2 New Department Chairmen, International Dean Named

William J. McKeefery, dean of academic affairs, has been assigned to handle the affairs of the dean's office for the School of Business on a temporary basis.

He will be filling in for Robert E. Hill, dean of the school, who is in Europe and who is leaving SIU upon his return to assume the presidency of Chico State College, Chico, Calif.

McKeefery recently has been serving temporarily as dean of the International Services Division. However, a new dean, Oliver J. Caldwell, was appointed Wednesday by the Board of Trustees.

Assisting McKeefery at the School of Business will be David Bateman, instructor in management, in matters pertaining to the school's undergraduate program.

Charles H. Hindersman, professor of marketing, will assist McKeefery in matters pertaining to the business graduate program.

Don Hellriegel, instructor in management and assistant to the dean, is carrying out the responsibilities for the Bureau of Business Research until Arthur Prell, associate professor of marketing and director of the bureau, completes a research assignment.

Manager Named For Carbondale

Willie Norman, 36, city manager of Pinellas Park, Fla., has been hired as Carbondale's city manager.

Norman accepted the $14,000-a-year-job by phone Tuesday night. He will start work Sept. 1.

The City Council is expected to take formal action of the appointment at its meeting next Monday. However, the action will be just a legal formality because all members of the council were at a meeting Tuesday night when the selection was made.

Norman's selection apparently had the approval of members of a citizens group which sat with the Council to draft the ordinance creating the city-manager plan for Carbondale. They expressed their opinion on Norman and the other leading candidate before the Council members decided in favor of Norman.

The Carbondale League of Women Voters was a prime mover behind the turnout of voters who approved the change to a city manager plan last May 24 by a two-to-one margin.

Morris Names 9-Man Committee to Study University's Intercollegiate Athletics Policy

A nine-man study commission to review SIU's intercollegiate athletics program has been named by President Delyte W. Morris.

The group, which also will include two ex-officio members, will form the nucleus for a comprehensive study of existing athletics policies and the place of sports in the total University program. Yet to be named is a panel of three outside consultants who will concentrate on long-range questions of philosophy and general policy relating to athletics. That group will include a former athlete now distinguished in another proprofession, a veteran administrator of athletics at a "big" sports school and an educator.

Charles Tenney, vice president for planning and review, said he hoped the joint studies would be completed for "implementation of an overall University athletic policy during the 1967-68 school year."

Heading the group named by Morris Wednesday will be John Voigt, executive officer of the University's General Studies program.

Named faculty representatives were Robert Steinkellner, associate professor of education at the Edwardsville campus, and Kenneth Van Lente, professor of chemistry at Carbondale.

Student body representatives will be John Barnes, Carbondale campus junior from Pittstown, N.J., and Charles Papp of Granite City, a sophomore at Edwardsville.

Edwardsville banker Arthur Boeker will serve as a public representative and Roger Spear, Carbondale insurance man and former high school coach, will represent the SIU alumni.

Trustees Defer Action on Budget

The SIU Board of Trustees named two new department chairmen and a new dean of the International Services Division at its meeting in Edwardsville Wednesday.

Frank Thomas, associate professor of geography, was named chairman of the Department of Geography. He replaces Robert A. Harper, who requested reassignment to full-time teaching duties.

J. R. Zimmerman, who has taught at the University of Colorado and has been senior research technologist with the Socony Mobile Oil Co., was named chairman of the Department of Physics and Astronomy.

Martin J. Arvin, professor of physics, has been acting chairman of the department.

The new dean of International Services Division is Oliver J. Caldwell. He also will serve as professor of higher education. Caldwell has been on faculties and commissions dealing with colleges in China, has been acting associate commissioner of the U.S. office of Education, and has been a visiting professor at the University of Maryland.

William J. McKeefery, dean of academic affairs, has been serving as head of the division on a temporary basis. Robert Jacobs, former dean, was re-assigned earlier this year to work with the vice president for student and area services in the area of international students.

Other faculty appointments included:

Gunmar Boalt, dean of the Stockholm, Sweden, School of Social Work and Administration, to serve during the winter quarter as visiting professor of sociology.

Erwin E. Graue, a professor at the University of Idaho, to serve as visiting professor in the Business Division, and Avery D. Pratt, from the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, as visiting professor of animal industry.

Edelman to Address Graduates

MILTON T. EDELMAN

Milton T. Edelman, associate dean of the Graduate School, has been named speaker for the annual Carbondale campus Summer Commencement Sept. 2, when approximately 1,000 degrees will be conferred.

Edelman also is a professor of economics and has been a faculty member since 1950. He served previously as a branch chief for the Ninth Regional Wage Stabilization Board in Kansas City, Mo.

