Tuition hike proposal meets opposition

By Lenore Sobota
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Strong opposition to tuition hike recommendations is expected next month when public hearings begin on Master Plan-Phase Four (MP4), the Illinois Board of Higher Education's blueprint for the future of postsecondary education in the state.

The Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) gave tentative approval to MP4 at its meeting Tuesday in Chicago, but harsh words were exchanged over governance and tuition issues.

Student President Doug Diggle said Wednesday he was "very disappointed" by the IBHE's vote.

"I am extremely disappointed that the higher board has such short sight. The document is very much private school oriented although the board's only real control is over public schools. I find it hard to reconcile that fact," he said.

Diggle said a number of schools and the Association of Illinois Student Governments are planning to testify at the public hearings in January. Dates and locations for the hearings have not been announced.

The IBHE spent five hours discussing the revised MP4 and voting on the draft section by section. A recommendation to increase undergraduate tuition to one-third of instructional costs passed 9 to 5.

George W. Howard, IBHE member from the University of Illinois Board of Trustees, criticized the proposed increases because they do not take into consideration increases in housing costs and student fees.

IBHE member Merle Yontz said a vote to eliminate the tuition hike recommendations "would be a vote against quality education."

He explained, "We aren't going to have the money to fund at the level we want. We can't get the money we need from the state. We need all the money we can get from every source we've got."

Harris Rowe, SIU representative to IBHE, repeated his earlier position that, "It is wrong for this board (IBHE) to suggest it has the authority to enforce this (tuition increase) by budgetary restraints."

The recommendation to set graduate tuition levels one-third above undergraduate levels passed by the same vote.

Rowe said graduate tuition at SIU could double by 1980 under the IBHE plan. President Warren W. Brandt said graduate tuition at Carbondale could reach $1,000 within four years.

Following the meeting, Rowe said, "I don't envision the SIU board accepting that (tuition recommendation). In my opinion the legislature, for good and valid reasons, left the statutory authority to set tuition to the governing boards because they recognized differences exist in the various institutions in the state. To mandate uniformity is something the IBHE doesn't have the authority to do."

Rowe said he does not expect a head-on confrontation between the IBHE and the governing boards on the tuition issue for a "couple of years."

"Next year is an election year and I couldn't expect very many people to come out in favor of a tuition increase in that kind of year. It's a highly political issue," he said.

Rowe added, "We've done a lot to aid the private sector and I think we should. But we still have to keep wide access to higher education and you do that by keeping tuition as low as possible."

Vice President for Student Affairs Bruce Swinburne said he is opposed to any increase in tuition for undergraduate or graduate students because "it would mean an increased cost to the students which is something I believe is counter-productive to the extension of educational opportunity."

Another recommendation which sparked heated debate was a measure advocating the removal of voting powers from the system representatives. A motion to delete that recommendation was narrowly defeated 8 to 7.

Jeffrey Ladd, Board of Governors representative to IBHE, received applause from systems heads and presidents when he called the vote "a declaration of open warfare."

IBHE member "Joseph Block rigorously supported the removal of voting rights for system representatives—a move that would require legislative action."

"I don't think he (a system representative) can serve two masters—his system and the public interest. He must represent his system and that's not always in the public interest," Block said.

The recommendation was amended 9 to 6 supporting the present composition of the IBHE but leaving the door open to restructuring the board in the future to represent only the public at large.

In private conversations following the meeting, system representatives were bitter about the actions taken Tuesday questioning whether the IBHE and its staff were being responsive to the needs of the public universities. The representatives expressed dismay over the emphasis being given to private schools at the expense of public colleges and universities.

STC construction funds approved

By Lenore Sobota
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Gov. Daniel Walker has released $6.1 million for the construction of a building to house three departments of the SIU School of Technical Careers.

Murice Dallman, associate dean of the School of Technical Careers, said the building will be located on the east side of the Engineering and Technology Building complex and is expected to be completed in 1977. The SIU Board of Trustees authorized the project last March.

Dallman said the Departments of Allied Health and Public Services, Graphic Communications and Applied Technology will move into the new facility after its completion.

Construction cannot begin until bids are let on the project. Dallman said he hopes the bids will be sent out and contracts awarded within a few months. If the total cost of the project is over the $6.1 million appropriated, Dallman said the University would have to "start trimming."

The appropriation does not include the purchase of movable equipment such as chairs, desks and filing cabinets. Dallman said a separate appropriation would have to be made when the building hears completion.

The building is being designed by Perkins and Will, Inc. of Chicago, the same architects who designed the three existing buildings in the complex. The building will have 57,498 square feet of usable space and will be the largest existing buildings in the complex.

Plans for the building began in 1974. It will be the first building constructed specifically for the School of Technical Careers since the school was established in 1950 as the Vocational Technology Institute. The school is presently located near Carverville at a former World War II ordinance depot.

"At one time everything was going to be put on the old STC campus. We had some preliminary construction plans but in October, 1972 the board decided to put it (STC) here on campus," Dallman said.

Civil Service OKs bargaining study

By Ray Urchel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

By a 6-3 vote, the Civil Service Employees Council agreed to form a three member committee to study the feasibility of collective bargaining for Civil Service range scale employees.

Range Scale employees are persons who do not have representation "for either negotiated or prevailing wages," said Lee Hester of the Civil Service Council. He said that about 1,200 employees at SIU are range scale workers.

The three member collective bargaining committee, comprised of David Reed, chairman of the Civil Ser-vise Employees Council, and two other members of the council, John Robinson and Bill Nelson, is expected to report to the employees council at its January meeting.

Richard A. Musgraves, a member of an ad hoc Civil Service Steering Committee, operating separately from the Civil Service Employees Council, criticized the council for its previous failure to find out how many of its range employees want collective bargaining.

"This council does not investigate Civil Service employees views on collective bargaining at this University," Musgraves said. "It is an important issue. You (the employees council) are supposed to be helping the people at SIU," he added.

Reed agreed, "The Board of Trustees endorses collective bargaining," he told the council. "The first question is, do you want a collective bargaining agent," such as the American Federation of Labor or the Illinois Education Association, "or an attorney from downtown to serve as your bargaining agent."

"Do you want a step plan (of salary increases) and have it negotiated?" he asked.

Joseph Dakin

Dakin to seek legislature seat

By Pat Corcoran
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Joseph Dakin, Carbondale City Councilman and SIU instructor, announced Wednesday that he will seek the Republican Party's nomination for state representative from the 58th legislative district.

Dakin, 37, said he is seeking the nomination because he feels he can have a greater impact on programs affecting Southern Illinois' development.

Currently a member of the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission (ILEC), Dakin said his commission service under both former Governor Richard Ogilvie and Governor Daniel Walker has given him an insight into state politics which other candidates do not have.

Dakin, former Carbondale Police

Chief, was elected to the City Council in April. He said the decision to seek state office was "not an easy one."

"I hope to be a representative for the entire district and not just Carbondale and Jackson County," Dakin said.

The 58th district includes Jackson, Perry, Randolph, Washington, Monroe and parts of Williamson and St. Clair Counties.

Dakin has been an instructor in the Law Enforcement and Correctional Services programs at the School of Technical Careers since the summer of 1974. He resigned as police chief May '74 after a dispute with the city manager over police department funding.

Dakin said his main interest is in criminal justice and hopes to use his position in the legislature to upgrade courts, the corrections department and police forces.

Improvements in the area's roads and economic development are issues Dakin said will be important in the coming campaign.

He said possible tax increases are an issue which all candidates must address.

"I will do the best I can to try to find alternate sources in revenue without increasing the burden on the individual taxpayer," Dakin said.

Dakin said he favors a policy of fiscal responsibility in state government. He said he will not increase state aid without considering the final cost to taxpayers.

He said that one of his first tasks will be to increase his recognition in parts of the district outside of Jackson County. The campaign will be an uphill battle, he conceded.

Disabled students' aide sought to ease job woes

By Ray Urchel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU will conduct a local search for a graduate student to work with disabled students to help them find employment, Terence Buck, dean of student services, said Tuesday.

Buck said he hopes the person will be hired before Jan. 1. The student will work with the Specialized Student Services Office and the Career Planning and Placement Center to help place disabled students, he said.

The search for the graduate student is the result of "concerns" raised by the Dean's Action-Advisory Committee, a group of handicapped students who work with Buck to resolve disabled students' problems.

Bruce Swinburne vice president for student affairs, said that Student Affairs is trying "to be responsive and concerned" about the problems that handicapped students have had finding jobs after graduation.

"It's a need that's just and we're trying to respond," Swinburne said.

