Readmission Policy Takes Effect

Twenty one students who have applied for readmission to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences have not been accepted, Bruce B. MacLachlan, assistant dean, said.

The students were dropped from school during the last academic year. They failed to maintain a 3.0 grade average after they were placed on scholastic probation.

Only three such students have been readmitted to the college for the winter quarter. "They were exceptional cases, however," MacLachlan said.

In the past such students have been readily readmitted after one quarter had elapsed since their withdrawal from school. A new University policy, however, requires a two-quarter waiting period before the student can be readmitted.

MacLachlan added that these students and others like them in the future may have to wait a year before being reaccepted.

"Surveys have shown that scholastically poor students who have returned to school after at least a year's leave will remain in school," MacLachlan said. "They get a different perspective on life."

The deans of the College of Education and the other schools within the University have reported that they have had few applications for readmission from those students who were dropped during the last academic year.

Fee Hike Carries in Record Voting

Office Shift Puts Housing In New Unit

Housing Offices on both SIU campuses have been made sub-units of the Student Affairs Division of the University.

Financial aspects of the offices have been linked with the Business Affairs Division. Basic housing policy will be determined by both divisions, Jack W. Graham said.

Graham, dean of students, said the change had been made to facilitate operation of the student housing program on both campuses.

Vernon H. Broertjes was named coordinator of housing at Carbondale. William Burcky will fill the same post at Edwardsville.

Graham said the housing coordinators will be responsible for making the program sensitive to student interests and needs and for helping members of the community invest wisely in both physical facilities and appropriate educational systems.

Southern Adopts 'Early Decision' Admission Policy

High-ranking high school seniors can now apply for enrollment in both the 1966 summer and fall quarters, Leslie J. Chamberlin, admissions director, said Thursday.

Chamberlin said a new "early decision" admissions policy adopted by SIU enables tentative acceptance of students in the upper quarter of their high school classes on the basis of six semesters of high school study. Others will be considered after the completion of seven semesters.

Chamberlin said the "early decision" plan not only will benefit the students, but also will help the University spread the heavy flow of admission applications more evenly.

Southern Trounces Bulldogs 91-49

Southern rolled to an easy 91-49 victory over Northeast Missouri State Thursday night in the Arena after building up a big lead in the first half and simply adding to it from there on.

By combining good first half shooting with its usual sharp defense, Southern waltzed its way to a 51-18 halftime lead that the grossly outclassed Bulldogs couldn't begin to overcome.

Stolen Items Total $500

Abbott, Bailey Halls Looted Over Break; Student Body Vice President's Room Hit

A stereo phonograph, a portable typewriter, four alarm clocks, two radios and $15 in cash were stolen from Abbott and Bailey halls, Thompson Point, over the Thanksgiving vacation.

The value of the stolen items was estimated at $500, according to Thomas L. Leffler, security officer.

Six rooms had been entered at Abbott and two were entered in Bailey, Leffler said. No forced entrance was made into any of the rooms, he said.

Evidently, the thief, or thieves, entered the rooms by reaching through the transoms over the doors and releasing the locks, or "someone had a key," Leffler said.

The Security Office is investigating the theft. Officers found hand and finger prints in the dust on the transoms of several of the entered rooms, and they are trying to identify them.

One of the rooms in Bailey was evidently entered by use of the door key. The student living in the room had been hiding the key in the hall. When he returned from vacation and found his room had been entered, he also discovered that the key was missing from its hiding place.

Both Bailey and Abbott halls remained open during the break for students who didn't go home for Thanksgiving. John Paul Davis, student body vice president, was the person hit the hardest by the theft. He lost a stereo valued at $199, an AM-FM radio valued at $79, and five LP records valued at $25.

Davis said he hoped the thieves would bring the stereo back when they got tired of listening to it.

Edelhofer Elected To Festival Post

In the largest student vote to date, the students of SIU approved the athletic fee plebiscite 2,069 to 1,678.

3,785 students voted, of which 28 were marked invalid. Chuck Edelhofer received 953 votes to be elected Spring Festival Chairman for 1966. Following him in the voting were Albert R. Hapke with 660 and Frank Rosenbaum with 599.

Results of the women's hours will be tabulated at a later date by the Communications Commission of the Campus Senate.

In other voting, William Hall was elected senator for married family housing with 128 votes. He ran unopposed.

William McLaughlin received 64 votes to be elected senator from VTL. His opponent, Richard Markham, received 46.

The new School of Technology senator is Millard Cameron who received 73 votes. He ran unopposed.

The plebiscite stated that the activity fee would be increased by $4 per quarter in order to give additional money to the Athletic Department so that they can provide NCAA scholarships to promising athletes. The increase would take effect summer quarter, 1966. All admission charges for students to athletic events would then be dropped.

The elements of the plebiscite were known for several weeks but seemed only to become an issue in the last several days.

The results of the election were announced to the Campus Senate by John Zink, elections commissioner.

Volunteers to Work Overseas To Be Interviewed Dec. 12, 13

Students and faculty members interested in working overseas with the International Voluntary Services should contact Placement Service for an appointments for Dec. 12 or 13.

William H. Meyers, a representative from the service, will be on campus on those days to interview students. Meyers will also discuss work he did in Viet Nam for IVS at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Dec. 13 in Muckelroy Auditorium of the Agriculture Building.

The purpose of IVS is to aid disadvantaged people overseas in finding new satisfactions in life and living more abundantly.

Students selected for these jobs are usually placed in small villages and work directly with the people. Basic qualifications for IVS workers are a bachelor's degree and skills that are useful in solving rural problems.

