University Housing Space Scarce

No spaces for men are available in any on-campus housing unit for the winter quarter, according to Joseph W. Gasser, director of the Housing Office. Last minute vacancies may create a few spaces, he added. Housing space for some type of on-campus housing will probably receive it at Woody Hall, Gasser said.

There were 10 vacancies in temporary space at an end at the fall term at Thompson Point, and 50 vacant spaces for women. All these spaces are in the process of being filled.

Fifteen temporary spaces for men are expected at University Park at the end of fall term. There were 18 regular spaces for women and 32 temporary spaces reported. These spaces are all in the process of being filled.

Six regular spaces and 24 temporary spaces were reported vacant at Woody Hall. Some of the temporary spaces are still available.

Nine vacancies were reported at Small Group Housing at the end of the fall term. Gasser said some spaces are still available for individuals interested in living in a fraternity or sorority house. Anyone interested in living in group housing should contact the house he wants to live in, fill out an application and be placed on the house president's list, Gasser explained.

He reported 32 vacancies at the end of the fall term at Southern Acres. Some spaces are still to be filled.

There was only one vacant space at Southern Acres.

Senate Talks On About Trivialities

As rumblings once again began to well up from the Berkeley campus of the University of California at Berkeley in the aftermath of the Vietnam War, the Senate and the campus became entangled. The issue was the possibility of a full house early in the quarter, the spectacles to be treated to about three hours of endless rhetoric, of the student body, tabled motions, delays and intramural squabbling.

The next meeting attracted only those students who were directly involved in student government.

The senate has failed to provide the students with any many issues or challenging programs. Groups and individuals who might present a controversial point of view have not been brought to campus to speak since Herbert Aptheker quietly came and left campus in 1965.

This is not to say that the Daily Egyptian exposes the views of more controversial people, but we would like to see their ideas discussed and reviewed on their merit. After all, this is in part of the educational process.

The Campus Senate has failed to provide any substantive leadership so far for paying a good deal of lip service to motocycling trends and Robert's Rules of Order.

We do not advocate that SIU become a hotbed of extremist views, but rather do advocate bringing those views into discussion and putting them in their proper perspective.

The senate has the machinery to stir up the stagnant cultural and intellectual waters that lie on the campus. So far as we can see that student government began earning its keep.

Away All Sin; Reagan's Here

By Arthur Hopkins
(San Francisco Chronicle)

SAN DIEGO—Mr. Ronald Reagan came down to San Diego to deliver his first public address since his landslide election as Governor of California. And I think he's going to make a great Governor.

He certainly made a great candidate. And during the campaign he was boyish and charming, lacking his speeches with little jokes on himself, which he'd tell with a toss of his head, and arched eyebrow and a wry grin.

So you couldn't help liking him—the way you couldn't help liking Mickey Rooney when he played Andy Hardy.

Of course, some Californians worried about this; "He's certainly likable." they'd say, "but who wants to be governed by Andy Hardy?"

Well, I'm glad to report there's no cause for concern on this score. These doubters of little faith clearly underestimated Mr. Reagan's ability. Mr. Reagan, the candidate, and Mr. Reagan, the Governor, are two different things. You could see the change already.

Oh, the way Mr. Reagan, the Governor, arrrove purposefully with the microphone in his conservative blue suit, incorruptible white shirt and gold tie. And, oh, how sternly he lectured us all on the responsibilities of a citizen, the dignity of individual initiative, the propriety of morality and the virtues of virtue.

How he frowned as he talked of "little groups of bureaucrats" who had long tried to "lay down the law", and how he reflected on the "big families" of people in thousands of communities, catching our self-reliance.

How grave his voice as he pledged to "lay down the logic of the cities and counties the legitimate regulatory powers stripped from them by the courts", so that the people might better govern themselves.

It was a great speech. And it's a reassurance to discover that California is definitely not going to be governed by Andy Hardy. No, it's going to be governed by a stern, incorruptible, dignified gentleman of the old school. You know, like Andy's father, Judge Hardy.

Well, we all play roles in life and I'm glad Mr. Reagan has now chosen this one. As I say, I think Judge Hardy will make a great Governor. You can't help admiring Judge Hardy.

