USO president sets spring agenda

By William Brady
Staff Writer

Philip Lyons, who has begun his last semester in office as Undergraduate Student Organization president, says

Gus Bode

Gus says it's the same old Lyons over at USO.

he plans to see certain issues discussed and no elections promoted by the student senate before he steps down.

Lyons' February agenda for the senate includes a $1 per semester increase in the student activity fee to support the Rainbow's End Day Care Center. Full-time students now pay an activity fee of $8.55 per semester. If passed, the increase would take effect this summer.

Lyons said he favors the increase because the center needs to accommodate the increasing number of children of non-traditional students.

The primary source of funding for the child care center comes from its users, who pay on a sliding scale based on family income. However, the center's costs are not covered by those funds, according to a memorandum from Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs.

Lyons said he also plans to encourage student involvement in the Carbondale elections April 5.

"We need to let students know about the elections because city actions such as R-1 zoning directly affect them," he said. "If they don't vote, it's like saying 'I'm for it.'"

No more than two unrelated persons can live together in an R-1 zone. Lyons said such a regulation is directed against students.

The senate also must establish an election committee for the student elections scheduled for April, Lyons said.

The senate will begin hearings on 1987 fee allocations in February. Registered Student Organizations must apply by Feb. 23 to be considered for an allocation.

The senate will meet at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Ballroom D.

Programming, Counseling seek administrators

By Carolyn Schmidt
Staff Writer

Two administrative positions in the University Programming Office are vacant and two positions at the Counseling Center will soon be open.

Bruce Zimmerman left his position as coordinator of University programming during the first week of December. He is now director of auxiliary services at the University of Southern Colorado in Pueblo.

Mindy Duggan left her job as an assistant programming coordinator in September for a graduate school assistantship at Washington University in St. Louis.

Sandy Moore, a former assistant programming coordinator, is acting coordinator of University Programming. Moore said there is no acting assistant coordinator.

Tacoma, Wash., is the next stop for Kathy Hamilton, director of the Counseling Center. She said she plans to leave in February for the northeastern state to take a position as director of an outpatient program at a hospital. Hamilton's husband, Charles Meade, director of training at the Counseling Center, will enter private practice.

Elwyn "E.Z." Zimmerman, chief psychologist at the Counseling Center, will serve

Hijacker extradition threatened by PLO

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — The PLO Wednesday warned that sending a Palestinian hijacking suspect to the United States would mean death for a West German hostage in Lebanon, and West Germany ruled out a quick extradition.

A second West German was reported missing in Beirut Wednesday but the United States urged Bonn not to cave in to threats. A Bonn newspaper, however, suggested accused hijacker Mohammed Ali Hamedei be traded for German businessman Rudolf Cordes — kidnapped in Beirut Saturday — and some of the five American hostages held in Lebanon.

The Palestine Liberation Organization's representative in Bonn, Abdullah Frangi, warned in an interview, "Sending him (Hamedei) to the United States will be the death sentence for the businessman."

West Germany's DPA news agency quoted government sources as saying quick extradition of Hamedei, 22, to the United States is "totally out of the question." Government sources also told UPI there would be no quick action.

Committee seeks visionary members

By JoDe Rimar
Staff Writer

Want to join the City of Carbondale's "think tank?"

The Carbondale Citizens Advisory Committee is looking for people who have concerns and visions for Carbondale. "We're interested in interested people," said the committee's chairman, John Foster.

The committee, which has about 17 members, meets once a month at the City Council chambers, 607 E. College, to discuss issues and ideas for the future of Carbondale.

Ideally the committee should represent the population of the city, but presently that's not the case, Foster said. The committee is "overloaded" with representation from the southwest area of Carbondale, while the southeast area — south of Main Street and east of the railroad tracks — is lacking in representation, he said.

The committee has played a major role in advising the City Council on issues important to the citizens of Carbondale, Foster said. The committee's accomplishments include pushing for stricter housing codes and enforcement and reactivating the Landlord-Tenant Union, he said.

Although the committee has no formal power, Foster said it does have access to the City Council and staff.

Committee members must live in Carbondale or within 1.5 miles of the city.

CAC applications are available at the City Clerk's Office at City Hall. Applicants will be subject to CAC and City Council approval.

Waite reported meeting with kidnappers, hostages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Church of England envoy Terry Waite met today with Western hostages and their captors, according to the spokesman for a group guarding the negotiator during his latest humanitarian mission. While the spokesman did not specify which group or which hostages Waite was meeting, it was presumed he was involved in another session with the extremist Islamic Jihad group holding two Americans.

Arrest of 80 rebel paratroopers confirmed

QUITO, Ecuador (UPI) — The government Wednesday confirmed the arrests of about 80 rebel paratroopers believed involved in the kidnapping of President Leon Febres Cordero, who promised them immunity in a deal to end the incident. The president is facing an ouster effort in Ecuador's opposition-controlled congress over last Friday's incident, though analysts said today the conservative leader appeared to have survived the attempt.

Official says tour lacked 'will' to find peace

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said Wednesday he failed to find "the political will" for a peaceful settlement in Central America during his tour through the region this week. "What is needed (in Central America) is not a concert of soloists, but a symphony in which all must play together," Perez de Cuellar told a news conference in Mexico City. Perez de Cuellar, Joao Baena Soares, secretary general of the Organization of American States and eight Latin American foreign ministers traveled through Central America Monday and Tuesday, speaking with the presidents of each of the five nations.

Twelve killed in massacre at Durban home

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Gunmen firing Soviet-made AK-47 rifles shot their way into a home near Durban Wednesday and killed 12 black people as they slept, police said. The dead included seven children. Erik Ndhlovo said his father, Willie Ntuli, was among those killed when gunmen shot away a door lock and fired at people sleeping in three rooms and a small structure rented to homeless blacks outside the main house.

Meese urges W. Germany to extradite Arab

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Edwin Meese urged West Germany Wednesday to fight terrorism by extraditing an accused Arab hijacker to the United States despite death threats against a kidnap victim and the seizure of another German. "The solution to terrorism lies first and foremost in asserting our political will to resist it," Meese told a terrorism symposium shortly after reports of the second kidnapping of a West German in Lebanon.

Japanese looks to U.S. to shore up dollar

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Japanese Finance Minister Kiichi Miyazawa met Wednesday with Treasury Secretary James Baker in an attempt to persuade the Reagan administration to help prop up the plummeting dollar. Miyazawa arrived at the Treasury Department at 4:20 p.m. for what the Japanese press described as a "firefighting" mission: stopping the fall of the dollar in foreign exchange markets. The dollar has slipped nearly 5 percent in value against the yen since Jan. 1.

