New tax laws may hurt foreign faculty, determine if they must continue to be taxed on that basis or if they can change to resident or non-resident status. Foreign faculty members and other non-students will be reviewed after two years.

Over 2,000 international students attend SIU-C, with about 800 dependents, said Patricia McMeen, director of International Programs and Services. Over 400 foreign teachers and assorted visitors worked at SIU-C during 1984, he said.

Dorn said that the tax law change will result during the few foreign nationals at SIU-C, he said.

"Those who have been earning money here have been paying taxes," Dorn said.

Under the old law, foreign teaching assistants, trainees and scholars could, even if eventually planning to return to their own countries, choose to be treated as residents of the United States for tax purposes, thus enabling them to claim residency status and thereby reducing their families and enjoy other tax breaks allowed to citizens.

Under the new law, foreign nationals facing the same circumstances must now be treated as non-residents for tax purposes and allowed to take advantage of the tax breaks.

Firearm IDs for bar entry banned on liquor board recommendation

By Scott Freeman

Staff Writer

Firearm identification cards are no longer a legal means of gaining entry to city bars.

The Carbondale City Council, acting on the recommendation of the Liquor Advisory Board, approved Ordinance 85-35 amending the revised Liquor Code Monday night to prohibit the use of firearm owner cards for gaining entry to city bars. This action puts firearm owner cards with SIU IDs as forms of photo identification no longer considered acceptable for bar entry by the city.

Assistant City Attorney Patricia McMeen, commenting on behalf of the city, said that the issue of the firearm cards was not on the Advisory Board agenda because of their easy physical alteration but because it was easy to alter the information to be presented on them.

She pointed out that the firearm IDs are easily obtained and that false information can be sent by the applicant to the people who make these IDs. This false information is then placed on this otherwise legal form of identification.

Dave Madlener, the USO City Affairs Commissioner, asked the council what students without valid Illinois driver's licenses would use to gain bar entry.

Madlener also brought to the council's attention that SIU has the fifth largest international student population in the nation, as well as the second largest Malaysian population in the world.

He wondered where these persons would obtain a suitable means of identification for gaining bar entry, since foreign students often do not have a valid Illinois driver's license.

The city council also approved the City Fair Days for this year's Halloween celebration.

Student to do 'stupid trick' on Letterman

By David Sheets

Grappling down an entire pitcher full of whatever beverage at once is quite a stunt to behold. But pulling off the same stunt without the benefit of hands is truly a remarkable skill, especially in the world of entertainment.

Tom Von Bokel has mastered the art of handless pitcher grappling, so much so that NBC's "Late Night with David Letterman" will feature Von Bokel's talent on Wednesday's telecast during the "Stupid Human Tricks" segment.

"I did it for the first time at the American Tap Room one night while I was out with a few friends," Von Bokel said. "I just plain did it, and my friends got a real kick from it.

Soon after a few more practice 'swigs,' the 21-year-old senior in industrial technology at SIU-C decided to exhibit his peculiar aptitude at a "Stupid Human Tricks" contest sponsored by the Student Recreation Center.

The competition took place on February 16.

"I didn't win. I lost to a guy who could sing 'The Beverly Hillbillies' theme show under water," Von Bokel said.

But after videotapes taken of the competition were sent to "Late Night" the contest winner was not on the receiving end of a phone call from the program's New York-based offices.

"The first time Letterman called was back in June. At first I thought the call was a joke, and even after they kept telling me it wasn't, I still wasn't sure. The lady on the other end said the line kind of liked the fact I was indishonest," Von Bokel said.

Von Bokel was called again a few days later and said that Von Bokel's talent would be featured on Letterman's show.

The segment would be cancelled due to a lack of available participants. No further word was heard back from Von Bokel until the show was in production and Von Bokel found out that "Late Night" rescheduled its invitation for this Saturday night.

A $500 prize will be placed properly in Von Bokel's hand for his attempt at tipping back roughly nine gowns of glass pitcher and ice tea, using only his teeth, in front of a national audience.

Von Bokel will receive two days in the Big Apple with a friend.

U.S. to test first anti-satellite weapon soon

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) - The administration, citing a need to "restore a necessary military balance" and deny the Soviets a strategic edge in space, said Tuesday it soon will test the first U.S. anti-satellite weapon against a target in space.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said President Reagan had approved for a test moratorium. Speakes said the Soviets now have a large capability, and that if the Soviet Union degrades the United States and its allies.

The test will be the first attempt to target a space station, the U.S. ASAT weapon - a small, non-explosive interceptor missile fired from an F-15 fighter. The U.S. weapon does not actually blow up a satellite, but renders it unoperational by knocking it out of orbit.

GROUND-BASED Soviet system is regarded by U.S. analysts as crude and less reliable, capable of hitting only satellites in low orbit.

Unfortunately, the U.S. anti-satellite system has made U.S. analysts wonder if the Soviet space assets constitute a clear threat to our national security and that of our allies," he said.

Speaks said the test does not violate legal obligations under treaties on the use of anti-ballistic missile systems or the U.N. charter.

Soviets may be fearful of Italian Mafia activity

ERICE, Sicily (UPI) — The unexplained failure of Soviet scientists to attend a nuclear weapons seminar in Sicily may be linked to Mafia assassinations and apparent Soviet detections.

Foreign Minister Giulio Andreotti said Tuesday, Andreotti's comments came during a speech at the opening session of the weeklong 5th International Seminar on Nuclear War. The seminar is expected to be highlighted by a discussion of President Reagan's Space Defense Initiative. "Star Wars."

Philippine leadership braces for rioting

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — President Ferdinand Marcos put the military on its highest alert Tuesday and appealed for calm in the wake of protests marking the 15th anniversary of the assassination of his predecessor, President Marcos. Andreotti's comments came during a speech at the opening session of the weeklong 5th International Seminar on Nuclear War. The seminar is expected to be highlighted by a discussion of President Reagan's Space Defense Initiative. "Star Wars."

Possible metal shards result in food recall

NEW YORK (UPI) — American Home Foods is voluntarily recalling 39-ounce cans of Chef Boy-Ar-Dee spaghetti and meatballs in a 37 state recall of the possible presence of metal fragments. Jack Wood, director of public affairs for American Home Products, parent company of Chef Boy-Ar-Dee, said Tuesday that the metal fragments came from the grinder that makes the meatballs and that no more than 24,000 cans were involved. Effected cans have the code numbers AD31D EST 794 and AD175 EST 794 embossed on their bottoms.

Jackson claims Falwell 'an agent' of Reagan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jesse Jackson, on the eve of a television debate against Jerry Falwell, charged the Moral Majority leader went to South Africa as an "agent" of President Reagan to promote his policy of "constructive engagement." Jackson said he was eager for the showdown with Falwell, who returned Tuesday to the United States and pledged to begin a national campaign to encourage continued investments in South Africa.

Train wreck damages bridge in Washington

ROCK ISLAND, Wash. (UPI) — Fifteen cars of a 37-car freight train derailed on a Columbia River bridge Tuesday and sparked a burning blaze that warped the 900-foot steel span and threatened to collapse it. But crews were able to cool off the blaze after more than six hours of purging water on it from a fireboat and a helicopter.

Chicago judge questions 'implausible' recantation

CHICAGO (UPI) — The judge who heard Cathleen Crowell Webb's original claim that Gary Detson raped her in the September issue of the American Bar Association Journal that her recantation of the charges was "implausible." Cook County Circuit Judge Richard Samuel said he believed Webb when she first came forward — but then she "picked the most implausible story for recantation."

Suspected hazardous waste site closed

SUMMIT (UPI) — A temporary restraining order has been issued against a southwest suburban container factory accused of illegally storing hazardous wastes, authorities said. Local industries, which manufactures and recovers chemical storage containers, has no permits to store or use hazardous wastes. Officials said following the raid, investigators found 790 5-gallon drums containing suspected hazardous wastes and a sludge-like material dumped at the foundation of one building.

Complaints need to be heard

FOLLOWING THE hijacking of the TWA jet in the Middle East this summer, and the intense media coverage that ensued, the television press received a great deal of attention about how it handled the situation.

This scrutiny, from government officials in private meetings to citizens of the press itself, is good: keeping your eye on any potential institution — being a watchdog is necessary to keep institutions in check.

In the criticism, one particularly good point was made: by descending so intensely upon Beirut and fighting so fiercely among each other for the all-important ratings, television news departments gave the hijackers exactly what they wanted: attention.

And outrageous attention it was. The captives' hope for their return, the captives echoing support for the captors' cause, a farewell note all of this is a direct result of the hijacking and the brutal murder of a U.S. Marshall.

In a word, humiliating.

For television, the American people are upset. It's more than a little disturbing to turn on the news and see ministers and soldiers killed, and watch helplessly, as America grovels to fanatical terrorists. It's hard not to feel as though we're laughing at us all.

But in fairness to the television press, it must be remembered that it is doing its job: keeping the public informed. And a hostage crisis is important news. Perhaps television news departments should modify their methods, but they must cover important events.

Just what, then, is the answer? Some say government intervention is needed, but this would cause more problems than it would solve.

The government already is able to thwart the efforts of the press by classifying information and by using tactics as trial balloons. That's when information about a government project is purposely "leaked" to the press. If the public reacts favorably, the plan is carried out. If an unfavorable reaction is the result, officials simply deny the report.

And the press is justifiably regulated by the government through libel and slander laws. But any prior restraint of the press is repugnant to the concept of American freedom. The Constitution says so, and American law has consistently borne this out.

Another possibility proposed is self-censorship. Of course, such an approach is already practiced to some degree, by way of various professional and ethical standards set by journalism organizations.

