Crime rate up in city last year

By Andrew Strang
Staff Writer

Crime in Carbondale during 1980 increased slightly from the 1979 level, according to the police department's annual statistical report approved by the City Council Monday night. The most noticeable increases were in the areas of rape, 14 of which were reported in 1980 compared to nine in 1979, and auto theft, 62 of which were committed in 1980 compared to 45 in 1979.

In a letter accompanying the report, Chief Ed Hogan said the increase in rape is due to one person, Joseph Perrequet of Marion, committing three of the rapes. Two of the rapes were ruled to be unfounded, which means the police department or the state's attorney found that there was not enough evidence to determine if a crime actually was committed.

The increase in auto thefts, which includes motorcycle thefts, was "likely tied to economic conditions," Hogan said. There have been no patterns to the thefts, but there were indications that some of the vehicles were stolen for parts, Hogan said. He said these indications included the type of cars stolen and the fact that some of the cars were never recovered. He added that there was a "significant increase" in the number of motorcycles thefts.

"Gas efficient vehicles, such as motorcycles, are in demand," Hogan said. "The price of new cars has increased, causing people to repair their present vehicle rather than buy a new one. Consequently, the black market parts operation has been expanding nationwide."

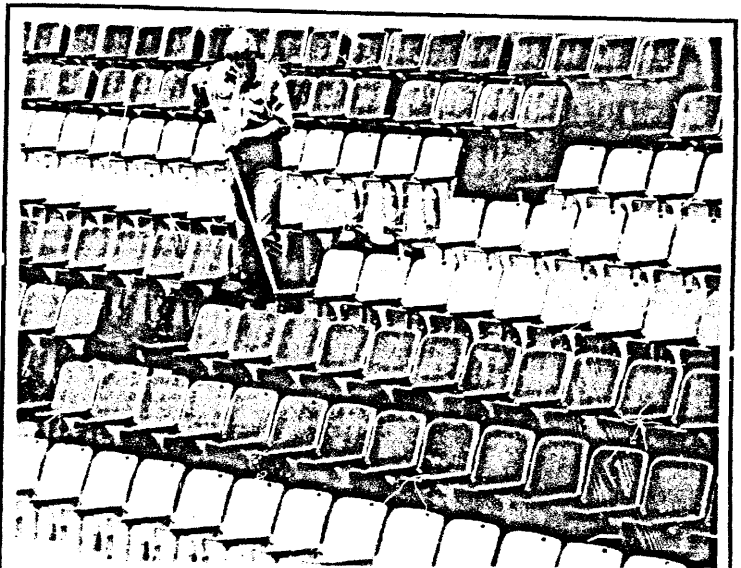

Burglaries increased from 348 in 1979 to 350 in 1980, which is "lower than expected," Hogan said. He attributed the low rate of increase to preventive measures, including the Housewatch Program and citizen education, accomplished through lectures and handouts by the police department.

Other crimes mentioned in the report include theft, which increased from 1,244 reported incidents in 1979 to 1,286 in 1980. This category included all misdemeanor and felony thefts, according to Lt. Terry Murphy. Aggravated assaults, which are assaults with a deadly weapon or assaults on certain people such as a police officers or judges, increased from 54 in 1979 to 66 in 1980.

Robberies increased from 31 in 1979 to 34 in 1980, and there were two homicides in 1980, as compared to five in 1979. Both of the 1980 homicides were reckless homicides, one of which was committed with an auto, Murphy said.

The report showed a reduction in traffic accidents from 1,335 in 1979 to 1,067 in 1980. The traffic unit, which directed attention to high-accident intersections in the city, was probably the primary factor in this 22 percent traffic accident reduction, Hogan said.

The intersections showing the largest reductions in accidents were Mill Street and University Avenue, which had 24 accidents in 1979, as compared to 12 in 1980. The Walnut Street and Lewis Lane intersection had 21 accidents in 1979 and only 10 in 1980. Main Street and Oakland Avenue had 9 in 1980 as compared to 15 in 1979.

Student retention task force formed

By Mike Anton
Staff Writer

Members are now being sought for a fourth presidential task force that will explore student recruitment and retention policy at the University, Richard Millman, assistant to the president, said Tuesday.

The study will look into how the academic reputation of the University affects recruitment of students and how "the second curriculum" of student services affects the student retention rate, Millman said. He said a target date of Feb. 15 has been set for appointments to be completed.

Millman said the panel will study how entertainment and recreational programs, housing, and policies of the Bursar's Office and Admissions and Records affects retention.

"Retention of students is important, since, as the pool of students who attend college drops, the question arises: How are we going to keep ourselves at the same level?" he said.

Final appointments to three other task forces aimed at studying faculty rewards, SIUC's academic priorities for the 1980's and the University's role in community service were completed last month. Millman said it is hoped the latest study would be completed before the end of the semester.

He added that while there are no major recruitment and retention problems facing SIUC at this time, the study would help to identify "problems we don't know about."

Underage drinking questioned

City suspends bar's liquor license

By Tony Gordon
Staff Writer

THE CARBONDALE LIQUOR Control Commission found the management of Gatsby's Billiards guilty of selling alcohol to minors and suspended the establishment's liquor license for six days Monday night.

The hearings on the charges against Gatsby's and one charge of underage sale against T. J. McFly's sparked a lengthy discussion of the problems involved with the enforcement of the state minimum drinking age in Carbondale.

T. J. McFly's was found not guilty of a charge that two underage patrons were sold alcohol there on Nov. 6, 1980. Attorney's representing Gatsby's pleaded guilty to the charge of underage sale on Oct. 30, 1980, and were found guilty of two additional charges, one each on Nov. 5 and 13.

UNLESS AN APPEAL IS granted by the state liquor commission, Gatsby's will be closed Feb. 12, 18, 19, 20, 26 and 27 by order of the Carbondale commission.

During the hearings the attorney's representing both bars, Phil Gilbert and Guice Strong, argued that the responsibility for liquor sales enforcement must be shared by the management of bars and the city. They proposed stiffer penalties for minors apprehended purchasing alcohol, a police and court system crackdown on the use of false identification and on-going police department training for bar employees in recognizing false identification cards.

COMMISSION MEMBERS and Assistant City Attorney Elizabeth Byrne said that the attorneys had raised valid concerns, but found their arguments generally not applicable to the charges being heard because only one of the cases dealt with the use of an improper identification card.

Carbondale policemen Pete Emmett, Mel Krekel and Randy Corey testified at the hearings and described the circumstances involved in each incident.

The charge against T. J. McFly's could not be proven because the minors charged with purchase of the alcohol, SIUC students Tracy Warton and Jeff Dvorak, told the commission they had not bought the beer they were arrested with from an employee of the bar.