Drug testing ordered for airline employees

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government will order random drug testing for airline pilots and other employees maintaining aviation safety, Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole announced Wednesday. Pilots said they will fight the move. Dole said she is also ordering the testing of thousands of Transportation Department employees who are employed in safety and other sensitive areas and will seek broader authority to conduct similar testing in the rail industry.

Former rebel says aid was assured in 1984

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA and National Security Council officials assured Nicaraguan rebel leaders in 1984 that assistance would continue to flow even if Congress cut off military aid, a former rebel leader said Wednesday. Duane Clarridge, who headed CIA operations in Central America, introduced the NSC's Lt. Col. Oliver North to Contra rebel leaders as the government official who would ensure that aid would be maintained, said Edgar Chamorro, a former member of the Contra directorate.

Local productions, economical prices top fare at Calipre

By Mary Caudle
Staff Writer

Students looking for entertainment that is out of the ordinary but isn't beyond their budgets might find what they're looking for at the Calipre Theater.

Affiliated with the Department of Speech Communication, the Calipre Theater is known for experimental works that employ undergraduate and graduate students as playwrights, actors and directors. In addition to traditional theater productions, the Calipre offers speech and studio performance.

In these performances, local artists are given a forum in which they can perform their own works. Students in the Writing as Performance class present a studio performance of their works each Spring, marking the end of the Calipre season.

This semester, The Calipre Theater will present five productions: two plays and three studio productions.

The season will open Feb. 6 at 8 p.m. with a Performance Hour featuring Shirlene Holmes, graduate assistant in speech communication. Holmes will perform her work, "Writing is My Way of Knowing."

A children's show, "The Trouble with Witches," will be presented on Feb. 24, 25, 26 and 27 at 1 p.m. and on Feb. 28 at 8 p.m. The show is compiled by Julia Pachoud, graduate assistant in speech communication. Pachoud also will direct the production.

Jean-Paul Sartre's play, "No Exit," will be performed on April 2, 3 and 4 at 8 p.m. Discussion relating stage behavior to life behavior will follow each performance. The play will be directed by James Van Oosting, associate professor of speech communication.

"Conversation Pieces," a studio performance will be held on April 30 and May 1 at 8 p.m. The performance, written and directed by Bryan Crow, assistant professor of speech communication, consists of humorous sketches based on everyday conversations.

The second Studio Hour production, "The Writers Speak," will be held on May 8 at 8 p.m. The performance will feature original works from members of the Writing as Performance class.

All shows are held in the Calipre Theater on the second floor of the Communications Building. Admission for "The Trouble with Witches" and "No Exit" is $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for children per performance. The Calipre Theater does not charge admission to Performance Hours or Studio Performances.

Justice for an eternal dispute

IT'S AS PREDICTABLE AS CHERRY BLOSSOMS in the spring. Each year, the January 22 anniversary of the Supreme Court's 1973 Roe vs. Wade amendment brings crowds of demonstrators to the White House to either support the Court's decision to decriminalize abortion or demand that the decision be reversed.

Every year, too, the battle between "pro-choice" and "pro-life" takes a new and heavily publicized twist.

Last year witnessed arguments over the controversial pro-life manifesto "The Silent Scream," a short film which portrayed a fetus recoiling in pain during an abortion. Pro-life groups bombed abortion clinics and Catholic nuns defied Church authority by supporting abortion and birth control rights.

One thing that has not changed about the abortion argument since Roe vs. Wade, or even over the centuries during which abortion has been an issue, is the uncompromising, apparently irreconcilable positions of the two sides. For both the pro-life and pro-choice positions, the stakes are high and the arguments passionate. One side finds abortion a morally indefensible destruction of life; the other finds forcing a woman to carry a fetus against her will an equally offensive destruction of freedom.

BECAUSE OF THIS DIVISION, the 1973 Supreme Court made the only kind of decision it could have made in the interests of fairness and tolerance. If the Court had decided against legal abortion, it would have favored only the pro-life position. By permitting abortion, Roe vs. Wade made it clear that neither side has the superior moral claim.

Some pro-choice activists fear that changes in the Supreme Court, particularly appointments during Reagan's term of office, will swing the Court into a reversal of Roe vs. Wade. Since the vote in 1973 was 7-2 in favor of legalizing abortion, and since last year's reaffirmation of the ruling only passed by a 5-4 margin, these fears may be justified.

The problem is that though a reversal of Roe vs. Wade would end legal abortions, it would not end abortions altogether. In 1973, representatives from Planned Parenthood prepared space in clinics for 1.6 million women they expected would have otherwise undergone illegal abortions. If abortions were made illegal, the numbers of women injured or killed in back alley abortions would rise to meet the casualties of fetuses now decry by pro-life activists.

The Supreme Court ruling on abortion must not depend on the sentiments of individual justices. It must not depend on whether the country is leaning towards the right or the left.

Only by leaving the moral decision up to the individual can the Court give justice to all.

ISSC award cut shortsighted, unfair

LAST AUGUST, the Illinois State Scholarship Commission smiled on private school students, raising their maximum award from $3,050 to $3,100. In order to cover the increase, however, the ISSC voted to dock $25 from all students' awards.

In effect, what the ISSC did was cut all students' awards, at both public and private institutions, so it could make a small increase — about 1.5 percent — in the maximum award for private school students. At SIU-C, for example, recipients of the maximum ISSC award of $1,598.60 will receive only $1,573.60 this semester. At the other end of the scale, recipients of the minimum award of $150 will receive only $125, a 17 percent cut.

ALL OF THIS COULD HAVE BEEN AVOIDED had the ISSC gone along with its own staff's recommendation that the maximum award for private school students be upped to only $3,050. Apparently, funds were available to cover that increase.

By allocating money it did not have to one group of students, the ISSC unfairly penalized all scholarship recipients, especially those at public colleges and universities who will see no increase in their maximum awards. We would expect better logic from an agency whose self-appointed mission is to increase educational opportunities for all Illinois students.

Nuclear prophecy or prevention?

It is 4 o'clock in the morning. It is probably unusual to write letters to the editor at 4 o'clock in the morning, but this is the only way I'm likely to get back to sleep.