The problem is that there is neither a method to enforce the rules nor any consistency within the profession with regard to voluntary compliance.

And even if television news departments would compromise ratings for a more important purpose during situations like the hostage crisis, profit motivated businesses would surely sabotage any such possibility.

If governments should keep an eye on the time, situation, and if any attempts of self-censorship are likely to be too little too late, who can solve the problem? Answer: the public.

But if the behavior of the television press is so revolting, then it is up to the public to let them know. Television does not exist for itself; it does not function in a vacuum. The viewing public is its bread and butter. If it had no audience, television would cease to exist.

But if television news departments find that they can increase ratings by behaving the way they did in Beirut, then that is what they will do. Unfortunately, despite the noble cause that news organizations are supposed to all be about, they are, nonetheless, businesses and in businesses to make money.

Overall, the television press is a part of the ethics department, but during situations like the hostage crisis, the increased need for cautious and balanced reporting requires making process, it exercises less caution than normal in the mad dash to get at the story first. But they do what they do because people buy it, so it's not what you want, stop buying it.

Granted, you shouldn't literally avoid the news when something is out as you'd like it to be, especially something of minimal importance. But the increased need for cautious reporting is very important. Similar situations will unfortunately happen again. If the television press would act differently, none is the time to let it know.
Lebanese car bomb explosions, fighting leave 78 dead nationwide

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Two car bombs exploded on Monday, leaving a crowded neighborhood of Tripoli with hundreds of residents wounded and Beirut with a fierce artillery barrage. Leaving at least 78 people dead nationwide.

The balance of terror is tipping the country toward the abyss," said the French-language daily "Lensation," which reported that the two bombs were fired in the city's crowded neighborhood of Tripoli, killing dozens of people and injuring hundreds more.

A car bomb went off in Tripoli, 42 miles north of Beirut — the fifth such device planted in Lebanon since Aug. 21. At least 45 people died in the blast and 90 others were wounded, Beirut radio said.

The attack was marked by a macabre refinement on the 20 cars earlier in Beirut on Aug. 21. At least 38 people died in the blast and 60 others were wounded. Beirut radio said.

An explosion occurred near the scene — only to be engulfed in the explosion of about 15 people. The explosion was timed to go off minutes after the initial charge.

"Rescue workers and other people were helping the victims before the blast," one of the car bomb went off, throwing bodies of people everywhere," said a Lebanese police officer.

"Most of the victims — are burnt beyond recognition."

An operation command complex was destroyed and four other buildings were seriously damaged by the explosion, which sparked fires that gutted about 15 cars. Several buildings were destroyed or damaged.

"We are not going to be out of our homes for the new school year," said she.

She said she is now ready to instruct in a more relaxed environment.

"We need to make sure that the children do not develop that way," Thomas said.

Thomas said the school district reorganized its kindergarten program two years ago and now has a heavy concentration on language development. More time is also spent, he said, on developing skills such as reading or mathematics.

Thomas said the probability is good of Carbondale adopting an all-day kindergarten session, every day.

Some parents, however, may feel threatened that they have to send their children to the all-day sessions. Rogers said. "They might be scared that their children will be behind the others," she said.

"But we are concerned about the lack of a home environment." Home and family are important to the child, she said, and through the all-day process, "home and family are gone pretty much,"

"They should feel that the recently passed legislation has not allowed for adequate planning of an all-day kindergarten program," she said. She said the law does not provide for either a full-day or half-day kindergarten program. Parents likewise worry that their children are going to be out of their homes for the new school year. Thomas said.

"The issue may be 'so much is happening. The amount of learning children do not develop that way,' she said.

"School is within one week of starting," she said. "We just may be jumping into this too quickly."

"Don't get me wrong," Matthews said, "I just think that we need to make sure that the children do not develop adequately for a not-so-necessarily-bad idea."

Israeli diplomat murdered by gunmen in passing car

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Two gunmen in a black Toyota station wagon Monday evening killed an Israeli diplomat in a surprise attack near the Egyptian capital of Cairo. The diplomat was identified as members of the Egyptian Foreign Ministry in Jerusalem. It said it was maintaining close contact with Egyptian authorities.

"They are acting to the best of their ability in everything connected to this heinous assassination," the statement said. Israel's embassy to Egypt, Mohie Sesssoon, was in Cairo at the time of the attack.

"Many of the members of the Iraqi militia in the region will be involved in the peace process," the statement said. "We will not affect the peace movement or young and Israeli relations on the ground."

Egypt and Israel signed their peace treaty in 1979 and exchanged ambassadors a year later. The act isolated Egypt from most other Arab nations, which cut diplomatic ties with the Cairo government.

"We are not interested in the Middle East," the statement said. "We are not interested in the Middle East."

Egypt has his made his return conditional on a resolution to the Palestinian issue and a dispute over possession of Taba, a Red Sea resort lying on their mutual border which is now controlled by Israel.

The assassination was the first of an Israeli official in Egypt and the second to be attacked there since the signing of the peace treaty, Israeli officials said. Israeli embassy attack in 1992 was shot at from a passing car in Cairo and slightly wounded June 3, 1984.

The last Israeli diplomat to be murdered was Yonon Bar-Seman-tow, who was gunned down by a woman as he entered his house in Paris in 1982. Israeli blamed the Palestine Liberation Organization for the killing.

In a written message received by a news agency, a group calling itself the "Revolution of Egypt" claimed responsibility for the attack and also for an unsuccessful attempt on the life of another Israeli last year, presumably on Kedar.

The group denounced Israel, the United States, Egyptian capitalists, Arab moderates and some Palestinian groups that have "deviated from the course of the Arab struggle."

Another group calling itself "The Great Islamic Jihad Organization" claimed responsibility for the attack.

The speaker said their headquarters is a mosque in suburban Nasr City.

take deductions only for those expenses they will in turn be paying higher taxes on.

The change in the law was agreed to by Congress in an effort to prevent U.S.-based foreign businesses with large multinational incomes from using the vagueness of the law to minimize their U.S. taxes.

There are exceptions to the rules. Foreign nationals can have immediate residency status in the U.S. if they can be considered a resident alien if they meet either the "lawful permanent resident test" — known as the "green card" test — or the "substantial presence test."
Law enforcers move in for marijuana harvest

By Justus Weatherby Jr.
Staff Writer

Federal, state and county law enforcement agencies recently stepped-up measures to eradicate marijuana plants grown in Southern Illinois during what police call its season of harvest.

About 50 area law enforcement officers, including SIC C, attended a week-long Marijuana Detection and Eradication School at SIU July 22-26 to learn about surveillance techniques, the identification of plants from helicopters, constitutional rights of individuals involved in marijuana cultivation, how to handle and collect evidence and other applicable measures in marijuana eradication.

“Operation Cash Crop” is a part of a nationwide program called “Federal Delta 9” which was initiated by the U.S. Attorney General’s office and which local law enforcement agencies have implemented to help them investigate, detect and eradicate the growth of the weed, he said.

He said that National Guard and Illinois State Police aircraft are in the aerial detection of pot in remote areas.

Bowman said about 366,000 marijuana plants were seized in Illinois in 1984, and were valued at about $140 million. A single plant can produce about one pound of the finished product, which is worth about $1,000 to $2,000, the DEA has estimated.

He said the amount of funding for the program is currently underdetermined. There is money available to us. We don’t know how much would be spent for our effort, here,” Bowman said.

Bowman said the cannabis grown in Southern Illinois is usually harvested from mid-August to mid-October and has a street value of millions of dollars.

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — The nation was in a mood of great relief and joy July 22 after a moderate Sikh leader at a rally and gunman killed one ally of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi last week, the Press Trust of India said.

The nation came one month after Gandhi and moderate Sikh leaders signed a peace accord, ending a year of unrest and just days after the government declared the state safe enough to hold long-delayed elections.

Two Sikh youths opened fire on Harshchand Singh Longowal, president of the moderate Sikh political party Akali Dal, as he addressed a rally in the Punjab town of Shergura, the Press Trust of India said.

WOUNDED in the abdomen and arm, Longowal collapsed in a pool of blood as crowds of people rushed to his side, the newswire reported. Longowal’s supporters fired back at the assailants, killing one of them, the Press Trust said.

Longowal was taken to a hospital in the nearby town of Kaliyakpur, where doctors removed a bullet from his arm. Another bullet lodged near his heart, the Press Trust said.

The Sikh leader was pronounced dead at 9:32 p.m., a short time after the surgery, it said.

One Longowal supporter also was killed and three others injured in the attack.

Crowds courted the two Sikh assassins, who tried to escape after the attack, and turned them over to police who arrested them, the Press Trust said.

THERE were two suspects — identified as Malvinder Singh and Gian Singh of Punjab’s Ludhiana district — apparently assassinated Longowal in revenge for the agreement he signed with Gandhi on July 24 in an attempt to end four years of Sikh unrest in Punjab, the only state in India where Sikhs are a majority.

The two suspects were believed to be related. All Sikhs take the surname Singh, which means lion.

A few hours earlier, two gunmen armed with automatic pistols shot and killed D.D. Khullar, a local leader of Gandhi’s ruling Congress party, in the northern Punjab state, 210 miles northwest of New Delhi.

WOUNDED in the attack was Gurdlal Saini, a district Congress leader and former member of the Punjab state legislature.

The Press Trust said four gunmen drove up to Saini’s home in a white car. While two waited in the car, the other two burst into the house and opened fire while Saini and Khullar were in the living room with several other people.

