BRISK WALKING WEATHER—Two students hurry to class across the oval in front of Old Main as the campus continues to shiver under a cold spell.

Upstate temperatures were expected to hit 20 below zero last night as frigid air swept south from Canada.

IC Underpass Considered for Campus Traffic

SIU and the Illinois Central Railroad have reached an oral agreement on the construction of an underpass beneath the IC tracks, according to John Loneragan, associate SIU architect.

The overpass will be of concrete-driven pile construction and will be either permanent or temporary if the tracks are eventually relocated, Loneragan said.

The proposed underpass would be located about 400 feet south of the SIU power plant.

The architect said any action of the IC tracks would likely be some years away, and the underpass is needed sooner to ease east-west traffic.

After the plan is approved, SIU is expected to ask the Illinois Division of Highways to construct a similar underpass under U.S. 51 south, Loneragan said.

It is proposed that the railroad build the 40-foot wide, 15-foot high underpass and SIU pay the costs.

Loneragan said consideration of building these underpasses has nothing to do with the footbridge proposed to span U.S. 51 south and the IC tracks at Harwood Avenue.

Christensen's report recommended that the Carbondale City Council meet with railroad officials to seek a similar arrangement for construction of an underpass beneath the tracks at Mill Street east to connect with Hester Street west.

The underpass is designed as essentially a vehicular route although it will provide for pedestrian traffic," he said.

Bells to Signal Library Closing

David Christensen, chairman of the Carbondale Planning Commission, made the announcement of the agreement to the commission Wednesday.

A system of clarion bells will be rung each night to signal the closing time of Morris Library, it was announced today by Sidney E. Matthews, assistant director.

Contract details have to be agreed upon before the plan gets final approval, Loneragan said.

The bells will be sounded approximately 15 minutes before closing and again at five minutes before closing.

He said the underpass proposed would be of Illinois Central Railroad design and will have an estimated cost of between $55-$100,000.

On the fourth floor only, the overhead lights will be flashed.

City Would Benefit

Annexation Wouldn't Alter SIU Operation

Robert MacVicar, acting University president, said Thursday that the Carbondale city manager's proposal to annex parts of the SIU campus to the city would not affect the operation of the University in any significant way.

tax would have to be used for the improvement of city streets and related areas. He also said that any additional revenue from sales tax and utilities on the campus would also be used for city street improvement.

MacVicar added that such a move would not exert any influence on SIU students. He said it was his opinion that, if anything, such an annexation would have a great influence on the city - not the students.

Norman declined to go into any detail as to what street improvements could be made. He did say that sidewalks and new traffic signals are among needed improvements.

MacVicar said that such a proposal has not been discussed with either himself or John Rendleman, vice-president for business affairs.

Gus Bode

Proposed annexation of more of the campus was outlined earlier this week by City Manager William Norman at a Rotary club luncheon.

Rendleman stated that such an annexation would be of great advantage to the city but would not affect SIU.

Gus says his apartment is so cold he has to keep a smudge pot under the heater to prevent it from freezing.

Administration Asked to Begin Changing Hours for SIU Women

The Student Senate has asked the University administration to take "tentative steps to implement changes in women's hours which are in line with the expressed student views" by spring term.

According to the resolution submitted by Senator Jerry Finney and passed Wednesday night, previous referendums have shown student discontent with present policies.

The resolution also states that "a substantial segment of the female student body" should be able to choose their own hours and expresses an intent to submit a detailed questionnaire on the matter to the student body.

In connection with the recommended action, student body president Ray Lenzi has been visiting dormitories and speaking to female residents.

A senate committee appointed to consider the report of the University study on athletics will report at next week's Senate meeting, according to Richard Karr, student body vice president.

Karr named Steve Ant-nacci, west side dorm senator, to chair the committee. A recommendation by the Senate has been requested by Robert MacVicar, acting University president.

Sometime during the winter term, a referendum will be conducted in all campus housing areas to sample student opinion on housing area activity fees.

Presently such fees, used for recreation and entertainment expenses, are voluntary. The questionnaire will read: "I favor a voluntary fee or a mandatory fee or no fee."

Karr said the referendum will be arranged as soon as possible, after consulting with area housing heads.

The Senate also authorized the publication of a Student Senate Newsletter to constituents. The Senate now has an offset press operating, which will be used to print the newsletter.

A resolution supporting MacVicar's proposal for a state "medical school without walls" was passed, as was an invitation for the National Student Association to hold its 1968 convention at SIU.

Senate officers were also asked to set up a meeting with Edwardsville campus senators to discuss matters of common interest.

A proposal to set up published office hours for senators was debated and tabled.

Vice Presidents to Consider Student Pay Rate Increase

An increase in the student wage scale has been recommended by an advisory committee and an ad hoc committee of the Student Work and Financial Assistance Office.

John Rendleman, vice president for business affairs, said the vice presidents are to meet with committee representatives at 8:30 a.m. today to discuss the proposal.

of Student Work and Financial Assistance, said three separate package proposals for increases have been made by the committee. The study leading to the proposals was begun last summer, he said. The figures were not released.

Adams said the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act requires a new minimum wage of $1.15 as of Feb. 1, but that the law is being appealed by 26 states. He added that it is his understanding that there will be no enforcement while the law is under appeal.

A Student Senate resolution passed Wednesday urged the University to raise the wages across-the-board along with the Federally required hike in the minimum wage.

City Wheel Tax Ordinance Being Enforced

SIU motorists who "permanently" reside in Carbondale will be required to purchase a city auto license or risk a stiff penalty under the city's new wheel tax ordinance which became effective Jan. 1.

