8-3-1968

The Daily Egyptian, August 03, 1968

Daily Egyptian Staff

Follow this and additional works at: http://opensiuc.lib.siu.edu/de_August1968
Volume 49, Issue 194

Recommended Citation

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Daily Egyptian 1968 at OpenSIUC. It has been accepted for inclusion in August 1968 by an authorized administrator of OpenSIUC. For more information, please contact opensiuc@lib.siu.edu.
Petitions Filed to Put Wallace on Ballot

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Petitions were filed Friday to put the name of former Alabama Gov. George Wallace on the Illinois Nov. 5 election ballot.

Gus Bode

Gus says that as long as he might be sent to Vietnam anyway, he'd just as soon be appointed chancellor of the SIU campus of Salina.

Different Look

The original print was rephotographed on high contrast film and not screened as ordinarily done. (Photo by Barry Kaiser)

Petitions to the SPRINGFIELD, be appointed because or tile anywaY. of DlffereDI Look were filed Friday c ..

... Gille that the office of Secretary of State lot as an independent candidate

Illinois election law requires at least 25,000 signatures on petitions for independent candidates, with at least 200 from each of 50 counties.

The board must decide whether the petitions are valid on their face or rule on objections. Objections must be filed by Aug. 10. The board has until Aug. 16 to hold hearings, Sept. 25 is the last day possible for any judicial review.

When reporters noted that the two large bound volumes of petitions listed Jo Danless instead of Jo Daviess County and McKenny instead of McHenry County, McCarley replied, "That's why we filed petitions with at least 300 signatures from about 68 counties."

"We don't expect any challenge," McCarley, and Joe Fine, national headquarters representative, said. McCarley is a Democrat from Prattville, Ala.

Don Ed, supervisor of the index division which received the petitions, said the office of Gov. Samuel H. Shapiro, the board chairman, was notified at once of the filing. Shapiro's office said no meeting date has been set.

The last day for filing of independent candidates is Monday. McCarley said the vice presidential candidate named with Wallace was Marvin Griffin, former Governor of Georgia.

Daily

EGYPTIAN

Southern Illinois University

Carbondale, Illinois

Volume 49 Saturday, August 3, 1968 Number 194

Girl Gymnast Injured, Out Of Olympics

A fluke accident has cost Donna Schaenzer, SIU's premiere woman gymnast, a chance for a berth on the U.S. Olympic Gymnastics Team.

Miss Schaenzer, a near "shoo-in" for the Olympic team, suffered a dislocated left elbow and partially dislocated her right elbow in a fall from the uneven parallel bars.

According to her coach, Herb Vogel, Miss Schaenzer was practicing her compulsory bar routine when she released the top bar accidentally and made a vain attempt to regain a hold on the bar. She fell to the mat, landing on her feet, hands, and head.

"She has fallen like this before, as have all the girls," Vogel said. "This was just a fluke."

Donna, rated by Coach Herb Vogel as one of the best of the SIU women gymnasts, has a list of titles unequalled by her teammates.

She was a member of the 1966 U.S. World Games team, the 1967-68 U.S. Pan American Team, and the U.S. Student World Games in 1967. In 1965 and 1967 Donna was the Collegiate All-Around champ and collegiate runner-up in 1966 and 1968. She was selected as an All-American gymnast for the past three years.

"She has earned many well-deserved honors and thought that she would end her career at SIU by making the U.S. Olympic team," Vogel added. "She is a very dedicated girl and will be sadly missed at the trials."

Donna, a native of Milwaukee, Wis., was "in the best form of her career at the time of her accident," Vogel said. "She was working at 50 per cent better than I have ever seen her. The Olympics was the last goal that she wanted to make and now I guess she won't have that chance."

Doctors estimate that it will be almost three months before she recovers from the accident.
Brink's Messenger Robbed

Of $9,700 in St. Louis Store

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A Brink's messenger guard was robbed "Friday night" and was forced to flee with the money to a southwest St. Louis supermarket.

Brink's vice president Donald Hogan in Chicago said one bag containing $9,700 was taken.

Clark Bray, an off-duty police officer, fired three shots at the robber as he fled from the National Food Store on Manchester Road.

Bray fired from an automobile bearing Illinois license plates.

