Over 100 persons gather for service

By Norris Jones
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A crowd gathered near SIU's Lake-on-the-Campus Wednesday to "celebrate the life" of Lisa Levering.

More than 100 persons attended the informal memorial service in an area encircled by barren oaks.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Anne Levering, wearing a blue windbreaker, blue jeans and tan Indian moccasins, greeted several newcomers with an affectionate hug and smile.

Teen-aged girls—Lisa's friends—and elderly men looked at the ground through reddened, tear-filled eyes.

A folk-singing quartet consisting of four SIU students sang "Sounds of Silence," "Blowin' in the Wind," "Flowers Never Bend," and "Turn, Turn, Turn." Chuck Maney, Gary Novota, Sue Mesner, and Betsy Kruger sang between two brief talks.

Robert Rankin, a Levering family friend from St. Louis, said services were held "to celebrate the life of one who found more in living 14 years than most men and women find in five times as many years."

"If you have seen her smile, you have seen something of her soul, a soul full of freedom and responsibility," he said. "In her we found rare gracefulness, a sense of profound worth."

Rankin said that while her friends are mourning, they should celebrate Lisa for her grace of life.

Richard M. Thomas, director of SIU's Community Development Services, announced that a special fund had been established which will be given to the California grape pickers to help in their effort to organize.

Lisa and her mother had marched with the farm workers in April, 1966.

Contributions may be sent to the Student Activities Office, University Center, Carbondale.

The services ended with the quartet singing "We Shall Overcome" and the crowd softly joining in.

Wednesday night the Student Senate unanimously approved a resolution requesting the student government and student activity officers to conduct a student-community drive for the fund.

Consulting firm sought

A consulting firm is being sought by a committee of the SIU Board of Trustees to take a broad look at the physical affairs of the University, the group's chairman reported Wednesday night.

Melvin C. Lockard, chairman of the four-man committee, said the group authorized him at their meeting in Mattoon to contact various consulting firms.

Lockard said that the committee took no action on the possible future position of President Delyte W. Morris in the University. Neither was any action taken on whether a University director or comptroller would be named, Lockard added.

"I don't expect this to be brought up at our next committee meeting either," Lockard continued.

"We elected officers," Lockard said, and asked each member "to submit a few names of an attorney which we will hire."

Investigation continues on leads in girl's death

By Wayne Markham
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The long process of running down leads in the investigation of 14-year-old Lisa Levering's death has begun.

Carbondale Police Chief Jack Hazel said Wednesday that residents have responded to the call for information with a wealth of tips that are being processed.

"People have been phoning us about things they have seen," Hazel said. "Our job has been setting priorities and following up the investigation."

Two teenage girls who told police they were approached on the street by a man about an hour before Miss Levering disappeared, worked with a police artist Wednesday, to complete a composite sketch of the man.

The girls described the man as heavy set, about 25 years old, white, light complexion with medium brown hair and wearing a white shirt.

The two teenagers said the man was driving a dark, possibly dark blue, sedan.

The biggest lead in the investigation to date, according to Hazel, has been the report of a dark sedan that was seen in the Lake Chautauqua area where Miss Levering's body was found Monday.

Miss Levering disappeared Nov. 25 after leaving the Carbondale Teen Center on West Jackson Street about 7:45 p.m.

Hazel said his department has been working overtime on the case following up on various leads. According to the chief, reports from SIU students and local people have been most helpful.

Evidence collected at the scene where Miss Levering's body was found have been catalogued by the Illinois Crime Lab, Hazel said. The lab has requested additional information.

Police questioned several persons Tuesday, but Hazel said none are considered prime suspects.

Convention riot case

Conspiracy charges to end

CHICAGO (AP)—The government said Wednesday it plans to conclude its case Thursday against seven men charged with conspiracy to incite rioting during the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

"The government expects it would rest tomorrow after several short witnesses," said Thomas A. Foran, U.S. district attorney.

The prosecution has called 50 witnesses since the trial began Sept. 24 in U.S. District Court.

Foran announced the impending conclusion of the prosecution case after three films of convention demonstrations were shown to the jury, two over defense objections.

William M. Kunstler, a defense attorney, interrupted the presentation of the third film and asserted the volume was higher than when the film was originally shown without the jury present.

He requested that Judge Julius J. Hoffman ask the government attorneys whether they had increased the volume.

The judge refused and told Kunstler, who had moved close to the bench, to step back. "You frighten me," he said.

Hoffman then ordered showing of the film to resume.

After its conclusion, Kunstler again objected to the loudness of the sound track.

Under questioning by the judge, Roger Cabbage, an assistant U.S. district attorney, admitted he had turned up the volume "because it wasn't loud enough the first time."

