Blockage causes cooling service reduction

By Peter Retzbach
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A blockage in the breaching between the boilers and the smokestack at the Power Plant has resulted in a reduction of cooling service for various campus buildings, according to Thomas B. Engram, superintendent of utilities.

The blockage was discovered last Friday when plant employees noticed a backup of smoke in one of the boilers not being used. Fly ash deposits (unburned coal particles) have accumulated heavily in the breaching, blocking smoke from the stack and backing it up into the system.

Various buildings have been asked to cut back on cooling while the deposits are being freed. Brush Towers, the Communications Building, Wham Building and others have been running at reduced cooling rates. Critical buildings such as Morris Library and Life Science II have experienced no cutback in cooling service, Engram said.

The accumulation of fly ash has become so solidified that workers have used long pointed pieces of pipe and air hammers to free it, Engram said. Most of the blockage will be freed by Wednesday. Engram said everything should be cleared when classes begin Monday.

The power plant has four boilers, but only three are used during any peak period, Engram said. The fourth is usually shut down for routine maintenance. While workers continue to free the fly ash, another boiler has been shut down and the remaining two are operating at reduced rates.

Since about 1960, the power plant has run a full 12-month cycle to cool the campus. Before that, the boilers were shut down during the summer for cleaning and general maintenance, Engram said. This is part of the problem, since complete cleaning and maintenance cannot be done while the boilers are operable, he said.

City, Hill House may face court battle

By Jim Santori
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Hill House's refusal to apply for a special use permit apparently will force the City of Carbondale to the courts.

Assistant City Attorney J. Phil Gilbert said during an informal City Council meeting Monday night that because of the refusal, "there is no other alternative than the judicial alternative."

Hill House is a residential therapy facility designed primarily for drug abusers and a cooperative for treating people with emotional problems.

Hill House operates two houses, one at 308 W. Cherry St. for young adults and one at 512 S. Beveridge St. for juveniles. Gilbert said his only concern was with the Cherry Street house.

R. Corydon Finch, attorney for Hill House, said the city's requirement that Hill House have a special use permit is unconstitutional; even if the permit were granted, it would still subject Hill House to ridicule; and a permit other than a special use permit had already been granted by the planning department.

However, Hill House director Paul Reitman said Hill House is not applying for a special use permit because they would "have to make too many revisions to the house."

The city contends Hill House needs a special use permit because it was unaware of the licensed status of Hill House.

A provision in the city planning department codes requires that a "licensed home or institution which provides for the care or custody or education or welfare of persons, not including hospitals" must have a special use permit.

Finch said the services Hill House provides are licensed but not the house itself.

Finch also pointed out that day-care centers and centers or workshops for the mentally or physically handicapped are licensed but are not required by the city to have special use permits.

Councilwoman Helen Westberg said Finch was "playing semantics" because Hill House is a "24-hour living area" and is therefore different from day-care centers.

The decision to go with court proceedings was reluctantly agreed to by the City Council. Councilman Joe Dakin said he was "not happy with it" but that he "sees no other alternative." Councilman Hans Fischer said it would be "presumptuous to make a determination of the constitutionality of the ordinance" and that the City Council would have "to follow the advice of legal counsel (Gilbert)."

The Hill House controversy began early this summer when James B. Hewette, 502 S. University Ave., and Willard Walker, 310 W. Cherry St., sent written complaints to the city attorney's office.

Hewette had made allegations that Hill House was operating illegally, attracting an undesirable element and overcrowding the area with people and cars. He also objected to the use of state funds in the support of Hill House.

On June 28, James Rayfield, head of city planning commission, said that Hill House was granted a zoning certificate on the basis of its use according to zoning laws. The area is zoned for rooming houses.

But Rayfield also pointed out that if it is a licensed home or institution, it would need a special use permit.

Reitman said Hill House is not licensed and is a rooming house because "people don't have to come here and people who live here are not related."

On July 23, Gilbert notified Rayfield that a special use permit would be needed, because it was "licensed by the Dangerous Drug Commission to provide drug abuse treatment" and that it was also "apparently licensed by the Department of Children and Family Services."

The city then gave Hill House until July 28 to apply for a permit. The deadline was later extended to August 6. When no application was received, the planning commission referred the matter to the city attorney's office.

Vote-buying charges heard at convention

John Oldham, a Reagan delegate from Metropolis, claims a Ford campaign aide offered to arrange financial support for the Congressional campaign of Peter Prineas of Carbondale if Oldham would vote for Ford. Two Ford delegates from Chicago have charged that persons working for the Reagan campaign offered them bribes to change their loyalties. Daily Egyptian reporter Harold Kopolowitz reports from Kansas City. The campaign stories appear on page 2.

Council postpones street widening project

By Jim Sauter
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Opponents of the Northwest Side street widening project won a minor victory during an informal City Council meeting Monday night.

The council agreed to wait two weeks before approving the project in an effort to work out an alternative to the city's proposal.

The existing city proposal calls for Bridge, Rigdon, Carico and Chestnut Streets to be widened to 30 feet. That proposal was sanctioned in the city's Capital Improvement Budget approved by the City Council at the end of April.

The project includes construction of sidewalks, storm and sanitary sewers and street lights.

Objections were raised by some homeowners who said the street widening threatened the social character of the neighborhood. Other homeowners objected to the street widening because it may increase traffic which could possibly endanger pedestrians.

Councilwoman Helen Westberg said the city cannot "apply modern day standards to a 75-year-old district." Councilman Joe Dakin said that although the new construction of streets should follow the standards set by the city, "reconstruction should have different standards."

Councilman Hans Fischer suggested that fire and police departments be included in the talks to ensure that their needs are considered.

Susan Mitchell of the Northwest Community Workshop presented alternative goals and objectives for the redevelopment of the Northwest Side for the council to consider.

Bill Boyd, public works director, objected to the turn of events. "We don't like being told that we don't know what we are doing," said Boyd. Paul Turner, 711 N. Bridge St., who presented a petition to the city council on July 19 in favor of the project, said the project should be "turned over to the men who have the qualifications."

However, Hans Fischer said people "should not get the impression that that the planning is not going to be done by the city because it is."

"We can accomplish our objectives and improve the neighborhood at the same time," said Fischer.

Other matters decided by the council included authorizing the city manager to explore with the Federal Economic Development Administration the feasibility of making a grant application for construction funding for a new public library and municipal building. The council also authorized the city manager to explore "means of financing necessary site acquisition without an increase in the property tax levy. This decision came after it was learned earlier that federal funds may be available for 100 per cent financing of construction costs for the buildings, but that land acquisition for the sites would be left to the city."

Both Councilwoman Helen Westberg and Councilman Joe Dakin said they would not be in favor of going ahead with construction if the city was not able to receive federal funding.

The City Council also heard from the Cable Television Commission which recommended that expanded service to other areas of the city including SIU be examined. A pamphlet about cable tv is being prepared to educate the populace and create more interest in cable television in Carbondale. The City Council also directed the city attorney to draw up an ordinance for council approval that would restrict the solicitation hours of peddlers. This action came after City Clerk Elizabeth Leighty reported residents are often called on by magazine peddlers as late as 10 p.m.

