Date set for election to replace Irvin

By Vicki Olgeaty
Staff Writer

An election to replace Student Trustee Stan Irvin has been set for Feb. 21, and potential candidates can pick up petitions to appear on the ballot Thursday.

Irvin is resigning his Board of Trustees position because he has accepted a job as Jackson County assistant state's attorney. The winner of the special election will serve until June 30, when Irvin's term expires.

The Graduate Student Council and the Undergraduate Student Organization decided last week to fund a campuswide election to replace Irvin. Student trustee referendum laws call for a special election to be held within four weeks of the resignation of a student trustee. Irvin said Wednesday that he will resign at the end of the Board of Trustees meeting Feb. 10.

Referendum laws state that trustee elections must be administered and supervised by a commission comprised of three undergraduate and three graduate or professional students. The USO appointed John Strem, Lori Walton and Roger Bauers to the commission last week. The GSC was scheduled to elect its representatives Wednesday night.

Strem said the commission is proceeding without the graduate students, but said he didn't think that would be a problem. "I've been keeping the GSC informed of what we're doing," he said. "If we wait any longer to have this election, we'll be having this thing two weeks before we elect a trustee for next year."

He said all the decisions the undergraduates have made follow referendum laws.

Ann Greeley, who was elected GSC president Wednesday night, said she didn't think the GSC would object to an election date being set without the GSC members. "We've been so caught up with our own internal matters that we have not had time to appoint our representatives," she said.

Greeley said the three graduate members of the trustee board would be appointed too. "We'll do that as quickly as we can so that we can cooperate with USO as much as possible," she said.

Strem said petitions may be picked up in person from the USO office, third floor of the Student Center, starting Thursday. Candidates must fill out a records-check release and must be in good academic standing.

Petitions, complete with signatures, addresses and identification numbers of 200 full-time undergraduate or graduate students, must be turned in to the election board by 5 p.m. Feb. 11. A mandatory candidates' meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Feb. 13 in the Missouri Room of the Student Center.

Strem said no campaigning can take place until after the meeting, during which the possibility of having a debate among the candidates and other campaign rules will be discussed.

Candidates are limited to spending $75 on advertising and all advertising has to be approved by the chairman of the commission. The chairman will be elected by the commission from among its six members.

Any party affiliations of candidates cannot be listed on ballots or advertising, and write-in votes will not be allowed on ballots, referendum laws state.

Businessmen propose organized Halloweens

By Karen Torry
Staff Writer

Making a citywide festival of Halloween to improve the city's image and generate some business seems a good idea, most of about 75 people at a Chamber of Commerce-sponsored meeting agreed Tuesday.

However, Jerry Cook, president of the Undergraduate Student Organization, said the USO would give the proposal only "cautious support" at this time because the discussion seemed to center on "making money off the students." And Mayor Hans Fischer said the City Council would be reluctant to spend tax dollars on the promotion of a Halloween festival.

Gus Bode

Gus says those Halloween crowds won't be interested in bobbing for apples - unless they're in buckets of beer.

A festival could provide a weekend of entertainment for local residents and visitors as well as students, and could promote Carbondale at the same time, Chamber president Donald W. Shay said.

"Yes, there's going to be money made," said Shay, but the primary concerns would be to make the weekend safer and less a problem for the community.

"Our goal is to make this a positive venture," he said.

The Chamber and Towne Central, a downtown business owner's group, proposed a "core committee" of SIU-C, city and merchant groups to lay ground rules for the festival. Subcommittees of "actively involved" people would carry out other tasks, according to Shay.

"We need those people to put in time and energy," he said.

Cook, who spoke at the meeting, said it seemed to him there was more interest in making money than in promoting a safe Halloween.

"There are some very important issues to look at before money," the USO leader said, citing fire prevention and dealing with medical emergencies on Illinois Avenue as fundamental problems that organizers should address.

Marina Saffold, junior in Administrative Sciences, recited Black slave poetry at the Black Affairs Council's variety show. The show, which was held in the basement of Grinnell Hall, featured art exhibits, music, dancers and poetry readings. It was the first event in a month-long observance of Black History Month.

Cook said students should have a strong voice in planning a festival because "this is their celebration." He said the USO would reserve full commitment to the festival plan until more is known about it.

"I don't see why this can't be the Mardi Gras of the Midwest," Chris Wright, a Carbondale realtor, said during the meeting.

"It's just a matter of organization to turn it (Halloween) into something Carbondale can be proud of and make revenue, too," Carbondale resident John Strem said. "There are thousands of towns that would love to have this."

The city is primarily concerned with public health, safety and welfare, Fischer said, but the Carbondale City Council is reluctant to serve as an organizing agent. The council can participate, but members are uncertain that tax dollars should be spent on a Halloween festival.

The spirit of Halloween might be dampened by too much organization, Fischer said.

Water dispute may end soon

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

The seven-year-old feud between the Murdale Water District and the city of Carbondale may finally end Tuesday night.

Mayor Hans Fischer will attend the Murdale Water District Board meeting Tuesday and said he will sign a contract with Murdale if certain changes in the contract can be worked out.

The contract, which was approved by the board last month, would give the city the water rights to service about 500 Carbondale residents who receive city sewer service but are now getting water from Murdale. It calls for the city to pay Murdale $400,000 for the water rights to an area in the west part of the city, including Parrish Acres subdivision, now served by Murdale.

The Carbondale City Council agreed "substantially" to the terms of the contract on Jan. 17 and authorized Fischer to give final approval of the contract after some language changes were made.

From the city's viewpoint, the major problem with the contract concerns future city annexation of property now being served by Murdale. The contract, as it is written now, stipulate that the city can only purchase existing Murdale water lines gained through annexation once every three years.

City Manager Carroll Fry told the council in January that such a stipulation could hinder the development of new subdivisions in that area of the city, and suggested that a one- or two-year negotiation period would be better.

Fischer will be attending the Murdale meeting with John Womick, the attorney representing the city in the water dispute. Fischer said he is confident that the remaining problems can be worked out at the meeting Tuesday.

Murdale board Secretary Richard Crowell declined to say what the board had decided in regards to the contract changes, except that the board "basically agreed to agree" with the requests of the city.

Since water service is a potentially profitable city service, the city has been eager to obtain the water rights for several years. City officials have also noted that it is easier to promote development in areas where the city controls the water lines.

Signing the contract is "something I'm very much looking forward to," Fischer said.

Greeley wins GSC presidential post with and glad to have the opportunity to work with the GSC," Greeley said.

The original election to replace Matalonis on Dec. 7 was invalidated because proper ballots were not provided prior to the voting.

That election was slated after Matalonis announced he would resign as president, effective Jan. 1. Katsinas won the original election over Greeley, 20 to 19.

Greeley said Wednesday night that she would focus on "unification of the council and building up its credibility again."

"I think that will be possible and it will be easy to do with the kind of people I have to work with," she said.

In a prepared memo given to GSC members Wednesday night, Greeley said that she will work to prevent the elimination of clinical programs for law students, an issue which is scheduled to be discussed at the next Law School faculty meeting.

Greeley will also continue the GSC's fight to oppose the purchase of the Bracy Building in Marion for library storage and will try to make sure that women athletes have equity, according to the memo.