The three films were taken the night of Aug. 28 in the vicinity of the Conrad Hilton Hotel. The prosecution did not specifically identify any of the defendants as members of the crowd that clashed with police in front of the hotel.

Senate backs Grad Council stand

By P. J. Heller
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The SIU Student Senate Wednesday night expressed unanimous support for attempts by the Graduate Student Council to prevent confidential non-academic information from being compiled by the Dean of Students' Office.

The Senate measure recommended that "the Dean of Students' Office cease its collection of confidential and non-academic information and destroy the files of information accumulated heretofore."

Jim Hansen, president of the Graduate Student Council, had said information is collected on every student at the University, and many "don't even know such a file is kept."

Calling the University's actions both "paranoid and punitive attitude towards the students," the Senate said it was not the type of action it would want to collaborate.

Wilbur Moulton, Dean of Students, has claimed the files are "basically correspondence files."

According to Moulton, the files are kept for general administrative purposes, such as to keep track of "persistent violators of University regulations" and to serve as source material for writing letters of information and recommendations about students.

A statement of policy concerning the release of student information was circulated to the staff of the Student Affairs Division dated Sept. 18, 1969, which said in part, "The official student information folder... is considered confidential and is available for review only by faculty and administrative officials of the University for official reasons."

Hansen claimed the data compiled on students was "a serious invasion of privacy."

False bomb threat reported at Communications Building

The SIU Security Office reported that a bomb threat was received in their office at 9:55 p.m. Tuesday. The anonymous phone call warned that a bomb would go off Wednesday in the Communications Building.

A security officer was sent to the building where he notified the custodians and a search was made of the building. It was reported that persons in the building at the time were also notified and some helped in the search although no evidence of a bomb was found.

Desecration

To the Daily Egyptian:

In view of the sentiments expressed by the cartoon, which appeared on the editorial page of the Nov. 12 edition of the Daily Egyptian, it is little wonder that the "silent majority" is beginning to close ranks behind President Nixon and against those who evidently do not share a sense of loyalty nor allegiance to our country.

Our flag of red, white and blue is, of course, symbolic of our forefather's goal in building for us the greatest nation and system of representative self-government that human achievement and suffering could ever hope to achieve.

We have recently endured many expressions of national profanation from the "anti-war" hypocrites who demonstrate against everything and contribute nothing.

In depicting our flag as worn by the grim reaper (death), Johnson and Gilpin have surely taxed their deviate imaginations in order to come up with their own peculiar style of desecration.

Our banner has been carried into battle many times since 1777, and many have given their "last full measure of devotion," and always for the cause of freedom. Vietnam is a different front in a continuing war but the cause of freedom remains the same.

The United States of America is the only hope for those of the world who desire and cherish freedom. The communist powers are obsessed with the idea of world domination, and the fools who aid their conspiracy are seduced by false visions of Utopia. They demand that we trade our heritage of freedom for a mess of totalitarian potage; and, I strongly suspect that the "silent majority" will not hesitate to refuse.

Thank God that most of us, as evidenced by all those who proudly display their flags in these times of crisis, yet believe as Henry Holcomb Bennett wrote:

"Pride and glory and honor,—all
Live in the colors to stand or fall."

Real reason!

To the Daily Egyptian:

This writer has learned through Gus Bode the real reason behind the high costs of the president's new house.

You see, on April 25, 1966, President Morris drowned in Thompson Lake. This explains the $250,000 figure quoted as the original cost (25 equals the day, 4 zeros equals April, the fourth month.) Since the president's body was never recovered, the house will never be located on the campus map in honor of the late president.

This, of course, explains the reason why no swimming pool will be included in the palace. It would bring back tragic memories of that fatal dip in the lake.

The imposter, an SIU employee, has demanded a million dollar home or else expose the scandal. This, of course, explains why no one has ever seen Morris. As one can see, truth always prevails.

Qualifications not too numerous

To the Daily Egyptian:

For those who read Paul Povse's opinion in the Nov. 13 edition of the Daily Egyptian and were upset, worried, or disquieted by it, I would like to offer a few words of consolation. The qualifications for becoming a member of the "silent majority" are not as numerous nor as complicated as Mr. Povse suggests.

To begin with, one does not have to "accept without question" everything that Mr. Nixon says simply because he is the President. I am sure that Mr. Nixon would welcome any logical, rational arguments that conflict with his ideas. If a member of the "silent majority" believes that Mr. Nixon has chosen the wrong course, then he has every right to disagree, through press or protest march. But, in the course of his protest, he does not have the right to break any laws which he feels may be impeding his progress.

The majority of the voting public placed their trust in Mr. Nixon's ability to make decisions. This occurred last November, so it would seem logical that this same majority would still support Mr. Nixon. It is therefore foolish to believe that Mr. Nixon has "coined" or "stirred up" this majority. It is simply the same majority who voted for him.

