radio and TV, Theta Xi Fraternity members.

Additional safety services needed for wheelchairs

The office of Disabled Student Services, the DSS, does a lot for students who are alternately enabled.

Maybe it could do a little more for students in wheelchairs. It might pay them big dividends.

Maybe it could mount lights and reflectors on the wheelchairs of students who request them.

At times, wheelchairs and automobiles have to share the same roadways. Too often, the two collide, with painful results for the occupant of the wheelchair.

Maybe lights and reflectors would reduce the chances of those collisions, especially at night.

The equipment needed to make a wheelchair safer at night must surely cost less than 20 dollars.

It probably takes an hour or less to mount. Even if SIUC bore the cost of doing this, it is worth the money spent if it prevents even one person being hurt in an accident.

What do you think SIU? Aren't the students worth it?—Larry Roemer, junior, English

Persian Gulf baseball cards, toys send bad message to children

I have recently been informed by a friend in Chicago that baseball card size memorabilia of the Gulf War is now being produced.

The cards are basically the same as baseball cards except that they have pictures of weapons instead of players.

One of the more popular ones is the scud missile card. This irritates me to know that death machines are now treated as equal to sports collectibles.

I cannot bear to see that kids are being brought up to think that the killing of others is cool or even acceptable.

I cannot bear to see kids being brought up to think that the killing of others is cool.

In a related incident I saw sand colored tanks and jeeps for sale in a store in Carbondale. Sure other similar toys such as GI Joe have been created, but when something like these Gulf War toys are which are linked to an actual event, kids think it must be all right if grown-ups are using the real thing.

In a country where murder is illegal how could something such as war possibly be put in such a positive light?

Kids associate toys with fun and goodness and if killing is a part of this fun I think that this country has a serious problem to deal with.—Jon Le Grand, junior, liberal arts.

Challenger new park commissioner

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

Carbondale has a new park commissioner.

Sandra Henry Bartelsmeyer defeated incumbent Michael Curtis, who had held the position for 18 years, with an unofficial vote total of 761 to 426.

"I'm really tickled to win," Henry Bartelsmeyer said. "I guess people wanted a change."

Henry Bartelsmeyer said her experiences with several community groups, including Boy Scouts of America and Carbondale Soccer, Inc., will help her make decisions as park commissioner.

Henry Bartelsmeyer has lived in Carbondale since 1952. She is a typesetter at SIUC Printing/Duplicating Service.

Although no longer a Carbondale park commissioner, Curtis will retain his position as president of the Illinois Association of Park Districts, which is made up of park commissioners throughout the state.

Curtis, an eight grade teacher at Lincoln Junior High School, was not available for comment.

The Carbondale Park District is a unit of local government with the authority to assess taxes. It maintains and operates about 750 acres at 16 different locations including baseball, softball and soccer fields.

Dillard has lived in Carbondale since 1964 and received a bachelor of science degree in business administration in 1955 and a master of business and administration in 1968, both from SIUC.

Mills, 1975 SIUC radio and television graduate, was a member of the Liquor Advisory Board for 10 years prior to being elected to City Council in 1987.

He is a caseworker for the Illinois Department of Public Aid and owns rental property.

Morris is the office manager of the Illinois Department of Employment Security in Carbondale and Murphysboro.

He was not available for comment.

Egliert, a 1986 SIUC political science graduate, is a handyman.

than $2 billion dollars in student loan defaults were reported to the government, he said.

Trade schools that promise quick education are the major cause for the large default rate because of lack of accreditation and certification, Poshard said.

"There's no way after going through the program, they (students) are going to repay the money to the government," he said. "A lot of students throw up their arms and say 'I'm not going to do it.'"

The schools that operate on a profit basis include beauty schools and truck driving schools, but not all of them should be criticized, said Pamela Britton, director of the SIUC Financial Aid Office.

Some of the schools, such as DeVry Institute in Chicago, are respected institutions, Britton said.

Poshard said the rising number of loan defaults combined with the growing federal deficit have made the government use complex forms to ensure it gets its money back.

"It's the case of not trusting anybody anymore," he said. "It ends up in a lot of paper work for parents and students."