Free Casino Night Returns

The University Center Ballroom will take on shades of Monte Carlo tonight from 7:30 to 11:30 when Casino Night returns to SIU.

Sponsored by the University Center Activity Programming Board, Casino Night will feature roulette, bingO, solitaire, craps, blackjack and baccarat games to the music of the Ford Gibson ensemble. Admission is free and free game "money" will be provided at the door.

Concerning various secondary figures during the revolutionary period, John Francis McDermott, research professor of humanities, has edited a series of books entitled "Travels in the Western Waters." The first volume, "Before Mark Twain: A Sampler of Old, Old Times on the Mississippi," describes life along the Mississippi River before Mark Twain.

"Interrupted Melody: The Story of My Life" is the autobiography of Mary Jane Lawrence, research professor in the Department of Music.

In addition to the 20 major works, 26 papers and 21 other hardcover publications are listed.
Activities

Business Education Sessions Set

MONDAY
Advanced registration and activities for new students and parents will be held from 10:30 a.m. to 12 noon in the University Center Ballroom B. A campus tour on the SIU Tour Train will begin at 1 p.m. in front of the University Center.

The Payroll Division will distribute time cards from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the University Center Mississippi Room.

The Forest Service will meet from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the University Center Kasakia Room. A luncheon will be held at 12 noon in the University Center Renissance Room.

The Food Service Union will meet at 8 p.m. in University Center Illinois Room.

The School of Advanced Cosmotology will meet at 8 a.m. in the Home Economics Building Room 140B.

The Vocational Business Education Workshop will hold registration at 9 a.m. in Davis Auditorium. Wham Education Building, Dr. Barnes Hare, chairman, will speak at 10 a.m. A lecture entitled "Supplementary Materials Are Aids in the Project Method" will be given by Mr. Eileen Coleman at 10:30 a.m. A luncheon will be held at 11:30 a.m. Mrs. Violet Davis will also speak at 1:30 p.m.

Puliam Hall gym and pool will be open from 6:30 to 10 p.m. Weight lifting is from 4:30 to 10 p.m. in Puliam Hall Room 17.

The Vocational Technical Institute will hold recreation night at 7 p.m., at the Outdoor Recreation Area on VTI Campus.

Sir Flying Saucers will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Communications Lounge.

Alpha Phi Omega pledge meeting will be held at 9 p.m. in Home Economics 118, Actives will meet at 9 p.m. in the Home Economics Family Living Laboratory.

Got a lot to carry?
Get a box at
EPPS MOTORS
Highway 13-East
Ph 457-2184
Overseas Delivery Available

Who treats your car like a Rolls-Royce?

Who gives You lower prices on the Finest quality petroleum products?

Who gives You Top Value Stamps?
Editorial

At It Again

The Chicago Tribune is at it again.

In a recent lead editorial, the Tribune issued a "well-done" to one of the curious pieces of legislation ever to sneak through the house.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. William J. Scherick of Iowa, provides for the cutting off of federal money to any student within three years of a crime committed while participating in a campus disaster.

No only does the Tribune support this piece of arbitrary claptrap, but it goes on to warn its readers that:

"More than 1,400,000 students now receive from 1 billion dollars a year in loans, scholarships, fellowship grants, and work-study allowances. Many of these have worked to overthrow the administration structure, seized university property, or fought police in the last academic year is not known but the number would be high..."

What does the self-proclaimed "World's Greatest Newspaper" mean by "could be high"? If the number is not known, why does it supposedly responsible editorial writer go off making such an assertion?

An intelligent editorial could have been fashioned on the use of federal pressure to kill student unrest. This tactic, similar to killing a fly with a cannon, is another example of big government sticking its nose into the business of the state, a favorite rallying cry of the Tribune.

But the Tribune has found a new enemy: the college liberal. And anything it can do to squelch this young radical pleases its Old Guard readers.

Never mind the fact that, according to the campus leaders, the bill, a means to an end, can rape, rob and murder as long as he does it off campus and he won't lose his loans.

Forget the fact that the three year liability phase has the due process of law doctrine of the Constitution.

And forget the fact that the bill would take the discretion of withdrawing the money from students out of the hands of school administrators who are in the grip of the federal government, a step closer to George Orwell's "1984."

Forget everything as long as we nail these long-haired radicals, these pinks...these young Americans.

