Time may kill USG housing resolution

By Signe K. Skinin
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Bad timing may lead to the demise of an Undergraduate Student Government resolution asking for the SIUC Board of Trustees to re-examine and possibly change next fall's over-21 housing policy, USG members say.

USG President Kim Clemens said a resolution passed at Wednesday's senate meeting is too late to do any good at this week's board meeting.

"The senators feel this resolution is a valid concern," Clemens said. "However, it seems kind of late in the game for it to work since people have already signed up for their rooms for next year."

Housing decided last semester that Neely Hall, in University Park, should become the only over-21 residence hall next year. This change will leave Warren Hall, in Thompson Point and Allen Hall, in University Park, available for under-21 students to live in.

According to the resolution, the main reason for USG opposition to the policy change is that most older students prefer living in Thompson Point.

Andrew Ensor, Southern Hills senator and the resolution's author, said the legislation reflects what the students want.

"The main thing is not to change the current over-21 housing status of Warren Hall," Ensor said. "These are our best students, our success stories, and the last thing they want is to be shoved into a tower where they don't want to live."

David Vingren, Thompson Point senator, said if the board does vote down the resolution right now, USG will continue attempting to have the over-21 housing policy examined.

Mine kills U.S. soldier in Bosnia

The Washington Post

SARAJEVO. Bosnia-Herzegovina—A U.S. soldier was killed Saturday when he apparently stepped on a mine while on guard duty in northeastern Bosnia. He was the first American to die in Bosnia since U.S. troops began flooding into this country in December as part of a NATO peacekeeping mission.

The soldier, who was not identified pending notification of his relatives, was the fourth NATO soldier to die in Bosnia as a result of a mine-related accident. Three British soldiers were killed last Sunday when their Land Rover rolled over an antitank mine. Three American GIs have also been wounded after stepping or driving on mines.

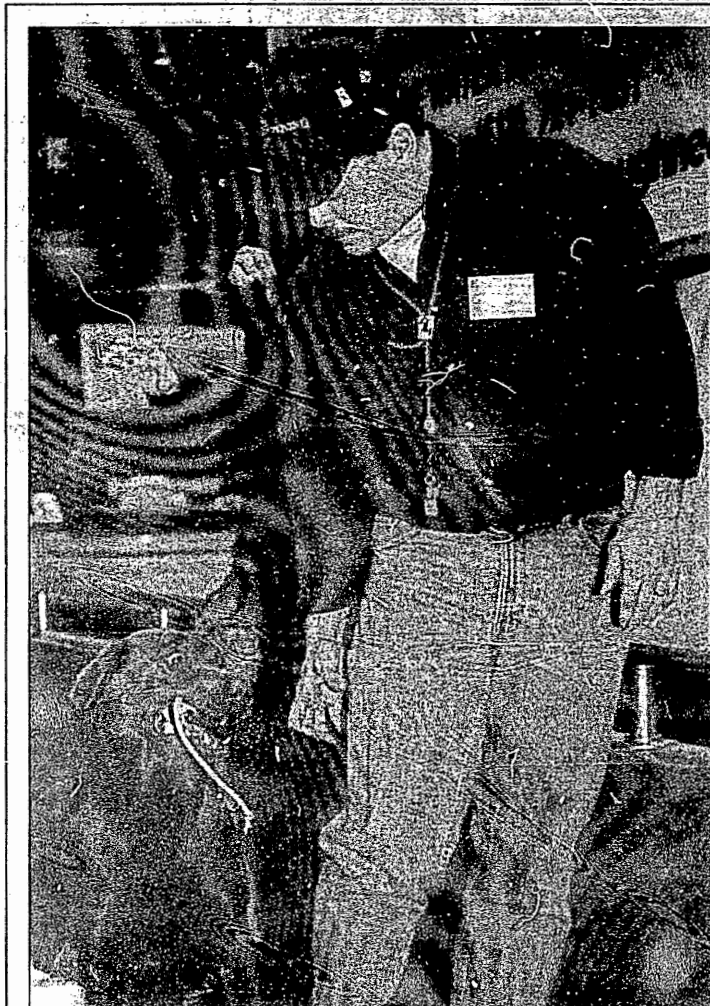

Two British soldiers were slightly wounded Saturday by sniper fire in the Serb-held Sarajevo suburb of Ilidza, news services reported. An American vehicle was also hit in Ilidza but there were no casualties.

The American soldier killed Saturday had been deployed near the northeastern Bosnian town of Gradacac, 25 miles north of the main U.S. base at Tuzla, when he stepped on a mine shortly before 4 p.m. local time, said a NATO spokesman. U.S. Air Force Lt. Col. Chuck Merlo. The soldier was flown to the 212th Mobile Army Surgical Hospital in Zupanje, Croatia, but was pronounced dead on arrival.

A NATO officer said the soldier had just stepped off a paved road when he hit the mine.

The fatality occurred hours after a trip to Tuzla by Secretary of State Warren Christopher, who praised the troops for putting an end to the 3-year Bosnian war. "Bosnia is no longer a country at war," Christopher told soldiers guarding the Tuzla air base. "You have succeeded in the first critical phase of the mission." President Clinton, campaigning in

End of route nears; no aid for train yet

By Brian T. Sutton
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Illinois legislators have less than 25 days left to find a long-term solution to save Amtrak's Illini route linking Chicago to Carbondale. Despite different proposals being offered, Amtrak officials say they are certain legislators will find a solution.

Marc Magliari, Amtrak public affairs manager, said legislators will present Amtrak with proposals once a long-term solution is agreed upon.

"There are various minds at work on the solution," he said. "And I am confident they (Illinois legislators) will come to us in the next couple of days."

Federal budget cuts forced Amtrak to ask Illinois legislators for a $2.5 million subsidy to continue the service of the Illini route from Feb. 1, when the federal subsidy will end, through June 30.

If the Illini route is cut, another route that runs from Chicago to New Orleans, with a stop in Carbondale at 1:30 a.m., will still be available. However, the route runs Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Friday and Saturday, not daily like the Illini.

Gov. Jim Edgar has said he will approve a long-term solution and not more stop-gap spending like the subsidy currently requested.

SIUC President Ted Sanders attended an Illinois Department of Transportation meeting in Springfield Wednesday. He said the department presented three proposals to save the route.

Sanders said the department recommended that the state purchase the trains and contract Amtrak to run them. Department officials also suggested a reduction in the number of days the train runs and possibly asking local governments to pick up the cost of maintaining the stations.