An authority in union-management relations, Edelman has served as arbitrator in 200 labor disputes. He was appointed in 1963 to Otto Kerner's Advisory Commission on Study of Job Vacancies. He is now on the Governor's Advisory Commission of Labor Management Policy for Public Employees.

A 1946 graduate of the University of Chicago, Edelman holds a master's degree from the University of Pennsylvania and a doctorate in economics from the University of Illinois.

Two books by Edelman in the field of collective bargaining have been published. He has written numerous articles pertaining to management relations.

Edelman's selection follows the University's practice of naming as Summer Commencement speaker an outstanding member of the faculty suggested by members of the graduating class.

Gus Bode

Gus says he's disappointed he wasn't named to the Intercollegiate Athletics Study Commission, after all he's the biggest sport on campus.

Action Party Seeks Students For Housing Standards Study

A student investigating committee to look into University housing regulations is being formed by the Action Party, campus political group.

Alan C. Purvis, a member of the Action Party's executive committee, said students who are interested in serving on the committee should contact Action Party members through the student government office.

He said the committee also would be happy to receive any information students may have about off-campus housing to contribute to the study.

Purpose of the study will be to determine if the current housing regulations are equitable and to find out if the present standards are being met by homeowners.

According to Purvis, members of the committee will study the current housing regulations, discuss them with housing officials as well as students and check out reports of infractions of the regulations if they appear to be valid.

He said the group hopes to organize the committee immediately and begin the study before the end of the summer term and continue it into the fall term.

BAND MEMBERS SOLD TAFFY FOR TRIP

State Champ Band to Play Here

The 78 member Ottawa, Ill., High School band will present a concert at the University Center patio at 7 p.m. Monday.

Members of the band helped finance their trip by selling 4,000 pounds of salt water taffy and selling magazine subscriptions.

Carbondale is one of the many stops of the 1966 tour of the band. Previously, the band made presentations in 23 states and Canada during five summer tours.

The band, whose Carbondale appearance is sponsored by the SIU Department of Music, has received high ratings in music contests for the past 13 years. It has also played for the Illinois Music Educators Association and has shared a halftime show with the Northwestern University band at a football game in Dyche Stadium.

According to Ray Makeever, band director, the band works to maintain the high standards of fine interpretation and musicianship typical of Midwestern American bands.

Motorcycle Banning Will Be Discussed

The student government will sponsor a meeting concerning the proposed motorcycle banning at 8 p.m. today in Ballroom A of the University Center.

All interested people are invited to attend.

'THE STRIKE IS CAUSING A NATIONAL EMERGENCY . . . SOME WEDDING GUESTS MIGHT HAVE TO STAY HOME.'

Food Need Linked to Self-Help

Let's Set Curbs On SIU Cycles

In a recent article in Time magazine a surgeon was quoted as say: "The motorbike is fun to ride, convenient and cheap, but is it worth death and economic loss? If you think so, get your son a motorbike for his 'last birthday.'"

The surgeon's statement was harsh, but shockingly true. The world, it seems, is finally waking up to the fact that motorcycles are dangerous weapons—much more so than cars. It is hoped that SIU will realize this also.

SIU's Vehicle, Traffic and Safety Committee is currently debating the question of whether or not motorcycles should be put under the same restrictions as cars. The committee should choose the affirmative.

Campus regulations state that a student may not operate a "motor vehicle" unless he lives a minimum of two miles from campus. It is absurd to think that motorcycles, which account for the majority of traffic accidents and violations at SIU, are not yet classified as "motor vehicles."

The statistics should speak for themselves.

According to Dr. Walter H. Clark, director of the University Health Service, the ratio of motorcycle accidents to automobile accidents is astounding. There is little comparison, he said.

"Last fall we calculated roughly that 25 per cent of the cycle owners on campus would have an accident this year," Dr. Clark said. "Our figures are not complete, but I believe we were pretty close."

Figures compiled at the Health Service show that of 159 accidents (which include all types) reported for a three-month period, 84 were cycle accidents.

"Something has to be done," Dr. Clark said. "We just hate to see young people get hurt and torn up for no apparent reason."

The traffic violation statistics are just as astounding. There were 2,649 cycles registered during the academic year and 3,231 tickets were issued to cyclists up to July 20, according to the SIU Security Office.

By comparison there were 8,662 cars registered to students and only 4,785 tickets issued to the drivers.

In other words, motorcycles totaled only about eight per cent of the 14,196 registered vehicles on campus but accounted for 28 per cent of the tickets up to July 20.

Motorcycles should be placed under the same restrictions as cars—students should live at least two miles from campus to own one, and stickers should be issued for parking privileges on campus.

Redcoats on Warpath

Americans Losing War Over English

By Robert M. Hutchins

The most thrilling battle I took part in during World War I was one between British and American troops in the Y.M.C.A. in Rome.

After it was over, I asked a British sergeant what started it. He said, at least I think he said, "We can't understand a word you say."

