Spending bill approved, but Reagan may veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House on Wednesday narrowly approved a $48 billion spending bill that President Reagan is threatening to veto if he finds it too costly.

The bill, called a "continuing resolution," approved 252-206 in the House, must pass and be signed by Reagan by midnight Dec. 12 to keep nine major areas of government in business and to allow Congress to go home for the holidays.

It now goes to the Senate, where a veto is more likely. The bill provides money for the early part of the new government's operations, including defense and agriculture, that have not received regular appropriations for the fiscal year that began Oct. 1.

Congress has passed only five of the 13 regular appropriations bills. Reagan has vetoed one of those and the fifth still awaits his signature. Should any appropriation become law before non-executive session, the government would be shut down in just over 90 days.

The continuing resolution is expected to become law by early Friday, Dec. 12.

$14.2 billion under House committee allocations. However,.Conte himself objected to a portion of the bill he said would cost $10 billion in agriculture payments in the next year. He narrowly voted, 200-221, at the end to send the bill back to the House Appropriations Committee to get rid of the agriculture money.

With these "appropriation provisions" in the bill, I have no doubt there will be a veto... Conte said, "and we'll be here in the wee hours of the morning trying to settle the issue.

An aide to House Appropriations Committee Chairman James Whitten, R-Miss., who added the agriculture language, said it only enters laws already on the books and would not cost money.

"Farmers live like everybody else," Whitten said.

Brown to be chosen as acting chancellor

By David Sheets

An acting chancellor will be selected by the Board of Trustees when the board convenes Dec. 12 in the Student Center.

The temporary chancellor will be James Brown, vice chancellor of the University system. He will assume Chancellor Kenneth Shaw's duties Jan. 13 and serve until a permanent chancellor has been chosen by the board.

Shaw announced his resignation in September. He will be installed as the president of the University of Wisconsin's 26-campus system Feb. 1.

Despite the makeshift promotion, Brown has made it clear that he is not to be considered as a candidate for the job on a steadfast basis, but has stayed in the playing understudy.

"I will take it only if the trustees decide they will never find a permanent chancellor," Brown said. "If it were up to me, I would want this temporary position only for a matter of months. If the search lasts past July, it will be suprising.

Brown's primary task will be to "make sure the system's annual appropriations recommendation is properly represented during the legislative session," which begins in January.

Also, the ongoing business of the board has to be taken care of," he said.

Brown said the advantage he sees in the temporary position is "a light at the end of the tunnel" in that he will not have to remain at the job. When possible chancellor replacements were suggested within weeks of Shaw's resignation, Brown said he did not want to be included in the list because he was "more than happy" with his existing duties.

"I don't want to have to deal with all that pressure all the time," he said in an earlier interview. "Besides, the job requires an excellent ad-

Students set prices at USO book co-op

By Mary Lung

Thinking about selling your old textbooks? If you can wait until January for the money, the USO Book Store will try to sell your books for whatever price you want.

Collection for the exchange begins Friday and continues Monday through Friday, Dec. 9-13. Books will be picked up daily.

Students set the prices on their own books with the help of a price list indicating the cost of each used book at the local bookstores.

The book sale will be in the Student Center Ballroom A during the week of Jan. 13-17. Students may pick up their own sold books at the end of the book exchange on Jan. 18.

The USO has sponsored the exchange for four years, offering students several ways to save money. Students can sell their books at whatever price they desire and maybe receive more than they would from the local bookstores. Students who sell their books through the exchange will also receive 10 to 20 percent more than at the USO book exchange on Jan. 18.

S. African riot breaks out as official makes promises

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Rioters hurled a hand grenade Wednesday at police in Soweto as Constituent Affairs Minister Chris Heunis arrived at the country's largest black ghetto and promised blacks the right to own property. He said the grenade attack, which caused no injury or damage, apparently was not linked to the minister’s visit to Soweto, home to an estimated 2 million blacks on the outskirts of Johannesburg, in Cape Town, police shot and wounded a worshipper after a candlelight service in the church of dissident clergyman Allan Boesak.

BOSTON (UPI) — Joseph Kennedy II, ready for a “long, hard battle,” announced Wednesday that he will run in 1986 to replace retiring Speaker Thomas O’Neill in the House seat that was the first rung of John F. Kennedy’s ladder to the presidency. Kennedy, 31, son of the late Sen. Reagan approves CIA aid to Contras

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan signed legislation Wednesday that allows the CIA to provide intelligence and communications training and equipment for the anti-Sandinista forces in Nicaragua. The narrowly drawn new powers for CIA activities on behalf of the Contras forces are included in the fiscal 1986 authorization bill for U.S. intelligence operations. The law gives the CIA permission to exchange intelligence information with the counter-revolutionary forces fighting the Marxist Sandinista government in Managua.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — A Palestine Liberation Organization official Wednesday accused Leon Klinghoffer’s wife of pushing her husband overboard from the hijacked Italian liner Achille Lauro so she could collect his insurance. According to U.S. officials, the Palestinian gunmen who hijacked the ship and held more than 500 people hostage for two days murdered Klinghoffer and tossed his body and wheelchair overboard into the eastern Mediterranean Sea.

Constituent group sets qualifications for new chancellor

By David Sheets
Staff Writer

Administrative skill and a desire to maintain the individuality of the two campuses are the principal qualifications that campus representatives of an advisory, constituent committee would like to see in a new SIU System chancellor. According to two members of the committee, Henry V. Welch Jr., dean of Student Life, said he feels the next chancellor should have a strong background in administration.

"Certainly, his leadership abilities must be good," he said. "By leadership, I mean providing direction for the utilization of resources at the chancellor's disposal and effectively assessing the strengths the chancellor must confront."

Welch said he would be compelled as a member of the committee to follow the directions of the Board of Trustees and find a suitable candidate, but would prefer the chancellor to be "an administrator from the professorial ranks."

"Leadership in the classroom and leadership in business are two different things, but some people can switch off between the two," said Welch. "I would like to see someone with a background or at least an understanding of higher education."

Mary Brown, president of the Graduate and Professional Student Council, said the next chancellor "must also possess the ability to maintain the autonomy between the two campuses, allowing each campus president work efficiently and expeditiously."

"To do this, the chancellor must have a concern for what is going on and to keep up on what is going on," she said.

Despite her GPSC affiliation, Brown said she was selected to represent all the students, not just SIU-C's graduate population.

The 10-member committee made up of five university population representatives from the Carbondale campus and five from the Edwardsville campus was selected through nominations submitted by campus constituency groups.

The committee appointees will aid in the chancellor search by interviewing the chancellor candidates and then making recommendations to the Board of Trustees based on the interviews.

Harris Rowe, board chairman, announced the committee members Nov. 22. The committee will assemble for the first time at the trustee's Dec. 12 meeting in the student Center.

Carbondale's committee members are: Patricia Elms, associate professor of educational psychology and chairman of the Graduate Council; Lawrence Dennis, professor of educational administration and higher education and president of the Faculty Senate; Joann Marks, staff secretary, College of Liberal Arts dean's office; and Lonnie Shepard, 3, is co-chairman through his membership in the Student Government.

The foundation for the chancellor search committee is Article 2, Subsection 7 of the board's operating statutes concerning replacement of the chancellor and the campus presidents.

"Individuals from the final group will be interviewed by a committee of constituent leaders selected by the board," the statutes state. "Each constituency group will nominate two representatives and the board will choose two faculty representatives, two non-faculty representatives and one student representative from the nominations."
The Democratic Party often claims to be the party of the people. But ask a woman — particularly a woman in the caucus of the Illinois Democratic Party — what she thinks of that claim, and you will likely find someone who would beg to differ.

The most pressing point of contention is that the women's caucus was virtually ignored recently when the party decided which candidates to slate for the upcoming primary elections. What the women wanted was not granted, and the compromise offered was an insult.

The caucus' demands were quite reasonable: one woman to be slated for statewide office. Their choice: State Rep. Grace Mary Stern of Highland Park to be slated for the state treasurer's position.