Well, the only thing odd about Mr. Reagan's first public address since his landslide election as Governor was the audience he chose to deliver it to. The Associated Press Managing Editors Convention is the loudest newspaper editors from all over the nation.

But after Mr. Reagan, the Governor, made his signed speech, the first thing he did was to say he hoped there wouldn't be any questions asked about his national political ambitions.

"I am no longer a candidate for anything," he said.

And, oh, the way he said it was boyish and charming, with a toss of his head, and arched eyebrow and a wry grin.

South Africa Launches Search
For Oil to Bolster Economy

JOHANNESBURG — South Africa suddenly has launched a massive search for oil. Major oil companies from all parts of the world are being spurred on by the government to find the oil which would give the country tremendous economic boost and which also would be of great strategic importance.

The search has become vital now because of United Nations threats to impose oil boycotts in South Africa.

The British-controlled oil boycott of Rhodesia (although only partially successful) has shown how effective this weapon can be.

So the search is on, both on land and at sea. The searches are being encouraged more by optimism than by any real clues that there is in fact oil waiting to be trapped.

But the government is undaunted. It has formed a company called Pegkor ("red rock") in Afrikaans means "red rock") to coordinate the program.

Pegkor has imported one of the largest drilling rigs in the world from the Persian Gulf to drill in the arid Karoo area of South Africa.

"Most of the experts been consulted by the South African government are Americans. They all have stressed that the explorations will be "wildcat" anyway because nothing was known about the geology of the area," a government official said.

South Africa has oil and diamonds, iron and copper, wool and fruit. It has almost everything except oil. So the government is spending many millions of dollars in the search for the one commodity which could make South Africa a self-sufficient industrial giant.

The Kananis Ciy Star
Ombudsman May Mediate Campus Strife

By Mike Nauer

In light of the recent conflict between the student government and administration over concerns housing and vehicles, the underlying complaint of students seems to be a feeling of helplessness in determining the direction of University policy.

Many students have said they have no access to the people who make the decisions, nor any adequate means of redress for alleged injustices. Further, several mechanisms are designed to minimize this problem, and a number of others have been proposed. The Student Government is the official channel between the students and the administration, and there are judicial boards available.

One suggestion that has been brought to the attention of the Daily Egyptian is establishing an Ombudsman similar to that in operation in a number of Scandinavian countries. This is a man, or more accurately, an office, created for the sole purpose of being the people's advocate. The Ombudsman is unchallengeable to any simple group or governmental body. With the full authority of the constitution behind him he serves individuals who have been treated unjustly by his government.

The Ombudsman has direct access to the heads of departments of his own choosing. In essence, he can act as the one individual between the common citizen and his leaders. Prusok, dean of students, said he has given the Ombudsman idea some thought as a possible solution.

Prusok said for the idea to work, the man selected for the job should have to be brought in from outside. He might not replace any present machinery such as the student government, it rather would augment its work.

The Ombudsman himself is an arbitrator or court of final appeal. Thus, a student who believes his rights have been abducted might seek the aid of the Ombudsman rather than turn to the costly and drawn out process of civil legal proceedings.

He concisely could be an attorney-at-large for the individual student in matters concerning the student and the University. If the student received no satisfaction from the mechanisms now in effect such as the dean's office, judicial boards or the student government, he could then turn to the Ombudsman.

Prusok said, 'He (the Ombudsman) would be similar to a labor mediator—a third disinterested party.'

Other administrators have been less receptive to the idea of such an office. Joseph F. Zaleski, assistant dean for off-campus housing, doesn't believe the man selected for the post would be able to remain objective.

'After he has been here for a while, he is bound to make friends among faculty members and administrators. What is to prevent him from biasing his decisions on the same grounds that we do now?' Zaleski asks.

The assistant dean said the operation of the University was being handled capably at the present, and that an Ombudsman would be of little value to the process because his office would just be a duplication of existing posts.

One administrator believed it could be possible for a student to use the Ombudsman against an instructor for views presented in the classroom. It was believed that academic freedom might be compromised if such a situation were to occur.