Republican convention

Republican youths convene in KC

By H.B. Koplowitz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

KANSAS CITY — As the delegates and candidates arrived in K.C. for the GOP convention, about 1300 youths for Ford and about 800 youths for Reagan also converged on this bustling cowtown to support their candidates and share in the convention excitement.

Among them was Glen Falck from Glen Ellyn, who is in K.C. with the organized youth for Ford movement known as the "Presidentialis."

Falck, a 21-year-old SIU graduate in English, said he became a Presidential to be near the action and to collect material for a novella.

According to a Ford press release, the Presidentialis are to participate in caucus meetings, seminars and workshops on campaign techniques as well as the convention sessions. Falck, however, said Monday that so far the Presidentialis have spent most of their time sitting around waiting to be bused somewhere to clap, chant and create a spontaneous crowd to make the President look good. "We're a cheering section for the most part," said Falck.

The Presidentialis were asked by someone not officially connected with the campaign "to go to the airport and boo the arriving Pennsylvania delegation," Falck said.

Rick Bannerman, operations manager for the Presidentialis, said the group's function is to "show a large visual support for the President," as well as to participate in workshops.

Sunday evening Honorary Presidentialis Chairman Jack Ford talked to the group and Monday morning the President and Secretary of the Treasury William Simon addressed the group. More appearances by cabinet members are scheduled, including a visit by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger on Thursday.

Falck said the Ford people are "strange" but that the Reagan people are "really strange." Falck noted, "There are so many conservative young people here, it's ridiculous."

Falck said he does not feel he "jives" with the majority of the youth for Ford either because of his "logical liberal views" or comparatively long hair.

"I think I'll vote... maybe," mused Falck. He said he would not vote for Reagan for fear that Reagan would get the U.S. into a war, and he mistrusts Carter, because he "can't tell where Carter's at."

Most of the Presidentialis came at their own expense and the press release suggested they did so because of their common interest in being an "effective force in the political process for the nomination and re-election of President Ford."

Frank Szweczyk, 21, from Cicero, said he became a Presidential for the experience but that he plans to vote for Jimmy Carter, because a lot of Carter's policies are "people oriented."

Chuck Musfeldt from Hoffman Estates, a 21-year-old pre-med student at Jacksonville University in Florida, said he also came for the experience.

Musfeldt worked for Ford during the Florida primary as a telephone pollster. Musfeldt said he was given a computer printout with the names of registered Republicans on it. He called the people and asked if they were for Ford or Reagan.

If they answered "Ford," he was instructed to call them back on the day of the Florida primary to remind them to vote. If they answered "Reagan," he was told not to argue but not to call them back.

If they answered "undecided," he was to make a mark by their names and Ford campaign literature was mailed to them. In two weeks, he would call them back, ask if they had read the material and again ask who they planned to vote for.

Musfeldt said that was his experience that the process was 70 per cent successful in convincing people to vote for Ford, especially among the elderly whom Musfeldt described as "often lonely."

Falck said his biggest gripe so far is with the food. Falck is staying in a dorm at Ottawa College in Kansas. "The food is so bad, the people at Trueblood would feel honored," laughed Falck. The Presidentialis are headquartered at a converted airport terminal a short distance from the Crown Central Hotel where the President is staying.

Area delegate adds to bribery charges

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Ronald Reagan, trying to prevent more delegate losses to President Ford, Tuesday urged an investigation into allegations that Illinois delegates in both camps had been offered money for themselves or others to switch their votes.

Tuesday, on ABC-TV's "Good Morning, America" show, columnist Jack Anderson said John Oldham, an Illinois delegate from Metropolis pledged to Reagan, was offered campaign money for Peter Prineas of Carbondale, a friend running for Congress, if the delegate would switch his vote to Ford.

Anderson said he had a sworn affidavit from Oldham accusing a Ford campaign aide of offering money from the Republican National Committee for Prineas' campaign. Anderson said the Ford aide denied the allegation.

Oldham, 23, is press secretary to Prineas, the GOP candidate for Congress in the 24th District against Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill.

Monday, former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie of Illinois said two Ford supporters in his state's delegation had been offered "some money to switch" to Reagan.

Reagan told a meeting of Illinois delegates Tuesday morning that he had heard about the vote-buying allegations. "I hope there will be a complete investigation," he said. "I don't believe that this is going on in either campaign. I deny it completely that anyone involved with us could be doing such a thing."

Meanwhile, Ford went over the top in the Associated Press survey of delegates. The President's total of legally bound and publicly committed delegates hit 1,131, one more than the convention majority needed for the nomination.

Science dean Guyon named to dual administrative position

The appointment of John C. Guyon, dean of the College of Science, to the position of Associate Vice President for research and Dean of the Graduate School, will be presented to the Board of Trustees for formal approval on Sept. 9.

Guyon's appointment was announced by Frank E. Horton, vice president for academic affairs and research on Aug. 3. W. H. Matchett, chairman of the botany department at Washington State University at Pullman, and X. J. Musacchia, associate dean of the Graduate School at the University of Missouri at Columbia, were also considered for the post.

Horton said Guyon will take over his new duties "as soon as possible" and a search committee to find a new dean for the college of science will be formed shortly. An acting dean has not been named.

As associate vice president for research and dean of the Graduate

John C. Guyon

School, Guyon will oversee the University's research programs and administer Graduate School programs. Guyon will replace Thomas O. Mitchell who has been acting dean since 1973. Mitchell will return to teaching and research in the psychology department.

Chicago lawyer named to SIU Legal Counsel

Arthur M. Sussman, 33, a partner in the Chicago law firm of Jenner and Block, has accepted an appointment as University legal counsel for SIU-C, effective in early January.

President Warren W. Brandt said "We are acquiring an impressively accomplished attorney who has been associated with one of the most prestigious legal firms in the Midwest. Accepting the position involves some financial sacrifice for him, which speaks convincingly of his desire to represent the interests of this University."

Sussman, a Harvard Law School graduate, will replace John W. Huffman, legal counsel for the University since 1972. Huffman established a private practice in Carbondale last year and has worked for the University part-time since then.

Brandt said of Huffman, "He is obviously one of the foremost University attorneys in the country today, and in the future, we would hope to employ his services on special cases that might require his special familiarity and background with SIU-C."

Sussman did his undergraduate studies in Cornell University's School of Industrial and Labor Relations. He graduated magna cum laude from Harvard Law School in 1966.

Before coming to SIU in 1974 (Guyon, 44, was chairman of the chemistry department at Memphis State University from 1971 to 1973. He also served as department chairman at the University of Missouri at Columbia where he was on the faculty from 1961 to 1971.

Guyon, a native of Pennsylvania, received his bachelor's degree at Washington and Jefferson College and his master's degree from the University of Toledo. He received his Ph. D. from Purdue University in analytical chemistry in 1961.