"Specifically, the students wanted to move immediately to set up an office in the Specialized Student Services area of Woody Hall where it is accessible to them," Buck said.

He met with Swinburne and Harvey Ideus, coordinator of the Career Planning and Placement Center, Tuesday morning.

"Ideus doesn't have enough staff members to staff an office downstairs (in Woody Hall)," Buck said. A graduate student is sought so that the person can begin work immediately, he said.

"A nationwide search, with affirmative action guidelines what they are now, would take us six months," Buck said.

Buck also said he has asked Swinburne to continue two positions in the Office of Specialized Student Services next year. He said he would like a person with a doctorate degree to serve as director of the disabled students office, while retaining Ron Blosser, coordinator of Specialized Student Services.

The director and coordinator positions of the Specialized Student Services Office cannot be continued until "we have assurance for the funding," he said.

The director's position has been vacant since June when Mary Helen Gasser was named SIU Affirmative Action Officer by President Warren Brandt. Swinburne agreed that budget conditions "will have an impact" on whether some positions are continued.

Two months ago, Brandt told SIU vice presidents to reduce their staffs by two per cent over the next two years because of the possibility of reduced funding by the legislature.

"We have plans that we can implement if we have a cutback, including leaving vacant unfilled positions," Swinburne said.

Bargaining study approved by Civil Service employees

Civil Service employees "don't know right now what they want," he said.

Musgraves told the council that the steering committee decided to conduct its own survey when the council failed to act on the collective bargaining issue several months ago.

Surveys were sent out to Civil Service workers but were held up by the SIU Mail Service because the group conducting the survey did not have an "official representative" or fiscal officer.

Several members of the council told Musgraves that some Civil Service workers were misled in believing that the ad hoc committee was sanctioned by the employees council.

Barbara Spears, director of employment services, who serves as an ex-officio member of the council, said, "It was a false assumption on our part that it was sent" with the approval of the employees council.

Musgraves said that the steering committee made some mistakes in conducting the collective bargaining survey, but that it does not "negate" the need for collective bargaining information.

Hester, who also worked on the ad hoc steering committee, said, "I'm going to go to Vice President (George) Mace to see if he will sign an administrative release of the survey. I think he will."

Reed refused to commit himself on the collective bargaining issue. "I endorse nothing right now," he said. "I'll be for what puts the most money in our pockets."

However, a Civil Service range scale employee told the employees council, "I'm not sure collective bargaining is the right thing. I'm not sure a step plan is the right thing," she said. "What we're in now isn't the right thing."

Several employees council members said that salaries paid SIU range scale Civil Service workers are 22 per cent lower than employees at other Illinois universities.

New York loan plan survives first Senate test

WASHINGTON AP—President Ford's $2.3 billion loan bill to prevent a New York City default survived its first Senate test Wednesday, indicating backers may have enough votes to quash a filibuster.

The 57 to 23 vote tabled a move by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., that would have sent the House-approved measure to the Senate Banking Committee, delaying final congressional action on it.

The Senate opened its debate on the loan bill, narrowly approved by the House 213 to 203 Tuesday night, with an immediate filing of a cloture petition to block a threatened filibuster by Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala.

The Senate must now wait for two days to vote on blocking the filibuster, which would require 60 votes. That vote will come Friday and backers say it is possible a final passage vote could be taken then.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, said the Ford substitute for loan guarantee bills pending in both the House and Senate is the minimum amount of assistance needed to prevent New York from defaulting. Ford had said he would veto the House and Senate versions.

Gunman killed after taking hostages in Paris

PARIS (AP)—Police shot down two gunmen in a street battle early Thursday after the men had held more than 20 hostages for 14 hours in a Paris bank, demanding $2 million in ransom.

Authorities said one gunman was killed and the other seriously wounded, but two hostages in the car survived the shootout unscathed. They said both gunmen were Algerians.

The gunmen had left the bank with hostages in a getaway car provided by police, and with sacks apparently containing money.

A few hundred yards away, just off the Champs Elysees, their car collided with a taxi. They opened fire on police piling out of pursuing cars and one gunman was killed in an exchange of more than 30 shots.

Marathon talks try to avert railroad strike

WASHINGTON (AP)—Federal mediators trying to avert a nationwide rail strike kept negotiators for four shopcraft unions and the industry at a marathon bargaining session Wednesday amid signs of progress toward a settlement.

Officials involved in the talks indicated the parties had narrowed their differences as the 6 a.m. Thursday strike deadline approached.

"There's been some movement," said an official of the International Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers. "But whether it's enough to avert a strike, I don't know."

W.J. Usery Jr., the chief federal mediator, kept the talks in almost continuous session since Tuesday in hopes of reaching a settlement and avoiding the possibility of congressional intervention.

The main issue in the dispute has been the outside contracting of maintenance and repair work on railroad equipment. The unions want stiffer restrictions on subcontracting, while the railroads contend that such demands encroach on management's rights.

State food stamp program may lose federal funds

CHICAGO (AP)—The federal government may withhold funds from the Illinois food stamp program to recover money lost when the state issued stamps to ineligible persons, a U.S. Department of Agriculture official said Wednesday.

"There is no real workable club to hold over the states to make them want to do a good job," Richard L. Feltner, assistant secretary for marketing and consumer services, said at a news conference.

Although the federal government is responsible for monitoring the program, Feltner said he believes that the state and local agencies have filed to ensure that recipients are eligible. Federal officials have estimated that 51 per cent of Illinois food stamp recipients aren't eligible because they failed to meet requirements or completed forms incorrectly.

Harassed minister seeks talk with FBI director

CAIRO (AP)—A civil rights minister subjected to FBI harassment wants to meet with FBI Director Clarence Kelly to find out "whether this is going on now and whether it will be going on in the future."

A Senate committee disclosed Tuesday that from 1968 to 1971, under the personal supervision of the late J. Edgar Hoover, the FBI drafted anonymous phony letters impugning the character of the Rev. Charles Koen, director of the United Front in Cairo and a Baptist preacher.

One letter, supposedly written from a movement member, said Koen was an adulterer. Both the Rev. Mr. Koen and his wife received copies. During the period the letters were written, the United Front was conducting a violence-plagued boycott of white stores in Cairo, a small, economically depressed community at the confluence of the Mississippi and Ohio rivers.

The Rev. Mr. Koen, who had learned the FBI was the source of the letters last month from a Senate aide, said Wednesday that he and a group of fellow clergymen had requested a meeting with Kelly. An FBI spokesman told him Kelly will reply this week, he added.

Homosexual pushes for legal gay strength

By Ken Temkin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Ex-Air Force T. Sgt. and admitted homosexual Leonard Matlovich announced the formation of The Matlovich Foundation for Civil Liberties Tuesday night at Shryock Auditorium.

Matlovich, who received an honorable discharge from the Air Force in October after revealing his homosexuality, drew a crowd which half filled the auditorium.

The former Air Force sergeant said he and his staff have been working in association with attorneys in Cleveland for the past week to develop the legal base for the foundation.

Matlovich said the principle goal of the foundation will be to help Americans defend their civil liberties in court.

The first official function of the foundation will be to stop discrimination against gay personnel in the armed forces, he said.

Matlovich said that if he can get a favorable ruling in the Supreme Court of the United States, then restrictions against gays across the country in all walks of life will have to come down.

Matlovich was thrust into the public eye in March, 1975 after he informed his superior officer of his sexual preference.

According to Air Force regulations, a gay lifestyle is detrimental to a serviceman's occupation and is subject to the punishment of less than honorable discharge.

Matlovich claims his gay lifestyle does not interfere with his military service and he plans to take the issue to the Supreme Court of the United States in an attempt to be reinstated in the Air Force.

The case is currently in the federal district court of Judge Gerhardt Gisell waiting for a response to an injunction filed by Matlovich.

The 12-year veteran of the Air Force was given an honorable discharge on Oct. 22 by a five-man Air Force review board.

Matlovich had an impeccable record in the armed services—he was awarded a Bronze Star and a Purple Heart in Viet Nam.

Matlovich spoke to the Shryock crowd in a free-wheeling style. Carrying a portable microphone, he walked around the auditorium soliciting comments as he spoke.

Matlovich tried to illustrate the folly of "straights" attitudes towards gays by announcing that he would walk around the room and pick out gay people in the crowd under the assumption that "it takes a faggot to know a faggot."

After a few minutes of walking around the auditorium Matlovich had not chosen anyone and announced that the straights in the crowd could calm down and not fear being represented as a gay person.

The fear of being publicly accused of being gay was the major topic of the rest of Matlovich's speech.

"I will never be satisfied until hearts never beat fast anymore at the fear of being called gay," Matlovich said.