Iron Ships, Iron Men Engage in Big Campaign

ABROAD THE USS CORAL SEA—Last night the night aboard the USS Coral Sea, Craig, Alaska, where the jets don't rain—they scream. What you don't hear are the high frequencies that could deafen the unprotected for weeks. And the 200-foot steam catapult sends these warplanes into the blue sky of the tropic morning.

The pre-dawn strikes are coming back, crossing the horizon and skimming the waters. The Coral Sea is on the wing, and the Coral Sea is the last great expanse on the world map.

The story goes back to a day in May when the planes of the USS Coral Sea left Pearl Harbor and headed for Peiping, China, to help the Chinese against the Japanese. The Coral Sea had been repaired and refitted, and was the last of the old ships to be re-equipped.

The aircraft carrier was one of our second largest carrier-class warships. Its flight deck is 973 feet long, it can be launched planes by catapult while it receives planes on a cantilever runway. It carries 3,000 men and 15 aircraft in a week. It has a complement of 1,200 men, and 15 aircraft in a week. It has a complement of 1,200 men, and 15 aircraft in a week.

The Coral Sea is a warship, but it is also a second-class warship, for it is not equipped with the latest weapons. Its aircraft are old, and its guns are antiquated. But it is still a fighting ship, and it is still a warship.

Earl Wilson Relates Tales Of Work as Gossip Writer

Had it not been for a slight physical defect, newspaper columnist Earl Wilson might still have been an obscure staffer with the Washington Post.

As it happened, while serving as a rewrite man for the Post in 1942, Wilson was told that the amusement editor for the paper had been drafted. Wilson said he was promptly accepted for the job when his publishers found out that he was classified 4F because of a heart murmur.

‘Wings Over Egypt’ Film to Be Shown

The film ‘Wings Over Egypt’ will be presented at 8 p.m., Saturday at the Calibre Stage in the Communications Building.

The film is an impressionistic look at southern Illinois done in color by students now attending SUI. It covers nearly every aspect of ‘Little Egypt,’ agriculture, recreation, industry and religious and educational institutions. Admission will be 75 cents.

Student Advisory Council to Meet

The Agriculture Student Advisory Council will meet at 6:30 p.m. Monday in the Dean’s Office, Room 200, of the Agriculture Building.

Eugene S. Wood, associate professor of agricultural industries, the group’s new fiscal adviser, will be introduced. He will replace Herbert L. Portz, who leaves the post Jan. 1.

Since that time Wilson has covered the Broadway and Hollywood beats, where he gathered his material. The audience particularly enjoyed his description of how he covered or ‘uncovered’ a nudist camp.

At a coffee hour in the University Center, the columnist said that the Hollywood beat is not all glamour, and described the occasion when he was sued for libel by Walter Wangler after writing that the director had been fired. Wangler lost the suit, Wilson said.

During the coffee hour, Wilson was asked whether he prefers his present work to more serious aspects of journalism. ‘At one time I was fascinated with political reporting, but I feel I am better off as a Broadway columnist,’ he replied.

Occasionally, Wilson said, he gets material for stories outside the Broadway beat. His coverage of the poliomyelitis vaccine discovery is an example of this, Wilson said.

What’s the toughest thing about being a Broadway columnist?

‘Getting the job,’ Wilson said.

De Gaulle Pleas for United Europe

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle made a plea Thursday night for a united Europe to include the Soviet Union. He posed the question of whether there would now be a war in Vietnam if Europe had been united.

De Gaulle spoke at a glittering state dinner at the Elysee Palace in honor of Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, who arrived Thursday morning for a nine-day state visit. Kosygin was received with honors usually reserved for a chief of state, and special attention was shown to a chief of government.

The French president declared in his toast at the dinner that, "The Soviet Union and the French Republic are resolved to realize and to organize, in all fields, the cooperation of the two countries."

In his reply, Kosygin said that French-Soviet relations are much closer than two years ago. He said he agreed with much of what de Gaulle said, but he made no reference to closer Soviet ties with Western Europe.

At a time when he is trying to reduce United States influence in Europe, De Gaulle renewed his call for a grand design for a united Europe that would extend "from the Atlantic to the Urals."

Don't just sit there, Wallace Middendorp. Make a noise. Or drink Sprite, the noisy soft drink.

