Legislators debate merit of voter law

Continuing legal battle: Some state Democrats push Illinois General Assembly to comply with registration law.

By Stephanie Moletti
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Two top General Assembly Democrats have joined the legal battle against Illinois for its failure to comply with the federal motor-voter law.

House Minority Leader Michael Madigan and Senate Minority Leader Emil Jones, both Chicago Democrats, said they will attempt to intervene in the two lawsuits brought against the state.

U.S. Attorney General Janet Reno sued Illinois, California and Pennsylvania last week to force the states to comply with the federal law that makes voter registration more accessible.

The National Motor-Voter Coalition, including League of Women Voters, filed a lawsuit two weeks ago also attempting to force Illinois to comply.

Steve Brown, press secretary for Madigan, wants to participate in the lawsuits and said Madigan believes the state should comply with the federal mandate.

"The Governor and his Republican allies blocked passage of the bill in the Illinois Senate last year," he said.

The bill cleared the House with its Democratic majority, but was blocked in the Senate.

Brown said a letter to Edgar from Madigan and Jones said that the lawsuits send the wrong message to Illinois citizens about the government's desire to expand election participation.

Sen. Jim Rea, D-Christopher, said he agrees with the actions of the two minority leaders.

"I think that it (the motor-voter law) would boost registration and also be an efficient way to increase the percentage of voters," Rea said.

Moving along

2-years-of negotiations may end with transit

By Amanda Estabrook
Daily Egyptian Reporter

A decision on a vendor for the proposed citywide mass transit system could be made within a couple of weeks, James A. Tweedy, vice president of SIUC Administration, said.

Tweedy said if a decision could be made soon, there would be enough time to negotiate and plan with the vendor in order to have the service operating by fall 1995.

Four proposals have been submitted by mass transit businesses and are being reviewed by SIUC officials. Harry D. Wirth, Director of the Physical Plant, said.

Tweedy said he plans to meet with the leaders of the student government to review the proposals. President John C. Guyon also will review the proposals, along with purchasing and the physical plant.

SIUC has been negotiating with the city of Carbondale for a mass transit system since the beginning of 1993. The system will help alleviate some of the parking problems on campus. It also will provide students without cars with a mode of local transportation.

Next week may bring trustee decision

By Shawna Donovan

Student leaders should know next week what SIUC Student Trustee Mark Kochan plans to do with his position.

Kochan, who is interning in Chicago as a requirement for his master's degree in public administration, said he has yet to resign, and alternatives are being looked into by himself and student leaders.

Patrick Smith, Graduate and Professional Student Council president, said if Kochan does resign before July 1, a committee could recommend the Student Election Bylaws be amended allowing both student governments to appoint someone to the position.

The committee is currently being formed by GPSC and the Undergraduate Student Government. Three people from both student governments will form the committee which will make recommendations to both groups. The two groups will take those recommendations and decide whether to amend them to the bylaws. Those amendments could include how to appoint an interim trustee and what requirements, if any, should be

Groundhog day: Warm weather ahead

By Kellie Huttes
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Although Thursday's Groundhog Day prediction by Punxsutawney Phil was that spring is on its way, meteorologists are forecasting snow for the Southern Illinois area.

No shadow was cast when Phil — probably the most famous groundhog in Pennsylvania, if not the world — emerged from his burrow, indicating an early spring.

However, SIUC professors and students doubt Phil's credentials when it comes to predicting the weather.

Doc Horsley, assistant professor in geography and member of the American Meteorological Society, said Groundhog Day began in Punxsutawney in the 1800s to attract tourists to Pennsylvania.

"It's all a big farce and a bunch of media hype," he said. "Weather folklore has merit less than 25 percent of the time with regard to animals."

Horsley said an SIUC 22-year study found the groundhog's predictions were less than 15-percent accurate.

"He's predicting clouds when he sees or does not see his shadow," he said. "The weather to come has nothing to do with the clouds over Pennsylvania. It has to do with the jet stream and El Niño."

George Feldhamer, associate professor in zoology and a mammologist, said while Phil is famous for his annual predictions, he may not emerge from hibernation every year like people think.

QUAKE DAMAGE IS ESTIMATED AT $95 BILLION—
KYOTO, Japan—Local officials in western Japan estimated the cost of the damage from last month's earthquake at $95 billion Thursday as a debate began to emerge about how to foot the bill. The government of Hyogo Prefecture, where the deadly quake hit hardest, said about $58 billion involves damage to homes and buildings. The rest includes damage to gas and water facilities, highways, rail facilities and the port of Kobe. Officials described the estimate as "preliminary" and based on a continuing survey of collapsed buildings.

MEDIATORS ATTEMPT TO IMPLEMENT CEASE-FIRE —
QUITO, Ecuador—Peru resumed attacks on Ecuadorian army border posts Wednesday, Ecuador reported, while mediators tried to persuade the two countries to implement a cease-fire agreement. The two countries have been fighting over a 48-mile stretch of disputed borderland for nearly a week. Ecuador declared a cease-fire as of noon Tuesday, and Peru agreed to a "suspension of hostilities" but set no time. The two countries' deputy foreign ministers were meeting Wednesday evening in Rio de Janeiro with U.S., Chilean, Brazilian and Argentine mediators.

IRELAND PEACE PROCESS SEEMINGLY JEOPARDIZED—
LONDON—British Prime Minister John Major made an unusual television appeal to the nation Wednesday night in an effort to save the delicate deliberations on peace in Northern Ireland. The peace process seemed jeopardized when the London Times printed what it said were excerpts from a document designed as the basis for talks among parties on both sides of the Irish border, which angered politicians who favor continued British rule in Northern Ireland. The opportunity for peace, Major said in what was only his third televised address since he took office in 1990, "shouldn't be thrown away by fears that are unreal and accusations that are untrue."

AILING WORKERS PROVIDED NEW SETTLEMENTS —
WASHINGTON—Every year thousands of federal workers and retirees die of lingering, expensive diseases such as AIDS, cancer or various forms of heart ailments. Money worries make those last days even worse for the victims. But now workers and retirees are free to enter into settlements with insurance companies that will give them up-front cash equal to part of the face value of their federal life insurance policies.