Opinion & Commentary

EDITORIAL POLICY—The general policy of the Daily Egyptian is to provide an open forum for discussion of issues and ideas. Opinions expressed on the editorial pages do not necessarily reflect those of the administration or any department of the University. Signed editorials represent the opinions of the authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Committee, which is composed of the student editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, a member elected by the student news staff, the managing editor and an editorial writing instructor.

LETTERS POLICY—Letters to the editor are invited and writers may submit them by mail or in person to Editorial Page Editor, Daily Egyptian, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and should not exceed 250 words. Letters which the editors consider libelous or in poor taste will not be published. All letters must be signed by the authors. Students must identify themselves by classification and major; faculty members by department and rank; non-academic staff members by department and position. Writers submitting letters by mail should include addresses and telephone numbers for verification of authorship. Letters for which verification cannot be made will not be published.

My sadhana's better than yours

By Arthur Hoppe

Whom should I bump into the other day but good old Milt Haberdash. Milt was always the nicest, kindest, warmest, friendliest guy you'd ever want to know.

"How are you, Milt?" I cried joyously. "Astral," he said, ignoring my hand. "Thanks to a new mantra bestowed on me by the great guru, Huli-ji, my kharma is on the cusp of the Pleiades and I can now contemplate my left little toe for 47 minutes without a thought in my head."

"That's nice," I said. "It demonstrates what intense devotion to improving one's inner self can do for one in as little as five years," he said. "Improvement?" I said. "But you were always a great guy, Milt."

His lips curled scornfully. "Everyone thought so, including myself. But talk about hangups! Do you realize that the first time I took off my clothes and sprayed myself with whipped cream in a glistening group I actually felt not only embarrassed but ridiculous?"

"I guess you were a mess at that point," I agreed. "Believe it or not, I cringed when my encounter partners shouted at me. In Transcendental Meditation I was, at first, totally unable to think of nothing."

"What a handicap! I meditate when I shave." "But after only three years of transactional analysis, Tai Chi and Tarot cards I was at last able to find the real me. Naturally, I loathed what I found."

"Naturally." "I had no choice, of course, but to leave Mildred and the kids, sell the house, clean out our joint bank account and fly to Katmandu to seek oneness with oneness. Poor Mildred. She lacked the cosmic symbiotic mahat to understand."

"Most women are like that." "Not that it mattered. For one must renounce the temptations of the flesh to achieve nirvakalpa. As I explained to my aged mother when they put her in the Old People's Home, this is the highest form of samadhi wherein there is no distinction between objects and subjects."

"That must have been a comfort to her." "But by devoting 14 hours a day to neti-yoga—or, as the unenlightened term it, 'nostril cleaning'—I was at last able to enter The Path of Deep Breathing and after only a year I found I could cause the tip of my right index finger to tingle at will."

"Amazing!" "Yes, there stands before you a man who only five years ago was filled with pride and conceit," he said, lifting his chin. "But today I am perfect." "Well, that's certainly good to hear, Milt," I said. He seemed to notice me for the first time. "Oh, by the way," he said, "what are you into?" "The first cab I can find," I said. Good old Milt. He was always the greatest guy you'd ever want to know—until he improved himself.

Tenure decisions need student input

By Joan Taylor
Editor-in-chief

Students have been left out again. President Warren W. Brandt recently named six faculty members and six administrators to a committee assigned the task of ironing out "problems" with the Faculty Senate's proposed tenure document. No students were named to the committee when there was a definite need for student representation.

Students are needed on the committee because the central problem with the document is that it makes no provision for student input in deciding who shall receive tenure. It assumes that student judgments are not needed in deciding which teachers are competent enough to be guaranteed a job with the University.

It is doubtful that Brandt's committee intends to address itself to that point. Besides deciding that a student voice was unnecessary on the committee, Brandt announced that the meetings would be closed to the public. What sorts of discussion of the tenure document warrant the shroud of secrecy?

The key to a lack of student voice—or ear—in the meetings, which are scheduled to begin at the opening of the fall semester, has its roots in the fact that the document does not allow for student input into tenure decisions. The document states: "Tenure decisions are based on the academic judgments of faculty and academic administrators."

Meanwhile, the document is based on the assumption that tenure is "indispensable to the success of an institution in fulfilling its obligations to its students and to society."

Ray Huebschmann, president of the Graduate Student Council (GSC), suggested to Brandt that students be seated on the committee. He said he would like to see a representative from the GSC and from Student Government on the committee. Brandt was not receptive to the idea.

Brandt declined to comment on what points in the document the administration and the Faculty Senate might disagree upon. However, because the voice of the largest group of persons affected by tenure decisions—students—has been ignored in the document and in the committee established to study it, the committees "solutions" are doomed to ring hollow.

Community-controlled page called for

By Lydia Gabriel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The right to air one's views before the public is often a freedom taken for granted, especially in the island-like isolation of a large campus community.

Although the campus newspaper is available to the public through its viewpoint or "letters to the editor" columns, some form of editorial discretion or gatekeeping activity can bar from its pages opinions contrary to those of the editor. When this happens, however, there is still freedom of access to the advertising pages of the same paper.

With society becoming more complex than ever before, newspapers, especially those on campuses which are large centers of learning, need to adapt to the needs of their audiences. The audiences need to be heard.

Viewpoint, "letters to the editor" columns, even advertising space are controlled by the paper. Variety of opinion itself often looks controlled.

What is needed is a page set aside for the community, a non-paper-controlled forum open to all segments of the community. A board made up of people outside of the newspaper industry could be set up to select a representative sampling of all the material submitted to ensure that all shades of opinions are heard. All segments of the academic community would be asked to contribute their thoughts or comments on whatever is an issue to them.

This, coupled with the old stand-by of buying advertising space to view one's opinion, would greatly enhance the concepts of freedom of speech and access to the press.

Earthquakes kill more than 800 in Philippines

MANILA, The Philippines (AP)—More than 1,000 persons were reported dead or missing Tuesday in one of the worst earthquakes in Philippine history.

The National Disaster Coordinating Center reported that at least 811 dead had been confirmed, 249 were missing and 251 were injured in two major quakes that hit the southern Philippines just after midnight Monday and just after noon Tuesday.

The U.S. National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., recorded the first tremor at 8.0 on the Richter scale, only 0.2 less than the July 28 quake that devastated the Tangshan area of northeast China. Today's quake reached 6.8 on the scale.

A major tremor also rocked central China Monday night.

The official Chinese news agency Hsinhua gave no damage or casualty figures, but it said damage

"was very slight because the Chinese Seismological Department had forecast an earthquake and the Szechwan provincial party committee had taken precautionary measures."

Hsinhua said the tremor was centered about 135 miles north of the Szechwan provincial capital of Chengtu and registered 7.2 on the Richter scale.

Unofficial counts put the death toll in the Philippines at 917, with more than 500 injured and 400 missing.

Among the missing were 11 children swept away by 24-foot waves caused by the quake.

The Philippine Disaster Center said 1,290 families were homeless and 315 buildings, bridges and other structures were destroyed in southwestern Mindanao.

