Incumbents dominate city elections

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

Carbondale residents gave a stamp of approval for City Council incumbents Tuesday in the city elections.

Richard Morris received 932 votes and John Mills received 914 votes, to win their second terms as councilmen. There were two seats up for election. Challenger Kyle Engler came in third with 294 votes. Mayor Neil Dillard won his second term with 1054 votes. He was unopposed.

"I think the people who did take the time to vote felt it was important to let their feelings be known," he said.

Mills said he is happy he retained his seat and is "shocked at the election." "We're (councilmen) right in the middle of a lot of projects and we want to keep them going," he said. Engler said even though he lost, he wants to become involved with city projects by being on a board or commission.

"I'm disappointed, but it's always hard to beat incumbents," he said. Dillard said he does not know if he will run for City Council again. Of the two student precincts, Precinct 23 and 25 located in Brush Towers and Thompson Point, only 16 ballots were cast despite the fact that there are nearly 450 student residents registered to vote in that area.

But lower voter turnout, especially among the students, was expected by city officials. Dillard said there are a number of reasons why students did not vote in this election. More students vote when they are disenfranchised, he said. And many felt they did not have a choice.

Carbondale has 11,076 registered voters, but only a tenth of those voted.

SIUC awarded $1.5 million coal grant

SIUC was awarded $1.5 million by the Illinois Coal Development Board Monday to start designing a new coal-burning boiler on campus. The estimated $30 million fluidized bed combustion/cogeneration system is expected to be completed by 1995, said John Moad, director of the Coal Research Center at SIUC. The money will be used to hire an architectural engineer to design the boiler. Clarence Dougherty, vice president of SIUC, services, said the Robert Euckhart firm from Chicago has already been selected.

Opposition leader killed in Albanian unrest

SHKODER, Albania (UPI) - Anti-communist protesters, disappointed over Sunday's election results, battled with security forces Tuesday in at least two Albanian cities in an explosion of violence apparently triggered when an opposition leader was shot in the back and killed.

Three people were reported killed in the clashes, including Arben Broci, 24, a senior coordinator for the fledging Democratic Party in Shkoder. Broci was shot from inside the communist party headquarters as he tried to calm a crowd of pro-democracy demonstrators.

A soul of 39 people were reported injured in a day of riots in Shkoder, a northern city where demonstrators angered by Broci's death tore through several government buildings and set fire to two armored personnel carriers. More violence flared Tuesday night in the capital city Tirana, where witnesses said police attacked a group of 2,000 protesters. Witnesses said the police in Tirana waded into the crowd with truncheons and the demonstrators responded by throwing rocks and bricks.
Salukis suffer double loss to Aces

After dropping three games to Southwest Missouri State during the weekend, Coach Sam Riggleman and his baseball Salukis were looking to bounce back with a doubleheader sweep over the University of Evansville Tuesday. The Salukis' bats fell silent at Bosse Field, however and the Purple Aces shut them out in both games.

Evansville won the first game 7-0 in 9 innings and the Dawgs dropped to 11-12 while Evansville improved their record to 15-7-1.

Purple Aces pitcher John MaCauley allowed only three hits in shutting out the Salukis in game one. The junior right-hander struck out seven SIUC batters while walking only two.

Junior Sean Bergman continued to struggle on the hill for Southern. He allowed six earned runs on eight hits and six walks in 4 2/3 innings. Control continued to be his problem enroute to his third poor outing in a row.

"You're not going to be successful when you're pitching bad," MaCauley said. "That's a 'continuing scenario right now with him. It's not a mechanics thing. He just needs to go... make up his mind that he wants to succeed with what he is doing.

Evansville opened the scoring in the second inning. Right of the box crack by catcher Tim Mars, Brian Siebert followed with a walk.

A sacrifice bunt by Kristopher Samuels brought one out. Brad Smith bunted a single to left field driving in Kristopher Samuels. Siebert went to third on an error by senior third baseman Duley Meyer and scored on a groundout to short.

The Purple Aces added another run in the third inning making the score 2-0. Koelpin, who went 4 for 4 in the first game, singled and scored on a base hit to right field by Siebert.