ARMY RUNS INTO OWN FINANCIAL DIFFICULTIES —
WASHINGTON—While House Majority Leader Richard K. Arme, R-Texas, tries to help solve the federal government's budget problems, he apparently has a financial kink of his own that needs ironing out. The former economics professor and his wife, Susan B. Arme, are being sued in suburban Fairfax County, Va., Circuit Court by a couple who allege that the Armeys owe them more than $10,000 in back rent.

IMMIGRATION OFFICIALS OUTNUMBERED BY FAR —
NEW YORK—On one side of the battle are the factories, shops, restaurants and families that employ some 200,000 illegal immigrants here. Facing them are just 18 federal immigration officers enforcing the law prohibiting that employment. These officers are up against more than just numbers. Their regulations require them to give businesses three days' notice before they can inspect employment records.

Zero tolerance targets underage drinking drivers

By Rob Neff
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Illinois kicked off 1995 with new legislation aimed at keeping underage drinkers off the state's highways.

Under the "Use it and Lose it" zero-tolerance law that went into effect Jan. 1, drivers under age 21 with any trace of alcohol in their system face the loss of driving privileges for up to one year.

According to Cathy Monroe, spokeswoman for Secretary of State George Ryan, the new law sends a clear message to underage drinkers who choose to drive.

"It is a simple message," she said. "Drivers under 21, you are not allowed to drink and if you do, you are going to lose your license. Do not have even one sip before getting behind the wheel."

Under the new law, first-time offenders who test positive for any amount of alcohol will lose their license for three months and anyone refusing to submit to an alcohol test will lose their license for six months. The penalty for subsequent offenses is a one-year suspension for a positive alcohol test and a two-year suspension for refusing to take the test.

Underage drinkers caught driving also run the risk of being charged with driving under the influence of alcohol if their blood-alcohol content is above .10 percent.

Monroe said the best feature of the new law is that it makes the penalties an administrative process rather than a criminal charge. This means underage drinkers who lose their license under this law will not have a criminal record.

In a brochure supporting the new law, Ryan cites statistics showing automobile crashes as the top cause of death for young adults. According to Ryan, six people between the ages of 16 and 20 die in automobile crashes each day — almost half of which are alcohol-related.

Monroe said Ryan's office will conduct an education program aimed at telling minors and their parents about the new law.

"Education is the most important aspect of our enforcement," she said. "Other states that have passed this law report a 21-percent decrease in underage drunk drivers, but when the law is accompanied with an education program the decrease is 50 percent."

Monroe said the education program includes mailings to parents of underage drivers as well as presentations at high schools across the state.

Help wanted J-school director out; dean cites evaluation

By Dean Weaver
Daily Egyptian Reporter

SIUC's School of Journalism is beginning a nationwide search for a new director to be in place by the start of the fall semester.

Joe Foote, dean of the College of Mass Communication and Media Arts, said he announced his decision to replace current J-school director Walter Jaehnic at a Dec. 16 faculty meeting.

Foote said Jaehnic deserves a lot of credit for hiring many of the school's current faculty, but after Jaehnic's performance evaluation Foote decided to appoint a new director.

"I want to see a greater integration of journalism within the college of communications," Foote said.

The College of Mass Communication and Media Arts contains the School of Journalism, Department of Radio-Television and the Department of Cinema and Photography.

Foote said students in all these studies will need to combine their knowledge to work in the changing communications field.

Foote said although the search for Jaehnic's replacement will only last three months, he expects no shortage of qualified applicants.

"This journalism school is an attractive place to be because of our faculty's reputation," he said. "Applicants will have national stature in journalism schools throughout the country."

Jaehnic is on sabbatical in Europe, but will return to a teaching position in the school January 1996, said Dennis Lowry, acting director.

Benjamin Shepherd, vice president of academic affairs, said although the faculty gave Jaehnic high marks in many categories and voted to retain him, the decision is ultimately Foote's.

"Chairs and directors of various schools and departments serve at the pleasure of the dean," he said.

"This shouldn't be a blemish on Walt's record but a sign for some new blood and new ideas," Shepherd added.

Robert Spellman, an associate professor in the School of Journalism, said when Jaehnic was hired as director in 1987 the school's re-accreditation was questionable, the Daily Egyptian was running a deficit and typewriters were as common as computers.

Jaehnic is also the chief fiscal officer of the Daily Egyptian, which is owned by the SIU Board of Trustees.

Jaehnic hired media professionals in news and advertising and a

U of I Extension offering fruit growers seminars

By Jason E. Coyne
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The groundhog didn't see his shadow yesterday, signaling an early start to the growing season in Southern Illinois.

To help prepare fruit growers for the lengthy season, the University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service and Illinois Department of Energy and Natural Resources will be sponsoring the Southern Illinois Fruit School. The school will be touring the region starting on Feb. 6 in Centralia. Closer to home, the school will be held at St. Joseph's Parish Hall Feb. 7 in Cobden.

A variety of experts on plant pathology, entomology, and disease control will offer their insight to those in attendance. Pruning techniques that help produce optimum yields of peaches and apples will also be discussed.

Rick Weinzierl, an extension entomologist from University of Illinois, will provide information concerning destructive pests like the codling moth and control methods to prevent mating.

Pheromones, a natural scent sprayed in the air, is used to prevent males from being attracted to females, providing a pesticide-free solution to keep their numbers from overwhelming the fruit, he said.

"I'll provide an update on the selection and timing of pesticide use to stop leafhoppers from destroying apple crops and the stink bug from damaging peaches," Weinzierl said.

Two common fruit-skin problems, apple scabbing and peach cankers, will be covered by Steve Reis, an extension specialist in plant pathology at U of I.

Perennial cankers of peaches and apple scabs can be curbed with proper application of special pesticides, he said.

Chemical-growth regulators for apples and hands-on thinning methods for peaches to prevent over-flowering, which produces inadequate size and quality at harvest time, will be covered by Dr. Mosbah Kushad, a fruit expert from U of I.

"For fruit to be of good quality they have to be thinned; it's very critical when the trees are going to

'No Empathy' bringing punk rock to Patty's Place

By Benjamin Golshahr
Daily Egyptian Reporter

No Empathy will again touch base at Carbondale, bringing their classic meat-and-potatoes Chicago punk rock to Patty's Place, located at 706 E. Grand, Saturday night. Marc Ruvolo, singer for No Empathy, said the band's music is in the vein of Chicago's The Effigies and Naked Raygun. It also leans toward late '70s, early '80s English punk bands such as Chelys, Buzzcocks and Scum 69, he said.