The first quake occurred at 12:13 a.m., when most people were asleep. It sent high waves crashing onto the southernmost coast, sweeping away fishermen's homes, and collapsed schools, hotels and stores on Mindanao, the Philippines' largest southern island.

The heaviest casualties so far reported were in southwest Mindanao, where the high waves from the Celebes Sea smashed houses along the 500-mile coast as far inland as 300 yards.

The government geophysical observatory located the epicenter in the Celebes Sea southwest of Mindanao. The U.S. earthquake center put it in the Moro Gulf, which is on the north side of the Sea and has the southern coast of Mindanao on its other three sides.

The Philippine news agency reported one foreign casualty, a 33-year-old Australian named Roger Hubbiaka, who dies of a heart attack while helping to move his parents in Pagadian City. He had been working on a road project.

Volcanic blast spares villages on Guadeloupe

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (AP)—Scientists say they can't predict whether the spectacular eruption of the Soufriere volcano which had been expected for days is still in the offing after a minor eruption of the volcano Monday night spared neighboring villages and caused no major damage.

The scientists, who have been predicting that an eruption of catastrophic force is imminent, made a helicopter flight over the danger zone Tuesday. Later, they said it was impossible to forecast whether there might be more volcanic activity.

Heavy clouds and bad general weather conditions stopped the team of experts from flying directly over the crater of the volcano on this

French Caribbean island.

Prof Robert Brousse of the University of Paris, who was in the helicopter said:

"There was no damage in the neighboring communities. We overflowed the villages and they're all intact. The rivers aren't flowing with mud. But there is a very dense cloud of ash that stopped us from flying over the town of Baillif."

Baillif was one of the communities evacuated over the weekend as the volcano in the 4,813-foot peak gave signs it would soon go up. In all, about 72,000 people were moved out of the danger zone—more than 20 per cent of Guadeloupe's population.

Rehab Institute gets U.S. state grants of $500,000

The SIU-C Rehabilitation Institute has received three grants totaling more than $500,000 from state and federal agencies to support training and service programs during the fiscal year that began July 1.

The largest single grant—$314,130—was received from the Illinois Division of Vocational Rehabilitation to support the operation of the Rehabilitation Institute's Evaluation and Developmental Center.

A grant of $189,981 from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare's Office of Human Development Rehabilitation Services will help support the SIU-C master's degree program in rehabilitation counseling, taught through the Institute.

A third grant, from the Region V Office of Rehabilitation Services, will support two 2½-day concentrated training sessions on the problems of elderly disabled Americans. The sessions are scheduled for October at SIU-C.

The grant of nearly $24,000 will go toward stipends and expenses for 50 workshop participants and costs of running the workshops.

Guy Renzaglia, Rehabilitation Institute director and SIU-C was the only rehabilitation unit in the eight-state Region V to receive funding for such a training program.

Foreign students' English exams set

The Department of Linguistics has scheduled proficiency examinations in English composition for foreign students.

Any foreign student who cannot meet the schedule may apply to James E. Redden, Department of Linguistics, Faner 3225, 536-3385, for permission to take a special examination. Permission will be granted only with adequate justification for not taking the examination at the scheduled times.

The schedule:

Linguistics 101, "Basic English Composition for Foreign Students," 8 a.m. Monday, August 23, Faner 1030, and also 4 p.m., Faner 3512.

Linguistics 102, "Expository Writing for Foreign Students," 10 a.m. Tuesday, August 24, Tech A 122.

Linguistics 103, "Technical Writing for Foreign Students," 9 a.m. Tuesday, August 24, Faner 1228.

Bass fishermen get a boost from University researchers

By University News Service

Sport fishing in Southern Illinois is expected to get a double-barreled boost from a new 'super bass' being stocked in Kinkaid and Crab Orchard Lakes.

Researchers from the SIU-C Cooperative Fisheries Research Laboratory stocked about 3,000 three-to-four-inch striped bass fingerlings in Kinkaid Lake, near Murphysboro. A further stocking of about 20,000 fish was made in Crab Orchard Lake.

William M. Lewis, director of the SIU-C fisheries unit, says adding the striped bass — usually found in ocean waters — will make for better fishing both by adding a source of potentially trophy-sized fish to the lakes and using the bass to control the overabundant gizzard shad population found in lakes in the Midwest and Southern Illinois.

"Once you stock striped bass you develop an outstanding trophy-type fishery," Lewis said.

He said striped bass put into the lakes this summer could grow to be 36 inches long and weigh 20-25 pounds in five to six years. "People are willing to fish all week to catch a 20-25 pound fish," he said.

The big appetite of striped bass — known as rockfish to some Southern Illinois and Midwestern fishermen — for gizzard shad also will improve catches of other more common gamefish such as largemouth bass, crappie and white bass, Lewis says.

He says the fast-growing striped bass's voracious feeding on the gizzard shad will cut down the total number of shad in stocked lakes and reduce the average size of the survivors. This will give other gamefish more room to grow and the smaller size of the shad will make it easier for smaller gamefish to feed on them.

One potential hitch in establishing an inland striped bass population — they are usually found in the ocean and coastal rivers — is that very few landlocked lakes or reservoirs have the right conditions for the stripers to spawn naturally. Lewis says this means lakes stocked with striped bass will have to be restocked periodically to maintain the bass population. However, he thinks SIU-C will be able to continue this year's stocking and may be able to expand it to other lakes in the future.

The key to the SIU-C stocking program is a new technique developed by researchers at the SIU-C fisheries research unit near Gorham that allows the striped bass to be raised to stockable size entirely in a series of six-foot fiberglass tanks.

Lewis says the method — developed during a three-year research study supported by the Consolidated Edison Co., of New York — avoids the necessity of transferring the young fish from tanks to an intermediate holding pond where they are fed before stocking to lakes. The $240,000 project was supervised by Lewis and Roy C. Heidinger, assistant director.

"Our method is probably the only one that has been demonstrated to go all the way without pond rearing," Lewis said.

He said other breakthroughs in taking eggs from female bass for hatching fish at the Gorham facility will enable the University fishery laboratory to supply Illinois striped bass needs "for some years to come."

Date set for city's 'yard sale'

The Sixth Annual Carbondale Chamber Yard Sale and Auction has been scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 9, according to Dave Rosenthal, chairman.

As in previous years, the " flea market" type of event will be held on the circle parking lot at the SIU Arena. Organizations, clubs, citizens, and dealers rent booth spaces around the circle and sell their wares.

Rosenthal said that last year over 250 spaces were rented for a variety of sales including jewelry, paintings, rummage, antiques, leather crafts and houseplants. The auction features merchandise donated by local businesses. More than 5,000 people attended last year.

Rosenthal said persons interested in renting a booth space may make arrangements at the chamber of office, 217 W. Walnut, or call 549-2146. Rental fee this year is $7 per space, payable in advance.

DuQuoin to see Electric Light

"Electric Light Orchestra," popular rock music group now touring the country, will make its first appearance in Southern Illinois Friday, Aug. 27, at the Du Quoin State Fair.