What did you do when Joe (Boxcar) Bracaglia was kicked off the football team just because he flunked six out of four of his majors? What did you do, Wallace Middendorp?

And when the school newspaper's editors resigned in protest because The Chancellor wouldn't allow the publication of certain malicious portions of "Night in a Girl's Dormitory" you just sat, didn't you? You've made a mockery of your life, Wallace Middendorp! You're a vegetable, protest, Wallace Middendorp! Take a stand. Make a noise! Or drink Sprite, the noisy soft drink.

Open a bottle of Sprite at the next campus speakeasy. Let it fiz and bubble in the darkness. Let its lusty carbonation echo through the halls of Ivy. Let its tart, tingling exuberance infect the crowd with excitement. Do these things, Wallace Middendorp. Do these things, and swig big corporation is going to hire you!
Student Arrests Spark Berkeley Unrest Again

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—A boycott of classes at the University of California met with disputed success Thursday as university officials confronted a new crisis sparked by foes of a Navy recruiting program.

There was a slight reduction in attendance at the 27,500-student Berkeley campus, but some may have stayed away because of a rainstorm.

At a noon rally in Sproul Plaza outside the school’s administration building, an estimated 10,000 students stood in intermittent drizzling rain to listen to speakers.

With a show of hands, the crowd overwhelmingly voted to continue the strike, originally scheduled to end at noon.

The latest campus turmoil reminiscent of the 1964 December Free Speech Movement sit-in was touched off because of a rainstorm.

University President Clark Kerr was reported on route by plane from Los Angeles, and Chancellor Roger Heyns was flying back from New York.

Gov.-elect Ronald Reagan, in San Francisco, blamed the troubles on “middle-aged delinquents” who live near the campus. He said he would continue to press for an investigation of university affairs.

Local 1570 of the American Federation of Teachers, mostly teaching assistants, voted 111 to 30 in favor of a strike in support of the boycott.

As the teaching assistants voted, the Navy again set up its recruiting table for the Navy’s aviation program. Hundreds of students—some carrying protest signs—gathered around the table outside the Student Union building. There were no incidents.

In essence, dissidents’ demands were the same as the 1964 Free Speech Movement—on-campus status for non-students and nonstudent organizations and greater political freedom on the campus.

The protesters and teaching assistants want off-campus organizations to enjoy the same privileges allowed government agencies such as the Navy.

Inter-Faith Center Proposed for SIU

A memorial fund is being established by the SIU Foundation for William Henry Harris, professor of philosophy, who died recently.

Kenneth R. Miller, executive director of the Foundation, said, "Prof. Harris was one of the driving forces behind the new Foundation project. This project, the SIU Inter-Faith Center, is designed to be an educational and museum faculty of the world's six major religious groups."

Miller said, "The Foundation wishes to memorialize the name of Prof. Harris in some way in this project."

Heading the memorial fund is Willis Moore, chairman of the Department of Philosophy. Moore said Harris was respected by his colleagues for his deep commitment to inter-cultural understanding.

Miller said faculty and student friends' contributions will be received at the SIU Foundation office.

Miller added that the Inter-Faith Center is expected to be completed in the spring, 1969. The SIU Foundation is authorized to solicit and receive gifts for the benefit of SIU in the advancement of scientific, literary and educational purposes.

'Rainbow Terrace' Wraps Up This Weekend

The curtain goes up again tonight and Saturday night on the cozy cottage in purgatory. Mordcchai Gorelik's "Rainbow Terrace" will conclude its scheduled run at SIU.

Heading the cast is Paul Mann, Broadway and Hollywood actor, along with members of the Southern Players; "Rainbow Terrace," thought-provoking as it is satirical, deals with the attempts of industrialist Vern Falkiner (Mann), who was killed in an auto accident, to secure a transfer from purgatory to heaven.

Gorelik, SIU artist-in-residence in the Theater Department, is an internationally recognized scenic designer and theater historian. He wrote and directed the play and designed the set.

Curtain time is 8 p.m. today and Saturday in the playhouse in the Communications Building.

Tickets are available at the ticket office in the Communications Building for $1.25 per person.