T. J. MCFLY'S MANAGER, Melanic Armstrong, told the commission that the bar guards against sales to minors by checking identification of patrons entering the bar and stamping the hands of those at least 21-years-old. She also said an employee of the bar circulates through the room to check that no one without a stamp is purchasing or consuming alcohol. More than 50 underage people had been ejected from the bar by her staff one night last week for attempting to purchase alcohol, she said.

As the hearing on the charges against Gatsby's was opened, Gilbert entered a guilty plea on the Oct. 30 violation. One of Gatsby's waitresses, Pamala Morris, told the commission that in that incident, she had served a pitcher of beer to a table of four people without checking the identification of all four. Emmett testified that when he checked the people at the table, only one was 21.

Emmett said on Nov. 5, he was in Gatsby's and observed waitress Sandy McWhorter sell a glass of bourbon and Coke to a male patron who was playing pool. Emmett said he checked the individual's identification shortly after the sale and found out he was 18.

Gus says the underage drinker's problem won't go away so long as a minor can be in a draft but can't have one.

Democrats in Illinois Senate boycott Thompson's address

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Illinois Senate Democrats, ousted from the powerful Senate presidency on Jan. 15 in a surprise coup by outnumbered Republicans, staged their own comeback Tuesday and elected their own president without any Republicans present.

The bizarre move set off political fireworks that delayed for more than an hour Republican Gov. James R. Thompson's usually routine "State of the State" message, scheduled for Tuesday afternoon.

Thompson began the speech about 2:15 p.m. after it had been delayed when Senate Democrats decided to boycott the speech, normally delivered to a joint House and Senate legislative session.

After an hour-long recess, only one Democrat returned to the House floor: Rep. Michael J. Madigan, D-Chicago, the House Democratic leader.

Madigan accused Republican leaders, including Thompson and new House Speaker George H. Ryan, R-Kankakee, of "tyranny" and said House Democrats joined the Senate Democrats' boycott of the governor's speech as a symbol of protest.

Thompson departed from a prepared text and began the address by accusing Democrats of "taking the law into their own hands ... dropping it and stomping on it."

He also said the Democrats' boycott of his speech was "a slap in the face of 11 million (Illinois) citizens."

Senate Democrats, who hold a 30-29 edge in that chamber, had convened the chamber 15 minutes ahead of schedule Tuesday.

26 U of I frat members suspended

URBANA (UPI) — Members of the Delta Tau Delta Fraternity at the University of Illinois deny their fraternity is another "Animal House," but 26 of them have been suspended for disciplinary reasons.

A security guard was at the house Tuesday to prevent the 26 suspended members from returning. Local alumni members would not give specific reasons for the suspensions but some house members admitted transgressions that ranged from some fraternity members running naked through a "mixer" with a campus sorority to the alleged vandalism of a Pittsburgh hotel room by some traveling members.

"Animal House" was a recent popular film about members of a fictitious fraternity who acted rowdy and never studied.

Carter considered for peace prize

OSLO, Norway (UPI) — Polish labor leader Lech Walesa, Zimbabwe Prime Minister Robert Mugabe and former President Jimmy Carter are among those who have been nominated for the 1981 Nobel Peace Prize, the Nobel Institute announced today.

The missing Swedish diplomat Raoul Wallenberg, reportedly alive in a Soviet prison 34 years after being arrested by the Red Army, also was nominated, the Institute said. Soviet authorities have said he died of a heart attack.

Institute director Jacob Sverdrup said U.S. Deputy Sec. of State Warren Christopher, who negotiated the release of the 52 U.S. hostages from Iran, was not a nominee.

The Nobel Committee does not announce nominees, but confirms or denies suggested names. The award is announced in October.

Garwood defense offers final plea

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Pleading for the freedom of Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood, who is accused of collaborating with the Vietnamese communists, defense lawyers on Tuesday argued the case is "one of a kind" and will not create any precedents for the Marine Corps.

In closing arguments in the court-martial, which has been a year in the making, chief defense counsel John C. Lowe characterized Garwood as a victim of systematic intimidation that drove him insane during 14 years of captivity in Vietnam.

Defense lawyers have managed to whittle the charges against Garwood from four to two. But he still faces possible life imprisonment if convicted on either charge of collaboration with the enemy or maltreatment of a fellow

American. "This is a one-of-a-kind case and it has never happened before and never again," Lowe said. As the military jury listened intently, he insisted "it is not a precedent."

The court-martial of Garwood, 34, an Indianapolis native who was captured by the Viet Cong in 1965 and returned home voluntarily in 1979, is seen by many as a test of the U.S. military's code of conduct that requires captives to resist.

Final arguments were expected to conclude later Tuesday and the case then goes to the jury. Unlike civilian jurors, the military requires that only one vote be taken during deliberations and four of the five jurors must agree for a guilty verdict.

Lowe, trying to counter government testimony that Garwood accepted favors from his Vietnamese captors that were turned down by other American prisoners of war, said, "The Department of Defense recognizes that things happen in POW camps. The code of conduct has a new bounce-back provision that in fact allows soldiers to go ahead and do something, to cooperate and then bounce back."

The government case, which is based on testimony from eight fellow captives of Garwood, portrays him as a survivor who put personal well-being ahead of any other consideration.

Lowe said Garwood developed a split level of consciousness because he was isolated early in his capture, because he suffered deprivation and because he saw executions of Vietnamese prisoners. The defense lawyer argued Garwood was made mentally ill.

City, police contract ratified, retroactive pay raise included

By Andrew Strang
Staff Writer

The 14-month contract battle between the Carbondale Police Officers' Association and the city ended Monday night when the City Council approved a two-year contract.

The new contract gives CPOA members an annual 8 percent retroactive pay raise effective from May 1, 1980, the date on which the old contract expired. The contract also increases the clothing allowance for each officer from $250 to $300 beginning Aug. 1, 1981, and changed the rules pertaining to the adjustment of the officers' work shifts.

CPOA President Joe Coughlin said the CPOA, which approved the contract on Jan. 23, is "pleased" with the agreement. The contract increases the base pay of a police officer from $1,006 per hour to $7,566 per hour effective from May 1, 1980, and then to $8,171 per hour beginning May 1, 1981.

The contract also allows the police chief to temporarily change the work shift of an officer for up to four days, something not allowed under the previous contract. Under the new contract, the chief can change the shift of an officer with a 24-hour notice, providing that the officer was not scheduled to work on the day of the change and providing that the officer did not have court appearances at the time of the change.

The contract was worked out by Paul Schoen, attorney for the 35-member CPOA, and a city negotiating team of Assistant City Manager Scott Ratter, Police Chief Ed Hogan and John Wo.nick, acting as special counsel for the city. The CPOA approved the contract by about a 4 to 1 margin, Coughlin said, just five days before arbitration was scheduled to begin.