He told the gay persons in the audience, "Never let anyone put you down. Walk tall. Walk very very proud of what you are."

"We say we are proud to be gay so that when we leave this earth we will know we have made future generations better for all of us."

Matlovich criticized the armed forces. "They punish me for loving and reward me for hating."

Although he wishes to pursue his military career, he said Tuesday he will never fight in another war.

"I am a pacifist now," the veteran of three Viet Nam tours said. "And we need more of us," he continued, "because if there were none of us in the armed forces, do you realize what it would be like?"

Matlovich mentioned in a news conference following the speech that he has received many threatening phone calls.

"Yes I do fear for my life," he said. "About one out of every hundred phone calls I get is threatening."

Matlovich said he was very pleased with the audience in Shryock and "would love to come back to Carbondale" for another speaking engagement.

Matlovich expects magazine honor

By Scott Burnside
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Leonard Matlovich, recently discharged from the Air Force for being homosexual, has been told he will be named one of the 25 most influential persons in the country by a national magazine in January.

Matlovich, who was at SIU Tuesday, said he does not agree with the description. The former technical sergeant appeared on the cover of another magazine, Time, in September and has said he will go to the Supreme Court if necessary to allow homosexuals in the armed forces.

The 12-year veteran wants back in the service, but on his terms. For years Matlovich maintained a "straight" image, but now he openly admits his homosexuality.

Matlovich says there are thousands of gays in the armed forces including a one-star general. He likens the homosexual's predicament to what the black serviceman faced in the late 1940's.

Near the end of his shortened career,

Matlovich served in the social actions-race relations program of the Air Force. "In race relations I was preaching equality, and I got to believe it," Matlovich said.

Matlovich finally decided to make his homosexuality public, so one day he tossed a letter on his surprised supervisor's desk. "I just stated the facts and requested the regulations against homosexuals be changed."

"After 30 years of never kissing anyone and always being afraid of what my parents and neighbors would say, I got tired of the whole business," Matlovich says.

Today his parents, who are in their 60s, support his actions, although they never knew their son was gay before. As for his parents' neighbors, Matlovich says, "I don't know what they think, and I don't care."

He did say his parents had to take some time to adjust to the situation. "It's one thing having a child that's gay, and it's another thing to have one on the front pages."

It wasn't until the last two years of his

Air Force career, that Matlovich faced up to his homosexuality. "The first time I went into a gay bar, I thought I should get out of the Air Force. But I met this bank president later who was gay. He stayed with his job, because he liked it. So I thought why should I get out when I like the Air Force."

After Matlovich made his background public, he was surprised at the response.

"The straights came to my aid, it was the gays that stayed away. I just had a call recently from one of my supervisors when I first got in the service, congratulating me on what I did."

In fact Matlovich said the overall reaction from the Air Force ranks was mild. He said the younger airmen were extremely sympathetic and a few of the legal officers refused to prosecute his case.

"Everyone was supportive with the exception of the chain of command," Matlovich said.

Matlovich said he feels that if they change the regulations in the Air Force, the people will make the necessary changes.

Would-be interviewers loath Thompson secrecy

By Mike DuPre
Daily Egyptian News Editor

It was the one assignment that every reporter on the staff wanted to cover. Staffers whose names were only memories in the newsroom wanted to know if they could get "The Interview."

The man who had been dubbed the "Quintessential Outlaw Journalist"—none other than Hunter S. Thompson—was coming Wednesday to SIU-C to lecture in the Student Center Ballrooms.

Perhaps the only man alive who has ridden with both the Hell's Angels and Richard Milhous Nixon was coming to Carbondale and, Southern Illinois' budding journalists wanted a crack at the writer who had been influencing them.

But Dave Parks, chairman of the SGAC lecture committee and arranger of the speech, said no interviews were to be granted.

In fact Parks and Ray Hobbs, graduate assistant in journalism, had appointed themselves as the two "bodyguards" that Thompson requested to insure that his privacy would not be violated.

"Hunter is really a private kind of guy," Parks said. "He enjoys writing about the news, but he doesn't like to make the news." "Incredible! Did Parks, whoever the hell he is, mean that the man who drank with, smoked dope with and was finally beaten up by the Hell's Angels in order to write 'The Hell's Angels—A Strange and Terrible Saga' wasn't going to grant any interviews?"

Hobbs claimed the term "bodyguards" was a misnomer. What the hell kind of ball game was this anyhow? Thompson was in fact being guarded—from the generation of writers that his insane, outlaw style of writing spawned.

It was obvious that the king bear anti-establishment journalist was trapped in the clutches of the Establishment.

What could be done? There was only one way to get the interview and Free Thompson.

The Gonzo journalist had to be out-Gonzoed. Plans were hatched but discarded. Kidnapping seemed reasonable, all things considered, but no one wanted to face up to a possible 20 years in the slammer.

One faction seriously pushed for a roadblock as Thompson's route from Lambert Field in St. Louis could be ascertained. Another faction opted for rolling surveillance—three cars and walkie-talkies—to follow Thompson back to his motel room and help him destroy it a la "Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas."

After three or four pitchers of beer and serious conspiring, the rolling surveillance faction won out. It had to be done. A motorcycle escort had been arranged, and wild Turkey bourbon was being bought.

Quieter heads kept trying normal channels—a call to the Rolling Stone to see if Thompson was being hoarded and would in fact grant an interview if he knew one was wanted.

All to no avail. Rolling Stone was an answering service with no call back.

Well, the stage was set. It was time for "Fear and Loathing in Carbondale." The hell with jobs, graduation and good recommendations.

SGAC blunders

By Jim Wisuri
Student Writer

The Cultural Affairs Committee of Student Government Activities Council (SGAC) is not the most popular group on campus. Since the cancellation of the Jerry Garcia Band's concert, Cultural Affairs has come under fire from the managers of both Shryock Auditorium and the SIU Arena.

Jo Mack and Dean Justice, managers respectively for Shryock and the Arena, both agreed that Cultural Affairs mishandled the plans for the Garcia Band concert.

"It's all right, it seems, for Cultural Affairs to announce that they're going to have Jerry Garcia without having any contracts signed, but if Dean Justice would try that, he'd get shot," said Justice in reference to concert publicity.

Lee Tews, chairman of Cultural Affairs, has criticized Shryock management for not providing enough dates for Cultural Affairs shows charging that the Auditorium is sometimes booked for a week at a time for rehearsals.

Mack rebutted Tews by saying, "We allow one rehearsal per show. That's all." She went on to point out the flexibility Shryock has shown Cultural Affairs by rescheduling graduate student piano recitals to make way for Cultural Affairs shows like Garcia. Shryock has the only Steinway piano on campus, which is subsequently used for the recitals.

Tews also has complained about the auditorium management requiring the committee to pay for ushers for Cultural Affairs events.

"We have to pay $81 per show for ushers who had two hours of training. We have almost 50 members on Cultural Affairs, most of whom agree that the committee itself could do the ushering, Tews said. If we do 10 shows at Shryock, we'll have spent $810, or almost 10 percent of our budget."

However, Paul Lundrigan, assistant to the manager of Shryock, looks at the situation quite differently. He said, "The ushers' training does not come in the two-hour indoctrination to the auditorium, but rather it comes on-the-job. The ushers are exposed to every kind of situation—real and hypothetical—whenever there is a show at the auditorium."

"Whenever someone is drinking, or smoking, no matter what, the ushers are trained to handle the situation. And if the concert isn't going well, or someone has bad seats where they can't see or they're right in front of the loudspeakers, it's the ushers who are abused. It takes a special kind of person."

Cultural Affairs is more concerned with promotion and production and are consequently involved with the show from a different angle, Lundrigan said.

"We (Shryock) would have no control over a Cultural Affairs member who let a friend sneak into a show. But we do have control over one of our ushers in that situation...that's all for him."

The technical director for Shryock and the Arena, John Carver, also has his gripes with the committee.

"The lighting crew for the George Benson concert was criticized in the paper for misplaced spotlights. We didn't know until 15 minutes before the concert who the hell George Benson was."

Carver also pointed out instances when Tews would attempt to bring committee members backstage. "He doesn't know the potential dangers of having four to twelve people back there who have no business there. With all the electrical wires and cables that you have for rock groups, one false step by someone who doesn't watch what they're doing could short out all the sound and lights for the whole auditorium."

To sum up his feelings about Tews and the committee Carver said, "They just don't know the professional standards or the potential dangers involved in the situation. There are requirements for technical production in theaters and these things they just don't want to live with."