Carbondale residents who own or operate a motor vehicle can be fined up to $100 for deliberately failing to obtain their license by the Feb. 15 deadline. Those who are tardy in purchasing licenses will be charged a $1 per month penalty for each month after the deadline date.

According to Snyder Herrin, administrative assistant to the city manager, students who are registered voters in Carbondale or who have a Carbondale address listed in the University directory for their permanent home, will come under the ordinance.

SIU motorists who have a license from another city or who have a legal attachment to another locality such as a voter registration will not have to purchase a Carbondale license, Herrin said.

The new wheel tax ordinance, which was passed by the council in August, is a stiffer version of the previous law by the addition of the penalty clause and an increase in the fee rates.

Annual fees under the new ordinance are $6 for passenger vehicles and $2 per wheel for motorcycles. The past wheel tax was $3.50 for both autos and motorcycles.

License application forms will be sent to all city water customers, Herrin said, in order to insure that each Carbondale household receives an application. Additional forms can be obtained at the city clerk's office at city hall.

Little Egypt Debate Tourney To Draw 400 State Prepsters

The fourth annual Little Egypt Debate Tournament will be held today and tomorrow in Ballrooms A, B and C of the University Center building.

Over 400 students from 53 Illinois state high schools will participate in the varsity and novice competition. The tournament, which is being sponsored by Phi Kappa Delta national honorary forensic fraternity, will hold six debate sessions for the varsity competitors and five for the novices.

The first round of the tournament will begin Friday afternoon at 4 p.m. with additional sessions scheduled for Friday evening and Saturday morning.

A total of 20 trophies will be awarded to the top five teams and individuals participating in the tournament in each of the two divisions of varsity and novice. A scholarship to SIU will also be awarded to the top individual debater of the tournament.

Following Saturday morning debate sessions, a banquet at which the two tops teams of the tournament will compete against one another will be held.

The debate topic for this year's tournament is: Resolved: "Congress should establish uniform procedures for criminal investigation."

Round Stage Won't Be Used at Concert

Ella Fitzgerald will perform from the stage at the north end of the SIU Arena starting at 8 p.m. Jan. 28 and not the new round stage previously announced.

Tickets for Miss Fitzgerald's two-hour concert may be obtained at the University Center Information Desk.

Mace and Mobs

Let's not overdo this business about criticizing student groups. The Congress, under the leadership of its saber-rattling old racists such as McClellan, seems to have lost its grip on the problem of why disturbances take place, and is going down the panic sewer with everyone else, crying out for means of putting down the disturbances once they happen.

A number of police authorities and the solid citizens who back them and in most cases ought to back them, have begun to think of any group of people as a menace. There is less and less discussion about issues and more about techniques of suppression.

A typical instance is the increased reliance on chemical weapons such as "Mace," a super tear gas that inflames the skin and temporarily blinds the victim.

If "Mace" is used to subdue a violent criminal who otherwise might have to be shot or clubbed, it is a humane weapon and a useful adjunct to police work.

If it begins to be thought of as a quick and easy way to clear student protestors off the streets, it is a dangerous weapon whose long-term consequences must be carefully examined.

Action against individuals who are to be charged with criminal acts is one thing; indiscriminate use of chemicals as you would sound waves from a siren is a very different thing.

Dare anyone claim that a squirt of this chemical agent, (whose horrible effects were recently described by a gallant young reporter in Decatur who volunteered for the experience) is not an assault? If it is not an assault, it can be used as freely against the police as by them. The stuff is not unobtainable, and if its use is abused, you may shortly read of officers getting the stuff squirted back in their own faces.

So they wear gas masks. Are gas masks unobtainable? Of course not. What you will have done is to escalate the weaponry of street confrontations to a point where dialogue becomes impossible. A crowd of strikers or marchers will be unable to permit the police to advance within the twenty-foot reach of the Mace sprays. Before that distance is closed, they may either scatter or charge.

Today in Japan, student protest organizations go into the streets equipped and accoutred almost precisely as the police do; with gas masks, crash helmets, padded clothing and truncheons! There they clash, and there they battle it out on equal terms, unless the authorities find it so serious they must actually resort to gunfire.

And when they have done that, gunfire will be returned, and you will have a revolution rather than a mob. Haven't we already seen the native "Viet Cong" of our slums shooting it out from the rooftops?

It requires more imagination and patience to talk about problems face to face and to try to solve them, than it does to force this kind of violent resolution. It is only people who feel they cannot be heard any other way who would go to the barricades with firearms.

Do you really believe the nonsense being trotted out about "Communist agitators" being responsible for civil disorder and riots? The agitators are like germs, they are everywhere; but again like germs, they cannot take hold till the body has been weakened and its own defenses are not active. In the same way, Communists and others can find no hearing unless there is deep unrest about unsolved problems and no other avenue of redress.

If "Communist agitators" set our cities afire, it was public neglect and unconcern that handed them the match!

Mr. Johnson expresses and even incites the mood of these times when he attempts to repress dissent rather than face the truth about his policies. It is alarming to see him divide this country in the way that little banana republics to the South are divided; the Great Leader strengthens the Army and relies on it because he feels threatened by student riots. Soon he cannot even enter a House of Worship without some religious leader raising questions to his face about the morality of his course.

If Johnson reads any history, he should know that administration is doomed which alienates the most thoughtful and the most sincerely religious elements in the population. The mass of people may not at first appear to go the same way, but in political trends as in wrestling, the body must follow where the head goes.

The Prairie Post, Maroa, Ill.

By Pete Brown
University News Services

A profile of SIU's undergraduate class of 1971 reveals the average student to be slightly conservative, somewhat athletically inclined and ambitious for financial success.