One of Saini’s visitors, Ashok Palla, grabbed one of the gunman’s pistols and fired at the fleeing attackers, but they escaped. Khullar died at the scene and Saini was taken to a hospital, where he was declared out of danger.

PARAMilitary troops and police launched a manhunt for the gunmen and police in New Delhi were deployed outside the homes of top government officials, the Press Trust said.

The shootings came less than one month after Gandhi and top Sikh political leaders, led by Longowal, reached agreement on an accord designed to end the violence in northern Punjab state, where militant Sikhs have been waging a bloody campaign for an independent state.

The pact granted limited autonomy to Sikhs in the state, and cleared the way for new state assembly and federal parliamentary elections, scheduled for Sept. 22.

LONGOWAL and other moderate leaders had argued the elections should be postponed until next year to allow more time for the state to recover from terrorist violence.

But the federal government, which has ruled Punjab for almost two years, decided last weekend that the state was now safe enough for balloting. Nevertheless, Sikhs and government leaders have warned that Sikh militants who felt Longowal had betrayed them by signing the pact might launch new terrorist attacks to discredit the Akali Dal party.

MANY OPPOSITION politicians also criticized the government for calling the elections, saying the move was likely to spark new violence.

In a statement released before Longowal died, Gandhi said the attempted assassination was aimed at disrupting the return of popular rule to Punjab.

AN EARLIER victim of Sikh violence was the late Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, mother of Rajiv, who was assassinated last Oct. 31 by Sikh bodyguards avenging an army assault she ordered to rout Sikh militants from the Golden Temple a few months earlier.

Special computer discount 'terrific' buy, dealer says

By Wm. Bryan Devasher

About 180 Macintosh computers have been delivered to SIUC students, faculty and staff through a program designed to allow college students to purchase computers at affordable prices.

Apple Computer Inc., through an agreement with the Illinois Educational Consortium, is making the computers available to those who qualify at 40 percent to 45 percent off the regular price.

"For those who qualify, it's a terrific bargain," said Rich Hall, an employee of Computer Corner. The store, located in the University Mall, is the local dealer responsible for taking orders for the IEC program.

Hall said students can purchase a model 512K Macintosh computer, an external disc drive, an image printer and a carrying case for $2,300. The regular price of the combined components is $3,804.

The program was initiated by Apple a few years ago so that college students could purchase computers at reasonable prices, Hall said. Apple expanded the program last year by making $16 million worth of Macintosh computers available to students nationwide through their local Apple computer dealers, he said.

Hall said that recently there has been some confusion as to where students may place orders for the computers. Orders were previously being taken at another local computer store, but the IEC account has been transferred to Computer Corner.

"Students wanting to place orders for the computers should see Mary Edwards at Computer Corner," Hall said.

Contrary to previous reports, Apple does not offer a special extended warranty to IEC customers, Hall said. The warranty offered to IEC customers is the same one offered to regular Apple customers.

Eligible IEC customers include full-time SIUC students who have attended classes for at least one month.

Students must present university identification and verification that they are full-time students. Faculty and staff also qualify for the program and must present appointment cards in order to purchase the computers.

Music classes offered to youths

The SIUC Youth Music Program is offering courses for elementary, junior and senior high school students during the fall semester.

The Suzuki method of teaching will be used in three courses — violin, cello and piano.

"To assure students the best possible instruction, parents will be required to accompany their children to the lessons and supervise their practices," Hall said.

Students enrolled in the Suzuki violin class will meet twice a week — once for a private or semi-private lesson with their instructor and on Mondays for group sessions.

The Suzuki cello class will also meet twice a week — once a week for private lessons and on Mondays for group sessions.

The Suzuki piano class, intended for children from 4 to 6 years old, will apply concepts from the Suzuki violin method along with traditional methods.

Class sessions have not yet been set.

The Youth Music Piano Class Program, a piano class for students of all ages, will meet twice a week — Mondays and Saturdays, and Fridays.

Hands-on experience with xylophones, autoharps and percussion instruments and teachings on concepts of music will be taught to children from 4 to 6 years old at the Kindermusik class.

Junior high, high school band and orchestra students looking for additional opportunities to play can join the Youth Orchestra. Rehearsals will be held once a week with at least one public performance per semester.

Students can register at Altgeld Hall at the front desk.
Hotline created to help farmers solve problems

By Norm Heikens
Staff Writer

Farmers in dire financial straits can turn to a local consumer advocacy group for advice and counseling through a hotline number created especially for farmers.

The Illinois South Project, based in Herrin, has announced a three-point advertisement and counseling program, called the Family Farm Crisis Hotline.

Illinois South offers a Farm Crisis Hotline, a call-in service for farmers dealing with lenders. Staff members also help organize local support groups and lobby state and federal lawmakers for farm emergency relief.

Illinois South’s involvement in local problems began in December of last year when farm organizations in the organization in search of financial and emotional advice were joined by Block on summer recess August 1, the address the fundamental deficit of the quadrennial farm bill.

Farmers are often unaware of their legal rights when dealing with lenders. Knop said. Farmers who have been told to foreclose by the Farmer’s Home Administration can appeal the decision, a right they often are not aware of, he said.

Farmers also have a right to be heard by a supervisor who has been involved in the farmer’s situation, according to Knop.

Farmers who call Illinois South are counseled by one of eight staff members.

The Hotline was established soon afterwards and has served between 80 and 100 farmers. From December to March, Illinois South devoted about one-half of its time to the hotline.

The calls increased after a major farm magazine published the hotline number.

"It has been a real positive response," Knop said. "It’s been helpful to them to have someone to talk to. Bankruptcy or foreclosure is a very desperate situation.”

Although calls slowed to a trickle in August, Knop expects them to rise to 20 to 40 calls per month after harvest begins.

"I would imagine that as crops start being harvested and banks start getting nervous about their loans, we will get more calls," Knop said.

Farmers are often unaware of the decision, a right they often are not aware of, he said.

Farmers also have a right to be heard by a supervisor who has been involved in the farmer’s situation, according to Knop.

Farmers who call Illinois South are counseled by one of four staff farm specialists according to their needs and then directed to lawyers or other professionals who specialize in farm problems.

Knop said Illinois South recently organized a support group in the Waterloo, Ill., area. Farmers and clerks of the business are among its 25 members.

Farmers can do little by themselves, making organizing a necessity, he said.

Illinois South, the first to start a farm hotline, has been joined by the University of Illinois, which began its Rural Route in late winter.

Even though farmers around the country are as financially strapped as Illinois farmers, it offers little consolation, Knop said.

"There aren’t many farmers in excellent shape," he said.

The Farm Crisis Hotline number is 1-800-482-5611. Illinois South hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m.

Block says Congress increased farm bill cost

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Agriculture Secretary John Block Tuesday criticized Congress for attaching too many budget-busting amendments to the 1985 farm bill.

"We really haven’t made the kind of progress that we had hoped to make at this point in time," Block said of the bill in an interview with radio broadcasters from the South. He said that during the 10 days before Congress left on its summer recess Aug. 1, the quadrennial farm bill “turned into a megaregatta of bickering among members of Congress who attached amendments pushing the bill’s price tag more than $1 billion over the binding budget which Congress passed before the recess.

Farm groups were all asking for more," Block said. He said that a breakdown to congressional returns early next month, lawmakers must put the bill "by the budget straightjacket if we’re going to address the fundamental problem that agriculture faces, and that is the budget deficit that is at high interest rates.”

Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, a member of the House Agriculture Committee who joined Block on the interview program, predicted that the committee would pass a farm bill that is within budget restrictions.

"If there’s going to be any budget-busting, it’s not going to come from the House Agriculture Committee," Stenholm said. "We’re dedicated to that.

He said “deficit reduction and living within our means as a country has to be the first title of the farm bill.”

He added that he hopes the bill will include "a more effective supply management program” than current law.

The administration is against increased supply management and acreage controls and "will not accept mandatory production trols," Block said.

Block said the administration will not agree to put more money into various farm programs for purely political reasons to help farm state Republican senators and congressmen who are up for re-election next year.

The secretary also said the current dairy price support level cannot be justified and must be lowered, hopefully, in 1986 rather than in 1987, as the Senate version of the farm bill would do.

Block said that President Reagan opposes any continuation of the dairy diversion program under which the government pays dairy farmers not to produce.
Vets’ scholarship eligibility increased by legislation

By Justus Weathersby Jr.

Every penny spent on educating an Illinois citizen is an investment in the future of the state, said Gov. James Thompson after signing legislation that amended the Illinois Veterans Scholarship. The amendment increases eligibility for some veterans who were previously ineligible.

Thompson said the legislation is in the spirit of educational reform and his "Build Illinois" program. The amendment is effective immediately.

Prior to the amended IVS legislation, veterans eligibility depended on five criteria: the veteran must have been an Illinois resident at time of entry into military service; have served at least one year on active duty; returned to Illinois within six months after discharge; received an honorable discharge; and the veteran must have entered the military before May 7, 1975.

Perry Murray, coordinator of the Office of Veterans Affairs, said that Senate Bill 230 extended IVS eligibility to veterans who entered the military after May 7, 1975.

"It has been estimated by the Illinois Department of Veterans Affairs that there will be 14,000 Illinois veterans affected. That estimation is based on the number of personnel that get out of the military and attend college," he said.

The legislation may "increase our potential recipients by one-third," Murray said. Murray said about 400 veteran students use the IVS at SIU-C, but those numbers are difficult to estimate because students who have been working with peasants in rural areas of Honduras for the last six years.

A statement from the Catholic Jesuit Order said Father Donald was taken into custody late Sunday by government security agents near Tocoa, 125 miles north of Tegucigalpa. The priest was then taken by helicopter to a U.S. military camp in the nearby town of San Lorenzo, where about 900 U.S. troops are working with Honduran troops on a road-building project, the Jesuit statement said.