Possessing a gold record for their album entitled "Eldorado," Electric Light Orchestra has five other albums to their credit including their most recent entitled "Ole ELO."

In addition to their albums the group has turned out hit singles such as "Can't Get It Out Of My Head,"

"Evil Woman," and the current hit, "Strange Magic."

ELO will highlight a preview night of the 1976 Fair. In addition to their performance in front of the main grandstand at 7:30 p.m., a special street dance will precede the concert starting at 5 p.m. and will resume following the show. The carnival midway will also be in operation.

Advance tickets for the concert are priced at $6 with admission at the door the night of the show at $7. Ticket information may be secured by writing P. O. Box 182, Du Quoin, Ill., 62832 or by calling 618-542-2126.

The SIU Women's Club will begin the new academic year with a tea and fashion show Sept. 15 at the Student Center. Club members will model fall fashions furnished by local stores.

The theme for this year's programs will be "Happiness Is." Activities planned for fall include a morning coffee with a tour of the University Museum and Art Galleries on Oct. 5, an SIU football game with a buffalo trot immediately after the game on Nov. 6, shoppers bus to St. Louis on Nov. 13 and the annual holiday ball beginning with a Madrigal Dinner on Dec. 3.

Scheduled for the spring are an afternoon dessert bridge and other games at the University House, Feb. 19; a two-course international dinner featuring Chinese food, March 12; shoppers bus trip, April 2; a theater-dessert party, April 29, and the annual business meeting and luncheon on May 10.

Now in its 28th year, the club has a membership of wives of SIU faculty and staff as well as women members of the faculty and staff. The club's purpose is to offer members the opportunity to broaden and further friendship through club-sponsored special interest groups.

The club annually presents a scholarship to an outstanding woman student. This past May the recipient was Jana Foley of Carmi, a junior majoring in business education.

The president of the Women's Club, Mrs. Roland (Joan) Wright, was appointed the following to her board for 1976-77:

Mrs. Charles (Lila) Klasek, calendar; Mrs. Robert (Jane) Busson, coffee; Mrs. Don (Carolyn) Paige, membership; Mrs. Donald (Earline) Elkins, publicity; Mrs. Linn (Darlene) Long, special projects. Mrs. Ronald (Doris) Brandon will be in charge of bus trips, and Mrs. J. L. (Charline) Davies, babysitting representative.

Officers of the club, elected at the annual business meeting in May, are Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Arthur (Sammy) Aikman, first vice-president and historian; Mrs. Gilbert (Jean) Kroening, second vice-president and program chairman; Mrs. Raymond (Karen) Silverstein, recording secretary; Mrs. Mykola (Theresa) Saproschenko, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Loren (Vernice) Jung, treasurer; and Mrs. David (Wanda) Kenney, director.

Other board members include Mrs. Warren (Esther) Brandt, honorary president; Mrs. Andrew (Doty) Vaughan, retiring president and advisor; and Mrs. Wayne L. (Charlene) St. John, president of the SIU Women's Club Newcomers.

Serving on the membership committee will be Mrs. Kenney, Mrs. William (Sara) Nickell, and Mrs. E. H. (Edna) Hadley.

Festival offering new, old in music

David Crosby and Graham Nash, the Osmonds, and Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons are in the week of activities starting Wednesday, Aug. 18, at the Mississippi River Festival on the campus of SIU-Edwardsville.

Crosby and Nash, appearing on Wednesday, are two of acoustic rock's brightest lights. David Crosby originally sang with The Byrds, perhaps the first true country-rock group, and then later teamed with Graham Nash, Stephen Stills, and later Neil Young to form Crosby, Stills, Nash, and Young. Nash, before his time with that group, was the central figure in the Hollies, where his distinctive high harmonies earned him the enviable reputation of being one of the best "voices" in acoustic rock.

The two have teamed successfully to blend their voices into one of the best sounding groups currently on the road, and their album, "Whistling Down the Wire," is rapidly moving up the charts on Billboard's top LP's.

The Osmonds, starring Donny and Marie with Alan, Wayne, Merrill, Jay, and Jimmy, will appear Thursday. They have been making young hearts happy since their days on the Andy Williams show on network television. Their Festival performance promises to be a highlight of the season for the younger set and family audiences.

Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons, appearing on Sunday, are among the elder statesmen in rock. Their early hits include "Sherry," "Walk Like A Man," and many others, and since 1962 the group has sold over 53 million records. While some members of the group have changed, Frankie Valli remains its great strength.

Valli, with his range from baritone to soprano, has been providing the Four Seasons with its distinctive sound since the group began. With his biggest hit, "Can't Take My Eyes Off Of You," Valli proved his individual talent, but he remains a member of the Four Seasons, and their success can be found in their 17 gold records over the years.

Festival Director Lyle Ward reminded Festival-goers that under a new policy no bottles or cans are allowed at the Festival site.

CB makers readying new 40-band sets

WASHINGTON (AP)—Makers of citizens band radios are rushing to get their new 40-channel radios ready for Federal Communications Commission approval before the scheduled start of sale on Jan. 1.

At the same time, they're trying to persuade the public that the current 23-channel sets are good buys, usable for several years. The FCC agrees with them. Some 20 million of the 23-channel sets are now in use.

Robert Morrison of Patcom Inc. and Bernard Appel of Tandy Corp.'s Radio Shack said in separate interviews that it would take years to replace the sets with 40-channel radios.

They and other major CB manufacturers and distributors interviewed noted that CBers usually talk to one another by habit on the same channel and most listen to channel 19 on the highways because that's used by truckers and provides the best traffic information.

Channel 19 and emergency channel 9 will be on both the 23 and 40 channel radios, although the new ones don't have to have channel numbers.

With the present 23 channels for CBs getting clogged with so many users, the FCC announced late in July that it would expand the number of channels to 40, effective Jan. 1.

Richard H. Everett, deputy chief of the FCC's Amateur and Citizens Division, said the commission's announcement has brought no letup in license applications. They are nearing the seven million total and are coming in at a rate of 400,000 to 500,000 a month, he said.

Few of the CB radio makers seem interested now in taking advantage of the FCC's permission for them to "remanufacture" 23-channel sets they've sold to 40-channel sets if they can pass commission standards. An estimated 80 per cent are Japanese imports and many distributors do not have facilities for the conversion.

This means adding the 17 channels and also making changes to reduce interference with television and other electronic equipment and stamping on a serial number permanently.

The FCC bars the CBers themselves from making the changes.

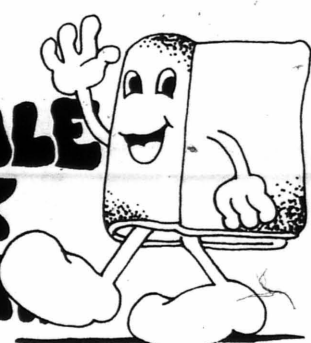

Michael Fong, executive vice president of Hy-Gain Electronics Corp., said Hy-Gain is offering to transfer to 40 channel sets most of the firm's 23-channel sets at a cost of about $25 initially.

CB radios now cost anywhere from $69 to $900.