The major stumbling block for the contract had been an 8.5 percent salary increase that the CPOA had requested from the city. The city had offered a 7 percent pay increase, which the CPOA rejected on May 2, 1980. On May 13, City Manager

Carrol Fry offered an 8.5 percent pay hike if all of the CPOA members would move into the city within six months, but the union rejected that offer. And on Oct. 7, the CPOA rejected another 8.5 percent salary increase which would not have been retroactive May 1, the old contract's expiration date.

The contract negotiations began in November, 1979, and CPOA members had been working under the old contract since May 1, 1980.

Coughlin said the 8 percent pay increase was accepted by the CPOA because "we had been looking for a compromise." He said the 8.5 percent pay increase figure was not definite, and that the 8 percent increase represented a "reasonable compromise."

Man robbed at knifepoint

Carbondale police are searching for two men who forced their way into the house of a Carbondale man and robbed him Monday night.

Sagar Magion, 18, 506 E. College St., told police that two black men forced their way into his apartment when he answered a knock on the door, at about 10 p.m. The men, one armed with a knife, were both wearing ski masks when they shoved Magion onto the floor and covered his face with a jacket, according to police.

The men took a cassette tape recorder, a 20 ounce bottle of cologne, assorted food snacks and $2 from Magion's wallet, police said. The men tied-up Magion, threatened to kill him if he reported the crime, and then fled, police said.

IBHE deals fatal blow to salary catch-up plan

IN CASE ANYONE has missed it, a death knell is sounding for the salary catch-up plan. Any SIU-C faculty or staff members expecting a hefty salary increase from the Illinois General Assembly in 1982 can forget it—thanks to the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

The IBHE delivered a fatal blow to the catch-up plan a few weeks ago when it released its budget recommendations for fiscal 1982. To call the recommendations amazingly modest is to understate the case.

After a decade in which faculty buying power has declined, by the most sparing estimate, from 14 to 21 percent due to inflation, the IBHE has recommended a 10.5 percent salary increase calculated on 90 percent of the University's existing salary base.

That figure is objectionable on several counts. First of all, it's blatant deception. By calculating the 10.5 percent increase on only 90 percent of the University's existing salary base, the IBHE is fudging on the real size of the salary increase.

WHAT THE 90 PERCENT base figure means is that the University will receive only enough funds to finance a 10.5 percent increase for 90 percent of the faculty.

Which has caused alarm bells to ring among University officials. Normally, faculty turnover and vacancies allow the IBHE to calculate salary increases on a 95 percent base and still have faculty receive the promised percentage amount.

That won't be the case with a 90 percent base, however. To deliver on the promised 10.5 percent increase, the SIU system will have to dig into its own pocket for $550,000. The elimination, freezing or downgrading of faculty positions is already being considered—during a period of rising enrollments!

Other alternatives, equally unpalatable, include raising tuition above and beyond next year's planned increase of 10 percent or taking funds originally earmarked for new programs. Or the administration could just tell faculty and staff tough luck.

THE IBHE REFERS to this new math as "internal productivity savings and self-help requirements." We think "misleading and deceptive" is more accurate. The IBHE would deal with facts as they are.

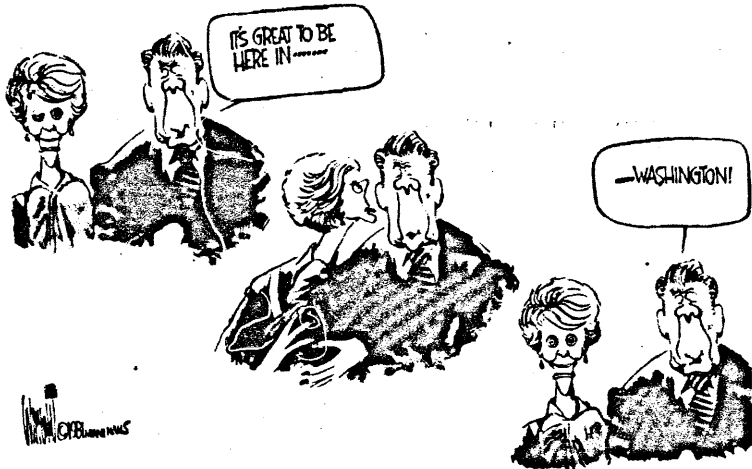

Then there is the question of the IBHE's recommendation of a 10.5 percent increase itself (however false that figure may be). The increase is made up of 9 percent to meet the rising cost-of-living and 1.5 percent to "catch-up" with lost buying power.

We won't belabor the obvious. Suffice it to say that inflation can be expected to be far above 9 percent next year. The extra 1.5 percent might even allow salaries to "catch up" to within a few percentage points of the inflation rate.

WE WILL BELABOR, however, the fact that during a year in which the governor has said publicly that he would support a catch-up plan, the IBHE has emasculated that plan. Study after study has shown that faculty salaries in Illinois lag 4 to 6 percent behind comparable institutions in other states. The IBHE should be confronting these realities, not spearheading the governor's budget cutting efforts.

Unfortunately, even further emasculation of the IBHE's modest recommendations is probably in store. The governor can chop a percentage point or two off the IBHE's recommendations without drawing too much political fire.

Whether Gov. James Thompson will do that chopping remains to be seen, but the sorry state of Illinois' economy certainly portends cutbacks. Thompson is expected to address the IBHE's recommendations within the next week to 10 days. Only those wearing rose-colored glasses are optimistic.

Reagan's warning to terrorists should have been aimed at himself

DOUBLE-STANDARD politics has already shown up in the Reagan administration. In welcoming home the former hostages, Ronald Reagan, in the firmest of voices, said: "Let terrorists be aware that when the rules of international behavior are violated, our policy will be one of swift and effective retribution."

What about the terrorism against U.S. citizens in El Salvador? In the past two months, six Americans have been slain there. Several others, including journalists, have disappeared. The Salvadoran government has charged no one with murder or kidnapping. A well-publicized "investigation" into the December slayings of four Catholic women missionaries has turned up nothing.

Church leaders and human-rights groups say that the passive witness to this violence, as well as most of the violence that took 10,000 lives in 1980, is the Salvadoran government. Through the National Army, paramilitary security forces and rightist death squads, it has sanctioned a systematic extermination of both real and imagined opponents.

ALL THAT'S BEEN "swift and effective" about official American reaction to the murders of its own citizens is to send more weapons, military equipment and advisers to the ruthless Salvadoran government. In one of the last acts of his presidency Jimmy Carter restored the $5 million in military aid that had been suspended when the four U.S. missionaries were killed. Secretary of State Alexander Haig said last week that the amount may be increased.