If Mr. Povse had listened carefully to Mr. Nixon's speech, he would have recognized the fact that Mr. Nixon was sincerely trying to end the war while losing as little time and as few lives as possible. He would have also discovered that Mr. Nixon said "I believe that this is the right course to peace." No one will know whether it is the right course until it is proven or disproven by the passage of time. No citizen "knows" whether or not this is the right course.

Let us stop to examine Mr. Nixon's use of the term "silent majority." This term certainly does not, as Mr. Povse states, refer to Americans who "wear white socks and like cottage cheese and catsup." If Mr. Povse considers everyone who does not wear bell bottoms and peace symbols "square," it would be advisable for him to open his eyes and take a look at some of the more mature people walking about. There are quite a few to be found, even on the campus of SIU.

Nor does "silent majority" refer to the long-haired anthropoid rabble which can be seen grazing outside the north entrance to University Center, or on the lawn of Holden Hospital. It simply refers to the average American, who is neither "square" and "flag waving" nor mangy looking and overburdened with inactivity.

It refers to the people who have somehow managed to keep America prospering despite a lot of noise from an insignificant few.

Says constitution isn't being rewritten

To the Daily Egyptian:

Dear Bill Berra and Rick Holt:

As long as you two are seeking to keep abreast of developments, it might interest you to know that the Student Senate is not rewriting the constitution.

Even if the Student Senate did manage to rewrite the constitution to enable Dwight Campbell to be re-elected he would still have to be elected by the student body. It surely would have been easier to ascertain this than all the "non-political" garbage that you discovered.

If your sharp, analytical minds are up to the task you might check out what previous student body presidents have done—nothing. You might even take the time to find out what Dwight Campbell has done and is doing.

And if you succeed in doing all this you might as well cut out a copy of "No Funny Stuff" to remind you of how stupid you used to be.

Michael Ibach
Junior
Radio-TV

I admire Mr. Povse's fine sense of idealism, and agree completely that war is morally wrong. I also agree with the people who say that this particular war we are fighting is morally wrong, and with those with the long hair and peace symbols who are trying to end it.

It certainly gives one a sense of pride to see a group of filthy, malodorous hypocrites trying to end the war by sitting around and smoking "pot," shooting "speed" and taking LSD. Yes, Mr. Povse, war is morally wrong, but so are a few other things.

Supporting organized crime by buying marijuana is also morally wrong. (The Mafia has been known to murder people on occasion.) Risking the minds and lives of future generations by the use of LSD is also morally wrong. Disrupting law and order through violent demonstrations is morally wrong, for without law and order, anarchy reigns, and Communism follows.

It is obvious that those "citizens" who hoist red flags have never lived under or read about what occurs under a Communist regime. Many articles have been written relating the terrorism occurring in Communist countries, and I refer these people and their sympathizers to them. There have been quite a few people who have lost their lives in attempting to escape from Communist countries, but to my knowledge there have been none who risked their lives to get in.

Somehow, smoking "pot," using drugs, burning the flag and destroying property while trying to end the war seems a bit hypocritical. Idealism is fine, but in this case I think Mr. Nixon and the "silent majority" of law abiding citizens are on the right course by trying constructively to end the war. Fairy tales of Utopia are pleasant things to think about, but owing to the nature of man himself, cannot be achieved. Utopia certainly cannot be achieved by the small minority of law breakers who use drugs and violence as excuses.

The war is all too real, and can only be ended in a realistic manner. The violent protests and demonstrations have been going on for quite some time, so it is only fair that these protesters sit down, shut up and give Mr. Nixon an equal chance to end the war sensibly. Do not be disturbed when Mr. Povse tells you that Mr. Nixon is shallow, and using a "fireside" stunt. Mr. Nixon's speech is the first honest and sincere one to come out of the White House in six years. And after listening to six years of blatant lying, it is refreshing to listen to someone who is honest, straightforward and sincerely trying to end the war and eradicate the mistakes of the past.

Food stamp program could be improved

By Karen Ramp
Student Writer

Some persons in Jackson County will go to bed hungry tonight because they don't have enough money to buy food. To try and correct this problem the Department of Agriculture issues food stamps at the local level through the Department of Public Aid.

Food stamps have been available in Jackson County since May, 1966. But there are problems with the program.

George Savko, administrative officer of Food and Nutrition Services of the Department of Agriculture for Jackson County, explained the operation of the program.

He said persons eligible for food stamps are "extremely low income people with the head of the household working, people on social security, handicapped, pensioners and the blind." Persons on state and local public assistance can get the stamps, he said. Persons eligible for public assistance but don't apply for the assistance can also receive the stamps.