His complaint was reasonable. The British had been told that we spoke their language. They were naturally resentful when they found we did not.

It is not merely the accent, though that would cause trouble enough. How is an American to cope with a radio announcer who pronounces "tire," "tower" and "tar" as though they were all the same word?

The real menace is the vocabulary. What can you make of the sign at British airports, "No Smoking on the Apron"? Should it be "in" the apron? Or in "an" apron? No matter how you read it, there is no sense to it.

When driving along a British highway, you will encounter a notice reading, "Diversions Ahead."

Do not be misled. You are

Argentines Back Walt Disney To Win Nobel Peace Prize

By Charles Keely Copley News Service

BUENOS AIRES—A group of influential Argentines think Walt Disney should win the Nobel Peace Prize. They have proposed his candidacy to the Alfred Nobel Committee in Oslo, Norway.

The movement started earlier this year when Guillermo Cyrulnik, president of the Argentine Association of Moviehouse Owners, formed a committee to push for Disney's selection.

The movement has caught on fast here. Theaters, showing Disney films, are asking patrons to sign petitions for Disney's nomination.

Why Walt Disney?

Theater owner Cyrulnik explained in a letter to the famed producer:

"We believe that no one deserves this act of homage more than yourself. Peace is not merely laying down weapons; it cannot be achieved solely by solving the tremendous conflicts which mankind is facing. We feel that it can be attained only if we succeed in creating the proper conditions in our own minds."

Disney, who "disneylandia" is Argentina's top-rated television program, replied:

"I want to convey my sincere thanks to everyone who has participated in this movement. To receive the Nobel Prize would indeed be a great honor. However, the people in your country have already paid me the highest tribute in feeling I am worthy of the prize."

On June 16, in behalf of his group, Cyrulnik cabled the Nobel Committee to ask them to "award maximum distinction to Walt Disney, extoller of human values. . . ."

Clarín, the nation's largest morning newspaper, has given the movement full backing.

"Disney's actors," editorialized Clarín, "be they named Donald Duck, Pluto, Mickey Mouse, or his marvelous island of dreams, Disneyland, in addition to his televised series . . . put him in a relevant place in human ingenuity."

'I'LL HUFF AND P'LL PUFF -'

not on your way to a roadside carnival. Far from it. You are about to run into a detour. The puzzling question is why the British dialect persists. All the movies the people flock to are in American, and there are no British subtitles.

Both the independent and the government television networks seem determined that the people shall not miss any of these transatlantic cultural achievements. The British get a solid diet of old American movies and old American television shows every night.

And the radio channels resound with the howls of American pop singers at all hours. Yet the battle in the Roman Y.M.C.A. would be just as likely today as it was 46 years ago.

There is every reason to believe that English will become a universal language. But which English will it be, British or American?

All the English teachers in the world outside of the United States and Canada teaching in the schools from Lapland to the Cape of Good Hope were trained in British and are drilling their pupils in British.

In every country there is a British Institute teaching British to natives who escaped it in school. Certificates are awarded from London.

In Lisbon, for example, every aspiring taxi driver, waiter and store clerk (pronounced "clark" or "shop assistant") is enrolled in British Institute. Soon they will be haughtily correcting the accent of their American customers and teaching them to say "lift" instead of "elevato."

We are losing this war. The red-coats are having their revenge.

Figures in Error

Editor's note:

In Friday's letter to the editor by Nick Ciulla, two typographical errors resulted in changes in figures in the letter.

The small fee referred to was a $3 fee; the budget comparison was $18,117, not $8,117.

WASHINGTON—While one-third of the world enjoys Space Age affluence, the specter of famine and starvation hangs over much of the rest.

The unchecked population boom, urban growth and the failure to keep stride in agricultural productivity threaten to turn a frightening number of "have-nots" into "are-nots."

"Until a faster rate of agricultural development can be permanently established in the developing regions," the food and agriculture organization declared, "large sectors of the world population will soon be exposed to a continuous threat of famine and starvation."

Representatives of 16 advanced countries paid overriding attention to the food problem at a meeting of the Development Assistance Committee in Washington.

The Westernized nations agree that young countries cannot rely on food imports alone, that they must increase their own production, improve their marketing systems and seek to control population growth.

This self-help principle is becoming a cornerstone of assistance. In the United States, for instance, the reluctance to foot the bill alone is reflected in President Johnson's Food For Freedom Bill. It directs the President "to take into account (in providing food assistance) efforts of friendly countries to help themselves toward a greater degree of self-reliance. . . ."

Brazil Leftist Plans Revolt

MEXICO CITY — Mexico launching pad for Castro's Cuban revolution, could well become blast-off point for another Latin American leftist.

He is Francisco Juliao of Brazil. He came here into exile after the Brazilian army ousted the leftist regime of President Joao Goulart in March, 1964.