Ruvolo said No Empathy's music, which is faster and less poppy than the punk music of Green Day or the Offspring, is centered around emotional themes and the experiences of everyday life.

"Our music isn't political at all — it's more personal," he said.

"I don't want it to be just a job. The main part is ... to enjoy ourselves."

Marc Ruvolo
lead singer

"We have a song called 'Critic' that's about how music critics often use their writing to show how creatively they can write, rather than give any useful information about the music."

Ruvolo said the band's name reflects their general philosophy about the music they play.

"It seemed to fit how we are," he said. "We're non-political. We don't take the problems of the world on our shoulders — we just play for fun, so we really have no empathy."

No Empathy's lineup experienced several changes as band members came and went, but since their first full-length record, "Freedom of Flesh," released in 1989, the band stabilized with Chuck Uchida and Martin Geraghty on guitars, Steve Gallup on bass, Kurt Stephens on drums and Ruvolo belting out vocals.

Ruvolo said playing music that is fun and not taking what they do too seriously is the secret to the band's cohesion.

"I don't want it to be just a job," he said. "The main part is for us to enjoy ourselves and not get too

Tax break may help families pay tuition

AS PART OF HIS "MIDDLE-CLASS BILL OF rights," President Clinton last week outlined a proposal for a long-overdue tax break for families paying a student's college tuition.

Clinton's plan is a godsend in more ways than one. Besides potentially saving middle-class families of SIUC students up to $890 in taxes every year, the deduction would make the costs of a college education more equitable for those students who do not receive financial aid.

CURRENTLY, STUDENTS AND THEIR FAMILIES do not have to claim scholarships, financial aid or tuition waivers as income when they file tax forms, unless money from those sources exceeds the cost of tuition, fees, books and school supplies. For example, a student with a full-ride scholarship and state financial aid, such as a Pell grant, would only pay taxes on refunds received from the bursar's office.

At the same time, a student who used money earned at a summer job to pay for educational expenses would still have to declare that money as income and pay taxes on it, even though it covered the same costs that the financial aid recipient's scholarships covered. This is doubly unfair to students who do not receive financial aid, because they and their families not only have to pay for their education themselves, they also have to pay taxes on that money.

CLINTON'S PLAN ALSO WOULD HELP FAMILIES who make early withdrawals from Individual Retirement Accounts to pay for their children's educations. Under existing tax laws, if a person set up an IRA at a local bank, he or she would not pay taxes on that money until the term on the account ended and he or she began making withdrawals. At that time, the going tax rate would apply to all money taken from the account. If someone withdraws money from an IRA before the term (usually 20 years) is completed, the government charges a 10-percent tax penalty on the money in the account. Under Clinton's plan, withdrawals made for educational expenses are tax-free.

IF CLINTON'S PLAN WENT INTO EFFECT NOW, the family of an SIUC student carrying 15 or more credit hours, with an annual family income between $30,000 and $70,000 and no financial aid, could save a little less than $900.00 in taxes this year. To put it in more concrete terms, the tax break would save a family enough to pay for about a semester's worth of rent for an average student in Carbondale.

On a national level, a recent Los Angeles Times article reported that an average family would save $2,800 a year under the Clinton plan.

MANY MIDDLE-CLASS FAMILIES ARE CAUGHT in a vicious cycle — their annual income is too small to cover the costs of higher education outright, but too large for them to qualify for financial aid to offset those costs. The result is that many students start life in the "real world" several thousand dollars in debt because their parents made exactly the wrong amount of money.

IN HIS 1973 NOVEL "JONATHAN LIVINGSTON Seagull," Richard Bach declares, "We can lift ourselves out of our ignorance; we can find ourselves as creatures of excellence and intelligence and skill. We can be free. We can learn to fly!" If we, the students of today, are to soar above our competition, it is up to the government to ensure that our wings are not clipped by debt before we ever get off the ground. Clinton's plan may not eliminate the problem or guarantee that every student will be able to afford a college education, but every little bit helps.

Appearance-based ethnic questions result of unintentional racist outlook

By Lisa Alvarez
For the Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES—"Where are you from?"

This question has followed me since early childhood. My initial answer, "93rd Street," always seemed to disappoint.

"No. Your nationality. Where is your family from?"

"Here," was my reply.

"Then came the doubtful smile, even from my peers. It seemed obvious to everyone, except me, that I wasn't from here.

I took pleasure being singled out. The middle daughter of five, I craved attention. The curiosity of strangers gave me (so I thought) stature in a family where I competed (so I thought) with the beauty and talents of four sisters, daughters from mother's other marriages, taller, blonder, whiter.

I soon learned the answer to satisfy the questioners: Mexico. It explained my father, the color of his skin and mine, our eyes and hair, the sound my last name made when the teacher read roll, the classes in which the school placed me, and why some children beat me up, calling names like "beaner" or "wetback."

I embellished what little I knew, fantasizing a lineage connecting a mixed-race brown girl in Los Angeles to Emiliano Zapata, Pancho Villa, the Aztecs. I wasn't insulted. I wanted to belong.

In my 20s, I worked alongside a woman named Thelma in a high school. Teaching assistants, we instructed troubled young people who, like us, were often from someplace else. They'd been asked, no doubt, "Where are you from?"

One day, early in the semester, we lunched with other instructors. I remember the warm ease of the table as we removed our meals from paper bags and small coolers. We were all women, which reinforced the sense of intimacy.

As Thelma peeled back a Tupperware lid to reveal steaming microwaved vegetables and rice, someone asked her the question. My question. "Where are you from?"

"Kansas," Thelma answered between bites.

The woman wasn't satisfied. "No, where are you really from?"

I saw Thelma swallow. "I'm from Kansas," she repeated. Before the woman could resume, Thelma asked her own question, coolly, without malice, with concern. "Have you ever thought how racist that question is?"

The mood cooled. Napkins met lips. Plastic cutlery rattled. The woman defended the question as only natural. Thelma countered with an explanation of assumptions inherent in the question.

"You assume," she said, "I can't be from here because I don't look like you. Because I look like this," and she gestured to her Asian features, "I must be from somewhere else. I must not be American. But I am. I'm from Kansas."