But there was a problem. The present state treasurer, James Donnellow, indicated that he wanted to keep his job. The Democratic Party agreed that he should keep his job. So, surprisingly, Donnellow was slated for re-election.

In an effort to appease the women, the party, at the urging of gubernatorial candidate Adlai Stevenson, decided to offer a compromise by slating a woman of state secretary of state.

The first problem with this is that they ignored Stern, who had been the caucus' choice for a woman candidate, and instead slated Aurelia Pucinski, a member of the Board of Education in the District and daughter of influential Chicago Alderman Roman Pucinski.

The second problem is with the position chosen. The caucus had specifically rejected the idea of a woman running for secretary of state because it is unlikely that any Democratic candidate would beat Republican state Treasurer William Pall.

Pall agreed. Democratic Party agreed that he should keep his job. Do not ever call me William Pall again.

This certainly does not look good.

The second problem is with the position chosen by the caucus.

This problem isn't going away.

The caucus' demands were quite reasonable:

1. No man over 30 should be a candidate for state legislature.
2. No man over 40 should be a candidate for state Senate.
3. No man over 50 should be a candidate for state House.
4. No woman over 30 should be a candidate for state Senate.
5. No woman over 40 should be a candidate for state House.

This problem isn't going away.

These stories are reported in the local newspapers.

I don't know about other students but I know that I have better things to do than hang out in the emergency room at night.

Recently, I contracted blood poisoning and unfortunately I didn't realize it was bad until after Health Service hours. I wonder how many students know what the "Dial-A-Nurse" advertisement in the D.E. really means? I never knew. Also, do you know what your college semester health insurance covers, and how about the dental insurance? Fillings, chipped teeth, and extractions are "routine" so they're not done. Well, if they are "routine" why aren't they done routinely?

Back to my story... so I am at the emergency room with red stripes (a characteristic of blood poisoning) running from my knuckle to my elbow. (When the stripes reach your heart, you have big problems.) The nurse at Memorial sent me to the phone to call "Dial-A-Nurse" to see if I could be treated and covered by SIU insurance. I asked her the phone number of SIU insurance and she couldn't even find it.

The bottom line was that she could not tell me over the phone if it was an emergency or not and she didn't know if I would be covered by SIU insurance. It would be "up to the doctor." A lot of good all that did except to aggravate me. Then I really didn't know what to do. Like most students, there is no way I could afford emergency room costs, but by the same token, I wasn't ready to be poisoned by morning.

Luckily, there is a happy ending. I was treated within 20 minutes (record speed for a hospital) and told by the doctor that it was good that I caught it in time and he OKed me as an emergency and SIU would cover me.

But it is not quite over. I got a bill for $85. That's an $80 emergency room fee (can you believe that?) and $15 for a shot in the derriere. The next day, I was prepared to go to Cairo when I got a form to fill out for the SIU insurance. I did so and hopefully now I am finished.

Suggestions, you ask? How about a nurse on staff at the hospital who can act as the SIU agent without the "Dial-A-Nurse" aggravation? If she can answer the phone somewhere all night only, then I believe she is needed.

What about a doctor and nurse on call at all times, 24/7, 365 days? They do have an infirmary already but you can't be admitted after 4:30. Maybe that is asking too much for $75 a month.

So my advice to those potentially getting sick after office hours is, don't do it. — Michael J. Goodman, senior, French.

'Trash' is better than the real news

While paging through the Daily Egyptian the other day, I was surprised to see a letter about WTAO's Trash Report. The report refers to the Nov. 13 letter by Jeff Brothers, the Trash Report is an extension of WTAL. For those of you not familiar with it, the Trash Report can be heard every weekday at 8:30 a.m.

The idea indeed is mine, as stated by Mr. Brothers. My feelings on the Trash Report are that in this day and age where stories of murder, rape and countless accounts of whose mother has AIDS run rampant, it seems to me a refreshing, humorous look at our world would add a bit of space to anyone's day.

The stories which are reported involve rather unusual government reports and supposed actual stories about stories ranging anywhere from a pregnant mother in Texas who has frog lurkers to scientists linking mango consumption to an increase in UFO sightings. The stories are usually one to two minutes long at most.

A touch of irony occurred to me in the fact that after the Trash Report was moved from afternoons (its original time) to mornings, listeners called in and wrote letters to the station protesting the change. We received more letters on that program than any other. After numerous requests, it was taped in the mornings and re-run in the afternoons for a couple of months.

105 TAO will continue to produce unusual, one-of-a-kind programming because, let's face it, any innovations die, why listen? Radio is more than just music.

Radio is a powerful and inspiring medium and like anything else, cannot please everyone all the time. If you want to hear life's most depressing moments, tune it to any station on the dial every hour for your basic "who died when" newscast. You've no doubt heard the old saying, "No news is good news." If you want something unusual and unique, listen to the Trash Report. I thank Mr. Brothers for his letter and invite everyone to at least give the Trash Report a listen. — Roy Gregory, Program Director, WTAO.
Reagan gives endorsement to tax bill opposed by GOP

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan gave his strongest endorsement yet to the House Ways and Means Committee's overhauled bill Wednesday, but Republicans said they will continue to oppose the measure.

In a statement, Reagan carefully avoided pushing the bill written by the Democratic leaders of the committee measure and an alternative written by House Republicans "represent substantial progress from current law." He said, "We do not want to risk damaging the committee's bipartisan effort to achieve a real tax reform, so I strongly believe the legislative process must be allowed to go forward," Reagan said.

"TRUE TAX reform is imperative," he said. "The first step must begin with a positive vote in the House of Representatives. I urge members of the House to act affirmatively on this important matter."

A House vote on the Ways and Means bill is expected next week. The Democratic alternative is given virtually no chance for passage in the chamber, where Democrats have a firm majority. It appeared that in order to keep the tax-reform bill from the House floor many House Republicans "will not vote for the bill," the committee member, said. The bill, which is supposed to reduce the tax burden on 75 million Americans, will be needed to pass the measure. The House Committee on Ways and Means Chairman Dan Rostenkowski (D-Ill.), said Reagan's statement was "not as strong as we wanted. But it's enough to send the reform campaign into next week.

"ANY Legislation that ends up retarding economic growth, and thereby diminishes the number of jobs upon which American families depend, is not to be welcomed," he warned.

Ways and Means Committee Minority Leader Robert Michel of Illinois, said Reagan's statement was "not as strong as we wanted. But it's enough to send the reform campaign into next week.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — NASA Administrator James Beggs is leaving the helm of the space agency, is reported under what's being called "a banner" retirement, with the NASA official Philip Culbertson will oversee the agency's activities as acting administrator.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is now preparing for its busiest and most ambitious year in space history: 14 shuttle flights, three major unmanned interplanetary missions and the launch of the heralded space telescope on tap for 1986.

AND PERHAPS even more important, NASA is in the midst of funding in President Reagan's next budget, a bill scheduled to be assembles in orbit in 1993.

It was a decision that was really going to be a banner year," Beggs said in an interview last week before he was indicted on federal fraud charges stemming from his previous position as an official of General Dynamics. NASA officials made it clear they are proceeding with a 1986's ambitious program as planned.

"It's business as usual," said James Faneun, special assistant to the administrator. "The Reagan administration is completely committed to what we are doing, to a permanent presence in space."

LEX. SLADE, Gorton, R-Wash., head of the Senate space subcommittee, talked with Beggs Wednesday and said the administrator believes the judicial questions can be resolved rather quickly, according to Gorton's spokesman, David Endicott.

"Over the short run, an agency led by an acting administrator, in Gorton's opinion, can work effectively," Endicott said.

Rep. Bill Nelson, R-Fla., the House space subcommittee chairman preparing to fly aboard the shuttle Columbia in two weeks, said at Cape Canaveral that the Beggs affair will have no impact on NASA.

