IBHE extends fringe benefit support

By Paula D. Walter
Staff Writer

The Illinois Board of Higher Education approved a recommendation Tuesday to continue state support of the fringe benefits of auxiliary enterprises established at universities until about 1980, when current programs of phasing out direct state support will conclude.

The board approved a new policy last month and considered budget requests from university offices totaling $112.1 million.

The board approved the guidelines recommended by the University Council for a refund policy and counseling. The new policy will cover 11 situations in which refunds are required. It also provides for a total of $112.1 million for the university's fiscal years 1978 and 1979.

The university's financial aid programs will be phased out of state support beginning in 1980. The guidelines also extend fringe benefit support to faculty and staff, with some exceptions. Norrington takes Wesleyan job

By Bill Crowe
Staff Writer

Bruce Norrington, a 10-year veteran of the University of Illinois police force, will be leaving the force this month to accept the position of security director at Wesleyan High School in Bloomington.

Norrington, a community relations officer at SIU-C since 1973, was appointed the school's security director in May. He will leave SIU-C Dec. 15 and assume his duties at Wesleyan Jan. 1.

Norrington was suggested for the job by the Illinois Association of School Administrators, which chose Norrington because of his experience in school security and the quality of his work in the SIU-C police department.

The Department of Education has set its regulations on the basis of a 10-degree to 20-degree increase in the school's budget for next year, not 68 degrees as reported by the Daily Egyptian.

Norrington, an expert in security at Wesleyan, said, "I consider it to be a definite advancement in my career." Norrington said Wesleyan is a small, well-kept, beautiful campus.

Norrington was described by Norrington as a peaceable campus with an enrollment of 1,700 students. He will be directing a nine-man force in Bloomington.

University break to delay mailing of semester grades

By Shelby Davis
Staff Writer

Mid-semester grades will be delayed until after Jan. 1 because the University will be closed over Christmas break.

According to Kirby Browning, director of Admissions and Records, grades are usually mailed out before Christmas break. However, because the University will be closed Dec. 22 through Jan. 1, he said, an effort to save time and cut operating costs, grades will not be processed through the central computing center until Jan. 2. Grades will be mailed as soon as processing is completed.

The lateness of final exam weeks (exams will be held until Dec. 21) will allow for the mailing of final grades by Dec. 26 at 3 p.m. to allow computer processing in the records section to be completed by Dec. 27. Roland Keim, associate director, said the process will be working during this time.

Keim added that the late final exam week and the closing of the University has created an unusual situation that will not be repeated for six or seven years.

Guidelines announced to end college sports sex bias

By Bev Anne Williams
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The government formally announced guidelines for ending sex bias in college athletics Tuesday, saying that sports scholarship money be distributed in proportion to the number and quality of male and female athletes enrolled.

The guidelines announced Tuesday mean that unless schools find ways of increasing the incomes, they may have to shift funds from expensive, all-male football and basketball teams to women's sports. They also provide per capita scholarship aid to women athletes.

For example, if 40 percent of a school's athletes are women, female athletes must receive 40 percent of the money a college athletes scholarship. According to rough estimates obtained through the SIU-C sports information offices, there are about 382 athletes enrolled this semester. Of these, 286 men and 96 women. That means about 64 percent to 36 percent, respectively. Although this year's Athletics scholarship figures were not available Tuesday evening, Athletics Director Charlie West was reported as saying last year, "immediately were attacked by the National Collegiate Athletic Association. But the selection of Kramer, said no decision had been made on what action to take.

The government also will evaluate programs to determine whether procedures provide equivalent opportunities to nonmale and female college athletes.

Harris said the guidelines could, "give colleges and universities maximum flexibility in developing and maintaining their athletic programs."
Board to appeal decision including SIU-E in suit

By Ray Robinson
Staff Writer

The SIU Board of Trustees has decided to appeal James Williamson's decision to allow an SIU-Edwardsville faculty member to move the Open Meetings Act lawsuit against it, board attorney John C. Feiring said Tuesday.

The Faculty Organization for Collective Bargaining's stated intent in filing the motion to intervene in the suit is to ask that the board's February decision to centralize the university's system of governance under a chancellor be overturned and that the Madison County State's Attorney's Office, which filed the original suit, contend that the decision was made in violation of the Illinois Open Meetings Act.