While Reagan blusters at the L'ansians for their past terrorism, his unspoken message to terrorists in El Salvador is the opposite: Keep it up, friends, and here's some firepower from us to help you.

In January, Archbishop John Roach, the president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, said that the flow of military aid to El Salvador "enhances the possibility of more violence from the security forces and associates of the United States with acts of oppression which can only alienate the majority of the people of El Salvador."

ROACH, WHOSE GROUP met with Carter to plead that no more arms be sent, was echoing the thoughts of the martyred Archbishop Romero. In February 1980, a month before his assassination during Mass, Romero wrote to Carter to ask that America's military intervention be stopped. He told of how an earlier shipment of $200,000 in "riot control equipment" had already pushed government security forces to greater violence against the poor and dissidents. Romero was ignored.

Colman McCarthy

The justification for the most recent intervention was that the ruling junta—portrayed as sensible centrists up against right and left extremists—needed help against guerrillas bent on revolution. The latter, we are asked to believe, are a bit cozy with Cuba and the Soviets. Robert White, our ambassador, said that "We have always taken the position that it is unacceptable to have El Salvador fall into the hands of the Marxists. We will do everything we can (to prevent it)."

This is warmed-over Kissingerism. When asked to explain United States intervention in overthrowing the elected Allende government in Chile, Henry Kissinger replied: "I don't see why we need to standby and permit a country to go communist due to the irresponsibility of its own people."

IN EL SALVADOR, the irresponsible are at it again. These are the country's poor and landless, as well as the teachers, doctors, clergy, labor organizers and social workers ministering to them. When a few of these oppressed run out of patience, seeing themselves cornered in a fight-or-die position, they take up arms and learn that for them Marxism does indeed have some useful theories.

This is enough to make the United States come running. But this time, our attempts to engineer the outcome of another country's dispute may be frustrated, as it should be. While U.S. officials talk geopolitics, popular leaders in El Salvador talk better. "In this country," the new archbishop said a few days ago, "no one can govern if they ignore the force of the Left."

El Salvador is in revolution, one that is long overdue. The essence of this revolution—stripped of guerrilla violence provoked by the government's war on its own people—is less in Marxism than in the radical teaching of Popes Paul VI and John Paul II. Both leaders have spoken forcefully on the rights of Latin America's poor for justice. "The force of the Left," as the new archbishop knows and the slain Catholic sisters knew, is based on moral force. Which is why El Salvador's death-sanctioning government, bolstered by U.S. arms, can't stop it.—(c) 1981, The Washington Post Co.

Film festival dedicated to Polish filmmaker

Editor's Note: This year's Big Muddy Film Festival is dedicated to Andrzej Wajda, one of Poland's top filmmakers. Three of his films will be shown during the festival. Mitche Maczkevski, a cinema and photography major, interviewed Wajda in Poland and had their conversation printed in the Yugoslavian magazine, "Zdrava." Quotations from that interview are included in this story.

By Rod Smith
Entertainment Editor

When independent filmmakers and interested moviegoers view vast amounts of film this week at the third annual Big Muddy Film Festival, they will pay particular attention to the work of Andrzej Wajda, a top Polish film director whose work attempts to capture the feelings of his nation's people.

Although Wajda is directing a new film in Poland and is unable to attend the festival, the filmmakers and onlookers here will have the opportunity to study and appreciate his work. When the festival opens Thursday at the Student Center Auditorium, "A Generation" will be shown at 9 p.m. This 1964 film, Wajda's first effort, was heralded as the start of a new movement in Polish filmmaking. It breaks away from heroism and adapts the techniques of neo-realism concerning World War II.

At 1 p.m. Friday, "Kanal," an intensely powerful drama filmed in 1956 will be shown. The movie depicts Polish partisans who use the Warsaw sewer system, or kanals, in an attempt to escape the Nazis in 1944. This film won a directing prize at the Cannes Film Festival in 1957.

"Ashes and Diamonds," Wajda's best-known work, will be screened at 3:30 p.m. Saturday. This 1958 movie is the story of the mixed-up loyalties and emotions of a young Pole on the last day of the war and the first day of peace following World War II. Wajda is noted for his exceptional camera work, which captured the richness of Polish romantic paintings and poetry. Wajda deals with sensitive subjects concerning the Polish people and expresses an optimistic opinion about his work.

"I've worked 23 years in this field and none of my films have been banned. If you want to say something, you can say it in a film in the proper way and everything will be OK," Wajda said. "If I couldn't say what I wanted in the movies, I would

CHILDREN OF PALESTINE

In 1979, the International Year of the Child, a German filmmaker and a Palestinian filmmaker directed Children of Palestine, a painful and shocking film which exposes the reality of the Palestinian population in Lebanon through the experience of their children. Little is known in this country about the war which has been taking place in South Lebanon; about the thousands of victims, mainly women and children; about the napalm, the fragmentation bombs and the "counter-terrorism" attacks. Children of Palestine was awarded a Special Prize at the 1979 Leipzig Film Festival.

This is the first filmed history to present a comprehensive examination of the Palestinian/Israeli conflict. It covers the history of the region in an effective and clearly understandable manner, shorn of polemic and prejudice.
 The film traces the roots of the conflict to the early Jewish settlement in Palestine during the Ottoman rule; with it come the first opposition from the Palestinian population. The film continues with a survey of Palestine through the time of the British Mandate, the establishment of the State of Israel, and the major wars of 1948, 1956, 1967, and 1973. It concludes with an analysis of the present situation of the Palestinian people.

'Nine to Five' combines talents into successful, uplifting film

By Rod Smith
Entertainment Editor

"Nine to Five" is a bright comedy that will be a favorite of all workers who do their job every day, remain smiling through the misery and the motions of the same boring routine and who hate their cruel boss—wishing they could do something about it.

The setting is a simple one. The three co-stars are employees at a mammoth business corporation who work under the whip-cracking control of new floor boss, Franklin Hart, Jr., a sexist, hypocritical, prejudice bigot, whose unfair business practices thoroughly infuriate the office workers.

Lily Tomlin is Violet, a dedicated "company woman" for 12 years who has to bow to every whim of the boss in order to get his approval for a promotion. Jane Fonda (finally in a role other than an aggressive reporter) is Judy, a recent divorcee who is trying to make it on her own by taking her first job. Dolly Parton is Doralee, the gun-toting office sex symbol who is disliked by her peers who think she is sleeping with the boss. Actually, Doralee is constantly running from his pinching and cooing.

The three girls meet in a bar and moan about their individual problems after one particularly bad day at work. Later, they go to Doralee's house, get high on Mauri Wauwi weed, and fantasize on how they'd like to "do in" the boss.