Ann Greeley won the Graduate Student Council, presidential seat over Steve Katsinas by a vote of 41 to 14 Wednesday night in the Student Center. Greeley will take the office that was vacated by former president Paul Matalonis, who had resigned.

In the vice-presidential race, Dan Venturi defeated Nicholas Rion by a vote of 35 to 13.

TV production company willing to sell SIU-C sports contract

By Rod Stone
Staff Writer

Phoenix VI, the television production company responsible for covering some SIU-C sporting events, is willing to sell its contract with the University, according to a company official.

"However, at this time no direct offers have been made," Bill Addison, president of the St. Louis-based company, said Wednesday.

Bruce Swinburne vice president for student affairs, said the University expects the contract to be fulfilled, either by Phoenix VI or whoever purchases the contract from them.

Phoenix VI, which has already broadcast three Saluki football games, has to cover five more events this year in order to honor its contract. According to Addison, the company will cover a combination men's and women's gymnastics meet against the University of Illinois Feb. 10, the Saluki Invitational swimming meet Feb. 13 and three basketball games, for which whose dates have not been finalized.

Addison denied that the company is going bankrupt as had been previously speculated after Phoenix VI failed to cover Saturday night's basketball game against Wichita State. Addison did say, though, that the company has had some problems getting sponsorship in some areas where the events are carried.

"The people who've promised us sponsorship have turned their backs on us and the University," he said, "which is unfortunate because it's a good opportunity for both of us."

The three Saluki football games reached 1.5 million homes each through coverage by Phoenix VI, which is carried by 69 cable companies, about 40 of which are in Southern Illinois, Addison said.

SIU-C paid $25,000 to Phoenix VI for the production costs of broadcasting the eight events, for which it was supposed to receive 51 percent of the advertising revenue.

The University has not received any financial returns from the broadcasts, Swinburne said.

The real profit for SIU-C, he said, is the recognition and attention it will receive.

However, some SIU-C students who worked on production of one of the football broadcasts haven't received paychecks.

News Roundup

Salvaorans move to retake city

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A government battalion was reported moving into positions on the slopes of Cimarron Hill on Wednesday, preparing for a counterattack to retake the guerrilla-held city of Berlin atop the hill.

Civilians at the Cuscatlan bridge, 10 miles west of Berlin, said they saw six air force helicopters fly more troops into the area 70 miles east of San Salvador. They said an air force attack plane bombed suspected guerrilla positions north of Berlin.

Thompson fears state bankruptcy

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois will go broke next month unless the state Supreme Court overturns a lower court order barring $100 million in emergency budget cuts, Gov. James R. Thompson says.

Attorneys for Thompson were scheduled to go before Supreme Court Justice Daniel Ward at 2 p.m. Wednesday to seek an emergency hearing on the case before the full court.

In documents filed Tuesday with the Supreme Court in Springfield, Thompson said Cook County Circuit Judge Albert S. Porter's order keeps him from battling "the worst financial crisis in the history of Illinois."

Cranston enters presidential race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Calling for an end to "the incredibly dangerous, shamefully expensive arms race," Sen. Alan Cranston on Wednesday formally became the first 1984 presidential candidate.

Getting a short jump on his better known Democratic rivals, the California senator opened his campaign in the marble columned Senate Caucus Room before a cheering crowd of supporters. He then flew to Manchester, N.H., to repeat his announcement in the state which will hold 1984's first presidential primary.

"The spontaneity is part of the fun of it," he said. "It could turn off a lot of students if the impression (given by promoters) is 'there's a lot of money out there, let's exploit it'."

Suggestions of alternatives to partying on the Strip included a road race, concerts, a bike race and activities for families and children, such as pumpkin carving contests and a parade.

"We should try to find some fun, different alternatives" to alleviate congestion on Illinois Avenue, said Tim Miller, a representative of SIU-C women's athletics.

John Miller, manager of El Greco's, 516 S. Illinois Ave.,

agreed. Since a city ordinance banned the sale of bottled liquor before Halloween weekends, "it's been a much more mellow crowd," Miller said. "We just need to expand it, give people more room."

Mike Pollack of Carbondale suggested charging bars a tax that would allow them to stay open until 6 a.m. Closing them at 2 a.m. "forces kids out on the street," he said. "They're not going to go home, so let the kids party."

Fischer rejected the idea. "People don't go home as long as there's a place to drink," he said, adding that the idea had been discussed by the city.

Organizers will look out for the benefits of everyone, said Towne Central president Robert Straube. "There has been a longstanding rule about Halloween: Halloween is bad. Let's no longer accept that rule. Let's make up new rules."

Cooperation by everyone involved is essential to make the festival a success, said Harvey Welch, SIU-C Dean of Student Life. "We can maintain a positive image if we take a proactive stance," Welch said. "We haven't suffered previously from anybody's entertainment. I think it's something that we can be proud of."

Strike continues in violence; truckers curtail food shipments

By David L. Langford
Associated Press Writer

Food shipments to some Eastern cities were curtailed Wednesday by a truckers strike that has erupted into warfare on the highways with more than 300 trucks damaged, one driver slain and 27 people injured.

"It looks like war out there," said Chief Deputy Edmory Rush in Colleton County S.C., who was urging sheriffs in surrounding counties to step up patrols of major truck routes. "We don't want this to be a bloodbath."

Officials at the giant Hunts Point Terminal Market in New York City said produce shipments slowed to a trickle after remaining near normal the first two days of the strike by independent truckers.

"Today it's dead," said Tom

White, deputy manager of the market.

Mike Pfluger of the U.S. Department of Agriculture station at the market said wholesale prices had jumped as much as 30 percent.

Pfluger said supplies of beans, cauliflower, celery, eggplant, green peppers and tomatoes have dropped. He noted that 70 percent to 75 percent of the area's fruit and produce arrives by truck.

Some trucking companies in Canada have suspended shipments to the United States because of the violence.

"A load of potatoes is not worth a life," said Gary Hatfield, a potato broker in Hartland, New Brunswick.

But Terry Rodes, president of the New England Produce Center just outside Boston said, "So far, everything is moving on schedule. However, many truckers are now into a daylight-only schedule."

Mike Parkhurst, head of the association which claims to represent 30,000 of the nation's 100,000 independent truckers who own and operate their own rigs, called the strike Monday to protest scheduled increases in fuel taxes in April and highway use fees in 1985.

While the independents represent about a fifth of the nation's truckers, they haul about 90 percent of the produce.

Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan, while visiting a steel plant in Steelton, Pa., Wednesday, said the strike will hamper efforts to revive the economy.

"It's tragic," he said. "I hope cooler heads will prevail and they'll take their beef to the Congress."

U.S. officer confronts Israeli tanks

By Fred S. Hoffman
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Marine captain climbed aboard one of three Israeli tanks, his pistol drawn and loaded, and told an insistent Israeli commander he would have to come over his "dead body" to get past an American checkpoint in Beirut on Wednesday, officials said.

The Reagan administration immediately called Israel on the carpet over the "gravity" of the episode. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger called the Israeli behavior "threatening" and "both unnecessary and basically damaging" to peace prospects.

The column of three Israeli tanks backed off after Marine Capt. Charles B. Johnson, of Rock Island, Ill., pulled his weapon and loaded it in front of an Israeli lieutenant colonel, scrambled onto the commander's tank and demanded the withdrawal, officials said.