Mayor Neil Dillard said he thinks eliminating days of service

SENIOR RUSSIAN OFFICIAL ASSAILS NATO PLANS — MUNICH—A senior Russian official Saturday bitterly denounced NATO's plans to expand into former East Bloc countries, warning that the alliance risks "sharpening the hostility" between former adversaries and could "fundamentally undermine Russia's confidence in the policy of the West." Russian Deputy Defense Minister Andrei A. Kokoschin leveled the criticisms in a blistering written presentation to the 33rd Munich Conference on International Security Problems, an annual gathering of top European and North American officials and security experts. "The destruction of the belt of neutral countries created in the center of Europe as a result of the dissolution of the Warsaw (Pact) aggravates in Russia the feeling of vulnerability with unpredictable political implications," Kokoschin warned.

RUSSIAN COAL-MINERS' UNION SUSPENDS STRIKE — MOSCOW—The Russian coal-miners' union Saturday suspended its two-day nationwide strike after Prime Minister Viktor Chernomyrdin signed a $2.2 billion financing package of fixed subsidies and overdue wages for the troubled coal industry. But the miners, wary of unfulfilled past government promises, vowed to strike again if the money is not provided by March 1, and they threatened to aim a political punch at President Boris Yeltsin. While full details of the financing package were not disclosed, it appeared to be the latest example of Yeltsin's government responding to social tensions with spending commitments that could later fuel inflation.

STATES MOVE AHEAD WITH THEIR OWN REFORMS — WASHINGTON—With welfare legislation derailed in Washington, more than 40 states are moving ahead rapidly to implement their own welfare reform plans, a collection of initiatives far more generous and less restrictive than the federal bill vetoed this month by President Clinton. In the absence of national legislation, the nation's governors who are gathering here Saturday for their semi-annual convention may well shape the future of welfare in this country. Many of them already are moving to require welfare recipients to find jobs. But their new plans also extend health- and child-care benefits once recipients are working to keep them from falling back onto the rolls. The governors appear to believe that welfare recipients should work and are willing to work but need help in finding and keeping jobs.

BOY, 14, OPENS FIRE IN CLASSROOM, KILLING 3 — SEATTLE—A 14-year-old student walked into a junior high school classroom in rural Washington and opened fire with a high-powered rifle, killing a teacher and two students and injuring another student, police said Friday. The young gunman "was just a kid who said 'he was angry,'" said Bob Garrett, youth director at a church near the school in Moses Lake, Wash, a town of about 15,000 people west of Spokane. "The students I know say he had mentioned this before, that he was angry." Students ran screaming and weeping from Franklin Junior High School, and the incident plunged the small central Washington town into shock as community organizations set up crisis counseling centers and churches opened for all-night prayer vigils.

DEFENDANT ASKS PRESIDENT CLINTON TO TESTIFY — WASHINGTON—A defendant in the upcoming Whitewater trial in Little Rock, Ark., has asked that President Clinton be required to testify. Susan McDougal, in a motion filed late Thursday, argues that her lawyer must have an opportunity to question the president to rebut the testimony of David Hale, who is the government's star witness. Hale, a former municipal judge and businessman, has alleged that Clinton pressured him into loaning McDougal $300,000 in 1986 from a government-backed small business investment fund Hale administered. Clinton has denied the charge.

Human issues focus of keynote speech

By Melissa Jakubowski
DE Assistant Features Editor

Individuals need to stop addressing issues in racial terms and view them as a human problems, a lecturer said to a crowd of 100 people Thursday night, kicking off SIUC's Black History Month.

Glenn Loury, a Boston University professor in economics, gave the month's keynote address titled "Individualism before Multiculturalism" Thursday night in the Student Center Auditorium. Loury recently published, "One By One From the Inside Out," a collection of essays about race responsibility.

Loury's hour-long speech addressed working toward a goal of a "color-blind" society where problems would be viewed as human dilemmas and not specific ethnic issues.

"It's powerful and compelling to learn about a mother living in the projects struggling on her own and has zero successes," he said. "The problem can be viewed as a minority problem, but all humans can identify with those who suffer."

Loury said people who place racial identities above all other personal characteristics are called racial essentialists. He said because essen-tialists point to ethnic identities, they view problems as race-related instead of society-connected.

"If we are reduced to bantering and badgering, we do not see the failure of our civilization," he said. "We see it as a manifestation of their disability."

Loury said a novel, "The Bell Curve," is an example of a racialist perspective. He said the authors' statistics were racially categorized and ignored other factors such as income, pushing back the ideal of the "human condition."

LAB recommends second liquor license for Pinch

By Travis Akin
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The Liquor Advisory Board recommended a measure to the Liquor Control Commission Thursday that would give Pinch Penny Pub a second liquor license for its game room.

Pinch Penny, 700 E. Grand Ave., already has an A-3 license for the game room, a license designed for entertainment establishments such as off-track betting parlors, John Mills, Liquor Advisory Board member, said. Under the A-3 license, the game room would remain an extension of the pub. Pinch Penny wanted two separate licenses to allow the game room to remain open in the event of a loss of an impending law suit, Cindy Morgan, manager of Pinch Penny, said.

Morgan said the lawsuit involves a dispute between Pinch Penny and Greg Pick, owner of Pick's Electronics and Pick's Liquors. His businesses are located in the Lewis Park Mall north of Pinch Penny.

The lawsuit concerns old contractual agreements and the visibility of the buildings in the Lewis Park Mall, Mills said.

Pick is suing Pinch Penny because, he claims the pub's expansion will block his businesses, and the expansion violates the covenants drawn up when the mall was originally built.

Pinch Penny claims the covenants are no longer valid.

"The mall did not turn out as it was planned, and so the old covenants do not apply," Morgan said.

The lawsuit may prevent the pub from some of its expansion plans, Morgan said.

Pinch Penny asked the board to recommend the granting of a Group to battle thin stereotypes

By James Lyon
DE Features Editor

Those beer commercials featuring thin, athletic women do more than just sell beer — they also create a stereotype for some people in which thin is beautiful, a women's group coordinator says.

"The push for thinness in this country is tremendous," Deborah Letarte, outreach and group counseling coordinator for SIUC Women's Services said. "Advertisements and society have programmed people into believing that femininity is equal to thinness."

Letarte said she is organizing a women's support group to help women accept who they are instead of trying to live up to the expectations created by society.

"There is a common belief that you are dirty or not healthy if you are overweight, and that is just not true," Letarte said. "You can have a body, any size, and still be healthy, and we want to help women come to terms with that."