The Salukis began to fall apart in the fifth inning. Marty Watson drew a walk to lead off the Aces half of the inning. He stole second and advanced to third on a sacrifice bunt by catcher Tim Mars. Brian Siebert followed with a walk.

An error by Aron Kewley on one out, Brad Smith bunted a single to left field driving in Kristopher Samuels. Siebert went to third on an error by senior third baseman Duley Meyer and scored on a groundout to short.

After mailing the St. Louis Billikens Tuesday in a double header, the SIUC softball team tied itself to the school record of 10 home runs in a season. The Salukis have hit six runs in one season was set in 1989 and the Salukis, only 20 games into the season, seem to be rolling off the second year.

The Dawgs have outscored their opponents 74-24 since the season began and the Billikens have proved it is a great system for playing the schools home run record as she belted out the only grand slam of both games. This is Holloway's second home run of the season.

"We hit well and hard all day long," Saluki Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said. "We just attacked well from the very start. Colleen really got us started with her home run."

The Saluki's pitchers, sophomore Angie Mick and senior Lisa Robinson, kept the momentum going with Mick pitching a shutout in the first game and Robinson, pitching her first complete game in the season, having only one unearned run in the second.

These games bring Mick's record to 6-2 for the season and Robinson's 6-0.

The team continues to keep its errors low and runs scored high.

In the first game it had only one error with eight runs on 12 hits and in the second it had only five errors with 15 runs on 12 hits.

"I was pleased with the team's performance," Brechtelsbauer said. "I just hope these two games got us into the swing of things since we

SIUC women's tennis player sophomore Lori Gallagher has been sweeping through the Gateway Conference.

Gallagher's 11-match win streak in singles play is tied for the longest spring record at 15-1 and brought her the honor of G a t e w a y Conference Player of the Week.

"It would be really hard for me to lose a match right now," Gallagher said. "I've been putting a lot of pressure on myself, but I'm not even thinking about losing. I'm just thinking about winning."

Amy Rakers selected to Kodak district squad

Women's basketball player senior Amy Rakers is known for her success on the court.

All of her practices has paid off by being named to the Kodak District 5 Women's Basketball Team.

This is Rakers second year in a row to be selected for the team.

"I was surprised to be elected to this team," Rakers said. "I didn't think I had a chance to be a finalist. But I do think I am honored I was chosen for the team."

Every year the members of the Women's Basketball Coaches Association choose 45 girls out of the nation's nine districts. Out of the 45, the top 10 are selected as Kodak All-American players. These girls are considered the 10 best players in the nation.

Rakers was selected to the Kodak District 5 Team, but not to the national team.

"I think this is a fitting honor for Amy," Saluki Coach Cindy Scott said. "She has been a tremendous player for our program. Any honors that come her way she more than deserves."

Rakers is only one of two Salukis in the Big South's history to be selected for this team.

In 1987 Bridgett Bonds was selected to Kodak District 5. She was the only Saluki player selected again until Rakers was chosen in 1990.

"This is a very prestigious award among women's basketball circles," Scott said. Full contact practice sparks hope

By Wayne Frizzer

It's spring and football is in the air for the Salukis.

The Dawgs are in the middle of their annual spring practice session. The team is allowed 15 practices in 22 days by the NCAA, only 10 of which can be full contact.

Though it might be early in the season, the team is not holding back. The sounds of helmets cracking during the full-contact drills today filled McAndrew Stadium. The Dawgs worked on putting in new plays and running game-situation scrimmages.

Saluki Head Coach Bob Smith said the team is moving in the right direction.

"I've seen a lot of improvement over the spring so far," Smith said. "We're stronger on the offensive line and deeper overall."

The Dawgs are trying to replace graduating players with junior college transfers and freshmen recruits. Key players that graduated included tight end Yogi Henderson, linebacker Kevin Kilgallon, defensive lineman Marty Hocher and running back Antonio Moore.

The team is beginning to feel the addition of the new recruits. Defensive back Scott Walker and wide receiver Dante Wright have both stepped into step for starting jobs. Smith said all recruits are ready to make their mark on the team.