Morris librarian to study Buddhism in Europe

David T. Ray

By Janice Bremelsen
Student Writer

"Neobuddhism" is the subject which David Ray, catalog librarian at Morris Library, will study on his sabbatical which began Aug. 15.

Ray will travel to England, France and Germany to investigate the extent of Buddhism in Western Europe.

There are approximately 38 Buddhist societies in Great Britain, Ray said, some of which he plans to visit. Ray said he will inquire about the membership and publications in these societies.

Ray said his wife, Jean Meyer Ray, map librarian at Morris Library, will accompany him on his trip. Mrs. Ray will investigate the map collections in Western Europe, that being the subject of her sabbatical.

Ray has been interested in Buddhism for about 30 years and has visited Buddhist sites in Japan, India and Ceylon. He believes, however, that up to the present there is not much information readily available on the extent of interest in Buddhism in Western Europe. For this reason the subject appealed to him as a likely sabbatical study topic.

In 1967 Ray took a master's degree in the SIU philosophy department on the subject of Indian logic, which provided him with some background on Buddhism.

Ray went to India in 1963 on contract research for the University, concerned with the printing of seven regional scripts used in that country. Subsequently he was for two years a member of an educational advisory team sent to Mali, and was stationed at Bamako, the capital of that country on the Niger River.

Ray has been with SIU since 1959 and was a serials cataloger until he left for India. Shortly after his Mali assignment, he became the librarian for the Center for Vietnamese Studies. He subsequently returned to the catalog department.

Mexico, Nicaragua, Ceylon and Yugoslavia are just some of the places he has visited in his career, Ray said. Ray said he spent time in some of these places while with the Foreign Service of the U.S. State Department.

In 1941 Ray was in Tokyo when Pearl Harbor was bombed by the Japanese. He said that for six months he remained there as a civilian internee along with other U.S. officials. He was released in exchange for Japanese officials being held in the U.S.

Ray received his bachelor's degree in economics from UCLA in 1931, and his degree in library science from the Catholic University of America. Ray also attended Yale, where he studied linguistics.

The cataloging department is located on the seventh floor of Morris Library, where Ray and about six other librarians classify and catalog books before they are put on the shelves.

Each of the catalogers is assigned specific types of books that they catalog. Ray said that he is assigned all the books on religion, philosophy, fine arts in German and Japanese, biology and Vietnamese. On occasion he also catalogs books in some other Oriental languages.

Ray said that Morris Library has changed vastly since he came 17 years ago. The MARC cataloging system is one of the changes, Ray said. "The machine-readable cataloging system jolted some of us oldtimers but we got used to it," he remarked.

The MARC system catalogs books by computer, Ray said. The information about a book is fed into a computer terminal through which it goes to the Ohio College Library Center at Columbus. Subsequently, Morris Library receives a set of cards describing the book and which are filed in the card catalogs.

Two states hire artists

WPA concept aids the arts

By Mary Curtis
Associated Press Writer

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The federal government pays David Brennan to paint his face white, draw on silly eyebrows and amuse passersby on a New Haven street.

In a program similar to the Works Progress Administration, which handed out money to artists in Depression years, the National Endowment of the Arts is paying artists to work.

Connecticut and Rhode Island, the only two states in the country that qualified, each received one-year, $250,000 matching grants.

The programs prove "the concept that artists can be employed, that there are jobs artists can do," said Evelyn Smith, a coordinator of the Connecticut program.

Her agency, called ARTS-JOBS, has given federal money this year to 108 actors, poets, mimes, painters, woodworkers, puppeteers and other artists. The average salary is between $800 and $1,000 a month.

The city of New Haven hired Brennan and a potter, a sculptor, a painter, puppeteers and actors for its "Street Scene" program. The artists go to parks and day camps and perform spontaneously on city streets.

People love it, said Jeff Gordon, director of the New Haven program. "Art is a way of communicating, a way of involving 'all ages and groups of people in all parts of the city in the creative experience,'" he said.

The federal money became available last October. Officials said Connecticut and Rhode Island were chosen partly because they have high unemployment — Connecticut's latest listing of unemployment was 9.8 per cent and Rhode Island's was 9.9 per cent. The officials said other factors were a cultural environment able to support jobs in the arts and existing state arts agencies to funnel the money through.

The Rhode Island School for the Deaf in Providence used its federal funds to hire a deaf person and one other artist to start a gallery. The Central Falls, R.I., library has hired people to interview older residents, especially those who reflect the Spanish and Canadian heritage of the area, for a local oral history.

"Rhode Island has a large number of artists working as waitresses, bartenders and gardeners who are able to work this year as artists — graduates of art schools who never have been able to work in their chosen careers," said Martin Kohn, public information of the Rhode Island State Council for the Arts.

Ms. Smith said she looks for traditional as well as off-beat projects. A government agency, a civic group or a private institution can get money if ARTS-JOBS approves its program.

Music merchandising course offered

A course in music merchandising is being offered this fall for the first time at SIU-C.

Listed as College of Communication and Fine Arts 397 under the title "The Business of Music," it will be taught by Nick Koenigstein, assistant professor of music.

Koenigstein, who returned in June from a sabbatical at the University of Miami where he worked on a second master's degree in music merchandising, said the new course is intended to be a foundation for an eventual degree program in the subject.

"It will cover anything that has to do with promotion and merchandising in the music industry," Koenigstein said, "with a strong emphasis on copyright laws, procedures, rights and royalties."

Subject areas to be covered, he said, include music publishing, acquisition of music properties, rights and royalties involved in recorded and live performances, the operation of music stores of all types and music reproducing equipment.

Koenigstein said the course is open to anyone eligible for 300-level courses, not just to music majors. It will carry three hours of credit.

Koenigstein emphasized that the course is not "commercial music" and is not a duplicate of the course in stereophonic and other audio devices offered in the Physics Department.

Legion disease claims No. 26

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) —The "Legionnaires' Disease" has claimed its 26th victim.

Harold Stump, 53, manager of the legion club in Milton, died Monday night at a Milton hospital. He had been hospitalized since Aug. 2.

Meanwhile, three investigators from the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health were to arrive in Philadelphia to study such environmental factors as air pollution, weather patterns, construction sites and anything else that may have figured in the outbreak.

The team, ordered onto the case by the institute's parent Center for Disease Control, will concentrate on the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, headquarters for last month's state American Legion convention. The team will examine the ventilation system and check to see if any sewer lines were cross-connected with fresh water lines.

Many of the 170 persons afflicted with the flu-like ailment stayed at the 72-year-old hotel, one of the most prestigious in the city. Jane Palmer, the 25th fatality, attended no convention events but watched the legion parade from the hotel on July 23.

The search for the cause of the outbreak has spread to guests who stayed at the Bellevue and other center city hotels both two weeks before and one week after the convention.

The poll turned up no new evidence of the disease, and health officials believe there is no danger at the Bellevue or any other Philadelphia hotel.

Lindsay-Schaub buys Huron daily

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) —Lindsay-Schaub Newspapers announced today the purchase of the Huron Daily Tribune, of Bad Axe, Mich., and four nearby weekly papers.