"I think in fact you will see this professional organization proceed with as professional manner and I think cutting the excellence of this agency continue," Nelson said.

REP. DON Fuqua, D-Fla., chairman of the House Science and Technology Committee, said Beggs's resignation is "not as strong as we wanted. But it's enough to send the reform campaign into next week.

Beggs, who took over leadership of the space agency in July 1981, said the budget for fiscal 1988 is critical to the space station.

"It's no secret the country is trying to cope with a massive defense, three and days and all agencies and their responsibilities to the scrutiny as far as the amount of money that will not be available in the coming years, but NASA does not require a lot of new funds," Beggs said. "What we do require is a continuation of funding at about the level we are currently at.

fatalities prior to July 1, the date the seat belt law went into effect, increased 14 percent. But there was a significant increase in motorists on the road during those early months. The IIHS also reported that fatalities decreased by 1 percent in July, 17 percent in August and 18 percent in September.

"IT HASN'T been that low in 40 years," she said. Robinson attributed the decline of fatalities to better design of vehicles, drivers, compliance with drinking and driving laws and the seat belt law.

Drivers and their front seat passengers can be fined $25 if found in non-compliance with the seat belt law. The seat belt law joined the child restraint law which went into effect in 1981. Robinson said that in the last two years fatalities of children in traffic accidents have been cut by 50 percent.

"THAT'S PHENOMENAL," she said, and attributed the decline to compliance with the child restraints.

Robinson said that the question of individual rights as related to the seat belt law is at issue in Illinois. She said the law is for the individual and the public good.

There is still much resistance against compliance with the seat belt law, Robinson said.

"The coalition's mission is to have perfect compliance, she said. "Of course we would like to have 100 percent compliance, but we think that 70 percent is a more realistic number.

TRAFFIC FATALITIES were up by 10 percent in October. Rani said 91 fatalities were recorded for October 1984, and 101 fatalities were recorded for October 1985.

Rani said that the Illinois Department of Transportation will compile statistics at the end of six and 12 month periods and the seat belt law may be having on drivers' safety.
Eisenhauer, Mangan named to top DE posts

Daily Egyptian readers can expect extensive coverage of campus events and student life, and in-depth stories in next semester's paper, says Lisa Eisenhauer, the newly named student editor for the spring semester.

Eisenhauer, from Du Quoin, is a senior majoring in journalism and political science. She has covered city and politics and served as editorial page editor and assistant editor during her four semesters at the paper. She said she intends for the reporters to "blanket the campus and hit all aspects of student life." She also wants the reporters to "develop expertise in specific areas," she said.

In addition to wide campus coverage, there will be news analysis. "Instead of just covering the news we're going to put it into context," she said.

Eisenhauer said "he has lots of experience and is committed to accuracy and well-balanced reporting."

Mangan says he'll do whatever he can to "maintain smooth operations in the newsroom." Bill Harmon, faculty managing editor, said Eisenhauer and Mangan both are "outstanding candidates for editorial in terms of experience, performance and academics."

Robots, cabbage dolls transform the wish lists of today's children

By Wm. Bryan DeWasher
Staff Writer

This Christmas, visions of Transformers and He-Man action figures come to all the good girls and boys.

According to reports, the hottest toys this year are Transformers, toys that transform from a car to a plane, gun and even working microscope into superhero robots. These toys are available at local toy stores for under $20 and have sold out so quickly that Hasbro, the manufacturer of the toy, began airing television commercials in early November advising parents to purchase the toys as soon as possible to avoid disappointing their children when Santa Monia opened on Christmas Day.

Another popular item this year is last year's favorite, the Cabbage Patch doll, a modern version of the Raggedy Ann doll. However, there is a complete line of Cabbage Patch accessories for the $20 doll, including a playpen, stroller and safety seat for the stuffed kids.

Coleco also has introduced two new Cabbage Patch line as well as a Cabbage Patch doll. The Cabbage Patch doll is the Cabbage Patch PRE-nies, pre-mature Cabbage Patch dolls, which are still not on sale. Cabbage Patch Twins, identical twins, also can be purchased only in pairs.

Parents Should Beware, however, of the Cabbage Patch doll, which the Consumer Affairs Care. and the doll. are the Cabbage Kids that need special Pret.,ni es.

Low-interest home loans still offered

Low-income home buyers can still apply for 9.8 percent interest loans through the Illinois Low Interest Mortgage Program. The deadline is Thursday, December 5th.

The loans are available to help first-time, low-income home buyers who have not owned a house as a principal residence in the past three years. The rules of the program call for the annual household income of the family not to exceed $18,500. Homeowners will find a variety of toys the they grew up with. Some of these old toys are still there, just in a slightly different form.

'Amahl,' 'La Davina' to be at Shryock

Two short operas, "Amahl and the Night Visitors" and "La Davina," will be presented by the Marjorie Lewis Wagner Opera Guild Thursday at 8 p.m. Friday and 3 p.m. Saturday at Shryock Auditorium.

Gian Carlo Menotti's opera, "Amahl," tells the story of a disabled boy and his mother who are on their way to visit the baby Jesus, to open the new year at Amahl's home. Amahl's mother is poor and worries about how long she will be able to provide for her son, so she tries to steal gold from the three wise men and is caught.

Amahl finds out the wise men are going to visit the Christ child, and Amahl's mother and he are given a special gift by the Magi. Richard Best, director of the School of Music, will direct the opera.

"La Davina" pokes fun at the self-centered prima donnas of the operatic stage during a time when their poles were supreme. Jeanine Wagner, coordinator of the Shryock opera program, will direct the second opera.

Tickets are $1 for students and $2 for the general public and may be purchased at the door.

Teddy Bears still cuddle up to all-age American hearts

By Laura Milbrath
Student Writer

Though his fur may sometimes become ragged, his eyes may hang from threads and his once perfect nose may be gone, he has been present in generations of teething babies, as the beloved teddy bear has recorded a place of honor in America's hearts when other playthings deteriorate and are tossed into boxes in the attic.

The image of Christopher Robin dragging his best furry friend, Winnie-the-Pooh, behind him as he climbed the stairs at bedtime is a familiar scene to most everyone. Teddy bears have firmly established themselves as a part of American history and forever. In all generations of America's children, there are thousands of examples of America's kids cuddling with these stuffed toys.

PEOPLE CAN walk into nearly any store and see examples of America's fascination with teddy bears. Books, greeting cards, calendars, jewelry, mugs, and posters are all adorned with the images of the woolly companions. Along with all of the accessories are the teddy bears themselves in all shapes, colors, and sizes.

The teddy bear was given his name as a result of President Theodore Roosevelt's refusal to shoot a bear in November of 1902. The president had gone to Mississippi on a bear hunting trip and much to the dismay of his political hosts, no bear had appeared for the president to shoot.

HOLT COLLIER, a guide on the trip, took it upon himself to try to get the president to shoot, but Roosevelt refused.

The story reached the newspapers and a "Washington Star" cartoonist produced a sketch showing Roosevelt's delight at shooting a powerless cub who was tied with ropes. The captioned story and the idea of associating the president with bears was born.

Morris Michtom, who owned a candy store in Brooklyn, N.Y., saw the cartoon and created a stuffed bear and placed it in his store under the name "Teddy's Bear."

THE BEAR was a great success and Michtom wrote the manufacturer to begin selling the bear under Roosevelt's name. Roosevelt gave permission, and the following year Michtom founded the Ideal Toy Company, which later became a chief producer of the teddy bear. He also produced other toys. According to Roy Nuhn, in an article in "Hobbies" magazine, there is still a bit of controversy as to whether Michtom was the first producer of the teddy bear, but there is no doubt as to who popularized teddy bears.

Paul Piper, who wrote under the pseudonym Seymour Eaton, began to push teddy bear picture books on the market.

HIS ROOSEVELT bears were named Teddy B. and Teddy G., who travelled together getting into all sorts of adventures and misadventures. The Roosevelt bears first appeared in the autumn of 1905 in 20 American newspapers as a serial.