"With five or six practices under our belts, we're getting an idea of who can play," Smith said. "I've been impressed with Walker, Wright, Jay Snyder and Doug Amaya. All of the kids will be contributors over the season."

Snyder is a part of the recall pipeline Smith has established with Ricks Junior College in Idaho. The 6-4, 275-pound offensive tackle played with Walker and quarter back Brian Downey at the junior college.

Amaya, the younger brother of Saluki basketball player Astraf Amaya, is a 6-3, 215-pound tight end. He had played one year of football at the University of Illinois before leaving school. Smith is pleasantly surprised by Amaya's performance so far this spring.

"Doug hasn't been in uniform in three years," Smith said. "That's a long lay-off for an athlete. But Doug has been outstanding so far this spring."

Amaya joins a talented group of wide receivers and tight ends. Newcomers Wright and Amaya are competing with sophomores Kevin Jones and Billy Swain, junior Jake Tests and senior Adam Oliver. Smith said the receivers are very deep coming into the season.

"We are very talented at the receiver position," Smith said. "We've got a talented-type receiver and the addition of Wright and Amaya has upped our dimension. He's small, but he's very quick.

At the end of the practice, Smith gathered his team and restated his goal for the spring session.

"There will be no wasted time out here," Smith said.

Communist group supports Yeltsin's bid for presidency

MOSCOW (UPI) — A group of Communist Party deputies in the legislature of the Russian republic threw its support Tuesday behind Boris Yeltsin's directed presidency for the Soviet Union's largest state. Alexander Ruskoi, a former hero pilot in Afghanistan, summed up the sixth day of the Russian Congress of People's Deputies by breaking with Communist hard-liners and forming a new bloc of 179 deputies called Communists for Democracy. The announcement was a major blow to the hard-liners, who have blocked the Congress from even placing on the agenda the question of changing the Russian Federation Constitution to guarantee that the Russian Federation will have a popularly elected president. The 179 votes, if Ruskoi can deliver them, could break the deadlock at the Congress, where the Communist conservatives and liberals have about the same number of supporters. ‘Textbook’ countdown begins for Atlantis

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Engineers started a "textbook" countdown Tuesday for the shuttle Atlantis, readying the ship for blustery Friday on a flight featuring the first post-Challenger spacewalk and the launch of a new astronomy satellite. Atlantis' engine compartment was scaled for flight Monday and engineers started the shuttle's countdown on time at 4:30 a.m. Tuesday after resolving minor problems with the ship's robot arm that delayed closing the payload bay door. "Things are looking good, the launch team is back in the saddle again," said NASA test director Al Solde. "Everybody is very happy to be getting ready to launch after a four- to five-month hiatus here and things are running very, very, very smoothly. I couldn't ask for much better." Atlantis' five-member crew was scheduled to fly to the Kennedy Space Center later in the day for final preparations.

Iraq may blame coalition for town's devastation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department expressed concern Tuesday that Iraq will blame the U.S.-led coalition for the inhumane act of killing an Iraqi town caused by a furious attack by Saddam Hussein's forces. Spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said the government of Iraq "seems to be in the process of leveling substantial portions of the Turkoman town of Tuz Kharmate, which is located approximately 40 miles south of Kirkuk. "This area was the scene of heavy fighting between dissidents and government forces last month," she said. "My point in telling this to you, in bringing it to your attention; if true as past form, the Iraqis may well start claiming that the damage was done by the coalition or in the fighting."

Daley re-elected as mayor, despite low voter turnout

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Richard M. Daley was re-elected Tuesday amid record-low voter turnout, winning his first full term in the office his father held longer than any other mayor. In an unofficial count of 991 of the city's 2,912 precincts, Daley had 131,410 votes to 46,377 for Harold Washington Party candidates R. Eugene Pincham and 8,185 for Republican George Gottlieb. The easy victory is expected to pave the way for Daley to take a more vocal leadership role in the city's administration. As he served the last two years of the late Harold Washington's term, he spent much of his time in low-key coalition building. Elections officials said Tuesday's turnout was only about 46 percent of total registration.

Hospital to expand surgery, radiology to meet future needs

By Amy Cooper
Staff Writer

Improvements to the Memorial Hospital of Carbondale will give employees and patients more room to move the future.