Feiring, the trial attorney retained by the board to represent it in the suit, said his only reaction to Williamson's decision was that "the judge could have decided it either of two ways and he didn't decide it the way I would have liked." Feiring said that the FOCA had no right to intervene in the suit because its interests were being adequately represented by the state's attorney, but Williamson disagreed.

Feiring said the decision would be appealed to the 5th District Illinois Appellate Court, which meets in Mount Vernon.

Meetings. Meetings. Meetings.

He said he anticipated a decision "sometime early next year," and did not expect either party to appeal that decision to the Illinois Supreme Court because no constitutional issue is involved.

After the appellate court decides the issue, pre-trial motions in the suit will continue in Jackson County Circuit Court.

Student issued probation, fine for activating false fire alarm

By Bill Crew

An SIU-C student has been issued a $500 fine and a 600-point violation for activation of a false fire alarm in Schneider Hall Sept. 2.

Dr. Charles Valentine, sophomore in business administration, allegedly caused a fire alarm to be activated by throwing a paper, which started a fire alarm.

According to a report by Charles Carr, who was in charge of the alarm, on the sixth floor of Schneider Hall, the alarm was set off for a fire alarm in Schneider Hall Sept. 2.

Carr, said Dr. Earl Carr, who is in the Office of the President of SIU-C, that the fire alarm was set off by a paper thrown into the fire alarm.

Carr said that the paper was thrown into the fire alarm and that the fire alarm was set off by a paper, which caused the fire alarm to be set off.

Fry seeks land options for Convention Center

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

Carbondale City Manager Carroll J. Fry will spend the next few months securing options for 25 parcels of land that the planned Convention Center will own.

The City Council directed Fry to begin the process of acquiring the land after Dec. 13. At the formal meeting Monday, the council also authorized Fry to spend up to $38,000 on title work, appraisal, legal fees and option payments.

Council members also approved the issuance of a memorandum of intent to construct the $16.1 million Convention Center in the Carbondale Civic Center Inc. and appointed the undersigned attorneys for the project.

The money spent to acquire the land will be repaid to the city when the $2.07 million Urban Development Action Grant funds are received, according to Fry. The city was awarded the federal grant to help fund the $11 million hotel-convention center at a parking garage.

Under the terms of the grant, construction on the 236-room hotel and 70-space parking garage is scheduled to begin in Jan. 1981. In order to proceed with the sold council members that it was imperative to start acquiring land as soon as possible.

Councilwoman Susan Mitchell expressed the concern that if the funding from private investors isn’t attained for the project, the city could be gambling money.

Fry said that if the city doesn’t authorize the money to purchase land options, the city would “also gamble the project.”

“When we signed an agreement with The Department of Housing and Urban Development, we agreed to start construction on such-and-such a day,” he said.

He said that if the city is going to start construction, it needs to “get going” on it.

Fry said the $38,000 “will generate at least $11 million in tax base.”

Stan Hoye, general manager of Carbondale’s Holiday Inn and developer of the project, is responsible for constructing the 3,500-seat convention center on the land bounded by North University and South Illinois avenues and Walnut and Monroe streets. Hoye is supposed to raise the $1.5 million for the project.

The city is authorized to pay Hoye “a limited amount of the funding, through the sale of revenue bonds.”

Iranians may shoot hostages

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The month-old U.S. Embassy crisis took a sudden turn Tuesday as Iran’s foreign minister declared the American hostages would be put on trial and their Moslem militant captors were reported to have threatened to shoot them if they didn’t agree.

At the emergency U.N. Security Council session in New York, members finally agreed on an urgent resolution calling on Iran to release the 52 hostages and urging both the United States and Iran to “exercise the utmost restraint.”

Pentagon officials said, meanwhile, that a six-ship Navy force led by the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk has reached the Arabian Sea area, joining another U.S. carrier group.

Warning ignored in concert crush

CINCINNATI (AP) — City officials said Tuesday promoters of The Who’s concert delayed up to one hour in Coliseum despite a police warning of a “potential danger” posed by thousands of waiting fans.