I dreamt that there had been a nuclear attack. (Perhaps we lived in one of the unlucky towns that wouldn't be protected by the "feasible" SDI system Reagan administration officials are starting to talk about.) My husband had already been killed fighting an earlier phase of the war. My 16-month-old son, my friend, and I were suffering from radiation sickness, just sitting in my friend's apartment waiting for death.

Apparently, nearby power generation facilities were still operating, because we had lights on. My little boy was weak and helpless like he had been at four months, not the busy little runaround he is now. Soon I would be too sick to take care of him. There was no point in our suffering any more. I took a wire, went to an outlet, placed one end of the wire into my son's ear — he didn't even cry, he was so weak — then the other end into the outlet. I had to hold it a while to make sure he was completely dead, then I took the wire from his ear, closed my own mouth on it — and woke up.

Maybe it is pompous to think I have seen a scene from a universal nightmare, but I want to invite others to write about the scenes they have experienced. Maybe sharing our nightmares is one of the best incentives we can give our leaders to act as if nuclear war is too possible to rely on mutually assured destruction or "limited defense systems" to prevent it. — Ruth Piatak Moradi, graduate student, plant and soil science.

Administration all wet on acid rain deal

Milwaukee Journal
 Ten months ago, the Reagan administration at last seemed ready to take off its blinders and deal with acid rain, which is poisoning not only the environment but also the United States' relations with Canada. An agreement signed by President Reagan and Prime Minister Brian Mulroney committed the US to spending $5 billion over five years on finding ways to burn coal more cleanly — a modest step by comparison with Canada's own ambitious cleanup program.

Surprise. The administration proposes to spend a piddling $300 million on acid-rain research for fiscal 1988.

Canadians are outraged, as well they might be. While making a mockery of its commitment to its northern neighbor, the administration somehow mustered the courage to begin an air cleanup to the south, joining with Mexico to ban sulfur dioxide emissions from copper smelters on either side of the border.

Administration officials explain lamely that the two cases are not comparable, the southern border pact being an effort to bring Mexican standards to those in the US and thus protect asthmatics and emphysema victims. Yet sulfur dioxide emissions from the Midwest and Northeast not only threaten human health but also contribute mightily to the acid rain falling on Canada.

If the president won't get off the dime on this issue, let's hope Congress finally will. A sensible starting point would be California Rep. Henry Waxman's last-term proposal for an 11-year, graduated reduction of sulfur and nitrogen emissions from power plants, smelters and automobiles. States could choose their own cleanup approaches with help from a national tax on electricity.

Congress could soften opposition from coal-mining states if it were willing to put money into retraining for miners who would be displaced by a shift from high-sulfur coal.

At first glance, the costs cleanup look daunting — anywhere from $3.8 billion to $9.2 billion a year merely for sulfur controls. But the price of continued neglect — ravaged lakes, damaged forests, polluted soils, corroded buildings — will inevitably be much higher. Acid rain is already doing an estimated $7 billion in damage each year to resources in the eastern US alone.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Committee, whose members are the student-editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a Journalism School faculty member.

Letters to the editor may be submitted by mail or directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247 Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten, double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letter of less than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters submitted by mail should include the author's address and telephone number. Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

The Bonn newspaper, General Anzeiger, said Chancellor Helmut Kohl's government — which faces a general election Sunday — was wavering on extraditing Hamadei.

It suggested in an editorial that Hamadei be traded for Cordes and some of the five Americans held hostage in Lebanon.

Government spokesman Friedhelm Ost confirmed at a news conference Wednesday that a second West German, Alfred Schmidt, 47, had disappeared in West Beirut.

"We don't know if it was an abduction," Ost told reporters.

But an anonymous caller to a Western news agency in Beirut said Schmidt, an electrical technician, was kidnapped from his west Beirut hotel Tuesday.

The West German Embassy in Beirut — responding to the kidnapping of Cordes — Monday urged West Germans in Moslem west Beirut to move to Christian east Beirut, where they would be safer from Moslem fundamentalists who might be seeking more captives to trade for Hamadei.

Hamadei, 22, a Palestinian born in a Lebanese refugee camp, was arrested at Frankfurt airport Jan. 13 when he arrived from Beirut carrying explosives in his luggage.

Prior to Cordes's kidnapping, Schmit had said Hamadei could be extradited "very swiftly."

Man loses goods in $2,000 theft

Items valued at $2,000 were reported stolen from the residence of Gerald J. Nowarowski at 415 S. Washington St., according to the Carbondale Police Department.

Stereo equipment, fishing gear, tools, clothes and household items were taken between Jan. 12 and 17.

Police said the burglars entered through a bedroom window.

Woman reports $516 VCR stolen

A video cassette recorder valued at $516 was stolen from Dietra Cage, 505 S. Logan, on Jan. 20 between 6 and 7 p.m., according to a Carbondale police report.

Police said entry was gained by breaking a window on a back door.

Correction

General Telephone of Illinois will service the inside wire and all home jacks when ownership of telephones is transferred to single-line residential and business customers. However, customers will be responsible for telephone repairs.

An article in Wednesday's Daily Egyptian made it appear that the number of jacks repaired and serviced will be limited.

Also, the University will not be affected by the change because it has a switchboard account.

Retired design professor, Davis Pratt, dies at 69

Davis Pratt, retired design professor in the School of Art, died Tuesday in Gainesville, Fla. He was 69. His death was the result of a prolonged illness.

Mr. Pratt came to Carbondale in 1957 as one of the instrumental and founding instructors of the Department of Design. He taught design for 25 years before his retirement in 1982 and served as co-chairman of the department from 1962-64.

The Marion, Ind., native studied design at The School of Design in Chicago from 1939 to 1942 before serving in the military during World War II.

He served as a first lieutenant in charge of charts and graphs in the Pacific Theater until 1945 and returned to The School of Design, where he began his teaching career.

Mr. Pratt taught at The School of Design from 1946 to 1952, when he left to begin his own company, Designers in Production. At that time, he designed a chair which is now in the permanent collection of the New York City Museum of Modern Art.

Mr. Pratt was completing a translation of a French book on Haitian history before his death.

Mr. Pratt is survived by his wife, Elsa, of Alachua, Fla.; his daughters Jessica, of Gainesville, Fla., and Miranda, of Morganstown, W. Va.; his sister, Mary Hughes Murphy, of East Greenwich, R.I.; and two grandchildren.

A memorial service is scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday at the School of Design's Blue Barracks.

The family has requested that, in lieu of flowers, donations be made to Foster Parents Plan, Box 400, Warwick, R.I., 02886.