Memorial Hospital will start designing plans for expansion within the next three months and construction is scheduled to start January 1992, Hospital Administrator George Maroney said.

The five-year, $22 million project will help the hospital correct its inefficiency problems and offer more advanced medical technology, he said.

"We have a whole host of things to improve," he said, "We've simply run out of space." Funding for the improvements will come from hospital operations, loans, expected profits and fund-raising projects, he said. Maroney said the first phase of the project will improve the capacity of the outpatient surgery unit. Modern technology will be more geared toward outpatient surgeries versus in-patient procedures, he said.

A major emphasis of the project will be a trend toward same-day surgeries, he said.

Jon Land, technical director of radiology, said his department needs the extra space the second phase of the project will provide.

"We're all looking forward to getting new quarters to kind of stretch out in," he said. "We wish it could have happened sooner." In addition to the expanded X-ray equipment and administrative space, the project will help the Memorial Hospital improve the outpatient space the second phase of the project will provide.

Officials are awaiting the results of an autopsy to determine the cause of death of a 19-year-old SIUC student.

Tiffany A. Harunan, sophomore in art, hoists Stockwell's creation, "View From Above, Below," above the walkway at the north end of Faner Hall. Stockwell's work will be on display along with other student work until April 12.

According to SIUC Police reports, at 6:18 p.m. Officer Maude Hamilton was dispatched to 1435 Neely in reference to a female having heart problems.

When the officer arrived, Hartman was lying on a bed in the room. Hartman's boyfriend, Phil G. Taylor, and her roommate, Melinda A. Anderson, were in the room at the time. They told the officer Hartman's heart was beating fast and although it was something that had happened to her before, it had never lasted so long.

When the ambulance arrived, Hartman was conscious. After the paramedics started monitoring Hartman's heartbeat, she lost consciousness, according to police reports. Another ambulance was contacted for assistance.

Hamilton reported that she and the paramedics applied cardio-pulmonary resuscitation.

Hartman was stabilized and transported to the hospital about 9 p.m. and pronounced dead an hour later.

Brady Bill provides better gun legislation

IF PRESIDENT BUSH WANTS to take a shot at successfully fighting U.S. crime, his best bet may lie in supporting the Brady Bill. This federal bill would require a seven-day waiting period before any over-the-counter handgun purchase could be completed. In this week-long delay, police could check up on buyers before issuing a gun.

Such measures did not exist in Texas 10 years ago, when John Hinckley Jr. purchased the revolver in Dallas he used in his assassination attempt on President Reagan in Washington.

IN FACT, HINCKLEY SAID IN 1989, "I believe I would not have gone forward with the effort to shoot the president" if a purchase waiting period had been in effect.

The bill refers to James Brady, the White House Press Secretary shot in the head during this attempt. It would keep certain persons, such as criminals or the disturbed, from easily buying guns in states where gun sales currently are not regulated.

In 1989, 29 states carried legislation for waiting periods ranging from 48 hours to 15 days. This bill would require remaining states to adhere to the seven-day rule.

WAITING PERIODS, THEN, PROVIDE a "weeding-out" process for buyers and inevitably protects the general public from certain individuals purchasing weapons for illegal means.

The delay also upholds the constitutional right to bear arms; the bill would merely postpone—not prevent—people from purchasing arms. But under this law, citizens would be evaluated for the benefit of others.

Bush and his administration have been opposed to such legislation because they feel it would fail to catch the criminals who obtain guns illegally rather than through gunshop purchases.

INSTEAD, BUSH WANTS legislation with tougher mandatory sentencing and more severe federal penalties for the use of guns in crime.

Both proposals, however, work hand-in-hand; while Bush's support of the bill would not only be a right move in tackling the domestic issues his critics feel he ignores, it would advance the fight against crime in a major way.

Quotable Quotes

"There's a definite need for sarcasm when the situation is so bleak."—Student Craig Wilson said in reference to the April 1 mock protest on campus proclaiming the lack of problems in the United States.

"No matter how good your grades are, no matter how many courses you've had, there's just something about leaving your own culture in order to experience another."—said Associate Professor of Design Larry Busch about students attending a Greek campus through an SIUC program.