President R. D. Schaub, said Clare and John Hewens, publishers in the area for 35 years from whom the purchase was made, will remain working under the new owners.

Lindsay-Schaub owns a daily paper in Midland, Mich., dailies in five Illinois cities, including the Southern Illinoisian in Carbondale, and semi-weekly papers in Florida.

Campus Briefs

The Administrative Hearing Office has moved from Washington Square C to Washington Square B, Room 104. Office hours are from 8:00 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The Student Affairs Research and Evaluation Center has moved to the Woody Hall B 20 area across from the Bursars Office. Classroom examinations and instructional improvement questionnaires can be sent to the center between 7:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. The new phone number is 536-7743.

A Womens' Play Group, sponsored by the Aeon Alternatives Program, is holding its first meeting on Tuesday, Sept. 7 at 5:30 p.m. The Group's activities will include creative expression, dance, body movement and exercise, drawing and clay modeling. The number to call for further information is 549-5514.

Brockman Schumacher, professor and coordinator of the Rehabilitation Counselor Training Program in the Rehabilitation Institute, has been re-elected for the fourth year as president of the National Council on Rehabilitation and Education. The Council is a national organization responsible for the accreditation of rehabilitation counselor training programs.

Richard M. Sanders, a professor in the Rehabilitation Institute, attended the 13th Congress of Rehabilitation International in Tel Aviv, Israel, during June. Sanders chaired a sectional meeting on "Training Towards Independent living," and gave two talks and four papers at a post-conference workshop on mental rehabilitation. Sanders, who is coordinator of the Behavior Modification Program, also recently published an article entitled "Presentability As a Goal for Work Activities Clients" in the June edition of the Vocational Evaluator and Work Adjustment Bulletin.

The Jackson County Family YMCA is opening its fall session with registration for YMCA members and new members Aug. 18-22. An open registration will be held Aug. 23-29. The session, which lasts from Aug. 30 to Oct. 23, will include such new classes as Positive Parenting, Wildflower Class for Adults, Aquatic Safety, Slim with Rhythm, Christmas Crafts and Life Saving.

Albert C. Kent, associate professor, and Thomas W. Petrie, assistant professor in the Thermal and Environmental Engineering Department were among 26 faculty members from 19 states attending a summer institute on energy conservation at Oak Ridge Associated Universities, Oak Ridge, Tenn. The two-week program sponsored by the Energy Research and Development Administration examined the potential benefits of a national effort in energy conservation at the personal, commercial and industrial levels.

Salukis dig in

When SIU-C's new head football coach Rey Dempsey began official practice sessions Monday he had 102 prospective players, a new AstroTurf surface and some fans watching in the stands.

Dempsey views the coming season with optimism. "Many of the veteran players improved through spring drills over last season's performances," Dempsey said. "We have some freshmen who should contend for positions immediately while about 15 players have been invited to walk on and they may be rather good."

Assistant Sports Information Director Gil Swalls said transfer quarterback Jim Kelly, who suffered a dislocated hip during spring drills, "looks shaky for the opener. He's still a little bit shy to get hit."

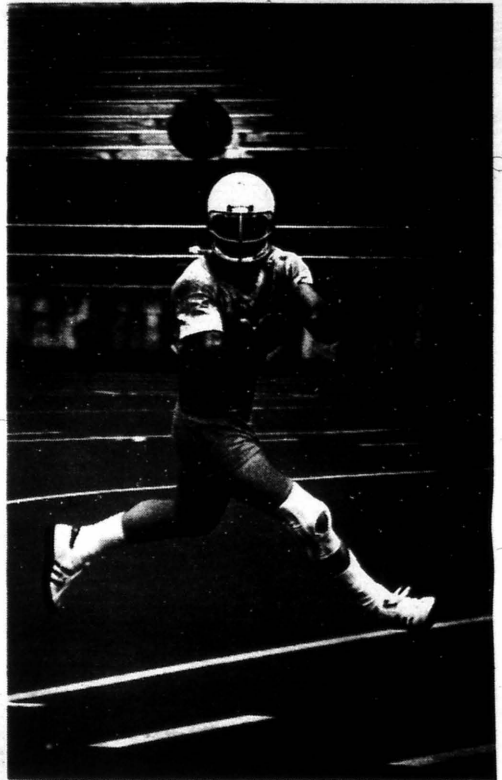

Tim Cruz, a junior from Decatur, freshmen Ramon Carson, from Sharon, Pa. and Reggie Evans, all-Chicago quarterback, are expected to get ample practice at quarterback, Swalls said.

The Salukis, after running the wishbone in 1975, will work on the Pro and Pro-I offenses in preparation for the Sept. 11 opener at McNeese State in Lake Charles, La. The Pro-I sets up a passing attack on any down, and is used frequently in the NFL, Swalls said.

The new AstroTurf carpet was installed in July, replacing the four-year-old surface which was partially destroyed by vandals last year. Other improvements made include the installation of carpeting and equipment in the locker room for viewing films and briefing.

SIU's new football coach, Rey Dempsey, loosens up his throwing arm.

I've got it!

One saluki puts his best foot forward.

Either this Saluki is showing a sign of optimism for the new season, or he's attempting to escape through flight.

Athletic department gets personnel changes

After only two weeks under the Sayers reign, the SIU Athletic Department has undergone a substantial facelift, with announcements of four departmental appointments.

The most recent development is Sayers' appointment Monday, of John Novotny as assistant athletic director. He replaces longtime Assistant Athletic Director Bill Brown who retires Aug. 31.

Novotny, who will begin work Aug. 23, leaves his job as director of the Williams Educational Fund at the University of Kansas where he has served for the past eight years. His duties at SIU will include fund raising, scheduling football games and assisting Sayers with budgetary matters.

"I'm very excited about joining the SIU Athletic Department," Novotny said. "I'll help Mr. Sayers and the coaches in any way I can to have the best program we possibly can."

Novotny stresses that the survival of a total college athletic program relies heavily upon private donations. He said it will be "an important phase of my duties to develop a strong private giving program."

Sayers' new assistant taught and coached high school at Lincoln and Shawnee Mission, Kansas and gained sales experience with Prentice Hall Publishing Co. before joining the University of Kansas staff in 1967 as an academic advisor, administrative assistant and recruiter. He was named assistant athletic director and business manager in 1970, and director of the Williams Fund in 1974.

Sayers said "John has a wide background and tremendous experience in all levels of athletic management. He is knowledgeable, personable and I know he'll do a great job here at SIU."

The 37-year-old Novotny and his wife Audrey have three children; John Jr., 16, Marge, 12, and Jason, one.

Sayers last week named award-winning sports publicist Tom Simons as SIU's new Sports Information Director. Simons has worked as assistant publicity director for the St. Louis Football Cardinals since June 1974, and was previously the assistant sports information director at the University of Nebraska.

He was awarded four times by the College Sports Information Directors of America for his football media brochures and in 1973 produced the nation's best all-sports recruiting brochure.