He might well have been left alone and forgotten save for the precedent set by Castro. When Castro was first driven from Cuba he fled to Mexico. From this country he launched his invasion that eventually led to the Communist takeover. Juliao plans to do the same.

"I will go back," the wiry 51-year-old Marxist declared. "When I don't know, but I will go back. Brazil must have its revolution. Every country must earn its dignity in blood."

The overthrow of Goulart, he says, convinced him that violent revolution is the only answer. Goulart was deposed by a bloodless military coup.

Julio denies he is anti-American. "I am a Marxist, yes. But there is no reason why Marxists and non-Marxists should not engage in a peaceful dialogue."

Castro, the Brazilian seems to feel, made a major mistake in breaking with Washington. Nonetheless, he seems to feel Communist Cuba has found the answer to the problems facing Latin America.

Impressive, Inspiring Luci's Wedding Set in Majestic Shrine

By Gerson Yalowitz
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON—The Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, where Luci Baines Johnson and Patrick Nugent will be married Saturday, is a remarkable fusion of majesty and peace.

The lofty arches and towering granite columns inspire awe; brilliant mosaics and seven interior domes impart tranquility.

This is the description of the nation's largest Roman Catholic church given by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Thomas J. Grady, its director since 1956.

Built entirely through public donations throughout the country, the shrine—still uncompleted—is in every sense a national Catholic church.

The American Catholic hierarchy runs it. More than one million persons visit there each year. The diffuse nationalities that make America a melting pot have sponsored the creation of many of its 55 chapels, stained glass windows and works of art.

The Johnson-Nugent wedding will be the first held in the vast upper church. Other marriage ceremonies have been held in the impressive lower, or Crypt church.

With its colorful tile dome and 329-foot Knights' bell tower (the Knights of Columbus donated $1 million for its construction), the shrine dominates the rise at 4th Street and Michigan Avenue, Northeast, much as the Capitol dominates Pennsylvania Avenue.

The church is built in the shape of a Latin cross, a peaked red roof covering all the domes but the great dome. The outer walls are an Indiana limestone.

The great dome, 108 feet in diameter, is a reflection of the Byzantine spirit, bright with blues, yellows and reds.

The tiles form the five symbols of Mary: a fleur-de-lis for purity and royalty, a tower of ivory for strength, the cedar of Lebanon for sanctity and beauty, a star of the sea for the popular interpretation of the word Miryam, the Hebrew original of Mary, and finally the Marian symbol for the Ave Maria, an intertwined A and M.

More than 240 pieces of sculpture adorn the outside walls of the shrine, conforming to the themes of faith and charity.

After climbing several tiers of steps from the street, a visitor enters the shrine through a huge Roman arch, 96 feet high and 22 feet deep. Inside he gazes down a 399-foot flag-lined nave, five more Roman arches narrowing the line of view to the main altar, with a majestic balachin or marble canopy.

Nearly all of the walls of the church now are plain buff brick, but they are to be covered with great slabs of Travertine marble. The domes, still plain white, will be covered with mosaic.

Beyond the 57 rows of pews, in the main sanctuary, a giant mosaic of Christ dominates the wall of the north apse. The work, by John de Rosen, depicts a different Christ, a majestic red-robed Christ, one shoulder bare, hands up-raised, flames leaping from a golden halo about his head.

The main altar is topped by the 46-foot balachin, supported by rose colored columns. A statue of Mary Immaculate is atop the canopy.

Some of the most striking impressions of the upper church come from the numerous small sanctuaries on all sides of the shrine, many containing outstanding works of art.

One of the most notable is the Chapel of Our Mother of Sorrows, a gift of the First Slovak Union of the United States.

Plain, but powerfully emotional, it contains only a pieta, a cross with crown of thorns and a small marble altar.

The pieta by Boston sculptor Ernest Morenon is a work already being compared to Michelangelo's pieta in St. Peter's Cathedral in Rome.

Morenon's Mary sculptured from stark white Trani marble, in simple lines plumbs the depths of human emotion—pain, dignity, grief, affirmation are etched in her face.

The white of the pieta and the golden brown of the cross stand out against a background of green marble, which creates an almost mystical effect.

Another outstanding chapel is Our Lady Guadalupe, where bright mosaic seems to flow in ripples on three sides toward a statue of the Lady. To the left the mosaic depicts peoples of South America; to the right North Americans.

While the Johnson-Nugent wedding probably is the most publicized event to take place at the church, the shrine has been the scene of dozens of major ceremonies.

As many as 6,000 persons have crowded into the upper church for special services. For the wedding, however, only 700 guests will attend.

The beginnings of the shrine stretch back to 1792 when Bishop John Carroll of Baltimore, the country's only Catholic diocese then, chose Mary as patroness of the diocese.