The Israeli officer "insisted they were coming through, the Marine captain said they were not," Weinberger said. Johnson "climbed onto the lead tank, said that if they were coming through they'd have to do it over his dead body," according to Weinberger.

The incident stood as the most dangerous to date in six or seven face-offs between Israeli soldiers and U.S. Marines serving as peacekeepers in Lebanon.

Correction

A story in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian incorrectly reported that resident physicians at Carbondale Memorial Hospital perform abortions. Resident physicians, who are still in medical training, do not perform abortions. Abortions are performed only by physicians who are members of the hospital's medical staff and are practicing in the community.

Help consumer out

A CHICAGO-BASED citizen's group is lobbying for a Citizen's Utility Board that would represent consumers in rate-decision cases before the Illinois Commerce Commission. The Coalition for Political Honesty says such a board, similar to one representing 70,000 consumers in Wisconsin, would give consumers clout on a par to that that utilities have enjoyed for years.

Such a board would be welcome in Illinois. For too long, utilities have bullied consumers by parading lawyers, accountants, engineers and other specialists into ICC hearings to have rate increases approved. Consumers need an expert advocate before the ICC and to wade through legal and financial jargon.

The board would be funded through voluntary membership of consumers willing to pay an annual $3 fee.

A BILL establishing such a board by statute has been introduced in the Senate. Backers are still seeking sponsors in the Illinois House and to gain support are trying to put an advisory referendum for the creation of a board on the election ballots in at least 100 communities this spring.

The City of Carbondale can help by placing the referendum question on the ballot in its upcoming election.

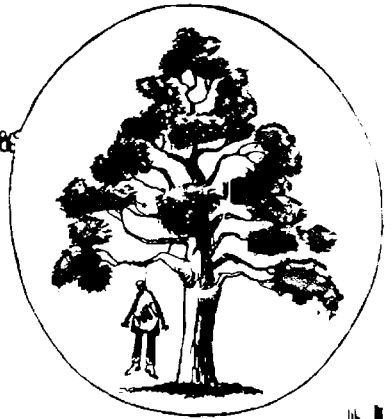

Help is also coming from an unexpected source — from the ICC itself, which had consumers in Southern Illinois grumbling last December when CIPS implemented a 22 percent rate increase the ICC had granted.

The ICC is providing consumers with relief by ordering 10 major utilities to develop comprehensive energy conservation programs that will lessen the load consumers now carry. And it gave the utilities 90 days to come up with some ideas.

THE ICC COULD really prove to be a friend to consumers if it looks critically at the plans the utilities offer and begins to act like the consumer watchdog it is supposed to be.

The ICC, under new Chairman Phillip O'Connor, seems ready to mend some fences. That is a good sign for consumers.

Now just think what consumers could do with a true advocate like the Citizen's Utility Board.

Party tramples property, rights

Let me create the scenario: the hours of daylight subside, darkness approaches and a lone truck pulls up. The sounds that follow are all too familiar. "Where do you want 'em, Got enough ice and cups? Don't forget the tubs!" kabonk, kabonk, etc. until the lone truck is empty of its precious cargo of 8,9,10, maybe 15 kegs of liquid ego trips. Then the most amazing thing occurs, people appear from nowhere seeming to emerge from behind trees, out of the darkness of someones backyard or quite obviously from an illegally parked car. "We're here and ready to rip it up."

I'm referring to the "Night of the Living Dead" which is the case when 400 W. Oak Street has a party. I use this analogy due in fact that once sufficient quantities of brew is quaffed these participants turn into the "living dead" or zombies.

We must quite literally stand guard over our property barely withstanding the zombie siege Daylight emerges and then I can safely assess the damage. The tally of wreckage, tire tracks in the lawn, shrubbery destroyed, beer cups and cans scattered throughout, real estate signs damaged, pools of vomit and of course, the ever present smell of stale beer and urine.

This might be construed as the price of a good time, but dammit, not at my or any other taxpayer's expense.

So what's a person to do? Calling the police gets minimum results, a parking ticket here and there and unless the "decibal limit" is exceeded there is legally little they can do (I will note that a littering citation was issued). Calling the City Attorneys Office gets even less accomplished, the response was "boys will be boys." Talking to the renters, if you can find them, produce a lot of "I'm sorrries" but I've heard that before. Contacting the landlord is futile as he's not legally bound to his tenants actions.

Between the bureaucratic indifference and the rhetoric produced by the accused one gets a hodgepodge of attitudes that muddy the issue even more.

Fact is I am a property owner, I have the constitutional right to protect my property, as a city taxpayer I'm entitled to a safe environment and police protection. In addition as a registered voter I have a right to vote for city councilmembers that will take note of these morally debased actions and do something about it. I plan to vote for those candidates in the April 12 election. —Patrick B. McGarry, Doctorial Student Safety Ed.

'There is another side to Proposal 48'

By W.D. Kilmstra
Faculty Representative Intercollegiate Athletics

I HAVE LISTENED to a great deal of news media and read many editorials and letters to the editor related to NCAA Proposal 48. It is unfortunate that so many people have exercised their privilege of judgement in the absence of full understanding and appreciation of all of the legislation that was before the voting representatives of colleges and universities which constitute the membership of the NCAA. I believe it appropriate to make some attempt to set the record straight.

The voting delegates (I represented SIU) had before them 12 items which emphasized academic requirements. Of these, Proposals 48-52 dealt with the high school core curriculum, SAT and ACT requirements were included in two of these. Core curricula requirements ranged from a maximum of 11 to a minimum of five courses.

Ground rules require dealing with proposals in sequence — the most stringent followed by those less stringent. Hence, Proposal 48 was considered first and Proposals 49, 50, 51, and 52 thereafter. This identified that 52 was the least stringent. With this setting, 48 was considered first and upon passage, all other proposals would become moot.

COLLEGE AND university presidents, participating in the American Council on Education, were responsible for Proposal 48 and provided most of the discussion in its support. One must presume these presidents were sincere in making such statements as "we need to demonstrate that in the interest of the public we are trying to do something that will address the publicized problems related to academic attainment of athletes."

But why did they not collectively and individually initiate their concerns by addressing any national organizations which represent our high schools? Have they told high schools that inadequate curricula will inhibit admission to their respective institutions? This seems the most logical approach for them to have taken.

They chose not to go this route but to focus on athletes and, in a sense, make guinea pigs out of them through use of back-door efforts to arrive at an upgrading of graduation requirements of high schools. These tactics are unbecoming to these leaders in the academic field and it is a questionable way to deal with this issue. Problems regarding athletes and academic performances are exceptions and, in almost all cases, the culprit is the institution that permits it happen.

PERMIT ME NOW to address proposal 48 in relationship to Proposal 52 which I hoped to support. Proposal 52 did not require standardized test scores but did require three years of English and two years in mathematics. 52 carefully spelled two significant aspects absent from 48 — the required courses could not be remedial and the student must have maintained a minimum of a C grade in each course.

Proposal 48 identified no such constraints, emphasizing only a 2.0 overall high school average.

Proposal 48, then, would permit a student to make D's in one or all of the 11 required courses and also be able to take something less than the regular course. Proposal 48 has loopholes. Proposal 52, with respect to performance and attainment, is really much more stringent.

ONE OF THE MOST serious problems experienced by many of our high school graduates is in communication. Proposal 52 places the emphasis on that as well as on English and mathematics.