Nearly 45 per cent of this year's freshman crop at Carbondale plan to go after advanced degrees and more than a fourth expect to get married while they're in school or within a year after they graduate.

In specifics, they compare generally with their Class of '71 brethren at other public universities in the U. S. More than half are attending college with family funds, but two thirds are concerned to some degree about finances. Twenty-four per cent report their parents' income between $10,000-$15,000 per year.

Data was gleaned from a questionnaire filled out this fall by 2,590 brand new SIU freshmen. It was part of a nationwide data-gathering expedition by the American Council on Education, whose main aim was to find out "what are students like today?" Some 280,000 students at 359 schools were questioned.

For purposes of arriving at "norms," the schools were broken down into types (two year, four year, etc.) and SIU was included with a group of 87 full-fledged universities. That group also was subdivided into catholic, private and public institutions.

Forty per cent of the SIU frosh said they had applied at other schools as well as SIU, but the multiple-application norm was nearly 55 per cent nationally. In one-two order, parents and the University's academic reputation accounted for the most points in making the choice. That same preference order held true nationally.

Other influences listed by the SIU newcomers included teachers or counselors (25 per cent), friends already in schools (22 per cent), the chance to live away from home (19 per cent), and low cost (18 per cent).

Other influences listed by the SIU newcomers included teachers or counselors (25 per cent), friends already in schools (22 per cent), the chance to live away from home (19 per cent), and low cost (18 per cent). Seven per cent listed athletics as an influence—above the national average—but the nine per cent who cited social life as important in their decision were below the average for all universities.

Sixteen per cent of the SIU freshmen said they plan to teach in high school; 12 per cent plan careers as businessmen; seven per cent want to teach in grade schools; seven per cent have their sights set on engineering; and another seven per cent plan to be in some field of the arts.

Business, skilled work and farming lead the occupational categories for the fathers of SIU's new freshmen. Nationally, the ranking was business, skilled work and engineering.

Fifty-four per cent claim the protestant religious faith; 26 are catholic; four per cent are Jewish; six per cent profess some other faith; and seven per cent have no religious preference.

"Developing a philosophy of life" was ranked high in a list of "very important objectives," but not as high as the national norm. Seventy nine per cent of the class voted it important compared to 86 per cent of freshmen in all schools.

On the other hand, half the SIU newcomers ranked business success as important, compared to 47 per cent of the total survey population. SIU students also assigned more importance to "being very well off financially" and "becoming an outstanding athlete" (46 per cent and 13 per cent) than did their classmates across the nation (44 per cent and 11 per cent, respectively). Performing music and achieving in a performing art drew fewest "important objective" votes, while "being an authority in my field" and "helping others in difficulty" ranked next in importance to developing a life philosophy. These same priorities were reflected in the nationwide response.

Two per cent—about 50 of the SIU frosh—said they probably would participate in demonstrations while in college.

Among the miscellaneous statistics (national norms in parentheses): Seventy one per cent say they can do at least 15 pushups (68%); 18 per cent can identify at least 15 species of birds (16%); 33 per cent can water ski but only nine per cent can ski on snow (39% and 20%).

Forty per cent can referee a sporting event (37%) but only seven per cent can identify constellations of stars (9%). Nearly a third can use a slide rule (44 per cent can, nationally), but only one per cent can program a computer (2 per cent, nationally). The number of 1967 college freshmen who can describe the Bill of Rights appears to be about the same everywhere—slightly more than half.

Their activities, habits and experiences during the year before coming to college varied only in small degree from students at other universities. Sixty five per cent rode a motorcycle and one of every five got a traffic ticket. Only two per cent missed school because of illness, but 19 per cent overslept and missed a class. Almost all studied with a classmate and 4 out of 10 tutored another student. More than half took vitamins but fewer than four per cent took sleeping pills and 18 per cent smoked cigarettes. More of them visited an art museum or gallery (71%) than discussed sports (44%), and more played a musical instrument (39%) than played chess (37%) or bridge (7%).

Three of the women said the highest degree they planned to seek was the Bachelor of Divinity. But none of the women respondents planned a career in the ministry.

1967: A Twiggy Year It Was

By Antero Pietila

We notice the lack of journalistic guts of Time magazine in failing to choose Twiggy as "the man of the year."

Not that we had anything against Time's actual choice (Lyndon B. Johnson) but because, in our opinion, this boyish, nail-biting, eitch-dropping thinnie from London who was so genuinely terrified about the fate of Hiroshima (after hearing it from a journalist who had asked her opinion, in vain) symbolizes the utter confusion of concepts in the world we lived in 1967. We were Twiggies in 1967, uncertain about the world, uncertain about ourselves, uncertain whether it was a girl or boy walking under that mopy hair.

Reporter: "How would you describe yourself?"

Twiggy: "Thin."

Reporter: "How about your personality? How would you describe that?"

Twiggy: "Ask him" (her manager).

Reporter: "No, he described it. We wanted to get your description."

Twiggy: "I dunno."

If it was a Twiggy year, it was a De Villeneuve year too. Take Moshe Dayan, for instance. What has been said about Justin, could have been said about Moshe as well: "I've learned more from Justin methodwise in nine weeks than I learned in 30 years of business-I mean in the art of when."

Well, Moshe taught it in six days. The Arab-Israeli war in June was the most dramatic single world political event of 1967. Nothing was settled by this war which unquestionably showed the military genius of the Israelis, but afterwards also the lack of their realistic thinking.