Fifty-four years later the Council of Bishops in Baltimore asked that Mary, under her title of Immaculate Conception, be made patroness of the United States, a request granted by Pope Pius IX in 1847.

It was not until 1914, however, that Bishop Thomas Shanan, rector of the Catholic University of America, which is adjacent to the shrine, moved to interest the country's hierarchy in building a national church.

By 1920 the cornerstone was laid; six years later the Crypt Church was completed. Until the late 1950s, however, only the lower church and the exterior shell were completed. Then a renewed effort was made to get funds to complete the structure.

It finally was dedicated in November, 1959. So far the shrine has cost $21 million. Msgr. Grady estimated that it will cost another $10 million before all the work is done in the early 1970s.

Only a few steps from the Shrine is the Catholic university. This geographical proximity has resulted in a melding of the church and school in the public's eye, a union the shrine does not encourage since it really does not exist.

Like the shrine, however, the school has a national character and is responsible to the American hierarchy.

Founded on May 25, 1888 with the approval of Pope Leo XIII, the school was established as "a national center of Catholic culture."

Pat Should Eat Well After He And Luci Get Their Duplex

WASHINGTON—Luci Johnson says that when she sets up housekeeping in Austin, Tex., she'll know enough about cooking to put together a main meal seven days a week without serving the same thing twice.

"Some people are concerned that we're going to live on a diet of fried chicken and brownies," the daughter of the President told reporters. Though she has "a lot to learn," Luci said she's "quite versatile" and can whip up a stew, a steak, a casserole or barbecue with no trouble at all.

They will be renting a duplex house in Austin. Luci's blue eyes lit up as she described it.

It has one feature guaranteed to please her father, she said with a grin—two skylights that will save on electricity.

Luci isn't sure yet who will be living on the other side of the duplex, but she hopes it's not a Secret Service man.

Demonstrators for Open Housing March on Real Estate Agencies

CHICAGO (AP)—Demonstrators demanding open housing moved Wednesday back into an all-white area on the Northwest Side.

But this time, instead of forming a solid phalanx they split into columns.

One band of 15 went to the Heinemann Real Estate Co. at 5457 W. Diversey Ave. They found the office closed so they formed a picket line and trudged in a circle, singing and clapping their hands.

One bore a sign reading, "Open Housing, God's Law and Chicago Law."

The Chicago reference was to a city ordinance which forbids real estate agencies to discriminate in selling or leasing property.

A small turnout of neighbors looked on quietly. A group of 25 teenagers sat on a curb across the street. A police detail stood by in the warm sun.

Another contingent of 20 went to the McCarthy Brothers Real Estate Co. at 2835 Laramie Ave.

That, too, was closed. Residents of the district said both offices customarily close on Wednesday afternoon.

Demonstrators first marched into this section of the Northwest Side—known as the Cragin area—Tuesday night.

About 250 of them held a praying vigil in front of Parker-Finney Inc., 5043 Fullerton Ave. A crowd of about 500 hecklers stood on the opposite side of the street shouting taunts and insults.

The demonstrations are the latest developments in the campaign of Dr. Martin Luther King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference and the Coordinating Council of Community Organizations, an alliance of civil rights groups, to improve the lot of Negro slum dwellers.

They contend that there is discrimination in selling and renting living quarters on the Northwest Side and in the Chicago Lawn area of the Southwest Side.

Texas Governor, Law Officials Confer on Whitman Rampage

CHARLES JOSEPH WHITMAN

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—High-ranking law-enforcement officers met with Gov. John B. Connally Wednesday to discuss the Charles Whitman homicide rampage which left 16 persons dead and 31 wounded.

Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of the Texas Department of Public Safety; Austin Police Chief Robert A. Miles and Austin Mayor Lester Palmer went to the governor's office.

Earlier in the day the bodies of Whitman and his mother, the first person he killed on his murderous spree, were flown from Austin to Lake Worth, Fla., for services and burial.

Just hours before he slaughtered his wife—the second to die in the murder spree—friends say Whitman spoke of her with almost embarrassing tenderness.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Fuess, a college couple who say they were the Whitmans' best friends, visited him from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Sunday evening.

Mrs. Fuess described Whitman as "always to the point of hypertension, even in his everyday life."

Danville Man to Be Charged With Abducting 12-Year-Old

DANVILLE, Ill. (AP)—An unemployed laborer, estranged from his wife and child, will be charged with kidnapping a 12-year-old girl he kept in his car 15 hours, Asst. State's Atty. Larry Lesson said Wednesday.

Lesson said the formal charge will be filed against Robert Huff, 24, in the abduction of Betty Farrell from in front of her home at Grape Creek, south of Danville about 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Huff was taken into custody by Sheriff Jack Clark of Vermilion County Wednesday after the Farrell girl had been found sitting on the steps of an abandoned store in the town of Belgium, four miles south of Danville.