Dennis Kuczycka

Letter

No Panacea Sear for Blacks

To the Daily Egyptian:

I have been reading your editorial pages the two days in anticipation of seeing a rebuttal to the nonsense that was written in your editorial the other day. I did not get a rebuttal, only a tolerance to take in hand and repay myself.

The Daily Eleanor hold out two great hopes for Black America: education and democracy. You supported these programs with an assertion as to how much progress has been made in recent years and the joyous pronouncement of how open and brotherly is our college community. — And in a sense he is correct; progress has been made.

Public Forum

The Daily Egyptian. This newspaper gives expression to opinions which we believe are the opinions of the students. We do not hold the same opinions of the authors only. Readers are invited to express their opinions in letters which will be published without censorship, address or context, but preferably typed, and be no longer than 250 words. Letters written by the editorial board will be published in the same manner, but only in cases of necessity. They will be signed "The Editorial Board." Letters to the Editor will be published in the order of receipt, and are subject to the discretion of the Editor, who alone will decide the length and form of letters to be published. They will depend upon the limitations of space and time, the general interest of the student, and the number of letters received. The Editor reserves the right to make editorial changes. The opinions of the Daily are that which we wish to express. We do not wish our opinions to be written or interpreted as opinions of the students. It is the responsibility of the Daily to express the opinions of the students. It is not the responsibility of the Daily to express the opinions of the students. It is the responsibility of the Daily to express the opinions of the students. It is not the responsibility of the Daily to express the opinions of the students. It is not the responsibility of the Daily to express the opinions of the students.

Letter

Activities Errors

To the Egyptian:

It was erroneously reported in the activities column that Pi Sigma Alpha was arranging for petitions to support Senator McCarthy and Governor Rockefeller's candidacy for the President of the United States. Pi Sigma Alpha does not have any presidential preference.

The table in the University Center was obtained via Pi Sigma Alpha for the express purpose of making available to the students the names and addresses of Illinois delegates and to convert the national conventions in the hope that the students would become politically aware and vote in the presidential elections.

The membership of Pi Sigma Alpha is to be encouraged to express their political choice. The fraternity is not endorsing anyone.

Richard Goodrick

President of the University Center; where some of the racist graffiti in the restrooms is left from the old days, before we became "toleration; and where education was not the reach the people that society has oppressed.

The nice nigger, and the outstanding Negro has always had a relative.

The Daily Eleanor held out two great hopes for Black America: education and democracy. You supported these programs with an assertion as to how much progress has been made in recent years and the joyous pronouncement of how open and brotherly is our college community. — And in a sense he is correct; progress has been made.

Public Forum

The Daily Eleanor This newspaper gives expression to opinions which we believe are the opinions of the students. We do not hold the same opinions of the authors only. Readers are invited to express their opinions in letters which will be published without censorship, address or context, but preferably typed, and be no longer than 250 words. Letters written by the editorial board will be published in the same manner, but only in cases of necessity. They will be signed "The Editorial Board." Letters to the Editor will be published in the order of receipt, and are subject to the discretion of the Editor, who alone will decide the length and form of letters to be published. They will depend upon the limitations of space and time, the general interest of the student, and the number of letters received. The Editor reserves the right to make editorial changes. The opinions of the Daily are that which we wish to express. We do not wish our opinions to be written or interpreted as opinions of the students. It is the responsibility of the Daily to express the opinions of the students. It is not the responsibility of the Daily to express the opinions of the students. It is the responsibility of the Daily to express the opinions of the students. It is not the responsibility of the Daily to express the opinions of the students. It is not the responsibility of the Daily to express the opinions of the students.

Letter

Activities Errors

To the Egyptian:

It was erroneously reported in the activities column that Pi Sigma Alpha was arranging for petitions to support Senator McCarthy and Governor Rockefeller's candidacy for the President of the United States. Pi Sigma Alpha does not have any presidential preference.

The table in the University Center was obtained via Pi Sigma Alpha for the express purpose of making available to the students the names and addresses of Illinois delegates and to convert the national conventions in the hope that the students would become politically aware and vote in the presidential elections.

The membership of Pi Sigma Alpha is to be encouraged to express their political choice. The fraternity is not endorsing anyone.

Richard Goodrick President
The Emulation of America

This is the second volume in Blake McKevey's history of the process of urbanization in America. It is a worthy successor to The Urbanization of North America (1960), in that Mr. McKevey has succeeded admirably in reducing a vast amount of complex historical data to a concise and highly readable form.