There was much discussion by presidents that these were strictly matters of eligibility — that the individual who did not have that set of credentials could be admitted, red-shirted the freshman year and still have four years of competition.

The NCAA looks over our shoulder very, very carefully to make sure we do not treat the intercollegiate athlete in any way as an exception to the treatment provided the general student body. But we are now saying that to compete in intercollegiate athletics, a higher entrance level is required of athletes than is demanded of students in general.

My personal opinion is that this has ingredients of stupidity, and it certainly lacks forthrightness in dealing with an issue that was seemingly so terribly important but in fact is treated as though it is a burr under our saddle and we wish now to remove the sharpness of some of the spines.

DO I HAVE ANY feelings concerning academic standards? Be assured the importance of academic standards is of great personal interest and concern but so is fairness in the administration and in the whole measuring of accomplishments.

Proposal 48 and 52, which SIU supported, do not really get at the cause of academic problems at the college level. This exercise that transpired in San Diego is cosmetic. Until we address the upgrading and the integrity of the academic programs of our high schools (and for that matter grade schools), the process of academic improvement of any of our students is going to be slow, if at all.

Former journalism director honored for years of service

Former School of Journalism director Howard Rusk Long has been honored for service to the Mid-America Press Institute. MPI board members and others attending the organization's recent meeting in St. Louis cited Long for 14 years of service to the organization, which boasts more than 125 member newspapers in 20 states.

Long, who was a Missouri newspaperman and manager of the Missouri Press Association, founded MPI in 1968 in response to requests from publishers and editors throughout the Midwest. The organization sponsors four workshops a year, all of which have a "how to" orientation and are taught by working journalists, publishers, business managers and printers.

MPI will open future workshops with a keynote address named in Long's honor. He stepped down Jan. 21 from the organization's board of directors. MPI directors also commissioned a color portrait of Long.

A four-degree graduate of the University of Missouri-Columbia, Long worked on newspapers in Dixon, Ill.; Richmond, W. Va.; and Fort Smith, Ark., before owning and editing his own paper at Crane, Mo.

He became chairman of the SIUC Department of Journalism in 1963. He was chairman and later director of the School of Journalism for 21 years.

Long helped organize the International Society of Weekly Newspaper Editors; the Southern Illinois professional chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists; Sigma Delta Chi; and the three-state Illinois Advertising Club.

Long also taught for several years in the University of Missouri School of Journalism.

Meat scheme over, but sale begins

CHICAGO (AP) — Five grocers who admitted short-weighting meat must make it up to their customers with a special, two-day restitution sale at 35 percent discounts, a judge ordered.

The five Southwest suburban grocers agreed Tuesday to how the sale rather than face prison terms. They pleaded guilty to commercial bribery and violating the Illinois Weights and Measures Act.

Cook County Circuit Judge John Crilly ordered them to offer 35 percent discounts on ground beef, round steak, whole fryers, center cut pork chops and chuck roasts for two days before Feb. 15. He also placed them on one year's probation.

The grocers are: Jess Chilcutt, manager of the Acme Food Store in Summit; Zaid Sweiss and Malek Sweiss, co-owners of Shopper's Mart in Blue Island; Khalid Jamaledin, owner of Food Town in Blue Island; and Phil Schneider, S & S Foods, Posen. They admitted they cheated customers by including packaging weight in the prices and bribed state inspectors to cover it up.

Crilly directed the grocers to advertise the sale in a local newspaper and said customers may be limited to two fryers and 20 pounds of other meats each day. If the grocers run out of any of the specified meats, they must offer rainchecks.

They were among 11 grocers and two Illinois Department of Agriculture inspectors indicted a year ago in the scheme. The inspectors pleaded guilty last fall and were sentenced to 30 months probation. Charges against the six other grocers are pending.

Prosecutors said an undercover investigation showed that in return for overlooking the short-weighting, inspectors Vito Griseto and Daniel Labriola took bribes ranging to $20 to $70 in cash or merchandise on each visit. When sentenced in September, the inspectors also were forced to forfeit their state jobs.

Trained professionals supply care, support to rape victims

By Lisa Nichols
Staff Writer

Rape victims in the Carbondale area can receive psychological support and information from the volunteers of the Rape Action Committee. The RAC is a group of trained professional volunteers who are on call 24 hours a day to offer support to rape victims. The committee is available to counsel victims and, if requested, accompany them through medical, police and legal procedures.

The committee, formed in the summer of 1973, is a part of and receives funding from the Women's Center.

Lynne Price, a volunteer for the RAC, said, "Our main function as a committee is to act as an information service and to act as advocates for rape victims right after the crisis."

A rape victim can call the Women's Center and be put in touch with a volunteer on the "go-out" team. The volunteer will talk with the victim and, if requested, accompany her to the hospital.

"We don't recommend the police (to the victim) — that's up to her. But if she doesn't want to go because she's afraid the police will be unkind, we reassure her that the police are usually very kind and sensitive to rape victims," Price said.

Price said that the volunteers can be present with the victim during police questioning and the courts if the case goes to trial. "We want the victim to feel she has someone in her corner," Price explained.

According to Price, after a woman has been raped, she should go straight to the hospital. The emergency staff, as a matter of procedure, will call the police and the RAC, but the victim is not required to talk to either.

The volunteers deal with about 45 victims each year. Price said not all victims are female — the committee has also handled calls from male victims of homosexual assaults.

Volunteers are also available to give talks to groups and to give counseling to close relatives and friends of rape victims.

The RAC presently has one male and 10 female volunteers and is in need of more. Volunteers must be willing to be on call four or five days a month and must be able to deal with people in an understanding and caring manner.

Minor changes expected in orientation

By Jeanna Hunter
Staff Writer

Study of the nearly $80,000 fall semester orientation program continues as more information concerning its effects is gathered and interpreted.

Results of the study will be published in the 1988 version of the orientation brochure which will be sent to all prospective students. Tom Allen, assistant director of student development, said.

Recruiting of faculty and staff for the 1983 fall orientation program will begin as early as March. Allen predicts that he will have no problem getting faculty members to participate in 30 to 35 programs throughout the five-day orientation. Last year, 225 faculty members participated in the program. Sixteen programs were offered on Saluki Saturday.

Surveys distributed immediately after the fall orientation was completed revealed that 99 percent of the freshmen who participated would recommend repeating the program.

A survey conducted eight weeks later in 20 randomly chosen GSD 101 "English Composition" classes showed that students who had participated in orientation enjoyed being students at SIU-C more and were better adjusted to campus life than those who did not attend any orientation programs.

Of the 243 freshmen who withdrew from school during the first eight weeks, only 12 percent had attended orientation, Allen said.

The results of the surveys precipitated a few minor changes in the organization of the next five-day orientation program.

Panel scheduled

The Carbondale branch of the American Association of University Women will have a panel discussion entitled "Pay Equity: What Does It Mean and How Can It Help Employed Women?" at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Faculty Club (corner of Grand Avenue and Elizabeth Street).

Speakers will be Barbara Butterfield, SIU-C manager of personnel services; Mary Helen Gasser, affirmative action officer; Eugene Jones III, personnel director, Memorial Hospital; and Shari Rhode, SIU-C associate legal counsel.

The programming will begin later on the first day, Allen said, to give students more time to settle into their rooms.