Court rules benefits for pregnancy leave determined by states

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court refused to give pregnant workers special treatment Wednesday, holding states have no obligation to pay them unemployment benefits if they leave their job to have a baby.

In a unanimous opinion written by Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, the court upheld a Missouri law that denied unemployment benefits to a woman who left her job to have a baby because the law applied to everyone who might be disabled by an illness such as a heart attack and did not single out pregnant workers.

"For example," O'Connor said, "under Missouri law, all persons who leave work for reasons not causally connected to the work or the employer are disqualified from receiving benefits."

"To apply this law, it is not necessary to know that (the woman) left because of pregnancy. All that is relevant is that she stopped work for a reason bearing no causal connection to her work or employer."

The court also said the state law did not conflict with the Federal Unemployment Tax Act, which provides no state participating in the federal-state unemployment compensation program shall deny any compensation "solely on the basis of pregnancy or termination of pregnancy."

The ruling, in which Justice Harry Blackmun did not participate, came just a week after the justices gave women a boost when they ruled in a California case that states may require businesses to grant pregnancy leave to women employees.

The 6-3 ruling upheld a California law allowing women to take up to four months off for pregnancy disability and guaranteeing reinstatement to their jobs when they return. The court held that the law does not compel California employers to treat pregnant workers better than other disabled employees.

Emily Spitzer, an attorney with the National Organization for Women Legal Defense and Education Fund, said the rulings were not inconsistent because in both cases the court said states cannot discriminate based on pregnancy.

Linda Wimberly, who waged the legal battle, was unavailable for comment.

Isabelle Pinzler, with the American Civil Liberties Union, said Wednesday's ruling is limited to those who have misfortune to live in states like Missouri that treat people with a disability "quite shabbily" and last week's was limited to those who have the fortune to live in states like California.

Missouri Attorney General William Webster hailed the court for not creating "a new protected class of individuals in its decision."

Segregation ruling extends reach of Voting Rights Act

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, extending the reach of the Voting Rights Act, ruled Wednesday a mostly white Alabama city discriminated against black voters by refusing to annex surrounding areas where they lived.

The 6-3 decision affirmed a ruling by a three-judge district court, which said the city of Pleasant Grove could not annex new white areas into its boundaries because of its unequal treatment of annexation requests from black regions.

The Voting Rights Act prohibits the dilution of black voting power and requires communities in southern states to obtain "preclearance" from the Justice Department before making changes in election district boundaries.

Recital scheduled

Daniel Mellado, associate professor of music, will give a violoncello recital at 8 p.m. Monday at the Old Baptist Foundation.

Mellado, who will be assisted by Lawrence Dennis on piano and Fairya Mellado on violin, will perform five works from Beethoven, Mozart and other classical musicians.

Super Bowl halftime needn't be a super bore

By Karen Timmons
United Press International

At approximately 2:45 p.m. Sunday, millions of frenetic Americans will suddenly find themselves with 25 minutes of dead time on their hands. It will be halftime at Super Bowl XXI in Pasadena, Calif.

There is a long-standing football tradition that only the live stadium audience and adoring parents of featured entertainers actually watch halftime shows. Couple that with CBS's prediction that 130 million Americans will watch the Broncos battle it out with the Giants and it adds up to a nation facing a collective 3.25 billion-minute time glut.

THE NFL Super Bowl office in Anaheim, Calif., predicts this glut will hit around one hour and 45 minutes after the 1 p.m. kickoff time.

At that point, half the country (not to mention viewers from 35 other nations) will have to decide between watching 50 Shirley Temple lookalikes singing "On the Good Ship Lollipop" and doing something else until the game resumes — precisely 25 minutes later, according to Super Bowl officials.

Here are some suggestions for filling the void.
—Run to the store for more ice, bean dip and chips. This is a traditional halftime pursuit, so be warned that EVERYBODY will be there and a run on your favorite munchie is likely.

—CLEAN UP the chips and dip ground into the carpet during the first half.

—Read the dust jackets on 10 good books so your friends won't think you spend all your time watching football.

—Mark the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution by reading the 4,543-word document. If time allows before play resumes, read the Bill of Rights.

—Introduce yourself to your kids. Twenty-five minutes qualifies as "quality time."

—If you are lucky enough to be in Pasadena for the game, run over to Anaheim and check out the Craft, Model and Hobby Show. This will likely take more than 25 minutes, but if there is a 30-point spread at the half, you might as well have SOME fun while you're in California.

—Wash the dog.

—WORK OUT a budget that will compensate for the money you wagered on the game.

—Admire the Rose Bowl grass the halftime entertainers are stomping around on. International Seeds in Halsey, Ore., was to provide 5,000 pounds of a specially developed grass seed mixture to repair the bare spots on the field after the Rose Bowl game Jan. 1.

—Feel vaguely guilty because it's been one month since Christmas and you still haven't sent any thank-you notes.

—IF YOU'RE in top physical condition you have just enough time to run all over the house gathering up everything needed to file your income tax return. Couch potatoes should make a list of same.

—Go through the complete financial listings in the Sunday paper and debate the merits of mutual funds with your football friends.

—Memorize your credit card numbers.

—Take comfort from the fact that no matter how much Pat Summerall and John Madden have chattered, you haven't heard one word from Howard Cosell all day.

—DAYDREAM ABOUT how you would blow the money the sponsors spent for just one minute of commercial time during the Super Bowl. CBS has found 30 advertisers willing to pay record rates for the telecast — up to $1.2 million for a full minute. There will be 26 minutes of commercials in this year's game.

—Consider how many fewer millions of people will be watching the president's State of the Union address two nights later.

—Pull out the list of 1987 resolutions made on New Years Day and add your reasons for not keeping them.

ALL THAT and more in 12 minutes.

In addition to the usual commentator patter, the other 13 minutes will be taken up largely by halftime's lion's share of the 26 minutes of commercials.

Last year, one of the half-time highlights was the so-called "john break," when the screen went virtually blank for 60 seconds so fans could go to the fridge or whatever. This year, there will be no blank screen, but Dan Rather and Mariette Hartley will make appearances to plug their respective shows on CBS.

—Tape the whole game and go bowling instead. When you get home you can fast-forward halftime.

The Marion Civic Center, 700 Public Square, has a seating capacity of 850.

Marion landmark survives decades of changing tastes

By Debra Keen-Cooper
Staff Writer

Nestled snugly in a corner of the Marion town square, a monument to history majestically stands, beckoning to those who pass its marbled entrance.