Folk guitarist

set to perform

Noted for his appealing blend of sensitive ballads and rousing sing-alongs, folk guitarist Jim Post will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday in Ballroom D of the Student Center. Tickets are $2.50 and can be purchased at the Student Center Central Ticket Office.

Post began his career as the result of winning a singing contest on a radio station. He has since recorded several albums including "Colorado Exile," "Back on the Street Again" (for which he received a Grammy Award nomination) and his new live album, "Magic."

Review

Nine to Five, starring Lily Tomlin, Jane Fonda and Dolly Parton, directed by Colin Higgins, University 4, Reviewer's Rating: 3½ stars (4 stars tops).

Portions of each of the girls' dreams come true. When the boss goes to the hospital after hitting his head falling out of his swivel chair, Violet wrongly thinks that a rat poison she accidentally put in his coffee (it really was an accident) killed him.

The girls run around in a state of mass hysteria trying to think of an explanation. The next day, the boss returns to the office—alive—and the girls think their problems are over.

Wrong. The boss' brown-nosing spy in the ladies' room overhears a conversation of those escapades and dutifully reports it to her leader. The boss uses this information to bribe the three girls into doing what he wants or he'll call the police.

So the girls must dig up some dirt on the boss. They do, but can't get the concluding evidence, company invoices, for four weeks. They kidnap the boss, buying time while they try to officially nail him to the wall. While he's away, the girls run the office—their way—making changes that make the job pleasant and reasonably enjoyable (against all the boss' principles, of course).

But the good times end when the boss breaks free, covers up his wrongdoings and returns to report the girls' escapades to authorities.

But the movie's real surprise is country-western singer Dolly Parton in her first time on the movie screen. She is appealing in her role as the misunderstood girl that nobody liked, but whose charm and quick-wit are irresistible. She delivers most of the good wisecracks (i.e. "I'll change you (the boss) from a rooster to a hen in one shot") and is surprisingly talented as an actress.

This movie is already one of the season's most popular and with good reason. Parton could be a new sensation in film. Tomlin rebounds from her last atrocious film, "Minute by Minute," and Fonda, although still portraying a strong-willed feminist, changes up from her last pictures. This is an uplifting film that effectively combines the considerable talents of these three actresses.

Consumer group files to enter mine litigation

By Liz Griffin
Staff Writer

A Herrin-based consumer interest group filed a motion Friday to intervene in two federal land reclamation lawsuits to be tried in U.S. district court in Springfield. The motion charges that through federal court litigation the Illinois Department of Mine and Minerals and the Illinois Coal Association are trying to change a state proposal concerning land reclamation, and asks that the Herrin-based Illinois South Project be allowed to act as defendants in the suits. Illinois must meet federal minimum requirements of the Federal Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act, although the state can pass more stringent land reclamation laws.

Mike Schechtman, spokesman for the Illinois South Project, said that the state proposal for land reclamation of the surface effects of underground mining, which was rejected by the Department of Interior, "essentially" contains loopholes and that other parts of the state proposal may not be sufficiently explicit to be upheld in court.

"If it isn't explicit enough then a coal operator could have it challenged and have it voided," Schechtman said. "We feel the state of Illinois was very sloppy in handling the program. The state of Illinois had 60 days to make revisions to get the program to meet federal minimum standards."

Taylor Pensoneau, vice president of the ICA, said the actions of the Department of Interior have been "capricious and arbitrary" in approving programs submitted by the Department of Mines and Minerals.

"We argued that the secretary's decision failed to specify those parts of the Illinois program that were specifically approved," Pensonneau said. The entire program shouldn't have to be resubmitted, he said.

Doug Downing, spokesman for the Department of Mines and Minerals, said that the suits against the Department of Interior were contending that all decisions—not only the final decisions—of the federal department were reviewable in court due to sections in the federal act.

Downing said the underlying problem is federal regulation of state land use—which lands may be used for mining and how lands may be used after they are mined.

Illinois twins hope to be state's 'most identical'

CHICAGO (AP) — "If I look like him, I'll kill myself," say both of the 77-year-old Caulfield brothers about each other. William and Amos are identical twins.

The lifelong bachelors, who share a home in Belleville, and two others sets of identical twins are finalists in the Illinois Lottery Identical Twins contest.

The Caulfields, riding in an airplane for the first time to attend a news conference Tuesday, joined Brett and Brad Salamon, 22, of suburban Flossmoor, and Henrietta Parrish Hudson and Loretta Parrish Skinner, 40, of Chicago in the finalists' circle.

The twins were judged from photographs by Gov. James R. Thompson and Richard W. Carlson, lottery superintendent, to be the three most identical in the state.

There will be public voting now to determine the winning set which will be announced in March. The balloting ends at midnight on Feb. 28. Pictures of the finalists are on posters at lottery locations and voting is done by post card.

The winning set gets $1,000 with $500 for second and $250 for third.

The Parrish sisters are both married to musicians, both adopted the Moslem faith, and both are registered nurses. They and their husbands share the same residence along with seven children.

"Our husbands can tell us apart, but sometimes it takes a few seconds," said Loretta. "On several occasions, I've caught my sister's husband about to tell me something, and suddenly he'll get that look in his eyes, as if to say, 'You aren't Henrietta.'"

Being twins doesn't necessarily double your fun, say the Salamons.

City will hold second meeting on Carbondale energy future

By Melody Cook
Staff Writer

The second of three public meetings designed to unearth city residents' suggestions for Carbondale's future energy programs will be held Thursday at 7 p.m. in the First Baptist Church at Main and University.

Futures Forum-West, an open meeting sponsored by Carbondale's Energy Division, is designed to give west-side residents an opportunity to voice suggestions concerning the city's energy needs and goals.

The key speaker at the meeting will be Wayne Schick, research professor emeritus of architecture of the University of Illinois and member of the International Solar Energy Society. He will speak on the topic "Energy, Housing and Community," after short introduction speeches by Robert Paris, Carbondale energy coordinator and Chris Robertson, municipal solar utility project director at Shawnee Solar Project.

After Schick's address, the participants are expected to form small discussion groups to bring out individual perceptions of Carbondale's energy goals and objectives. A summary of the discussions will be presented to the entire group before the meeting adjourns.

Proposals suggested at the first of the three energy meetings, held January 29, included improved recycling, mandates on conservation for rental housing and providing financial incentives for industries using renewable energy sources.

The results of that meeting, combined with the results of Thursday's forum, will be reviewed at a city-wide meeting scheduled for Feb. 26 at Carbondale Central High School Auditorium, 200 N. Springer.