Tews has also been at odds with Arena manager Justice. Tews would like to see Cultural Affairs book shows at the Arena when groups "too big" for Shryock are available. Justice has refused, since the Student Senate recommended in October, 1968, that student groups not be allowed to handle major stage and musical shows in the Arena because of their inability to succeed financially at producing such events.

Justice sees the philosophy of Cultural Affairs and that of the Arena as opposites. Whereas, Cultural Affairs is student-funded and designed to lose money or break even on show, Justice says, "I'm in this to make money. We have a staff to pay which costs $35,000 to $40,000 a year. If Cultural Affairs is going to do the programming (for the Arena,) let them do it. But who's going to pick up the tab?"

Which brings Cultural Affairs back to Shryock. Excepting Tews, committee members receive no money for their work. Rather, they are reimbursed in tickets. Therefore, tickets given out to Cultural Affairs members mean less revenue generated per show.

Free tickets are also given to SGAC chairpersons, an idea which according to Tews the committee doesn't return too much, since the chairpersons get paid for the work they do. All in all, the committee loses a couple hundred dollars per show at Shryock from free tickets.

Internal tranquility in China at the price of freedom

By Joanne Hollister

Of all the communist countries in the world, China is one that has been the most successful with the system of communism.

Unlike the Soviet Union, there appears to be an inner tranquility about life in China. The news reports, the pictures we see, all depict the Chinese to be a settled, contented people. In contrast, we've heard stories about rebellious Soviet citizens being sent off to the vast wastelands of Siberia.

How much more human Chinese Communism has always seemed, the way the media portrays it. In actuality, it is the subtlety of the Chinese persuasion and not its humaneness that makes communism in China work.

Chiou Chuan-chuan is a 33-year-old English language specialist in China's Ministry of Foreign Trade. Ms. Chiou was on a government tour bus, with a group of American reporters covering President Ford's trip to Peking. She was present to answer any questions the reporters might have, ranging from Chinese clothing to relations between China and the Soviet Union.

She even talked about herself. She feels her life is incomparably better than it would have been if there had not been a communist revolution in 1949.

"My family in Szechwan was poor, very poor. We did not have enough to eat. We did not have enough clothing or shoes," she recalled. "Sometimes I did not go to school."

She was able to go to college and get her present job as a result of the revolution, she says. "Now, everyone has a radio, a bicycle and a watch. We think Chairman Mao has made our lives much better," she said.

How lucky the Chinese are. Radio is completely government controlled. They own bikes instead of cars, so traveling anywhere independently of public transportation is out. The watches probably have Chairman Mao's face adorning them. Very Mickey Mouse.

From the reported street scenes in Peking, it would appear that Chiou is correct. Communism in China has eliminated famine, the people are well-clothed (though drably, in their blue, gray or black outfits) and new worker's housing is under construction. Communism would appear to be a peachy way of life.

Everyone may look the same, work the same, live the same, but no one is hungry, no one is cold, everyone has a dry place to live.

Neither does anyone have a mind of their own. Chiou does not agree.

"We are free to speak and write," she said. "Most of the people love the system we have. There are only a few who resist. We do not shut them up. We talk to them and work with them."

Chiou was asked about the "misfits" that continue to resist, those who cannot accept the system and insist on rebellion.

"Do you mean, the nuts? Well, there are very few. They are sent for re-education and they come back better."

"Re-education" takes place at what is known as a May 7 camp. "Mental workers" as Chiou referred to them, go there, sometimes for a year or more, to do hard manual labor in the countryside and undergo political education. Shades of 1964.

Chiou herself once attended a May 7 camp. "It made me healthy. I used to have a bad stomach. I used to be weak. It helped me to sleep better," she said. Mindless beings shouldn't have a hard time falling asleep without thoughts to keep them awake.

Cadres (government workers) such as Chiou often go to May 7 camp. It helps them better understand the workers, Chiou claimed.

Everyone's purpose, she continued, is to serve the masses. Socialism is the only system, she said, that could save China.

What about people that continue to resist? Those that just cannot accept Communism?

"There are some bad elements, some reactionaries, some who work against the good of the people...if they do not respond to education, they are sent away to places for further study," she said.

Where?

"Well, I don't know," she said.

Nothing like higher education to expand the mind. Or in the case of the Chinese, to contract it to fit into the tiny little slot they allow each worker for think space. The power of the mind is a dangerous tool, especially in the hands of human beings. Too bad the humans in China can't get a little mind of their own to work with.

Gun nuts bring a new meaning to politics

By Arthur Hoppe

The election of 1984 was scarcely a battle at all. From the onset, the Democrats clearly had the Republicans outnumbered, outmaneuvered and outgunned.

When the bodies were counted on election night, it was obvious that, except for a few guerrilla bands hiding in the hills, The Grand Old Party was over.

While violence had always marked American politics, it was not until recent years that activists had effectively demonstrated its efficiency. By rubbing out nine Presidents alone in the past 16 months, they certainly proved their point.

What turned the tide, however, was the realization by the gun manufacturers of the potentialities of this new market. Hitherto, they had based their advertising campaigns on an appeal to the male sexual drive. But they were selling only three million or so handguns a year for a paltry gross of $100 million.

The first breakthrough came in a subtle ad for the ultra-cheap ($6.98) Friday Night Special. It carried only a photograph of the single-shot pistol and the simple caption: "One Bullet Is Worth Fifty Million Ballots!"

Sales soared. Surefire Firearms Corp., Inc., took a full-page ad in Parents Magazine depicting a beaming father watching his little daughter load a revolver. "I'm glad she's taking an interest," he is saying proudly, "in politics."

"To the polls, ye sons of freedom!" proclaimed a public service message prepared by the gun lobby. "Shoot early and often!" And the Boy Scouts cooperated with a nationwide Get-Out-the-Sniper Drive.

The few voices raised in opposition to the trend were quickly silenced by The National Gun Nut Association.

("When guns are the nuts," was their slogan, "only nuts won't have guns.")

They pointed out that, thanks to guns, no public figure had been done in for years by a silk-stocking or even panty-hose strangler. Bank robberies committed by archers were minimal and rocks were seldom used as weapons, particularly in urban areas where they were scarcer than handguns.

The trend was even more invigorating at the local level. Who will ever forget Mrs. Hermione Billings, president of the Pleasantville P.T.A., who scragged the mayor with a .38 to protest the lack of traffic signal at her son's school crossing?

So at last, every American came to enjoy true equality in our democracy—all equally able, depending on marksmanship, to exercise their inalienable right to eliminate the candidate of their choice.

The Democrats' victory in the 1984 election proved, however, somewhat pyrrhic. Unfortunately, they hadn't been able to find anyone willing to run for office.

Women's athletics

To the Daily Egyptian:

I regard the flood of recent statements by supporters of women's athletics to gain greater use of sports facilities at SIU as unfounded. Also, the demands for more funds at the expense of men's intercollegiate athletics is absurd. I'm sure most people agree with me. Yet, I have failed to see this point of view printed in the Daily Egyptian. What are you afraid of?

Without proper inflow of funds resulting from men's competition, a decent overall sports program cannot be maintained. The vast majority of students have no desire to view dull women's sports, as exhibited by low turnouts to "free" events. Such illogical propositions involving women's use of McAndrew Stadium and the Arena could only signal bankruptcy and eventual dissolution of all sports at SIU.

Judging from appearances, most of the women "athletes" probably compete only for lack of other things to do. Let's wake up and forget silly notions. The women can do just fine playing in the women's gym (without expensive, unnecessary remodeling) and on the field behind Wham. They should also compete only against those schools of close proximity.

Let's concentrate on improving men's athletics. That's where the money and the action is!

SGAC snow job

To the Daily Egyptian:

Several weeks ago, the Daily Egyptian reported that the Jerry Garcia-Nicky Hopkins concert (originally scheduled for November 19 in Shryock Auditorium) had been cancelled due to a personality conflict within the band. It was also reported that because of the conflict, the entire tour had been cancelled and that SIU's was not the only show being cancelled.

However, it now appears that this story is, in fact, false. The Jerry Garcia-Nicky Hopkins show went on as scheduled in the Chicago Auditorium Theatre on November 21, just two days after it was scheduled to appear in the SIU Shryock Auditorium. When I heard the news, I called the Auditorium Theatre to make sure. I don't know who is at fault, but in any event, the SIU students have been "snow jobbed" out of the two scheduled appearances. I believe an investigation and/or an explanation is in order with regard to what really happened.