It was up to the Israelis rather than Arabs to make a honorable peace, I was assured in postwar Tel Aviv by Abie Nathan, a controversial he-man of Israel's political flyweight (who later flew to Egypt in his private plane on peace mission and was promptly sent back).

It is still up to the Israelis but they seem to refuse to recognize this fact. And so we have witnessed a sad story of Russian penetration in the Mediterranean, a sea that has been their goal throughout their history, but which they only made in the aftermath of the June war.

This should call to some kind of re-evaluation of the policy of the United States and Britain in this area since their true interests lie in Arab countries now romanced by the Russians, not in Israel. Of course they should guarantee Israel's independence but they should also prevent further unjustified and expansionist actions by that new nation.

The Israelis certainly earn their place in the world but so do the Palestinian Arabs who were the real losers in the war with which many of them had nothing to do.

In Africa, Ian Smith's regime survived 1967 in Rhodesia. There is a possibility of race war looming, but hardly before the last bastions of colonialism fall in the Portuguese "provinces" of Angola and Mozambique.

In Europe, miniskirts were followed by minipound. And across the Channel, Gen. Charles De Gaulle, the modern-day political oracle of the Elysee, continued his reign. Some American restaurateurs decided to boycott French wines and The Chicago Tribune urged the U.S. to claim France's war debt. Washington was reluctant to take action though apparently remembering how the U.S. failed to pay her debt to France after the Revolutionary War.

It was also the year of Mao's Great Cultural Confusion in China and further Americanization of the war in Vietnam.

This beginning year will certainly see a still hotter and perhaps a wider war there. Chances for peace are getting even slimmer as the presidential campaign approaches with its oversimplifications of issues and vote-getting gimmicks. Whether Vietnam will be the main issue will be decided by men who have control over seasons: "long, hot summer", if it comes, may be spring or fall as well.

A host of questions are to be answered: Will Nelson Rockefeller run? What about Bobby Kennedy? Questions come after questions without any knowledgeable answer. But this we know for sure: If and when Lyndon B. Johnson decides to seek reelection, he will be the President under the severest

When Rome Went Soft

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

The year 1968 will mark the 2,000th anniversary of the beginning of the end of history's hottest love affair.

In 33 BC (there was no zero year) at Cleopatra's insistence Mark Antony began mobilizing his forces for a climactic struggle with his ex-brother-in-law, Octavian, soon to be known as the Emperor Augustus.

If you like fouled-up family situations, this was a dilly. Fifteen years before, Julius Caesar had arrived in Egypt chasing Pompey. The 51-year-old Julius fell head-over-heels in love with the 21-year-old Cleo. He set her firmly on the shaky throne of the unbelievably corrupt and degenerate Ptolemies. He also fathered her son.

Caesar was murdered in 44 BC. Three years later Mark Antony, then carving out the Eastern Empire, arrogantly summoned Cleopatra to Tarsus. She came, perfume, jewels and all.

They claim she wasn't really a patch on Theda Bara or Claudette Colbert or Elizabeth Taylor. Some contemporaries say she was even a little ugly. But she was an authentic sexpot of Greek and Macedonian blood with a dash of Persian. She was also smart. Mark went overboard.

They had twins. And then Antony made the grandfather of blunders. He put aside his Roman wife, Octavia, and married Cleo. For a wedding present he gave her Judea, Arabia, Phoenicia, Cilicia, Crete and Cyprus.

The trouble was that poor Octavia was the sister of Octavian, who, in turn, was the grandnephew of Caesar and his legal heir. As such he had inherited the fierce loyalty of Caesar's personal legions. The ruling triumvirate of Octavian, Antony and Lepidus (poor Lepidus—another Bulgannin) exploded with a bang, and the Roman world took sides.

Maybe by 33 BC the 36-year-old Cleo was bathing more often in mare's milk and patting her wrinkles with increased attention. But it should have been a happy year for the two. They glided up and down the Nile in unbelievable splendor. And Antony began assembling his ships and soldiers for the showdown.

Two years later, at the Battle of Actium, the lovers broke their 500 war galleys against Octavian's 400. Cleopatra, characteristically, was sitting on the treasure ship, and when Antony signaled that all was lost, the two ships fled to Egypt.

They covered for a year, awaiting the final blow. On the day when Octavian swarmed over Alexandria, Antony in his battle harness heard that Cleopatra had killed herself and he fell upon his sword. It was a bum tip, for Cleo was still alive. It might have also provided the plot for Romeo and Juliet.

When Cleo got the word, she knew her world was ended. But she wasn't yet off-stage. With a fine sense of drama she had herself bitten by an asp. In ancient Egyptian belief the snake is the minister for Amon Ra, the Sun God. Thus, the Greek interloper left the earth proclaiming herself a spiritual sister to the Pharaohs.

But the point of all this rehash is this:

Twenty centuries ago the Romans lost faith in themselves. The Roman Republic, which Caesar killed, was by no means a democracy, but at least it had a broad base of participation among free Roman citizens.

Julius Caesar brought order and authority. He also brought fear into the heart of honest republicans, like Brutus, who sensed what was coming. After Caesar's death the attempt at three-man government died almost immediately.

The Roman citizen relinquished his powers easily. The bigger Rome got, the smaller he became. The Empire was complicated. It was hard for individuals to know just what the situation was in Bactria or Britain. It was easier to leave the tough decisions up to the palace.

Besides, the mob loved the imperial pageantry, the great triumphs featuring chained kings, the scattered gold and the free wine. It didn't dawn on many Romans that the financial burden of the huge bureaucracy was being met largely in loot and that when the loot stopped the tax-gatherers would grow tough.