"These people must also have cooking and eating facilities, and their take-home pay cannot be more than what is allowed by the pay scale," he added.

For example, a family of three cannot have a monthly income over $182, according to the Illinois Department of Public Aid pay scale.

Savko said applicants have to apply at the aid office in Murphysboro. When applying it is necessary to bring information telling where the family lives, how much income the family has a month, how many are in the family, how much the family pays for rent, doctor bills and medical expenses.

If the family or individual is eligible, the information is sent to Springfield for authorization. This takes about 30 days.

"When the applicant receives his authorization, he takes it to Murphysboro to purchase his stamps," Savko said.

During August, approximately 296 households in Jackson County used the stamps. The amount paid for the stamps is based on a sliding scale depending on the applicant's income. Each applicant receives about $70 in food stamps a month.

One family may have to pay $40 for stamps and get $30 of stamps free. Another may pay $50 for the stamps and get $30 of stamps free. Families must pay their full part of the costs when they receive their stamps.

If an applicant is unable to pay the full $40 or $50 for the stamps for two or three months, he's "kicked off the program," Savko said.

The problems of the food stamp program were discussed by Mrs. Sally Kirk, Program Development Director of the Jackson-Williamson County Action Agency (JWCAA) and Dempsey Crim, executive director of JWCAA.

According to Mrs. Kirk, "The system breaks down with the cash outlay."

"The program is fundamentally a good one," she said, "but the trouble is with the cash amount the recipients need to have to purchase the stamps."

Mrs. Kirk said people on welfare receive their checks twice a month. The money goes out immediately for things like tennis shoes for the children.

"Many of these people don't have the sense of order needed to budget their money for the stamps," said Mrs. Kirk. "There is also the problem that there is only the office in Murphysboro, where the stamps can be picked up. Many of the poor people don't have cars and just can't make the trip."

An emergency aid program now provides transportation to the stations the day the stamps are issued. This fund also provides money to help a family buy their first food stamps.

Mrs. Kirk said it's difficult for a poor person to understand the complex workings of the program.

"We have had some people on the program for a couple of months and then drop out of it because it's just too complicated," she said.

Dempsey Crim said several changes should be made in the program.

"The qualifications are too stringent," he said. "The department should make it as easy as possible to get the stamps." He said, "There is too much red tape involved. The people don't get enough for their money. They should get more for less because the stamps are just too high.

"There is a stigma attached with the stamps by the people in the stores. Many times if a cashier gets a food stamp user at the register, the cashier will ask him to go to the back of the line and take care of the cash paying customers first because they don't want to mess with the stamps."

Last August people using food stamps purchased $17,000 worth of groceries in Jackson County.

Crim said most poor people were not sophisticated enough to understand the rules and stamp regulations.

"People shouldn't have to feel that this is a poverty program. The fact that some people are marginal cases making about $6,000 a year shouldn't have to stop them from using the stamps," he said.

Food stamps cannot be used to purchase cigarettes, beer, liquor or imported foods except for coffee, tea, bananas and coconuts.

According to Crim, "Just because a person is poor doesn't mean that he can't enjoy the things the richer man is able to buy. A poor man likes to smoke as much as a rich man does."

The goal of the food stamp program—to help those with little income eat more nutritional meals—seems basically to be a good idea. But the application process, qualifications and the possession of a certain amount of money to purchase the stamps each month is apparently too complicated for many persons. The food stamp program could be much more effective if some of these problems could be solved.

Balloons, cookies in church!

By Hiroko Kimura
Student Writer
(First of two articles)

"How does a worship differ from rock concert? Or does it? This was fun, but is it worship?" asked one Presbyterian, perplexed and confused after a nontraditional service.

"I am a Christian—I think, at least I believe in God. This service is a little strange, but it's the first one with a party mood I've ever been to. I feel kinda funny playing with a balloon in church," said another worshipper coming out of the First Presbyterian Church on South University Avenue.

Some people seem to be startled and shook up this fall as they find their churches doing "something different" from what they're used to.

Out of concern for the crumbling communication between religion and the young generation, several churches and religious foundation centers have launched what they call "experimental worships." Jazz, rock and folk music, balloons, cookies, avant-garde poems and informality are some important ingredients of the happenings.

"In our culturally pluralistic society, few if any forms have relevance for us all," the Rev. Duane Lancaster of the First Presbyterian Church explains, adding that "The trend in worship is to include relevant, non-traditional forms so that a wider variety of people can find meaning."

Experimental worship, according to the Rev. Mr. Lancaster, is by no means a fooling-around, a design to please children or an attempt to attract the alienated. It is simply a way to worship God.