It is the Marion Cultural and Civic Center, an old movie house that was renovated in 1973 by volunteers under the supervision of the Marion City Council.

Mike Bennett, cultural arts coordinator for the Civic Center, explained that the building originally housed the Orpheum Theater, which was built in 1921 by the DuQuoin based firm of Reed, Yen and Hayes. The firm operated 15 theaters in the area at the time, Bennett said.

AT THE grand opening on Jan. 2, 1922 the Orpheum Theater seated 1,400 and offered Marion and the surrounding area the largest stage on which to see the best entertainment of the era, Bennett said. The owners commissioned architects from St. Louis to design the Orpheum to be a "show palace," he added.

Bennett said that the Orpheum was built to be both a movie and vaudeville house, and it was capable of housing the large touring groups that were popular at the time. He said that the vaudeville shows died out in the late-1940s and that with the advent of the cinemascope in the 1950s, the Orpheum became solely a movie house.

LANDMARK, from Page 8

THE ORPHEUM Theater was closed in 1973. Bennett said that Marion purchased the property with distinct plans to turn it into a parking lot.

A group of Marion residents banded together to save the Orpheum and presented to the Marion City Council a proposal that suggested that the building not be torn down, but restored and used as a multi-faceted entertainment and cultural center.

The result of this community concern is a beautiful, well-equipped, 850-seat theater which has been used for such functions as the Miss Southern Illinois Pageant, a patron series that has featured such artists as Red Skelton, Doc Severinsen and Ernest Borgnine, community theater performances and various fund-raising projects.

WHEN THE renovation began in 1973, the building was a mess. Bennett said that the roof had leaks that ruined a large portion of the ceiling, walls, floors and seating in the auditorium, paint was cracked and peeling, and the building was in desperate need of a cleanup job.

Bennett said that the renovation was kept as close to the original decor as possible, but cost was a big factor in decision making.

Probably the most impressive part of building is the foyer and lobby area. The ticket booth is adorned with glass block and brass and the foyer is framed with Egyptian Senna marble. The ticket dispenser is an original from a sister theater in Chistopher and is also made of brass.

THE PROMINENT feature of the lobby is a large brass pole in the center. Bennett said the theater originally had a brass banister leading to the balcony, but it disappeared some years ago.

The original auditorium was very ornate and all the lattice work, figurines and trim were painted in shades of pale green and pink and then trimmed in gold. Much of the ornamentation was left intact, but the walls and decorations were all painted one color to save cost.

THE AUDITORIUM features six opera windows, each adorned with an original olive green fringed valance and a new gold drape insert. The front two opera windows originally housed the pipes from an organ. The organ was kept in the orchestra pit, which is now a front extension of the stage. The basement of the Orpheum was transformed into two dressing rooms and a large lounge area. Bennett said that the renovators worked very hard to accommodate artists needs in the dressing rooms.

The Civic Center houses two 35mm projectors, two 16mm projectors, a large screen which can be used for slide shows or film, an up-to-date sound and light system that allows touring shows and entertainers to perform with fabulous visual effects and a comfortable decor in which the audience can enjoy performances.

THE MARION Cultural & Civic Center is a city entity governed by a 13-member board of directors that includes one high school student.

Calipre auditions slated

The Calipre Theater will hold open auditions for its upcoming production, "The Trouble with Witches," on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. and Friday at 4 p.m.

Auditions will be held at the theater on the second floor of the Communications Building. Roles for eight men and women are available. No preparation is necessary, but auditioners are asked to wear comfortable clothing.

"The Trouble with Witches," a children's show, will be presented during matinees on February 24, 25, 26 and 27, and an evening performance on February 28. Julia Pachoud will direct the show.

'Scary' report says breast cancer increasing

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of every 10 American women will develop breast cancer at some point, an all-time high, the American Cancer Society said Wednesday in an annual report one official called "very scary."

The statistical study of hundreds of types of cancer showed that breast cancer has continued a slow and steady climb, while incidence of lung cancer has increased dramatically in the past decade.

"BREAST CANCER is creeping ahead while lung cancer is galloping," said association epidemiologist Herbert Seidman, who helped write the annual report.

"There have been types of cancers that have dropped enormously — stomach cancer and uterine cancers are way down — but on the whole there has been a slight overall rise," he said in a telephone interview before the report was released.

THE SOCIETY estimates that 30 percent of people alive today will have or do have some form of cancer, and that the disease will strike three out of every four American families.

"The figures are scary and I don't know how best to present them," said Dr. Virgil Loeb, Jr., president of the American Cancer Society, in a telephone interview. "We are not implying there is a dramatic change, just that cancer is there and we have a problem with it."

THE NEW STUDY, based on years of cancer statistics gleaned from hospitals, death certificates and government agencies, shows the odds of getting breast cancer have increased from 1 in 13 a decade ago to 1 in 10 today.

But while the incidence of breast cancer is rising, its death rate has held at a steady 3.3 percent for all women. The overall five-year survival rate for breast cancer victims is 90 percent.

"WE STILL don't know why women get breast cancer, although studies indicate fat in the diet and obesity and family history are factors," Loeb said. "This underlines the importance of early detection, of the necessity of check ups and mammography."

Women who are over age 50, had their first child after age 30 or have never had children are also at greater risk for breast cancer.

IT IS LUNG cancer, a deadly disease that the new report estimates will strike one out of every 30 women during their lives, that is now considered by many to be the leading cause of cancer deaths in women.

In 1984, the last year such figures were available, breast cancer killed 39,472 women while lung cancer caused the deaths of 36,239 women, Seidman said.

THE AMERICAN Cancer Society, projecting a trend, estimated that more women died of lung cancer last year than breast cancer, he said.

Lung cancer in men has also increased — up 184 percent in the last 30 years — but actual incidence of lung cancer in white males dropped slightly between 1982 and 1983, according to the report.

LOEB SAID the slight increase in overall cancer rate, which will kill an estimated 483,000 Americans this year compared to 462,000 in 1984, could be attributed to better methods of record keeping and diagnosis. He also said the country's population is aging, which increases the overall incidence of cancer.

Continuing Education changing

Enrollment boom prompts series

By Catherine Simpson
Staff Writer

The growing number of students attending non-credit courses for career advancement has forced the Office of Continuing Education to change its focus starting this semester, says Jane Evers, coordinator for the Division of Continuing Education.

The office conducted an informal survey that indicates students are enrolling in non-credit night courses to further their knowledge in their careers, she said.

The non-credit night courses have been titled "The Professional Development Program Series."