The government also has switched its emphasis on funding from grants to loans, Britton said.

More than 60 percent of federal financial aid is now in the form of loans, almost a complete reversal from when the majority of aid was non-repayable grants, she said.

Both Britton and Poshard said the switch has led to students graduating with a huge debt burden.

"The question is how can we bolster up grant programs so students don't have so much to repay," Britton said.

President George Bush has made two program requests.

Bush wants to eliminate the middle-man in the student loan programs, thereby taking banks and other lending institutions out of the picture, Poshard said.

He (Bush) has said the government can promise students a lower-interest rate, but the drawback is many universities don't want to play the role of collection agency for the vast federal loan programs, Poshard said.

Funding for the construction of the boiler is expected to come from the state of Illinois' capital funds, Mead said. SIUC will be working with the Capital Development Board on the project.

Although the fluidized bed combustion system has not yet been definitely decided upon, Mead said "a better technology is not likely to be available to meet our time limits."

The University needs more steam capacity, Mead said. The boilers being used now are old, less reliable and are a challenge to repair because parts are sometimes hard to find and expensive.

He said increased capacity would benefit future buildings on campus, but that the new boiler would not replace the old ones, but rather work with them.

The fluidized bed combustion system takes pulverized coal and mixes it with limestone in a chamber of the boiler, said Kim Underwood, director of Coal Development Marketing for the Illinois Department of Energy and Natural Resources.

Combustion heat will cause the sulfur from the burning coal to turn the limestone into lime which will absorb the sulfur dioxide and keep it from being released into the air, he said.

Because sulfur dioxide released from burning coal is thought to be the primary cause of acid rain, there have been amendments added to the federal Clean Air Act requiring the emission of sulfur dioxide to be drastically reduced. Illinois coal is high in sulfur and that is the problem with it, Underwood said.

Mead said the new system will help the coal industry as well as meet the standards of the federal Clean Air Act.

"This system will virtually eliminate the pollutants," Underwood said.

Underwood said the system also could reduce the discharge of nitrous oxide as well as other pollutants.

Underwood said his office and SIUC feel coal is the fuel for the future and don't want to see companies change to gas, oil or western United States coal which is lower in sulfur but also more expensive.

University in Normal, the Board of Higher Education announced how it would allocate the $1.9 billion higher education spending plan proposed last month by Gov. Jim Edgar.

The plan would increase education spending by only 1.9 percent, with most of the additional money going for increased student aid. No funds were allocated for faculty or staff pay raises.

Under the governor's budget, SIUC would receive about $168 million, about $900,000 more than what was allocated in Fiscal Year 1991.

SIUC would be allocated about $67 million, about $800,000 more than the 1991 appropriations.

Both campuses plus the SIUC Central Administration would receive $238 million combined, about $1.8 million more than its 1991 allocations. The amount is about $17 million less than the IBHE's original request made in January.

But Garrett Deakin, Executive Assistant for External Relations for SIUC, said because of the fiscal constraints on the state, SIUC is fortunate under the governor's proposal.

"This is a tough budget," he said. "We would love to have more, but for us to hang onto this it will be a challenge."

The potential for even deeper cuts is especially great this year as democratic lawmakers look for programs to cut so they can restore money to public assistance programs.

Edgar slashed assistance payments and medical aid for the poor in his proposed, $26 billion state budget for next year.

and waiting-room space, the improvements will allow for a permanent Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI) site. Memorial Hospital currently uses a mobile MRI system, he said.

Radiology's nuclear medicine and ultra-sound systems also will be expanded with the project.

Landt said the expansion and improvements will allow for more patient services.

Maroney said the project also will expand the Cancer Center, operating rooms, the pediatrics department, the obstetrics department and parking lot space. The operating rooms are the same size as when they were built in 1969 and pediatrics, one of the oldest departments, has never been visually upgraded, he said.

Several million dollars will go toward improving the electrical and air-conditioning systems to increase the hospital's heating and cooling capacity.

CNN dominated war coverage says executive

By Kylie Robertson
Staff Writer

The Cable News Network executive vice president said the station's $22 million war coverage has changed the nature of world news.