Regardless of like or dislike, those who witness and participate at least get a firsthand experience of what's happening. The problem seems to lie, however, in misconceptions likely to be formed by those who hear about balloons and cookies and whatnots and do not know what they mean in the service.

The Rev. Mr. Lancaster recalls the experimental worship he conducted one Sunday morning. It moved along in a familiar, traditional manner—that is, until the end of the first two thirds of the service. Then came the "surprise."

Congregational members were informed they could leave if they wanted to.

The Apostles' Creed was dropped. Instead, the congregation now was asked to get up and walk around freely in the sanctuary, meeting people and saying at least one honest thing to whomever they met.

Not only introverts but also extroverts found it difficult to look somebody in the face and open up themselves. One honest thing? Well, what would you say?

Ordinary prayer was replaced by pencils and colorful sheets of paper inserted in the day's bulletin. While people sat down and expressed themselves on paper, a jazz combo provided background music. Cookies were distributed.

The colored paper soon was filled with a variety of things—confessions, comments on the day's worship, big question marks, words such as peace and love—reflecting the heterogeneity of the congregation made up of townspeople, SIU students and faculty.

As the paper was being collected to be put on the communion table as an offering, balloons were distributed to the baffled worshippers.

People cried, giggled and laughed when a balloon popped in their hands.

The pastor gathered the congregation around the communion table in an open circle. People passed "peace" to the person next to him, gently clapping the hands.

The worship was concluded with a "jazzy amen."

"The main purpose of experimental worship today," says the Rev. Mr. Lancaster, "is to create a sense of community. There are also lots of symbolism in the worship. Balloons, for example, symbolize celebrations, as they are usually associated with joy and happiness of childhood."

Not the form but the deep, effective communication is what is most important in religion, says the Rev. Mr. Lancaster, noting that flexibility is one thing lacking in church today.

"Experimental worship has an educational function," says the pastor, adding that "the young and the alienated may find such worship more satisfying, but we traditionalists may profit more. It should increase our awareness of the worship we often go through automatically. It should make us examine our attitude."

The worship, the first and the only trial this fall, was successful in that it created a ground for discussion of what church and religion meant to each individual. Written comments on the slips of paper provide some insights:

"I still consider the church as a place to worship God with dignity and reverence. Being 61 years old no doubt has shaped my opinion."—a traditionalist.

"I love my church, but I am not sure where I stand today. I do sincerely hope I feel the great changes are for the best."—the confused.

"I was so moved I almost cried. I felt that most were communicating some way." "This is truly a marvelous experience! This is the first time I have ever had a meaningful worship encounter!"—the rejoiced.

The majority of the 29 churches in Carbondale seem to have no strong objections to such a trial service.

"I don't have any objection to new, experimental worships. They're trying to reach people who are coming," says the Rev. Napp Grande of University Baptist Church. He describes the worshippers at his church as "more or less traditional."

Nontraditional worship, however, is "in" at many of 12 religious foundation centers. With the overwhelming majority of the congregation made up of SIU students, these centers offer such worship services every week.

Called "contemporary worship," "folk mass" or "Celebrate with Joy for Hope, etc.," some have made students shout, "Wow!"

Students query draft board on deferment, graduate state

The question of whether to give up student deferments, and the status of graduate students under the new draft lottery are the primary questions bothering draft age young men, according to Local Board No. 139 of the Selective Service System in Murphysboro.

"People have been requesting to give up their 2-S deferments to be 1-A for 12 months since they received a high number in the lottery," said Barbara A. Givens, executive secretary of the Murphysboro board.

Because the period in which a man may be called to service has been reduced from seven years to one year, men with high numbers—roughly those with numbers from the mid-200's through 366—will make themselves available for the draft, hoping their numbers will never be called and they will no longer be available for military service after the required one year.

"I can't believe the federal government has given such a large escape route," Miss Givens said. "It's not like them to have this wide a loophole."

As for graduate students, under the old system they were granted a one year postponement after they received their induction notice in order to complete their academic year.

"Graduate students frequently called wanting to know if their postponement would stick under the lottery system," Miss Givens said. "I can't really advise people on anything I don't really know about. It will probably be two to three weeks before I get sufficient information. That's when the January draft calls come out."

Handbook for sex

Included in a survival kit brochure handed to first-year students at the University of Manitoba was a 46-page birth control handbook. The handbook, written in consultation with medical authorities and family-planning associations, provides the student with diagrams and statistics relating to birth control, but doesn't advocate birth control or premarital sexual relations.

Computer dance set

A computer dance has been scheduled from 8 p.m. to midnight Friday in the Roman Room of the University Center.

The dance, sponsored by the Social Committee of the Student Government Activities Council (SGAC), will feature a St. Louis band, "The Touch."