Mayor C. William Clay Councilman Jerry Springer said the alleged delay to start construction the night when 11 people were killed and 22 were injured a loss of $4,000. Eight persons remained hospitalized.

City Safety Director Richard Castelli said police recognized the potential danger as 6:40 p.m., which he said was about one hour too late for such an event to normally open.

Fry said he was “surprised” to open up but he said he was aware of the safety hazard and that he couldn’t “do anything else.”

Carbondale City Manager Carroll J. Fry said the city was prepared to accept the 52 hostages who were regarded as well-behaved, but was reported to have threatened to shoot them if they didn’t agree.

Chicgo hit with lower bond rating

CHICAGO (AP) — The financially troubled public school system — which may not be able to meet its $42 million payment due Dec. 12 — was slapped with another setback Tuesday when its bond rating was lowered again.

Moody’s Investors Service, a financial rating organization, dropped the school board’s bond rating for the second time in less than a month because the board didn’t make a $3.8 million lease payment due in the city Dec. 1.

The system’s current fiscal crisis was prompted by Moody’s announcement Nov. 14 that it dropped the board’s short-term note rating so low no one would buy its securities. School officials were then unable to borrow $25 million in short-term notes to meet expenses.

The second lowering of the rates affects public building commission bonds that were used to finance school construction.

Daley secretly paid self second salary

CHICAGO (AP) — The late Mayor Richard J. Daley secretly supplemented his mayoral pay with a secret second salary of $2,500 a year, presumably for the "discreet basis, it has been revealed.

He quietly paid himself the stipend for at least some of the years he served as chairman and treasurer of the Cook County Democratic Central Committee it was reported.

Cook County Board President George Dunne, who was Daley’s successor as county Democratic chairman, confirmed on Monday the second salary was paid but said he didn’t know how much he was paid how many years Daley received it.

Though the second salary never was publicly disclosed. Dunne said, “There were people aware of the compensation, but I don’t know if it was common knowledge among the public.”

Carter announces bid for re-election

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, saying he has scars but carries them "with pride," officially began on Tuesday his fight for another four years in the White House.

The muted declaration of candidacy for re-election, coming "at a somber time of crisis," began with a reference to the American being held in Iran by a "mob and a government that have become one and the same." Carter said the Iranian situation "claims "my current attention," the president said "I would have preferred to postpone this announcement until another time." But Carter said election laws in some states forced him to act now.

"Therefore," he said, "I declare, that I am a candidate for re-election as president of the United States." Carter also asked fellow Democrats to reelect Walter F. Mondale, "the most effective vice president in American history.

Oil's slick propaganda awash with comic relief

WASHINGTON—A massive oil slick washed over the pages of several of the nation's larger newspapers last month. The Mobil Corporation's two-page full color ads—boombust in one, blurrist in the other—to ambush CBS Television for its reporting of the oil company's third quarter profit increase of 131 percent.

Without the notes troubleshooter Red Adair jetting in to cap this blug... out of Mobil prose, readers were on their own. They were like beavers trying to survive a gooey blackening, except that in this instance Mobil was its own make oil, not tanker oil, that had to be stopped over.

The nimble who did step well had a reward: A few pages on they had a glimpse of Mobil in the objective world. It was in the form of a parody of its propaganda ads. The same day the company insisted that it was shafted by CBS, newspapers told of Mobil's own art of shaf, for which they had agreed to pay $9 million in refunds and penalties.

The settlement responded to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's accusations that Mobil violated natural gas regulations. A fine of $18.5 million would go to two pipeline companies (in alleged overcharges and $900,000 in civil penalties, the Washington Post reported.

That’s a pity for Mobil. But it’s even harder on me. Every time I ease back and enjoy Mobil for what it is—no more—produce weekly propaganda ads that have become comic parodies of the business line, the company seems to caugh at something decidedly un- comic. I prefer Big Oil when it isn’t Crooked Oil, when Mobil, and its pompous and crowwash ad campaign.

Bi tutu, brute?

I am outraged! Just when this community is enjoying a surge in patriotism and a return to traditional values, Thomas A. Füllen suggests in a letter to your column, Nov. 29, that SBSC step funding football games.