In a speech at SIUC on Tuesday, Ed Turner said other news channels couldn't compete with CNN after its coverage of the war.

CNN was the only station there around the clock sending news to most of the civilized world via satellite, he said.

"Our 4-way transmitter, which operates like a walkie-talkie was positioned in Amman, Jordan. How it survived after the Iraqis discovered we were transmitting straight to Atlanta, Ga., we don't know," Turner said. "I suppose they thought it would be in their best interests that the world know what was going on."

Because CNN's coverage was unprecedented, The network received many complaints from the public for its involvement, he said.

"We took a lot of heat from the public. I got a call from AT&T telling me that lines in the Georgia area and the Carolinas were jammed," Turner said.

A survey published in Newsweek magazine during the war showed, however, that only 28 percent of the people surveyed disagreed with CNN's involvement, he said.

Turner said at least there was 68 percent common sense out there and it was a shame it had to be a silent majority.

"Those that complained should realize that wires and universal satellites can not be uninvited," he said.

"It is amazing what technology is available to us," he added. "I can't understand why people don't want to use it."

Turner said that CNN dominates hard news coverage in the United States. The other channels are left to highlight and summarize the news CNN has already told, he said.

"While other stations are laying-off people, we are expanding," Turner said.

Hate groups, prejudice focus of Holocaust week programs

By Jefferson Robbins
Staff Writer

Artists, scholars, clergymen and volunteers will revive the memory of the Holocaust next week in hopes that history never repeats itself.

Local religious groups and some SIUC organizations are sponsoring Holocaust week, April 8 through 12, titled "From Prejudice to Genocide," in remembrance of the victims of Adolf Hitler's World War II purge of about 6 million Jews, gypsies and other minorities.

Such large-scale murder is still practiced in some parts of the world, said Lewis Payne, rector of the Canterbury Fellowship of the Episcopal Church and an organizer of the event.

Payne pointed to the 1988 mustard gas attack on a Kurdish village in Iraq by Saddam Hussein as an example of race-oriented murder.

"Genocide does occur and will occur where prejudice exists," Payne said.

Payne said the idea for a weeklong remembrance of the Holocaust came when he discussed a seminar he attended about rural-based "hate groups" with a colleague, Janet Belcove-Shalin, director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation of Carbondale.

"Lewis was telling me about this, and we decided we wanted to do something to help educate people, because we saw it (the rise of prejudice) as a real threat," Belcove-Shalin said.

The seminar, given by Leonard Zeskind of the Center for Democratic Renewal in Atlanta, focused on the rise of racist organizations, some of which claim the Holocaust was either justifiable or never happened, Payne said.

Raising community awareness about the Holocaust and the groups who dispute it is the first step toward eliminating prejudice, Belcove-Shalin said.

"The more aware people are that these things happen, the less likely it is they will happen," she said.

The week features lectures, workshops and videos designed to educate audiences about hate groups and ways to overcome personal prejudice. All programs are free.

Stan Anderman, director of the Jewish Federation of Southern Illinois, will give a presentation on United States hate groups at 7:30 p.m. April 8.

Anderman said he sees the current power of hate groups as the result of several social factors, including a philosophy called American nativism.

"There is a tradition in the U.S. of prejudice against those who are not seen as native-born Americans," he said. "So today we see prejudice against Asian Americans and Hispanic Americans."

These beliefs tend to be passed from parent to child and must be fought early in a child's upbringing, preferably in school, Anderman said.

"That's long-term," he said. "In the short-term, when racial incidents occur, a strong, forthright response from law enforcement is required."

At 10 a.m. April 9, a reading of the names of Holocaust victims will begin at the Student Center's north entrance.

Organized by Karen Knodi, director of University Christian Ministries, the readings will run from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, with volunteers reading the names of about 21,000 victims as a memorial to the 6 million dead, Belcove-Shalin said.

Also on April 9, Ronald Jackson and Faye Dresner of the Anti-Defamation League in St. Louis will hold a prejudice-reduction workshop at 7 p.m. in Student Center Ballroom A.