Rathskeller: no license; Hub: court move seen

By Wayne Markham
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Rathskeller's liquor license was revoked Tuesday by Carbondale Mayor David Keene.

The possibility of court action to close the Hub Cafe, above the Rathskeller lounge, was confirmed Tuesday by Jackson County State's Attorney Richard E. Richman. Richman said the county's food handling ordinance provides for a court injunction to close an establishment or for a maximum $500 per day fine.

The Hub Cafe has been operating without a food handling permit since July 2 when its old license expired.

The state's attorney indicated he would file a complaint against the restaurant as soon as possible.

Problems with enforcing the county's food handling ordinance have been raised by the Hub Cafe incident, according to Richman.

He said the hearing procedure and standards established in the three-year-old ordinance are difficult to maintain and enforcement becomes a problem.

The Hub Cafe, located at 100 S. Illinois Ave. in Carbondale, and the Logan House in Murphysboro were both investigated by the Jackson County Health Department this summer for food handling violations.

According to Richman, the Logan House complied with the county standards during a 60-day grace period granted both restaurants.

He said Les Miller, director of environment health for the Jackson County Health Department, reported Tuesday that the Hub Cafe was still in violation.

Richman said he was requested earlier to rewrite the county's ordinance to make it more practical but has been unable to make the revision to date.

The Carbondale Liquor Advisory Board has held two hearings of its own into the Rathskeller, which is part of the Hub Cafe operation, after the county health investigation was made.

SIU archaeologist to survey state sites

By University News Service

Frank Rackerby, archaeologist with the SIU Museum, is one of two archaeologists appointed by the State Department of Conservation to make an inventory of important archaeological sites in the state which are in danger of destruction.

Rackerby and Stuart Struever of Northwestern University will spend January, February and March following up tips from all possible sources that any area once occupied by prehistoric Indians is about to be demolished by highway or road construction, commercial or industrial building, housing subdivisions, industrial parks, shopping centers, levee and drainage ditch construction, farm land clearing or lake and flood-control projects.

Rackerby said the State Conservation Department and the Illinois Archaeological Survey are cooperating in the statewide survey of the site destruction problem.

"We want to document specific places where archaeological sites are threatened with destruction, either immediately or within the next five or ten years," Rackerby said.

"We must depend largely on information which interested individuals can supply about sites which are threatened in their own local areas."

He said survey sheets to supply such information can be obtained from the Illinois Archaeological Survey office, 137 Davenport Hall, University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill. Rackerby and Struever also will have a supply of the blanks.

Rackerby said that while his and Struever's primary responsibility is for archaeological sites, they also will record historic buildings which may be slated for demolition if reported to them.

The state inventory is being conducted as a result of the passage by Congress of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966. The Department of Conservation has been designated by the National Park Service to carry out the program in Illinois.

An amendment to present legislation is now pending in Congress, Rackerby said, which would authorize agencies whose activities threaten archaeological or historical sites to appropriate a portion of a project's budget to finance salvage of these sites ahead of their destruction, analysis of the materials found and publication of the scientific record.

He said, the National Park

Service formerly was limited to its own funds in subsidizing the investigations or to voluntary contributions from the responsible agencies.

The Illinois Archaeological Survey is a cooperative organization composed of the SIU Museum, University of Illinois Museum and the Illinois State Museum. Rackerby said other members of the survey would be asked to check out reports of imminent site destruction in their immediate vicinity.

Special doctoral assistantship awarded to Nepalese teacher

Leela Devi, Nepalese college teacher studying for the doctoral degree in home economics education at SIU, has been awarded a special doctoral assistantship for the winter and spring quarters, according to Anna Carol Fults, chairman of the Department of Home Economics Education.

Miss Devi has held a part-time graduate assistantship this fall, assisting as a counselor of students in the department. Under the new appointment she will spend half-time on this assignment.

Miss Devi is on leave from the faculty of the College of Education, Tribhuvan University of Kathmandu, Nepal. She currently holds the $1,000 national Altrusa Club award for doctoral study. Last year she was the recipient of the American Home Economics Association Marian K. Piper International scholarship for advanced study in the U. S.

She is one of four international students working toward the doctoral degree in home economics education, Miss Fults said.

Morris names
student leaders
to advisory group

The presidents of student government at the Carbondale and the Edwardsville campuses of SIU were named Tuesday to represent SIU on an ad hoc Student Advisory Committee created by the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

Recommended by SIU President Delyte W. Morris were Dwight Campbell of Chicago, student body president at the Carbondale campus, and Charles Traggassor of Belleville, from the Edwardsville campus. An alternate, Nino Fennoy of East St. Louis, a leader in the Black Student Association, also was named from the Edwardsville campus.