Preposterously, this graduate student in theater would rather see our men prancing about in pink tights and reciting poetry.

Campus landscape needs attention

It’s sad but true. The letter by the Egyptian Divers in the Oct. 21 edition of the Daily Egyptian concerning the grounds crew is right in the assumption that the use of tax in their working habits, but the problems and how does not stop there. It doesn’t take a trained eye to know that the campus, once known for its attractive and beautiful landscape, is rapidly falling apart.

It is time the University: 1) allows students involvement in the maintenance of their campus; 2) hire formally trained horticulturists and foresters; 3) consult frequently the advice of the faculty trained in landscaping; 4) train current personnel; 5) replace dead and diseased plant materials and properly maintain the desirable species; 6) end the apparent litter the ground crew has for high maintenance plants and start planting low maintenance plant materials, for which the last is long and which can be obtained from any second-year student.

There are two options. One is the continual and expensive course we are following. The other is in the long run a less expensive and more aesthetically pleasing one.

Mace to discuss proposed fee hike

By Charity Gould

Vice President for University Relations and Graduate Services, Gary Brown, said that the salary for the proposed $10 fee is to cover the cost of the athletics budget.

Brown expressed his disagreement on the matter and felt that the fee increase would inhibit the student's ability to participate in athletic events.

Brown stated that he would not be able to participate in the proposed fee increase as it would be a violation of his duties as a professor.

He also said that the first protest on campus concerning the Iranian student takeover of the U.S. embassy in Tehran was similar to the 1970 situation.

He believes that the proposed fee increase is a way of showing the council that students are not happy with the proposed fee increase.

The emotional ages of 12
and 14 are filled with bright anticipation as well as the despair and frustration of growing pains.

Diane Kurys' "Peppermint Soda," a Louis Deluc prize-winner, is a delightful human venture into the changing lives of two French sisters, both wayward, eccentric, and deplorably sensitively portrayed by Odile Michel, and her younger sister, Anne, 12, is played by Eleonore Klarwein. Both girls live with their divorced mother, an amiable "young at heart" type, and share with her the tumultuous ups and downs of reaching maturity.

"Peppermint Soda" takes us through the heartwarming scenes such as their infatuation and jabu tantuous ups, and downsways of their lives.

Frederique's teachers, who will range permint.

Diane Kurys' "Peppermint Soda" is a combination of "The Trouble With Angels," "Nun of the Heart," and "Summer of '42," and ranks as one of the best movies of that genre.

Ancient martial art demonstrated

By Jeannel Olsen
Staff Writer

If you're worried about defending yourself, look no further. People of all ages are learning the ancient Filipino martial art, says Roy P. Press, who is known as the "Father of Modern Arnis." He demonstrated the art in the Student Center Monday night. Press is the son of the late Apolinario "Pit" Press, who was the" Father of Modern Arnis" and a national hero in the Philippines.

"It's a very easy art," he said to the spectators several times during the exhibit. "You can learn the technique in a weekend and then develop it yourself until it is a part of you."

Press learned the art from his father when he was 6 years old. It was known as "stick fighting," and was practiced with canes or bladed weapons in the Philippines in the seventh century.

He has spent the past 27 years perfecting the art, now teaching it at his national sport in the country and is taught from kindergarten through college.

Modern arnis (the art was called "karate" in its early days) has experienced several changes since it was developed. Today, it uses a "snake system" that works blocks and attacks into the movements. Press also teaches his students how to disarm and release themselves from attackers.

Press, who holds a sixth-degree black belt in karate, said the idea behind arnis is to develop the floor, the distinctive, natural movements.

"You must develop the flow until the movements are instinctive," he said. "Any instrument you use - whether a pen or a cane must become an extension of your arm."

The technique is taught with two canes, but it can also be used in hand-to-hand encounters, "You use the sticks when you are learning to transmit the art. They make it easier to understand," he said.

Mike Sembach falls as Roy P. Press, an expert in arnis, demonstrates one of the defensive blocks of the ancient Filipino martial art.

'The SIU Self Defense Club sponsored the demonstration in hopes of starting a club for arnis enthusiasts. Presses called it "the martial art of the future."