The University was one of a only handful of institutions that began offering non-credit night classes more than 20 years ago.

Evers said most of the leisure and social classes now offered by recreation centers, community colleges and health spas have been dropped. However, some leisure activities will be offered under a new Cultural Series, she said.

The development program is divided into four series — business, career enhancement, cultural, and real estate and investments — that explore topics such as hiring and supervising employees, hatha yoga and real estate transactions.

The courses will not be advertised in one-page newspaper advertisements as was previously done, Evers said, but will be advertised separately in smaller advertisements in the newspapers.

The courses also will not be limited by the semester schedule but will vary in length from one day to 10 weeks to accommodate more people, she said.

She commented that the changes in the program will bring a more flexible approach to the non-credit night course schedule.

Falling oil prices push inflation to 25-year low

WASHINGTON (UPI) — America finished 1986 with its lowest inflation rate in a quarter century, as prices climbed just 1.1 percent, due mainly to tumbling oil prices, the Labor Department said Wednesday.

Economists hailed the news, but predicted inflation will return this year.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes declared, "Americans have good reason to feel confident that 1987 will be another banner year in the Reagan economic expansion." Energy prices fell 19.7

percent during 1986 as oil-producing countries slashed the price of crude during the spring and summer, throwing America's oil states into financial havoc.

Excluding energy, the cost of goods increased 3.8 percent last year.

Economists predict U.S. inflation will rise to about 4 percent in 1987, primarily because energy prices are climbing again. Gasoline prices rose 0.7 percent during the month, for example.

Even the chief presidential economic adviser, Beryl

Sprinkel, said inflation would move to 3.8 percent this year.

"But the 1.1 percent for (1986) is still good — a heck of a lot better than in the late 1970s," said David Wyss, an economist for Data Resources of Lexington, Mass.

The Consumer Price Index for December rose 0.2 percent over November's rate. The index's standing at 1.1 percent over the December 1985 rate marked the lowest increase since 1961, when prices increased 0.7 percent.

"I would want to put a degree of optimism on the figures," said Lyle Gramley of the Mortgage Bankers Association. "This is the fourth year of recovery and as yet we have not seen any sign of accelerated inflation."

The government index tracks the average change in prices for food, clothing, shelter and other items needed for daily life. The index is based on a "market basket" of goods that cost $100 in 1967 and, as of December, cost $331.10.

Supermarket prices were unchanged overall in December and grew 3.6 percent for the year while the cost of food at restaurants and take-out shops increased 0.4 percent in December over the previous month and 4.3 percent for the year.

Housing costs jumped 0.3 percent for the month, in part because of a 1.1 percent increase in fuel oil prices and a 0.1 percent upturn in the cost of natural gas.

For the year, the Labor Department estimated costs rose 1.8 percent.

Housing starts surge after 3-month decline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After three straight monthly declines, a surge of new building in the Midwest, West and Northeast drove up housing starts 13.7 percent in December, the Commerce Department said Wednesday, boosting to 3.7 percent new housing activity for 1986.

Analysts described the December upsurge as encouraging, but cautioned some of the increase could be attributed to seasonal adjustments and factors, such as mild weather in much of the country.

The December increase reflects a rate of privately owned housing starts of 1,802,000, seasonally adjusted, compared to the revised November rate of 1,585,000.

"The figures are somewhat inflated by the seasonal factors," said economist James Christian of the U.S. League of Savings Institutions. A 50 percent increase in housing starts in the Midwest, he said, is "not a precursor of future trends."

However, Christian added new housing construction in the Midwest "is gathering strength" after slipping in recent months.

Bob Villanueva of the National Association of Home Builders said the increased rate of housing starts in the West reflected in the December figures is not surprising because the area is not overbuilt and income growth has been strong in the region.

Tops in rock inducted to Hall of Fame

NEW YORK (UPI) — Blues legend B.B. King, soul star Aretha Franklin, rock pioneer Bill Haley, television's first rocker Ricky Nelson, and 11 others were inducted Wednesday as the second group to join the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame.

The Hall, which was founded in 1985, is in the process of establishing a permanent archive and museum in Cleveland, Ohio.

The inductees were feted at a $300-a-seat black tie dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria, a gathering that promised to bring out some of the biggest names in the music world.

The selections, voted on by a committee of experts, covered a wide range of early rock and pre-rock styles.

Fifties vocal-group rhythm and blues was well represented. Clyde McPhatter and Jackie Wilson both sang with the Dominoes before going on to solo success. McPhatter was also a member of the Drifters. The Coasters, who had a string of Lieber-Stoller written hits, also were named.

Rockabilly stars Eddie Cochran and Carl Perkins were added to the music industry honor roll, along with Roy Orbison, who started out with Perkins playing rockabilly at Sun Records.

Bo Diddley and Muddy Waters, two of the giants of Chicago's blues and early rock label, Chess, joined labelmate Chuck Berry in the Hall. Diddley institutionalized one of rock's most irresistible beats, while Waters played a style of electrified blues that has been echoed by rockers ever since. B.B. King's sleek, distinctive blues guitar playing has influenced several generations of players.

Aretha Franklin, the greatest woman soul singer of the '60s, was an obvious selection. Two of Motown's finest performers, Smokey Robinson and Marvin Gaye, also made it in this year.

A I K I D O

Aikido is a defensive/non-aggressive martial art that does not rely on size and strength to be effective. Aikido is an excellent martial art for small people, since it utilizes the attacker's momentum to maximum advantage. Avoidance of an attack is of primary importance. After avoidance of an attack, subduing the opponent without injury is the goal of the aikido practitioner. Practicing aikido teaches one to coordinate and unify the mind and body so that one can function unaffected by an outside negative force or influence, whether it be physical attack, mental aggravation, or verbal harassment. For more information, call 549-4479.

TURN YOUR HOME INTO A CHECKBOOK.

The equity you've built up in your home is like money in the bank. With First Federal's Home Equity Line, you have easy access to a revolving line of credit. Simply write a check for whatever you want or need. Use your line of credit for home improvements, automobiles, educations, investments, emergencies or vacations.

Once your Home Equity Line has been approved, you can access the account by simply writing a Home Equity check. There are no restrictions on how the money can be used. Borrow up to 75 percent of the market value of your home less what you still owe on it and pay interest on only the amount you use.

The new Tax Reform Act phases out certain deductions allowed for consumer interest; however, with our new Home Equity Line you may be able to take advantage of the maximum benefits under the new tax law.

To find out more about how to turn your home into a checkbook, call one of our loan officers or send in the coupon below.