Newest VC Weapon: Puppets

The Viet Cong, it appears, have been successful in employing one of the most devastating weapons of war—American soldiers who claim that the VC cause is just and the U. S. cause is wrong.

Two American servicemen, just released after two years as Viet Cong prisoners, have praised their captors for treating them "very well."

More important, these Americans claim that they want to quit the Army and lead a campaign against U. S. policy in Viet Nam.

The Viet Cong are the people of Viet Nam, these soldiers say, and the United States has nothing to gain by war.

The big question in the minds of most Americans, especially the families of the 40 soldiers, is whether or not the Communists "brainwashed" them.

Both men have stated that they were neither beaten or tortured—only interrogated.

The released prisoners also commented that Viet Cong prisoners are beaten by the South Vietnamese.

Perhaps, when the Americans return to the U. S. and learn that the Viet Cong have been slaughtering soldiers who voluntarily surrender, and that they are shooting wounded Americans who lie helplessly on the battlefields, they will realize that the American-South Vietnamese side is not the only one contributing to the phrase, "dirty little war."

After reading the last paragraph, someone is bound to say, "What about the Americans who are shooting the wounded Viet Cong?"

After the Americans realized that the Viet Cong were using their mangled bodies as booby-traps to kill U. S. troops, there was no other alternative.

To return to the main subject, the two Americans have stirred up a great deal of controversy.

Why is it that only two soldiers were released? If the prisoners were being treated so well, and they all felt the Viet Cong were in the right, why weren't the two Americans who were executed released to freedom?

If the murdered soldiers expressed the same opinions as those released, it would have been much more effective to just send them home instead of killing them.

After two years as prisoners of a people who have perfected the process of brainwashing, it is not at all illogical to conclude that the two soldiers just released are nothing more than mechanical weapons in the hands of the Viet Cong.

THE AUDIENCE AT ARLINGTON

'Great Society' Too Materialistic - Ignores Human Rehabilitation

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

A recent editorial in the Wall Street Journal criticized the architects of "The Great Society" for their materialism.

Webster defines "materialism" as "the theory that human phenomena, historical, social or psychological, should be viewed or interpreted in terms of physical or material causes rather than spiritual or ethical causes."

People who are totally absorbed in the increase of their possessions, and the expansion of their personal comforts can be said to be materialists. According to American tradition, Wall Street is headquarters for the grabby set, and The Wall Street Journal is supposed to be this set's bible.

How does such a publication, gaining its livelihood from the patronage of men who hope to make a profit, have the impudence to criticize the vocal humanitarians of the Great Society?

The answer is simple. The Journal is right. There has never been an American administration that promised so many material rewards and creature comforts to so many people. And, unlike the ill-fated two-chickens-in-every-pot hopes of Herbert Hoover, many of these goodies are to be delivered painlessly and without the requirement for labor or obligation by the recipient.

Most of us are materialists to a degree. We do not willingly dress in sackcloth, or starve ourselves, or mortify the flesh. We glory in eight cylinders when six would do us well enough and most of the world still walks. Our industrialists are masters of planned obsolescence, and we in the newspaper business are abettors, because a roaring turnover of goods stimulates advertising.

Nor should Americans be apologetic for our restless quest for the better mousetrap. Because we won't put up with peat fires and hand saws and wellsweeps and washboards we have developed techniques for convenient, opulent living that is the envy of the world and the despair of our ideological opponents.

But our current political leadership has embraced the dogma that social problems and collective spiritual illnesses in America can be cured by a simple outpouring of things by government.

We are to cure ignorance by crash programs of instruction.

We are to cure crime by the construction of huge public apartments and playgrounds.

We are to cure child neglect by giving money to mothers.

Unemployment will vanish beneath a flood of job corps projects.

We will have a "war on poverty" and obliterate this evil by hurling gold at it.

Unhappily, our early experiences with this effort to follow an appropriations committee into the Great Society have not been altogether satisfactory.

In "Operation Head-Start," a plan to put slum children in pre-school, it was discovered that the most disadvantaged youngsters didn't show up because their parents were too uninterested to cooperate.

The crime rates so far have not dropped in neighborhoods where the fanciest low-cost (to the renters) housing has replaced tenements.

Aid - to - dependent - children payments have made it profitable for some mothers to produce illegitimate children.

And early experience at job corps camps indicates that about 30 per cent of the unskilled men who are being given an opportunity to acquire skills at the expense of the taxpayers soon demand to be returned to their street corners.

Admittedly, it is too early to develop a fair picture of all these grandiose experiments. Certainly, a number of citizens will be made more hopeful, more healthful and more hireable by windfalls in aid and training.

But whether for sentimental or political reasons, it is interesting that these gigantic new aid programs have little or nothing to say about the obligation of the individual to himself and to serve the state which is trying to help him.

Instead, the idea is peddled that a cruel and unfeeling social system has been responsible for the fact that an individual lacks what he wants, that youth are in trouble with the police, that children can't keep up in school.

The Great Society will cure this. Vote for the Great Society!

The trouble is that, if this materialistic philosophy is not completely correct—if such ephemeral things as honesty, ambition and hard labor are still important to man's full existence—there will be deep disappointment. Long before the Great Society was thought of philosophers and religious teachers maintained that part of man's regeneration must come from within, and that the more one rationalizes one's failures, the less determined he will be to improve himself.

To buck up our under-performing citizens is a noble work. But to prop them up can be an endless and fruitless task.

It is not clear that the Great Society knows the difference.