The book represents an additional service to students of urban affairs which ought not to be overlooked. He has included detailed references to the major works in the voluminous social and political literature on the city in America. The result is an excellent annotated bibliography.

The book imparts a feeling of frustration about the ability of America's post-Civil War institutions to deal with our urban environment. McKevey appears to see progress in the Federal-local programs which have developed since the 1930's, the unpleasant fact is that his final chapter, dealing with the present day American cities, is a condemnation of our governments as struggling with existence instead of finding solutions to urban problems—housing, employment, and race relations— that he outlined in the last chapter of the book for the press period. It is clear that we have not managed to stay even with the game let alone find solutions to the major problems accompanying urbanization.

The component of urban living and the defender of urban political institutions will find a great deal of interest in this book, particularly if they have a work to support their arguments. Specialists in social history and political institutions in our great metropolises appear throughout the book as vital forces behind the processes responding to urban problems. The failures which we have experienced in gaining state, federal, and popular support for adequate programs obviously will not be laid entirely at the door of our urban leaders.

The major short-coming of the book would seem to be its emphasis on formal, legalistic reform. For example, McKevey's constant references to railroad control of state legislatures and his reiteration at the anticipated effects of the reapportionment decisions of the Supreme Court accurately reflects the prevalent sentiment among the urbanologists of the period to fail to recognize adequately the real political barriers of the structural reforms.

Much of the current literature on legislative apportionment indicates little reason to hope for legislative acceptance of reform measures or for popular acceptance in those few cases in which the legislature authorizes structural reforms. Reference might be made on the question of structural reforms that indicate that the legislatures have accepted the recommendations of the people with respect to governmental structure—none of the preferences that might seem to students of the urban environment... have been considered.

Reviewed by John H. Baker

The first of these volumes is really an interesting relatively well-accepted book of half a dozen or more peace initiatives and their fate.

The book is a biographical and emotional testament. Although there is some criticism of the press administration, it came through the reviewer as refreshingly casual and realistic. None of the "diabolical plot" nonsense is found here. Indeed, what the book really points up is the quality of bureaucratic once the wheels are set in motion it is frighteningly difficult to stop them. Several instances, for example, badly timed bombings of the Berlin Wall because of breaks in the weather, but the major

Our Reviewer

George W. Adams is a member of the Department of History Faculty, and a member of the Administration of Government faculty. John D. Randall is associate University architect for the Edwardsville campus.

Conscription: Not New

For four savage days in mid-July of 1863 Manhattan Island, or more specifically, was at the mercy of wild, blood-thirsty racist mobs, made up of both sexes and with their predominating face consistent of alum-dwelling criminals. This was a substantial landing of young manual workers, sometimes recruited from the ranks of the rioters and most of the Kossacks who were, and principal opponents, were Irish immigrants in that period were responding to urban problems. The failures which we have experienced in gaining state, federal, and popular support for adequate programs obviously will not be laid entirely at the door of our urban leaders.

The major short-coming of the book would seem to be its emphasis on formal, legalistic reform. For example, McKevey's constant references to railroad control of state legislatures and his reiteration at the anticipated effects of the reapportionment decisions of the Supreme Court accurately reflects the prevalent sentiment among the urbanologists of the period to fail to recognize adequately the real political barriers of the structural reforms.

Much of the current literature on legislative apportionment indicates little reason to hope for legislative acceptance of reform measures or for popular acceptance in those few cases in which the legislature authorizes structural reforms. Reference might be made on the question of structural reforms that indicate that the legislatures have accepted the recommendations of the people with respect to governmental structure—none of the preferences that might seem to students of the urban environment... have been considered.

Reviewed by John H. Baker

The first of these volumes is really an interesting relatively well-accepted book of half a dozen or more peace initiatives and their fate.

The book is a biographical and emotional testament. Although there is some criticism of the press administration, it came through the reviewer as refreshingly casual and realistic. None of the "diabolical plot" nonsense is found here. Indeed, what the book really points up is the quality of bureaucratic once the wheels are set in motion it is frighteningly difficult to stop them. Several instances, for example, badly timed bombings of the Berlin Wall because of breaks in the weather, but the major

Our Reviewer

George W. Adams is a member of the Department of History Faculty, and a member of the Administration of Government faculty. John D. Randall is associate University architect for the Edwardsville campus.