Five students honored with scholarships

Five SIU-C Mortuary Science students each have been awarded $500 scholarships sponsored by Illinois funeral homes and vault companies. The scholarships were awarded based on results from essays and interviews.

Winners are Angela D. Anello, scholarship sponsored by Huffmann Funeral Home, Carbondale; Ted C. Brock, scholarship sponsored by LeRoy Schmidt Memorial Home, East Peoria; Robert J. Merkle, scholarship sponsored by Egyptian Funeral Directors Association and Merz Vault, Mount Vernon; Lisa A. Osburn, scholarship sponsored by Mitchell-Hughes Funeral Home, Marion; and Barbara L. Berger, scholarship sponsored by Wilbert Vault Company, Herrin and New Baden.

Scholarship set for Army ROTC

Applications for two- and three-year Army ROTC scholarships are now being accepted. The scholarships pay full tuition, fees, book costs and $100 per month during the school year.

Scholarships lead to commissions as second lieutenants in the U.S. Army. Military obligations incurred are served on active duty, in the Army Reserve or the National Guard.

For information, call Captain Haide, 453-5786, or visit the Army Military Science Department in Kesner Hall on Greek Row.

Award applicants sought by Greeks

A $500 "Service-to-Southern" Award will be presented to an outstanding graduating senior by the Inter-Greek Council for recognition of participation and service contributions to the University.

Applications for the award may be obtained at the Office of Student Development on the third floor of the Student Center and returned no later than 4:30 p.m., Feb. 9.

The award will be presented at the Inter-Greek Council's 40th Theta Xi Variety Show on March 7.

Scholarships awarded to four

Four SIU-C journalism students have been awarded $250 Scripps-Howard Scholarships for the spring semester.

The winners are Debra R. Keen-Cooper, a news-editorial major; and advertising majors Myrina E. Apgar, Laurie A. Rollings and Kevin D. Woodward.

SIU-C journalism faculty members selected the winners from a pool of 13 applicants.

Black New Yorkers urged to shun white businesses

NEW YORK (UPI) — Young black activists passed out leaflets on commercial strips throughout the city Wednesday to urge blacks to boycott white-owned stores as a sign of "outrage" against the Howard Beach racial attack.

In downtown Brooklyn, they paused briefly to link arms in a moment of silence to remember Michael Griffith, the 23-year-old construction worker whose death in the attack has fueled tensions in the city.

Griffith was struck and killed by a car as he fled a white gang in the Howard Beach section of Queens Dec. 20. The gang beat Griffith and two other blacks whose car broke down in the neighborhood.

"We are going to have to get out on the streets and take the lead," said Peter Williams, 27, who was handing out leaflets in downtown Brooklyn declaring a "Day of Mourning and Outrage." "People are ready to deal with the issues that affect them," said Williams, Brooklyn outreach coordinator for the citywide protest that will culminate with a march through Manhattan.

"They are tired of the black community being silent. They know that by not being involved they can't deal with the problems facing the community," he said, giving directions to a group of supporters who got a mixed response from shoppers.

"I hear you, brother, I know where you're coming from," a black man said as he decided against entering the Abraham & Straus department store and put on a green ribbon.

A Puerto Rican woman took a leaflet but quickly crumpled it, muttering "I don't know what they're talking about."

Whites generally ignored the activists and seemed puzzled when dozens of black shoppers streamed out of stores with last minute purchases before the 11 a.m. moment of silence that ended with the blaring of car horns.

In the South Bronx, Charlene Jenkins, 20, said she did not see why she should participate in the boycott. "They're not paying me to stay home," she said of the organizers.

However, another Bronx resident, Gordon Kenney, said he felt very strongly about the protest.

"I did not go to the local grocery store. I did not go to the cleaners," he said. "Even if it only makes a small dent, just to let them know the kind of power that we have is important."

A coalition of black religious and political leaders urged blacks to participate in the boycott and wear green ribbons and arm bands to "mourn the loss of youthful life."

Lawyer recalls killer's rampage

WAUKEGAN (UPI) — Serial killer Alton Coleman and his girlfriend Debra Brown terrorized the Midwest in 1984 during a three-month crime spree that left eight people dead, a prosecutor said Wednesday.

On Tuesday, a jury deliberated about 40 minutes before agreeing unanimously that Coleman, 31, is eligible for the death penalty in Illinois for the 1984 murder of Vernita Wheat, 9, Kenosha, Wis. Coleman already faces execution in Ohio and Indiana for murders during a three-month crime spree in 1984.

In the second phase, the jury will determine whether the death penalty should be imposed. If the judge decides not to impose the death penalty, then Lake County Circuit Judge Fred Geiger will set the prison term.

Assistant Lake County State's Attorney Matthew Chancey said the prosecution will show "he and his girlfriend, Debra Brown, began a reign of bloody terror throughout the Midwest" following Vernita's death. Brown is not charged in the slaying of the Kenosha girl, who was found strangled in an abandoned building in Waukegan.

Chancey said evidence will be presented regarding murders Coleman committed in Indiana and Ohio, a kidnapping in Kentucky and a body found in Detroit.

Reynolds says no to 'Rambo'; sticks to laughs

ROME (UPI) — Burt Reynolds doesn't believe in making predictions but it's his guess that Rambo films are on the way out and comedy is on the way back in.

That's all to the good for an actor who not only is not the Rambo type but doesn't want to be.

"I would be miserable," he said, "doing a film for eight or nine weeks without a laugh."

Reynolds was in Rome to shoot "Rent a Cop," a movie about a cop and a hooker, which he described as a

"Mona Lisa" type story with a happy ending.

The script has laughs, and Reynolds and co-star Liza Minnelli are improvising still more laughs as they go along.

Reynolds, 50, was eating a plate of pasta ("I'm crazy about pasta. They can bring it to me in a syringe.") and drinking tea in the dining room of his hotel near the top of the Spanish Steps, looking lean but definitely not mean.

Given that there was no bearskin rug nandy and he was fully clothed in jeans, white shirt, turquoise cashmere pullover and sneakers, the only visible difference from the Burt Reynolds of the Cosmo centerfold of 15 years ago is the slew of laugh lines around his eyes.

Although he is an ex-football player and an avid outdoorsman, he was never in the running for a Rambo-type role. He said he preferred Sylvester Stallone in "Rocky" to Sylvester Stallone as Rambo because the character of Rocky had "enormous vulnerability."