In September of 1906, the first Roosevelt bear book, titled "The Roosevelt Bears," was published and became a national bestseller.

The success of the Roosevelt bears along with Michtom's Teddy's Bear placed teddy bears in the limelight. Nuhn wrote, and they were quickly adopted by companies who hoped to gain from the popularity of the cuddly trademarks.

In 1907 America's premier popcorn maker produced the Cracker Jack Bears in order to give publicity to their snack food. Bear Brand hosier was sold in department stores, and a bakery began to sell loaves of "Teddy Bear" bread for the price of a nickel or a dime in Rhode Island.

Teddy bears make up roughly 80 percent of all plush toys sold, followed in sales by plush dogs and plush monkeys, according to George Spangler, sales manager of Gund Inc., the oldest plush company in America.

"TEDDY BEARS have been very strong for several years," Spangler said. "They are societal now. People of all ages are receiving them. We find college girls loading their rooms with teddy bears, and their boyfriends give them Teddy bears."

"They have become a year-round universal gift. It's no longer a phenomenon or a fad. It's a societal habit."

Residents of Mount Prospect have gotten together each of the past three Christmas seasons for the annual "Teddy Bear Walk."

WHAT STARTED out as a program for children has become so popular that it now includes people of all ages, said Arlene Kasik, assistant head of Children's Services at Mt. Prospect Public Library.

Adults and children gather at the Mount Prospect Public Library to hear stories of teddy bears read by community and staff members. Everyone then bundles up and proceeds to the bank where Santa Claus is waiting.

Kasik has been involved with the "Teddy Bear Walk" and said the program has become almost too successful.

"LAST YEAR we had over 1,500 people. We cleared out all the tables from the children's departments," she said. "The library was physically unable to hold all those people."

This year the library has worked out an arrangement with a local school and will hold the entertainment portion of the program in the school's gymnasium to provide space for the expected crowd.

Teddy bear owners don't seem to be bashful when it comes to showing off their teddy bears and recounting their stories for other teddy bear lovers.

"WE SEE senior citizens coming with their teddy bears and small children coming with their teddy bears, so it's a very novel kind of program for the community," Kasik said. "There is a gentleman who has been here every year who has at least a six-foot tall bear and his wife has a mink teddy bear. You just never know what you will see in all different stages of love."

U.S. flips over martial arts, says instructor

By Alan Richter
Staff Writer

The opponent is stalked. He lunges toward her. She counters his attack and, with a body-throw, sends him plummeting to the floor. Such is the nature of the martial arts. "Lae kwon do is," Forby says, "the only club is the only one that's recognized for white belts or yellow belts."

While these sports originated in Korea, they have become very popular in the United States, says Jeff Forby, head instructor of SUU's Tae Kwon Do-Hapkido Club. And since the 1986 Olympics are going to be in Seoul, Korea, tae kwon do will become part of the games.

"It's the most widespread martial art in the whole world," Forby says. "Lae kwon do is," Forby explains.

The Tae Kwon Do-Hapkido Club was started at SUU in the summer of 1968. The club folded, but Forby, a fourth-degree black belt and an original club member, regrouped the organization in 1976.

"I decided to come back here and give everybody a good martial arts club," Forby says. He says that still makes the Tae Kwon Do-Hapkido Club the oldest martial arts club on campus.

While similar clubs exist on campus, Forby points out that his club is the only one recognized by the World Tae Kwon Do Federation. To be recognized, Forby says, he has his link with his original Korean instructor, who has been his instructor for the past 20 years. A club that is not recognized by the federation "isn't required to follow the official tae kwon do requirements," Forby says.

"ALL OUR INSTRUCTORS are black belts," he said. "Other clubs don't have that. They could let a yellow belt teach if they wanted to.

"Some members started this semester, many are unranked white belts or low ranking yellow belts, said club member Jeff Doiron. But since promotion tests are Thursday, that may change.

Apart from promotions, the club members train for tournaments, with one each week, Forby says. In the Moo Sul Kwan tournament in mid-November, club members turned in five first-place performances: Doiron for hapkido form; Dan Lesken for intermediate sparring; Scott Grammer for intermediate light weight sparring; Mike Moll for white belt sparring and Kathy Pattison for white belt form.

"EVERYTHING WE DO prepares us for your promotions and the tournament," Doiron said.

Other activities include public exhibitions such as a halftime show during basketball games, and a convention in March featuring master instructors. Forby said.

Although tae kwon do is the Korean cousin to the Japanese martial art of karate, both have their differences. For instance, Forby says tae kwon do emphasizes more kicking than karate.

"Each culture has its own influence on the arts," Forby adds.

Within the club, he distinguishes tae kwon do from hapkido, saying the former is viewed more as a sport where the latter concept is "self defense.

While every specific martial art has its own unique characteristics, they do have a connecting element.

"The underlying idea of the warrior is contained in all martial arts," Forby says.

Even though tae kwon do does train a person to be a confident and effective warrior, Doiron points out that it also teaches leadership and respect for others.

"It's great to have the confidence," he explains, "but that's not the sole purpose.

Next, students run through the tae kwon do patterns known as the tae geuk, which are the only forms recognized at the Olympics. This is followed by the rearranged attack and defense session.

Club members engage in free sparring and hapkido, the way of organized power, during the final part of each class.

Execs say they will hire more in spring '86

Cleveland (UPJ) - Employment opportunities will increase during the first half of 1986, says executives responsible for hiring at companies throughout the country.

Thirty-seven percent of the 1,400 executives surveyed by Management Recruiters International Inc. said they were planning to expand middle management or professional staffs during the first half of 1986.

Eleven percent, however, said they were planning staff reductions.

When the same survey was conducted for the end of 1985, 34 percent said they planned staff enlargements and 10 percent said they expected to decrease the size of their staffs.

"We have found these hiring authorities to be a viable and accurate measurement of what our economy will do in the short term," said Alan Schonberg, president of the firm.

Hiring in the North Central region, which includes Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin, appears especially strong with 42 percent of those surveyed planning staff enlargements.

Security adviser resigns; deputy appointed to post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, saying no president “has been better served,” announced Wednesday that national security adviser Robert McFarlane has resigned and will be replaced by his deputy, Vice Adm. John Poindexter.

In an appearance in the White House press room, Reagan was flanked by Poindexter and a somber Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, who declared with a scowl, “That’s nonsense,” when asked about reports his stormy relationship with chief of staff Donald Regan prompted Poindexter’s resignation.

Reagan also rejected suggestions that personality clashes and conflict over the Iran-Contra affair had caused friction in the White House, saying the reports of bad blood between Reagan and McFarlane “have probably disturbed me more than anything I’ve heard since being in this office.”

Island of misfit toys

“THERE are people who have been misinformed about that,” the president said. “After 30 years (he (McFarlane) feels a responsibility, that I think of all of us, that he has to resign.”

“The NATIONAL security adviser reports directly to me and does not go through the chief of staff,” Reagan said.

Poindexter, 49, who graduated first in his class from the Naval Academy in 1958, said Reagan had assured him of his total support as he got along with his job.

“We obviously know the Navy and the Marine Corps still get along well together, the admiral dead-gammed, drawing laughter from reporters for his allusion to Regan’s status as a former Marine infantryman,” Reagan, who usually is present during presidential appearances, was not on hand.

Reagan ruled out a diplomatic post for McFarlane. He had been touted as a successor for Ambassador Mike Mansfield in Tokyo — saying, “The man has told me that he needs to go government service” because of his other responsibilities.

Three have been reports McFarlane, who worked under Henry Kissinger in the Nixon White House, might join Kissinger’s consulting firm. The president noted Poindexter has served as Mc-farlane’s deputy the past two years “and has proved to be a truly steady hand at the helm.”

The problem of how Poindexter, who holds a Ph.D. in nuclear physics and served as an aide to three Navy secretaries, stood “at ease” as the president spoke.

Reagan said that not only had Poindexter graduated first in his Annapolis class, “but also was brigade com-mander’s residence.”