The nominations were approved by the Higher Board, in session Tuesday at Chicago.

Orville Alexander, professor and former chairman of the Department of Government at the Carbondale campus, was named member of an ad hoc advisory committee to study and recommend procedures with respect to the Constitutional Convention.

Kerner new Skolnick victim

CHICAGO (AP)—An investigation of Judge Otto Kerner of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and former Illinois governor, for possible judicial impropriety, was sought Tuesday through a motion filed in U.S. District Court.

The action, filed by Sherman Skolnick, self-described legal researcher, said Judge Kerner received an "apparent gift" of $50,000 worth of stock just before he ordered a lower court to dismiss an indictment against a gangland figure.

Skolnick's opinion was contained in documents accompanying the motion, through which he sought permission to intervene as a friend of the court in a suit brought against the Civic Center Bank and Trust Co. by shareholders.

Judge Kerner declined comment on the charges.

The motion said Judge Kerner received 50 shares of stock of Civic Capital Corp., valued at $1,000 per share, prior to April 3 when he directed the lower court to dismiss the indictment against Joseph Amabile, an alleged crime syndicate associate.

Civic Capital Corp. is a holding company which owns the Civic Center Bank.

Skolnick's motion said,

"The apparent $50,000 gift to Judge Otto Kerner has the appearance of impropriety and should be investigated."

Skolnick said records of Civic Capital Corp. do not indicate that Judge Kerner paid for the 50 shares.

Amabile is in the U.S. penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., serving 15 years on an extortion charge.

A later indictment against Amabile involving the same victim was dismissed in April by an appeals court decision written by Judge Kerner with the concurrence of Judge Walter J. Cummings and the late Judge Elmer J. Schnackenberg.

Skolnick is a self-taught investigator whose charges of judicial impropriety against two Illinois Supreme Court judges earlier this year resulted in both resigning from the bench.

Winter housing favors men

By Dana Brinkley
Student Writer

Looking to winter quarter, Mrs. Carole Antes, coordinator of the Housing Information Center, said that the off-campus housing situation for junior and senior men is better than for women.

In the off-campus residence halls, the center listed approximately 400 vacancies for men as compared to 80 vacancies for women.

The role of the housing information center is to provide general information for students trying to find off-campus housing. Mrs. Antes said that the center is a service to the students. It operates by calling all accepted living centers to ask if they have vacancies. The center then makes a list for the students' use. Mrs. Antes also said that the center surveys off-campus housing at least every two weeks to keep its list up to date.

J. W. Gasser, assistant to the housing director, said the 6,000 on-campus spaces are full every year. He said the greater number of students living on-campus are freshmen and sophomores and that the University houses approximately one-fourth of the student body.

Although there has been a steady increase in enrollment, there are no plans to build any single undergraduate student housing.

Gasser said that about 350 men and 250 women move from on-campus housing each quarter for personal reasons. However, this is compensated for by the growing number of applications for student housing, he said.

Boydston turns down offers

By Mike Klein
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

Donald Boydston, SIU athletic director, has finally silenced the curious by announcing he will not accept positions at either the University of Buffalo or Oklahoma State University.

Boydston was offered a position at Buffalo early this fall in which he would be an overseer to the health, physical education, recreation, intramural and intercollegiate athletic departments.

Oklahoma State had asked him to consider becoming the school's new athletic director next spring following the retirement of Henry Iba.

On Oct. 31, Boydston made the following statement about the Buffalo position: "The only comment that I have is that they approached me concerning the position and I never applied for the position. I want to emphasize that I did not approach them; they came to me. I didn't even know the job was open."

One week later an Oklahoma paper mentioned him as the probable successor to Iba.

In his statement, Boydston stressed his association with the Department of Health Education and the student body as primary reasons for remaining at SIU.

"With all due respect for academic deans, moving to that level of administration means an additional step away from involvement on the educational and personal level with students—which is why I chose and have continued to work for a number of years in both health education and athletics.

"The Department of Health Education at Southern Illinois University is outstanding with a number of nationally recognized authorities in both health and safety education. The association with such people is both stimulating and personally rewarding."

SIU tankers get in swim with two weekend meets

By Bob Richards
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

SIU's varsity swimmers splash into full competition this weekend as they meet Evansville in a dual meet Friday and defend their title Saturday at the Illinois State Relays in Normal.

Head coach Ray Essick looks forward to the Evansville meet as an excellent opener which will give team members some solid meet experience. There will also be some experimentation with personnel before SIU hosts Indiana, defending National Collegiate Athletic Association champion, Dec. 12. Essick said the Hoosiers are the finest group of college swimmers ever assembled.