Now, years later, I'm still asked that question about once a week. But now I offer a different answer: I'm from a country that, despite its celebrated melting pot, possesses a still-potent past of suspicion and oppression toward those considered "other." A country that, at different times, has freely chosen politics of occupation, slavery, exclusion and selective justice.

In post-Proposition 187 California, Thelma might advise that the real question is, "When will you go back?" But that question, like the one it hides behind, doesn't recognize reality. Here is where we are from. Here, fated to answer these questions, is where we stay.

Foreign policy needs close look

By Dimitri K. Simes
For Newsday

It is inevitable as well as constructive for Congress' new Republican majority to challenge the Clinton administration's foreign policy.

While the Republicans don't have the same clear-cut mandate from voters in the international arena as they do to reduce government at home, numerous polls indicate Americans have serious reservations about President Clinton's handling of foreign affairs. For the vast majority of Republican members of Congress, it's not just the president's specific initiatives abroad but rather his whole global vision that is fundamentally flawed.

Nevertheless, congressional Republicans should follow the principle that politics stop at the water's edge. Richard M. Nixon was known for, and proud of, his fierce partisanship. Still, in 1947, despite the opposition of 75 percent of his constituents who were dead-set against any kind of foreign aid, Nixon voted in the House for the Marshall Plan.

Bipartisanship should not, however, be an end in itself; it should be pursued to allow for a coherent and an effective foreign policy where both parties agree in principle. Without such an agreement, Congress should be prepared to challenge the administration.

Reconnecting foreign policy to the national interest and moving it away from ill-defined global moralistic pursuits controlled by multilateral organizations is what the congressional majority should strive to accomplish.

It should do so with a scalpel rather than an ax, but also without hesitation.

Band's first release native in spirit

By Kristi Dehority
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Cape Girardeau's Papa Aborigine, with their combination of spiritual and alternative style, are releasing their first recording tonight at Patty's Place.

The band consists of singer/key-boardist Billy Keys, guitarist Alex Allen, bassist Chris Ford, and drummer Keller Ford.

The band has been together for a couple of years and has played Carbondale in the past at the Hangar, Sidetracks and one year in the battle of the bands.

"Carbondale is one of the most happening music scenes outside of St. Louis," Keys said.

"We do have a good following from Cape, but a small buzz in Carbondale."

Keys said the band is appreciative of the support from Carbondale and wanted to have the tape release here.

The new release is a self-titled tape that came out on New Year's from Noteworthy Studio here in Carbondale.

The band had two release parties in January; the last one will be tonight.

The recording shows the different directions the band takes with their music.

That diversity is heard in the separate styles of an instrumental, a few blues tunes, a slow, swaggering number and some fast heavy metal songs. The music has strong lyrics with a solid keyboard that compliments the guitar, bass and drums.

"We are closer to alternative rock, but we sound different because we have the tribal and spiritual element," Keys said.

That sound is best heard in the song "Summer Stone."

Keys said the song has native type influences and is carried throughout the song on the keyboards.

Keys said the band decided to record the tape for exposure and experience.

"We did it for experience purposes, to let fans and other people hear our music," Keys said.

"It is all original music, and our first studio experience, so we are going to use it more as a demo tape," he said.

Keys said it is really hard to get a demo tape heard but they have a contact at Geffen Records that is checking them out.

420 In Progress is opening for Papa Aborigine; the music is scheduled to start at 10 p.m.

Tapes may be purchased at the show tonight; they are also available at Disc Jockey in Cape Girardeau.

Police Blotter

Carbondale Police

■ Daniel Boucher, 20, of Murphysboro, and Julieta Leger, 22, of Carbondale, both employees of the Subway at 899 E. Grand, told Carbondale Police they were robbed at gun point at 11:27 p.m. on Jan. 31.

They described the suspect as a black male, 6' 5" tall, 175 pounds and in his early twenties. They said he was wearing a dark navy-blue zip-up hooded sweat jacket, a striped shirt, dark tan pants, black and white tennis shoes and a blue knit scarf covering his face. Boucher and Leger said the robber held his right hand in his pocket, indicating he had a gun, and told them to empty the cash register. After allegedly taking over $100 in cash and checks, the suspect fled south along the east side of the building into a trailer park area on Park Street.

■ Lorne S. House, 25, of 511 S. Logan Apt. 9, told Carbondale Police his apartment was burglarized between 7 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Jan. 31. The offender allegedly entered the apartment by unknown means and took $980 worth of clothing. This is the second burglary House has reported in the past two weeks. Carbondale Police said the first burglary had a similar method of operation and similar items were stolen.

The proposed system would provide free service for SIUC students to the mall, the Southern Illinois Airport, and other off-campus residential areas. The Student Center is the proposed site for the center of the system.

SIUC students voted in favor of a $20 student fee increase to support the mass transit system in 1993. The University first considered a closed system, accessible only to students, but decided upon a system open to Carbondale residents.

SIUC will be working with the city and the Illinois Department of Transportation to put the system together.

Motor-Voter

"I am definitely in favor of the bill and support the efforts (to implement the law)."

The 1993 National Voter Registration Act passed through Congress with solid Democratic support. The act requires all states to provide voter registration through drivers' licensing facilities, through the mail and at state social service offices.

When Reno filed the suit, Gov. Edgar said the law was another unfunded federal mandate and may increase voter fraud.

Don Schultz, director of election operations for the State Board of Elections, said Illinois traditionally has had a passive system of registration at drivers' license facilities and social service offices.

Currently, a person must ask to register to vote at the state offices, but under the 1993 federal law, all employees at such facilities are required to ask each person if they would like to register to vote, Schultz said.

"It would require more paperwork and cost quite a bit of money to implement such a program," he said.

Implementing the program is estimated to cost the state $20 million per year. This includes reprogramming computers and purchasing new printers and forms from the federal government for mail registration, Schultz said.

"It is easier to vote now than ever before," he said. "This would create more work for state election officials and there is the concern of an increase in voter fraud (through mail registration)."

Schultz said Illinois has a history of voter fraud, but more checks and balances and better trained election judges have helped to curb the fraud.

"People are watching a lot closer now," he said.

Another question Republicans are asking is if the law will resolve the problem it is trying to correct, Schultz said.

"It is supposed to increase voter turnout and there is concern that the law will not solve the problem," he said.