"One guy wrote me, 'When you're in first place, why don't you put a stick of dynamite on your head and blow yourself up?'"—Brandy Johnson, the 17-year-old U.S. gymnast in the 1988 Olympics, said about her retirement from the sport after receiving threatening calls and having nightmares about gym injuries.

I have recently been informed by a friend in Chicago that baseball card size memorabilia of the Gulf War is being produced. The cards are basically the same as baseball cards except that they have pictures of weapons instead of players.

One of the more popular ones is the scud missile card. This irritates me to know that death machines are now treated as equal to sports collectibles. I cannot bear to see that kids are being brought up to think that the killing of others is cool or even acceptable.

In a related incident I saw sand colored tanks and jeeps for sale in a store in Carbondale. Sure other similar toys such as GI Joe have been created, but when something like these Gulf War toys are which are linked to an actual event, kids think it must be all right if grownups are using the real thing.

In a country where murder is illegal how could something such as war possibly be put in such a positive light?

Kids associate toys with fun and goodness and if killing is a part of this fun I think that this country has a serious problem to deal with.—Jon Le Grand, j uior, liberal arts.

University in Normal, the Board of Higher Education announced how it would allocate the $51.9 billion higher education spending plan proposed last month by Gov. Jim Edgar.

The plan would increase education spending by only 1.9 percent, lower than the $5 billion increase money for increased student aid. No funds were allocated for faculty or staff pay raises.

Under the governor's budget, SIU would get $68.4 million, about $900,000 more than what was allocated in Fiscal Year 1991.

SIU would be allocated about $67 million, about $800,000 more than the 1990 appropriations.

Both campuses plus the SIU Central Administration would receive $238 million combined, about $1.8 million more than its 1991 allocation, the $238 million amount is about $17 million less than the SIUE's original request made in January.

But Garrett Deakin, Executive Assistant for External Relations for SIU, said because of the fiscal constraints on the state, SIU is fortunate under the governor's proposal.

"This is a tough budget," he said. "We would love to have more, but for us to hang on to this it will be a challenge.

The potential for even deeper cuts is especially great this year as Democratic lawmakers look at the programs to cut so they can restore money to public assistance agencies.

Edgar slashed assistance payments and medical aid for the poor in his proposed, $26 billion state budget for next year.

Land said the expansion and improvements will allow for more patient services.

Maroney said the project also will expand the Cancer Center, operating rooms, the pediatrics department, the obstetrics department and parking lot space.

The operating rooms are the same size as when they were built in 1969 and pediatrics, one of the oldest departments, has never been visually upgraded, he said.

Several million dollars will go toward improving the electrical and air-conditioning systems to increase the hospital's heating and cooling capacity.

The Cable News Network executive vice president said the station’s $22 million war coverage has changed the nature of world news.

In a speech at SIUC on Tuesday, Ed Turner said other news channels couldn’t compete with CNN after its coverage of the war.

CNN was the only station there around the clock sending news to most of the civilized world via satellite, he said.

“Our 4-way transmitter, which operates like a walkie-talkie was positioned in Amman, Jordan. How it survived after the Iraqis discovered we were transmitting straight to Atlanta, Ga., we don’t know,” Turner said, “I suppose they thought it would be in their best interests that the world know what was going on.”

Because CNN’s coverage was unprecedented, The network received many complaints from the public for its.

CNN’s Executive Vice President said.

“Those that complain will be highlighted and summarized in the Daily Egyptian News, Communications Building, Room 126. The brief will be published only once and only as space allows.”

CNN dominated war coverage says executive

By Kylie Robertson

A survey published in Newsweek magazine during the war showed, however, that only 26 percent of the people surveyed disagreed with CNN’s involvement.

Turer said at least there was 68 percent common sense out there and around the same thing had to be a silent majority.

Thems that complained should realize that CNN’s work is public service and cannot be uninformed,” he said.

“It is amazing what technology is available to us, “he added. “I can’t understand why people don’t want to use it.”

Turer said that CNN dominates hard news coverage in the United States. The other channels are left to highlight and summarize the news CNN has already told, he said.