Buried,' Wait's videos shown

By Craig DeVries
Staff Writer

"Buried Out in Carbondale," and "An Interview with Tom Waits," video productions put together by the SPC Video Committee, were being shown jointly at 7 p.m. through Saturday in the video lounge of the Student Center.

The video panels, at the invitation of Chicago magazine article, "Buried Out in Carbondale," in the press, made by the video committee with the help of Dana Atchley, a traveling showman and video expert. The program was put together within a week and premiered Nov. 2.

"I'm very satisfied with it," committee chairman Phil Ranstrom said. I think it was an extremely successful production considering the time we had."

Ranstrom admits there were problems, one of which was too many people making decisions. He also said changes that Atchley made in the script caused it to lose some of its community. Still he feels the project turned out very well.

"Looking back on it now I wonder if we could ever do a project like that again," he said. "Everyone involved developed much enthusiasm for it that we were able to carry it off."

The interviews with "Waits" was conducted after the Oct. 9 concert in the Union Auditorium. Ranstrom said Waits was unusually honest and unfrustrated throughout the interview.

"He was very easy at ease, conversational and honest at the same time. It was very revealing," Ranstrom, who did the interview, said.

Throughout the half-hour interview, Waits talked about his childhood, his development as an artist, his latest album, his favorite books, authors and poets. He also talks about his relationship with singer Rickie Lee Jones.

"It implied that to a certain extent show business has taken her over," Ranstrom said. He said that Rickie is very sensitive and that she rose to the "top too quickly."

Video programs still to be shown this semester include interviews with Southside Johnny Lyon and the Talking Heads, Ranstrom said.

Professor investigates sound

By Janel Olsen
Staff Writer

If your home feels like an igloo because you're trying to conserve energy, there is a way to produce heat without turning up the thermostat. Crack up your stereo.

"If you turn your stereo up real loud, the sounds' vibrations develop friction which, in turn, creates heat," says Roderick Gordon, professor of music. However, Gordon does not advise the practice because of its adverse affect - sound pollution.

A physicist as well as a music teacher, Gordon is well-versed in acoustics; the science of sound. He teaches a class on the topic, "The Acoustics of Music," which is worth the course, "The World of Musical Sound."

One of the subjects covered in Gordon's class deals with the effects sound has on people.

"Sound waves reportedly affect the blood pressure, the heartbeat rhythm, metabolism, sexual capacity, sleep patterns, increases in blood cholesterol level and the incidence of ulcers," Gordon said.

In Gordon's words, it can also be damaging to the unborn child, he said.

"If a sound is intense enough, say 90 decibels (the level of sound is two people talking is about 60 decibels), the baby will be born with the habit of crying," said the instructor, who received an Outstanding Educator of America Award in 1972.

He added that the real dangers are still, for the most part, unknown, because little research has been done in the area.

Gordon said that listening to sounds above 85 decibels for more than eight hours at a time will cause hearing damage. "As you increase the decibels, it takes less time for the inner ear mechanism to be damaged," he added.

"His "rule of thumb" is, "If the sound is so loud that you must shout to be understood, it is probably going to damage your hearing process after a period of time."

Gordon said that several sounds today are reaching harmful intensity levels. Rock bands are major contributors to sound pollution, while a loud noise can be as loud as 120 decibels. Rock bands put out about 130 decibels, he said.

Other sources of sound pollution are un muffled exhaust systems on cars, airplanes, tractors, motorcycles, lawnmowers and factory machinery.

"The sound produced by a space rocket on take-off is 150 decibels, it can kill anyone nearby," Gordon added.

Gordon's knowledge of sound has also been beneficial to several students in the School of Music. Musicians experiencing problems playing their instruments often seek his help because he can scientifically explain what they're doing wrong.

Gordon does so by using an oscilloscope which provides a visual analysis of waveforms. After recording the musician, Gordon watches the way the waveforms move and can thus determine the cause of the performer's problem.

He has also used the oscilloscope to perform other services. "An oto-logist once brought a 5-year-old girl to my lab and asked if she had any hearing at all. Checking with an oscilloscope, I reached various sound levels. All of a sudden, I reached a sound with just the right intensity and she was scared to death. She heard it."