Consumer agency editorial false

To the Daily Egyptian:

My first reaction to the editorial by Chris Courtneage in the Nov. 20 issue of the Daily Egyptian, concerning the bill to create an Agency for Consumer Protection, was simply confusion. Was there another bill before Congress that I wasn't aware of? A quick check revealed that no other such legislation was pending. I returned to the article still confused as to how such garbage could be passed off in a Daily Egyptian editorial as fact. As I came to the last paragraph, I caught sight of some familiar words: "U.S. Chamber of Commerce." The Chamber had been accused of spreading misinformation about the agency, but this was incredible! Ms. Courtneage makes several allegations that cannot go unanswered, such as:

"...government agencies will be reduced to mere investigative agencies."

"It (the ACP presumably) will allow either house of Congress to veto the actions of government agencies by simple majority vote."

"All semblance of product safety legislation will go down the drain..."

The only response to this is that it is pure crap, and the only evidence necessary is to explain the nature of the agency as it really is.

The ACP was approved by the Senate in May, and the House passed it on Nov. 6. It now is before a conference committee to iron out the differences between the House and Senate versions. The ACP, as set up in both bills, would be an independent agency operating in the general public interest. Its function would be to present the information and argument before regulatory agencies during proceedings already underway at that agency. It would not possess any power to initiate hearings, veto regulations, or otherwise unduly hamper the regulatory process. The agency, under certain circumstances, would be able to file suit in a court to review actions of a federal agency, or file briefs in cases before courts involving such agencies. The Agency will handle consumer complaints by channeling them to the proper agencies. The Agency will engage in public information activities as budget permits.

The Agency does not allow the Congress to veto Federal agency regulations by a single house vote. It does not endanger product safety legislation. It does not shift regulatory power to the political arena. What it will do is give the consumer a voice in the halls of government such as it has never had before. It will restore some kind of balance in lobbying before regulatory agencies. And it will have the kind of access and budget (though the budget is small in Federal government terms... 15 million for the first year) that private consumer groups always have wished they had.

Consumer groups all over the country have worked hard for the passage of this bill and will continue to work for it after President Ford vetoes it. It is something that the consumers of this country need and should have working for them, and they should be writing their representatives to let them know about their concern, so that when the bill is bounced back by Ford, the Congress shows that it has the will of the people in mind and overrides the veto.

Finally, if Ms. Courtneage would like to see the real thing, instead of propaganda by the Chamber of Commerce, she can stop by the IPIRG office. Copies of both the house and senate bills and their amendments are available.

Auxiliary adds to cardiac unit fund

By Mary L. Heeren
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Doctors Memorial Hospital Auxiliary has gathered about $2,000 from its dance and holiday homes tour to be added to the fund for the cardiac stress unit the auxiliary is buying for the hospital.

Sally Cameron, auxiliary fund-raising chairman, said the Holiday Homes tour ticket sales and cookie sale at the Pink Geranium gift shop has "totaled between $1,000 and $1,100, although not all the money and bills have come in yet."

Assistants hired for city attorney

Attorney J. Phil Gilbert and engineer J.L. Burnett have been hired to assist City Attorney John Womick.

Serving on a 30-hour per week basis, Gilbert will aid in various legal services, said Womick. Gilbert is an associate of the Gilbert and Gilbert law firm.

Burnett will work on a part-time basis as a right-of-way agent. Main duties include acquiring easements and necessary land acquisitions inherent in the Carbondale Capital Improvements Program.

Funds for the employment venture were secured from a city budget adjustment initiated by City Manager Carroll J. Fry. The action was approved by the Carbondale City Council in a formal meeting Nov. 17.

Trish Medlin, auxiliary president, said the benefit dance and buffet for the organization's tenth anniversary gathered approximately $1,000.

About 100 people attended the dance and buffet Nov. 1 and about 500 tickets were sold for the homes tour Nov. 16.

That money will be added to the already existing fund of $4,000 to pay for the stress unit which costs approximately $14,000, Cameron said.

The cardiac stress unit is a computerized treadmill and exercise machine used to test cardiac stress, Dr. John Taylor, director of professional services at Doctors Hospital, said. The unit has been operating about two months.

He said the unit is "probably used by two or three patients a day." The machine is operated by full-time staff and the test takes about one hour per patient.

Doctors Hospital and Pinckneyville Community Hospital are the only two area hospitals to have three practicing cardiologists, Taylor said.

For its next fund raising project the auxiliary is planning to publish a cookbook with recipes from members of the auxiliary. Cameron said the book "will be a general cookbook with old family recipes." It will be available sometime after Christmas at the Pink Geranium, the hospital gift shop. No price has been set for the book, she said.

SUNDAY NIGHT SERIES

HIROSHIMA MON AMOUR (1959)

Directed by Alain Resnais. Produced by Samy Halton. Written by Marguerite Duras. Photographed by Sacha Vireux, Michio Takahashi. Music by Giovanni Fusco, Georges Delerue. With Emmanuelle Riva, Eiji Okada, Bernard Fresson, Stella Ducas, Pierre Barnaud. French with English subtitles.

An actress (Emmanuelle Riva) is in Tokyo to make an anti-war movie. She meets and falls in love with a Japanese architect (Eiji Okada). Immediately, Resnais introduces us to things within things—the filming of a film within a film, an actress playing an actress who is then in the midst of a part, an anti-war film within an anti-war film, all taking place in a Japan at peace, with flashbacks to Japan and France at war. Resnais subtly mirrors the many layered levels of our lives—the complications, the meanings.

The actress loves for the architect triggers in her a memory of her love for a German soldier during World War II. That love cost her her home, her sanity, and a large part of her very existence. So there is love within love, compounded by the fact that both are presently married, and if she stays with her Japanese lover it may cost her the same thing again. And if she leaves him she will lose her love. Resnais has carefully and skillfully placed his boxes within boxes, his meaning within layers of meaning, to bring us a vivid insight into the reality of our world. Resnais plays with time and sequence in ways that few directors would dare, and even fewer could do so successfully. He weaves us from present to past and back to present, assaulting us with images of war and peace, with madness and sanity, with love and death.

HIROSHIMA MON AMOUR started the stampede of modern French movies into the cinema, with Marguerite Duras' beautiful screenplay. If that Resnais' himself, a highly respected director of short films, into the forefront of the nouvelle vague and French cinema.

At once, we have one of the frankest yet most beautifully presented series of sexual love ever shown in a serious film; the woman is French, the man Japanese; she accompanies their love-making with a strange monologue.

—Parker Tyler, CLASSICS OF THE FOREIGN FILM

Undoubtedly a masterpiece. It is, of course, a work of enormous dignity, a landmark in motion pictures. —SATURDAY REVIEW

As a director that sets himself an extremely difficult task, Mr. Resnais expertly sustains the fragile moods of his theme most of the way. He also illustrates a rare expertise in his ability to use flashbacks, to intercut scenes of France and Hiroshima of today, and yesterday, and to draw the most from his pitiful and the factual footage he uses. —Bosley Crowther, NEW YORK TIMES

Alain Resnais' film is quite possibly the most controversial first feature since CITIZEN KANE. It has aroused the same sort of excitement and partisanship, its place in film history seems no less firmly assured. Its innovation is only partly in its method, in the way in which flashbacks are used not for reminiscence but to bring the past forward into the present, in order to interlock the chaos of Hiroshima and Nuremberg. Equally remarkable is the film's total style, which derives from the very balancing of text and image.

—THE BRITISH MONTHLY FILM BULLETIN

It is the most original, moving, exciting and important movie I've seen in years, somehow managing to combine a love story with propaganda against war and the atomic bomb without either losing its full force. —Dwight MacDonald, ESQUIRE

HIROSHIMA MON AMOUR is a remarkably ambitious film. It comprises a documentary of Hiroshima past and present, and an indictment of our forgetfulness and atomic madness. It deals with human statistics of a complex rarely handled in the cinema and in treating these things it discards the conventional notions of plot and story, development, inventing instead a new narrative technique of balancing image and text, uniting the "casual" disparate elements by its highly original handling of a sound-track fusing music and narrative. —Roy Armes, FRENCH CINEMA SINCE 1946

'River Journal' relates story of woman's effort to free self

By Judy Vandewater
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The masks are comforting. They hide the paranoid inner self.

A woman can be a seductress, a mother, a whore or a friend. She can be all those things and be nothing because she has not found her real self. When she begins to look for meaning, to wonder about the person hiding beneath the masks, the painful struggle begins.

"River Journal," a Southern Players production, is the story of one woman's desperate attempt to free the inner self. The play opened Wednesday night and will run through Sunday at the Laboratory Theater, Communications Building. Each character in the play represents a societal role. Carla finds fulfillment if the house is clean and dinner is ready on time. Vera believes her greatest asset lies between her legs. Ann represents every woman who is smothered by a society that forces her to play the game.