American priest being detained in Honduras by armed forces

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — An American priest who has worked in Honduras for six years has been detained by the armed forces and will likely be charged with "crimes against state security," the U.S. Embassy said Tuesday.

Embassy spokesman Michael O'Brien denied reports by Catholic Church officials that the Rev. John Donald, a Jesuit, was being held at an American military base.

That is totally and completely false," O'Brien said. "Our information shows Father Donald was arrested by the Honduran military on Sunday evening and brought to Tegucigalpa yesterday (Monday) afternoon.

"He is now being held here by the armed forces and are in the process of specific charges, the Honduran military has been saying he will be charged with serious crimes against state security," the spokesman said.

O'Brien said U.S. officials have not been allowed to interview the priest, an Albuquerque, N.M., native who has been working with peasants in rural areas of Honduras for the last six years.

City tentatively approves Campus Crusade land use

By Scott Freeman
Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council tentatively approved land for the Campus Crusade to be Sept. 29 to Oct. 25 at the corner of W. Railroad, 1000 Colle, and South Illinois Avenue.

The Rev. P.T. Bailey, pastor of the Baptist Church, said the land proposal was well received by the city council.

Doug Horner, director of the Baptist Center, said the city must still receive approval from the Central Railroad, the property owners, for the use of the land for the crusade.

The crusade will feature evangelist Bob Kendig of Memphis, Tenn., representing United World Ministries.

Steve Shirk of Knoxville, Tenn., will conduct the musical portion of the crusade, which will begin at 7:30 p.m. each night and will feature a different musical group each night.

The event is being sponsored in a combined effort by the Baptist Student Union, the Baptist Student Center and the Southern Baptist Churches of Carbondale, and the Illinois Baptist Association of Springfield. Bailey said, "The major thrust of the crusade will be reaching the students of SIU with the good news of Christ." Bailey said the crusade should be helpful to the moral and spiritual life of college students and should help offset the negative party image of the school.

The crusade will be in a large tent, which Bailey called the "initial canvas cathedral." It will hold about 300 people. Bailey said he expects a capacity crowd each night.

Members of all religions are welcome at the event, which Bailey hopes will "create a proper spiritual climate to begin the new semester."

Officials say pistol may be linked to Kansas survivalist camp killing

RULO, Neb. (UP) - Law enforcement believed a Kansas farm Tuesday believed a pistol they found may have been used to kill two residents buried in unmarked graves at what they said was a survivalist paramilitary camp.

The Kansas Bureau of Investigation said the 45-caliber semi-automatic pistol, and ammunition found on the Lynn Thiele farm near Norton was turned over to Nebraska authorities investigating the deaths of Mike, 5, of Rulo, and James Thiemm, 26, of former Beatrice.

Richardson County Attorney Douglas generate Monday, charged Michael Ryan, 26, with two counts of murder. Ryan said Dennis, 16, was charged as an adult with one count of murder and Timothy Haverkamp, 23, also was charged with one count of murder.

Dennis Ryan, who was being held in Norton, Kan., was also charged as an adult. Merz said Tuesday that Michael Ryan and Haverkamp, who were arrested at the camp, likely would be arraigned in Richardson County Court Wednesday or Thursday.

Merz gave no motive for the slayings of Mike and Thiemm and declined to say how they were killed.

The bodies were found Saturday during a two-day search of the farm 2 miles north of Rulo near the Kansas border by more than 80 state, federal and local law enforcement officers. They did not say what tipped them off to the camp.

Weapons confiscated from the 80-acre farm included rifles, shotguns and hand grenades.

The weekend raid on the farm was the second in three months. On June 25 authorities found 40 rifles, 150,000 rounds of ammunition and $125,000 worth of allegedly stolen goods.

At that time about 14 people were living at the farm, which authorities termed a "religious survivalist" camp.

The slain boy once had lived on the farm with his parents, Rick and Sondra Sice. Merz said Sondra Sice died of cancer two years ago and authorities did not disclose the whereabouts of Rick Sice, who a relative said disappeared months ago.

Merz said the bodies appeared to have been buried four to six months. They were buried 5 to 6 feet deep a quarter mile south of the Haverkamp farmhouse, he said.

Autopsies were conducted in Lincoln and Merz did not disclose the findings.

Merz said Michael Ryan was charged in July 5, 15, under the law that applies to fugitives, and Dennis Ryan and Haverkamp were charged in Thiemm's death.

Merz said the charges contend Haverkamp and Ryan killed Thiemm April 30. He said Sice was killed March 25.

Haverkamp's brother, James Haverkamp, 26, and David Andreas, 31, also were charged with felonious assault. They were being held in the Richardson County Jail in Falls City.
National accreditation approved for mining engineering program

By Ken Seeber
Staff Writer

The mining engineering program at SIU-C has been accredited by the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology. ABET monitors engineering programs nationwide.

SIU-C's undergraduate program in the Department of Mining and Engineering began in 1980. Chairman Paul Chugh said that being accredited will have some important effects on the program.

"Having an accredited program will increase undergraduate enrollment substantially," Chugh said. "Now we can undertake steps to get our program on the national map."

Kenneth Tempelmeyer, dean of SIU-C's College of Engineering and Technology, said most states require engineers to be registered. To be registered, student must have graduated from an accredited school.

"Engineers work on things that impact on public safety, so it's important that engineers be properly trained," Tempelmeyer said. "Being from an accredited program ensures that..."

Nicaraguan people not angry with U.S. public, visitor says

By Lisa Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

THE PEOPLE of Nicaragua may have good reason to despise the U.S. government but that does not mean they share similar views toward the general U.S. public, says David Christensen, a SIU-C professor emeritus in geography.

"They have no quarrel with the American people at large," he said. "They would be pleased if we could deal reasonably with them." Christensen was one of five Southern Illinois University students who visited Nicaragua from July 15-26 as part of a tour hosted by Witness for Peace. On Aug. 7, 20 people on a tour hosted by the same group claim they were kidnapped by Contras, members of U.S.-supported rebel forces, as they were traveling on the San Juan River near the Costa Rican border.

WITNESS FOR Peace is a national interdenominational religious group trying to promote a peaceful resolution to the conflict in Nicaragua by offering a neutral voice that people can see what's happening first hand.

Christensen said the tour group he was with was never in similar danger though. They did see plenty of evidence of Contra destruction.

The reason the people of Nicaragua have reason to be angry with the U.S. government is, Christensen said, because, aside from the years when President Carter was in office, the United States has done little that had their best interests in mind.

"CARTER, IF you remember, was very much an advocate of human rights and not just human rights in the United States, he didn’t turn a blind eye to what happened in other countries," he said. "His idea was that somehow we would move our foreign policy so that we at least took into consideration the kinds of government and their repressiveness or democracies or fairness." However, Christensen said, President Reagan has made human rights a "secondary concern."

"HE WILL deal with anybody who is doing things we think are in the interest of the United States’ so-called security and businesses," Sandinista Party members, who now govern Nicaragua, are not looking upon favorably by the Reagan Administration because they helped overthrow the Sandinista dictatorship, which the United States helped keep in power for over 40 years.

Christensen said that the Nicaraguans his group spoke with praised the Sandinistas and the changes they have brought about. He said that under the Somosa dictatorship "life was hard" for most Nicaraguans.

"THE REVOLUTION offered them hope and they can now improve their lives. But now with the Contra war things are getting harder again and there are shortages."

An indication of the popularity of the Sandinistas among the people is the government’s plan to distribute 200,000 automatic rifles to rural peasants to help them protect themselves against Contra raids, Christensen said. "A tyrannical government doesn’t put guns in the hands of the people because it would be too easy for them to turn against those who were being authoritarian and oppressive and tyrannical against them."

WHILE his group was in Managua, the capital of Nicaragua, for five days he said they saw the people preparing to celebrate the sixth anniversary of the overthrow of Somoza. He said the celebration looked like it would be equivalent to those held in the United States on the Fourth of July.

An group did not have any direct contact with Contras, Christensen said. "They were often indications that rebel forces were near. "The Contras weren’t very far away. We don’t happen to get involved with them in any direct way. We saw evidence of their having been there earlier: smashed and burned-out cars, burned-out houses."

HE SAID he also heard "tragic stories" about Contra atrocities in Nicaragua.

One story, told to him by an American priest from Mississippi, was of Contras raping and killed a 14-year-old girl. They placed her head on a pole at the entrance to a village "as a warning to others not to mess with the Sandinistas."

Christensen said his group was also told of instances when Sandinistas "overreacted," but he said there was no suggestion of a concentrated effort by the Sandinistas to turn citizens as there was on the part of the Contras.

UNLESS THE Contra war is resolved, he said a majority of Nicaraguans are going to continue to become depressed about bad conditions surrounding their lives. In their minds, he said, "The whole promise of the revolution may be aborted."

The best policy the United States could adopt in dealing with Nicaragua, according to Christensen, would be to stop trying to remove the Sandinista government that was elected by popular vote last November. "Whatever they’re doing or whatever they’re trying to do it’s their business. This is a sovereign little nation that’s struggling to make it after a revolution which followed an admittedly horrible dictatorship."

"I THINK it would be great if we could help them," Christensen said. "They’re looking for help from other nations. Obviously, they’re little, they’re poor, they need technological help. They need all kinds of people who has been working in rural Nicaragua for four years. Described how the Contras raped and killed a 14-year-old girl. They placed her head on a pole at the entrance to a village "as a warning to others not to mess with the Sandinistas."