The girl, dressed in summer clothes she wore when she got into a car Tuesday afternoon was found at 8 a.m. Wednesday. She told a searching party that her abductor had driven her around all night and let her out when the "car broke down."

Clark quoted the girl as saying that when she started walking her abductor went in another direction. When she came to the store in Belgium, she was too tired to continue and sat down to await the arrival of any adult.

After the searching group found Betty, she was brought to St. Elizabeth Hospital in Danville and placed under observation.

The sheriff said he pieced this story from conversations with Betty; her sister, Dixie Lee, 5; Marilyn Ames, 10; and Norma Pridemore, 8.

As the girls were playing in front of the Farrell home a man approached in an automobile and offered them $1 if they could direct him to a Danville address. When they demurred, he offered them $100 to get into the car.

The girls climbed in and the man took them to a drive-in where he bought them sodas. He returned to the Farrell house, and dropped off Dixie Lee and the Ames girl, but sped away with Betty and Norma.

Several miles away, when the car slowed down for an intersection, Norma jumped out. She told a passerby what had happened and police were informed.

Norma told the sheriff that the abductor drank beer from a can as he drove her and Betty around, and that he drew a knife from his boot and threatened her with it. When she leaped out of the car, she said, he threw an automobile wrench at her.

Jet Hospital Hauling Sick And Wounded

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Air Force C141 jet hospital plane landed at Andrews Air Force Base in nearby Maryland Wednesday inaugurating a new speedy system of bringing sick and wounded home to U.S. hospitals.

The plane carried 12 Viet Nam combat casualties and 16 other patients.

The huge jet flew here from Saigon in 20 hours of flying time—24 hours elapsed time counting refueling stops at Yokota, Japan and Elmendorf Air Force Base, Alaska.

This was 24 hours faster than the previous schedule for propeller-driven hospital aircraft.

Reds Vow Viet Aid

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Alexei N. Kosygin pledged Wednesday the Soviet Union "will do everything in its power to help the Vietnamese people expel the American occupationists from Vietnamese soil as quickly as possible."

Delegates to the Supreme Soviet Parliament applauded as the scholarly-looking leader repeated this Soviet promise of support from Communist Viet Nam and its Viet Cong allies.

He charged that the United States was spreading the Vietnamese war to neighboring Laos and Cambodia and said this "poses a direct threat to universal security."

"The continuation of the aggression," Kosygin said, "inevitably leads to a further expansion of the conflict's scope such is the logic of the development of events."

The Soviet premier said that U.S. air attacks on North Viet Nam placed the United States "in a situation of growing international isolation."

Kosygin deplored the split with Communist China and attacks by Chinese leaders and that country's press against the Soviet Union. This, he claimed, "as is obvious to everybody, is rendering a big service to the American imperialists."

He promised to work for restoration of friendly relations and unity with China.

Kosygin's wide-ranging speech also included pledges of support for Cuba and the developing nations of Asia and Africa.

Nicaraguan Leader Dies; Nation Calm

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, (AP)—President Rene Schick Gutierrez, one of the most implacable foes of Cuba's Fidel Castro in Latin America, died Wednesday after a heart attack. He was 56.

Schick was stricken Tuesday, and President Lyndon B. Johnson sent two doctors from the United States to attend him. They arrived too late.

Orlando Montenegro, president of the National Congress, took over the presidency temporarily. An extraordinary session of Congress will be called to elect a successor to fill out the presidential term ending next year.

With the announcement of Schick's death, the nation appeared calm, but the National Guard was ordered on the alert in its barracks.

Congressman Seeks Food Price Freeze

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Leonard Farbstein, D-N.Y., said today he plans to introduce a bill calling for a 90-day freeze on food prices.

In a House speech, Farbstein said food costs, along with other inflationary pressures, are placing an increasingly difficult burden on the consumer.

NEGOTIATIONS CONTINUE—President Johnson gets a multiple handshake with principal figures in the airline strike settlement. Senate Refuses to Demand Arbitration in Airline Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate refused Wednesday to order compulsory arbitration if the airline strike is not settled by bargaining during a proposed six-month back-to-work period.

It was the first Senate vote on legislation dealing with the 27-day walkout, and it left unanswered the major question: whether and how Congress is going to force an end to the walkout.

The vote knocked down an amendment proposed by Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, who wanted a five-man board to hand down a final, binding contract settlement if the AFL-CIO Machinists Union and five major airlines do not negotiate one.

Lausche's arbitration plan would have taken effect after expiration of the 180-day strike halt proposed to the Senate in two versions.

One would have Congress issue the strike stopping order; the other would leave that to President Johnson.