Letarte said a study conducted by the University of Arizona reported that 90 percent of white women polled said they felt they were overweight in some way. She also said Americans spend millions of dollars each year on dieting and changing their bodies to live up to a higher standard of living.

"Extreme dieting can lead to many different diseases, like depression, anemia and ultimately, weight gain," she said. "Dieting is fine, but we want to teach women how to accept themselves and be happy with who they are instead of trying to live up to an unrealistic expectation."

Letarte said the support group will begin with an identity model that teaches people to deal with who they are and still be happy, which she said is much like the process minorities go through when accepting themselves in a society that puts undue pressures on them.

Some of the main points she said she wants people to be aware of are that just because there are social pressures to be thin does not make it right and that there is nothing wrong with them as a people.

"There are so many hidden pressures that many people don't even realize it," she said. "Sometimes sitting on a bus or going to the movies can be a problem for people, and there are times when people have to pretend not to hear the jokes about their size. That can hurt someone's self-confidence and cause them a lot of pain."

Letarte said there are magazines and agencies geared toward helping people deal with things such as travel plans, buying clothes and where to get a doctor that focuses on helping people get healthy and not just thin.

The support group begins Feb. 20, but people need to call for an interview process before entering the group.

"That first step is always the hardest," Letarte said. "People may be frightened of calling, but it could help them so much. Women can learn so much from other women, and support from others is such a crucial step in acceptance of who you are."

The support group is open to all staff, community members and students at no charge. Letarte said people should call now if they are interested. The number is 453-3655.

Teach-In week focuses on dealing with effects of violence on society

By Erik Bush
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Representatives of the SIUC School of Social Work say violence affects many people in many ways, a message they hope to explore during a week of activities aimed at focusing national attention on dealing with social violence.

Martha Raske, SIUC associate professor of social work and site coordinator of events, said the purpose of the "National Teach-In" week, Feb. 5-9, is to explore a broad perspective on the causes of violence.

"The view of violence is more expanded here," she said. "Globally, looking at factors such as hunger and unemployment and how they affect violence will give the subject world-wide relevance. Locally, what are the problems we face in rural areas and what we are doing about it will also be discussed."

Events for the week follow nearly a year of planning with the National Association of Social Workers (NASW) and student and faculty representatives of the SIUC School of Social Work, Raske said.

"Beginning Monday with a dinner banquet that will demonstrate inequitable global food distribution, to an open house Friday, to reviewing issues brought up over the week, we will all take a hard look at the issue of violence," she said.

Martin Tracy, School of Social Work director, said the week will help people become more aware of violence in our society.

USG senators' actions paint accusations with a broad stroke

IT SEEMS HARD TO BELIEVE THAT ANY position in student government could be used as a bully pulpit, yet that is what happened last week within the Undergraduate Student Government.

Four senators in student government presented a resolution that called for the dismissal of the Director of University Housing Ed Jones, and the Assistant Director of Residence Life Steve Kirk, for alleged mismanagement of the Housing office. That resolution was voted down Wednesday night when its author, Andrew Ensor, Southern Hills senator, asked USG not to pass it.

The senator's accusations and retreat from those accusations were an insult to the students who are being represented and to the entire Housing office staff that suffered the blemish of those allegations along with Jones and Kirk. This abuse of the USG power by a few senators is inexcusable and harms the entire reputation of USG.

The resolution's lack of evidence is the most disturbing factor in this episode. Charges were made against Jones and Kirk, but nothing was offered to support the charges.

David Vingren, Thompson Point senator, said that the resolution lost credibility when Jones presented evidence at the Wednesday meeting refuting the resolution's first accusation. The resolution stated that Jones had misrepresented the Food Service union's competence.

Vingren said the resolution highlighted the problem of whether the Resident Hall Association should be involved in Housing policy. This problem has come to the forefront in the last two months with Housing's decision to change the over-21 housing arrangement on campus.

Ensor said USG is the only authorized student representative body on campus and RHA should not be involved in the over-21 policy decision. His resolution only served to separate the two sides even more and was irresponsible in its broad brush accusations.

USG PRESIDENT KIM CLEMENS SAID ENSOR'S resolution was the wrong response to the problem between RHA and USG, but she was unable to pinpoint exactly what the problem was. She said that she was going to initiate meetings with Jones and RHA to clear up misunderstandings.

Jones said the resolution hurt him in the way it painted all the Food Service employees as being incompetent.

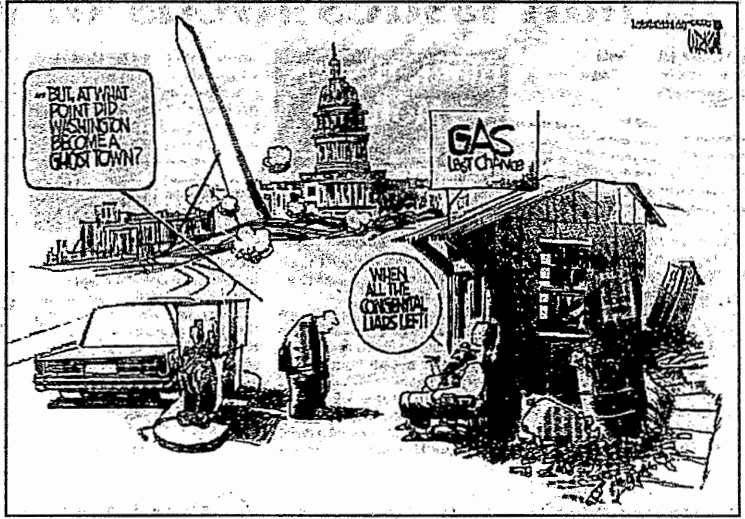

"He (Ensor) willfully misrepresented the truth," Jones said. We believe that this episode cannot be simply pushed to the side. Making accusations and calling for dismissal is not something to be taken lightly. The senators responsible owe an apology to the Food Service employees and to the students the senators represent.

A resolution lacking any substantial proof was filed, two personnel and an entire division of University employees had their reputations smeared and Clemens says that no disciplinary action is being considered. She said Jones' image of the USG was not harmed.

Jones said that he would not pursue any action against the senators.

It is unfortunate that a Housing policy issue has brought out such extreme measures in people who are supposed to represent the students. Unfortunately the action of these few senators is only going to make the job of the rest of student government that much more difficult when dealing with the conflict between the USG and RHA.

During his campaign for student trustee last spring, Ensor said that the trustee "is someone who must bare the burden of leadership." Well the position of senator is also a position of leadership, and in this case the burden was dropped.