The way only he said he can see the Reagan Administration changing its policy toward Nicaragua is if there was a massive public outcry.

"If we can’t help them at least we can keep our hands off them," he said.

Group investigates child abuse prosecutor

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) - A special commission Tuesday began deliberating the case of a female prosecutor accused of mishandling a massive child abuse case that resulted in eventually dropping charges against 21 defendants in the case.

The three-member commission, empowered by Gov. Rudy Perpich, heard two weeks of testimony to determine whether Scott County Prosecutor Kathleen Morris should be removed or face allegations of malfeasance and must report back to the governor within 60 days.

In closing arguments Monday, Kelton Gage, the special counsel presenting evidence against Morris, said the prosecutor lied about why she dropped charges against 21 defendants in fifteen cases of child sex abuse in Jordan, Minn., to go free after two people already had been acquitted.

Morris said she dropped the charges out of concern for child witnesses and to protect another investigation of children's allegations of murder. Gage said she feared losing the cases and tarnishing a national image as a champion of sexually abused children.

"I say she committed malfeasance because she lied about her reasons for dismissing those cases," Gage said.

Gage also listed about a dozen witnesses, including Minnesota Attorney General Hubert H. Humphrey III, who refuted testimony by Morris about her handling of the cases.

Gage said Morris built a case "historic in proportion" when she charged 24 adults with child sex abuse and then dismissed charges against 21 people.

Gage said 15 of the dismissed cases could have been prosecuted and more than half of those had some corroborating physical evidence.

Morris' defense counsel, her former husband, Stephen Doyle, said in his rambling summation that any mistakes the prosecutor made in the child sex abuse cases came because Morris was "overwhelmed" by the volume of work she had to do on the case.

Doyle began his summation with a poem written by a 9-year-old child abuse victim: "Listen to the children of Jordan.

"Let them sing to us," Doyle said, as a key issue in the hearing. Two people were tried and acquitted and one man pleaded guilty before the other cases were dropped.

A former defendant brought a petition charging Morris with malfeasance after the 1983-1984 investigation.

Consumer group files complaints against Kraft ad

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Ads for Kraft Cheez Whiz are a deliberate misleading attempt to "pass off a cheap, inferior cheese product as real cheese," a consumer group said Tuesday in a complaint filed with the Federal Trade Commission.

The Center for the Public Interest challenged Kraft's television and magazine advertisements that suggested Cheez Whiz is "real cheese made easy." The group complained that the canned cheese spread, along with real cheese, contains an assortment of milk and whey products, preservatives and other additives.

Because the product contains whey and various additives, it does not fit the government's definition of cheese and may not be identified as cheese, the group said.

"THE KRAFT ad campaign is a deliberate attempt to pass off a cheap, inferior cheese product concocted by food technologists as real cheese," said Bruce Silverglade, legal director of the center.

At Kraft's Chicago headquarters, spokeswoman Louise Sheyker said she could not discuss details of the complaint because the company has not yet seen the document.

But she added, "Cheez Whiz is a pasteurized processed cheese spread, and the federal standard requires that it have at least 51 percent natural cheese in it. We do comply with the standards. The label shows that the predominant item is natural cheese."

THE FTC, which does not generally discuss pending complaints, declined comment on the matter.

Silverglade said his group does not question that Cheez Whiz meets federal standards as a pasteurized processed spread.

"But if it can't be called real cheese on the label, it shouldn't be called real cheese in an ad," he said.

He characterized the ad campaign as "symptomatic of the way many food companies are attempting to rewrite the truth about highly processed, additive laden products."

CHEEZ WHIZ, which comes in a squirt-top can and sells for about the same price as an 8-year-old child cheese, is about twice as much sodium as real cheese, said center nutritionist Bonnie Liebman.

Judge says girl must be allowed in football tryouts

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) - A judge Tuesday ordered a New Jersey school district to permit a 15-year-old girl to try out for the high school football team.

Administrative Law Judge Daniel McKewen directed the North Hunterdon Regional Board of Education to permit physical education teacher Elizabeth Balsey of Clinton Township, and give her equipment so she can practice.

"No reasons were afforded Balsey why she was denied the opportunity to participate on the high school football team and, consequently, the inference is extremely strong that the sole reason is because of her sex," McKewen said.

Lawyers for Balsey, a 5-foot, 11-inch, 127-pound junior, Monday asked McKewen to issue the temporary restraining order to stop the school district from enforcing a policy barring girls from playing on the football team.

Ann McGugh, an ACLU attorney representing Balsey, said excluding girls from the football team was a violation of their right of equal protection under the law.

The team has a "no-cuts" policy, allowing all players to be on the team, but not necessarily play.

School of Music adding courses for fall semester

The SILC School of Music is accepting applications for two fall music courses. Recording Engineering (Music) 375 has been offered the past three semesters and is open again this semester for student enrollment. Advanced Recording Engineering (Music) 499 also will be offered this semester.

Students with solid backgrounds in music or electronics are encouraged to register and will be chosen accordingly.

Students should see Jo Ellen Smith at Alford Hall, Room 103, for applications and closed class cards.

Women’s health clinic files suit against anti-abortion protesters

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A women’s health clinic filed suit in federal court Tuesday seeking $300,000 in damages from anti-abortion protesters it claimed was based on the destruction of the facility.

A lawyer for the Northeast Women’s Center in Philadelphia said the suit marked the first time the federal anti-trust and racketeering laws have been used against anti-abortion protesters.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court, named 13 individuals and organizations in Delaware and Chester counties, and Wilmington, Del., to allegedly took part in numerous demonstrations at the clinic under the name “Pro-Life Non-Violent Action Project.”

The suit claims the group blocked the clinic’s entrances, harassed employees and clients at work and at home, placed signs around the site, or depicting employees as Nazis, told neighbors of staff members that the employees were murdering babies, and took photographs of staff members’ plates to track them down.

In the latest protest Aug. 10, the suit claims, the group broke into the clinic and destroyed, damaged or stole about $100,000 worth of equipment.

“Time is now to let people recognize that these people are not peaceful protesters but criminal racketeers who refuse to stop at nothing in support of their fanatical religious ideology,” said Mary Banecker, center administrator.

Edmond Tiryak, lawyer for the clinic, said the suit is unusual because it is the first time the federal Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act and the Clayton and Sherman Antitrust acts were being used against anti-abortion protesters.

Traditionally, abortion clinics have gone to state court to get orders to stop the protesting and when they don’t stop, they ask the court to put the protesters in jail,” Tiryak said. “That has proved to be totally ineffective.”

The suit claims the clinic has been harmed because of the group’s ongoing criminal enterprise and pattern of racketeering law. The suit also claims the defendants “have entered into a conspiracy to restrain trade and commerce, with the purpose and intention of destroying plaintiff’s business and property.”

Castrated male sentenced to prison for molestation

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A man who was voluntarily castrated 46 years ago to avoid going to jail for molesting two children was sentenced Tuesday to 14 years in prison for molesting three more youngsters.

Alfred Bayley, 69, of Chatsworth pleaded guilty in June to charges he sexually assaulted two 6-year-old girls he was babysitting and the 5-year-old granddaughter of a woman he dated.

Bayley, who twice tried to kill himself with pills following his guilty plea, was sentenced by Superior Court Judge Michael Tyman.

“Mr. Bayley, I feel sorry for you, I feel sorry for your family, but I feel I have no choice” but to order a state prison sentence, Tyman said.

The bearded Bayley, still appearing weak from his suicide attempts, showed no emotion at the sentencing.

In a compassionate plea for leniency, his attorney, Bruce Graton, acknowledged that Bayley is a pedophile, but characterized him as an otherwise “good, decent, human being.”

“He never meant to (physically harm) any of the children. He’s a sick, ill man who was his own molester as a child,” Graton said.

Snake-handling to continue despite death of evangelist

GREENEVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Members of a religious sect vowed Tuesday to continue using poisonous snakes despite the death of a member.

The Rev. Marvin Gregg of the House of Prayer in Jesus’ Name in Morristown, Tenn., said that Charles Prince, 47, was a great loss, but would not stop from using “serpents” in worship services.

“We’ve lost a real good close brother like brother Charles before, but they’re just going to have to press on,” Gregg said.

Prince, Canton, N.C., was leading a service Saturday night at the Greeneville Apostolic Church of God when he was bitten on the left hand by a rattlesnake he was handling as part of the service.

The service continued and the ceremony was performed at the church.

“I am going to get some rest now and he turned over on his side and died,” said church member Carl Reed, at whose home Prince died.

said later.

He asked us to pray with him not long before he died. Then he said, “I think I’m going to get some rest now and he turned over on his side and died,” said church member Carl Reed, at whose home Prince died.

Prince was arrested in Canton Aug. 4 and charged with public snake-handling.
Women’s health clinic files suit against anti-abortion protesters

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A women’s health clinic filed suit in federal court Tuesday, seeking $300,000 in damages from six of 12 arrestees at an anti-abortion protest. The clinic claimed it was bent on the destruction of the facility.

A lawyer for the Northeast Women’s Center in Philadelphia said the suit marked the first time the federal courts had reached into anti-abortion activities.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court, named 13 respondents in Delaware and Chester counties, and Wilmington, Delaware. It also called for numerous demonstrations at the clinic under the name “Pro-Life Non-Violent Action Projects.”

The suit claims the group blocked the clinic’s entrances, harassed employees and clients at work and at home, placed signs around the site depicting employees as Nazis, told neighbors of staff members that the employees were murdering babies, and took photographs of staff license plates to track them down.

In the latest protest Aug. 10, the suit claims, the group broke into the clinic and destroyed, damaged or stole about $100,000 worth of equipment.