Dresner, a social worker and ADL member, said the workshop, titled "A World of Difference," is given more than 100 times a year to students and social organizations and helps people take an honest look at their own prejudices.

"This is rapidly becoming a very diverse population," Dresner said, citing 1990 census figures which show minorities on the rise in many areas. "We have to learn how to live with it, learn from it and appreciate it."

Despite the success of such programs, Dresner said she does not believe racial prejudice will disappear soon.

"I would say that's a pretty lofty goal in my lifetime," she said. "I think we have to continually chip away at it."

On April 10, the Student Programming Council will show two educational videos, "California Reich" and "Genocide," which investigate the tactics of a West Coast white supremacist organization and the history of Hitler's war on European Jews.

The videos will run from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Student Center Video Lounge.

Also on April 10, St. Louis actress Julie Heifitz will perform a one-woman show, "People Who Survived the Holocaust," at 7:30 p.m. in Student Center Ballroom A. Heifitz is an artist-in-residence at the St. Louis Holocaust Center.

SPC's video series continues from 4 to 6 p.m. Thursday with two films, "Garden of the Finzi-Continis" and "Night and Fog," dramas about the Holocaust.

"Garden" is a drama about anti-Semitism in World War II Italy by Vittorio De Sica; "Night and Fog" is a French documentary on the European concentration camps where mass executions were carried out, said Ty Humphrey, SPC Video chairman.

At 7:30 p.m. Clark Williamson, a religious scholar with the Christian Theological Seminary in Indianapolis, will lecture on the impact of the Holocaust on Christian thought in the Student Center Ballroom C.

Williamson will follow up the lecture with a workshop on interfaith dialogue Friday from 9:30 to 11:45 a.m. at First Baptist Church, on the corner of Main Street and University Avenue.

A special Holocaust service by Rabbi Robert Sternberg of St. Louis will be held at 7:30 p.m. April 10 at Congregation Beth Jacob, Norwest Drive and Striegel.

Muslim fundamentalist segregates employees

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — Jordan's minister of social development, a member of the Muslim Brotherhood, confirmed Tuesday he ordered the segregation of male and female employees at his ministry to improve efficiency.

"This is an internal organizational measure that improves efficiency and the employees are very happy with the decision," said Minister Yousef al Athem, who said he had consulted his staff before taking the decision.

However, some workers at the ministry rejected the move and said they had not been consulted.

Islamic fundamentalists entered the government three months ago in a Cabinet shuffle aimed at placating the Muslim Brotherhood, two years after it won 22 seats in the 80-seat Parliament.

Female employees at the ministry said none of them had been consulted and that the minister, citing Islamic codes of conduct on interaction between the sexes, ordered the segregation two months ago when he became minister.

"Of course we are not happy about the order, but we do not want to lose our jobs either," said a female employee at the ministry.

"He does not allow men to be in the offices where there are women and vice-versa," she said.

According to both female and male employees, the minister continuously encourages women to cover their hair and not to wear makeup and to behave in accordance with Islamic teachings.

Lawmakers supporting the implementation of Islamic law in Jordan have submitted a proposal to ban co-education in all schools and universities in the kingdom.

The Cabinet shuffle three months ago allowed five Muslim Brotherhood members and two independent Muslim fundamentalists to enter the 25-member Cabinet.

But Jordan's fundamentalists appear to be losing popularity after joining the government and failing to deliver on pledges to ease economic problems.

Road repairs obstruct travel to Bald Knob site

Motorized pilgrims traveling to Bald Knob Cross in Union County will be forced to walk to the next two months.

Bald Knob Cross Road, the only access to the site of the 111-foot cross, was closed for construction Monday until June 15, said Jim Borgsmiller, office coordinator with the Illinois Department of Transportation.

Plans for fixing the road were scheduled for April to avoid conflict with the traditional outdoor Easter service. The road is slated for a general upgrading, which puts Bald Knob Mountain out of reach for motorists.

The upgrading includes the digging of new drainage ditches, the laying of new culverts to divert water away from the road, and the oiling of the surface, he said.