The Evansville Purple Aces return most of last year's squad which placed eighth in the NCAA College Division championships. The Aces will be working without the services of graduated Bob Lodato, an NCAA placer in both backstroke events last year.

"We will approach the meet cautiously," said Essick. "They have never beaten us and we usually have stronger personnel but you never know what they will come up with."

Essick plans to do some lineup juggling Friday with junior freestyler Bob Schoons scheduled to compete in the 200-yard individual medley (four strokes 50-yards each). Distance man Bruce Steiner will swim in the 200-yard freestyle and Rob Dickson will be entered in the backstroke. Dickson set two freshman records Nov. 21 in the intrasquad meet in the individual medley and the 200-yard butterfly. Essick said he wants Dickson to improve on his backstroke, the yearling's weakest medley stroke.

Essick is looking forward to the Illinois State Relays. The Saluki coach said, "We're looking for all our boys to swim well Saturday. This meet is great in that it gives us all an opportunity to compete early in the year."

Southern will be tested for depth Saturday as ten schools compete in 11 relay events, each requiring three competitors per school.

Essick said the defending champion Salukis should be the favorite again this year but the University of Illinois and Indiana State will be tough. Other schools entered are Bradley, Central Michigan, Eastern Illinois, Illinois State, Oakland University of Michigan and Western Illinois.

Southern's divers will be competing at both one-meter and three-meter levels Saturday. SIU's home pool does not have the higher three-meter board, which presents adjustment difficulties.

The Saluki tankers are almost finished with their distance training and could be hurt in the sprint events Saturday, according to Essick. The swimmers have begun working on speed in preparation for the bigger meets including the contest with Indiana.

Southern was victorious last year, taking six first places in nine events. The Salukis finished no worse than third in any event. SIU holds five Illinois State Relay records in the invitational, which will become an invitational meet of all conference schools next year. Northern Illinois and Ball State cannot attend the meet this year, as both will be defending titles this weekend at the Augustana Relays and Notre Dame Relays respectively.

Conference heads gather next week

Academic administrators from the five member schools of the new athletic conference, including SIU, Illinois State, Indiana State, Northern Illinois and Ball State will meet Monday and Tuesday at Bloomington.

The meeting will help fulfill agreements to pursue conference oriented academic activities as well as athletic competition. Administrators will set the scholastic framework for the conference.

Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar, chairman of a committee designing the constitution and by-laws, said associate members schools are being considered for the joint programs.

Salukis look good, bracing for Iowa

By Jim Sumner
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

"Impressive" seems to be the consensus of Saluki followers after SIU's 82-73 victory over the University of Texas at Arlington Tuesday.

Perhaps needless to say, Bob Eldridge and John Garrett are dominating much of this conversation.

Eldridge, who got his first exposure to the Saluki style at Robert Morris Junior College from former Saluki star Joe Ramsey, needed only 20 minutes to adapt to the winning style of the Salukis.

Eldridge shot 61 percent from the field in the second half to account for 11 field goals. Texas' zone defense fell apart as Eldridge broke the out-court ice with his 11 field goals, all of which were 15 or more feet away.

Garrett also starting his first varsity game, kept SIU in the contest during the first half. Garrett scored six field goals on 11 attempts the first half and fascinated the fans with his ability as a 5-10 "Mouse."

Looks of disbelief emerged from the estimated 6,400 fans as Garrett drove on the fast break, weaved the ball through three Rebels (6-2, 6-3, and 6-7), and maneuvered the ball through the hoop.

SIU coach Jack Hartman, generally a man of few words and reserved emotion, had good reason to show his enthusiasm following the team's performance. How many coaches complain after the starting five all end up in double scoring figures?

To the astonishment of many fans, letterman Bruce Butchko dressed for the game and showed remarkable agility in pregame warmups. He had been considered a doubtful returner after an October knee operation.

Even though Butchko did not enter the Texas contest, he may accumulate some playing time in Saturday's game against the University of Iowa. This will be the first time a member of the Big 10 has played in the SIU Arena.

Iowa is expected to have a good season and according to the predictions, should finish second in the Big 10 behind Purdue. Iowa has the entire starting lineup returning from last year which include a front line standing 6-7, 6-8, and 6-5.

Iowa also has the No. 1 former junior college player in the nation in Fred Brown. Brown is a 6-3 guard from Milwaukee. The game will be Iowa's season opener.

Warriors win

The Marquette Warriors, a two time opponent of SIU in basketball this year, opened its season with a 98-60 win over Northern Michigan. Marquette returns four starters from last year's brilliant 24-5 team.

And the season began

Art Wisman, visiting professor of journalism at SIU, took the above photograph of pregame action at Tuesday's season opening basketball game with a panoramic camera. The Salukis went on to defeat Texas-Arlington 82-73 in a come-from-behind win.