It is time that people recognize that these people are not peaceful protesters but organized criminals who will stop at nothing in support of their fanatical religious ideology,” said David Banecker, center administrator.

Castrated male sentenced to prison for molestation

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A man who was voluntarily castrated 40 years ago to avoid going to jail for molesting two children was sentenced Tuesday to 14 years in prison for molesting three more youngsters.

Alfred Bayley, 69, of Chatsworth, pleaded guilty in June to charges he sexually assaulted two 8-year-old girls he was babysitting and the 8-year-old granddaughter of a woman he dated.

Bayley, who twice tried to kill himself with pills following his guilty plea, was sentenced by Superior Court Judge Michael McDonald.

“Mr. Bayley — I feel sorry for you and I feel sorry for your family, but I feel I have no choice” but to order a state prison sentence, Tyman said.

The bearded Bayley, still appearing slightly fevered from his suicide attempts, showed no emotion at the sentencing.

In a compassionate plea for leniency, his attorney, Bruce Gleason, acknowledged that Bayley, Bayley was a pedophile, but characterized him as an otherwise “good, decent, human being.”

“His mother meant to (physically harm) any of the children. He’s a sick ill man” who was himself molested as a child, Gleason said.

Snake-handling to continue despite death of evangelist

GREENEVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Members of a religious sect vowed Tuesday to continue using poisonous snakes in their services even though traveling evangelist Charles Prince was bitten by a rattlesnake and died 36 hours later.

Prince, Canton, N.C., was leading a service Saturday night at the Greeneville Apostolic Church of God when he was bitten on the left hand by a rattlesnake he was handling as part of a section of the ceremony, Greene County Sheriff Gail Cofey said.

Prince, refusing medical attention, died nearly 36 hours later at a fellow worshiper’s home.

“He asked us to pray with him not long before he died. Then he said, ‘I think I’m going to get some rest now and I’ll be turned over on his side and died,”’ said church member Carl Reed, at whose home Prince died.

Cofey said after Prince was bitten by the snake, he continued to serve and drink shadrkan.

Prince was arrested in Canton Aug. 4 and charged with public snake-handling.

High Court grants emergency execution stay

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — A Supreme Court judge granted an emergency three-week stay of execution Tuesday to a black activist who was to be hanged at dawn Wednesday and whose death was expected to spark new race riots.

In other developments, police killed a young black man and arrested 66 people in clashes with the African National Congress, member of the outlawed three-week stay of its organization and whose death was expected to spark new evidence in the case.

The ANC said another member of its organization was responsible for killing the police officer, who the group contended was a frequent witness in the prosecution of anti-apartheid activists.

In Pretoria, Supreme Court Judge C.F. Eloff approved a three-week stay of execution for Benjamin Moloise, 30, a member of the outlawed African National Congress, who was sentenced at dawn Wednesday to three weeks in prison.

The hanging, the first in South Africa since 1982, would have taken place at dawn Wednesday.

Police reported 15 incidents of political violence Tuesday and said 66 people were arrested for arson, stone-throwing, intimidation and looting in 12 black townships across the country.

In an effort to stem racial violence, security forces sealed off part of Soweto’s largest black ghetto — searched about 500 homes and frisked residents before stamping their hands with red-ink "passports."

A police spokesman refused to discuss the raid in Soweto, home to nearly two million blacks who work in or near Johannesburg, but said police reserve the right to conduct house-to-house searches in townships troubled by violence.

In Bethal, 90 miles east of Johannesburg, a black policeman shot and killed a young black man who was part of a mob trying to prevent the officer from going to work, police said.

SOWETO RESIDENTS said police arrived in a convoy of large armored trucks and sealed off the main road through the Diepkloof area of the sprawling black ghetto 6 miles southwest of Johannesburg.

"We were terrified when we first saw the Hippios and Gaspers," one resident said of the giant armored trucks. "We did not understand what was going on."

Eight-seater minibus taxis were lined up as roadblocks while police frisked commuters heading for work and stamped their palms with an illegible red impression, witnesses said.

"It looked like a border post and they were giving us passports," said one commuter.
Falwell denounces Tutu, launches investment drive

NEW YORK (UPI) - Rev. Jerry Falwell returned Tuesday from a tour of South Africa calling Nobel Peace Prize Winner Bishop Desmond Tutu a "phony" and pledging to begin a drive to encourage investors to divest from a racially segregated country.

Falwell, the leader of Moral Majority and a strong supporter of President Reagan, and eight other Church leaders went to South Africa Aug. 13 on a five-day fact-finding mission and met with South African President P.W. Botha and Foreign Minister Roelof Botha.

"I have yet to find one person in South Africa - poor, wealthy, black, colored - who did not plead with the American people not to divest and not to impose sanctions," Falwell said.

He quoted Edward Kunene, the black minister of youth, as saying, "Your sanctions will not hurt the Pretoria government, but will kill the children."

A kid who would ban the sale of krugerrands, the South African gold coin, and impose other sanctions on the South Africa country is awaiting Senate approval. A slightly different version has already passed in the House.

Falwell charged Tutu, the black religious leader who has urged Americans to withdraw their support from the white-minority government, does not truly represent the black people of South Africa.

"I think he is a phony as far as representing the black people," said Falwell. "I have yet to find one person in South Africa who did not plead with the American people not to divest and not to impose sanctions." Falwell added.

Falwell, who has millions of followers in the United States, said he would embark on a national television-legislative campaign to encourage Americans to buy krugerrands and invest in companies that do business with South Africa.

He said he also would urge Americans to withdraw their money from firms that have withdrawn their investments from South Africa because of that country's racial policies.

He said the South African government needs America's support, although he said he himself does not support the concept of apartheid - the policy of racial segregation.

"Apartheid is wrong. No sensible person, certainly no Christian, can support it," he said.

Americans should continue to pressure the South African government to end racial segregation, Falwell added, but not to the point where the country will fall into the hands of the communists or a radical right-wing group.

Soviets working on Star Wars since 1964, says magazine report

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) - Soviet Union has been working on its own "Star Wars" program since 1964, according to a top U.S. official, an influential magazine reported Tuesday.

A Pentagon spokesman for the International Defense Review, which based its story on U.S. defense and intelligence communities, said the story in the August issue was based on information from "an Eastern source living in Vienna."

The information was "initially confirmed by official Western defense experts," the spokesman said. He declined to be more specific.

"DESPITE its shrill protests against President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative, commonly known as "Star Wars," the Soviet Union has been developing its own "Star Wars" space weapons since 1964," the article said.

"anti-space defense," the magazine reported. The article said weapons under development include:

- Interception-beam weapons, which have been tested at the Antimonastery Institution in Leningrad, Sarov near Gorki, and at other locations.

- Proton-beam weapons.

- HIGH-POWER, near-infrared laser beams, being tested at facilities at Semipalatinsk, Krasnaya Rechka, Krasnoyarsk and Tyuratam.

- A plasma beam generator, located at Agdam, near the Caspian Sea.

- High-power radars, thought to be for use with particle beam weapons in a ballistic missile defense system and under construction at Olenogorsk, Pechora, Shara Shagan, Lyak, Pushkino and Ablakek.

- Space-based lasers that derive energy from conventional explosives, which are expected to be tested in the 1990s.

- New anti-ballistic missiles known as the SH-01 and SH-02, which have been tested since 1986.

"COORDINATION OF all such space-defense related projects is handled by Prof. J.P. Velikov, director of the Kurchatov Institute of the Soviet Academy of Sciences in Moscow," the magazine said.

There was no immediate comment from the Soviet Union about the article.

Soviet officials in Geneva on Tuesday contended their proposal Monday for the creation of an international space agency represents a "Star Peace" program rather than a "Star Wars," program.

Viktor I. Isaelyan, Soviet delegate to the 40-nation Disarmament Conference, told a news conference that the proposal should be discussed at the U.N. General Assembly this year, and a full-fledged conference should be held by 1987.
Area bicyclists must follow rules for safe, legal vehicle operation

By Justus Weathersby Jr.
Staff Writer

With the beginning of the fall semester at SIU-C comes an influx of bicyclists new to the area and unfamiliar with rules for operation of bicycles in Carbondale. Carbondale police say that it is important for new and returning students to be well informed about the rules for safe and legal operation of their bicycles.

Art Wright, Carbondale police public information officer, said city ordinances require all bicycles to be registered with either SIU-C or Carbondale police. The registration fee for the City of Carbondale and for the University is $2.

"Bicycle registration enhances the chances of a stolen bicycle being returned to the owner and provides a serial number for insurance purposes. To register your bicycle, simply bring it to the Carbondale Police Department," Wright said.

"Your bicycle must be equipped with four reflectors. One on each wheel, one visible from the front and one visible from the rear," he said.

Wright said bicyclists are required to obey all traffic rules, including stop signs, traffic lights and one-way streets.

City ordinances prohibit bicyclists from riding bikes on sidewalks, he said, and there is a $50 fine for a traffic violation committed by a bicyclist.

Wright said bicycle "Rules of the Road" booklets are available at the Carbondale Police Department and at the Driver's License Examining Station at the Murdade Shopping Center.

Former administrator to head university

Former SIU-C Administrator Frank E. Horton has been named president of the University of Oklahoma. He will take office on September 6.

Horton served as SIU-C's vice president for academic affairs and research from August 1975 to July 1980. Present Vice President John C. Guyon, who had been Horton's assistant, succeeded him.

Since 1968, Horton has been chancellor of the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, second largest campus of the UW system.