The biggest change will be the absence of both the Housing and Financial Aid offices at the Saluki Fair, he said. Instead of participating in the fair, these offices will hold special sessions to disseminate their information.

No plans are being made to make the orientation program mandatory, although most parents said they would have agreed to the requirement.

Allen said the reputation of the program will travel and students will come to it without being forced.

Orientation programs are offered for new students before both the fall and the spring semesters. However, because of restricted finances and less student participation, the spring program is operated on a much smaller level.

"It is not as involved as fall, but we do very well for those who live in the residence halls," Allen said.

Prisoner serves sentence at home

By John Dowling
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Perry Cochran is about halfway through a two-year sentence for burglary, and his 74-year-old jailer says he's been a model prisoner. He calls her "Mom."

Cochran, 52, was sentenced last year to serve his term in his mother's house in Robbins, a southern suburb of Chicago. He can leave the house only to go to the store or to church — and only with his mother. And so far, both "jailer" and "prisoner" say things are working out fine.

"He's adjusted himself very well to staying around the house all the time," Mrs. Cochran said. "And it's good having him around a lot of the time because my eyesight is getting worse and he is a big help."

"He's been born again and is even trying to give up smoking, to live for the Lord," she added. "He's been good so far. I'm telling you."

But just to be sure, the judge who imposed the unusual sentence paid a surprise visit to the Cochran home Tuesday, along with the prosecutor and the public defender in the case. Circuit Court Judge Dwight McKay said he found nothing to make him regret his decision.

"I'm content with the sentence," McKay said Wednesday. "The family was very pleased with the way it was going. They said he hadn't left the property except to go to church with his mother, or to go to the store with her."

Salukis bone up for regional quiz

B. Duane Schombert
Staff Writer

Although the players do not know one another very well, Michael Blum, visiting instructor of music at SIU-C and varsity coach of the All-Star College Bowl team, feels "guardedly optimistic" that the four-man Saluki squad will do well in the 16-team regional tournament Thursday and Friday at Western Illinois University at Macomb.

"The team is a completely new team, but they have a lot of diversity. We've got a well-balanced team this year. We're all hoping for a crack at the nationals," Blum said.

The All-Star College Bowl is an updated version of television's old "College Bowl" quiz program, which pitted intercollegiate squads against each other in matches for cash scholarship awards.

Blum said College Bowl "is not a test of intelligence, but rather one of memory, recall and quickness. Much depends on how quickly the team member answers."

Top scorers from intramural competition comprise this year's team. Members are team captain John Belcher, graduate student in philosophy; Benjamin Andrews, freshman in English; Thomas Desmond, junior in journalism; and John Lauer, senior in design.

Last year, SIU-C finished fourth in the Midwest regional competition after an early loss to eventual champion Purdue.

Applicants sought for award

Applications for the Inter-Greek Council's Service-to-Southern Award may be obtained at the Office of Student Development on the third floor of the Student Center.

The applications must be returned by 4:30 p.m. Feb. 18, spokesmen said.

The award will be presented to an outstanding graduating senior inn recognition of higher participation and service contributions to the University. This year the award is $400.

Students are selected by a faculty-administrative committee on the basis of the student's participation in residence hall activities, fraternal activities, campus and community service projects.

The award will be presented at the Inter-Greek Council's annual Theta XI Variety show March 5.

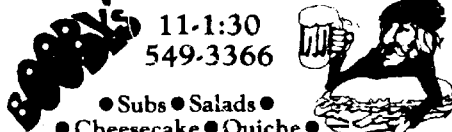

GTE heads swap

Loren Carter, General Telephone of Illinois' Marion and Olney division manager, has been given the added responsibility for the Carbondale division.

He replaces Harley Leitzke, who has accepted a position with General Telephone of Wisconsin.

"I am very pleased to be involved with the company's Carbondale division operations and the people we serve here. I have always enjoyed my contact with the people of this area," Carter said.

Company kept on their toes

Ballet lived up to reputation

Dance Review

Entertainment Editor's Note: Martha Crothers, in addition to being a dance instructor at SIUC, is also a member of the Dance Advisory Panel of the Illinois Arts Council.

By Martha C. Crothers
Adjunct Instructor, Department of Physical Education - Dance

Canada's Royal Winnipeg Ballet performed before a sold-out audience Tuesday evening at Shyrook Auditorium.

The Royal Winnipeg is a company of international renown, which with a few exceptions, lived up to its reputation. The evening's program was a mixture of the traditional choreography showcasing ballet technique and more contemporary choreographic images and dance techniques. Generally, I enjoyed the performance and was highly entertained throughout the evening.

As a whole, I felt the company displayed a fine cohesive unit - the members were well-trained, sensitive and confident in their performances. An additional, yet extremely valuable element to the evening, was the presence of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet's live orchestra. The added element of live music greatly heightened the excitement and energy between the dancers, musicians and audience.

The evening's initial piece was Balanchine's tribute to classical ballet language entitled "Allegro Brillante." It presented the full range of ballet movement and fully utilized the skill of the dancers to present those movements. Though I was impressed by the abilities of the dancers' performances, there was something missing - maybe an emotional attachment, underlying the skills to somehow set the piece apart. At times, I felt my attention wandering off. Unfortunately, both in this piece and the other classic piece, "Le Corsaire Pas De Deux," I found myself being distracted instead of impressed by the guest artist, Ann Marie De Angelo.

Though I am not one to advocate for anorexic-looking dancers, De Angelo's performance was very heavy, which is specifically contrary to the ballet philosophy of flying and lightness in movement. Whether this was due to her physical appearance or to her personal style, her technique, while strong in skill, gave the appearance of being pushed and forced into place.

I also found "Le Corsaire," to be boring. Peregrine had lovely height and average extension in his leaps and jumps. De Angelo's performance I have already commented on, yet her fuerza turns near the ending with changing eye focus was an impressive demonstration of her skills. However, both the interpretation of the choreography and the performance was lacking in depth.

The more contemporary pieces were by far the most stimulating in the visual and creative sense, and appeared to be the strongest asset of the company. The dancers demonstrated their skills in various dance forms, all integrated together to present thoughtful interpretation of the choreography.

"Belong" was the most stunning piece of the evening. The evolution of the choreography with the dynamism of the lighting produced some thrilling sequences. The communication between the dancers and the intensity of the variations were marvelous. I was especially intrigued by the woman moving through the scissor-like positions of the man.

"Family Scenes" was delightful and addressed many conflicting emotions between and among family members. The acting was strong, and roles and relationships were well-defined, although overly traditional by definition to suit my values. The humor was self-event and added an extra dramatic tension to the communication among the dancers.

Lastly, "The Hands" focused on an often missed yet highly important part of communication - the hands themselves. Set in seven vignettes, the subtleties and harshness of gesture was explored in a delightful mesh of ballet, modern and jazz dance techniques.

A final comment regarding the exquisite use of lighting is necessary. Often, lighting for dance is not much more than enough to see the dancers. It usually does not add or detract from the piece itself. In both "Belong," with lighting by Norbert Vasak and "The Hands," with lighting by Richard Caswell, I felt the element of lighting was not only appropriate but added a wonderful dimension and depth to the choreography. In both pieces, I found the lighting to be colorful, imaginative and provocative, thereby creating a richness and clarity to the pieces that might otherwise not existed.