The play begins with a marriage ritual. Snake, a character who represents cynicism and anger, joins Myles and Ann in "body" union. The cast chants a warning of the events to come, "Marriage is a most disastrous journey for any who wish to avoid being misunderstood."

The music, composed by Tim Bell, graduate music student, set the tone throughout the play. An eerie but urgent atmosphere is created by the modal music. Playwright Martha Boesing, an artist of the avant-garde style, makes heavy use of symbolism throughout the play. Dolls are suspended from the ceiling. Behind a fishnet curtain four masks, representing the many faces of women, are visible.

Ann's journal contains songs about women, their dreams and their pain. Her fantasies explode from the journal and she begins a lonely descent into madness.

In an intense scene, Ann relives a recurring nightmare. She lies on a kitchen table covered by a yellowing satin sheet. Myles, wearing a nylon stocking mask and pink playtex gloves and becomes a surgeon. Myles and Snake wrap Ann's pelvis in a bright red satin ribbon.

Mary Ann Schell, a Carbondale resident, portrays Ann. Schell's effective portrayal allows the audience to understand a woman who is going through a change in consciousness.

Christine Heins, senior in theater, is dynamic as Snake. Lean and leggy, Heins talks with her entire body. She is the high priestess of malevolence and vice.

Myles, played by David McCracken, sophomore in theater, goes through his own madness. The character is ambiguous and perhaps an unfair representation of males in general. Myles loves Ann, yet he is easily seduced by her sister. He is presented as a patient, understanding man and then he flies into a fit of childish rage when he cannot find a set of keys. The significance of the keys is never clear.

A Review

The other male influence in Ann's life is Dad, played by Bruce Pilkington, sophomore in speech. He is a man who married because he believed he could save his wife "from the trials of her unintelligent existence." Dad's major problem is that he is overly wordy and spouts out five minute philosophical orations at the slightest inducement.

The play has been described as dealing with feminist morality. But Boesing goes beyond that and details a struggle for human liberation.

Boesing has uncanny insight into the female mind. The characters of the women in the play are developed to their fullest potential.

The play is directed by Phyllis Jane Wagner, whose productions at SIU include the award-winning "Lying in State." "River Journal" is Wagner's last production at SIU before she leaves for Minneapolis where she will form an experimental theater company with playwright Boesing.

Although liberated women will enjoy "River Journal," everyone has something to gain by seeing it. It offers a fuller understanding of a major societal problem.

Women will be admitted for 50 cents at Thursday's performance. General admission is $1.50. Curtain time is 8 p.m. Tickets are available at the University Theater Box Office, Communications Building.

Retired SIU staff initiate plan for discounts to senior citizens

By Tom Chesser
Student Writer

A plan to allow senior citizens discounts on goods and services is being initiated by a group of retired SIU faculty and staff members.

Their plan calls for area merchants to give voluntary discounts to senior citizens with the merchants setting the eligibility requirements. If successful the plan will make Carbondale the first city in Illinois to promote and honor such a deal.

Murray Lee, representative of Southern Illinois University's Annuitants Chapter, this week asked the city council for its support of the plan. The Council agreed to put it on next week's formal agenda if the plan could be put into a draft resolution and okayed by the city attorney.

Lee said the plan already had gained the support of the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce.

"A number of Carbondale business firms already offer some discounts to the area's retired citizens," Lee said. "Mohr Value, Kroger, Sav-Mart, the Golden Bear Restaurant, Ramada Inn and Holiday Inn allow senior citizen discounts on room rates, and Wallace Motor Company on auto repairs."

The proposed plan of the SIU Annuitants Chapter is very flexible, Jerald C. Clayton, another representative of the SIU Annuitants Chapter said. "It allows individual firms to make decisions as to discounts and eligibility. There will not be any pressure placed on the firm to participate, and a Senior Citizens Committee will accept the job of getting the complete list of discounts and benefits out to all senior citizens in the area.

Businesses that participated would be given a decal to display in their window informing customers of their participation, Lee added.

Lee said a Senior Citizens Committee will be set up to oversee the plan and act as a clearing agency for information on discounts. The committee will consist of representatives from the SIU Annuitants Chapter, the Senior Citizens Council, the American Association of Retired Persons, the Illinois Teachers Annuitants and railroad pension groups.

Clayton speculated that the discount plan may expand the trade area of Carbondale. "Carbondale attracts customers from an area of 50 miles or more in every direction. By offering special discounts to senior citizens, Carbondale would get customers who do not ordinarily shop in the city."

A memo submitted to the council lists an estimate of how many senior citizens may be involved. It notes that the Social Security Office reported about 5,000 people in Jackson County receive Social Security checks each month.

Police report burglary, fight

The management of Lum's restaurant, 921 E. Main St., reported Wednesday that the building was burglarized, said Carbondale police.

The manager of the store said that he found the doors on the side of the building unlocked. An inspection revealed that $200 was taken from the cash register and a cigarette machine. Police said there are no suspects at this time.

Ronald R. Smith, 404 N. Washington St., was arrested

Tuesday after he allegedly fought with some people at 307 W. College St. Police said Smith started to fight with them while he was being booked at the police station and broke a window, hurting a policeman.

The police officer was taken to Doctors Memorial Hospital for a cut chin. Smith was taken to Jackson County Jail and charged with assault and battery, obstructing and resisting a police officer, and damage to property.

Little Feat to perform at SIU

Boogie band extraordinary Little Feat will perform at 8 p.m. Friday, Dec. 12, in Shryock Auditorium.

The band has been together five years, surviving numerous personal and business pitfalls along the way. It has a distinctive sound that is a mixture of rock and straight boogie music. Five albums on Warner Bros. records, the latest being "The Last Record Album," is to the group's credit. (See review of record on page 9).

Little Feat consists of Lowell George and Paul Barrere, guitars and vocals; Bill Payne, keyboards and vocals; Richard Hayward, drums and vocals; Kenny Gradney, bass; and Sam Clayton, congas.

The band originates from Southern California and has done studio recording sessions with such artists as John Sebastian, Bonnie Raitt, Linda Ronstadt and Robert Palmer.

Tickets for the concert are $5 and are now on sale at the Student Center Ticket Office. All seats are reserved.

Little Feat plays boogie on latest album

By Keith Tuxhorn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"The Last Record Album"
Little Feat
Warner Bros. BS 2884

Little Feat has become, with this album, the definitive boogie band performing today. And this album is true boogie, not rock-and-roll-that-moves-called-boogie. The songs have a moderate tempo, place a lot of the emphasis on the rhythm action and funky piano riffs, and give a general feeling that at once starts one's feet tapping.

A Review

But this earmark isn't necessarily all good for the band. On its previous four albums, the band performed rock, ballads, country and blues with great success, but these styles become less apparent on later albums, as boogie took the spotlight. Now we know Little Feat can play many

Beg your pardon

In a Nov. 22 story in the D.E. about the Illinois Speech and Theatre State Convention in St. Louis, it was not Richard Lanigan who received the association's life membership, but Richard Paul Hibbs, SIU professor of speech.

styles of music well, but it has limited (trapped?) itself into doing nearly only one style.

Regardless of all this worrying, "The Last Record Album" is very satisfying. The instrumental performance of the band is always high quality, particularly the keyboard playing of Bill Payne. He never overwhelms any of the songs, but his flavor and innovation nearby carries the band by itself.

Likewise the eight songs here are as good as ever, with a remarkable amount of variety for the single style most of them are played in. But the two best songs on the album are ones not done in the boogie mold. Lowell George's "Long Distance Love" and Payne's "Somebody's Leaving" are excellent bluesy-type ballads that are so good they really do leave one feeling lonely and depressed.

So now we come back to that original complaint, if the band can be so successful with songs outside its usual boogie style, such as the two above, then why does Little Feat limit itself to playing nearly only one style? Probably because the band happens to like that one style.

Creal Springs

man arrested on

MEG warrant

A Creal Springs man was arrested Wednesday by Williamson County deputies on a warrant stemming from an Oct. 10 drug raid made by units from the Southern Illinois Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) and local law agencies.

Edwards Betts, 24, was arrested at his home by law officials on a warrant charging him with delivery of cannabis. A Williamson County officer said that Betts had not been in the area at the time of the raid.

There were 29 arrests made in the early morning hours of Oct. 10 by 120 officers in four counties from MEG and local police departments. The raid was reportedly the culmination of a six-month drug investigation by MEG agents. Officials said that Betts' warrant was the last to be served from the raid.

He was taken to Williamson County jail pending an appearance before a judge. A spokesman for the Sheriff's office said that Betts was also wanted on a felony warrant.