Two film winners to appear during Oscars' Week

By Tracy Sargeant
Entertainment Editor

The Oscars are coming to Carbondale this week.

Student Programming Council will present Oscars' Week honoring two award-winning films.

"Dances With Wolves" and "GoodFellas" will be shown in the Student Center Auditorium.

Al Reitz, SPC film chairperson, said SPC expects a high turnout for this event.

"(The week's schedule) kept coming together. We were down to the point where Kevin Costner was going to show," he said in reference to his officers trying to get Costner to make a personal appearance.

"But he was unavailable," he said.

Costner swept the Academy awards with the film in which he wrote, directed and starred in — "Dances With Wolves." The film received seven Oscars.

The movie is a drama about a Civil War hero who befriends a tribe of Sioux Indians while he was living at one of the last Old West outposts.

More importantly, the film broke several of Hollywood's remaining stereotyped barriers for Native Americans.

Reitz said representatives of Friends of Native Americans will be on hand for the showing of "Dances With Wolves" and promotion of Native American Awareness Week.

Dar Walks Out, senior in health care and council chief for Friends of Native Americans, said the film hit home for her, literally.

She said she went to see the film the day it opened and was surprised when the tribe portrayed in the movie was part of her own — the Pine Ridge Sioux reservation in South Dakota.

The reservation is home to 27,000 Sioux and one of many reservations in the area.

"I couldn't believe it. I thought I recognized part of my family, but I wasn't sure," Walks Out said.

She said she went back to see the film a couple more times until she was positive.

Walks Out will give a short speech before the film.

Reitz said Friends of Native Americans will hand out pamphlets and add to the cultural aspects of the showing.

"Dances With Wolves" will be shown at 6 and 9:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

The other film, "GoodFellas," is co-sponsored by Alpha Phi Alpha.

SPC will show "GoodFellas" at 7 and 9:30 tonight and Thursday. Admission for each film is $1.

Soviet prices increase; lack of goods persists

MOSCOW (UPI) — Prices were increased Tuesday on hundreds of goods from sausage to socks, but the government failed to deliver a promised infusion of products to placate disgruntled shoppers.

Moscow residents got their first taste of the new higher prices when they boarded the city subway system or buses, where fares tripled overnight from 5 kopecks (3 cents) to 15 kopecks (9 cents) a ride.

"There are no more goods than before, even though they raised the prices," said teacher Marina Solovyova, 54, as she waited in line at a Moscow food shop.

"And there is no hope that there will be more products. We just stand in line and wait and wait. We've been waiting for 73 years."

The price reform is part of the government's stated aim of slowly moving toward a market economy.

However, critics complained that the move would have little positive effect and was designed to maintain the central control of the economy blamed for economic chaos and widespread shortages.

Solving dilemmas can ease pain of tension headaches

By Barb Fijolek
Wellness Center

To Your Health

Everyone hurts at some time or another, and headaches are one of the most common types of pain.

There are many different types of headaches, but by far the most common is the tension headache — the headache most receptive to healing without drugs.

Taking drugs, such as aspirin and Tylenol, to ease the pain of tension headaches is a personal choice, but a person runs the risk of "masking" the body's message.

Believe it or not, pain can be a positive message to help a person look at what's out of balance in one's life.

Many people tend to think externally when trying to decipher the message behind the pain. They think, "It's my job, my relationships, my housing that needs to change."

That may be true, but in many cases, the problem may be an internal one, such as worrying too much, not expressing emotions or not trusting one's own intuitions.

Individuals experience tension and stress that may lead to headaches in their own unique way and must find their own plan to reduce it.

Actions that may help are:

■ keeping a personal journal to record pain and notice patterns.

■ learning ways to communicate with discomfort through meditation or imagery.

■ examining diet — not only food, but noting all sensory input including noise, lighting and other positive or negative environmental factors.

■ cultivating sensitivity to internal messages through relaxation techniques.

Specific practical measures such as the use of heat, cold, massage, stretching, deep muscle relaxation or regular exercise may help.

Some of these methods work by stimulating the release of natural body pain killers known as endorphins.