Thus, the doctor was able to administer medication to improve her hearing.

Backgammon club hosts tournament

The Backgammon Club is holding its last major tournament of the fall semester at 6p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Renaissance Room. Registration is $2.50 for non-members and $2 for members.

Prizes will be awarded to top place finishers in both the regular and consolation brackets. First prize is dinner at the County Seat in Murphysboro and a trophy. Other prizes include gift certificates to various Carbondale businesses.

Physical fitness tests offered by P. E. research laboratory

By Cindy Hampheyes

Personalized physical fitness tests for both the "healthy" and the "non-healthy" are being offered through the research laboratory of the SIU-C Physical Education Department. A nominal fee is being charged.

"Healthy people know less about their bodies than sick people," said Ronald Knowton, the program director. "The purpose of the test is to give healthy people better awareness of their bodies and how fitness programs can improve their bodies."

Increased numbers of joggers, swimmers, tennis players and cyclists are discovering the beneficial effects of regular physical activity in strenuous physical exercise. Knowton said, but many people are often hesitant about beginning such programs without knowing their entry level of fitness.

This program includes tests for muscular strength and flexibility, cardiovascular fitness, bone density, blood analysis and lung function. A written summary of the results, comparing them to nationwide norms and averages for age and sex, will be mailed after full pay out has been made.

The exercise performance test involves taking an electrocardiogram and blood pressure tests while the person being tested is doing exercises on a treadmill. The ability of the body to use oxygen while exercising is also tested at this time.

The lung function tests are a separate set which determines the maximum lung capacity. Pat Fitzgerald, graduate assistant for the program, said, "We're interested in the volume of air breathed, and the rate at which it's breathed out."

A blood analysis, testing the cholesterol level, as well as the percentage of packed red cells and hemoglobin level, is performed right there in the lab.

"A finger-prick sample is taken for these tests," Fitzgerald said. "We use pre-packaged reagent kits for analysis."

Body composition is determined through skinfold tests and underwater weighing, which show what percentage of the body is composed of fat.

Education majors wear T-shirts promoting social studies awareness

By Carrie Sweeney

In an effort to promote the idea that social studies is important at elementary, junior and senior high school levels, a group of education majors designed T-shirts that say "Social Studies: It's for Students!" Anna Williams, an education assistant in curriculum, instruction and media, along with 30 students, is trying to spark interest in the subject among other future teachers in hope of discreetly delivering the notion that social studies is not an interesting course.

"Most people have the attitude that social studies only includes geography," Williams said. "However, it runs far deeper than that.

"Social studies is the study of man's values, citizenship, beliefs and philosophies. It is the most important subject that children can learn and use forever," she said.

Graphics program to move on-campus from Carterville
By Pati Winiowski

Ninety students in commercial graphics technology will be moving from the Carterville campus to renovated facilities at SIUC next semester.

The future home of the Department of Commercial Graphics is the blue barracks, which are undergoing a $40,000 renovation to equip the programs on campus. It will include state-of-the-art equipment.

"The department has 14 students and one professor," said Reynolds, associate dean of the School of Technical Careers.

Reynolds said the building in Carterville that housed commercial graphics was very old and had major heating and termites problems. He said the blue barracks are smaller but are "much better buildings." The printing and graphic and audio-visual technology program is scheduled to move to campus in March. That will leave three programs in Carterville, construction technology, foods and manufacturing technology, and automotive technology.

"There have been some mixed feelings about the move among the faculty. Some were sad, but most people are happy about it." The blue barracks had been occupied by the STC Architectural Department, which has recently completed its move to the new STC building.

High Noon Special Promoting Social Studies Awareness

Williams said social studies is not stressed enough at the elementary education level as an important skill and that English, math and science receive the emphasis.

"Children need to learn respect for each other regardless of cultural or racial differences. We can learn to accept people as people through social studies. If one does not know how to relate to other humans, then there is little relevance in the other areas of study being taught." According to Williams, the interest in social studies must first be stimulated in people who will be teachers of the subject. The teacher's attitude that social studies is unimportant and uninteresting must first be changed, he said.

Williams' students agree that social studies counts in a child's education. She hopes that attitude will be passed along to others.