Information gathered through the three public meetings will be forwarded to the newly-formed Energy Futures Task Force, a group of more than 20 representatives from the University, community groups and the city staff. The task force will meet four times in March to refine the suggestions received into specific energy strategies compatible with Carbondale's existing energy goals.

State court upholds strip searches

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Although strip-searches of suspects by police are "a serious invasion of one's rights," the Illinois Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that facts of some arrests demand that police carry out the searches.

The court ruled that such a strip-search was necessary in the case of William Seymour, a Cook County man arrested the night of July 27, 1977 in downtown Chicago for carrying a concealed, loaded handgun.

And justices ruled that since Seymour's arrest on the weapons charge was proper, a packet of cocaine found on him during the search at a police lockup could be used as evidence at his trial.

Two Chicago police officers spotted Seymour leaning into a parked car's open window, stopped him when he began to walk away, and discovered the gun during a pat-down search containing .22 grams of cocaine, the court said.

At his trial, Seymour asked a Cook County circuit court to not allow the cocaine to be used as evidence. The trial judge agreed, saying Seymour should not have been strip-searched by police since he was charged only with a misdemeanor.

But the state's highest court rejected that finding.

Innocent plea is entered by Israeli official

By Marcus Eliasson
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM — Religious Affairs Minister Aharon Abu-Hatzeira pleaded innocent to bribery charges Tuesday at the opening of a trial that could become a political campaign issue in Israel's June election.

It was the first time in Israel's 32-year history that a Cabinet minister had gone on trial. Coming at the outset of what promises to be a bitterly fought election campaign, the trial could further damage Prime Minister Menachem Begin's coalition government.

Abu-Hatzeira belongs to the National Religious Party, a small but powerful party that has been the key partner in almost every coalition government to rule Israel. It is likely to continue to play that role after the election but there is no telling how seriously the Abu-Hatzeira trial may weaken the party's electoral appeal.

Outside the Jerusalem District Court building Abu-Hatzeira's supporters, many from the Moroccan Jewish community in which he is a leading figure, demonstrated noisily, chanting his name.

Meanwhile, the Law Committee of Parliament set June 30 as the date for national elections, a week earlier than the government had originally proposed. The change, a compromise between Begin and the opposition Labor Party, which wanted an earlier date, was expected to be ratified this week or next by Parliament.

The government has been eager to get Abu-Hatzeira's trial finished as fast as possible, partly to spare him a lengthy ordeal and partly to prevent the scandal from turning into a major campaign issue.

Abu-Hatzeira also served notice that he wanted a quick trial. At the opening session his lawyer quickly blocked an attempt by the attorney of a co-defendant to postpone proceedings on a technicality. Judge Asher Landau, president of the three-judge court, ordered morning sessions five days a week with afternoon sessions added on three days a week.

Testimony will be heard beginning Feb. 15, as Tuesday's session was only to read the charges and enter pleas.

Abu-Hatzeira and his aide, Moshe Gabbai, are accused of taking about $19,000 in bribes on three different occasions in 1979 in return for approving loans and grants of public money for Jewish religious institutions.

Also on trial are diamond dealer Shmuel Daskel and Rabbi Amram Korach, who are alleged to have paid the bribes.

The 42-year-old minister, dressed in an elegant gray suit and wearing a purple skullcap, maintained the pose of indifference he has displayed ever since the bribery investigation began a year ago. Abu-Hatzeira insists he is innocent, a victim of what he calls "a political libel."

The judge asked each defendant whether he admitted or denied the content of the charge sheet. Each replied that he denied the charges. The Begin government is facing an up-hill battle in the coming election. The coalition was so strained earlier this year that Begin was forced into calling for elections.

Innocent plea is entered by Israeli official

By Marcus Eliason
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM - Religious Affairs Minister Aharon Abu-Hatzeira pleaded innocent to bribery charges Tuesday at the opening of a trial that could become a political campaign issue in Israel's June election.

It was the first time in Israel's 32-year history that a Cabinet minister had gone on trial. Coming at the outset of what promises to be a bitterly fought election campaign, the trial could further damage Prime Minister Menachem Begin's coalition government.

Abu-Hatzeira belongs to the National Religious Party, a small but powerful party that has been the key partner in almost every coalition government to rule Israel. It is likely to continue to play that role after the election but there is no telling how seriously the Abu-Hatzeira trial may weaken the party's electoral appeal.

Outside the Jerusalem District Court building Abu-Hatzeira's supporters, many from the Moroccan Jewish community in which he is a leading figure, demonstrated noisily, chanting his name.

Meanwhile, the Law Committee of Parliament set June 30 as the date for national elections, a week earlier than the government had originally proposed. The change, a compromise between Begin and the opposition Labor Party, which wanted an earlier date, was expected to be ratified this week or next by Parliament.

The government has been eager to get Abu-Hatzeira's trial finished as fast as possible, partly to spare him a lengthy ordeal and partly to prevent the scandal from turning into a major campaign issue.

Abu-Hatzeira also served notice that he wanted a quick trial. At the opening session his lawyer quickly blocked an attempt by the attorney of a co-defendant to postpone proceedings on a technicality. Judge Asher Landau, president of the three-judge court, ordered morning sessions five days a week with afternoon sessions added on three days a week.

Testimony will be heard beginning Feb. 15, as Tuesday's session was only to read the charges and enter pleas.

Abu-Hatzeira and his aide, Moshe Gabbai, are accused of taking about $19,000 in bribes on three different occasions in 1979 in return for approving loans and grants of public money for Jewish religious institutions.

Also on trial are diamond dealer Shmuel Daskel and Rabbi Amram Korach, who are alleged to have paid him the bribes.

The 42-year-old minister, dressed in an elegant gray suit and wearing a purple skullcap, maintained the pose of indifference he has displayed ever since the bribery investigation began a year ago.

Abu-Hatzeira insists he is innocent, a victim of what he calls "a political libel."

The judge asked each defendant whether he admitted or denied the content of the charge sheet. Each replied that he denied the charges.

The Begin government is facing an up-hill battle in the coming election. The coalition was so strained earlier this year that Begin was forced into calling for elections.

Grad Council to pick delegates

Election of representatives to two University committees is expected to be the main business at the Graduate Council meeting Thursday at 8 a.m. in the Mississippi Room of the Student Center.

U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-Carbondale, was elected chairman of the subcommittee on Post-Secondary Education Tuesday by his Democratic colleagues on the House Education and Labor Committee.

Simon's press aide, Steve Hull, said the congressman will use his position to secure funding for higher education across the nation.

"This makes Paul the number one person in the House for colleges and universities," Hull said. "He will be in a position to help secure financial support for the college student."

Hull said Simon hasn't had time to form any specific plans, but that the position will give him power over higher education legislation.

Simon will be battling the Reagan administration to preserve loans and grants to college students.