While the Senate argued, then rejected the Lausche plan, its leaders and lawyers worked behind the scenes to draft compromise legislation which would share the responsibility—and labor's political blame—for any strike-stopping order.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., advised the Senate that the backstage huddles were approaching understanding on terms of a bill.

He said it might involve a 60-day back-to-work order from congress, with President Johnson to act if the command must be extended.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said in a statement he is not sure that the government should act at this point to halt the 27-day airline strike.

U.S. Bolsters Unit Fighting In Highlands

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (A)—Clashes erupted in the central highlands Wednesday for the third day in a row and heavy U.S. reinforcements were thrown in to thwart any North Vietnamese drive toward the coast.

Eight-engine B52s came in high from Guam and bombed a suspected North Vietnamese troop concentration and base a mile from the Cambodian border.

Reinforcing the U.S. 25th Division, large contingents of the 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division flew in by helicopters to the rugged area about 235 miles north of Saigon, swelling American forces to 10,000.

Navy pilots returning from Tuesday's raid on an oil depot on the outskirts of Haiphong reported the area was engulfed in flame and smoke, preventing a full assessment of bomb damage.

The target was the big oil depot in the dock area two miles from the heart of Haiphong.

The title changes, which included the change from division head to dean for persons heading seven academic divisions on the Edwardsville campus, were recommended by consultants. ERICH FUNKE

Inventor of Number Language Depicts 'Pretty' Girl as 2.25

"A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody," according to the song, but to Erich Funke, visiting professor of German, a pretty girl is 2.25. Strange? Not really. Funke has developed an inter-linguistic code called Translingua Script, a code of inter-linguistic communication. It is written and not spoken. Arabic numbers from 0 to 9 and their decimal combinations are used in the script.

developed at the State University of Iowa. It is now in a stage of "advanced experimentation."

The language, which is intended for practical purpose, will be useful for world travel and world news services. It could also be used by NATO and SEATO as well as for international scientific information.

Now, back to 2.25. It is "joli" in French, "hubsch" in German, "aardig" in Dutch, "vacker" in Swedish, "bonito" in Spanish, "gracioso" in Italian, "mei" in Chinese or "pretty" in English.

Funke is a professor emeritus at the University of Ohio. He first served on the Ohio faculty as a lecturer in phonetics. He joined the Department of German there in 1931, and became acting head of the department in 1932. In 1937 he was made Head of the Department of German at Ohio, where he served until his retirement in 1960. Since 1960 he has taught as a visiting professor at Knox College. In 1965 he taught at Cornell College.

One feature of the Translingua Script, is that a word or an idea is denoted by a number which means the same in any language. There is no question as to what the writer means.

Funke has published about 40 articles and six textbooks. He has also published artistic and phonetic records.

The grammar of the Translingua Script is simple and without exceptions. It has no inflections.

He was educated in Europe, where he studied at Leipzig, Munich, Zurich and Halle a.d. Saale.

All a user of the script needs is a two-way dictionary of his language and the coded script. He can then contact any part of the world in writing, providing there is a code dictionary for the language of his correspondents.

Funke is here as a visiting professor of German for the summer term.

The script is being

Alumni, Others Play Santa to SIU

By Dianne Anderson

In ancient Troy they may have been leary of Greeks bearing gifts. But around college and university campuses gift givers—especially if the gift is green and spendable—are welcomed with open arms.

A recent national survey indicated that state universities aren't as fortunate as some private institutions, but they aren't doing too badly.

One large midwestern University, for example, has been given a chain of gasoline stations by one of its alumni. Another received as a gift all the business buildings in one block of the state's largest industrial cities.

SIU hasn't been quite that lucky. But from generous alumni and other interested parties it has received some prize gifts. For example:

Burydown Datis and Ornah Farouk, the two SIU Salukis, putting the school in the exclusive company of only 1,500 other Saluki owners in the nation.

A stable of prize-winning Thoroughbred horses.

Two landrace hogs. Some $144,000 worth of oil stock given by the late W.W. Vanderveer, chairman of the board of the Ashland Oil Company, which is now worth $544,000.

There are many other gifts ranging from money for scholarships to sheet music, all of which are collected, catalogued and kept track of by the Alumni Association and the SIU Foundation. "We don't have a fund raiser on the staff," said Robert Odaniell, secretary of the Alumni Association. "But alumni do give to the University through the association and the SIU Foundation. In addition to the individual gifts, the Alumni clubs have Telefund campaigns."

He explained that while the alumni office is small the alumni donation program is growing, and will continue to grow.

About 50 percent of SIU's alumni have graduated within the last seven years. A large number of these people have become teachers or are just beginning to establish themselves in professions. Odaniell is certain support will increase with the graduates' financial abilities.

Jackson County SIU Alumni Association began what is known as the annual Telefund in which alumni ask alumni for contributions. Nine clubs have joined Jackson county and with a battery of telephones have collected over $17,000.