Conscription: Not New

For four savage days in mid-July of 1863 Manhattan Island, or more specifically, was at the mercy of wild, blood-thirsty racist mobs, made up of both sexes and with their predominating face consistent of alum-dwelling criminals. This was a substantial landing of young manual workers, sometimes recruited from the ranks of the rioters and most of the Kossacks who were, and principal opponents, were Irish immigrants in that period were responding to urban problems. The failures which we have experienced in gaining state, federal, and popular support for adequate programs obviously will not be laid entirely at the door of our urban leaders.

The major short-coming of the book would seem to be its emphasis on formal, legalistic reform. For example, McKevey's constant references to railroad control of state legislatures and his reiteration at the anticipated effects of the reapportionment decisions of the Supreme Court accurately reflects the prevalent sentiment among the urbanologists of the period to fail to recognize adequately the real political barriers of the structural reforms.

Much of the current literature on legislative apportionment indicates little reason to hope for legislative acceptance of reform measures or for popular acceptance in those few cases in which the legislature authorizes structural reforms. Reference might be made on the question of structural reforms that indicate that the legislatures have accepted the recommendations of the people with respect to governmental structure—none of the preferences that might seem to students of the urban environment... have been considered.

Reviewed by John H. Baker

The first of these volumes is really an interesting relatively well-accepted book of half a dozen or more peace initiatives and their fate.

The book is a biographical and emotional testament. Although there is some criticism of the press administration, it came through the reviewer as refreshingly casual and realistic. None of the "diabolical plot" nonsense is found here. Indeed, what the book really points up is the quality of bureaucratic once the wheels are set in motion it is frighteningly difficult to stop them. Several instances, for example, badly timed bombings of the Berlin Wall because of breaks in the weather, but the major

Our Reviewer

George W. Adams is a member of the Department of History Faculty, and a member of the Administration of Government faculty. John D. Randall is associate University architect for the Edwardsville campus.

Conscription: Not New

For four savage days in mid-July of 1863 Manhattan Island, or more specifically, was at the mercy of wild, blood-thirsty racist mobs, made up of both sexes and with their predominating face consistent of alum-dwelling criminals. This was a substantial landing of young manual workers, sometimes recruited from the ranks of the rioters and most of the Kossacks who were, and principal opponents, were Irish immigrants in that period were responding to urban problems. The failures which we have experienced in gaining state, federal, and popular support for adequate programs obviously will not be laid entirely at the door of our urban leaders.

The major short-coming of the book would seem to be its emphasis on formal, legalistic reform. For example, McKevey's constant references to railroad control of state legislatures and his reiteration at the anticipated effects of the reapportionment decisions of the Supreme Court accurately reflects the prevalent sentiment among the urbanologists of the period to fail to recognize adequately the real political barriers of the structural reforms.

Much of the current literature on legislative apportionment indicates little reason to hope for legislative acceptance of reform measures or for popular acceptance in those few cases in which the legislature authorizes structural reforms. Reference might be made on the question of structural reforms that indicate that the legislatures have accepted the recommendations of the people with respect to governmental structure—none of the preferences that might seem to students of the urban environment... have been considered.

Reviewed by John H. Baker

The first of these volumes is really an interesting relatively well-accepted book of half a dozen or more peace initiatives and their fate.

The book is a biographical and emotional testament. Although there is some criticism of the press administration, it came through the reviewer as refreshingly casual and realistic. None of the "diabolical plot" nonsense is found here. Indeed, what the book really points up is the quality of bureaucratic once the wheels are set in motion it is frighteningly difficult to stop them. Several instances, for example, badly timed bombings of the Berlin Wall because of breaks in the weather, but the major

Our Reviewer

George W. Adams is a member of the Department of History Faculty, and a member of the Administration of Government faculty. John D. Randall is associate University architect for the Edwardsville campus.

Conscription: Not New

SIU Halts Hiring for '68-'69 Year

SIU has discontinued active recruitment of faculty and administrative personnel for the coming year to allow for some financial "reassessment," according to Carbondale Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar.

The halt to recruiting follows some financial problems and budget cuts that "make it necessary for us to reassess the situation with respect to fall quarter," according to MacVicar.