Reagan said Poindexter was a “highly respected” civilian and would return to the university he attended — Stanford University. He had been a member of the university faculty since 1961.

Poindexter, who holds a Ph.D. in nuclear physics and served as an aide to three Navy secretaries, stood “at ease” as the president spoke.

McFarlane delivered a lengthy swan song, praising Reagan for his tough stand toward the Soviets and efforts to rebuild both the national economy and armed forces, and said in his letter of resignation that he was leaving “with a deep sense of gratitude, sadness, and future duly the president over the Thanksgiving weekend he was named national security adviser in October 1981 when William Clark moved to the Cabinet as interior secretary. At the same time, Poindexter moved up from the NSC staff to become McFarlane’s deputy.

Some sources said Mcfarlane had made up his mind to leave the high-powered White House post before the Nov. 19-20 Geneva summit.

HOURS are set

for study areas

With the semester drawing to a close and final exams time nearing, students will be extending their study hours and closing themselves to quiet study areas.

m The Student Library and the Student Center will not remain open longer than usually because of funding problems, said Jean Emling, academic affairs commissioner for the Undergraduate Student Organization.

But Big Muddy, on the lower level at the south end of the Student Center, will remain open until 2 a.m., said Doug Daggett, assistant director of the Student Center.

The need to extend hours at the Student Center was discussed at a meeting of Student Center staff members, Daggett said.

Late night stoners will get fresh coffee and doughnuts.

The Oasis Room closes at 11 p.m., so whatever pastries are left over will be brought down to Big Muddy for students,” Daggett said.

New treatment for cancer shows successful results

BOSTON UPI — National Cancer Institute researchers said Wednesday they have developed the first completely new cancer treatment in decades and have successfully treated 11 patients who did not respond to other forms of therapy.

The treatment removes a type of blood cell known as lymphocytes from a cancer victim’s body and treats them with a drug that turns them into cancer killers. They are then put back into the body and treated with more drug to stimulate multiplication and growth.

The treatment reduced the size of the following four varieties of cancer: melanoma, a severe form of skin cancer; colon cancer; kidney cancer and lung cancer.

The findings were released as a special report in the New England Journal of Medicine.

“For the first time, we can take the immune system of a patient, alter it, and use it to cause regression of a tumor,” said Dr. Steven A. Rosenberg, said, “This represents the first step in the development of a whole new treatment of cancer.”

“They are on the cutting edge of science and are not only a major step forward for patients but also a major step forward for science in general.”

Dr. Rosenberg stressed the treatment is its very earliest stages of development and only a few patients have been tested. The NCI is currently the only place where the treatment is being tested and four to eight patients can be treated a month. But other sites may begin testing the technique in the near future.

The treatment has a variety of severe side effects, the worst of which is swelling, which can hinder the function of the lungs, kidneys and other organs. The treatment has only been used on patients who do not respond to any other form of treatment.

Twenty-five patients were tested and 11 patients improved. Of those, one patient with melanoma showed a complete regression that has lasted for a year. The rest had only partial regression.

The treatment has four stages. First, lymphocytes are removed from the patient’s body using a special filtering machine.

The cells, about 10 billion in all, are then treated with a drug called interleukin-2. This drug stimulates the cells to become cancer killers.

The stimulated cells are then injected back into the cancer patient’s body and the patient is given more interleukin-2, which stimulates the cells to grow and multiply.

The cells seek out cancer cells within the body and destroy them.

Interleukin is a protein the body produces normally but in only extremely small quantities. Interleukin-2 is a similar protein, which is made by bacteria that have been altered using genetic engineering techniques.

Doses of interleukin-2 are given in much higher doses than would normally be present in the body.

Sports and femininity questioned

NEW YORK (UPI) — A survey released Wednesday shows athletic women were more likely to have both girls and boys as playmates rather than just girls and the women strongly believe participation in sports does not diminish femininity.

The Miller Lite Report on Women in Interscholastic Athletics was commissioned by the Milwaukee-based brewery and undertaken with the help of the Women's Sports Foundation, surveyed a sample of the readers of Women's Sports & Fitness magazine and drew its conclusions from the answers of 1,682 respondents.

Athletic women generally mirror the public's interests in participatory sports—choosing most frequently those that benefit fitness and health rather than competitive activities, said John Pollock, author of the survey.

The most significant differences from the general public in the women's preferences in spectator sports was their inclusion of volleyball, softball and skiing in their favorite events to watch, and the omission of boxing and horse racing.

Pollock said one of the most statistically dramatic findings of the survey was that choice of childhood playmates has an impact on adolescent attitudes and sports activity as an adult.

Among those who said they played with boys or a mixture of boys and girls, a significantly higher number went on to participate in grade school, high school, varsity, college intramural and varsity sports, the survey said.

"Athletic women who played mostly with girls as children are less likely than any other group to participate in sports or watch sports anytime later in life," the report said.

The interaction with boys "is what triggers athletic participation," said Dr. Dorothy Harris of the Pennsylvania State Department of Physical Education and vice-president of the Women's Sports Foundation. "You can't find it if you just played with little girls."

Though girls may be bigger, stronger and faster than boys before puberty, girls traditionally are taught sports skills and girls are not, she said.

"The girls who play with boys are more likely to learn the skills needed to play organized sports," Harris said.

That explains why the older the female, the less likely she is to participate in organized sports because she hasn't learned those sports skills," she said, noting the higher ranking of walking, jogging, aerobics and weightlifting over softball, basketball and tennis on the survey's list of participatory sports.

The surveyed women said that as children their favorite sports role models were male (46 percent) or female (47 percent) and they were more likely to have both girls said. on the survey released Wednesday.

"Younger women were more likely to have both girls and boys as playmates rather than just girls and the women strongly believe participation in sports does not diminish femininity," the survey said.

Top-notch teams await swimmers at U.S. Open

By Sandra Todd
Staff Writer

This weekend's U.S. Open International meet presents 14 members of the Chicago Bears host the Indianapolis Colts at Soldier Field.

Women's coach Bailey Weathers said that the team has been doing some long course training and feels that they were fairly comfortable with it.

"I'd like to see some cuts made for NCAs," Weathers said. "They all have a pretty good chance."

Even Witrty, who is participating only on the 200-meter freestyle and freestyle relays, has a shot to make NCAA qualifying times because she is lead swimmer in both relays and her split is considered an official time.

Representing the men's team are Scott Robertson, Carl Garrett, Gerhard Van Der Wal, Tom Hakamno, Joakim Stenholm, Gary Brinkman, Anders Grillhammer and Erwin Kratz.

Coach Doug Ingram said that the team has been working on course throughout this season and focused his training on the 50-meter pool.

In addition, Ingram said that this meet is one of the last chances of the season to gain world rankings, thus the competition will be at an elevated level.

"The top 30 to 70 collegians in the nation and about the same number of club and high school teams will be there," Ingram said. "We're looking forward to that kind of competition."

Bears look to keep streak alive against upset-minded Colts

By Randy Minkoff
Sports Writer

CHICAGO (UPI) — The "big" streak is over, but at least two other streaks will be on the line when the Bears host the Indianapolis Colts at Soldier Field.

Chicago's quest for an unbeaten season was stopped last Monday night by the Dolphins. Marion Salaam ran for 161 yards and Terry Holley scored the winning touchdown on a 40-yard run.

But the heavily favored Bears are searching for their third straight win without a loss. Chicago, seeking its first unbeaten and untied home campaign since 1956, has won six of its last eight games.

IN ADDITION, Walter Payton will seek to extend his NFL record by notching his 30th straight 100-yard game. On the down side, the Colts, 3-16, have lost five straight games, the longest current losing streak in the NFL. Indianapolis is coming off a 38-31 loss against New England.

The Colts, who have already clinched the home-field advantage throughout the playoffs, maintain there will be no letdown in the home finale.

"We're going to have to execute and concentrate," said Bears coach Mike Ditka. "Indianapolis is an out- standing football team and has been all season.