Self-reliant Romans, suspicious of the pageants, sensitive to waste and determined not to loot the treasury for their temporary benefit, might have postponed or even canceled the collapse that shook the world.

The Roman backbone began to soften about 2,000 years ago.

People have learned a lot in 2,000 years.

They can forget a lot, too.

physical strain in the history of this nation. To wage a campaign, to wage a war; it's going to be tough.

Happy new year, we say. And still we doubt; a happy new year in this world of crises? It's a question of a Polish poet too:

"As from a tarry splinter so out of you
Flaming rags fly round again and again;
Burning, I know not if you're becoming free
Or if that wish of yours will be lost forever?
Will there be nothing but ashes and chaos
Tumbling into the abyss with the storm?
Or will there remain at the bottom of ashes
A starry diamond—the morning star of eternal victory?..."

Instructor Prepares Booklet

Reading can have a great influence on children, so select the right books.

That's the theme of a SIU brochure titled "Selecting Books for Children," which gives reasons why parents should be concerned. It was prepared by Bernice McLaren of the SIU department of elementary education, who teaches courses in children's literature for students preparing to be teachers.

Good literature can help broaden the child's experience by showing him how other children and other people live, is one reason given. Another is that the right kind of literature can teach a child to solve his own problems by showing how other persons, those in the book—have solved their problems. Also, the child can begin to develop attitudes and values of his own by being exposed to the ideas of other people.

Finally, Miss McLaren writes, reading is great entertainment. "Your child can escape from the everyday world, and do whatever the imaginative author dreams of."

She says parents should know the child's interests abilities, and needs in selecting a book. "Read the book. Consider its theme, plot, characters, and style."

Take a close look at the book format, which includes illustrations, paper, style, color, type, size, cover and binding. "Illustrations are important because they can tell the story for a poor reader and implement the story for a good one."

Students in Miss McLaren's children's literature courses prepare books for children during their term in class. They tour Southern Illinois glean interesting information, which they use in their stories. Besides compiling manuscripts they prepare book dummies and are responsible for illustrations.

Soil Society To Discuss Conservation

Conservation of the total environment will be the theme of discussion at the Illinois Section 7 Soil Conservation Society winter quarterly meeting Jan. 12 at SIU in Carbondale.

Section Chairman Leon S. Minckler, Carbondale, says the program will be a panel discussion by a geographer, a soil scientist, and two foresters on what conservation of the total environment means and how the Soil Conservation Society fits into the picture. Comprising the panel will be Donald Eggert, SIU assistant professor of geography; Joe H. Jones, SIU associate professor of soil physics; Dwight McCurdy, SIU assistant professor of forestry recreation; and Minckler, a researcher in silviculture with the Carbondale Unit of the North Central Forest Experiment Station.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the Home Economics Building lounge and will be open to all interested persons.

Section 7 covers Southern Illinois and is composed of persons interested in soil and water conservation.

231 Student Workers Hold Jobs In Morris Library's Operation

It takes a lot of manpower to keep SIU's 900,000-volume Morris Library here going and serving the Carbondale Campus's 19,500 students.

To assist the Library's 93 full-time staff members a total of 231 students were employed part-time during the fall quarter, according to Ferris S. Randall, Morris Library director.

Students help in every phase of the Library's operation—circulation, cataloging, ordering, serials, special services, and in administrative offices. They work in each of the various collections: education, humanities, science, social science, rare books, University School and Vocational-Technical Institute.

The circulation service, which dispenses books to students and faculty for out-of-the-library use, by means of an electronic check-out system, employs the largest number of students. The library is open from 7 a.m. to 12 midnight six days a week and from 2 p.m. to midnight on Sundays.

During the last fiscal year, a total of more than 570,000 books and other items was checked out over the circulation desk while more than 1,137,000 items (books, periodicals, maps, slides, recordings and other items) were used in the library, Randall said. The Library employs one of the largest corps of students engaged in on-campus jobs to help earn part of their educational expenses, according to Frank C. Adams, director of the Student Work and Financial Assistance Office.

One Out of Five Graduates Entering Business, Industry

One out of every five of SIU's 1967 degree graduates have accepted positions in business and industry, according to Roye R. Bryant, director of the Placement Services.

Out of 3,872 degree graduates at SIU's two campuses, Carbondale and Edwardsville, 774 chose the world of business and industry, the services' annual report shows.

Training of teachers is still SIU's biggest job and almost a third of the 1967 degree-earners entered the field of education—927 with the bachelor's degree, 323 with the master's and 49 out of the 60 receiving the Ph. D.

Bryant said a total of 1,202 interviewers from 30 states and Washington D.C. came to the two campuses seeking personnel during the period

Oct. 1, 1966 through Sept. 30, 1967. These interviewers, representing 699 companies and 322 schools, colleges and universities, conducted 7,807 individual interviews with SIU students about to complete degrees.

The 1967 graduates accepted positions in 86 Illinois counties, 44 states and Washington D.C., and 23 foreign countries.

Those going into business, industry or government positions went to 35 states, 52 Illinois counties and seven foreign countries.

Those taking teaching jobs also scattered widely—to 41 states, 84 counties in Illinois and 19 foreign countries.

Slightly more than half the 1967 graduates, however, elected to remain in Southern Illinois—54.6 per cent of those who took teaching jobs, 45.9 of those who took non-teaching jobs.

Of the 1967 degree graduates remaining in Illinois, 297 took jobs in Cook County, 242 in Madison County, 234 in Jackson County and 197 in St. Clair county.

Average annual salaries paid the 1967 graduates ranged from $5,929 for the bachelor's degree graduate going into elementary school teaching to $8,668 for the graduate with technical training entering business or industry and $9,381 for the master's degree high school teacher.