Dating is just a game to some

By Jeff Wilkinson
Staff Writer

With the melodic strains of Herb Albert and the Tijuana Brass floating through the Student Center's Ballroom D, the Dating Game returned to S.I.U.

"So you all came here to spend the next two hours listening to people talk about sex," joked emcee Scott Alarik. "Well, that's just what you'll get."

Throughout the evening, Alarik led the jokes coming as sparks flew between contestants vying for a date with the eligible bachelors or bachelorettes.

"Bachelorette number two," asked Rob Fagen, freshman in political science, "if I was a glass of champagne, how would you drink me?"

After a short pause, Jan Grindle, a sophomore in accounting, answers with a wicked smile, "I would sip you veeerrry slowly." This brought hoots and whistles from the audience of about 200 people, who contributed as much to the evening as the contestants or the MC. Throughout the evening, creative heckling ran rampant as audience members were caught up in the games. At one point, bachelorette Ava Lenoir asked the contestants to stand up and turn around. She then asked the audience to rate their "tushes." Agriculture Economics senior Paul Adcock won the contest and the date hands down — or was it bottoms up?

After two games, Alarik entertained the audience with two songs. One was his own composition, a "serious" song about unrequited love and the second was a novelty song about a traveler confused and frustrated over train schedules.

After the intermission, the games continued with more of the same innuendo and madness including guys doing valley girl imitations while insulting their fellow contestants and an almost passible mimic of Bill Murray explaining the importance of being an animal.

In the first round of the Dating Game, Joan Boyson, junior in administrative sciences picked Michael Seck, a sophomore in marketing. In round two, Rob Fagen, freshman in political science, picked Jan Grindle, sophomore in accounting; in round three, Lenoir picked Adcock; and in round four, Robert Newman, a senior in automotive business who had trouble keeping his numbers straight, picked Becky Larkin, a senior in psychology.

All of the winning couples received tickets to the Student Dinner Concert Series where they will be, in the words of off-stage announcer Joel Willis, "pseudo wine and elegantly dined at the Southern Illinois University's historic Old Main Room" and treated to "An Evening with John Raitt" — Bonnie Raitt's father — at Shryock Auditorium on the 10th. Willis announced the winning couple's prizes the same way at the end of every game and suffered the groans and good-natured boos of the audience. Alarik just nodded his head and repeatedly thanked Willis for the announcements. Willis, in return repeatedly thanked Alarik for his thanks and so on to the chagrin and amusement of the audience.

SPC's Center Programming Chair Glenn Stolar was delighted with the show. "The audience participated, there was great interaction between Scott (Alarik) and Joel (Willis) and above all the contestants came up with great answers. Everything — was just fantastic!"

The Fetish transforms stock

By Mary Pries
Staff Writer

About $1,500 worth of drug paraphernalia at The Fetish in Carbondale was divided among eight winners of a drawing in late December, according to owner Suzanne Dondzik.

The drawing was held in an effort to get rid of the paraphernalia before a state law prohibiting the sale of drug-related merchandise took effect, Dondzik said.

Dondzik said she was not made aware at the time of the drawing that the law would not go into effect until July 1.

"On Dec. 26, I heard that the state law prohibiting the sale of drug paraphernalia would go into effect Jan. 1, so I got rid of my smoking supplies to protect the store," she said. "I think the law had been signed but that the government later changed its mind."

Dondzik said she probably would have kept the paraphernalia and tried to sell it before July if she had known that the law would not be enforceable until July 1.

"I know that Plaza Records waited and kept their stock, but I heard about a businessman in Texas who paid $15,000 to prove that his smoking papers weren't sold to be used for drugs," Dondzik explained. "I knew I couldn't afford to do that, so I closed out my supply."

The shelves of The Fetish that were previously stocked with paraphernalia are now filled with short skirts, tops and culottes. A new image is being created of a store that carries more new mood sunglasses, incense, scarves and jewelry.

"It's hard to convince the customers used to coming into the store and buying drug paraphernalia that they should buy the latest fashions from New York instead.

Computer courtship leads to marriage

CHICAGO (AP) — Two shy people carried on a computer courtship 800 miles apart for months, finally met and now have wedding plans for April. It was one of Cupid's longshots.

Fam Jensen, 30, a primate keeper at Lincoln Park Zoo, and Chris Dunn, 26, an electronics and computer technician in New York, were stay-at-homeers. "We were both quiet, reserved and shy... but not quite wallflowers," said Miss Jensen.

She and Dunn discovered CB Simulator about the same time. The program, manufactured by CompuServe of Columbus, Ohio, links computer users the way CB radio links truck drivers. Dunn could type a message onto his terminal in New York, and all who were turned into CB Simulator would receive the message instantly on their screens. They also could send messages back, signing them with the handle they had chosen.

They even gave each other CB hugs, typing (((HUG))) . After marriage, how about raising a family?

"We really aren't planning one," said Miss Jensen. "I'm very interested in my career. Instead of children, I'll settle for a couple of primates."

Arena Promotions to again use line card system for tickets

Arena promotions will use the line reservation card system once again this semester to eliminate "camping-out" to get a good place in line.

For Tom Petty and The Heartbreakers with special guests Nick Lowe and Paul Carrack, the cards will be distributed Friday morning.

Radio stations WCIL-FM, WTOA and WDBB, will announce the spot where the line reservation cards are to be distributed at 9:30 a.m. Arena personnel will give out the cards on a first-come, first-served basis at the announced location until 11 a.m. The remaining cards will be returned to the Arena Special Events Ticket Office for distribution from 11:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Tickets for Tom Petty will go on sale Saturday. Prices are $9 and $11.

The line reservation card system will be used for most rock shows. Ads for a specific show will announce any variation in the policy before tickets go on sale.

Consistency key for men gymnasts

By JoAnn Marchlewski
Sports Editor

The men's gymnastics team will aim to keep its dual meet record perfect when it hosts Indiana State and Memphis State at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Arena. It will also be trying to stay competitive in the Midwest region, which includes powers such as Illinois, which has scored a 278 this season.

The Saickis have the potential to go above their current high score of 273.30 because of the strength shown so far, according to Coach Bill Meade. The team has been turning in pretty consistent performances, he said.

"They've been doing pretty much what I want them to be doing," Meade said. "I'm especially pleased with the team's score on pommel horse going over 45."

Throughout the season, the team has been led by Brian Babcock, who is averaging 57.16 in dual meets and is undefeated in all-around competition. His individual event scores have been strong such as on pommel horse, where he is averaging 9.52.

Also consistent with the high scores are ring specialist Tom Slomski, averaging 9.57 in dual meets, and Brendan Price, strong especially on vault, averaging 9.65.

John Levy has been making strides as an all-arounder, especially since he began hitting near nine on the pommel horse. His strongest event has been high bar, averaging 9.51.

Pommel horse specialist Herb Voss is averaging 9.4, but has experienced some trouble.

"Herb has flirted with being strong," Meade said. "I'm still waiting for him to do the set he's been working on so hard during practice because I believe it's potentially a 9.6 or 9.7."

Also adding to the strength of the team is Kevin Mazeika, who usually competes in five events. Mazeika, averaging 9.1 on high bar and 9.5 on vault, has been a "solid performer," Meade said.

Gregg Upperman, whose 9.45 on rings last weekend was his all time high, is also getting himself in shape on parallel bars, said the coach. Freshman David Lutterman will be back in the line-up Sunday after doing a "respectable job" in his first dual meet.