"We've had some problems with third down conversions," Ditka said. "If we can do a better job in that area, we can win the game.

PAYTON, who gained 121 yards in the loss to the Dolphins, has had his share of troubles against the Colts in the past. In fact, his performances during the 1983 season against teams that may be the least productive of the Colts.

Payton has gained last four yards in 11 games in two previous seasons, games against the Colts, going 0 for 8 in 1973 and four yards in three carries in 1983.

Indianapolis will likely see Jim McMahon return as a starter against quarterback. McMahon injured his back against Drew Faller, who went out with an injured ankle, in the second half of the loss to Miami.

The Bears' defense yielded a season-high 38 points in the first half, after posting back-to-back shutouts against Dallas and Chicago. Still, Chicago's defense is No. 1 in the league and has the respect of Coach Ditka.

They will play against eight different defenses against us. We're going to narrow down our offense in an attempt to block them better," Ditka said.

We know where they will line up. What we have to do is make those blocks. We have to take a very physical approach to blocking.

THE BEARS have given up 165 points, the least in the NFL, and still have yielded only 47 points in the second half all season. The Dolphins have managed one touchdown in the second half against the Bears.

The Bears have not won since whipping Green Bay 37-10 six weeks ago.

Morehead slips past men cagers

By Ron Warnick

"This is one we could have won, but we just ran out of gas," said Saluki center Todd Krueger after the SIU-C cagers took it on the chin in the 70-62 loss to the Morehead State Eagles in front of 3,000 at the Arena.

A 46-32 Eagle rebounding advantage and a 37 percent SIU shooting mark in the second half spelled doom for the Dogs, who watched a five-point lead dwindle to two before halftime.

"They weren't much bigger than us, but they handled the boards poorly," Herrin said. "We didn't shoot well and didn't have patience. We had some terrible turnovers that came at crucial times."

Center Bob McCann led Eagle scorers with 15 points and brought down nine rebounds. Forward Andre Kihbler grabbed 13 rebounds and scored 10.

Saluki forward Doug Novsek scored 17 points and guard Steve Middleton shot through six field goals for 12 points. Forward Billy Ross had his usual strong inside game, pulling down nine rebounds.

Both teams played hard and closed, if somewhat sloppily, in the first half. Morehead State shot 36 percent from the field, and the Salukis shot only 41 percent.

SIU-E to visit Arena
Dec. 18, not on Friday

By Ron Warnick

If, after reading the wallet-sized Saluki men's basketball schedule, you were thinking of going to the Arena for the basketball game scheduled for Saturday between the Salukis and the SIU-Edwardsville Cougars, you were thinking wrong.

The SIU-E Cougars will play their sister university Wednesday, Dec. 18 at the Arena, but won't play here Friday.

According to Bruce McCutcheon, assistant athletic director, the incorrect schedules came about because of an error at Creative Illustrations...or a printer contracted to make 30,000 Saluki schedules.

McCutcheon said the Salukis were originally scheduled to play the Cougars Dec. 6, but in September, the game date was changed to Dec. 18. McCutcheon then informed the Houston printer that the schedule should have been changed.

On Sept. 18, McCutcheon received a proof of the schedule. He made corrections, such as deleting a cancelled exhibition game against a Netherlands team. But SIU-E fans were left to wonder whether their tickets were good for the game only for Dec. 18.

On Oct. 9, approximately 2,700 tickets were arrived at the SIU-C Men's Basketball office, but only the other 20,300 coming shortly thereafter — all incorrectly listing the SIU-E game on Dec. 6 along with the correct Dec. 18 date.

Kentucky rallies late to outlast women cagers

By Anita J. Stoner

LEXINGTON, Ky — The Kentucky Wildcats rallied from a 10-point second-half deficit Wednesday to defeat the Saluki women's basketball team 66-42 at Memorial Coliseum.

In first half action, Kentucky broke to a 6-0 lead and the Salukis came back to tie the game at the end of the first five minutes of the half. The Salukis charged ahead to take a six-point lead, but the Wildcats rallied to pull within one at 31-30 at the half.

Saluki guard Petra Jackson, who was named Gateway Conference Player of the Week this week for her performance in the nation, hit four of six free throws in the second half and scored 12 points for the Salukis.

Kentucky then got six points on free throws from guard Karen Mosley and inside play from center Mary Bergbhus.

At the 9:45 mark, Kentucky called timeout with the Salukis leading by 10.

"We were making mistakes that were not caused by the Salukis. I knew if we could settle down and stay in our offense that we could win. Nine minutes is a lot of time," Kentucky coach Terry Hall said of the game.

The Salukis handed the game to Kentucky with turnovers caused by the Wildcats' pressure defense.

Bergbhus tied the game with just under four minutes remaining when the battle turned inside to the center. Although Bergbhus put in a fine effort with a couple of late baskets, Wildcat center Debbie Miller carried the last necessary bucket, followed by a pair of free throwers from Nichols. Although Bonds scored on the last play, it was not enough as the Salukis fell to 15-22 record with the four-point loss.

Saluki coach Cindy Scott said, "I thought we played hard but made crucial mistakes down the line. Kentucky took advantage of that and we didn't turn the ball over.

Both teams exchanged the lead until center Todd Krueger sank an inside jumper while being fouled. His free throw completed the three-point play, giving SIU-C a 24-22 advantage.

But the Eagle came roaring back to take a 31-29 lead with five minutes left. The Dogs answered with a pair of free throws for a 30-29 halftime lead.

Early in the second half, another easy layup by Ross gave the Salukis a seven-point lead at 4-3.

With 9:11 to go, a technical foul on the Eagle bench threatened to give SIU-C a six-point lead. But Doug Novsek made only one of the free throws for a 30-35 lead, and Morehead State soon composed their comeback.

Soon the Eagles had a 38-34 lead, with the help of benchwarmer Talbert Turner, who scored 10.

The Salukis attempted a comeback with three minutes to go and got within two points before trailing 64-62.

But an easy layup by Pate Clements against a spread out Saluki press defense iced the game at 68-66.

Wayne Harre hit a shot at the buzzer, but it was too little and too late as the Eagles won 68-66.
Santa brings computers, monsters

By: Laura Milbrath
Student Writer

Today, with all of the uncertainties in the world it’s good to know that tradition is alive and well at Christmas and still lives at the North Pole. No one knows this better than children.

Most of them have spent an entire year trying to refrain from all sorts of amusements such as sneaking candy from the kitchen and pulling their baby brother’s hair. The words “He knows if you’ve been bad or good” are etched in their minds. He, of course, is Santa Claus. He brings to the magic and love of Christmas an added pleasure — Toys!

ALTHOUGH Santa Claus as a Christmas tradition has remained constant through the years, children’s tastes in the toys he brings them have varied greatly. I decided to take a trip to a large toy store and see just what children of 1985 are hoping Santa will bring them and to see how things have changed since I was a wide-awake youngster years ago on Christmas Eve, wondering what Santa would set beneath the tree.

When I entered the toy store the first thing I noticed was the long aisle of computers, cartridges and video games. There were confused parents huddled in groups staring blankly at different models of computers and accessories. I could offer no help to them as the most technological toy I have ever owned was a Lite-Brite.

Today, many very young children seem to understand all the intricacies of computers and I was hoping that some kind of toddler would pluck the pacifier out of his mouth and inform his parents just how a single-sided, double-density flexible disk was.

There are many varieties of computer software that could be asked to deliver. There were home video game centers with game carriages and home computer centers for studying and some that offer game disks as well. Small robots who speak and teach children letters and numbers are also very prevalent on the toy store’s shelves.

THIS YEAR along with their requests for computers and robots, children may be asking Santa for action figures based on the He-Man and the Masters of the Universe characters and Dungeons and Dragons. Action figures armed with swords and shields who battle evil monsters in spooky places such as Castle Grayskull and Snake Mountain seem to provide recreation for a large majority of young people. He-Man is featured on a punching bag, book, and the He-Man talking toothbrush just to name a few items.