Traditional meal marks Hanukkah celebration

By Dan Hofmann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU's 2,000 Jewish students are invited to celebrate Hanukkah Friday night at a party to be held at the Hillel House, 715 S University, starting at 6 p.m.

Rabbi Earl Vinecour said a traditional Hanukkah supper will be served consisting of potato pancakes, called latkes, holiday bread, pastries and wine. Colorful movies of life in Israel will also be shown. "The theme of Hanukkah is freedom of religion and the right of every group to practice its religion without persecution," Rabbi Vinecour said.

By celebrating Hanukkah the Jewish people remember a rebellion against the Greek king, Antiochus, who conquered and persecuted them 2,300 years ago. The tyrant defiled the temple in Jerusalem, placing a statue of Zeus in the temple and forcing the Jews to worship it.

In what Rabbi Vinecour called the first battle for religious freedom in the history of the world, the Jews overthrew the king and destroyed the statue of Zeus. The eight day celebration of Hanukkah recalls the cleansing of the temple in Jerusalem after the rebellion.

Each night during Hanukkah a candle is added to an eight-branched candelabrum called a menorah and gifts are exchanged.

Colonial theme set for dinner

Reservations are due Dec. 7 for the SIU Women's Club dinner and dance called "Christmas in Colonial America" scheduled for 8 p.m., Dec. 13 in the Student Center Ballrooms.

The buffet-style dinner will be followed by dancing until midnight to music by the John Birchler Orchestra, Joan Dommermuth, co-chairman of the activity, said.

Featured at the dinner dance will be a strapping balladeer, a performance of the Minuet and costumed footmen.

The guitar balladeer who will play during dinner is Yvonne Brandon, a freshman in music. She will be dressed in an authentic costume and will play music from the colonial period, such as American folk songs, she said.

The Minuet dance will be performed by the Southern Repertory Dance Theater during the band break, Dommermuth said. The dance members will also be in authentic costumes.

The footmen are members of the Alpha Phi Omega Fraternity and will assist the hostesses. They will be dressed in eighteenth-century clothes.

The dinner and dance is $14.75 per couple and is open to Women's Club members and guests. Reservations can be made by sending a check, payable to the SIU Women's Club, to Joan Wright, 1003 Briarwood, Carbondale.

Foundation to sponsor Christmas activities

By Peggy Sagona
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

For those who cannot "buy" the traditional, commercialized Christmas spirit, the alternative Christmas is a way to work around it, says Hugh Muldoon, a coordinator for the Student Christian Foundation.

"The meaning of Christmas has been overshadowed by profit-making rather than a general hope for peace," Muldoon said.

The Student Christian Foundation is sponsoring several activities to stimulate the alternative Christmas spirit.

Craft nights will be held at the Foundation 913 S. Illinois Ave., from 7 to 10 p.m. Dec. 4, 9, and 11. It will be a time for people to get together and make cards and gifts. Instructors will be available to teach macrame, cooking, candlemaking, crocheting, needlework, paper folding, soap decoupage and other crafts. Materials will be provided at cost. "This is an ideal opportunity for people to get together and make presents for friends and family," he said.

The systematic reflex of buying, giving and consuming masks the real joy of Christmas which includes getting people together to be not only compatible with themselves, but also with the environment, he said.

George Lakey, an internationally-known author and speaker on social change will present his ideas in a talk, "Creative and Nonviolent Social Change." He will speak at 8 p.m. Friday at the Wesley Community House, 816 S. Illinois Ave.

"Lakey sees the need for social change and he has strategies that he thinks can work in bringing about these changes in a nonviolent way," Muldoon said.

"He works from a social and political standpoint in formulating his ideas for a just society, brought about by ways other than war and oppression, neither of which are peaceful or indicate peace," he said. "Lakey's outlook may make this part of the program the most important event," he added.

Four Christmas films will be presented at 7 p.m. Sunday at the Foundation as the last in the series, "Issues Through the Eye of a Camera."

"The Season," a cinema-verite of the commercialization of Christmas, won first prize at the Chicago International Film Festival and was up to be an academy award candidate. "Toys" explores the involvement children experience with war toys. "The String" has a theme which involves itself with the finding and creating a tie between diverse people in an effort of peace. "This Solitude Through Which I Go is I" presents a picture of world history in the tradition of war and compares it with a simple more creative view of life.

"Humanizing the Holiday Season for Children" will be the focus of an educators' meeting at 3:30 p.m. Monday at the Foundation. The purpose of the meeting is to discuss ways to make Christmas less materialistic for children and ways to encourage the natural creativity in children.

"Some families have been successful in making Christmas a family time and a more meaningful time," he said. "The more the adult experiences the creative Christmas spirit, the more the children may learn from it and enjoy it," he said.

An alternative Christmas potluck will be held at the foundation on at 7 p.m. Dec. 13. "This is open to everyone and each person should bring something to share," he said.

"We will also be decorating a 25-foot rubber tree because it is the one we have and it's alive," Muldoon said. "People can bring decorations for the tree or donate ones made at the crafts day," he said.

Ground safety course offered

The Illinois Department of Transportation (DOT) is sponsoring a three-part ground school safety refresher course at the Southern Illinois Airport-Sky Room Cafeteria.

Carmen Burgard, safety inspector for DOT, will speak on flight safety at the first seminar at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Coffee and doughnuts will be served at the seminar and a $20 flight pack will be given away. The seminar is free and open to the public.

Jerry Salidino will be the speaker at the second part of the seminar on Dec. 11 and Charles Wells, acrobatic flier, will speak Dec. 18.

Railroad relocation plan moves near completion

By Mike Springston
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale's railroad relocation plan moved closer to completion when a study found that the Carbondale freight building, division's office and depot had no historical state or national significance.

The report, which was conducted by Robert Sutton of the University of Illinois and Walter Creese, architectural historian on the project, said the buildings could be moved or demolished as part of any relocation plan.

The Illinois Department of Conservation in Springfield has agreed with the results of the report.

David Brewer, engineer for Clark, Dietz and Associates, the firm planning the relocation, said the buildings do not have to be considered in the environmental impact statement on railroad relocation as a result of the study.

"It does not necessarily mean those buildings will be demolished, but that there's nothing standing in the way of relocation," Brewer said.

Brewer expects the environmental impact statement to be completed by early 1978.

The historical significance study recommended that pictures and drawings be made of the building. Carbondale City Manager Carroll J. Fry said the documents would be of historical value to the city.

Brewer said the buildings would have to be removed if the Carbondale Railroad Relocation Steering Committee were to approve depressing the tracks and building the depot in the downtown area, the alternative favored by the committee.

The division's office would have to be moved or demolished if the tracks were depressed, Brewer said, and a new division office would be built at the site of the present freight office.

Imagine an order of 22,000 priests and brothers in 73 countries around the world. (That's a pretty big family.)

But that's what the Salesians of St. John Bosco are all about — a large family of community-minded men dedicated to the service of youth. (And no one gets lost.)

In the 1800's a chance meeting between a poor priest and a street urchin served to create a movement of such success that it is still growing today. Don Bosco became the priest who brought youth back from the streets — and back to God.

He reasoned that a program of play, learn and pray would make useful citizens of the world. He crowded out evil with reason, religion and kindness in a (what was then unheard of) atmosphere of family spirit.

The ideals of St. John Bosco are still with us today. His work goes on in boys clubs, technical and academic schools, guidance centers, summer camps and missions. And his very human approach is very evident in the family spirit of the Salesians. This is the way he wanted it. This is the way it is. The Salesian experience isn't learned — it's lived.

two positions, he was giving 220 per cent. He was quite willing to do that because that is the type of guy he is."

Prior to July, Mace had been acting Vice President for Administration and Campus Treasurer. July 1 he was moved to his present position.

"This is just one of several things I'll be recommending in the weeks to come, now that I have had a chance to look at the different offices,"

Mace commented.

The Weaver resignation was strictly Mace's idea and the vice president said that "Dr. Brandt did not bring any pressure to bare or make any decisions. I discussed the move with him, obviously."

The search for a new coach is already underway and everyone is being considered for the position, both high school and established coaches, Mace said.

When asked if SIU had the money to bring in a high caliber coach,

Mace responded, "Not enough."

Mace, who called Weaver a "good coach, athletic director and a great man," said Weaver will now have more time to go out and develop the necessary resources needed for the athletic program.

According to Mace, Weaver is in complete charge of the search process, although the Intercollegiate Athletic Committee will serve as the screening board and it will work with Weaver in making the final recommendation to Mace.