In the 1994 general election about 6.1 million people registered to vote in Illinois. Schultz said 53 percent of the registered voters turned out to vote.

In presidential election years there is a 75 to 79 percent turnout in the state, slightly higher than the national average, he said.

installed, Smith said.

Jason Matthews, vice president for administrative affairs, Laura Halliday, vice president for graduate affairs, and Smith were appointed to the committee Wednesday night.

Ed Sawyer, USG president, said he hopes the committee recommendations will send a message to Kochan.

"Nothing has really changed, but this committee is being set up because of Mark's inability to make a firm decision," Sawyer said. "However, whatever recommendations are made, they will not affect Mark, but hopefully it would be something to motivate him.

Sawyer said he will make appointments to the committee, and some recommendations may come before the senate at next Wednesday's meeting.

Smith said recommendations to GPSC could also come next week, and that when and if Kochan resigns, someone could be appointed trustee from a pool of applicants.

Kochan said he supports the committee. "It might allow for more flexibility," Kochan said.

He maintains he will continue to be the best representative despite being six hours away.

"I will continue to represent the students and I will be at the February trustees meeting," he said.

"I'm knowledgeable about the issues.

"We all have things to do," Kochan said.

"We must get this issue resolved in the most appropriate, professional manner."

The next Board of Trustees meeting is Feb. 9 at SIU - Edwardsville.

The next trustee election is early April, but the person elected will not take office until July 1.

woodchucks, hibernate in the winter but occasionally get up and stir on nice days," he said.

Ted Lange, senior in hotel restaurant management from Lincoln, said although the weather feels spring-like, he does not take the groundhog's prediction seriously.

"You can't base what the weather is going to be like on one little animal," he said.

Valerie Graham, sophomore in civil engineering from Salem, said she does not believe in Phil either. "Whatever the weatherman says, I go by," she said.

But Scott Pinsky, senior in hotel and restaurant management from Northbrook, said he believes in the groundhog's predictions and likes the annual holiday.

"It's a fun ritual, but I don't live my life by it," he said. "It's an excuse to have a party."

Tammy Horn, an undecided freshman from Carbondale said she also likes Groundhog Day.

"I like to think what the groundhog says is going to be right, but I want at least one more snow," she said.

An Apology From Fred's Dance Barn

Twice this past year, major country acts had to cancel at the 90 Arena due to poor advance ticket sales. It seems both dates conflicted with weekends FRED'S had AREA CODE 618 booked. We are sorry if this caused a loss of revenue at SAU, but FRED'S will not stand in the way of country music lovers fun. This year FRED'S will take great care to keep this from happening. Luckily, this weekend you don't have to choose! Everyone should come to see AREA CODE 618. Just think, maybe these major country acts will call FRED'S so they can have a weekend too!

heavily produce," Kushad said. When the fruits are small (10-12 mm), they need to be sprayed with the growth regulator to prevent the crop from overbudding. The fruit must be a bit larger (15-20 mm) for the hand-thinning method to be effective. If the fruit is not thinned, it will stay small and tend to be abnormal, he said. The weather is another vital factor in the thinning process, with cloudy days being ideal for heavily-budding trees.

Also scheduled to instruct at the school is Chris Doll, a local private consultant and retired horticulture expert Pat Byers, the fruit-grower adviser in the Department of Fruit Science at the Southwest Missouri State University research campus in Mountain Grove, Mo. Professor of pomology at SIUC, Brad Taylor, will offer his insight on apple and peach orchards, which he has tended to in the past in Union and Jackson counties. Other topics discussed will include rodent control, root-stock control and strains of apples and peaches better suited to the region. Registration for the school in Cobden is five dollars and will industry. Ruvolo, with Gar Brandt, styled their own label, Johann's Face Records, after Ian McKaye's Discard label four years ago. This gives them total control of what they do. "Having your own label pays a lot more in the long run," he said. "After all, who would you rather be, Ian McKaye or Vanilla Ice? (Ice) is a clown now. He may have made a lot of money for a year, but I don't think anyone respects him. Fugazi is the perfect example of what I want to be in — they did it right." Since their debut album, No Empathy has released two LP's, "You're So Smart" in 1994 and "They Want Whatever" in 1993, as well as several 7-inch EPs. Smoking Popes and Oblivion, the opening bands at Saturday night's Patty's Place gig, have also released albums under that label. Over the last 10 years the band has gone on three nationwide tours. Through this, their albums and word of mouth, No Empathy has attracted a growing number of fans. Ruvolo said their fan support is strongest in Chicago, No Empathy's hometown, but they can draw a following in any major city. "In Chicago we'll headline The Metro, which holds 1,100 people, and we'll sell it out," he said. "Across the country we're not huge, but we can draw 100 or so people." Ruvolo said going on national tours is more akin to taking a vacation than anything resembling work.

"We have friends all over the country, so that makes it into a big vacation," he said. "We stay in their houses; it's pretty cool." He said the band's beginnings were pretty rocky, but dedication to his music has paid off. "It's a long road," he said. "You really have to stay single-minded. There's a lot of bands out there, most of them with more money and connections than you've got, but I'm doing really good now. "As long as we want to do it, we'll keep playing and putting out records, and I don't see that ending in the near future."

Green Day crowns DE poll

By James J. Fares
DE Entertainment Editor

As call went out, and rock and roll fans answered. The votes are cast. Here's what the Daily Egyptian knows: Green Day is SIUC's favorite group, but you also feel they should call it quits. This campus has no love for rap and thinks Ace of Base needs to find a new "sign." You hope MTV will blast away Sandblast and you think Boyz II Men is the worst band to play here and they haven't even shown up yet!

The biggest surprises in the first ever Daily Egyptian Rock & Roll Poll were the strong showing of Nine Inch Nails and Hole. Hole's astonishing album, Live Through This, which was released four days after Courtney Love's husband, Kurt Cobain took his own life, hit home in your hearts, despite its self-imposed lack of promotional push. Trent Reznor won big on campus for best artist as his depressive and angry lyrics had a chance to prove themselves when Nine Inch Nails rocked the Arena. Despite all of the hoop-la here's the results.

BEST ARTISTS: Trent Reznor led the voting with runner up being Kurt Cobain. Votes for best artists were tallied up between a real-life suicide and someone who wallows around on the dark side of life.