Despite the popularity of action figures, I wonder just how happy Santa will be to have his sleigh laden with packages containing Stinkor, The Evil Master of Odors. When I saw the Bugmen of insects, evil action figures who supposedly rise from beneath the earth to terrorize its inhabitants, I wondered what ever happened to that good-natured Pillsbury Dough Boy figure which I requested of Santa Claus when I was 6.

The Cabbage Patch Kids still seem to be popular and now some lucky children could be receiving the Cabbage Patch Twins. Some of the dolls have also become world travellers and wear authentic outfits from foreign countries and come with their own passports. Those dimpled Cabbage Patch faces can also be seen on such items as high chairs, roller skates, banks, and Cabbage Patch outfits with their own Cabbage Patch hangers.

my gifts from Santa when I was small, Mr. Potato Head, has become a husband and father. Santa may be receiving some requests for Mr. Potato Head and Baby Potato Head. For the Hollywood-conscious child there are many celebrity dolls such as Michael Jackson, Brooke Shields, Punks Brewster and Elvis Presley.

As I walked on, I came to an aisle of toy guns in all shapes and sizes. Sitting among the other assault weapons with their realistic firing sounds was the Rambo motorized M-16. This water machine gun operates on batteries and can shoot 30 feet. Tinker-toys, colored wooden blocks, and Raggedy Ann and Andy are still available on the toy store shelves. They brought back memories of Christmas morning's early hours where the tree lights flickered through the shadows and I squeezed my hands together in the joy and anticipation of opening those gifts selected for me by Mr. Claus.

VISIONS of sugarplums would not be the only dreams in my head this year if I were still receiving gifts from Santa. I am sure I would ask for the Fezler Deluxe cat. This large plush cat, according to the label on its box, has "a mind of its own." The cat purrs when stroked and can be walked on a leash or can move left, right, backward or forward in accord with made by clapping commands. Parents don't have to worry as no one needs to change its litterbox, just its batteries.

Santa will surely pack his sleigh with plenty of wooden rocking horses, toy trains, and Teddy Bears as they are always sure to please excited tots. So, as the stockings hang limply by the fireplace waiting to be stuffed with treasures, Santa will set his gifts beneath the tree. Each gift, whether it is a modern computer or just a simple rag doll, represents the hand and a spirit of Christmas that will live forever.

Christmas controversy

He's cute, he's cuddly and he may also be the subject of legal action. He's "Kareem Abdul Jabbar" and he's the product of the North American Bear Co., Inc., of Chicago. Already available at area stores for $42, there are reports that Jabbar's namesake, Kareem Abdul Jabbar of the Los Angeles Lakers basketball team, is suing the company to stop production of the bear.

Short opera set for Shryock

By University News Service

A traditional Christmas story and a caricature of the egotistical coloraturas of the late 1800s are holiday offerings by the Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theater.

"Amahl and the Night Visitors" and "La Davina," two short operas, will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday and 3 p.m. Saturday in Shryock Auditorium.

Admission is $1 for the general public and $1 and $2 for students and senior citizens. Tickets are available at the door.

"Amahl," Gian Carlo Menotti's "operaletto about a Christmas baby and his mother at the time of Christ's birth, tells of a visit from three wise men who are on their way to visit the baby Jesus. They spend the night at Amahl's humble home.

"La Davina," by Thomas Pasatieri, a comic opera with the self-centered prima donna of the operatic stage during a time when they could demand the moon and get it.

Jeanine Wagner, coordinator of SIU's drama program, will direct "La Davina." Artistic director Richard Best will direct "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

Performers in "Amahl and the Night Visitors" include John P. Lipe as King Melchior, and Anita M. Halton, accompanist, both of Carbondale; James Scott, Sikon, Cohen, as King Baltazar: Benjamin F. Wechsler, Mount Vernon; and Anthony J. Laskey, of Murphysboro, as Amahl, Salvador S. Lo' Oak Forest, page; Rhonda Jackson Mcllroy, Pine Bluff, Ark., Amahl's mother; Paul Asfour Cincinatti, as Joseph.

Letters to Santa

Dear Santa,

I know it seems a bit early, but I'm so excited about Christmas! I'm sure you're busy, but I had to write you to let you know how much I love Christmas.

I love the way the house smells after the tree is up and decorated. It makes my heart sing. And the sound of the fireplace crackling — it's just magic.

I also love the lights on the front lawn. They're so pretty and they make me think of snowflakes. And the decorations on the inside too — the garlands, the wreaths, the cinnamon-scented candles.

But what I love most is the feeling of belonging, of being part of something bigger than myself. It's a time to give and to receive, to share with family and friends.

So Santa, I hope you can see me and my family in your workshop this year. I promise to be good and to write you again soon.

Merry Christmas,

Dear Santa,

I just want to say how much I love Christmas! It's such a magical time of year. I love the decorations, the lights, the music, the food.

But what I love most is the feeling of giving and receiving. It's a time to show love and kindness to those we care about.

So Santa, I promise to be good and to be kind to others this year. I'll spread some cheer wherever I can.

Merry Christmas,

Dear Santa,

I love Christmas because it's a time to reconnect with family. I love the tradition of gathering together to exchange gifts and share stories.

But what I love most is the feeling of joy and togetherness. It's a time to remember the true meaning of Christmas: love and compassion.

So Santa, I promise to be good and to spread love and joy this year. I'll make sure everyone feels special.

Merry Christmas,

Dear Santa,

I love Christmas because it's a time to give. I love the feeling of making someone else happy with a simple gift.

But what I love most is the feeling of giving back. It's a time to show gratitude and to help others.

So Santa, I promise to be good and to give generously this year. I'll find ways to make a difference in the lives of those around me.

Merry Christmas,

Traditions subject of Historical Society program

By Mary Lung
Staff Writer

Singing carols, hanging mistletoe, giving gifts and decorating an evergreen tree are all well known Christmas traditions. These pleasant customs have existed for many years, after evolving from pagan and early Christian rituals that celebrated events such as the midwinter solstice, Christ’s Mass and others.

These and other traditions and their origins were the topic of a program on Christmas decorations and traditions presented by Jan Beckenbach to the Jackson County Historical Society Nov. 17.

Mail early, postmaster says

The key to successful holiday mailing is to mail early and correctly. Postmaster Hubert L. Goforth of the Carbondale post office says that includes planning for gifts that must travel long distances by Christmas.

"Customers should also take care to write legible ZIP-coded addresses for both the address and the return address," Goforth advises. "The use of ZIP codes following the name of the particular city and state aids us in processing the mail.

With a little care, holiday cards and packages can arrive on time and in good shape, Goforth says.

In addition to mailing early, postal customers are urged to properly address cards and packages with the name, house number and street (or post office box) number and the city, state and ZIP code on the last line. Use of apartment numbers is also encouraged.

Don't overwrap, just use your carton. Brown paper and twine cord are not necessary.

A sealed box is the best course of action, Goforth says. Use cellophane or masking tape.

Carbondale post office says that includes planning for gifts that must be mailed to residents of the Massachusetts Colony in 1657.

The earliest documentation of Christmas trees appeared in Latvia and Estonia in the early 1500s. Beckenbach said. The custom quickly spread to Germany and other parts of Europe, finally becoming popular in England during the mid 16th century.

Christmas trees appeared in the United States as early as 1812, said Beckenbach, with ornaments such as paper roses, polished apples, wafers, gilded nuts and sugar pretzels. Wooden, cardboard, cotton and lead ornaments were added as well, and are now enjoying a comeback, Beckenbach said.

Glass ornaments were developed in Germany in the 1840s, and became very popular in the United States. From 1850 to 1890 the "fantasy period" of fantastic, free-blown ornaments flourished, Beckenbach said, and the popularity of German ornaments continued until just before World War II, when Austria and Japan became serious competitors.