Book Thieves Ruin Research

It seems odd that a university library cannot sufficiently accommodate all university residents. But it is not the fault of the library, it is the fault of the students, who have a compulsion to destroy library property.

It is these inconsiderate individuals who make it difficult for students who seek information for research. To find the sources for such information stolen is discouraging to say the least. It is utterly disgusting to think that a student, supposedly in the ranks of higher learning, resorts to vandalism just to save time for himself.

Consequently this may lead to the policing of students in the library. Thus the administration must look upon us as though we were all irresponsible adolescents.

My chief wish is to have a guilty student discover himself in a research predicament because of someone else's inconsiderateness.

William Chambers

Stop Hatred!

I would call the following statement to the attention of the two young ladies who were so distraught with Jenkin Lloyd Jones' column on Negro leadership in America:

You cannot further the brotherhood of man by encouraging class hatred. You cannot build character and courage by taking away man's initiative and independence. You cannot help men permanently by doing for them what they could and should do for themselves.

No, girls, these words weren't spoken by some racist, extremist, or adherent to the status-quo. They were spoken by Abraham Lincoln.

William Mitchell

Two Ways Out

At the press conference with City Council members a couple of weeks ago, a member of the audience raised a question about the lack of a second exit at the Cypress Lounge, which would constitute a fire hazard.

I am pleased to report that there is indeed a second exit accessible from the lounge area, in the rear of the building. The City has directed that an exit sign be placed in the lounge area to guide patrons.

A persistent conduct which, though perhaps less serious than violation of the code above, eventually would serve to discredit the University and/or its students.

These standards apply to all students, both on and off campus, as long as they are enrolled in the University; and the University assumes that the student's registering implies full acceptance of the standards stated in this book.

DISHONESTY AND FAKE REGISTRATION SIU Student Guidebook

Two SIU freshmen were arrested Thursday on a charge of illegal possession and transportation of liquor.

The students were fined $100 each in Jackson County Circuit Court. The University also fined the students $50 for illegal possession of a car, and suspended them from school for the remainder of the quarter.

or regulation, he is subjecting himself to punishment by various agencies. This is not double jeopardy, but rather the law.

A code of conduct has been established by the SIU Board of Trustees, and when a student violates the code, he legally can be the subject of disciplinary action.

Each academic year, students claim the University has no right to punish them once they have been punished by another agency.

When a student signs his name on the line of the SIU admission form, he is signing his acceptance to regulation by the University, Rendleman said.

The SIU Student Guidebook, which is sent to all new or transfer students, states:

"These standards (those of conduct) apply to all students, both on and off campus, as long as enrolled in the University; and the University assumes that the student's registering implies full acceptance of the standards stated in this book."

The standards and rules of conduct are established and enforced by the Board of Trustees. It is granted the power in Part I, Section 8 of the Charter of the Board of Trustees of SIU granted by the Illinois General Assembly.

Section 8, Item 1, states: "To make rules, regulations and by-laws, not inconsistent with law, for the government and management of Southern Illinois University."

The rules of conduct are set; however, "I wouldn't contend that someone fined for speeding or illegal parking should have this as grounds for dismissal from the University," Rendleman said.

"On the other hand," he continued, leaning back in his swivel chair, "being drunk and disorderly may bring a misdemeanor charge and at the same time indicate a lack of attitudinal fitness to remain in the University community."

Each case should be judged individually, Rendleman said, to decide the student's attitude and appropriateness of remaining in the University.

The question as to the justification of "double punishment" is often debated on the SIU campus.

Richard C. Gruny, University legal counsel, said it is a simple matter that a person who attends SIU must abide by the rules.

If the person doesn't like the rules, he doesn't have to obey—but he also no longer has to attend SIU.

What

Is

Double

Jeopardy?

By Frank Messersmith

If the two young men in the above news item were real, would they have been subjects of double jeopardy?

A lot of people believe so—especially students—however, University officials disagree and they have a number of court decisions to back them up.

When a student is home, he is subject to punishment by the local authorities plus any disciplinary action his parents decide to add on their own, SIU officials point out.

While a student here, the University is the "legal" parent of all its students.

It is called "In Loco Parentis"—in place of parents. And under it the University is charged with the parents' rights, duties and responsibilities concerning student regulations.

According to John S. Rendleman, vice president of business affairs and former legal counsel for the University, "The court holds that a University must act as a parent to students at school."

The University, as a parent, expects each student to observe and maintain a code of personal behavior and social relationships that will contribute to his educational experiences and the effectiveness of the University. The theoretical basis of exacting a penalty on a lawbreaker is based on the concept that a citizen must obey the law or suffer the consequences of retribution, Rendleman said.

The conduct of a student must reflect a responsible attitude towards University regulations as well as those of the local community, state and federal government, or he may suffer retribution.

Consequently, when a student violates a law

4 of 5 Student Readers Cited As Supporting Viet Nam Policy

A poll conducted by the Moderator, a national magazine for leading college students, indicated that 80 per cent of its readers support the present U.S. policy in Viet Nam in varying degrees.

Moderator is a free circulation bimonthly publication in which subscriptions are offered to "leading students" whose academic record and curricular leadership are basis for selection.

Moderator defended the right and responsibility of students to demonstrate against government decisions, but said that "we believe, along with 80 per cent of our readers, that the U.S. has no choice but to stick this one out."

Only 13.1 per cent of those polled said the U.S. policy was both legally and morally wrong. More than 60 per cent indicated that our position was both legally and morally right. Over 20 per cent had reserervations, saying that it was legally wrong but morally right or vice-versa.