"Tom has a very strong background in football, but his familiarity with all sports was the primary reason for his selection," Sayers said. "I feel his connections with the St. Louis media will be an asset to our total program," he said.

Simons, 26, said "I'm quite familiar with the quality of the entire athletic program, the University and the Southern Illinois area. I hope to work closely with all of our coaches to get the maximum amount of information to the public."

Simons replaces Butch Henry who accepted a similar position at the University of Arkansas. He will be assisted by Gil Swalls who has served as acting director since May 1.

Track coach Lew Hartzog has named former all-American decathlete Bill Webb as his assistant track coach.

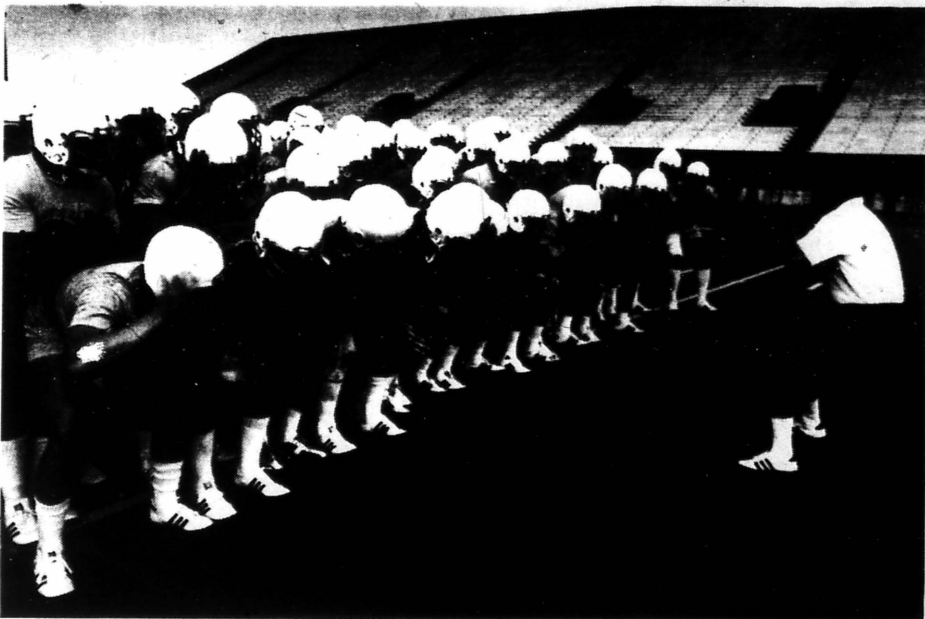

Webb, 27, served as assistant track coach at the University of Florida and the University of Indiana. He was also head coach of track and cross country at West Georgia College. Webb will coach field events and develop weight training and recruiting at SIU, Hartzog said.

"SIU is an exciting place to work and a step up for me," Webb said. "I'm impressed with the strength of the overall athletic program."

Hartzog said Webb's abilities in the field events will be a great asset to SIU. He said he will "rely heavily" upon Webb as a recruiter as well.

Webb said he hopes to recruit in the Washington D.C. area and the southeastern region of the country.

Assistant Athletic Department Business Manager Jim Barrett has been named "temporary" golf coach. Barrett, a former SIU golfer replaces Lynn Holder, who retires as golf coach Aug. 31.

Stop Action

Coach Rey Dempsey appears to be holding a blood thirsty mob at bay Tuesday morning at McAndrew Stadium but he was only giving the squad a pep talk following morning calisthenics. Official practice

NFL exhibition contest excites Japanese fans

By Naoki Usui
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP)—A lot of the fans weren't too sure just what was going on. But they seemed to enjoy it, whatever it was. And the St. Louis Cardinals enjoyed it, too.

What it was was the first National Football League game ever played outside North America, another celebration of the United States Bicentennial.

"So many things are happening all over the ground so quickly, and it's so fast, I can't catch up sometimes," Norio Kinoshita, a high school student, said after she and about 38,000 fans—mostly Japanese, some American—sat in a misty rain and watched the Cardinals beat the San Diego Chargers 20-10 Monday night.

The Cardinals took a 10-0 lead, let the Chargers catch up, then won the exhibition game on Jim Hart's 52-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Ike Harris in the third quarter.

It was mostly a passing game. The Cards held San Diego to 34 yards on the ground and managed to gain only 105 themselves. Hart and Bill Donckers combined for 205 yards with 19 completions in 28 attempts while Dan Fouts and Jesse Freitas of the Chargers hit on 13 of 30 attempts for 155 yards.

Donckers passed 15 yards to Pat Tilley in the first period for St. Louis' other touchdown and Jim Bakken kicked in with a pair of field goals, a 30-yarder in the first quarter and a 10-yarder in the fourth.

Sergio Albert's 30-yard field goal in the second period and Fouts' 23-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Dwight McDonald in the third accounted for the Chargers' scoring.

The Cards were spurred on by many citizens from Suwa, a city that has had cultural exchanges with the city of St. Louis. Four firemen played old Japanese Army assault marches on bugles. Another citizen of the city of 50,000 people in central Japan pounded encouragement on a drum. Suwa Mayor Setsuji Iwamoto and 39 other citizens wore Japanese "happi" coats and headbands.

"This is what we should do for the team from our sister city," Iwamoto said after the group drove over 100 miles of mountainous roads by bus to Tokyo.

"They are such nice people, and they respond very quickly to our action," said Lori West of Columbus, Mo., a university of Missouri coed and a Cardinals' cheerleader.

Although not all 50,000 seats at the Korakuen baseball stadium were sold, some scalpers managed to sell $8.30 tickets for $20 to unsuspecting latecomers.

Crimson Tide schedule has Bear Bryant scared

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Coach Bear Bryant says his Alabama football players ought to be saying prayers of thanks because of their schedule, but that he is scared to death.

The Crimson Tide, third in the nation last season after winning its first bowl game in 10 years, began the heavy work today for its 1976 season opener against rejuvenated Mississippi at Jackson Sept. 11.

In its quest for a sixth straight Southeastern Conference title — no other school has ever won more than two straight — Alabama must travel to Tennessee and Georgia as well.

In addition, Alabama goes to South Bend late in the season to take on a Notre Dame team whose two defeats of Alabama in recent bowls by a total of three points still bother Bryant.

"Our players ought to stay awake nights thanking the good Lord for the chance to play people like Notre Dame, Louisiana State, Auburn, Tennessee, Georgia and Mississippi," Bryant said. "But the coaches are scared to death."

Much of the fear is based on losses to graduation from the squad that went 1-1 a year ago, including a 13-6 victory over Penn State in the first Sugar Bowl played in the New Orleans Superdome.

Bryant lost eight starters off a team that held the best record in the nation against scoring — only six points a game. His offense lost quarterback Richard Todd, now trying to become Joe Namath's replacement with the New York Jets after directing Alabama for three seasons.

The Tide's strong points include defenders Bob Baumhower and Charles Hannah at tackle and Gus White at middle guard. "I wouldn't swap them for any three down linemen in the country," Bryant said.