Law professor challenges "facts"

As chair of the law school's Faculty Hiring Procedures Task Force, I would like to respond to Professor Dunham's "undisputed" facts.

Professor Dunham states that a Judicial Review Board panel found the law school's hiring procedure "seriously flawed at all levels." He fails to mention that the panel did not sustain his grievance. It did recommend that the law school modify certain aspects of its hiring procedures. In response, the law school appointed a task force which completely revised these procedures. Upon review by the University's affirmative action office and by the Associate Vice-President for Academic Affairs, the new procedures were described as "very thorough" and, for the most part, quite satisfactory. Recommended changes were addressed, and the final draft was approved by the faculty on May 9, 1995, and later by the affirmative action office. The law school has been operating under these new procedures.

Professor Dunham states that "minority applicants who appeared to have better records than white males interviewed by the law school were not given interviews." Actually, the panel found that "some Asian and Native American candidates had credentials that appear superior to those of some candidates who were interviewed." However, no determination was ever made that the interview decision was improperly made. There may have been a difference of opinion between the panel and the committee as to the applicant's qualifications. In fact, the panel specifically found no "pattern of racial discrimination."

Professor Dunham charges that the law school "ignored" a "number" of the panel's recommendations. Untrue. The task force specifically addressed every single recommendation. In every case, either the recommendation was adopted or it was determined that the procedures as amended adequately addressed the issue in some other way. Specifically, he incorrectly charge that we ignored the recommendation that a copy of the law school's hiring ad be sent to Asian and American Indian law associations. The new procedures specifically provide that position announcements be sent to "appropriate minority, women, and other interested legal associations and groups. The Personnel Committee shall maintain a file of such associations for this purpose." If there are groups that Professor Dunham feels have been left out of this list, he can furnish their names and addresses.

Beam's work defacement, not art

I'm not offended by Mike Beam's juvenile attempt at artwork. It's hard for me to say that I'm offended by anything today when I'm living in a culture as crass and profit-driven as ours is. This is a culture where a child is coaxed by his parents into picking his nose in front of a camera in order to get onto "America's Funniest Home Videos."

What bothers me is the use (or should I say defacement) of another man's artwork in an attempt to offend and grab attention. Unless I am mistaken, the real "art" in this piece was done, not by Beam, but by Bill Mauldin, an illustrator in the 1940s. Mauldin was famous for his humorous, yet sensitive and realistic portrayal of World War II.

I wonder what Mr. Mauldin would say about having his work subjected to Beam's "surface animation" and "juxtaposition of colors?" He'd probably tell it like it is and say it was crap.

Oh, I forgot, it's "art" and removing it would be "censorship." Gimme a break! When I hear those words thrown around as loosely as they are today it reminds me of a similar technique employed by people like Rush Limbaugh and Cal Thomas. They're always trying to cloak some hidden, selfish motive with similarly weighty words like "freedom" and "property rights."

Could the reporter have been right when she quoted Beam as saying his defacement was

"anatomically correct?!" What planet is this guy from anyway? I think you've been down on the farm too long, Beam. Anatomically correct for a horse maybe! And he must not think too much of the SIUC student body if this is the "level" he thinks he must sink to when "dealing with (this) different crowd."

If my words sound unkind, don't feel sorry for Mr. Beam. He no doubt loves the attention.

Yes, there are bigger problems that we face today. It's just that opportunists like Beam make what can be a pretty ugly and disturbing world that much more so.

Shirelles doo-wop Shryock

Audience dances in aisles to the group's '60s style

By Jason E. Coyne
DE Arts/Entertainment Editor

Review

Memories and dreams of being young and having fun were refreshed as recent Rock 'n' Roll Hall of Fame inductees The Shirelles doo-wopped into Shryock Auditorium Saturday night.

As the lights dimmed and audience members quieted, The Shirelles graced the stage with elegant black-and-silver sparkling dresses. After its eight-piece band fast-forwarded through a medley of the group's hits, perennial Shirelle Beverly Lee and company grooved into "Having a Party."

The crowd of 400 was enticed to clap the beat while the three divas did a little hip-shake thing to keep time with the music. The band was tight, not missing a beat, playing its instruments at a level that would not drown out the harmonious trio.

The Shirelles kept in direct communication with the crowd throughout the show. Between songs, The Shirelles asked the audience who the one person was in their childhood household that took all the fun out of everything, setting up a nice intro for the classic "Mama Said." After closing the number with a fancy curtsy, the ladies went back to fooling with the crowd.

The amount of snapping and twirling and twirling gave the impression that The Shirelles came to have a good time. But it was no act for the group or the crowd that found plenty of good times as they worked together to make entertainment.

When the trio prepared to go into "I Met Him On a Sunday," it invited six men to join them in singing about lying women. The group decided to change the lyrics to "I met her on a Sunday" to accommodate the guys.

One sang "I met her on a Sunday" while another fellow sang, "I called her on a Tuesday." The next man in line added, "I dated her on a Wednesday," as the following guy crooned, "I kissed her on a Thursday." The last guy, whom the Shirelles appropriately dubbed "Ready Freddie" since he was dressed like a hep-cat of the '60s, sang, "I didn't do nothing with her on a Saturday," implying false innocence.

The crowd could not help stomping its feet or clapping to the catchy grooves of The Shirelles. A few crowd members danced in the aisles to let loose some of the energy the group had culminated at Shryock.

Some fans were overheard saying they were amazed that a group of The Shirelles' magnitude was at Shryock and what a nice, intimate setting Shryock offered.

A Shirelles version of "Happy Birthday" was dedicated to a lucky crowd member who had two good things (The Shirelles and a birthday) going Saturday night.

Afterward, Lee declared that the crowd should celebrate life because "God is so good." She then invited five little girls on stage to perform "Soldier Boy," which she dedicated to prisoners of war and men who remain missing in action. The Shirelles held hands with the children and kicked their legs in the air like a Las Vegas showgirl act. After the kids returned to their seats, Lee reminded the crowd the girls could be the next Shirelles.

After two hours of performing with a brief 15-minute intermission, The Shirelles encored with a flaming rendition of Chuck Berry's classic "Johnny B. Goode." The crowd, magnetized by the "Goode" vibes, stood up and clapped throughout the entire song that closed out the night.

The Shirelles put on a performance that will not be forgotten by those who attended. The music and the emotion in it has stood the test of time. After 35 years, the Shirelles have not tarnished a bit.