Again, there will be changes in the line-up as Lawrence Williamson will make his first appearance of the season. Earlier trouble with his knee is presenting no problem now, according to the coach, but he needs to score highly to maintain a spot on floor exercise, the most competitive event on the Saluki roster.

This weekend, Men's State should not be too much trouble, but Indiana State has recently registered victories with scores of 268.15 and 269.05 and should make it a challenging meet.

Vogel expects tumblers to expand 7-4 record

By Sherry Chisenhall
Staff Writer

Coach Herb Vogel hopes to add a torrent to the sprinkling of confidence his women's gymnastics team gained last weekend with its three victories, preferably by etching two more notches in the win column this weekend.

The Salukis will look for the first W when they tangle with Iowa State Friday in Ames. The Cyclones left SIU-C in the dust once already this season at the Missouri Quad meet, scoring 166 points to the Salukis' 164.75. The meet marked one of SIU-C worst performances of the year, and Vogel said his team can down ISU if each gymnast simply competes up to her potential.

SIU-C returns to the Arena Sunday to host Indiana State in a joint meet with the men's gymnastics team. The Sycamores downed the Salukis in two of three meetings last year and return five top gymnasts from that squad.

Gina Hey, Jackie Ahr and Pam Turner will be called upon to anchor down the Salukis' lineup. Vogel said these three compete under the added pressure of having to carry a few lower scores at the other end of the roster, which will probably be the case for the remainder of the season.

Depth has been the major weakness of Vogel's squad this year. Veteran Pam Turner is the main cog in the system, complemented by a score of freshmen. Hey, Ahr, Lori Steele, and Margaret Callcott are all rookies at SIU-C and fill out the remainder of Vogel's all-around rotation.

Most of Vogel's rookies seem to have made the adjustment to the college level, especially Ahr. Vogel said she had disappointing meets last weekend and he hopes to see her pull out of her slump in Iowa Friday.

"Jackie knows what she has to do, it's just a matter of getting it done," he said. "She's very self-motivated and will do anything asked of her. She knows we're lacking in depth, and possibly she's trying too hard to get the better scores."

Steele and Callcott are two more first-year performers who are steadily showing improvement, according to Vogel.

"Steele is really starting to show some determination," he said. "She's learning to overlook the little bang-ups which are just part of the ball game. Callcott is getting through her bar routine and gaining confidence after two good meets she had last weekend, and cleaning up her routine a little."

Gina Hey has been competing with a stress fracture in her fibula and has been asked by trainers not to vault. Vogel said even with the injury Hey wants to compete in all-around this weekend and will probably do so.

"At the collegiate level, it's not the coach's job to think for the girls and set individual objectives," he said. "But if I were to do that for them, I'd say that right now Pam's goal should be to consistently score 36 plus. Jackie is very close to that level. Steele and Hey should be 35-plus at this point."

"If each of the girls can see this is the true level of their ability, they can meet the personal demands required to reach that level," he said.

"Then we won't have to worry about the scores. They'll be there."

Tulsa Mot. say.

"I think we'll start the same group," said Van Winkle.

Pie Walker and Darnall Jones, who have both surged offensively in the past two games, will start at forward. Walker had 16 points in 13 minutes at Tulsa, and Jones had 18 and 13 rebounds while playing most of the game. Jones is now SIU-C's second leading scorer with 10.3 points per game.

Leader Ken Byrd continues to slide, and is at only 13.8 per game. In eight conference games, he has shot just 32 percent. Bennie Smith, another good shooter, is shooting just 35 percent, one of the reasons he won't be on the starting backline Thursday, according to Van Winkle.

The SIU-C coach will stay with freshman Brian Welch and Dennis Goins.

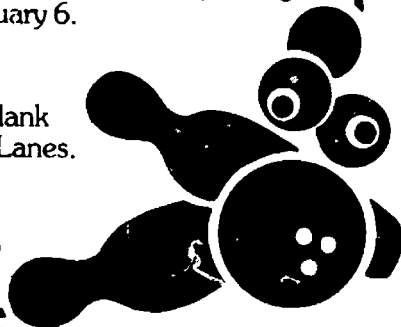

At center, the hobbling Charles Nance will start. Nance missed six days and two games with a bruised thigh, but was still limping at Tulsa.

Reporting ruins career as unpromising athlete

As a member of the press, I am well aware of a rather non-flattering image many people have of reporters. We're sharks. We have no consideration for the people we deal with, as long as we get our story. Well, nothing could be further from the truth. And to all of the SIU-C athletes and coaches I have dealt with this year, and will deal with, take note.

I, above all people (as I hope this tale will demonstrate) am well aware of the relationship between the newspaper and the athlete. I can appreciate the dilemmas of the campus' student athletes. Being interviewed after a loss is not exactly uplifting. Thanks to one incredibly screwed up year, I gained tremendous insight into the views of those at both ends of the microphone.

In my junior year in high school, while I was attending a very small prep school in Central Ohio, I dutifully received the title of Sports Editor for the fledgling school paper. How small was the school, you ask. Well, suffice it to say that I was editor, staff and typist. I was responsible for reporting on the very sports that I was competing in. Hell will freeze over twice before I do it again.

First of all came soccer season. To put it bluntly, we stunk. Our junior varsity wasn't too bad, but that was only because the JV team was the exact team as the varsity minus the four seniors on the squad. But our varsity was a laughing stock. We got thumped by the local YMCA team, and they had a girl starting on the squad. And I, not wanting to offend my teammates, or, more importantly, my coach, had to be as euphemistic as possible in reporting our massacres.

"We looked like we've improved a lot since last game," said Coach Marty following the 1-0 loss. "I would write, 'I think maybe we can get a tie by the end of the season at this rate.'"

He was right. We finished 0-12-1. Or, I should say, the team finished 0-12-1. I wasn't around at season's end. Caught between a rock and a hard place once again, I had to report on my getting kicked off the team for calling the coach a few choice unprintables after being benched during one of our losses.

Then came basketball. I survived the whole season in this one. But once again, we stunk up every gym we went into. I've always been one to get fired up when I'm playing, maybe too fired up (as my team-leading fouls would indicate), but I've never been one to take losses personally. At that school, I would have been in an institution if I took every loss personally. But I had to fight back the tears, literally, when we played before our biggest crowd of the season and walked away with a 101-23 humiliation. Then I had to write the story.

"Following an explosive first two minutes in which Sts. Peter & Paul managed to hammer out a 6-2 lead, East Knox gained control and outscored the Saints by 82 points down the stretch."

The most awkward position I found myself in, however, followed a game which I will politely refer to as the "Pneumonia Classic." Following Christmas break, we traveled to Toledo, still seeking our first win, to play a team that, rumour had it, we had a shot at beating. To conserve energy, the school had decided to turn off all of the heating in the section of the school in which the gym was located. Following break, when they tried to turn the heating back on, they found that the pipes were frozen.

So there we were, running up and down the court in our skimpy uniforms in 30 degree weather, only about 10 degrees warmer than the outside air. And we won. We not only won, we killed them. And guess who had his best game of the season? You guessed it.

And upon returning, fighting the strep throat and separated rib cartilage I had suffered as a result of coughing 24 hours a day because of my pneumonia, I had to write up the game. Before there had been no conflict because I had never done anything worth writing about. But how do you write about yourself?