"It is entirely possible that we will have more freshman students than we have anticipated. In that case, there should follow a reallocation of resources."

He said it was not a question of having enough faculty and administrative personnel, but "do we have the right kind in places where the freshman and General Studies impact would likely be felt."

It might be necessary, for example, to appoint an additional English instructor in lieu of another "professional" instructor. "While the professional instructor might be badly needed, it would be more upon the English Department that the freshman impact would fall," MacVicar said.

The practice of halting active recruitment of faculty in midsummer is not new to SIU but has not been used in the past few years, according to MacVicar. Existing positions may be filled when needed is critical, on a quarter by quarter or other short-term basis with specific approval of the Office of the Chancellor," according to a memo distributed to all Carbondale campus departments Thursday.

Expert Eyewear

A THOROUGH EYE EXAMINATION WILL BRING YOU
1. Correct Prescriptions
2. Correct Fitting
3. Correct Appearance

Service available for most eyewear while you wait

Glasses
Contact Lenses
Reasonable Prices

DIAMONDS
Diamond Broker
Suite 1 407 S. Illinois
Carbondale
Ph. 549-2221

DIAMONDS

Sohn's Sidewalk Sale
(Last Day Today)
Saturday's Bonus Special

Men's Swim Suits
Choice of Any We Have

1/2 PRICE

Plus!!

Slacks - - - - $2.89 2/$7.00
Socks - - - - $1.79 2/$1.50
Shoes - - - - $6.89 - $10.89

See Us While The Bargains Last!

Sohn's
700 S. Illinois
Negro Boycott Head Threatens Pro Football

Sан Franсisco (AP) - Roger Brown, leader of the Negro Olympial boycott move­ment, Friday threatened action ac­cording to the Cleveland Browns and St. Louis Car­dinals of the National Foot­ball League if they failed to replace the Browns guard John Wooten as the main gri­evance. Edwards former­ly a soci­ology instructor at San Jose State College, asked at a new con­ference that a boycott of games and players lines around stadiums were possi­bilities. Edwards mentioned the re­lease by the Browns guard John Wooten as the main grievance. Edwards, a Negro, and defen­sive back Rose Fichtner, who were white, were both cut during the week. Edwards said Wooten had signed with the Browns to play for another season. The Cardinals were dis­rupted by several racial incidents last year and Edwards said, "The brothers back there are treated like Negroes, the white­collar racists that own the St. Louis team will be dealt with in the same manner." He termed St. Louis 'one of the most racist cities, both in the National and baseball, in the country.'

According to Hazel, the superintend­ent a sign is a mis­de­meanor and can result in a fine of $10 to $100. Hazel commented that the city police and the University secu­rity police have been help­ful in restoring the city's property. The University housing office calls each room and says if they'll send over a truck to pick up signs students have left in their rooms," Hazel said. "In spite of the efforts that are made," Hazel added, "only about half of the stolen signs are returned or reposessed by the department.

Daily Egyptian Classified Action Ads

The Daily Egyptian reserves the right to reject any advertising copy. No refunds on cancelled ads.

WANTED

For sale from Mclntosh to Carbondale 2 days a week, 8-5, W. Woodell, 5J 497.

Entertainment

OTA, Aucustus, Sunday, August 4 at 7:30, W. McTavish Co., 405-497. For Carbondale and Mur­ray. Be at the Colosseum, Mon­day, 8 PM. Be at the Colosseum, Monday, 8 PM.

LOST

We have 100 110 and tags in yellow to sell to buy more. J. A. Smith, 565-497.

Announcements

Have your stories, poems, short forms (not photocopy process) Shop and show quality. 54-497. Announce meetings, grand openings, sales, sales, sales, sales, sales, sales. Please reach this, do not make us pay. fuse. Please reach this, do not make us pay. fuse.
Less Training, No Government Support

Latinos Cite National Phys Ed Differences

By Barb Levene

Athletic programs differ around the world, but the biggest problem noted by three Latin Americans in their home country is the lack of physical education instructors.

The three currently have finished a six-month English course at the Center for English as a Second Language.

Orlando Acevedo, 27, from Zonaota, Columbia, is a graduate of the Universidad Pedagogica Nacional in Bogota. He plans to work on his master's degree in an American college.