SIUC's Noonan returns for comedy night at SPC; routine revolves around student life

By J. Fares
Daily Egyptian Reporter

As the face-cracking wind chill made its way south to Carbondale Friday, it brought along an up-coming comedian to perform Student Programming Council's Last Laugh Comedy Series.

Having worked at such nationally acclaimed fund-raisers as Comic Relief and working with comedians Roseanne and Richard Lewis, Brian Noonan got his start on stage right here at SIUC during a contest that his friends convinced him to enter in 1984.

"My friends and I were going out, like any other Friday night, when we heard about a stand-up comic contest in the Old Main Room of the Student Center," Noonan said. After a couple of drinks, Whammo! I won $50, a jean jacket and a chance to perform with Yakov Smirnov later on in the year. It was pretty wild."

Noonan, a 1985 radio/television graduate, was a write-in after the original comedian scheduled for the night, Eddie Brill, was forced to cancel because of illness. He said he was glad to help out SPC in its time of need.

"It was great to come back to Carbondale and perform where I actually got my start," he said.

Noonan's performance consisted of quips on everyday life, family values, traveling and growing up. Most of the subjects were things that people can relate to, like trying to cash a $3 check in the Student Center, deciding to purchase a calculus book or have an enjoyable night of drinking on the Strip.

"The Strip always won," Noonan said. "I have very fond memories of my four years at SIUC. The University is more conservative now."

"This policy is something that needs to be looked at for future years," Vingren said. "It's just a matter of bad timing, but it is something that needs to be done."

Vingren said the resolution does say what the students want, but it is too late to work for next year.

"Last week I walked into the cafeteria and saw tons of people signing up for their rooms for next year," Vingren said. "There are a lot of people upset with the over-21 housing situation for next year, but it is simply too late for anyone to change the policy without causing problems."

Vingren said the main problem with the resolution now is for the students who have signed up to live in Neely, Warren and Allen halls.

"No matter what happens at this point, any change is going to displace students," Vingren said.

"At this point, it's simply a no-win situation. I wish we could have stopped the policy sooner."

Steve Kirk, assistant director of Residence Life, said no matter what the Board of Trustees decides, Housing will comply with its decision.

"The problem I see is the students who have already signed up to live in Neely next year and the under-21 students who have signed up to live in Warren Hall," Kirk said. "My concern is more with the impact such a change would have on the student residents."

Kirk said the residence hall contract renewal office would also have problems because students would have to be relocated if the board implemented the USG resolution's provisions.

Both Scally, coordinator of Marketing and Public Information who is in charge of student contract renewals, was unavailable for comment on the resolution.

SIU Board of Trustee members were also unavailable for comment Sunday.

The SIU Board of Trustees meeting is scheduled for Feb. 8 at 10:30 a.m. at the Edwardsville campus.

Nevada offers UFOs desert landing strip

Los Angeles Times

Space aliens at last have their own landing strip in the Nevada desert — courtesy of the state.

Desolate state route 375 has been officially christened the Extraterrestrial Highway — a nod by the state's transportation board to the area's reputation for otherworldly sightings, and a ploy to attract more terrestrial money-spending tourists.

Four highway signs proclaiming the new status will go up in the next couple of months.

"Of course they're going to be both horizontal and vertical so extraterrestrials can see them as they land," chuckled Tom Tait, executive director of the Nevada Commission on Tourism.

Nevada Gov. Bob Miller, the chairman of the board that voted the new designation on Thursday, suggested that the signs be placed flat on the ground so that aliens can land on them.

Of more earthly concern, though, is making the signs big enough — maybe 8 feet wide. "Otherwise, if they're small we're worried they'll be stolen," said Tom Stephens, director of Nevada's Department of Transportation.

"Wouldn't that be a nice decoration for your room if you were a teenager?" Stephens said.

The highway sits 140 miles northeast of Las Vegas and, more importantly, just outside a top-secret Air Force range known informally as Area 51.

The blacktop runs through an isolated swath of desert that has long been a mecca for UFO seekers from around the world.

Visitors and locals alike tell stories of seeing spaceships with odd lights traveling at warp speeds.

The fact that all these sightings are close to a secret installation — where experimental aircraft are believed to be tested — has only fueled rumors that the military is testing captured alien spaceships there.

Not surprisingly, the government denies this.

But Nevada has never been shy about coming up with gimmicks to make a little money, and the campaign to publicize the desert as a potential spaceport for extraterrestrials — and a destination for their earthbound friends — has been bubbling along for awhile.

A bill to rename the highway the "Extraterrestrial Alien Highway" was introduced in the Nevada Legislature last year by Assemblyman Roy Neighbors of Tonopah, but the measure died.

The local Pioneer Territory division of the state tourism commission took up the cause several months ago and recommended the highway be renamed.

Violence

"Many people are affected by random violence," he said. "These events hope to raise the level of consciousness and begin to develop a dialogue between the community and University."

Topics for the week include mental illness and violence, peace and justice, hunger and unemployment and community building. Events include an international women's panel discussion, a sexual abuse panel discussion and a live satellite video conference featuring journalist Charles Kurall.

The school of social work and NASW representatives began the week Sunday with a two-hour recruitment drive televised on WSIU by answering questions and signing people up to help.

Beverly Wallace, WSIU outreach coordinator, said she believes that the week should be very beneficial and hopes to see considerable involvement.

"The response has been pleasing," Wallace said. "We have individuals, couples and even groups of twenty to thirty people calling to volunteer. It is an exciting project and we really hope to reach some people."

Events have been scheduled at different times during the week, and all require reservations.

Information on all events and reservations can be obtained by contacting the SIUC School of Social Work.

Loury

"Our society is a bell curve," he said. "But our position on the bell curve does not explain our position in life."

Loury said the human condition is not linking problems and deficiencies such as education and poverty to races but to problems of humanity.

Loury said society is traveling on two different routes — persuasion and brokerage.

He said persuasion is an idealistic route where the human condition is in conjunction with race, and brokerage is a route in which people make demands because they feel they deserve compensation for some type of racial suffering.

"If we travel these routes, we will have one society (the idealistic route) where we are one people — brothers all created in the spirit of good," Loury said. "Or we are collective minorities (in the brokerage route) where some will reap benefits, and some will have to be dealt with."

Loury answered some heated questions from the crowd regarding the idea of dropping racial identities to achieve a total human identity.

"Black people have the richest culture in my opinion," he said. "But we are sucking our ethnic thumbs and should be smacked in the face. We have no one but ourselves to blame."