"We're hoping that teachers leaving SIUC will indoctrinate other teachers and that eventually social studies will gain credit for the function it serves people," Williams said.

Male, female characteristics in sports to be lecture topic

Indiana retains No. 1 ranking after impressive opening win

By The Associated Press

Pre-season favorite Indiana, impressive 80-52 winners over Miami of Ohio in its opener, retained the No. 1 position in the Associated Press basketball poll after the first week of the season. The Hoosiers collected 28 of a possible 35 first-place votes, 1,181 points in the nationwide balloting of sports writers and broadcasters. Indiana, which held a slim 12-point lead over Kentucky in the pre-season poll, received 30 points over Duke, this week's runner-up.

The Blue Devils, who beat Kentucky earlier in the season and captured North Carolina's Big Four championship last weekend, were tabbed No. 1 on 18 ballots.

Ohio State and Notre Dame, Nos. 4 and 5 in the pre-season, each moved up a notch, while Kentucky fell to fifth.

The Buckeyes received seven first-place votes and 1,097 points, while the Irish were ninth on one ballot and collected 907 points. Kentucky, which captured the Great Alaska Shootout last weekend with a 57-50 win over Iowa in the final, picked up 874 points and the remaining five first-place votes.

Louisiana State, seventh in the pre-season poll, was another eight points back in sixth.

UCLA also moved up a notch to seventh with 706 points.

Tanker Parker living life to fullest

By Rod Smith
Staff Writer

"Life is enjoyment."

That seems to be the motto of David Parker, a distance freestyler for the SIU swimming team. Parker, from Covington, Ky., qualified for the British Olympic Team at Montreal in 1976 and finished 12th in the 1,500-meter freestyle.

Parker, a motorcycle enthusiast, said he knows many countries around the world, but was only able to swim and wasn't able to act as a tourist.

"I've traveled a lot but haven't seen a lot of life," Parker said. "During international meets, I could see the country for maybe four or five hours but wasn't able to see the culture. I want to run around the United States and try to find myself and decide my future."

Parker has been swimming since he was four and began swimming internationally at 15.

A junior at SIU, Parker, 20, feels he is an old man at the sport.

"The swimmers try to psych each other out, both in the locker room and in the pool," Parker said. "One might say, you're looking a bit ill today, or you look like you're ready to die, trying to shake me up."

The psych and hazing may seem impossible to endure and difficult to cope with but Parker enjoys it.

"I would much rather deal with the psych tactics than to swim in a pool where it seems as though everyone is in a rut.

Parker said he had been a race in Leeds, England, a Hungarian swimmer made a silly face at him underwater when they both made the turn at the end of the pool. For a moment, the gesture caught him by surprise and caused him to lose ground. Parker said the tactic gave him the added incentive to come back and defeat the Hungarian.

Parker, co-captain of last year's team, attended Southern California, Miami Fl, and North Carolina before deciding on SIU.

"Coach Steele told me it didn't rain or snow in Carbondale, but I haven't regretted my decision to come here," Parker joked.

An All-American as a freshman, Parker holds the school
Preparation for winter sports a must

Touching Nature
Debbie Sugerman

Winter is a season of contrast, and camping during this time of year can be exhilarating and enjoyable.

Many folks try to avoid contact with the cold, limiting themselves to "fair-weather outdoor activities." But with the proper equipment, good judgment and planning, winter camping can be an exciting alternative for the outdoor enthusiast.

Clothing is obviously important. It is best to wear several layers of clothing instead of big, bulky coats. The layer system is more convenient, and body temperature can be regulated by adding or removing one or more layers of clothing.

Wool retains body heat when wet, and wool socks and sweaters are a must during that time of year. Down clothing is lightweight and warm, but loses its heating efficiency when wet. Synthetic fibers, such as Polarguard and Holofill, are a bit heavier, but are designed to retain heat even when wet.

Wearing a hat helps prevent heat loss from occurring rapidly through the head. Boots should be sealed to prevent water from entering. An extra pair of boots and shoes should be brought along.

Food and water deserve equal consideration. The winter-camper needs to be active to keep warm, there will be a need for higher-calorie intake. A supply of quick-energy foods such as chocolate bars, honey and crackers, dry fruits, granola bars and breads is mandatory.