Under Horton's administration, UWM established a School of Journalism, added two doctoral and several master's and bachelor's degree programs and completed a $50 million worth of campus construction.

He won Milwaukee's William C. Payne Award for community service after co-chairing a 1983 task force that outlined programs for the future of the city. He also worked with the State of Wisconsin to enhance the state's economic development.

Horton, an urban geographer and a university administrator since 1968, will turn 46 on August 19. He and his wife, Nancy, have four daughters.
Free GED help offered to degree-seeking adults

Men's rugby team seeks hard-hitting players

By Sandra Todd
Staff Writer

If you have ever heard the words "rugby" or "rugby," then you have probably been to a rugby match.

In case you don't know what the words mean, Bill Svetlik, tournament director for the SIU-C Men's Rugby Club, described rugby as "a bunch of guys piling up on top of you to get the ball." That, very basically, is the object of rugby—to get the ball and score.

Svetlik explained that there are 15 men per side in a match, who, by a series of kicks and backwards lateral passes, move the ball down field to get close enough for a "try" in the end zone. A successful try means a score. To gain four points, the player must have the ball in his possession and touch it to the ground with both hands in the end zone.

The SIU Men's Rugby Club will take to the field Monday, August 26, to start their fall season. Steve Euker, club president, welcomes anyone who "likes to hit hard and have a good time" to come to Monday's practice.

There are no prerequisites for joining, "not even high school football experience," said Euker.

The first week of practices will be "strictly conditioning," which means a lot of running up hills and around campus lake, said Euker. After that, the veteran players will teach the newcomers the basic strategies of the game.

The club practices Monday through Thursday from 4 to 6 p.m. behind Abe Martin Field, southwest of the Arena.

The fall schedule was to begin Sept. 7, with a match against the University of Illinois, but the U of I cancelled for "no apparent reason," said Svetlik.

"We were psyched to play them," said Svetlik.

Euker and Svetlik said that disciplinary action can be taken against U of I by the rugby union for the sudden cancellation.

Home matches for the fall include: "Fan Appreciation Day," Sept. 21, against the St. Louis Ramsbers; and "The All Ghouls Tournament" on Oct. 26, in which 16 teams will compete.

Away matches are Illinois State, Sept. 14; Paducah, Ky., Sept. 29; The Union Tournament in Springfield, Oct. 5; Southeast Missouri State on Oct. 12, and the Springfield Celts on Oct. 19.

Club dues are $20, and are utilized mainly for after-game festivities.

New Orleans (UPI)— Former Tulane basketball star John "Hot Rod" Williams could be charged in federal court, even if the state sports brutality case against him is dropped.

However, Williams' assets, and he will be suspended for the remainder of last year for "interceptions," however, is poor at judgment, but it is hoped this will pass with more experience.

Joe Gravens, a 6-foot, 190 pound junior, hit 24 of 58 passes last year for 380 yards and a touchdown. He was also touched by defenders for six interceptions.

Gravens had minor surgery to his shoulder after an injury in spring practice, but that seems to have had zero effect on him. The injury may have contributed to his "gut instinct," which Dorri said is his most valuable asset. Dorr said Svetlik is an intense competitor with whom he enjoys playing games in practice.

Kevin Brown, a 6-foot-4, 190 pound freshman, was red-shirted last year, and though he has no collegiate experience, he has a good chance to start. He was an outstanding player in Northwestern High School in Kokomo, Ind. and earned conference and state honors.

Size and mobility are Brown's assets, and he throws on the run very well, Dorr said, but he is sometimes too intense and presses too much.

Kevin Brown, a 6-foot-4, 190 pound freshman, was red-shirted last year, and though he has no collegiate experience, he has a good chance to start. He was an outstanding player in Northwestern High School in Kokomo, Ind. and earned conference and state honors.

Size and mobility are Brown's assets, and he throws on the run very well, Dorr said, but he is sometimes too intense and presses too much.

Having a very slim chance to play, senior walk-on Jerry Gleisner from Danville, Said coaches were more interested in Gleisner's play as a defensive back, but the coaches decided to use him as a quarterback when Joe Gravens was injured.

two touchdowns last year. But he also had an off-year for interceptions.

King used to have problems with putting too much pressure on himself, but he is more relaxed now, Dorri said. Dorri said King has experience, arm strength, and has shown some leadership qualities. Dorri said King occasionally has poor judgment, but it is hoped this will pass with more experience.

Joe Gravens, a 6-foot, 190 pound junior, hit 24 of 58 passes last year for 380 yards and a touchdown. He was also touched by defenders for six interceptions.

Graves had minor surgery to his shoulder after an injury in spring practice, but that seems to have had zero effect on him. The injury may have contributed to his "gut instinct," which Dorri said is his most valuable asset. Dorr said Svetlik is an intense competitor with whom he enjoys playing games in practice.

Intramurals crank up; 22 sports on docket

By Rich Heaton
Staff Writer

With 22 different intramural sports available this fall, the "a sport for everyone" philosophy of Intramural Sports Coordinator Bill McMinn seems right on target.

McMinn says that with three divisions in every sport it is possible for every level of competitor to participate. A Division is designed to be the most competitive, B Division is for the intermediate competitor and C Division is for the person just wants to have fun and participate.

Intramural Sports helps students meet others outside of the classroom, says McMinn. There are about 3,500 participants in intramural sports during a semester. With up to 700 teams in the top four sports, intramurals has one of the highest participation percentages among campus activities.

Women are not forgotten either. There is either a co-ed team or a women's team for every sport. McMinn says that for the first time, there will be a co-ed league for flag football.

For team sports there are meetings for the captains before the start of the season to go over the rules for each sport. The first captain's meeting will be held Aug. 28, 4 p.m., in Room 158 of the Recreation Center, for the floor hockey teams. There will be a softball officials meeting for all interested on Aug. 29 at 4 p.m., in Room 158 of the Recreation Center.

Information on intramurals is available at the Office of Intramural Sports, 336-5331.

Gateway officials to consider allowing football in conference

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

Members of the Gateway Collegiate Athletics Conference will meet in St. Louis Wednesday to discuss whether to accept football into the conference.

The Gateway is a conference for women's intercollegiate athletics and does not include any programs for men's intercollegiate athletic events.

Scheduled to attend the meeting representing SIU-C were Dean Stick, special assistant to the president on intercollegiate athletics; Lew Hartzog, director of men's athletics; Charlotte West, director of women's athletics; and Margaret Matthias, chairperson of intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee.

SIU-C remains a member of the Missouri Valley Conference for participation in collegiate football until the end of this season. The MVC decided to drop football as a conference sport after the 1985 season because of financial difficulties and scheduling problems as the major reasons.

When the decision was made to drop football as a conference sport, MVC officials decided to promote basketball as the conference's primary sport.

The MVC had eight schools which participated in football, but two of those schools — Tulsa and Wichita State — had long indicated that they would prefer to play in another conference.

Both schools had actively pursued the opportunity to join the College Football Association, a group of bigger collegiate programs that offers a lucrative television contract for regionally slating games.

Both Tulsa and Wichita State had competed in the MVC as Division I-A teams, while the other six competed as I-AA. Division I-A teams are allowed 90 scholarships while division I-AA teams are allowed 70.

Six schools which compete on a I-AA ranking — SIU-C, Illinois State, Eastern Illinois, Western Illinois, Southwest Missouri State and Northern Iowa — are the schools seeking a new football conference.

Cubs recall infielder Owen

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Cubs Tuesday recalled infielder Dave Owen from their Triple-A Iowa affiliate to fill the vacancy created by the injury to Billy Hatcher.

Owen, who batted .194 in 47 games with the Cubs this year, had a .257 batting average in 100 games at Iowa this season, a spokesman for the Cubs said.

The 27-year-old was used mostly at second base this season and had 72 hits, including 11 home runs, 3 triples and 27 RBIs.

Hatcher was placed on the 15-day disabled list Monday with a partial ligament tear in his left hand.

Holdout may soon be over for Bears’ LB Singletary

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Bears’ linebacker Mike Singletary, a holdout this season, met with club president Mike McCaskey Tuesday and voiced optimism “something can be resolved” to get him back in the fold.

Singletary, the NFC defensive player of the year who has sought a renegotiation of his contract, met with McCaskey for what seemed like “five hours” at the Bears’ training facility Monday, according to one source. He is one of three holdouts on the Bears’ squad, which has lost its first two pre-season games. Still unsigned are free agents Todd Bell and Al Harper, both defensive players.

Singletary, who went into the meeting without an agent, called the Bears about having the meeting Tuesday, which did not initially include General Manager Jerry Vainisi, who has steadfastly refused to renegotiate the contract. Vainisi has maintained the club has a strict policy of not renegotiating parts.

“I don’t know if you can call it renegotiating or restructuring,” said Singletary, who would not disclose the details of the contract talks. “I’ve been here for five years and had three years remaining on the part.”

McCaskey agreed there was progress but insisted the Bears were not renegotiating under Singletary’s contract.

“I think we have to figure out what was at the heart of things,” McCaskey said. “Before we get to shaking hands it doesn’t help to explore all the details now.”

McCaskey said it was essential Vainisi stand by the original contract. He added an “honest misunderstanding” probably grew out of a pledge Singletary thought he received from Vainisi following last season to renegotiate the linebacker’s contract.

“It does detract from a team when players who are important to the team aren’t there,” said McCaskey, reacting to the club’s lackluster performance in the opening two pre-season defeats.

Singletary said he was anxious to get the matter resolved.

“The bottom line is I was talking to my wife and thinking it would be easy to sit out and not talk with them, that they can trade me and I’ll go somewhere else. I really felt I would be a Chicago Bear.”