Frederick Williams, director of the University Honors Program, said Loury was asked to speak because he is a reputable speaker about race relations.

"Many people consider him to be a voice of reason in an atmosphere that is not always considered reasonable."

After listening to Loury's speech, Danielle Shaw, a junior in speech communications from Chicago, said she agreed with Loury's idea about looking past racial identities, but she said she thinks all races need to be treated equally to see problems on the same level.

"In a time when I need a law like Affirmative Action to ensure that I have a fair shot at a job," she said, "I can't see humanness rising above the issue of color for a while."

B-2 liquor license. The B-2 license is the regular business license for alcohol. If approved by the Liquor Control Commission, the game room will become a separate business from the pub, Mills said.

"With a B-2 license, we will be able to keep the game room open, even if we lose the case," Morgan said.

The board unanimously approved the proposal to recommend a B-2 license.

The board already had discussed the proposal prior to the meeting, board member John Benshoff said.

"They (Pinch Penny) had a good proposal, and we were in agreement," he said.

The Liquor Control Commission will vote on the license Tuesday night before the regular City Council meeting. It is likely to pass after the board's recommendation, Morgan said.

Vietnamese commandos captured during conflict demand back pay

Los Angeles Times

The ghosts of Vietnam are returning, and they want their money.

A group of Vietnamese who fought in a CIA-sponsored secret army in the 1960s claim the U.S. government wrote them off as dead when they were captured on missions in North Vietnam.

Now, after serving long prison terms in Communist jails, the former commandos are asking the United States to honor a promise they say the government made, when they signed on as secret warriors more than three decades ago: to pay them for the time they spent in jail.

Armed with recently declassified documents, a group of 281 commandos and their survivors insist the U.S. government had evidence that the commandos were alive in North Vietnamese prisons when it cut off regular monthly payments to the families. The commandos — with the largest group living in Southern California — are demanding $11 million in back pay.

"We did the work that no one else would do, and we were forgotten," said Ha Van Chap, 68, who lives in Stanton, Calif. He spent 21 years in prison after being captured on a spy mission in North Vietnam in 1961.

Like many former commandos, he still bears the marks of his captivity: deep scars on his ankles left by prison shackles.

"We agreed to undertake the mission, and they agreed to pay our families if we were captured," Chap said. "They have a moral obligation."

The novel case is unfolding in the U.S. Claims Court in Washington, where lawyers for the Pentagon and the Central Intelligence Agency have so far skirted the question of their agencies' involvement in the covert operations.

Bosnia

Manchester, N.H., expressed deep regret over the soldier's death in a written statement and appearance before reporters and said he had "died in the noblest of causes — the pursuit of peace."

Clinton said he had warned the nation that the Bosnia mission entailed real risks, particularly of land mines, but said NATO commanders had provided the best equipment and training possible to deal with that threat. The "critical mission of securing enduring peace," he said, must continue.

Under the Dayton peace accord, Bosnia's warring Muslim, Croat and Serb factions are supposed to have marked or cleared most of their minefields in Bosnia by midnight tonight. But for a variety of reasons, this has not been done and the 57,000 NATO soldiers now in Bosnia remain at risk.

An estimated 3 million mines riddle Bosnia's hills and valleys, and another 3 million are in neighboring Croatia. Mine-clearing operations are slow and have been hampered by bad weather and the fact that none of the warring factions has enough equipment.

At a briefing Saturday, British army Maj. Gen. Michael Willcocks, chief of staff of NATO ground forces in Bosnia, said his forces have only received information so far about the locations of about 700,000 mines in 7,000 minefields. He quoted the commander of the Bosnian army, Gen. Rasim Delic, as saying he thought it would take 30 years to clear all of his army's mines.

would be damaging. He said he would like to see Amtrak raise the number of days the service would run.

"We need to generate more riders," Dillard said. "Eliminating days would not accomplish that."

Thomas M. Berry, state legislative director for the United Transportation Union, said the union also has a proposal for Amtrak to revise passenger service to accommodate shipping opportunities.

"Amtrak is in a perfect position to run express cargo, like Fed Ex (Federal Express) packages, at a much lower rate than airlines," he said. "This would quickly turn a profit."

Rep. Mike Bost, R-Murphysboro, said he plans to attend the United Transportation Union meeting today to hear the details of the union's plan. He said he thinks it is a good idea and can be a viable long-term solution.

"We need to generate more riders. Eliminating days would not accomplish that."

Neil Dillard
Mayor of Carbondale

"We are looking for the federal law that prohibits Amtrak from doing this and to find out if we can have it amended," Bost said. "If the federal government is no longer going to fund the train service, then we should amend their laws that govern it."

Bost said he too feels confident that legislators will come to a conclusion before the current subsidy runs out.

He said his legislation that calls for the $2.5 million stop-gap spending subsidy has been approved by the Public Health and Safety Committee and will be called for a vote on the House floor if a long-term solution is not reached.

"We do not have enough votes to call the legislation yet, but if we need it, I am confident we can get the votes," Bost said.

Eric Robinson, Edgar's spokesman, said the governor is not considering the legislation.

"It (the legislation) is hypothetical, and we are only supporting the long-term solution," he said.

Bears

the Dawgs, but quickly went downhill in the first half. The Salukis scored only two points in the final 11 minutes before the intermission, and went into the locker room down by nine points, 31-22.

The sparse scoring in the first half contributed to a 30 percent shooting performance from the floor, and only a 17 percent contribution from behind the three-point arc.

Saluki coach Rich Herrin said the team executed set plays well, but the scoring drought in the first half cost SIUC the game.

"In the first half, we got good looks (at the basket), and good shots, they just didn't go down," he said. "If we had hit those, it would have been a different game. We had some good patterns and the kids executed well, but we just didn't finish."

While the Salukis were struggling to score in the first half, the Bears shot 50 percent from the floor and 33 percent from behind the three-point line.

In the second half, SIUC put together a 43-percent shooting performance from the floor, and came within four points of the Bears, but could not capitalize on a missed shot by senior forward Jaratio Tucker.

Tucker, who shot 8-12 from the field and scored 16 points, has been nursing a sore left knee and shin, but still was able to give the Salukis a strong performance in his 32 minutes of play.

"We got back 56-52, and Tucker couldn't get it down," Herrin said. "You can't ask anymore of Jaratio who can hardly walk."

Even with sophomore guards Troy Hudson's and Shane Hawkins' 19 and 12 points, respectively, the Dawgs' persistent nemesis this season, free-throws, could be blamed

" We outscored them by two buckets, but you've got to give Southwest credit for hitting their free throws down the stretch."