Basketball: It’s a Name, It’s a Game, It’s....

By Bob Forbes

The basketball season is upon us. Scored by adding machine, invented by the YMCA but turned into a profit on occasion by the Mafia and other underworld groups, is a game in which you try to put a ball 30 inches in circumference into a hoop 24 inches.

Chicago Students Ask Football Team

CHICAGO (AP) The student government of the University of Chicago, whose Maroons withdraw from the Western Conference in 1948 and faded from the football scene, wants the sport revitalized.

The student group passed a resolution recently asking that intercollegiate football be reinstated at the university. It is to be presented to school president George W. Beadle and dean Warner Wick.

in diameter. A very difficult task.

Basketball is a game in which altitude is more important than altitude. The game is even getting to the point where it is rougher than football.

In football, at least you have grass to fall on. In basketball, you have hardwood over cement. In football, you have padding. In basketball, your underwear. A lot of coaches don’t recruit players anymore; they recruit bullies. Most coaches around the league don’t ask, “Can he shoot?” but ask “Can he punch?”

But the most interesting thing about basketball is the fan and his description of the game. In order to understand the action on the hardwood, it is advisable to know the meaning of the following terms:

Play Maker—Can’t shoot.
Gunner—Can’t make plays.
Double Dribble—either a soul or a bad sinus, depending on whether the player has the ball or just a leak from each nostril.

Hatchet Man—a guy who throws elbows.

 Pivot Hash—a team who can’t shoot, make plays, but is seven feet tall, so it doesn’t matter.

Home Court Advantage—a mystery which affects the visiting team, early symptoms of which are a sudden outbreak of yellow along the spine of the referee.

High Post—an offensive tactic in which a guy seven feet tall stands under the basket like a giraffe eating leaves off a tree surrounded by little guys who can’t even see his chin clearly, much less the ball, and he gets three seconds to dunk it in, which is usually two more than he requires.

Dunk Shot—a shot in which a man seven feet tall who can jump five feet straight up, outs a ball through a basket which is only 10 feet up and which he can miss only if gravity stops functioning.

Low Post—the one right in front of the seats you will get in most of the arenas.

Assist—a play in which a player loses possession of the ball, but a teammate picks it up and makes a sensation.

ional basket and 5,000 people say “What a pass,”

SUDDEN DEATH—A device whereby a guy who hasn’t made a point all season comes off the bench and makes the winning basket and keeps the fellow with 40 points from being “star of the game.”

The Salukis' varsity got the 1966-67 basketball season underway with a 60-44 victory over the freshmen Thursday night.

The freshmen kept things close throughout the first half, trailing by only four points at the intermission, 25-21. It was not until early in the second half that the Salukis were able to open up a sizeable margin on the frosh. The varsity smoothed out a few wrinkles in its defense in the final half and forced the freshmen into 14 turnovers, eight more than the frosh had in the initial half.

The frosh scored first on a free-throw by Bruce Butchko, 6-7 center from McCrea, who scored 15 points on the night to top the freshmen. Each team exchanged field goals before the varsity pulled into a 10-7 lead.

The varsity's biggest lead of the half was eight points midway through the half. The freshmen immediately rallied to close the gap to three points at 15-12.

The varsity's aggressive defensive played opened the margin of difference quickly in the second half as the tempo of the game quickened. The varsity also began to gain an edge on the backboards early in the final period. The varsity turned the ball over to the frosh seven times in the first half. They made only five such mistakes in the second half despite the fact that Coach Jack Hartman cleared his bench with about four minutes to play.

The leading scorer was Walt Frazier, who contributed 16 points on six field goals and a pair of free throws. He was followed by Butchko of the freshmen with 15, Dick Garrett, sophomore forward, with 10 points and frosh guard Mike Dixon with 10.

Other varsity scorers were Clarence Smith with nine, Chuck Benson with seven, Roger Bechtold with seven, Ralph Johnson with six, Willie Griffin and Jay Westcott with four each and Rick Millis with two points.

The leading frosh rebounder was James Smith with nine, Chuck Benson with seven, Roger Bechtold with seven, Ralph Johnson with six, Willie Griffin and Jay Westcott with four each and Rick Millis with two points.