"Reagan wants to cut back on a lot of the federal scholarship and loan programs," Hull said. "Paul will be fighting to preserve funding for those things."

REAGAN BIRTHDAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will celebrate his 70th birthday Friday, but the White House is keeping quiet today about the celebration plans.

One story leaked out that a surprise birthday party was planned, ruining the surprise, said first lady Nancy Reagan's press secretary, Sheila Patton.

She said that "a number of things are being planned," but that the details would not be available until Thursday.

retention. Members of the task force will study student services offered on campus, how they affect recruitment, retention and the dropout rate.

A representative also is expected to be chosen for the search committee for the position of vice president for financial affairs. The position was vacated when Robert E. Gentry resigned in December to take an administrative position at Seton Hall University in New Jersey.

The council also is expected to discuss expansion needs of Morris Library. The library was constructed to serve 150,000 students and hold 350,000 volumes. The library currently serves over 23,000 students and houses over 1.5 million volumes.

McWhorter told the commission that she had made the sale without asking for identification because the individual was known as a regular customer and that the empty glass he had in his possession when she served him indicated to her that he was of legal age. Jerome Flasch, Gatsby's assistant manager, also said the individual in question, who was not present at the hearing, was a regular patron.

The third charge against Gatsby's alleged that bartender Robert DeGraff sold two drinks to an underage patron on Nov. 13. Emmett and Krekel told the commission that they were inside the bar, conversing with Flasch, at the time of the sale and observed it from less than 10 feet away. Emmett said he attempted to draw Flasch's attention to the sale because he did not believe the purchaser was 21, but that Flasch had opted not to intervene.

Emmett said when he and Krekel approached the individual after the sale, the patron produced an SIUC identification card bearing a picture that "was obviously not him," and was arrested after showing a driver's license that proved he was under 21.

In summarizing his case, Gilbert told the commission that false identification cards were in wide-spread use in Carbondale and that his clients, Gatsby's and T.J. McFly's, had confiscated dozens of them to be turned over to the police within the last four or five months. He suggested that, when possible, the city should prosecute people who are apprehended attempting to use false identification cards, or cards not their own, by police or bar employees.

He also asked the commission to consider requesting the courts to levy higher fines on minors arrested purchasing alcohol.

Mayor Hans Fischer said the city would consider starting a training program for employees of bars to help in their ability to recognize false identification cards, but "the city is not going to get involved in the management of bars."

"It is unreasonable for bar owners to try to put the monkey on the city's back when it comes to managing their establishments," Fischer said. "Each licensee takes the responsibility of keeping their operation within the law."

"The city may have to take another look," at the decision made just prior to the state change in the minimum drinking age to allow those under 21 to be admitted to bars in Carbondale, Fischer said.

the air on a pole and land on a little mat. Gymnastics is the same way.

All of the sports began to conflict in high school and the various coaches didn't like that. He then decided to channel his energy into gymnastics.

"I really enjoyed the tumbling program I took as a kid and I get enjoyment out of competing," he said. "This individual aspect is important because it is all up to you to do a good job."

Babcock's positive attitude, confidence and enthusiasm are what makes him the best according to Meade.

"Individual disasters don't bother him," Meade said. "He'll have a little disaster in one event and he doesn't let it bother him in the next event."

Ironically, it was Meade's enthusiasm which sold Babcock on SIU-C.

"I was sold on going to Oklahoma," he said. "But when Coach Meade brought me here, from what I saw, I'd thought I'd fit in better here.

He showed more interest in me and his personality and enthusiasm drew me to him. It's really super to be in the gym around him.

"Coach Meade likes to kid me and say it was the discos around here that made me come here," he added. "I was attracted by the social life. There isn't much to do in Garden City."

Babcock is also attracted by goals. He set his sights on scoring a 57 and did it against NIU. He has set several other goals for himself also.

"I'd like to go 111 next weekend," he said. "If I do that, I qualify for the USA championships. If you get in the top 14, you get to compete internationally. That's basically what I want to do. I'm thinking about the Olympics, too. I'd like to be there in 1984. This is a super team and I know we'll go to nationals. These guys are super in and out of gymnastics. We have great team spirit. The enthusiasm is outstanding."

$20 million sale of White Sox becomes official

CHICAGO (AP)—Sale of the Chicago White Sox for $20 million became official Tuesday when Bill Veech handed the keys of Comiskey Park to Jerry Reinsdorf at the signing ceremonies in Sears Tower.

Earlier, Veech had cleaned out his desk at the ball park and both Veech and Reinsdorf sidestepped questions of any possibility of Veech taking a position with the new organization.

Asked if he would miss his fellow American League owners, Veech replied: "I didn't like them when I came in and I don't like them going out. On the other hand, I'm sure the feeling is reciprocal."

American League owners last week approved sale of the club to Reinsdorf, a suburban Highland Park real estate developer, and Eddie Einhorn, a television executive from New Jersey. Twice before they turned down sale of the club to Edward J. DeBartolo Sr.

improvement at other levels.

"First, there would be one set of rules. There would be designated hitters in both leagues or neither. There would have to be a vote."

Veech warmed up to his subject.

"Secondly," he added, "here would be one set of umpes for both leagues, not two sets with different codes. No, I wouldn't turn them over to the commissioner, not the way that office operates. To somebody else, but not the commissioner's office."

"Thirdly, there would be artificial turf or no artificial turf. I understand the difficulties in inside arenas like the Astrodome. But I firmly feel a baseball park should smell like grass, not an extension of the city streets with cigarette smoke and other odors."

"The leagues should be realigned. There should be three divisions and a wild card as in pro football. Emphasis should be on natural rivalries—Cubs-White Sox, Yankees-Mets, Dodgers-Angels, Toronto-Montreal, Dallas-Houston."

Veech, who lured crowds by activating a midjet pinch hitter, observing "fan days," and giving away dishes, shrimp and race horses, said he that baseball should make people laugh.

"In the 60s," he added, "I spoke to 20 campuses a year. The mood was never to smile.

Everything was on speed, action, violence.

"Now, everybody wants to smile and be happy. Baseball is the answer. It is the island of stability in an unstable world."

Wichita coaches accused of payoffs

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Four former Wichita State University basketball players say they received more than $4,500 in gratuities from coaches and college athletic backers in the past three years, according to a copyright story Monday in The Kansas City Times.

Richard Williams of Hollywood, Calif., who was kicked off the Shocker team last year for a curfew violation, and three others said they received thousands of dollars in cash, clothes, airline tickets and "forgiven" loans during the period.

The newspaper also said the mother of Wichita State basketball player Antoine Carr, Jo Ann Carr, moved her family into a $62,500 home and bought two new cars after her son joined the team in 1979. Acquaintances said the family had been living near the poverty level before the son's success, the Times said.