Tree lights have been popular for many years after evolving from candles or floating lights to gas jets and finally to the electric lights we use today, Beckenbach said.

Hanukkah honors religious customs

By Susan Sarkauskas
Staff Writer

While many people are preparing for Christmas, others will be celebrating Hanukkah this year. Jews around the world will begin celebrating Hanukkah, the Festival of Lights, on Saturday night.

Hanukkah, which lasts eight days, is a symbolic replay of the rebellion and civil war that Jews in Seleucid Egypt fought against their Syrian rulers and ended in 168 B.C.

The story centers on oil that will last eight days. The Jews had only enough oil for one day, so they decided to light the Menorah, the eight-branched candelabrum. To everyone's surprise, the oil lasted eight days. Today, Hanukkah is celebrated with menorahs, lights, gifts and dancing.

In addition, there is a symbol called the dreidel, a four-sided spin-top with Hebrew letters on each side. Each side has a Hebrew word, each word representing a different action: NUN means "rob," Gimmel means "sell," SHIN means "exchange" and PEH means "receive." One person spins the dreidel, and if you land on the right side, you win.

The tradition of lighting Hanukkah candles is also a symbol of the eight-day celebration. On the first night, one candle is lit; on the second night, two candles are lit; on the third night, three candles are lit, and so on until the last night, when all eight candles are lit.

Program tries to deliver joy to foreign students’ holiday

Carbondale will be a much less lively town in less than three weeks. The fall semester will be over and most of the students will have gone home. Left behind will be a tiny section of the SIUC Carbondale community who has neither the finances to leave Carbondale nor family to celebrate Christmas with — the international students.

For many of these students, the month of December is not a cheerful one. The cold and chilly weather is depressing; most of their friends have gone home for the month; there’s nothing left in Carbondale to savor apart from the empty pails; and as the rest of the town gears up for the Christmas celebration, a wave of homesickness washes over many students from other nations.

Along with the yearning for home there is often a feeling of being left out while the rest of the nation celebrates.

To make these students feel more at home, International Programs and Services has a Host Family Program in which families in or near Carbondale invite international students to their homes either on a regular basis or on special occasions like Thanksgiving and Christmas.

The purpose of the program, said community volunteer Inga Solberger who is coordinating the program, is to give international students an opportunity to learn more about American culture and to experience the holiday season with a family.

And, in return, the host families learn more about their international student they host, she said.

In recent years, the program has suffered a small setback. It has been steadily losing host families. This Thanksgiving was a surprise, Solberger said. For once, there were more families volunteering to host international students at the traditional turkey dinner than there were students accepting the invitations.

And now, with Christmas approaching, she hopes for a similar surprise to perk up the program. But Solberger has little hope of such a surprise materializing.

“Families are more willing to take in students for Thanksgiving than they are for Christmas. I don’t know why,” she said. “Although it is too early to say how many families will volunteer this Christmas, we hope to have as many as we did last year.”

Families that see students on a regular basis often establish a longstanding relationship. The students, on the other hand, gain a foster family to replace the one they left at home.

One graduate business student, Sridhar Sundaram, said he enjoys a closer relationship with his host family. He spent Christmas with the family last year for the first time and recalls pleasant memories of the day.

“I enjoyed myself tremendously. They’ve invited me again this year and I’d probably go,” he said.

The Host Family Program was started during the 1990s when the first international student enrolled in Carbondale. Solberger said. Since then the number of international students has increased to nearly 2,000 with most of them coming from Malaysia and Singapore.

Anyone interested in more information on the program may contact Solberger at 549-2803 or Burghilde Gruber at 453-5774.

"Share Your Blessings" provides gifts for needy

By Marlena Botes
Student Writer

On Christmas morning, many children will run to look under their Christmas trees for gifts from Santa. Some, however, will not have a celebration because their families are too poor to enjoy such luxury.

But Ron Doerge has founded a program to help needy children who otherwise would not have Christmas, to receive gifts.

Doerge, a Marion resident, is the catalyst of a program entitled "Share Your Blessings," for which he hopes will provide Christmas for as many as 500 needy children in Jackson, Williamson, Franklin, Saline, Perry, White, Gallatin, Pope, Harden, Massac and Johnson counties this year.

"My children were delighted when they received gifts they never thought they'd have," said Colleen, a recipient of last year's program, "If I could, I would give every year because they have helped me so much."

"We receive donations from a number of sources," said Barbara Paxton, a resource worker for the agency, "but the biggest single thing is the project 'Share Your Blessings.'"

"Share Your Blessings" is a unique program because each child gets to make a "wish list" for Christmas. Those lists are distributed to the givers along with a list of clothing size and color preferences.

The needy children are identified by the Department of Children and Family Services. Donors, either individuals or groups, who adopt a child agree to spend $50 in purchasing, wrapping and tagging gifts. They are given the first name and age of the child. The donors deliver the gifts to designated pick-up points and the DCFS staff members take them to the proper families.

Although the child will never know exactly who the gifts come from, they or their parents will send a thank-you letter to DCFS which will forward it to the donor.

The first year of the program Doerge himself, through DCFS, helped to provide one needy family with Christmas. Doerge then got others involved and with the help of his wife, Ann, and many others, the program grew. The fourth year 277 children were given Christmas.

Families, individuals, employee groups, Sunday school classes, fraternal groups and people who have just joined together to help can become sponsors.

Anyone interested in registering for the program can call 964-1876 in Marion or if they live in Franklin or Williamson counties; 687-3803 in Murphyboro if they live in Perry or Jackson counties; and 252-3276 if they live in the other counties in the project.

U.S. Christmas gets mixed reviews

By S. Vijji
Staff Writer

"Somehow," said a Malaysian friend of mine, "Christmas is different at home. No doubt, there is not so much publicity or glitz attached to it but there is a spirit that is different and unique. It's almost like a big-scale party instead of the quiet family occasion that it is here."

That said another from Tanzania: "Christmas is a very quiet affair. There are no notices of pre-Christmas or post-Christmas sales, no decorations, no trees. Just a simple social event which brings family and friends. Christmas is just another big day."

And for a few, Christmas is a big social event which brings together people of different races and beliefs. People of different races and beliefs come from. And, accordingly, for those who celebrate the event away from their families, Christmas-time is one of the most depressing times of the year.

IT IS from these two extremes that the international students at SIU-C come from. And, accordingly, for those who celebrate the event away from their families, Christmas-time is one of the most depressing times of the year.

"IT IS so informal back home and the central issue is not in buying presents for each and every one, as it is here, but in the food and the entertainment provided. We do exchange presents, among the family at least, but a lot more attention is paid to greet guests," said Fernandez.

"Naturally Fernandez feels he is missing out on something at Christmas in this country. He has spent two Christmases here but he will be home for this year's. He can't wait to go home."

AND WHAT does he think of the fuss - the publicity, the sales and the decorations that start a month early for Christmas here?

"That's only to be expected since it is the only big festival celebrated here. At home, there's no big fuss simply because we celebrate four major festivals," he added.

But for Indian Sriddhar Sundram, Christmas is very much more exciting here than at home. Only about 2 per cent of the roughly 60 million people in India celebrate the event. Hence, it is hardly publicized.

"THERE'S NOTHING to be excited about. But here, all the publicity leading up to the day makes it really enjoyable," he said.

"I spent last Christmas with a host family and the idea of a whole nation is celebrating the occasion, instead of just a minority, as it is at home," Sundram said.

"And, it is the time when I feel least homesick," he added.

Green Christmas

Lynette Ripley, a senior in forestry and business administration at SIU-C Forestry Club, examines one of the trees to be sold at her club's Christmas tree sale until Dec. 5. An SIU-C tradition for about 25 years, the sale is on the east side of McAndrew Stadium during evenings. Trees, most of which are Scotch pines, were purchased from a nursery in Michigan. Club members also cut about 45 trees themselves from a local grove. Trees 3 to 6 feet tall cost $2.75 per foot and trees 7 feet or taller are $3 a foot.