BEST BAND: Green Day cleaned house here with the Grateful Dead closing in on a far away second. Talk about the odd couple. If they toured together you would have to decide between the spinners or the mosh pit.

BEST ALBUM: Green Day's Dookie, obviously didn't sound as it was titled. While Nine Inch Nails', Downward Spiral, could only achieve second best in Carbondale.

BEST SINGLE: Black Hole Sun Soundgarden finally found something radio stations can play. While Cranberries, Zombie, woke up the living dead.

SINGLE THAT MADE YOU PUKE: "The Sign," by Ace of Base, enough said. Counting Crows, "Mr. Jones," a perfect example of the definition "over played."

BEST VIDEO: Nine Inch Nails', "Closer," needed to get a little bit closer to the Beastie Boys', "Sabotage," as it finished first just by a hair.

VIDEO THAT MADE YOU WANT TO KICK YOUR TV: Snoop Doggy Dogg, "Murder was the Case," shot itself in the foot for this poll. While rounding out the best of the worst was Lisa Loeb & Nine Stories with their very entertaining video for "Stay."

BEST MALE SINGER: Chris Cornell with a tie for second between Seal and Kurt Cobain.

BEST FEMALE SINGER: Tori Amos was the leader of all leaders in this category as she beat out Courtney

Love. BEST NEW BAND OR ARTIST: Green Day takes the cake even though they are old news and Liz Phair rounds out the rest.

WHO SHOULD BE HORSE WHIPPED: Boyz II Men is just winning everything these days, with Snoop Doggy Dogg as a close second and Henry Rollins is my own personal vote.

SEXIEST INDIVIDUAL: Jim Morrison led this category, but this is a 1994 poll, soooo... Janet Jackson followed the Lizard King with individual votes scattered all over for Henry Rollins, Liz Phair, Pamela Anderson and Eddie Vedder plus seventy-five million others for various artists.

BEST RAPPERS: Beastie Boys; with "Nobody" finishing in second and Snoop Doggy Dogg next in line.

WHICH BAND SHOULD BREAK UP NOW: Green Day should start looking for a new job according to our readers (Sam's cafe is hiring), while the Eagles should have stayed on vacation.

WORST BAND TO PLAY CARBONDALE: Boyz II Men just can't receive any respect. They haven't even had a chance to play Carbondale and are already being knocked around. Catherine had a great student showing; around fifty from Carbondale High.

BEST BAND TO PLAY CARBONDALE: Nine Inch Nails was heard somewhere else besides Detours, as they take this one away unanimously. "Nobody" finished second and Veruca Salt third, playing at the Free-forum area in the spring-time.

SHOW OR PERSON MTV SHOULD GET RID OF: All of it was the largest response. Kennedy doesn't have many friends at SIUC and neither does Sandblast.

MOST OVERRATED BAND: For some strange reason people seem to think Aerosmith is overrated, they are such a young band. Pearl Jam stops the MTV thing and you guys still think they have more credit than they deserve.

WHO WILL HIT IT BIG IN 1995: Hole will try to leave a mark on the New Year while Green Day backs them up.

POLL RESULTS, page 9

Entertainment Briefs

Quitters never prosper Tonya Harding has quit her talent agency (which specializes in marketing scandalous clients). She didn't like the fact that the agency also handled Joey Buttafuoco. She turned down an appearance on T.V.'s Married... With Children because her boyfriend didn't like the part.

Danny Boy: Former "Partridge Family" standout Danny Bonaduce will return to T.V. with a daily talk show titled, "Danny!" Just what America needs.

Not Worthy: Senator Ted Kennedy riled up some Catholics last week after he received communion at his mother's funeral. Church law bars Catholics who divorce and remarry (as Kennedy has done) from receiving the sacraments.

Forever Forgetful: Kathie Lee Gifford who sang the national anthem Sunday at the Super Bowl may want to forget her first anthem at a basketball game in Kansas City. She blanked out after the first five words.

Look Out! An automatic gate at a parking lot gave Zsa Zsa Gabor a nasty concussion when it clobbered her on her head. She was treated for injuries at a local hospital.

Encouraging words: Demi Moore on the worst insult she ever got. "A Cosmo editor once told me I looked healthy when she really meant I looked fat... She said, 'My aren't you a healthy looking girl!'"

We'll Call You: Auditions for McLeod Theatre Summer Playhouse performances of Annie, "Lost in Yonkers" and "West Side Story" will be registering on Saturday, Feb. 4. For more information call SIUC theater Department at 453-5741.

Weekend Spotlight

Jokers aim to ace at PK's

By Benjamin Golshahr
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Jokers will be wild Friday night at PK's, located at 308 S. Illinois Ave., bringing their southern rock and blues sounds to Carbondale for the first time.

Jokers was formed only last August and wasted little time before leaping into the Southern Illinois music scene.

Steve Dale, the drummer for Jokers, said the band had only practiced a few times before they entered TAO's "Battle of the Bands" last summer at the Du Quoin State Fair. Under a beer tent, with their song-list close at hand, they placed third.

Jokers are Danny Helfrich and Chris Harris on guitars, Greg Pitt on lead vocals and rhythm guitar, Dr. Chad on bass and Steve Dale on What do you think of the Nitrous Oxide banning in Carbondale?

"If it is going to be banned from using it, so I think it should be banned."

Zamilia Hale, senior in Advertising from Chicago.

"I can remember going to parties and seeing it used. I didn't see anything significant in its use."

Andrew Ensor, senior in TV production from New Jersey.

"I think it should be banned. It should be illegalized everywhere."

Paula Tobias, sophomore in Dietetics from Elmhurst.

"If it is going to be banned in one place it would be wise to ban it in most places."

Michael Wilson, freshman in Psychology from Anna.

"I think anything dealing with drugs should be banned."

Tommy Self, senior in Finance from Chicago.

"It's not going to do any good. The same people will be dealing, the same people will be using."

Meredith Stone, junior in Early Education from Villa Park.

Body-piercing, acid polka add humor to poll entries

By James J. Fares
DE Entertainment Editor

In addition to receiving sane entries here at the Daily Egyptian, there were also some off-the-wall responses to certain categories that came in and are quite humorous.