Bowles to Meet With Sihanouk

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ambassador Chester Bowles will go to Cambodia soon to seek a way to deny Vietnamese Communists a Cambodian sanctuary—hopefully without sending in U.S. troops to do the job.

President Johnson announced Thursday in Texas that Bowles, the American ambassador to India, will represent him in talks at Phnom Penh with Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the Cambodian chief of state.

The meeting was suggested last week by Sihanouk who broke relations with the United States in 1965, asserting that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency was plotting against him. Since then he frequently has criticized the American role in Vietnam and denied that the North Vietnamese or the Viet Cong were using Cambodia as a sanctuary.

But last week Sihanouk acknowledged, in effect, that Cambodia was being used to some extent as a refuge by Communists withdrawing from engagements with U.S.

forces along the border between Cambodia and South-Vietnam.

Reversing an earlier position, Sihanouk said he would not attack U.S. forces who might move into Cambodian territory in hot pursuit of fleeing Communist units. And he said he would welcome a visit by a representative of President Johnson to discuss the problem. Bowles interrupted a vacation in South India to hurry back to New Delhi for a conference with Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi on the Cambodian question. Bowles is to go to Phnom Penh in a few days.

Africans Demonstrate Against Humphrey

KINSHASA, the Congo (AP) — About 150 Congolese youths carrying anti-American banners charged into Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's motorcade Thursday and one youth aimed a kick at Humphrey's car.

est admirers as the Congo grows and prospers, proud of our mutual friendship and our mutual belief in . . . the social justice of mankind."

The 28-car motorcade slowed, but then continued on into the city and the youths tore up an American flag after the cars passed.

The incident occurred as Humphrey entered Kinshasa from the airport on his arrival in the Congo on a nine-nation African tour. It was the first anti-American demonstration Humphrey has faced on the tour.

He leaves for Zambia Friday after meeting with President Joseph D. Mobutu.

The youths had massed at a monument to Patrice Lumumba, onetime premier of the Congo who was slain in 1961.

When the motorcade approached the youths crowded the road and thumped on some of the cars. The vehicle carrying Mrs. Humphrey was not disturbed.

A spokesman for Humphrey's party said they had been warned of the demonstration, but the vice president decided not to have it prevented. Three Jeeps carrying soldiers followed Humphrey's car but the soldiers did not leave their vehicles.

The Lumumba monument is at the city's entrance. Along the rest of the route, most onlookers quietly watched the motorcade without waving.

In a brief statement on his arrival from Accra, Ghana, Humphrey told Congolese dignitaries: "The American people will be among your strong-

SIU Gets Federal Grant In Co-op Forestry Program

SIU has been granted $32,019 in federal funds under the McIntire-Stennis Cooperative Forestry Research Program for conducting forest research this year, according to John Andresen, chairman of the SIU Department of Forestry.

The program was initiated in 1962 with the agreement that beneficiary institutions would match the federal grants with similar funds. For the current year $3,800,000 has been appropriated to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which allocates the funds to the states.

Several forestry research projects in the fields of forest recreation, forest economics, wood technology, forest wildlife, dendrology and silviculture are either underway at SIU or will be initiated during the year.

Southern received $28,000 last year and $18,580 the previous year for research from the federal program, Andresen said.

Caldwell Chosen Officer for Bridge

Oliver J. Caldwell, dean of the Division of International Services at SIU, has been elected a vice president of The Bridge: A Center for Advancement of Inter-Cultural Studies. Caldwell also was elected vice chairman of its board of directors.

President of The Bridge is Clement Stone, a Chicagoan who heads the Combined Insurance Company of America. Secretary-treasurer is Henry Berne of Warrenton, Va., who recently gave a painting from his collection to SIU. Also a vice president is Francis Hamblin, vice president for academic affairs at Northern Arizona University, Flagstaff.

Caldwell, who was honored in October for his contribution to international education when he received the special award of the People to People Program in ceremonies in California, recently attended a meeting of the board of directors of The Bridge in Chicago during which time he was elected to office.

The team will set up a table in the University Center from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Each day at noon and at 2 and 4 p.m., the team will show a movie in the Ohio Room of the University Center. The color film, "A Year Towards Tomorrow," won an Academy Award for documentaries in 1967 and is narrated by Paul Newman.

VISTA is an agency of the Office of Economic Opportunity. Its members live and work with the poor.

Increase in 'Bouncing' Checks Noted by University Officials

The number of tuition checks made out to SIU are being returned due to insufficient funds is running higher than usual this quarter, according to a spokesman for the office.

The volume of checks being returned to the local banks and a local currency exchange is also increasing, but spokesmen for the institutions do not seem too concerned.

"Very few such checks returned cannot be collected," according to Charles Renfro, vice president of the First National Bank.

A spokesman for the Saluki Currency Exchange said the volume of returned checks always increases during Homecoming Week or just before vacations.

Because most of the Currency Exchange's business is done with students, reports show that about 95 per cent of the checks returned to the firm are written by students.

Spokesmen for the city's banks say that returned checks written by students run about the same percentage as the number of student customers.

The Bursar's Office levies a charge of $2 for the first check returned and $5 for each check after that.

Renfro said "over-drawing one's account used to be considered more embarrassing" and the practice has presented a "growing problem over the years."

Presently his bank attempts to control the situation by limiting the amount to $25 and by requiring complete identification information.

Local businesses have reported to the Chamber of Commerce that many such checks have been returned to them but no figures are available as to how large the problem is.

Renfro said the new magnetically coded characters printed on the checks are helping the banks secure positive identification.