The poll indicated that support for the administration does not necessarily mean opposition to anti-war demonstrations. Asked whether student demonstrations served any useful purpose, 57 per cent of the respondents said "yes."

They gave a variety of reasons for this observation, saying that dissenters are part of an honorable American tradition; they confront hypocrisy in leaders and of "consensus" opinions; they provoke discussion and re-evaluation; they show to other nations that democratic free expression is a reality in the U.S., among others.

An editorial signed by Moderator's editor refuted charges that the protest movement is Communist inspired. Excerpts from it read:

"... it would be a harsh irony indeed if the patriotic duty of dissent would have to be taught to us by the Communists... students speak for themselves, and Communists manage only to tag along conspicuously enough to distort the impact of legitimate American expressions of opinion.

"The real threat to democracy in this country is not coming from Communists but from domestic witch hunters... editorial writers and draft boards that call for immediate drafting of protesters and from legislators who seek to remove scholars."

"In a democracy, governments do not conspire to punish students who freely and honestly express doubt or dissent. Public policy is dependent upon public opinion, not fearful of it."

Secret of Success of Married Students; Little Loot, Lots of Luck, Lack of In-Laws

By John Ochotnick

Married and in school? It can be done, but it takes a certain amount of determination, money and luck. Granted these, the student-husband with the aid of his wife can "make it go."

In fact, both partners can be pursuing their educations while married but in either case, success depends upon a lot of hard work, the brunt of which is unfortunately borne by the wife in most cases.

As the age at marriage slowly decreases for women in the United States, the average now being 18, more and more women are finding themselves earning, as one writer phrased it, their "Ph.T." (Putting Hubby Through).

They realize that with the increased emphasis on education, often their willingness to help can spell the difference between having married a successful man instead of one who had to drop out as the result of marriage.

But while it is work, a good sense of humor and complete faith in each other's abilities can go a long way in helping them achieve their goals.

To begin with, the couple must start looking at things in a positive way. For one thing, being married and at school gives each mate one of the best excuses available for being out of reach of in-laws with their "when-we-were-married, we-did-it-like-this . . ." advice. (Writer's in-laws excepted, please note.)

By being away from the parents, the female can't run to mom with a "Herbie's-a-brute" tale and the male spares himself from confiding his troubles to his father while dad listens with that "I-warned-you-son" look. The opponents learn to slug it out alone, either physically or verbally, and thus gain insight into the true personalities of each other.

In the majority of cases, the couple must put themselves on some sort of a budget which is synonymous with sacrifices. But to use the old phrase, "little things mean a lot," and when careful budgeting results in a surplus at the end of the week, that six-pack of beer for the male or some feminine treat for the wife begin to take on new proportions.

In addition to being almost a requirement for the married students, budgeting can supply good training for the days when the head of the house takes his place in our affluent society. The couples' new wealth will then find more useful and practical applications.

The wife must learn to not feel sorry for herself when her husband has to devote more of his time to his books than he does to her. In the same respect, the husband must show his love by turning a deaf ear to bachelor beckoning for a beer-bust when he has free time and instead spend it with his wife.

The list of sacrifices that often accompany students who are married and in school goes on: The wife learns to get more wear from her clothes, the husband must put up with the budget meals. Walking to the stores becomes forced exercise. One of the benefits often shows itself in grades; usually the man does better when the temptations of bachelor life are removed from his course of studies.

For some, the road is even rougher because of additions to the family, but even this can be taken in stride. A baby in the family often increases the determination to succeed.

But at any rate, the months pass by and before long the proud husband dons the cap and gown while an even prouder wife watches the proceedings. It is rough, but as the years pass by and those days of struggle are reflected upon, it somehow was worth all the trouble.

Wesley Foundation Worship Will Include Modern Dance

Several un-conventional elements will be used in the Wesley Foundation worship service at 6:45 p.m. Sunday.

The service will follow basic Methodist form but several additions will be used to better express the act of worship.

A modern dance will be performed to the opening hymn, "Jacob's Ladder," with the worshippers singing along. Performers in the dance are student members of the Wesley Foundation.

Instead of the regular pastoral prayer, a directive prayer will be given. Slides of topics which should cause prayer, such as a starving child or a battlefield in Viet Nam, will be flashed in front of the worshippers.

In place of a sermon given by the pastor, several of the members will present an interpretive reading.

Interpretive lighting effects will be used throughout to symbolize the people's and God's part in the worship service.

Britain Seeks Soviet Support for Viet Talks

JOHNSON CITY (AP)—Britain called on the Soviet Union Thursday to join it in setting up a Southeast Asia conference to end the fighting in Viet Nam. The United States promptly indicated its willingness to attend such a parley.

British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart made his proposal in Moscow. A few hours later, Secretary of State

Dean Rusk endorsed the idea, in principle, after a session with President Johnson at the LBJ Ranch.

Stewart proposed that Britain and the Soviet Union, as cochairmen of the 1954 Geneva Conference on Southeast Asia, summon all interested governments and arrange a ceasefire as quickly as possible.

This would be followed, Stewart proposed, by a rebuilding of both South and North Viet Nam under auspices of the United Nations.

Meanwhile, a permanent solution to the differences between the two Viet Nams would be sought by negotiation.

Speaking to newsmen at Bergstrom Air Force Base near Austin, Tex., Rusk said of the Stewart proposal:

"We have indicated for some time that we will be willing to attend a conference on Southeast Asia or any part of it." Rusk indicated he expects to hear further details of the Stewart proposal in a few days.