Weightlifters plan meet at Merlins

By Rick Korch
Student Writer

The SIU Weightlifting Club and Merlins are sponsoring a weightlifting meet to be held at Merlins, Sunday. The meet is open to all SIU students.

The weigh-in for the 123, 132, 148 and 165 pound classes will be held at 10 a.m. Sunday, with the lifting starting at 11 a.m. The 181, 198, and 220 pound classes will have their weigh-in at 1 p.m., with the competition starting at 2 p.m.

"It will be fun to watch," said Reid Kanies, president of the Weightlifting Club. "The weightlifters aren't world champions, but if a person can lift his body weight, he has a good chance to win a trophy."

Kanies said that there aren't enough entries yet to take all the awards (which will be presented to all first, second and third place winners). "Entries will be accepted up to the last minute," he commented.

"I'm surprised that a lot of the members of the athletic teams haven't entered the meet," Kanies said. "In fact, I make a friendly challenge to the track or football teams to show up Sunday and try their luck."

Kanies said that last year's meet drew a big crowd, "but with the help of Merlin's, it should be even bigger this year."

"Anyway, it's great to watch, and even better to participate," he said.

Safety school set for local aviators

Members of the Federal Aviation Administration from Springfield will present a ground school safety refresher course for all persons involved or interested in aviation at SIU.

Carmen Burgard will speak at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Southern Illinois Airport cafeteria, according to Mary Lynne Miller, Flying Club safety officer. Burgard will be followed by Jerry Saladino on Dec. 11 and Charles Wells on Dec. 18.

Clubs schedule martial arts demo

Any screams that may be heard piercing the doors of the Student Center and echoing into the hallway Thursday from 7 to 9:30 p.m. will be nothing to get alarmed about.

Members of seven SIU martial arts clubs will present a martial arts survey of styles in Student Center Ballrooms A and B. The event is open to the public. The clubs are asking a 25 cent donation.

Included in the exhibitions will be katas or formal exercise by each of the participants and breaking of boards and bricks.

A participant from the Tae Kwon Do school is scheduled to drive a nail into a board with his bare hand.

Other styles represented will be Hapkido, Isshinryu, Judo, Shotokan, Shorinji Kempo and T'ai Chi Chuan.

Bruins know little about SIU cagers

By Dave Wiczorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

Which Bruin will guard Mike Glenn? Will UCLA use its famed press? Who will Bruin Coach Gene Bartow start against the Salukis Saturday in Pauley Pavilion?

The above are all basic questions, but the man who is supposed to have all the fundamental answers admits he knows very little about the SIU basketball team.

The Salukis take on the UCLA Bruins Saturday in Los Angeles at 10 p.m. (CST), in the first meeting between the two schools. Bartow dispatched assistant Lee Hunt to scout the SIU-Illinois-Chicago Circle game Monday night at the Arena.

Bartow said Wednesday morning in a telephone conversation that his aids did not arrive back with the report because he was also scouting a game at Missouri

Weaver wanted to keep coaching job, says Mace

By Dave Wiczorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

Athletic Director Doug Weaver had no intention of resigning as head SIU football coach at the close of the 1975 season, according to George Mace, Vice President for University Relations.

"I went to Doug and told him I wanted a full-time athletic director," Mace said Wednesday morning. "He didn't want to give up the coaching position. He wanted to continue."

Weaver is now in Tulsa, Okla., attending the Missouri Valley Conference meeting.

"He has done a hell of a job," Mace

Tuesday night.

Because he has not had an opportunity to go over the scouting report, Bartow said he knows almost nothing about SIU.

He is, however, familiar with the reputation of Saluki junior guard Mike Glenn.

"We know about Glenn," Bartow said. "He's a very talented ball player."

Besides not knowing the strengths and weaknesses of SIU Coach Paul Lambert's squad, the UCLA coach was also uncertain about his own team.

"We haven't decided yet who will start. We won't make a decision until Friday and maybe not until after the game with San Jose State Friday night," he said.

The Bruins host San Jose the day before they meet SIU.

"I would say (Marques) Johnson and (Rich) Washington would be there (starting) for sure," predicted Bartow.

continued. "The football staff has done a great job this year considering all it has been up against, especially all the injuries."

Mace said only 19 of the original 42-member travel squad made the final trip to Lamar University and that the team did a fantastic job of competing in the 30-10 loss.

Weaver's win-loss record was 3-18-1 in his two years as SIU head coach, but Mace said that had nothing to do with his decision.

"Whatever Doug Weaver does, he gives a 110 per cent effort," Mace said. "The trouble was that with the Owners pondering Chisox sale

CLEVELAND (AP) — Bill Veeck, head of a group trying to purchase the financially troubled Chicago White Sox, detailed his proposal Wednesday to American League owners-but emerged from the session without an answer.

"They gave us a very good audience—that's all I can ask for," said the former owner of the White Sox and other baseball teams.

Acceptance of the offer appeared to hinge on the amount of equity Veeck's group was ready to put into the franchise.

"It's a case of definition," Veeck said. "What constitutes equity and what constitutes debt?"

"It's a question of whether debentures are invested capital or debt," he added. "Some gentlemen there in the meeting seem to think it's debt. We consider it equity."

'Clean Gene' 0-1 at UCLA

Wooden mystique pressuring Bartow

By Gary Palay
Student Writer

When the Salukis travel to Los Angeles to take on UCLA Saturday night, there will be a tremendous amount of pressure. Not on the Salukis, but on UCLA and coach Gene Bartow.

It will be that way for every UCLA game this season, because when you follow a legend, you are, whether you like it or not, compared to that legend. In the case of UCLA, the legend is John Wooden, and the follower is Gene Bartow.

Wooden had coached UCLA to an amazing 10 national championships in the past 12 years, before retiring after the 1974-75 season.

Bartow has coached Central Missouri State, Memphis State and Illinois to no national championships in 14 college seasons. His 1973 Memphis State team lost the finals to the legend he must follow.

But Bartow has a standard line for all those inquiring as to the pressure he surely must be feeling. "There's pressure in any coaching job," he said.

But when you delve deep into the man's feelings, he admits that the coaching job at UCLA is like no other coaching job in the country.

"UCLA has the great tradition and that makes for a pressurized situation for myself," said Bartow.

Bartow took the job at UCLA because "it was a great professional ad-

"(Ralph) Drollinger will probably be in there too."

Johnson and Washington are both juniors and All-America-caliber. Washington was the most valuable player in last year's tournament won by UCLA. The Bruins have won 10 championships in the last 12 years under John Wooden.

The 6-foot-10½ Washington and 6-6½ Johnson will present some definite height problems for SIU. In addition, Drollinger stands nearly 7-2. The Bruin center played a horrendous game in UCLA's defeat to Indiana Saturday, but he will be a factor against SIU.

"He is a better ball player than he showed against Indiana," Bartow assured.

Possible starters at the guard positions are Andre McCarter, a 6-3 senior, Jim Spillane, a 5-11 junior or 6-2½ sophomore Ray Townsend. McCarter and Spillane started against Indiana and McCarter is likely to get the dubious honor of guarding Glenn.

Bartow was not sure, or would not say, what type of defenses he will employ Saturday night.

He said, "We'll be changing up the defenses and making some adjustments the next few weeks."

As for that unsettling press that Wooden taught his teams over the years, it is not known whether Bartow will attempt to continue using it or use his own version of the three-quarter or full court press.

The Bruins did not have an effective press against the Hoosiers and Bartow said he has not decided whether he will use one against SIU.

Bartow's crew made numerous errors in its debut, but the coach said he is not concentrating on any one thing during practice this week.

"We haven't worked on anything specific in practice. We're just trying to bring them back off the loss," Bartow said.

vancement." He said he considered saying no to UCLA, "but I felt I wouldn't sleep good for six months if I turned the job down."

Going into the Indiana game (which UCLA lost 84-64), the Bruins were ranked second in the country. However, Bartow said the pressure was minimized because, "we have some fine players."

UCLA also enjoyed a banner recruiting year, signing four of the top high school players in the country. The new coach admits that recruiting is "easier at UCLA than at Memphis State or Illinois." The reason, Bartow said, is the great tradition.

Bartow said he did not know much about the Salukis going into the Indiana game, but was lavish in his praise of SIU coach Paul Lambert.

"SIU has a great coach in my opinion in Paul Lambert. Paul and I came up the hard way, from small high schools to big high schools and to college. I think he is a fine coach and he has some fine players," said Bartow.

No matter what the final outcome is Saturday night, Bartow will take it all in stride.

"I have looked forward to every season, and this one is no exception," he said. "I've really looked forward to them all."

When asked if he would rather do anything else than he is doing now, he has a simple answer: "No, if I did, I'd be doing it."