Handler Receives Slave Study Funds

SIU anthropologist Jerome S. Handler has received funds to continue his research into the cultural and social life of slaves in the West Indies during the 17th, 18th and early 19th centuries.

Handler, a New Yorker who came to SIU in 1962, obtained his research grant from the American Philosophical Society. It will permit him to explore archival depositories in England and Scotland. He said he would study the processes by which African immigrants to the New World lost, modified or retained their African cultural heritage under conditions of slavery.

Indicates If Repetition Necessary

'Voting Machine' Allows Instant Response

More than 800 students at the Carbondale campus this fall proved their classroom learning achievement by means of a unique new Student Response System--an electronic "voting machine" hook-up by which the professor can pop a question in mid-lecture and get a push-button answer from each student.

The value of the system lies in giving the professor an instant check-up on whether his points are getting through to the students. If not, he can elaborate or emphasize or repeat as necessary until the response is satisfactory.

Operating experimentally in one classroom in Lawson Hall, the system was used this fall 29 hours a week, serving 11 classes.

The Student Response System, developed by General Electric in cooperation with SIU experts, is perhaps the most spectacular of the instructional aids provided by the Learning Resources Service, according to Don Winsor, director.

Lawson Hall's 10 auditoriums--six small ones each accommodating 80 students and four large ones seating 300 each--are equipped to make use of television, 16 mm. films, overhead and opaque projectors, slides, and sound (tape, phonograph, and mixing sound effects), he said.

Two coaxial cables from WSIU-TV, Southern's television station, run to Lawson Hall. Video tapes, films and color slides can be interjected as needed within the context of the professor's other programmed audio-visual materials.

In addition to operating and developing materials for the "full media" complex at Lawson Hall, the Learning Resources Service also provides a variety of other services and facilities for the campus.

A Self-Instruction Center in the Morris Library permits students to view films and special books at their own individual rate of speed. Materials include not only commercially produced books and courses but also SIU-produced tapes, slides, books and worksheets for specific courses. The Center is open seven days a week, 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. through the week and from 2 to 11 p.m. on Sundays. Seventy students can be accommodated at a time, each in his own little audio-visual cubicle.

Similar centers have been set up in the art and zoology departments to accommodate General Studies students taking required courses in these fields. Specially programmed instructional material has been developed by the Learning Resources Center in cooperation with Prof. Gerhard Magnus in art history and with Prof. George Goroian in zoology. During the course of the year these two installations will serve approximately 3,500 students.

A classroom television system is being used by Eugene Wood and Thomas R. Stitt, School of Agriculture faculty members, to video-tape performances of students preparing to become teachers. The students then analyze their own shortcomings and work to correct them.

In another project, the service is taping interviews being conducted by elementary education students who, under the guidance of Lydia B.

paired students. Approximately 250 textbooks used in SIU classes have been taped by volunteer readers--faculty wives, area church and club women, and even prisoners at Menard State Penitentiary. For several years the women of the Beth Jacob Temple have carried on a continuing project of tape-recording SIU textbooks for the blind. Taped material available for the blind in other centers throughout the country is secured as needed, Winsor said.

The Learning Resources Service make no charge for materials, equipment or services of operators when used for campus instructional purposes, Winsor said. For nominal fees, student organizations may book films or slides; a professor may obtain graphics for a book he is writing or audio-visuals to illustrate a speech for which he will receive a fee; and area schools, clubs and other organizations may rent films or film strips from the service's 8,000-title film library.

Summer Institute to Feature 'Team' Teaching Approach

A six-week summer NDEA Institute for Teachers of Reading and English in Grades 7 through 12 will be held on the campus of SIU June 24 to August 2 under the joint sponsorship of the SIU Reading Center and the Department of English.

A unique feature of the Institute will be the "team" approach to improvement of instruction, according to Allen Berger, coordinator of the Institute. Those attending will be required to enroll as teams--one reading teacher and one English teacher from the same school or school system.

The major objective of the Institute, Berger says, is the preparation of teams of reading and English teachers to work in school systems as resource personnel for improving the teaching of English in particular and to enhance the teaching of language in the areas of mathematics, science and social studies.

Faculty of the Institute will be drawn not only from the host University but will include authorities in the field of communications from other universities and institutions of learning.

Each enrollee will receive a stipend of $75 per week plus $15 weekly for each dependent. Participants are expected to pay their own expenses for travel, housing, meals, texts, and instructional materials. Rooms and meals for the six weeks will be made available in a special campus housing facility at a cost of $216.

Graduate level credit of nine quarter hours or six semester hours will be granted upon completion of the course. Enrollment is limited but no special preference will be given teachers from any particular geographical area.

Since completed application forms for attendance at the Institute must be received no later than March 17, all teachers interested in attending are urged to write as soon as possible requesting a complete information packet and application form to: Dr. Allen Berger, Coordinator, NDEA Institute for Reading and English Teachers, Southern Illinois University, Room 146 Wham Building, Carbondale, Ill., 62901.

Botany Instructor's Articles Published

Donald Ugent, assistant professor of botany and curator of the herbarium at SIU, has articles in the December issues of Economic Botany and the Journal of Evolution.

The articles are "The Potato in Mexico: Geography and Primitive Culture" and "Morphological Variation in Solanum Edinense, Hybrid of the Common Potato."

Ugent, believed to be the only American scholar presently engaged in studying potato classification, spent 14 months in Mexico, Peru, Bolivia, and Ecuador collecting potato specimens and tracing the origin of the potato.

Before coming to SIU in December, Ugent was on the staff at the University of Wisconsin where he received his Ph.D.