Expressing hope that the Soviet Union would join British in an effort to end the war in Viet Nam, Stewart told the Russian people in a television speech:

"That is a duty which your country and mine have, because we are both cochairmen of the Geneva conference. And still more, it is a duty because we are fellow human beings and we do want to bring this misery and cruelty to an end."

Britain and the Soviet Union were cochairmen of the conference in Geneva in 1954 that brought about a settlement of the conflict between the French and Vietnamese Communists.

Moscow television carried the 10-minute Stewart speech.

The British government has proposed a new Geneva conference before, but has never succeeded in getting Soviet agreement. British sources said Stewart in talks with Soviet leaders has urged the Soviet Union to join with Britain in seeking ways to end the fighting and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko has agreed to consider the suggestion.

"Let us call a conference of all the governments concerned," Stewart said. "Let that conference as speedily as possible arrange a cease-fire. Let us then make arrangements whereby both North and South Viet Nam could be left in peace, assured they would not be attacked by each other or anyone else."

"Then, through the United Nations, let us carry through a program to repair the damages of the war so that both those countries could breathe and recover. Then, in time, they would be able to decide what their own future and their relationship with each other should be."

Stewart said Britain and the Soviet Union differ as to who is to blame "for the terrible things that are happening there now."

"But I say," he continued, "can we not turn our minds therefore to what we might be able to agree on, namely, the importance of bringing this conflict, with all its cruelties, to an end?"

White Man Convicted In Slaying of Negro

ANNISTON, Ala. (AP) — A jury of white men Thursday convicted Hubert Damen Strange, 25, a white man, of murder in the second degree in the July slaying of a Negro foundry worker and set the penalty at 10 years imprisonment.

Strange, a tall, blond-haired youth, stood with his hands on his hips as Judge Robert M. Parker read the verdict, convicting Strange of the slaying of Willie Brewster, 38, who was shot fatally the night of July 15 while driving along a highway near Anniston.

The jury's decision came as a surprise amid speculation that there would be a mistrial and that the jury was deadlocked after nearly nine hours of deliberations.

Defense attorney J. B. Stoner was stunned. He had predicted a mistrial at worst or an acquittal. The attorney said he would appeal.

It was the first conviction of a white man in the slaying of a Negro in Alabama, although the Brewster slaying had not initially been considered racially related.

At the trial, however, the prosecution contended that Strange and two white companions had left a segregationist rally and wantonly fired into Brewster's car, mortally wounding the foundry worker who died three days later.

There have been four other killings linked to civil rights activities in Alabama this year. Trials of two white men in Lowndes County resulted in acquittals.

The prosecution case rested on the testimony of Jimmie G. Knight, 28, a former friend of the defendant, who said Strange admitted the slaying minutes after Brewster was shot.

At 3:15 p.m., the judge told a bailiff, "Bring that jury down." Since noon Wednesday, the 12 white men had been trying to reach a decision in their third-floor room of the Calhoun County Courthouse.

Earlier, the jury had returned to the courtroom to say that no verdict had been reached after more than seven hours of deliberation. But Parker sent them out again.

The conviction of Strange came in the wake of a call recently by President Johnson for legislation dealing with all-white juries in the south.

The Southern Christian Leadership Conference, headed by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., has begun a campaign, including demonstrations in southern Alabama, protesting what the organization called injustice to Negroes and civil rights workers.

Pilots' Spirits High

Gemini 7 and Crew Pass All Tests A-OK

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Passing every test with ease Thursday and benefiting from the smoothest prelaunch preparations in the history of U.S. manned space flight, the Gemini 7 astronauts were anxious to begin their 14-day space adventure on Saturday.

Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr., and their backup pilots demonstrated their high spirits by playing food tricks on the dietitian who keeps a close watch on their menu. As Gemini 7 preparations entered the final hours, technicians began readying the Gemini 6 spacecraft for the second launching in America's space doubleheader.

Borman and Lovell are to ride a Titan 2 rocket into the skies at 2:30 p.m. (EST) Saturday.

Nine days later, on Dec. 13, astronauts Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Thomas P. Stafford are to take off in pursuit from the same launching pad in an effort to rendezvous and fly in formation with Gemini 7, perhaps within a few inches.

"We've got a reasonable chance of doing it," flight director Christopher C. Kraft Jr. said.

"Much will depend on the quick turnaround on Pad 19 and the condition of Gemini 7 after five days in space."

Borman, Lovell, Schirra and Stafford met with Kraft, Gemini program manager Charles Mathews and other officials to review the mission — rocket, spacecraft, weather, worldwide tracking network and recovery forces. The green light was flashed on all phases.

A final flight review is scheduled today before Gemini 7 is committed to the final countdown.

El Paso Hit By Blackout

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Sections of Texas, New Mexico and Mexico were plunged into darkness Thursday night after an apparent power failure in El Paso, a border city of about 350,000 persons.

Spokesmen said Juarez, Mexico, a city of about 300,000 persons just across the border, and the New Mexico cities of Las Cruces, Alamogordo and Deming were also affected.

A spokesman for the El Paso Electric Co., which services much of the stricken area with electricity, said the trouble was believed to have originated in the company's plant in El Paso near the border.

He said the trouble was being sought but had no further comment.

"There's no sign of illumination anywhere," one spokesman said.

The blackout in El Paso occurred at 8:02 p.m. (MST).

Percy Plans To Seek Office In 1966 or '68

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—Illinois Republican leader Charles H. Percy said Thursday he will decide by the middle of December whether to run for the U.S. Senate in 1966 or make another race for governor in 1968.