In the category "biggest new trend," we found out body-piercing wasn't the only thing on to put a hurt on the new year. One human being thought acid polka would be a great way to start off 1995. The idea of beating up little weenies who think Offspring and Green Day are punk raised some eyebrows. The definite possibility of alien abduction was written down, but in a never-before-seen language. The environmental push and pleasant thought to use less toilet paper stunk up our offices. And last but not least for these outrageous entries... Shave off your eyebrows... Hey!!!

The topic of who should be horse-whipped drew a mixed response. The Bursar's Office came up a lot (I wonder why?). One horny little devil wrote down, "Me by Tori Amos." Fat chance. Others nominated Madonna, but she would probably like it. Certain people felt the Democratic Party should be horse-whipped — like they don't have enough problems.

Singling out an individual show or person "MTV should get rid of" proved it doesn't take much to get accepted into SIUC. Some of the responses stated the entire programming schedule. Others were more specific by stating, all of it! "Real Life" proved strangers really can get along. "That dork on the Grind" was an interesting comment. Finishing out the pack was "Start the whole f---ing thing over and bring back the 'Young Ones!'"

Concerning the "Sexiest Individual" and the ton of single number responses, Ricki Lake ranked high as she is an improvement from her "China Beach" days. Big Daddy Ice-G made it onto our ballot; I don't know how or who he is (porn star, maybe). Love Lyett, David Hasselhoff, Beavis and "that guy from time trax" also had entries. For those of you into the morbid thing, Kurt Cobain received votes as well.

drums. They are all from Southern Illinois, except Pitt, who moved here from Kentucky, and Dr. Chad, who moved to Carbondale 10 years ago from Pekin.

Dr. Chad, who has been playing bass for 16 years, said the Jokers is a hard-rocking, guitar-driven band.

"Being a southern rock band, we've got tight guitar rhythms and harmonies," he said.

"Both the guitar players play leads and they've got a lot of melodies and harmonies worked out. Plus our singer plays rhythm guitar — we're a guitar-based band."

Dale said most of Joker's tunes are covers, but the band plays them with gusto.

"We've got some killer tunes, like the Allman Brothers' 'Whippin' Post,' but we don't do it like the Allman Brothers," he said through intermittent laughter,

"We do some beefed-up ZZ Top, and this singer we got sounds just like Eric Clapton. If I hear 'Before you accuse me' and the radio, I close my eyes and it sounds just like ol' Greg."

Dale said their original material is very unique.

"So far we've got four or five of them (originals)," he said. "They're definitely original — you can't classify them."

Dr. Chad said he has been working on some bass lines which he hopes to incorporate in the band's repertoire.

"I think we can take some time out to work on some original ideas," he said.

"I'll play something and everyone can add their own creativity to it."

Dr. Chad said since the Du Quoin State Fair, the band has only rocked a few bars, and several parties, but the PK's gig marks a transition to better things — being solidly booked.

"We've got Carries Place in Murphysboro, Rank and File, and The Jammer in Chester," he said. "We'll pretty much just play PK's in Carbondale for now. We're just starting to look around really."

Dr. Chad said Jokers is interested in recording at one of the independent recording studios around the area, such as Noteworthy, Mole-Hole, or one of the newer ones just cropping up.

"People are setting up some smaller studios around here, and I'm itching to get us in there," he said.

"I like the more independent-type labels coming around — I think it's a big plus."

Dr. Chad said being in this band allows him the chance to become a professional musician.

"I've been trying to be a professional musician for years," he said.

"I enjoy playing out and people enjoying it."

Dale said the PK's gig will be the best place to go this Friday night.

"That'll be the place to let it all unwind," he said.

"I'll do anything to turn a head or two — there ain't nothing to it."

WHO WILL HIT ROCK BOTTOM: Pearl Jam still on Carbondale's yuck list, and Nirvana brings up the rear (man, you guys are bad).

ARTIST WHO YOU NEVER WANT TO HEAR FROM IN 1995: Ace of Base and their New Year's resolution to stay in Sweden followed by Counting Crows.

BIG NEW TREND: Hey, you would have never figured this out: punk bands! Body piercing punctured in for second.

let me try it, too," Morrison said. "When I first started practicing on them, I hated it. But apparently, my coach liked what he saw, because I ran hurdles in the next race."

Morrison recalls an MVC meet last year against a personal rival, Debbi Caddell, from Illinois State. Ranked second coming into the race, Morrison knew she would have to work hard to win.

"The other girl (Caddell) came into the race with a real cocky attitude. As the race got underway, my teammates could see the amount of determination on my face. I stayed right there with her and won the race, and my teammates cleared the bleachers to congratulate me."

SIUC track coach Don DeNoon speaks highly of Morrison's intensity and determination during the season.

"LaTonya is probably the strongest athlete on the team," DeNoon said. "I have seen a steady progression in her performance during her career."

"She's a real tiger when it comes to competition. She has been really focused this year, and has been a victor every time we've had a track meet."

SIUC takes to the road as they compete in Bloomington, Ind. this Saturday. At 8 a.m., the Salukis will participate in the Indiana Invitational.

Tournament, which begins March 4 in St. Louis.

Thursday night's games pitting Illinois State at SMSU and Creighton at Drake were not included in the above standings.

Warning: Don't be alarmed if you see an unusually large number of enormous men on campus next fall—it's just the new Saluki football recruits brought in by coach Shawn Watson and his staff to help "beef up" the roster.

All together, the recruiting class that signed letters of intent with SIUC Wednesday weighs in at a combined total of 4,884 pounds.

That's an average of just over 244 pounds a piece... way to go Coach Watson!

Irish eyes are smiling: Notre Dame is said to have reeled in the nation's No. 1 Division I-A football recruiting class that includes 18 prep All-Americans.

The Irish were followed by Florida State, who stole America's top high school quarterback in Pennsylvania's Dan Kendra after the QB orally committed to Penn State.

The Nittany Lions, Florida, Michigan, Alabama and Nebraska rounded off the premiere list for signing blue-chippers.

And just in case there are some Illinois fans down here — the Fighting Illini prep class ranked between 10 and 12. Somehow... U of I signed Chris Redman, a high school QB out of Louisville that broke the national record for TD passes in a season with 57.

In closing: Just in case you're wondering... Tulsa still has to go to Evansville Feb. 11.

I never thought I'd say this, but GO ACES!