Judy Wills Tops World Trampolinists

WORLD CHAMP—SIU's Judy Wills, winner of the last four world championships in trampoline competition, shows her winning form. She also holds two world tumbling championships.

By Charles Springer

No one argues with the experts that SIU's Judy Wills is the best female trampoline artist in the world.

The attractive 5-foot, blue-eyed blond is the winner of four consecutive world trampoline championships. The records show she usually outperformed and outscored most males in the same competition.

Her coach, Herb Vogel, calls her the "Babe Ruth" of women's trampoline competition.

"I don't think anybody comes close to Judy Wills," he says emphatically. "There's never been a girl like her and there probably never will be again."

Judy's latest accomplishment was the world championship in London last June. There she compiled a convincing 9.5 excellence score out of a possible 10.

"Her consistency and performance and difficult routines are comparable to any male," Vogel continued. "She's also a good competitor and showman."

The SIU coed is also the winner of two consecutive world tumbling championships. There have been only two such competitions.

The world champion started practicing on trampolines at the age of five and has improved consistently since. A very conscientious performer, according to Vogel, she averages three hours of practice daily in the Arena.

With her powerful leg strength and running ability, Judy has also conquered the collegiate championship in sidehorse vaulting. She averages an excellence score of 9.3 per outing.

She will not represent SIU in the 1968 Olympics because she trails in points behind seven of her teammates in floor exercise, uneven bars and the balance beam. All competitors are chosen on the basis of excellence in these other fields.

Miss Wills next competes in the Midwest Championship in Chicago on Jan. 27. There is no real challenge for her in the meet, according to Vogel.

Ducat Controversy Avoided This Year

A controversy over the availability of tickets for the SIU-Kentucky Wesleyan basketball game at Owensboro will not recur this season.

The Athletic Ticket Office announced Thursday that 220 tickets for the Jan. 11 encounter have been mailed by KWC officials. They are priced at $1.50 each.

Problems arose last season when no tickets were to be had for the Owensboro encounter which involved the two number one teams in separate small college polls. KWC Publicity Director James Elkins explained that Southern had not requested tickets in the past and as a result, none had been made available last year.

Tickets are also available for the Michigan State game scheduled for Jan. 27 at Chicago Stadium. Prices range from $2.50 general admission up to $7 dollars for mezzanine seats.

Students can obtain tickets for the Feb. 15 game at St. Louis University ranging from $2 to $3.

Tankmen Stronger for Meet

When the SIU tankmen dive into their third dual meet tonight against the University of Oklahoma in Norman, Okla., Ed Mossotti and Tom Ulrich are expected to assume the roles of anchor men.

Mossotti is the captain of the team, and one of the finest swimmers in SIU's history. Ulrich joins the squad after sitting out the first two dual meets of the season.

The addition of Ulrich to the squad will remove some of the weaknesses that the swimmers have shown in two dual meets, which they have split. A 20-year old sophomore from Chicago, Ulrich will allow the Salukis to be more competitive in the medley relay.

"Ulrich will make us more flexible," Coach Ray Essisk said. "It will allow Bruce Jacobson some relief in the backstroke and let him go in the breaststroke, which is his specialty."

Oklahoma could be a tough test for the SIU tankmen. Even though they lost their great sprinter Jack Hove the Sooners still finished fourth in the Big Eight relays last month.

Although the Saluki swimmers have not been in dual meet competition since the middle of December that doesn't mean that they haven't been swimming. They were in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., over the holidays participating in the Collegiate Swim Coaches' All Star Meet.

Two varsity swimmers for SIU placed in freestyle events. Mossotti won first place in the 50-meter event with a time of :25.2. Scott Conkel was second in the 100-meter with 56.9. In the first two dual meets for Southern, Conkel has won both the 200-yard freestyle and 100-yard freestyle in each meet.

Rick Mount Leads Big Ten Scoring

CHICAGO (AP) — Rick Mount, Purdue's prized sophomore, swished at a 25.6-point average in tuneup campaigning to become the early favorite to capture the Big Ten basketball scoring championship.

With the 14-game conference race beginning Saturday, the much-publicized new Boilermaker from Lebanon, Ind., was pressed only by Iowa's Sam Williams in a nine-game span of prechampionship play.

The Big Ten office Thursday credited Williams with a 24.0 average, just 1.6 off Mount's pace and 2.2 points ahead of third-place Joe Franklin of Wisconsin, averaging 21.8.

Defending champion Tom Kondla of Minnesota lagged in 11th place with 16.7, more than 11 points under his title average of 28.3 last season.

Registration Open Till 12 Saturday

The Registration Center will remain open until noon Saturday on the Arena concourse due to the unexpected heavy traffic of continuing registration.

B. Kirby Browning, enrollment coordinator, said today and Saturday will be used for the registration of continuing, new, re-entry, or transfer students, and program changes for any previously registered student.

Students will be admitted at the south door of the Arena. Beginning at 8 a.m. Monday all registration will be conducted on the second floor of the University Center. No student will be allowed to register or add a class after Monday.

Frosh Cage Team To Play Monday

The freshmen Salukis will play the preliminary to SIU's varsity basketball game with Ogleshorpe College Monday night.

Coach Jim Smelser's freshmen will take on the St. Louis University first-year men at 5:45. The varsity contest begins at 8:05.

The young Salukis are seeking their first win this season. They dropped their opener, 78-73, to Paducah Junior College's powerful five before the holidays.

Arena's Facilities Temporarily Closed

The Arena will not be available for recreational use today as had previously been announced by intramural officials.

Glenn Martin, coordinator of intramurals, said Thursday that the facilities will be used instead for class registration.