"I enjoy a good fight," and he will be in one either in 1966 or 1968, Percy said in answer to a question after his address to the American Society of Chile.

Percy, board chairman of Bell and Howell and the 1964 Republican candidate for governor, said he believes the "Republican party has no place to go but up," following the 1964 defeats.

He said Republicans should not take too much comfort from the victory of Rep. John V. Lindsay in the New York mayoralty race, "although of course I find it a thing of great joy, to be cherished."

The GOP will have to broaden in outlook so as to attract more members and more enthusiasm, Percy said, so that the country can return to "a two-party system instead of the one and a half party system we have now."

In his speech, Percy said he believes the benefits of modern technology, particularly the atom, must be harnessed quickly for the benefit of all mankind.

"Revolutions in education, transportation and communications, science and technology—and the human mind—have convinced all people that they do not have to live as their father before them," he said.

'Gripe Box' Used Little By Students

By Michael Pellegrino

When the suggestion box was installed at the University Center information desk, student government leaders expected they would find a lot of criticism mixed in with serious recommendations.

But they discovered that apparently even though the critics can hide behind anonymity, few of them bother to put their gripes in the little blue box.

According to John E. Burnette, graduate student adviser to the University Center Programming Board service committee, the suggestion box receives as few as four proposals a day.

A suggestion box has been in use from time to time over the year but the present one came into service last spring term, about the time the Rational Action Movement was formed. The blue box allows students to voice gripes, release a little emity or to offer constructive criticism of the University. Any type of complaint, from tasteless cafeteria food to lack of toilet facilities, would be looked at by a responsible person of the University.

Some students have taken advantage of the suggestion box, and a few measures have been adopted. One suggestion, recently put in use, called for setting up a clearer and more efficient means of contact between riders and drivers during vacation periods.

Many suggestions submitted are humorous. For example, one proposal to get rid of President Delyte W. Morris did not even get consideration. Another student, who definitely has problems, asked, "Why don't you let me graduate?"

A consequence of nonparticipation by the student body in offering suggestions has resulted in a drastic measure by the UCPB service committee. The members are thinking of retiring the little blue box in favor of a larger brighter orange one.

'It Is Sickening...'

Library Reports Vandalism, Culprits Could Face Fines

Vandals are busy in Morris Library again this year, according to Ferris S. Randall, head librarian.

An example was discovered during the Thanksgiving break when a student found the 22 pages of a periodical he needed to study for a class had been torn from the magazine.

Randall pointed out that the vandal could have had the material Xeroxed for $1.10 at the library desk.

The practice of Xeroxing material for students with a small charge of five cents per page was started so students could make full use of the library.

Mistreatment of books as well as record players has become quite common.

"Although not a problem common to SIU alone," Randall said, "when you build up a fine research library like SIU has, only to have it defaced, it is sickening to us. It is very discouraging that some people have so little regard for their fellow man."

There is a state law against destroying or defacing state property, with a maximum fine of $500. Randall said that certainly the dean could suspend the culprit from school and make him pay for the damages if the student were caught.

Canvas bags, issued to protect records, have not been returned. The library will now start checking out the bag just as it does the record, and if the bag is not returned, the user will be fined.

Randall also suggested that the classroom teacher should discuss the problem. Students and faculty both have come to the library complaining about various things that have been done to the books, he added.

Kerner Appoints Klimstra to Panel

Willard D. Klimstra, director of the SIU cooperative wildlife research laboratory, has been appointed to a new state commission to study areas where strip mining has been conducted in Illinois.

Gov. Otto Kerner made the appointment under legislation passed by the 74th Illinois General Assembly.

Klimstra has long been an advocate of better use of strip-mined areas, a matter which has been studied extensively at SIU. Among other uses, he believes much of the strip-mined land in Illinois could be developed for public outdoor recreation.

A native of Erie, Ill., Klimstra has been on the SIU faculty since 1949. He received a bachelor's degree from Maryville College, Tenn., and master's and Ph.D. degrees from Iowa State College.

He has been active in numerous professional societies and other groups concerned with wildlife management, conservation and related fields, and is chairman of the Illinois Nature Preserves Commission.

On Dec. 21, William M. Marberry, assistant professor of botany, will be interviewed on the subject of Christmas greens.

SAMI A. KALOTI

Student's Home Wrongly Named

Sami A. Kaloti, a student from the city of Jerusalem in the Arab country of Jordan, was incorrectly identified as a student from Israel in a picture story on the Festival of Nations in Wednesday's Daily Egyptian.

Kaloti served as master of ceremonies for the event at which foreign students performed songs, dances and skits from their homelands.

The Daily Egyptian regrets the embarrassment this error has caused Kaloti.

The Joe Lutz Touch

Bat Girls, Combo Music To Enliven SIU Baseball

By Joe Cook

Baseball Coach Joe Lutz has promised there will be some fun at next spring's baseball games, but he isn't sure how often Southern's baseball fans will have fun in watching the Salukis come out on top.

Nevertheless, to attract more fans to the games, Lutz, a former major league baseball player, has come up with

Dance to Be Held At Lentz Sunday

Grub-A-Go-Go is the theme of the dance planned for 7:30-10:30 p.m. Sunday at Dining Room No. 3 of Lentz Hall at Thompson Point.

Sponsored by the Thompson Point Social Programming Board, the dance is a date or stag affair. Music for the "gub dress" dance will be provided by the Knight Beats of Centralia.

some major league publicity stunts.