"One of the biggest differences in my country is that we play sports all year round," Acevedo said. "The sports in our country are improving, but they aren't nearly as good as programs in the U.S.

An athlete of national fame, Acevedo placed third in his nation in the 100 meter race and fourth in the 200 meter in 1963 and 1964. His time was 10.7 for the 100 meter and 22 for the 200 meter.

"In the U.S, the athletes have an opportunity to train for a long period of time each day, but in Columbia if we get an hour we are very lucky," Acevedo said.

A big problem in Columbia is that the athletes do not receive any help from the government or the universities. "Some of the athletes don't even get enough to eat. This is why the American athletes are far better than ours," Acevedo said.

The coaches in Columbia receive very low salaries, a factor which does not contribute to the low quality of instruction.

Liberto Rodriguez, 24, from Valverde, Dominican Republic, notes that his country's biggest problem is the lack of physical education teachers.

"The physical education teacher in my country is low paid and there is not very much prestige in the job," Rodriguez said. "Chances are if the athlete has a good coach then he will be a good athlete."

Many of the foreign baseball players in the National Baseball League are from the Dominican Republic. "A good example of the caliber of the baseball players in our country would be the three Angel brothers, Juan Marchal, Julian Javier, and Manuel Mora," Rodriguez said.

Also an athlete, Rodriguez placed on the National team (similar to the Olympic team) in the 185-pound class on the judo team. Rodriguez was taught judo by a judo expert, a fifth black belt in the world, has attained the dark brown belt.

"Baseball is the most popular sport; basketball, softball, and volleyball are a close second," Rodriguez said. "The Dominican Republic plans to continue his education in the fall at the University of Hawaii."

Baseballer Aurelio Granados, 19, from David, Panama, notes that the athletic program at SHU has better instructional devices than those found in his country.

The athletic programs in Panama's high schools are similar to those in the U.S. in that there are various classes for a high school to participate in. Class A is for the larger high school, and usually the best athletes are found in that category.

"Unlike Columbia, the government and school system of Panama supply the athletes with uniforms and other financial support," Granados said.

"Baseball and basketball are the most popular sports in my country," Granados said. "This is because of all the American influence in the Panama Canal zone."

Differences in the seasons are noted. In Panama, the baseball season runs from January to March, and the basketball season is from July to November. Baseball season begins in January.

Ron Hansen
Rejoins Sox

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago White Sox and Washington Senators re-wrapped infielders Tim Cullen and Ron Hansen Friday.

The White Sox regained Hansen for Cullen in a reversal of a Feb. 13 exchange between the two clubs. Hansen made the uniform changes as triple play in 41 games against Cleveland Tuesday night.

Hansen, a White Sox shortstop for five previous seasons, was sought to replace slugging Pete Ward at third base.

Cullen, mainly a second baseman, and Hansen exchanged uniforms when Chicago and Washington met in a Sox "home" game at Milwaukee Friday night.

Three Latin Americans discuss the differences of their sport programs in comparison with the U.S. Picture are Aurelio Granados, Panama; Orlando Acevedo, Colombia, and Liberto Rodriguez, Dominican Republic.

Sports Discussion

Faculty Members
Place in Tourney

Two members of the SHU faculty placed first and second in the annual intramural Hand-ball Tournament held last weekend.

Andy Vaugh, assistant dean of general studies, beat Bob Spackman, SHU's athletic trainer in the championship match.

In the semi-finals, Spackman beat Mike Burke and Vaugh each received a trophy for his first place finish in the tournament.

Private Rooms for Girls

$350

for room & board

549-4692

Wilson Manor

708 W. Freeman

CRAZY HORSE

modern equipment
pleasant atmosphere
dates play free

BILLIARDS

Campus Shopping Center

IMAGINE??

A FREE LESSON IN EYE MAKE-UP
1-HOUR Demonstration without obligation

Air Conditioned

Jeffrey's

Loudsmore & Cleaners

WHERE SMART BIRDS GO!

Dry Clean

8 lbs. - Only! $2.00

Wash

30 lbs. - Only 50c

JEFFREY'S

311 W. Main

Dean: "I have been forced to move at the shape that I'm in. Yet I usually find It helps me unwind To pizza at your Village Inn."

The golf is little fun.

549-7323

1700 W. Main

Lesser known fact: Where pizza is always in good taste.