“While other stations are laying off people, we are expanding,” Turner said.

Hate groups, prejudice focus of Holocaust week programs

By Jefferson Robbins
Staff Writer

Artists, scholars, clergymen and volunteer will revive the memory of the Nazis and their victims in an effort to keep hopes that history never repeats itself.

Local religious groups and some SIUC organizations are sponsoring Holocaust Remembrance Week, which begins Monday, April 8.

The week-long observance includes a day of prayer, a seminar on the current power of hate groups as the result of several social factors, including a philosophy called American nativism. The day also will feature a program by the Department of Interfaith Ministries, which will include a workshop on interfaith concerns.

The seminar, given by Leonard Zon, president of the Jewish Democratic Renaissance in Atlanta, will focus on the rise of racist organizing in the U.S. and claim the Holocaust was either justifiable or a real threat.

The seminar will be held from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Monday at the Student Center Ballroom A. Zon said the seminar will also cover the rise of intolerance in the U.S.

The seminar will conclude with a day of action on April 9. Zon said he has been asked to speak on the topic of the Holocaust and its impact on the future of the world.

A Day of Prayer and Action will be held from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. at First Baptist Church, 2100 Bald Knob Cross Road, and the Bald Knob Cross will be lit.

The Oscars are coming to Carbondale this week.

Student Programming Council will present Oscars’ Week honoring two award-winning films.

“Dances With Wolves” and “GoodFellas” will be shown in the Student Center Auditorium.

Al Reitz, SPC film chairperson, said SPC expects a high turnout for this event.

“(The week’s schedule) kept coming together. We were down to the point where Kevin Costner was going to show,” he said in reference to his officers trying to get Costner to make a personal appearance.

“But he was unavailable,” he said.

Costner swept the Academy awards with the film in which he wrote, directed and starred in — “Dances With Wolves.” The film received seven Oscars.

The movie is a drama about a Civil War hero who befriends a tribe of Sioux Indians while he was living at one of the last Old West outposts.

More importantly, the film broke several of Hollywood’s remaining stereotyped barriers for Native Americans.

Reitz said representatives of Friends of Native Americans will be on hand for the showing of “Dances With Wolves” and promotion of Native American Awareness Week.

Dar Walks Out, senior in health care and council chief for Friends of Native Americans, said the film hit home for her, literally.

She said she went to see the film the day it opened and was surprised when the tribe portrayed in the movie was the same as the very same part of her own — the Pine Ridge Sioux reservation in South Dakota.

The reservation is home to 27,000 Sioux and one of many reservations around the area.

“I could not believe it. I thought I recognized part of my family, but I wasn’t sure,” Walks Out said.

She said she went back to see the film at least four times until she was positive.

Walks Out will give a short speech before the film.

Reitz said Friends of Native Americans will hand out pamphlets and add to the cultural aspects of the showing.

“Dances With Wolves” will be shown at 6 and 9:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

The other film, “GoodFellas,” is co-sponsored by Alpha Phi Alpha. SPC will show “GoodFellas” at 7 and 9:30 tonight and Thursday.

Admission for each film is $1.

Solving dilemmas can ease pain of tension headaches

By Barb Fljolek
Wellness Center

Everyone hurts at some time or another, and headaches are one of the most common types of pain. There are many different types of headaches, but by far the most common is the tension headache — the headache most receptive to healing without drugs.

Taking drugs, such as aspirin and Tylenol, is easier, but the pain of tension headaches is a personal choice, and a person runs the risk of “masking” the body’s message. Believe it or not, pain can be a positive message to help a person look at what’s out of balance in one’s life.

Many people tend to think externally when trying to decipher the message behind the pain. They think, “It’s my job, my relationships, my housing that needs to change.” That may be true, but in many cases, the problem may be an internal one, such as worrying too much, not expressing emotions or not trusting one’s own intuitions. Individuals experience tension and stress that may lead to headaches in their own unique way and must find their own plan to reduce it.

Actions that may help are:
- Keeping a personal journal to record pain and notice patterns.
- Learning ways to communicate with discomfort through meditation or imagery.
- Examining diet — not only food, but noting all sensory inputs including noise, lighting and other positive or negative environmental factors.
- Cultivating sensitivity to internal messages through relaxation techniques.