First of all he is looking for a combo or two to volunteer to play a little rock'n'roll before and after the games, a little between innings and maybe a little to drown out the sound of the opponents' bats.

If SIU coeds are responsive, Southern will be one of the few teams to have bat girls.

Their function, besides bringing beauty into the ball park, will be to assist the umpires with baseballs and to take charge of the players' bat racks.

Another novelty under consideration is use of motorcycles to bring relief pitchers from the ball pen to the pitching mound.

The Salukis sport parachutists may get into the act by having a sky diver try to land in the vicinity of second base.

The Saluki dogs will also make an occasional visit to lend their support. Because the dogs don't like loud noises, Lutz may have to abandon his plans to put cherry bombs under the scoreboard. The bombs would go off after every Saluki home run.

Lutz expects about 30 candidates when practice officially begins next month. Only 12 lettermen will be returning from last year's team that compiled a 20-3 record.

Society Will Give Children's Party

Harper Squadron of SIU's Arnold Air Society will be host, Sunday, to 25 children from the Southern Illinois Children's Service Center.

The program, from 1 to 4 p.m. in Wheeler Hall, is a pledge project of Arnold Air Society and its affiliate, Angel Flight.

Wrestling, Gymnastic Competition to Begin

Unlike waterfowl, Salukis travel north when it gets cold.

Two winter sports teams open their seasons Saturday in cities to the north—the gymnasts will compete in Chicago and the wrestlers in Champaign.

Coach Bill Meade is sending two complete units to the Midwest Open where SIU gymnasts will seek individual honors only.

The varsity team will be headed by NCAA trampolines champion Frank Schmitz, who will be accompanied by Tom Cook, Ric Tucker, Brent Williams, Larry Lindauer, Paul Mayer and Fred Dennis.

Mike Boegler, Dale Hardt, Bob Dvorak, Ron Harstad and Jack Hultz will also make the trip.

Former Olympian Rusty Mitchell will be included among unofficial SIU entries. Mitchell, now a graduate assistant, will be defending five titles in events that he won in last year's meet.

Freshmen and transfer entries, ineligible to compete officially, will be Gene Kepler, Tom Seward, Joe Polizzano, Larry Schneider, Al Alexander, Joe Dupree and Stan Zudnik.

Coach Jim Wilkinson's wrestlers will compete in the Illinois invitational meet.

George McCreery, a junior from Palatine, will be defending his blue ribbon title at the U. of I.

McCreery warmed up for the Invitational with a one-sided 12-1 win over Jim Petruzzi in the intrasquad. McCreery will have to lose seven pounds by Saturday, if he hopes to qualify for the 160-pound division.

Other key entries are Al Lipper, who was runner-up in the 147-pound division last year, and Alf Haerem, who was third in the 177-pound division last year.

Others going to Champaign are Steve Sarossy, 115; Terry Magoon, 115; Wayne Lenhares, 123; Pete Berletich, 130; Dan Ross, 130; Don Schneider, 137. Julio Fuentes, 145; Tony Kusmanoff, 152; Terry Appleton, 152; Jack Fincham, 160; Jim Petruzzi, 167; Aaron Bulow, 177; and Al Bulow, 191.

Bob Roop and Buck Deadrigh will compete in the heavy-weight division.

Cycle Event Set Sunday Afternoon

Two-wheeled action will get under way at 1 p.m. Sunday when members of Cyclesport, Inc., will sponsor an observed trials event open to all cyclists in the area.

The meet will be held at Speede Service Cycle Center, one-half mile south of Old Route 13 west of Carbondale on the Jackson Country Club Road.

Entrants will test their ability to properly handle their cycles as they drive through 10 different types of terrain.

There will be classes for all sizes of cycles. Trophies will be presented to those who have scored the highest.

Sign-up for all contestants will begin at noon, with $1 entry fee, and end at 1 p.m.

Following the event the club will announce plans for future cycle events.

Booklet Offered To SIU Cyclists

Consultants to Management, Inc., the public relations arm of the United States Suzuki Motor Corp., has offered to provide SIU with 3,000 free copies of a 34-page publication on the safe operation of motorcycles.

The publication, which is entitled Freedom of the Road and which normally sells for 30 cents, includes sections on the operation of cycles off the road as well as safe riding on highways and streets.

Preliminary plans call for making the publication available to area cyclists through University living areas, the Southern Riders Association, the parking section of Student General Affairs, and area motorcycle shops.

In addition, the public relations firm also pledged any additional support needed for a motorcycle accident prevention program here.

Nursing Agreement Ceremony Planned

President Delyte W. Morris will be the honored guest at the signing of the student nursing program agreement between St. Elizabeth's Hospital, St. Louis, and SIU.

The dinner and ceremony will be held at 6 p.m. Tuesday at the hospital in Granite City.

Saluki Cager No. 30 Is Adept Equally in Basketba'l, Baseball

By Robert Ward

SIU was leading Kentucky Wesleyan 99-75. No. 30 stepped to the free throw line. He missed the first shot. The crowd breathed a tense sigh of disappointment.

He posed. He shot again. Whoosh. The shot was good. The fans jumped with delight. The young cager had just scored the 100th point in the first 100-point game in the new SIU Arena.

The star of this episode last January was Clarence Smith, a junior forward from Zion, a town at the northernmost tip of Chicago's North Shore.

Smith came to Southern from Zion-Benton Township High School, where he was selected for All-North Suburban Conference and All-Suburban Conference in basketball and baseball.