Singletary said. “There is no where else in the league for me.”

Singletary said he would have little trouble getting ready to play.

“I don’t think that’s a big issue right now,” Singletary said.

Competitive cyclists sought by race team

By Tom Mangan
Sports Editor

If you own a lightweight racing bicycle and are interested in doing something more interesting than avoiding pedestrians when you ride, the SIU-C Pheonix Bike Racing Team may be what you are looking for.

Pheonix team manager Alberto Vivas says the team welcomes anyone who has a bike and wants to race. The team will accept new members during a meeting Aug. 27 in Room 111 of the Recreation Center.

Fourteen men and three women make up the current team, but Vivas says that women are especially encouraged to join the team.

You don’t have to be a super jock to be a bike racer, but, Vivas says, you should be able to maintain a 17 to 20 mph pace for about 50 miles to be a competitive racer.

Races are usually held on weekends, and competition is divided into two types of races, criteriums and criteriums. Road races vary from 20 to 100 miles, Vivas says, while criterium races are run on a shorter track, about two miles long, with many turns to test a rider’s control of a cycle.

The team practices every week and plans to hold time trials and criterium practices on weekends this fall. Last summer, the team held time trials and criterium practices on weekends, but heavy school-year traffic prompted the team to change practice times, Vivas said.

Although the team has not charged a fee to members in the past, Vivas says new members may be charged $5 this year to pay for prizes given in team competition.

The team often leaves town to enter races in St. Louis, Chicago and other Midwestern cities. This weekend, the racers plan to go to the Chicago. Mayfair race Aug. 11.

At The 6th Annual Wuchter Memorial race in St. Louis held Aug. 11,ers Sue Powell and envelope Aygorenin finished third and fifth respectively in the women’s 26-mile race.

Pheonix men Art Bickers, Vivas and Mike Wendon finished 11th, 12th and respectively in the men’s fifth category IV 30-mile race at the Wuchter Memorial.

Vivas recommends that a racer use as light a cycle as possible. He says a good beginner cycle can be bought for about $500, but better, lighter bikes will cost up to $1,600.

CAGERS: Youth is the rule

“I want intensity, and if a player works hard and shows me discipline and determination, then he’ll be in the game.”

Herrin, who will be in first year of coaching at the collegiate level, has another problem: the lack of strength and experienced players, for his team will face one of the toughest schedules in the school’s history.

The 28-game schedule includes games against the always-tough Arkansas Razorbacks of the Southwest Conference, Big Eight op-ponents Missouri and Nebraska and Big Ten opponent Purdue.

“We’ve got a tough schedule, probably the toughest in the history of the school, but we’ll try to use that to our advantage,” Herrin said.

“A lot of times you can learn more from losing to a great team than beating a team that’s just average,” Herrin said.

The Salukis will kick off the season and the Herrin Era on Nov. 22 at the Arena, where Chicago State comes to town.

Quarterback slot still not decided

By Ron Warrick

Staff Writer

So far, trying to find a starting quarterback for the 1985 football team has been like trying to decide which silver dollar should be put into a slot machine — you know it will sell out the machine eventually, but which one will give you the jackpot.

Saturday's scrimmage was supposed to be a day when head coach Don Dorr would likely choose Joe Graves, Pat King or Steve Stalberger, but instead No. 1 passer, but mediocre play by all three brought only more uncertainty.

"I'm not very pleased with any of the quarterbacks' play," Dorr said after the scrimmage.

"We're going to have to bear with them. I'm afraid the decision is going to have to be made on Aug. 31 (the Salukis' first game). It may have to be even on the third or fourth game.

In one of those games, one of those quarterbacks is going to step out, become mature and develop into a fair quarterback," Dorr said.

Dorr said choosing a quarterback is one of the most difficult decisions he will ever make.

In all of the teams I've been on, we've never had quarterbacks so close together in experience as Graves and King. It is a dilemma because both of the players are benched, he may go with one to start.

"We may have to eventually do what Florida State did a few years ago and start two quarterbacks in a game," Dorr said.

If the decision will be based on how King and Joe Graves do have an edge for the quarterback job.

Riser, a 6-foot-4, 185-pound sophomore, connected on 50 percent of his passes for 351 yards and five touchdowns when brother Thad signed.

"Riser is a bigger and we really need some guys who are going to play tough," Herrin said.

In addition to the three returning guards, the Salukis also recruited brothers Thad and Greg Matta, a pair of prospects from Hopepton-East Lynn.

Thad (6-foot-4, 180 pounds) played for the Hopepton-East Lynn team that finished third in the Illinois High School Association last year. Greg's brother, the dual signed with SIUC last October.

"Thad has good court intelligence, instincts and awareness and will make a fine second guard," Herrin said of his new recruit. "Greg, a sophomore, will not be eligible to play until Dec. 13, when he will have completed the fall semester at UA-B.

"He's a great leaper," Herrin said, and "he has the ability to shoot well and block shots, but, like Krueger, needs to be between his size and strength up in the worst way."

A big man with the bulk to play a little rough on the inside, Ken Durham is another new face expected to see some playing time. A junior college transfer from Rogers State College, Herrin will expect Durham to play power forward.

"Durham is very physical and we'll have to rely on ability to bang away on the inside," said Herrin. "We have to improve his rebounding so he will be able to take punishment as a power forward and get rebounds."

Among the other newcomers is Randy House, who played under Herrin's leadership at Benton High School. Herrin described House as a physical player who will either play small forward or big guard.

Keith Kiner is another juco transfer who has the ability to be a physical. At 6-foot-4 and 235 pounds, Kiner, who comes to SIUC from Belleville Area College, will be expected to play inside. Kiner will be used with Durham to form a power-forward tandem.

Another freshman player is Billy Ross, who reigns from Washington High School in Milwaukee, Wis. Ross is 6-foot-4 and 220 pounds, will also be used inside despite his height.

"Krueger and Ross played on state championship teams in Wisconsin," Herrin said. "They are used to building basketball teams and have been exposed to winning programs," Herrin said. "They know how to win and have the attitude which is 'out to help the team.'

"Ross is a bigger and we really need some guys who are going to play tough," Herrin said.

When looking at the overall picture, Herrin said he wants to have an exciting season and a season in which he will use a three-guard lineup in most games.

"I think we can look forward to a good year with the guards," Herrin said. "We lack size and strength and we are not super-quick, but we are intelligent and we have intensity."

Herrin said that his availability of position players will dictate the lineup, and that he will use a three-guard lineup in most games.

"We'll use a lot of three-guard lineups, but will also utilize our small forwards," Herrin said.

"Every position on the team will be filled, and if these guys want to play, then they'll have to impress me and my coaching staff," Herrin said.

Young players highlight men's cage team

Faced with an inexperienced roster, Don Dorr will take at least eight new faces with just four returning from last year's squad, basketball coach Rich Herrin is nonetheless excited about the 1985-86 basketball season.

"I wanted to give the team a lot of practice with new faces," Herrin said of his new lineup.

"In addition to the returning players, the Salukis recruited brothers Thad and Greg Matta, a pair of prospects from Hopepton-East Lynn."

Stalberger says coaching helps her golf game

By Anita J. Stoner

Staff Writer

Some folks picture golf pros spending sunny summer days playing around at the country club.

But how ever glamorous a job it may seem, teaching professionals actually have the lead time to spend time for their own sports.

After two winters on two mini-tours, Sonya Stalberger had never qualified for a LPGA Tour event or a Golf Association tournament. Beginning this season with financial expense, Stalberger quit to devote more time to her teaching. She joined the Elks Country Club in Elkhart, Ind., and is now signed on as Saluki women's golf coach.

Ironically, with teaching and coaching leaving her little time to practice, Stalberger canceled the Midwest Regional Teaching Division Championship last May and then qualified to play in the LPGA Championship in May 1986.

"Right now I'm really pleased with my golf game. I think teaching keeps me mentally sharp and makes me learn more about the golf swing. You can learn quite a bit from other people's mistakes," Stalberger said.

"It helped to prepare for the LPGA Championship last year," said Stalberger. "Next year, the former Iowa stand­ dout will compete in the LPGA Teaching Division National Championship, Sept. 15-18, at Pine Knob Golf Course in Livonia, Mich. As a regional champion, Stalberger will be ranked in the top 10 for the 72-hole event which should include many former LPGA tourists.

Stalberger, 25, begins her second season as Saluki coach. Although a victory in September is improbable, Stalberger is confident that she will interfere with coaching. Stalberger plans to continue to devote 100 percent of her eff­orts to the team, which will help her while she works on her game in her spare time.

"Coaching has helped me tremendously with my own game. Watching 20-30 players gives me a totally different perspective to playing a golf course. You can separate yourself and think rationally about the golf shot more when you're actually in­ volved," Stalberger said.

The benefits are reciprocal.

"If I keep my game sharp, I'm in touch with the players. In order to be a good teacher, you have to be able to relate and keep in touch with what they're going through and aren't competitive, you can't teach," said Herrin.

With her playing career on the rise, she still thinks she's a better teacher than player, "so the desire to compete to win against the rest of the competition," She said.

Any decision to return to the tour will be based on how she performs in the two LPGA events because, "if you aren't good enough, you shouldn't be out there."

Stalberger's coaching goals have raised team goals higher than this year and the most-ex­ perienced players return, and she hopes the team will set new career lows. Stalberger also hopes the team will set the school record for the way on the way to the Gateway Conference championship.

Since the team didn't win a tournament last year but had plenty of second places, Stalberger is looking at early to reverse the near misses.

"If your own game or the team, the situation you aren't going out for second--you have to strive to win," Herrin said.