*Rich Herrin
Saluki basketball coach*

again for the loss, as SIUC was outscored 23-6 from the bonus line.

Minus the bonus shots, SIUC outscored the Bears by two field goals in the game, 26-24, and Herrin said SMSU deserved the victory for its 77 percent shooting from the free-throw line.

"We outscored them by two buckets, but you've got to give Southwest credit for hitting their free throws down the stretch," he said. If anything good came out of the game, it was the continuing emergence of freshmen forwards Monte Jenkins, James Jackson and James Watts as bona fide players in the MVC.

Jenkins was limited to four points in his 14 minutes of playing time, but made his presence known on a slam-dunk, alley-oop from Hudson.

Jackson and Watts both continued their improvement, and are giving the Salukis added strength on the glass.

Watts pulled down a team-high seven rebounds before fouling out of the game with 4:16 left, and scored a frustrating three points in his 23 minutes of action.

Jackson grabbed a team-second-best six boards, and scored four points in his 17 minutes on the floor.

Herrin was pleased with the progress his freshmen have made, and said that is what has to happen for the team to qualify for the MVC tournament.

"Watts and Jackson gave us some bright-light as far as rebounders, and that's what you have to have," he said.

it's a tribute to the University and the commitment they've had to women's sports.

Scott also said 500 wins simply shows how long the University has been committed to women's basketball.

The Salukis' 500th win proved to be a continuous uphill struggle marked by several lead changes throughout the game.

Paced by senior guard Nikki Gilmore's 21 points, the Salukis shot 48 percent from the field, hitting 29 of 60, compared to Creighton's 32 percent.

At the half, SIUC led by two 39-37 but, came out with a 13-3 run at Creighton to start the second half. However, Creighton managed to chip away at SIUC's lead with a 21-1 run to tie the game; at 57 with just over 6:00 to go in the game.

"This was a really tough game," Scott said. "We got a good lead early in the second half, but Creighton is a good basketball team and they fought back."

Thanks in part to the play of senior forward LaQuanda Chavours, Creighton's lead did not last long as they were outscored 21-9 the remainder of the game. Chavours hit a key bucket with under two minutes to play to secure SIUC's victory.

Chavours ended the game with 15 points and 6 boards in 38 minutes of action.

The Salukis are now in the thick of the MVC tournament race and Scott said the team is excited about where they stand and looking forward to gaining a berth in the NCAA tournament.

Sports and Recreation show gives local sportsmen chance to demonstrate skills

By William C. Phillips III
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Sportsmen packed the SIU Arena this past weekend to learn new methods for luring the big fish and training retrievers at the 12th annual Spring Sports and Recreation Show.

Marilyn Baker, special events manager for the SIU Arena, said the recreation show is popular, and people come from all over the Southern Illinois area to attend the event.

"The show has 55 exhibitors and we are expecting 10,000 people this year," Baker said.

Baker said the most popular attraction of the show is the Hawg Trough, a 5,500 gallon aquarium filled with fish to demonstrate new lures.

Steve Rector, Hawg Trough demonstrator from Indianapolis, said the tanks were invented so people can see what the bait is doing in the water.

Rector believes the most important aspect of the show is getting the children involved.

"The biggest thing is to get the children involved so they can keep the sport going and learn that respecting fish and lakes are important."

"The biggest thing is to get the children involved so they can keep the sport going and learn that respecting fish and lakes are important," Rector said.

Cyril Brown, a boat exhibitor, said the Southern Illinois area has thousands of acres of land that is good for fishing.

"April is one of the best times of the year to catch fish," Brown said. "We have one of the best lakes in our back yard—Crab Orchard."

Fred Washington, owner of Cotton

Mouth Lures, said the challenge of outsmarting the fish is what interests him most.

"You have control over the boat and fishing rod but not the fish," Washington said. "It's like dealing with an unknown."

Washington said he uses a pec wee, a mini jig, or a four inch lizard as bait to catch fish.

"Fish seem to be attracted to these baits and that mini lizard has won a lot of Bass tournaments," he said.

Dan Callahan, SIUC baseball coach, said he attended the show to check out the new boats and fishing equipment.

"I am intrigued by the new equipment," Callahan said. "I was curious about the show, and looking at these boats make you wish and hope someday to maybe own one."

Fish were not the only victims, as retriever dogs were displaying their hunting skills, showing how they find ducks.

Chuck Leonard, Marion president of Southern Illinois Hunting Retrievers, said training dogs is based on repetition.

"Training dogs is like building a motor or riding a bicycle," Leonard said. "Anybody who has patience and 15 minutes a day can train a dog."

Leonard, who has been training retrievers for 5 years, said dogs are intelligent.

"They learn hunting from their instinct, and the more you take them hunting, the more their hunting skills develop," he said.

team pulled out another victory over Notre Dame.

"It (the overall performance) wasn't unexpectedly good, it was just pleasing to see us that good," Walker said. "Nobody looked as though they were too fast, as if they were too rested now and not later," Walker said.

Walker said he is looking forward to the National Independent Championships in Little Rock, Ark. on Feb. 21-24.

Track squad ties for 4th at Indiana Invitational

By Jared Driskill
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Twelve teams converged in Bloomington, Ind., this past weekend to make up the 1996 Indiana University Track and Field Invitational.

Indiana ran away with the meet, winning with 147 points, almost doubling the point value of its nearest competitor Ball State, who had 78 points. Indiana State placed third with 75.5 points, and SIUC and Middle Tennessee State University tied for fourth place totaling 69 points each.

Only one team could come out a winner, but individual performances by SIUC athletes could not be ignored. "This meet was a bit of the good, the bad, and the ugly," men's coach Bill Cornell said.

"I'm extremely pleased with some of our efforts, but also feel some athletes need to get in top shape before the Missouri Valley Conference Championships arrive.

"For us to win the (MVC) Championship, we need to be hitting on all cylinders," Cornell said.

Cornell added that only about half of the team is ready for the MVC Championships at this point of the season.