The left-handed athlete says he likes baseball and basketball equally well. In his junior year as first baseman on his high school baseball team, he led his conference with 25 runs batted in and topped his conference batting average with .468. He played guard on the basketball team.

While in high school, Smith devoted his summer vacations to playing baseball with the Kenosha, Wis., Pirates, a member of the North-Central States League. He originally came to SIU on a baseball scholarship, but ended up on the basketball team.

"Big C" or the "Mighty C," as he is known to friends, comes from a family of seven children. He attributes his interest in basketball to an older brother. "We used to shoot for baskets in the back yard," he said.

At first glance, the 20-year-old marketing major seems to be the quiet, reserved type. However, his friends testify that he is quite gregarious once one gets to know him.

This is confirmed by members of his fraternity, Alpha Phi Alpha. Smith is known to have "turned out" a few Alpha parties. "I try to divide my time sensibly among sports, socializing and school work," he said.

Smith was interviewed during a bull session with some of the Alphas. During the course of the session, he exhibited some of the mannerisms that has earned him the nickname, the "Mighty C." If a statement was expressed about Smith that suggested he is anything less than an Olympian god, he bombarded the person with mock sounds of is British short-story writer and playwright Roald Dahl, husband of Academy Award winning actress Patricia Neal. He began reading Dahl in high school. He has accumulated 18 hours in the humanities in Western and Oriental literature, and is now taking a course in Greek literature.

The 6-foot-4, 180-pound cager is about average height for the team that ranges in height up to 6 feet 7.

"My family isn't exceptionally tall. I have an older brother who is 6 feet 2 inches," he said.

"My younger brother, Melvin, who is 5 feet 11 is a member of the freshman basketball and football squads and plans also to try out for baseball," Smith said with obvious pride.

When asked what he likes most about playing baseball and basketball, the "Mighty C" said he likes winning, although he said he is a good sport and not a bad loser.

"However, the more you win, the harder you hate to lose," he said.

CLARENCE SMITH celestial anger that Zeus himself couldn't have improved upon with thunder and lightning. "I don't have any hobbies. I do like to read, though," Smith said. His favorite author

Salukis, Panthers To Meet Saturday

The Salukis hit the road Saturday for their first venture from the home court when they face State College of Iowa at 7:30 p.m. in Cedar Falls.

It will be the second game of the season for both teams, the Salukis having opened against Northeast Missouri Thursday night and the Panthers Wednesday against Mankato (Minn.) State.

This year's outlook for the Panthers is promising—with six of their top nine players back from last year's team which finished 16-7.

Heading the list of starters for the Iowans is Craig Knepe, a brawny 6-5 pivot man. Knepe was voted the outstanding player in the North Central Conference last year when he led in scoring. He also received honorable mention from the AP as a Little All-America.

Knepe is a good rebounder as well as scorer. He averaged better than 10 rebounds a game last year besides his average of 22.6 points a night.

Knepe led his team in scoring against Southern last year when the Salukis won the first meeting between the two schools, 67-48.

Joining Knepe in the front line for the Iowans will be a pair of other senior lettermen. Phil Johnson, who stands 6-4, also started for the Panthers last year and was their second-leading rebounder. The other forward, Chuck Nolting, also 6-4, lettered two years ago but missed last season with a knee injury.

In the backcourt, Coach Norm Stewart will probably go with Gene Fuelling and Jim Videtich. Fuelling is a 6-3 senior who was one of the top reserves last year. Videtich started a year ago and averaged about six points a game.

Backing up the five starters is an experienced Panther bench. Included are two big boys, Lyle Schwarzenback, a 6-5 letterman who plays forward, and Harry Daniels, a 6-7 senior who operates at the pivot.

Salukis Romp to Early Lead, Go on to Beat Bulldogs 91-49

was much cooler from the free throw line as it connected on only 19 of 39 attempts. The Bulldogs, meanwhile, shot a cold 18 for 64 from the field and a 13 of 23 from the charity stripe.

The Salukis were masters of the boards throughout the game as they pulled down a record of 81 rebounds on the home court. The old record of 76 was set last year against Kentucky Wesleyan.

Southern moved into the lead immediately after the opening tipoff and was ahead 15-2 before Northeast could score its first goal with the game nearly six minutes old.

After that, the Salukis added to their lead with strings of six, eight and 11 points in building up their insurmountable margin by the intermission. The Salukis shot a hot .468 from the field in the first 20 minutes while the visitors could connect on only six of 29 shots in the same time.

McNeil and Johnson were the big guns in the half for Southern with 13 points each.

Stovall contributed eight of his rebounds in that half after coming in for O'Neal who had picked up four fols in the first nine minutes.

North Central College Cagers Play Home Games on Plastic

NAPERVILLE, ILL. (AP) — Probably for the first time since Dr. James A. Naismith hung up a pair of peach baskets in 1892, an intercollegiate basketball game will be played on a plastic court Saturday night at North Central College.

North Central and Augustana (Ill.) College will launch the College Conference of Illinois season on a new type plastic surface in Merner Fieldhouse here.

The entire 200-by-120 foot floor has been covered with a surface material made by a St. Paul, Minn., firm already in use on athletic running tracks and horse racing tracks.

Explained Ralph McAlister, North Central Athletic director:

"I saw how the material worked on running tracks and was convinced it was just the thing for a field house.

"It proved in its track applications that it is easy on the legs and does not cause painful shin splints. Players cannot slip on the material, even if it is wet."

McAlister said the bounce of a basketball is not affected by the plastic material and the spring of the floor, which has no dead spots, is about equal to a typical wooden surface.