The Times also quoted the unnamed, former girlfriend of a

Wichita State basketball player who said coaches at the school arranged for her to have an abortion so he could stay in school.

Wichita State is a member of the Missouri Valley Conference, along with SIU-C. The Shockers are 16-2 overall and lead the MVC basketball race.

The practices reported in the story, the first of a five-part series, appear to violate National Collegiate Athletic Association rules governing sports at member institutions, The Times said.

"I will confirm we have been in contact with the same principals for about the past year," an NCAA spokesman said Monday. The spokesman would not confirm that the investigation was continuing but said, "The NCAA's normal procedure is to have an announcement when a case is finalized."

Wichita State officials were reluctant to comment on the story, and a spokesman for Athletics Director Ted Bredehoff said Monday he planned to withhold further comment until the newspaper's entire series had been published.

Asked earlier by the Times about allegations of various gratuities for players, Bredehoff said: "Well, in all of those allegations I can safely deny the validity of the rumor." He also told the Times that the school's coaches "have never had, to our knowledge, an inquiry from the NCAA."

Mrs. Carr told the Times she received no money from the university and said a boyfriend helped her make a down payment on the new house. The real estate man who leased the house to Mrs. Carr until she could arrange financing, a process which took almost a year, said she and her boyfriend made a lease payment with 50 $100 bills.

Mrs. Carr, a divorcee, said she took out a loan on a 1981 auto last fall, one day after closing on the house with a $7,961 down payment. She said the new car replaced a 1979 model that Carr's older brother wrecked.

The former Wichita State players—Williams, Tyrone Augburns, Lawrence Howell and Auguster "Sarge" Jackson—told The Times they each received money from coaches or team supporters for trips to their hometowns or for personal expenses. In Williams' case, the monetary gifts amounted to more than $3,000, the newspaper said.

Williams told the newspaper

he received more than $3,000 in gratuities over a two-year period, much of it in cash from Jeff Jones, an assistant basketball coach. He said he also received $425 worth of clothes from a store which employed the wives of Bredehoff and basketball Coach Gene Smithson.

Susan Bredehoff, the athletics director's wife, said of the store where she works, "We're not in the business of giving away free clothes," The Times said.

Williams said the gifts included $1,500 in cash for two trips home to Florida; a $315 airline ticket for a third trip home; two loans of $300 each, which he never repaid to a Wichita bank; and another $300 he requested of Jones in a telephone call from Florida.

"Three days later I received in the mails $300 in cash. It was inside a white envelope and wrapped in yellow paper," Williams said.

Jackson said he was given $500 in cash when he was being recruited by Wichita State in 1978 and several hundred dollars more later.

Veeck says a last goodbye to life's work

NEW YORK (AP)—Bill Veeck, in another adieu to baseball, said Monday. "It's been great, but it's not as much fun anymore."

"Where else could a guy with one leg, who can't see or hear live in luxury, doing what he loves to do?" added the 67-year-old baseball Barnum.

"But it has been less fun lately. The game has gone corporate. Peoples aren't as nice. They don't come around as much and, when they do, they bring 16 accountants and 42 witnesses."

Veeck, who is an innovative owner of the Cleveland Indians, St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox at various stages of his career, transfers ownership of the White Sox in Chicago Tuesday to a group headed by Jerry Reinsdorf, a real estate tycoon, and Eddie Einhorn, a TV executive.

Veeck came to New York to immediate plans for the future. "Calvin Griffith, owner of the Minnesota Twins, and I were the last two dinosaurs in a forest where there are no more trees to feed," he said. "Now only Calvin is left."

"We were the only career operators in the game. Only we had our own wealth. It really invested. All other owners are a corporate entity fed by advertising campaigns and ego trips."

Veeck came to New York to receive the first Lifetime Achievement Award, presented by Baseball Magazine for his service to the game. Veeck said he was appreciative, in this age of escalating salaries and costs, lest baseball lose its principal saving grace—that it remain a "fun" and "simple" game that could be enjoyed by a family of parents and five kids without risking bankruptcy.

Asked if he were given a drawing board and a carte blanche privilege to restructure the game to his wishes, he replied:

"I wouldn't change any way the game is played dugout to dugout."

"It remains the most changeless thing in our society. But I would insist on some Brian Babcock is ranked as the top all-arounder in the nation by the country's college gymnastics coaches.

Babcock is nation's top-ranked gymnast

By Michelle Schwent
Staff Writer

Bill Meade, SIU-C men's gymnastics coach, likes to tell everyone he found his star performer, Brian Babcock, out in the sticks of Kansas.

"I parted a wheat field and there he was," Meade said. "It's sort of like a blind hog rooting around in the trough. Every once in a while he finds an acorn in the trough."

Meade's acorn turned out to be a very special find as Babcock claimed the distinction of being named the No. 1 all-around gymnast in the country by the National Association of Collegiate Gymnastics Coaches this week. Babcock senses rather calm about the entire matter but inside he's jumping for joy.

"I'm thrilled to death to be the best all-around in the nation," Babcock said. "I hope I can keep it going for the NCAA nationals. I'm really excited because it gives me something to look forward to. There's less to worry about now and workouts become easier. Mentally it is easier also."

"Sure, there is pressure because there are other good gymnasts out there and they all want that top spot," he continued. "In this sport it's what you do that counts because it's a very individual sport. It's all goes back to scoring though. Different judges will score you differently, so I could move up or down based on that."

Babcock scored a 57.10 in a meet against Northern Illinois a week ago at the Arena which made him No. 1. He is ranked also in the top 10 in pommel horse, still rings, parallel bars and horizontal bars. Pommel horse is his favorite event with floor exercise and parallel bars cause him the most difficulty.

"Pommel horse is my strongest event and I like it because it is challenging," Babcock said. "After a meet, I'll get up on the pommel horse and play around. Floor exercise gives me trouble because I'm injury-prone in that event and I had to fight to overcome my fear of getting hurt."

The junior from Gardner City, Kan., broke his ankle last year but competed two weeks later in a meet on pommel horse and parallel bars. He scored a 9.35 on the horse and an 8.8 on bars despite the rash.

"Coach told me the only way I could travel to the meet was if I competed," Babcock said. "I did easy dismounts so I wouldn't get hurt."

Babcock says one has to be a little crazy to be a gymnast. He started out in a basic tumbling class when he was six but had to quit when the program was closed down. He competed in football, basketball and track in junior high school but got back into gymnastics in high school and through a private club. He was a pole vaulter in track and likes that to gymnastics.

"I loved pole vaulting," he said. "It's one of those nutty sports too. You have to be a little crazy to jump 18 feet in