Often when pain arises in the body, muscles tighten around the area of pain. The fear and dread of the unpleasant then magnifies the pain.

Like closing one's hand on a burning coal, the tighter one squeezes, the deeper one is burned.

Learning how to mentally relax when in pain often helps to significantly reduce the discomfort of the tension headaches.

If a person believes headaches are related to tension, instruction in muscle relaxation, deep breathing techniques, yoga, biofeedback, imagery or other stress management strategies are available by making an appointment at the Wellness Center, a part of the Student Health Program, at 536-4441.

Cash prize, professional judging highlight logo design competition

By Omonpee O. Whitfield
Staff Writer

For the first time, SIUC Women's Studies will award cash to the first-place winner in its annual logo contest.

In preparation for this year's "Take Back the Night/Women's Safety Week," Women's Studies is sponsoring a logo contest and awarding $75 to the person who designs the best "Take Back the Night" logo.

Kris Wessel, Women's Safety Week committee member, said this is the first year a cash award has been offered as a prize and the first time the contest has been judged by professional artists.

Women's Safety Week committee member Lisa Hollabaugh said by adding a cash prize and professional artists, the competition is open to more people.

"We wanted it to be a very open competition," Hollabaugh said. "We had professional jurors added and we offered a cash prize because we wanted to give people some incentive to enter."

Entry forms may be obtained from Debbie Morrow at Women's Studies and entries should be returned by Friday.

Graduate Council may support changes to doctoral program

By Natalie Boehme
Staff Writer

The Graduate Council will decide Thursday whether or not to back a recommendation to change SIUC's doctoral program.

Attempting to prioritize SIUC's doctoral college the Graduate Council Program Review Committee recommended discontinuing the molecular science doctoral program, cutting back the higher education program and increasing the anthropology and physics programs.

The recommendations will be presented to Benjamin Shepherd, vice president for academic affairs and research, if the council votes to support the committee's proposals.

John H. Yopp, Graduate School dean, said the committee made these recommendations after two years of research into SIUC's doctoral program. The committee rated the Graduate School departments in terms of quality, cost-effectiveness, importance and contribution to the University as a whole.

"This is a faculty recommendation," Yopp said. "This is what the faculty would say should be reduced, if the University can't afford to do everything."

An increase in faculty and resources were recommended for the anthropology and physics programs because they have a large student interest and a potential for growth, Yopp said.

Susan Ford, director of graduate studies for anthropology, said the department was founded as a graduate program and a lot of work has been put into the program to make it strong.

"We are proud of the program and hope being placed in an enhanced category will give the administration an incentive to help us become even stronger," Ford said.

Currently SIUC does not offer a doctoral degree in physics, even though there has been a large student demand for one, Yopp said.

According to the committee's recommendation, creating a physics doctoral program would take the place of the molecular science program, because the two programs cover the same academic area.

Gerard Smith, director of molecular science, said although molecular science was mainly used as a physics doctorate in the beginning, it has been modified so it no longer falls in this category.

"Historically I think somehow the two programs have been tied together," Smith said. "I don't think people realize the changes that have occurred in molecular science."

Smith said eliminating the molecular science program would generate very little resources for reallocation—about $30,000.

Yopp said a physics program would offer more for graduate students than a molecular science program because physics covers a larger interest area.

The committee recommended that funds for the higher education graduate program be reduced because student demand was not there, Yopp said.

Road repairs close city streets, cause delays

By Sherri L. Wilcox
Staff Writer

As work on the east-west couple continues, another intersection will close for road repairs.

The intersection of Old Main Street and West Main Street will be closed for three weeks as Illinois Department of Transportation workers reconstruct the pavement and replace curbs and gutters. Work on the couple began July 1990 and IDOT engineers expect it to be completed some time in late October.

In addition to the continuing work on the couple, motorists traveling south of Carbondale also may meet with delays. Illinois Route 166 is closed three miles south of Illinois Route 13 because of bridge construction at the south fork of the Saline River. The highway closed Tuesday morning.

The bridge will remain closed to traffic until Friday at 7 a.m. Local traffic will be able to use the highway on either side of the bridge.

to 5-2 while the struggling Bergman fell to 2-2.