SAINTS NAIL DOWN WIN AGAINST WINLESS FALCONS

By Brian Higgins

Brian Higgins paced the Saints to their first victory of the year...

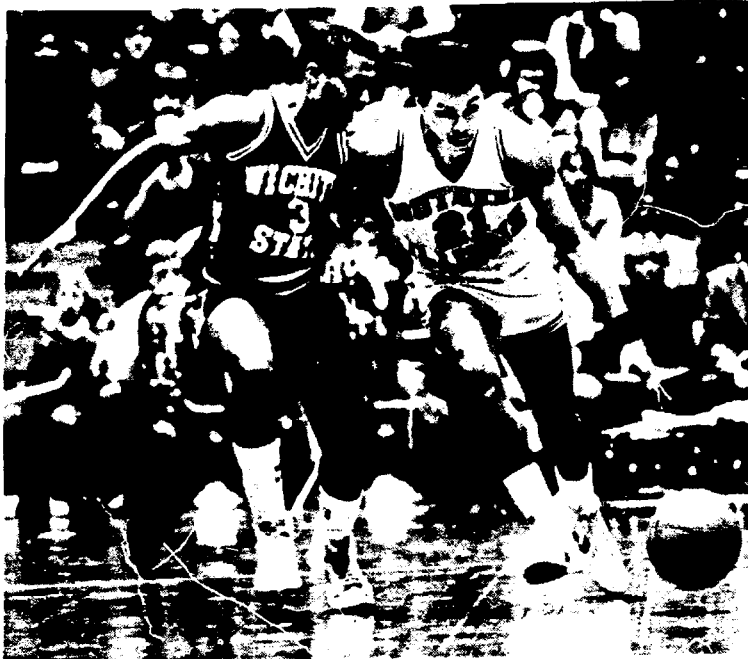

Looks kind of self indulgent, doesn't it?

That, unfortunately, was our only win. At tournament time, we knew our only chance to finish out of last place was to draw a first round game with the Toledo team. But they drew a bye, and we finished in the cellar. A fitting ending for a 1-13 season.

Finally, spring bloomed, and tennis season dawned. Because we were so inept at that too, I made three singles. In my first match of the first game of my abbreviated career, I nearly went nuts when I won the first game. But, like a true school player, I dropped the next 12 games for a 6-1, 6-0 loss. And it got worse. Our team didn't win a match all season. I didn't win an individual match. And by this time, saying nice things about our sports teams in my columns was becoming awfully difficult.

Justice was served in the end, however. I didn't finish the tennis season. That was not by choice, but rather as a result of an Ohio High School Athletic Association rule which stated that in order to participate on a school sports team, you must attend the school. And when the final paper of the year rolled around, a certain year-end party behind the groto of St. Mary had alleviated me of my responsibilities to the newspaper. I picture the final tennis story written by my interim successor.

"Chris Meadows was promoted from doubles to third singles after Brian Higgins, who previously held that position, was expelled from school before the team's match against Newark Catholic. Higgins, who had compiled an 0-8 record before his expulsion..."

GOINS' HOME: Saluki guard Dennis Goins got down the court and home for a basket against some elbow room in an attempt to drive the ball Wichita State Saturday.

Salukis need to pin Sycamores to break long losing streak

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

After being pounded by New Mexico State, hammered by Creighton, outmuscled by Illinois State, battered by Wichita State and bruised by Tulsa, the SIU-C basketball team may finally have an opponent it can wrestle with.

Only trouble is, the Indiana State Sycamores don't stand around long enough to let a team get a hold of them.

"They're very quick," said Saluki coach Allen Van Winkle. "I don't think we realized how quick they were. They ran right by us several times."

Van Winkle was talking about the last time these two teams met, when the Sycamores motored away for a 103-89 victory, made more convincing by second half slam dunks off fast breaks.

The two teams will go to the starting block again on Thursday. Tip-off time is 7:35.

Indiana State, revamped by new coach Dave Schellhase, is probably the fastest team in the Missouri Valley Conference. The Sycamores average a league-leading 86 points per game, and have shattered the 100 mark on several occasions.

Of course, they've surrendered points by the bunch too. No Valley team gives up more points in a game, 86, than this run-happy team.

Indiana State is 6-11 overall, and 2-8 in conference play. It's other conference win came over plodding Creighton. SIU-C is 5-12 overall and 1-7 in the Valley.

At Terre Haute, the Salukis fenced in their hosts for an entire half, and worked the ball inside to their big man, but in the second half the Sycamores ran free, and ran wild. They roared for 16 layups in the final 20 minutes.

The only team that slowed the Sycamores down for a full game was Drake, when the Bulldogs took a 84-63 decision. On paper, Van Winkle knows how it can be done.

"We have to try stopping their break by being a bit more active on the offensive boards, by working harder to get back on defense, and doing a better job offensively."

The Sycamore running game is fueled by forward Al Cole, and guards John Williams and Rick Fields. When they get slowed, they go inside to quick center Mark Golden and power forward James Smith.

Williams, a freshman, leads the team with an 18.6 scoring average. Golden is scoring 15.3, the slumping Cole is at 15.2, and Smith is scoring 13.8, and with 10.4 rebounds, is the second best in the MVC.

Those fye have powered the Sycamores all by themselves. Schellhase has gotten almost no help from his bench, although there is a chance that he might start Myron Christian in place of Cole Thursday.

SIU-C should counter with the same team that lost 84-70 to

Netters to host puzzling Jayhawks

By Ken Perkins
Staff Writer

The men netters at Kansas are either great actors or lousy tennis players.

The Jayhawks are off to a slow start this season, losing to a great SIU-Edwardsville squad and a not-so-great Purdue team. That may be good and dandy, but what's troubling Saluki Coach Dick LeFevre is that they have also beat Nebraska. A great team.

If this is a new method of catching opponents off guard, then the Jayhawks are doing a fine job.

"I just don't know how good they are," LeFevre said of Kansas, who will visit the Egyptian Sports Center Saturday.

"They could be pretty good, but then maybe not. But they are expected to have a very good year. I won't take them lightly."

LeFevre is hoping his 1-1 netters will follow his lead. They are on an upswing, he says, and beating Kansas would give them a lift: one that's sorely needed to "pump up," his players.

But kids will be kids, according to LeFevre, and when Kansas strolls onto Saluki turf in front of Saluki fans with a not-so-impressive 0-2 mark, SIU-C may relax. LeFevre's answer to that is clear and simple.

"You can't do that," he said. "You can't really think like that at all. Kids will go in there and get kicked around."

"We need this one," LeFevre added. "We've had a good week of practice and everyone is looking better all the time. When we played Kansas last year, we beat them. We were lucky to beat them then. They were young. I figured that they will be good now. I don't think there are really any bad tennis teams around here."

Sophomore Scott Krueger is back in the lineup, after missing singles competition against Northwestern. He will be joined in the rotation by freshman Per Wadmark, Gabriel Coch, David Filer, John Greif and Rollie Ollivino.

According to LeFevre, Greif is improving at a rapid rate. "He's starting to look a lot better," he said.

"He's been doing well in practice workouts lately, and I think he's ready to get going."

"The freshmen are playing a lot better too," LeFevre added.

"They are doing better than one would usually expect them to do. With the exception of the Northwestern match, everyone has done well."