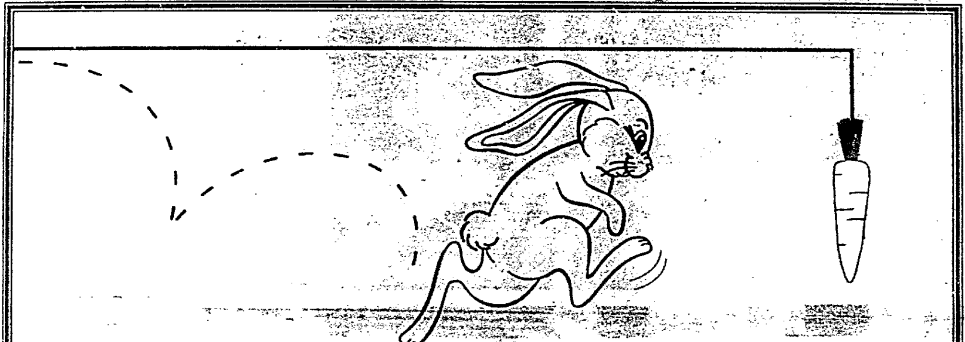

Eleven season best performances paced the Salukis to their fourth place finish as top performers for SIUC were sophomore Stelios Mamerros and freshman Andrew Fooks, who finished second and third respectively in the 3,000 meter run with times of 8:30.2 and 8:30.9.

Senior high jumper Cameron Wright and freshman high jumper Rodney White crowded the top positions in the high jump. Wright placed first, jumping 6-10 3/4, while White finished third with 6-7 3/4.

Also turning in a top distance for the Salukis, was sophomore Jerome Kiaku, who landed second place in the triple jump with a leap of 46-2 1/2.

Cornell expressed that the Indiana Invite was a very good organized meet to compete at.

"This was an excellent meet overall organizational wise," Cornell said. "I was happy with the format of the meet."

Salukis settle for split with Fighting Irish

PATRICK T. GASIOR — The Daily Egyptian

The last dual meet of the season for SIUC swimming and diving teams proved to be an exciting end to their fruitful season.

After suffering a disappointing loss to the University of Notre Dame Jan. 20th by a score of 201-149, the SIUC women's swimming and diving team showed it would not go down as easy this time.

Although the SIUC women's team lost again to Notre Dame, the meet literally came down to the last event; however the Irish won by a slim margin of 151-146.

The SIUC men's team fared better, shutting down the Irish 157.5-127.

The women Salukis had won seven of the 15 events scored before the finale—the 400-yard freestyle relay and perhaps it proved to be the most crucial event for the Salukis. The Irish won with a time of 3:34.48-3:34.85, giving Notre Dame the overall victory.

One swimmer, Melanie Davis, proved to be a big provider for the Salukis.

Davis won the 100 and 200-yard breaststroke with times of 1:06.92 and 2:22.46, and took first place in the 200-yard individual medley, touching in at 2:09.95.

SIUC women's coach Mark Klumper did not have any regrets in his team's performance, and was proud of what his swim-

"The team swam very, very well. We just fell a little short," Klumper said. "It (the meet) came down to the last relay, whoever won the relay won the meet."

Klumper added that if his team would have swam poorly, and won, he would have been more concerned than he was about the loss. He also expressed his gratitude for the team over the whole season.

"They're a great team. I really enjoy this group," Klumper said. "They pull together as a team, they work hard, and they're a lot of fun to be around."

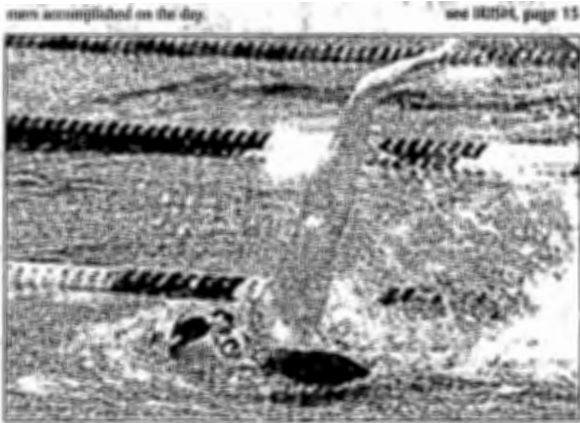

Diving coach Dave Ardrey was pleased with his team's performances on Saturday, but saw room for improvement.

"I was real pleased with the performances, I think we have to continue to improve competitively," Ardrey said. "We have to challenge ourselves competitively all the time."

Junior diver, Jodi Mulvihill showed her experience and desire to perfect her dives as she qualified for the NCAA Championships on the 1-meter board with 259.73 points.

"That was probably the best list she (Mulvihill) has put together all semester," Ardrey said. "She seems to come together at the end of the season more than anyone else I've ever coached."

There were few surprises, for SIUC men's coach Rick Walker Saturday as his

Saluki Basketball

Bears come out of hibernation, whip Dawgs on road, 77-65

DE Sports Editor

There is an old saying about the bad following the good, or vice versa, and the saying proves to be true for the men's basketball team this season.

A poor first half shooting performance contributed to the Salukis' 11th loss of the season, and dropped the team's overall record below the .500 mark; but the game also previewed things to come with the talents of a young Saluki squad.

The 77-65 loss to Southwest Missouri State University Saturday dropped the men's basketball team's record to 10-11 overall, and 3-7 in the Missouri Valley Conference. The loss is SIUC's fifth out of the team's last six games, and hopes for a tournament berth are diminishing with every defeat.

The game started out on the right foot for

SIUC cages Lady Jays, 78-68, captures spot in record books

Following a successful two game road trip, the SIUC women's basketball team drove straight from Omaha and into the record books.

Beginning with a victory over Drake University on Thursday, the Salukis knocked off Missouri Valley Conference foe Creighton University with a 78-68 victory Sunday.

With the win at Creighton, SIUC becomes only the 10th school in history to garner 500 wins in women's basketball.

SIUC women's basketball coach Cindy Scott said adding SIUC to the 500 win list is a great credit to the University and all coaches who have preceded her.

"It's a great credit to the program," Scott said. "Certainly a great majority of those wins are not mine. There have been several people who have coached women's basketball at SIUC long before I got there, and

Between the Lines

The SIUC men's basketball team travels to Kansas to battle the Shockers of Wichita State Monday.

The Salukis defeated the Shockers Jan. 20 at SIU Arena 76-54, and are hoping to rebound after a 77-65 Feb. 3 loss to Southwest Missouri State University.

The SIUC vs. Wichita State game will be broadcast on WSIU-TV, Channel 8 (PBS), with game time slated for 7:35 p.m.

The SIUC men's Rugby Club is beginning its spring schedule and new member drive this week.

Anyone interested in joining the club is encouraged to show up for practice, beginning Tuesday, Feb. 6 at 4 p.m. on the rugby fields behind SIU Arena (next to Abe Martin Field).