A "smorgasbord" of projects is available for the alumni to support, such as the alumni scholarship program, the student loan fund, the Great Teacher Award, athletic awards and unrestricted funds.

The first research project aided by Telefund gifts concerns the study of premature children. It was felt, according to Odaniell, that since so many of SIU's alumni are in the age group that would be vitally affected by such a study, it would be an appropriate one to support. Charles E. Richardson, associate professor of health education, received $1,050 toward this research.

"We try to channel gifts through the Foundation but some things we just don't know about," said Kenneth R. Miller, executive secretary of the SIU Foundation. "Gifts are sometimes given directly to departments."

The School of Fine Arts and the Foundation joined hands about six years ago and have procured paintings, sculpture and ceramics as gifts. Whenever there are visiting faculty members in art, they often leave a piece of their finished work as a gift to the school.

"In a few years the value of these pieces will go up," Miller said, explaining that many of the donors have yet reached the height of their careers.

The foundation helped to establish two organizations, Friends of the Liberty and Patrons of the University Galleries, to assist in the acquisition of books, works of art and related materials for the university.

With an eye toward annual fund raising campaigns, the Foundation has added a full time assistant director at the Edwardsville campus, Charles Schweizer, a retired Army colonel from the Granite City Army depot, arrived at Carbondale Monday for three days of training and orientation before taking his post at Edwardsville.

"The reason that I feel that Schweizer can be such a help is that Edwardsville is located right in the middle of an industrial area and he is acquainted with many of the executives from his work with the Army," Miller said.

"We are just scratching the surface of the possible gifts from industry," he said. General Electric, Western Electric, Westinghouse, Monsanto Chemical, Shell Oil and Ashland Oil are just a few of the firms that regularly donate to SIU.

"At least 150 national companies have what is called matching gift programs. If their employees make a contribution to their college or university the company matches it," he said. "Right now we are locating our graduates in these firms and telling them of this plan. This has great possibilities for us."

"Our feeling is that if the university and our alumni office can be of service, the gifts will come," says Odaniell. "Gifts come as a result of true generosity and sincerity. "When a person decides to give to a charitable organization as a tax deduction, he is free to choose which organization he will contribute to. In many cases it is his alma mater," said Odaniell.

"It is difficult to determine the cash value of many of our gifts and it is impossible to evaluate what may be received when a person notifies us that we are mentioned in his will," said Odaniell. "A meaningful annual total is impossible to compile."

Land also figured in gifts. Eighty acres in Massac county were given to the Foundation by Howard H. Hays, a native of Metropolis now living in California. The proceeds from the sale of the land is to be used for the restoration of Fort Massac.

A tract of land near Vienna was donated by an SIU alumnus living in Salt Lake City, Dr. John Lewis of Carbondale is among several who have donated lots in Carbondale to the school. His lot is on Mill Street.

Alumni solicitation began 76 years ago in 1890 when a handful of Yale graduates met in New York and collected $11,000 for the development of Yale. It is now a big business. State colleges and universities enroll about one-half of all students but receive much less than half of the private gifts to institutions of higher learning.

Each graduate at SIU receives his first year membership in the Alumni Association as a graduation gift from the organization. It is up to him to renew it after that.

Simon Publishes Civil War Article

John Y. Simon, associate professor of history, is the author of an article, "Colonel Grant of the Illinois Volunteers," which has been published by the Illinois State Historical Library for the Civil War Centennial Commission of Illinois.

Simon describes the problems Grant encountered in obtaining his first Civil War command—the Seventh District Regiment which became the 21st Illinois Volunteer Infantry Regiment—and the movement of his regiment to Missouri "where there was real war."

Simon is executive director of the Ulysses S. Grant Association, which has headquarters at the Morris Library.

SIU Nine to Play In 5-Team Tourney

By Mike Schwebel

Mike Sprengelmeyer, last season's number one man on the SIU tennis team, dropped out of the Nassau Bowl Grass Court Tennis Championships, losing to seventh seeded Roy Moore of South Africa, 6-1, 7-5.

The progress of another Saluki, Jose Villarete, was not immediately known. Villarete has been rapidly improving on the tour.

They were among the 64 top amateurs who began competition Monday at Glen Cove, N. Y., after tournament officials survived a big scare.

Someone "borrowed" the Nassau Bowl for 10 days throwing officials into a frenzy.

The large silver trophy, the oldest in active tennis competition and one of the oldest unretired prizes in all sports, finally showed up in a parking lot just before the tournament.

The tournament also marked the return of the top American amateur, Arthur Ashe, after a six-week layoff.

SIU will have a shot at adding three more baseball league wins to their present mark when they participate in a five-game, five-team affair starting in Collinsville today.

Southern, St. Louis, Offutt Air Force Base, Parsons College and Lincoln College are to take part in the tournament.