Alton, and Kareem Vaughn from O'Fallon to add size and speed to the Saluki linebacking corps.

Watson said he wanted his linebackers big, but also to be versatile.

"Hallahan was a junior college All-American and we were drawn to him right away," he said. "The reason why is he played linebacker at Grossmont in the 4-3 (defense), he's a real hard spot inside, he's a good tackle to tackle player and he has the speed and athleticism to get outside. He is a real headhunter."

Thursday, Watson signed Rodney Kennedy, a 245-pound fullback from Poplar Bluff, MO. Kennedy rushed for 1,356 yards and 16 touchdowns last season as a senior at Poplar Bluff High School.

Hurdler clears early obstacle

By Cynthia Sheets
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Imagine the worst nightmare a runner could have.

Missing the race, or maybe competing only in underwear are some possibilities. But to LaTonya Morrison, seeing the first runner on her relay team running in the distance while she still had sweatpants on, stretching to warm up, was a moment that was far too real.

This memorable recollection belongs to the Daily Egyptian Athlete of the Week, LaTonya Morrison.

"Our coach had told us we were in the second heat, so when I look up to see our first runner, I was confused," Morrison said. "Coach was telling me to get on the track, and the official was telling me to get off the track. I felt like I was playing hopscotch. We still made it to the finals, and even managed to place fifth in the event."

Morrison was a freshman at SIUC when this race occurred at the Florida State Invitational, but she still has trophies at home from her very first race when she was 8 years old.

"I took second in the 200-meter race and third in the 100-meter race," Morrison said. "My mom was in track when she was younger, and she wanted me to be involved in sports so I wouldn't be quite so shy."

From a very supportive mother, Morrison has blossomed into an exceptional athlete for SIUC. She is currently ranked No. 26 on the list of Saluki all-time scorers, with more than half of a season ahead to improve. In Missouri Valley Conference standings, Morrison is placed second in the 55-meter hurdles, fourth in the 400-meter and is a member of the 4 X 400-meter relay team, which currently holds the leading time in the Conference.

Morrison is also the co-captain of the women's team this season, and last year shared the team's MVP honors with Cathy Kershaw, an award based on total points accumulated by an individual during the season.

But Morrison has not always been interested in competing in the hurdle events.

"When I was in eighth grade, I saw other girls on the track jumping hurdles, and I begged my coach to

SEAN NESBITT — The Daily Egyptian

LaTonya Morrison, a senior in sociology from Woodridge, practices the hurdles Thursday afternoon at the Recreation Center's indoor track. The next meet for the track team is the Indiana Invitational on Saturday.

After Tulsa upset, 'Dawg House' on map

If someone would have asked the Missouri Valley Conference coaches before the season where the toughest place in the league to play was - it probably would have been a toss-up between Evansville and Southwest Missouri State.

But anyone who attended Wednesday night's MVC showdown between the Salukis and Tulsa at the Arena might be able to make a pretty good argument on behalf of the "Dawg House."

A season-high 8,102 Saluki diehards saw what I believe was the most exciting game since I enrolled at SIUC (back in 1991) as the Dawgs used 37 points from Chris Carr and a last second shot by freshman Shane Hawkins to defeat Tulsa, 72-71.

Just for the record, though, Wednesday's crowd was the largest for a men's hoops game since Jan. 25, 1993, when SIUC pounded rival Illinois State, 83-68.

Hmmm... I wonder what the Arena finale against Evansville Feb. 25 on ESPN is going to be like... hint... get your tickets now!

Next Please: The Dawgs travel to Drake Saturday to try and complete a season sweep of the Bulldogs.

From the Pressbox

SIUC throttled Drake, 89-68, Jan. 26.

A Saluki victory in Des Moines, IA., might be tougher than most think, since the Bulldogs are probably still sore over its coach, Rudy Washington, being ejected just 10 minutes into the game during the season's first meeting at the Arena.

And while the Dawgs are up north, they'll hop over to Northern Iowa for a clash with the Panthers Monday night.

UNI also has the revenge factor on its side - remember, they were on the losing end of SIUC's second straight MVC Tournament title last season in St. Louis.

Crunch time: The Dawgs are still trailing Tulsa in the league standings despite Wednesday night's thriller.

TU is 12-5 overall and holds a 9-2 Valley mark compared to SIUC's 13-6, 6-3 clip.

Bradley (14-5, 8-3) and Evansville (13-4, 7-3) are both clinging to their edge over the Salukis, while Illinois State continues to keep pace at 11-9, 6-3.

Drake(4-5), Creighton (3-5), Wichita State (4-6), Southwest Missouri State (3-6), Northern Iowa (2-8) and Indiana State (1-9) are all battling to make the eight team cut for the Missouri Valley Conference

Watson looks at recruits, future

By Doug Durso
Daily Egyptian Reporter

As the finishing touches are being put on the Salukis 1995 football recruiting class, Shawn Watson and his coaching staff went out and got the big bodies it needed up front, but was also able to add depth to the other positions.

Watson said that his big recruiting needs were in the line and at quarterback so SIUC attracted 11 offensive and defensive linemen and two quarterbacks, but the coaching staff was also able to land depth at the wide receiver, defensive back and linebacker spots.

Stephen Geraldts from Sikeston, Mo. and Kali Whiting from Nassau Community College, add speed to a young group of receivers.

"If you have good coverage, you can do a lot with your front seven, and he (Hassan McCullough) can provide that coverage."

Shawn Watson
Saluki football head coach

Watson said he was looking for receivers that can stretch the defense, which the recruits can do with their speed.

"Kali Whiting is the big play receiver we've been looking for in our offense," he said. "When we were evaluating him, he came up with some big plays and we knew he was the real thing."

Geraldts was recruited by Nebraska and Oklahoma before breaking his collar bone. However, Watson said he has fully recovered and is as good as before.

The Dawgs added three defensive backs: Hassan

McCullough from Pasadena Community College, Wayne Ross out of Eureka Mo. and Sam Wilkerson hailing from Chicago.

McCullough, who started at corner as a freshman at Brigham Young University, is a key to SIUC's defensive team, Watson said.

"He's fast and he's a coverage corner and that's what we were looking for and we need it," Watson said. "If you have good coverage you can do a lot with your front seven and he can provide that coverage."

With the speed of the defensive back recruits, Watson said will allow the front seven to be more aggressive next season.