The Salukis got a strong pitching performance in the second game from senior right hander Bob FINDER but Gerry Croarkin shut out SIUC again to give Evansville the doubleheader sweep.

Finder gave up only two hits and no earned runs in the seven inning contest.

The Dawgs collected four hits off of Croarkin but failed to score.

led off the inning with a walk and advanced to second on a wild pitch.

He went to third on an infield groundout and scored when Shelton threw the ball into left field trying to pick him off.

"Obviously, if your looking for a plus from todays action, it would have to come from Bob FINDER." Rigglesman said. "Bob did a great job—the kind of job we'll need in the conference."

The low point of the day would have to be the Dawgs lack of offense. On the day, the Salukis only managed seven hits and were unable to get on the scoreboard.

"Offensively we struggled and we hope to break out soon." Rigglesman concluded.

The Dawgs will be in action again Thursday when they travel to St. Louis to battle the Billikins of St. Louis University.

They travel to Peoria this weekend for four games against conference rival Bradley.

haven't played in a week. We need to be sharp for our first Gateway Conference games of the season this weekend."

Holloway took the spotlight of the games with her home run. She also scored four runs, went 3 for 7 and had four RBI.

Junior shortstop Cheryl

Venorsky also had a spectacular day going 4 for 6, scoring three runs with four RBI.

Other players who performed well were senior left fielder Shannon Taylor who went 3 for 5, scoring three runs.

Freshman shortstop Jenny Klotz went 2 for 3, smacking out one double and scoring one run with one RBI.

The Salukis face Western Illinois University in a doubleheader at 3 p.m. Friday.

The Salukis play another doubleheader against Bradley University at noon Sunday at home.

they do just as much for the team as I do," Rakkers said. "They have been great."

The Kodak Teams were announced during the Women's NCAA Final Four in New Orleans.

Other athletes selected to the Kodak District 5 Team were Gateway Conference Player of the Year Jan Jenson of Drake, Liz Brown of Oklahoma State, Karen Jennings of Nebraska and Nadira Hazim of Kansas State.

Rakers was the 1990 Gateway Conference Player of the Year, the 1990 Gateway Tournament Most Valuable Player and SIUC's 1990 Female Athlete of the Year.

"Rakers was the top vote recipient of the District 5 squad last year.

Gallagher has teamed with sophomore Wendy Varnum at the No. 2 doubles position to win seven straight matches. The duo is 18-7 overall this year.

"I'm not surprised," Coach Judy Auld said of Gallagher being named the player of the week. "She definitely deserves it. She has excellent athletic ability. It's nice to see her starting to find it."

Last fall, Gallagher sat out with mononucleosis, but she said she is much stronger now.

"When I came back last spring I was real weak," Gallagher said. "Now I'm stronger mentally and physically. I'm confident and I'm in better shape."

Gallagher is 23-5 for the year and has a 45-8 overall record.

Auld said Gallagher's skills will soon be tested by the tough competition the Salukis will face.

"Lori has really come on strong this year," Auld said. "We're moving into the rough part of the season. She walks on to the court knowing she is going to win. She is becoming aware of her ability."

Old Comiskey Park to come tumbling down

CHICAGO (UPI) — The last person to take a swing at old Comiskey Park will be the crew behind the wrecking ball today when demolition begins in earnest at baseball's oldest ballpark.

Once known as the "Baseball Palace of the World," home to the Chicago White Sox since the first game was played there July 1, 1910, the brick stadium soon will be a parking lot.

"When the fans come out for the home opener April 18 (at the new Comiskey Park), they'll still hardly notice a thing—maybe an opening on the east end where right field used to be," said Larry Kolko of Speedway Wrecking Co. "But we hope to have it pretty much done by October when the Sox start playing in the World Series across the street."

Speedway's crews have been dismantling the ballpark's interior since March 1. The seats are gone and for sale at $250 apiece, with the money to benefit the White Sox Charities. The infield dirt was moved to the new stadium, while the grass was replanted at a city park.

The old scoreboard is still standing, but that is for sale, too.