Try to snack continuously. A diet high in carbohydrates while outdoors helps the body generate heat. Meals should include potatoes, noodles and bread. Proteins and fat take longer to digest in your system, but also must be included in your diet.

The human body needs as much water during the winter as during other seasons especially during periods of high activity. However, winter has a way of disguising this need, and one should be sure to "load up" on water, even when thirst is not felt.

The third consideration for winter activity is knowledge - an understanding of yourself and the environment.

Know your limitations and avoid overextending yourself, especially when cross-country skiing or backpacking. Confining activity to one day or an overnight and gradually increase the duration of your trips. It definitely helps to be in good physical condition, but this can be built up.

Know your environment. Watch for signs of inclement weather and heed for shelter when storms approach. Be aware of winter hazards. Hypothermia and frostbite can be avoided if one thinks safety.

Have a good first aid kit. Extra food, water and clothing in case they are needed. Having a map of the area and a compass and knowing how to use it are a must. Overextending yourself can result in colds, sore muscles and sprains. It is best to wear clothing in layers, of lightweight and sturdy materials. Protection against the elements is a must for the winter-camper. A stock of trendy outdoor wear can be replaced with the latest in ski equipment. Touching Nature can be exhilarating and enjoyable for the camper who plans ahead.
Recruits shine in early cage games

Saluki basketball Head Coach Joe Gottfried knew the players he recruited this season could pay collegiate basketball. Sometimes during the pre-season, however, the second-year head man has been faced with bad shots and bad decisions, and he had some doubts whether the recruits would be prepared.

Gottfried can stop wondering. His freshmen have shown some signs of new life in the first two seasons contests.

Against Evansville last week, Gottfried's freshmen Darnall Jones and Kevin Morris caught the rebounding & scoring.

"Each game, we're finding out what we know all along about each player is true. They all can play well," Gottfried said. "We know both Darnall and Kevin can score points for us.

"The biggest reason for the good performances is hustle. Darnall Jones has played aggressive and intelligent. When we play that way, we're effective.

Gottfried said the performances of some of his players in the Valparaiso game gave the team added confidence.

"The Valparaiso game was one of the best things for Karl Morris," Gottfried said. "He proved to himself that he was capable of taking control of rebounding and scoring.

"But is even stronger than what he's shown so far," Gottfried said. "We'll have to consume to be even stronger.

Card's Hart willing to move; says he can't talk to owners

By The Associated Press
St. Louis Cardinal quarterback Jim Hart, who was cut by the club, says coach Bud Wilkinson has his job, and he is willing to put company with his club after 14 seasons.

"I feel that there has been a general state of confusion here," said Hart, who has been held to negotiate for a new contract with the National Football League team Tuesday.

"There's a feeling that the management doesn't care about us as individuals.

"When you talk to players on other teams, you find those clubs look after the little things - things which aren't important to fans, but are important to us as individuals.

"It would be nice to say 'hello' to the players.

"The 31-year-old Hart, who has virtually every college passing record, said he would rather be getting recognized as a lineman here.

GRIDDERS HONORED
Four members of the Saluki football team were named Tuesday to the Associated Press All-American team.

The four Salukis were guard Byron Honore, tackle Kevin House, linebacker Darrell Bronson, and safety Carl Craddock.

All four are seniors.

Charles Moore shoots over Evansville's Brad Leaf. The 6-foot-7 junior forward scored 17 points in the Salukis' 76-65 loss to the Aces Saturday.

ISU coach: Consistency necessary to replace Bird

By Scott Blakemore

Editor's note: This is the fourth in an eight-part series previewing the East Central Valley Conference basketball season.

At a recent meeting of the East Central Valley Conference basketball coaches, the local Head Coach Bill Rodgers sees it, the key to success is consistency to his head coach Larry Bird is consistency.

"The thing is a matter of playing consistent basketball that's what's going to get you to the top," Rodgers said.

Armstrong State, a tiny Georgia school, went through a season in 1982-83 that would be the best in the school's history.

"It was a matter of us having a season that we're going to remember," Rodgers said.

Argon's ability to get better at the same time year after year is a key to consistency.