Specific practical measures such as the use of heat, cold, massage, stretching, deep muscle relaxation or regular exercise may help. Some of these methods work by stimulating the release of natural body pain killers known as endorphins.

Often when pain arises in the body, muscles tighten around the area of pain. The fear and dread of the unpleasant then magnifies the pain.

Like closing one’s hand on a burning coal, the tighter one squeezes, the deeper one burns. Learning how to mentally relax when in pain often helps to significantly reduce the discomfort of the tension headaches.

If a person believes headaches are related to tension, instruction in muscle relaxation, deep breathing techniques, yoga, biofeedback, imagery or other stress management strategies are available by making an appointment at the Wellness Center, a part of the Student Health Program, at 536-4441.

Cash prize, professional judging highlight logo design competition

By Omonpee O. Whitfield
Staff Writer

For the first time, SIUC Women’s Studies will award cash to the first-place winner in its annual logo contest.

In preparation for this year’s “Take Back the Night/Women’s Safety Week,” Women’s Studies is sponsoring a logo contest and awarding $73 to the person who designs the best “Take Back the Night” logo.

Kris Wessel, Women’s Safety Week committee member, said this is the first year a cash award has been offered as a prize and the first time the contest has been judged by professional artists.

Women’s Safety Week committee member Lisa Hollabaugh said by adding a cash prize and professional artists, the competition is open to more people.

“We wanted it to be a very open competition,” Hollabaugh said. “We had professional jurors added and we offered a cash prize because we wanted to give people some incentive to enter.”

Entry forms may be obtained from Debbie Morrow at Women’s Studies and entries should be returned by Friday.

Graduate Council may support changes to doctoral program

By Natalie Boehme
Staff Writer

The Graduate Council will decide Thursday whether or not to back a recommendation to change SIUC’s doctoral program. Attempting to keep up with SIUC’s doctoral college the Graduate Council Program Review Committee recommended discontinuing the molecular science program, and put back the higher education program and increasing the anthropology and physics programs. The recommendations will be presented to Benjamin Shepherd, vice president for academic affairs and research, if the council votes to support the committee’s proposal.

John H. Yopp, John, Graduate School dean, said the committee made these recommendations after two years of research into SIUC’s doctoral program. The committee rated the Graduate School departments in terms of quality, cost-effectiveness, and contribution to the University as a whole.

Road repairs close city streets, cause delays

By Sherry L. Wilcox
Staff Writer

As work on the east-west couple continues, another intersection will close for road repairs. The intersection of Old Main Street and West Main Street will be closed for three weeks as Illinois Department of Transportation workers reconstruct the pavement and replace curbs and gutters. Work on the couple began July 1990 and IDOT engineers expect it to be completed some time in late October.

In addition to the continuing work on the couple, motorists traveling south of Carbondale may meet with delays. Illinois Route 166 is closed three miles south of Illinois Route 13 because of bridge construction at the south fork of the Saline River. The highway closed Tuesday morning. The bridge will remain closed to traffic until Friday at 7 a.m. Local traffic will be able to use the highway on either side of the bridge.

Old Comiskey Park to come tumbling down

CHICAGO (UPI) — The last person to take a swing at old Comiskey Park will be the crow behind the wrecking ball today when demolition begins in earnest at baseball's oldest ballpark.

Once known as the "Baseball Palace of the World," home to the Chicago White Sox since the first game was played there July 1, 1910, the brick stadium soon will be a parking lot.

"When the fans come out for the home opener April 18 (at the new Comiskey Park), they'll still hardly notice a thing — maybe an opening on the east end where right field used to be," said Larry Kolko of Speedway Wrecking Co. "But we hope to have it pretty much done by October when the Sox start playing in the World Series across the street."

Speedway's crews have been dismantling the ballpark's interior since March 1. The seats are gone and for sale at $250 apiece, with the money to benefit the White Sox Charities.

The infill dirt was moved to the new stadium, while the grass was replanted at a city park. The old scoreboard is still standing, but that is for sale, too.