Reagan to meet with panel investigating Iran scandal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan met Wednesday for the second time with his special adviser on the Iran arms scandal and agreed to sit down with the commission he set up to investigate National Security Council operations.

Reagan, still secluded as he recovers from prostate surgery Jan. 5, met separately in the Oval Office with four top advisers — chief of staff Donald Regan, NSC director Frank Carlucci, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Secretary of State George Shultz — before seeing special counselor David Abshire.

The president appointed Abshire to coordinate requests for White House information on the Iran arms-Contrat aid controversy, and met with him the first time a week ago Monday.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan has set up a meeting with the three-member NSC special review board headed by former Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, for next Monday, the day before the State of the Union speech.

The panel, which also includes former Secretary of State Edmund Muskie and former NSC director Brent Scowcroft, met Wednesday with former President Carter in Plains, Ga., its spokesman, Herbert Hetu, said.

The announcements of Reagan's meetings on the crisis contrasted with past White House accounts indicating the president would not be questioned by his top aides about his recollection of how the Iran arms deal evolved, and reports he was putting off a meeting with the

Forced silence frustrates president, first lady says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — First lady Nancy Reagan said Wednesday her husband is frustrated at having to "sit here and say nothing when you really want to say something" about the growing Iran arms scandal.

An unusually talkative Mrs. Reagan spoke with reporters on the Iran investigation, the president's health and proposed administration cutbacks in the war against drugs.

Her impromptu press conference came in the Diplomatic Reception Room after she received a complimentary copy of a special antidrug edition of Newsweek Magazine to be given to high school students around the country next week.

Appearing anxious to face reporters, Mrs. Reagan was asked to comment on Iran because the president has been out of public view and "we have a lot of questions."

"I'm sure you do — and so does he," she replied.

Asked if he was starting to get answers to some of them from his staff, she said:

"I don't think you can get the answers until all the (congressional) committee reports are in, and he believes that the best way and the most responsible way is to wait for those committees to put forth their reports and then say what he has to say other than what he has said already — he knew nothing about any diversion of funds, he knew nothing about any Swiss bank accounts, anything of the kind."

She said, however, that he probably would not wait until the late summer or early autumn deadlines for the committees to make their reports before giving his version of events.

Mrs. Reagan said her husband, who was meeting Wednesday with special Iran adviser David Abshire, is "waiting for the Tower Report to come in, he's waiting for Abshire (to advise him). He just wants more input, which is, I believe, the responsible way to do it.

"Sometimes, you know, it's harder to sit here and say nothing when you really want to say something."

Tower board.

Reagan has extended the panel's term from Feb. 1 to Feb. 19 "due to the large amount of material" the panel has to deal with, Speakes said.

He said the panel has interviewed 40 witnesses and has 20 more people to speak with, including former presidents Gerald Ford and Richard Nixon.

Casey, others accused of lying

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA Director William Casey lied to Congress and closed-door testimony Wednesday by Secretary of State George Shultz indicates others involved in the Iran arms sales also are lying, Rep. Lawrence Smith, D-Fla., said.

Shultz testified for three hours in a closed session of the House Foreign Affairs Committee as attention in the foreign policy scandal focused on Congress, where both Democrats and administration loyalists are openly characterizing the Iran arms sales as misguided and doomed from the outset.

Acting CIA Director Robert Gates, filling in while Casey recovers from brain cancer surgery Dec. 18, answered questions from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He told reporters Casey, who the administration is reportedly considering replacing, was improving.

Shultz, who spent five hours on Capitol Hill, kept a promise to the Foreign Affairs Committee and returned after an open hearing in November and "fleshed out" his earlier testimony about the Iran arms-Contrat aid affair, Smith, an outspoken administration critic, told reporters.

Smith said he had already concluded several major operatives in the Iran arms sales were not telling the truth and Shultz, who maintains he was not involved in key decisions that resulted in the sales, convinced him.

"He is pointing out things now that make other peoples' testimony appear much less than truthful," Smith said. "Mr. Casey, as far as I'm concerned, lied to the committee when he was here. Casey lied and now Shultz's testimony indicates to us that other people have now said things which conflict significantly with Shultz."

Pasadena cops gear up for crush of fans

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — The Pasadena police force began girding itself Wednesday to cope with the anticipated 104,000 sports fans expected to fill the Rose Bowl for Sunday's Super Bowl, but officers said the job would be rather routine.

Both the FBI and the Pasadena Police Department said they were not aware of any terrorist threats aimed at Sunday's game between the Denver Broncos and the New York Giants.

Lt. Roger Kelley said the department's entire force of more than 200 would be working Sunday alongside the California Highway Patrol and Rose Bowl security officers.

But Kelley said the number of officers deployed for security precautions at the Super Bowl only slightly exceeded that used for the Rose Bowl every New Year's Day.

The Rose Bowl was also the site for soccer during the 1984 Olympics, when between 90,000 and 100,000 fans attended matches for 10 days running.

"If we can provide security for a packed house 10 days straight, we can do this (the Super Bowl)," Kelley said.

Police intelligence has revealed no cause for worry about a possible terrorist attack, a fear Kelley says the news media have overblown.

"There is absolutely no benefit for any terrorist organization to gain the ire of millions and millions of Americans by attacking the Super Bowl," he said. "We have our concerns and we are aware, but we are trying to be realistic."

"Our major concern is that everyone comes down and enjoys themselves and has a good time. We will just be policing a major football game."

Kelley was unable to say what the cost of providing security would be, but he recalled that the department initially requested $48,000 last year in salary and overtime from the City Council. The figure may have risen since then, he said.

FBI spokesman Fred Reagan said his agency had no role in Super Bowl security.

The FBI was the lead federal agency for security at the Olympics, but Reagan said it generally does not get involved in Rose Bowl security.

Simms, Elway escape boos to share Super Bowl glory

By Joel Serman
UPI Sports Writer

PASADENA, Calif. — They have overcome the boos. Maybe that's why they are wary of the cheers.

Quarterbacks Phil Simms and John Elway arrived at the NFL with the expectations often accompanying first-round draft choices. Each now has his team on the brink of a Super Bowl title.

In the 1979 draft, the Giants faced a problem: Use the No. 7 pick on Miami running back Ottis Anderson or on a little-known quarterback from Morehead (Ky.) State? Ray Perkins, then the coach, and General Manager George Young felt they needed a quarterback to revitalize the franchise.

When Simms' name was announced in a New York hotel, the quarterback from the Division I-A school received his first professional reception: "Boo."

"It's historical that quarterbacks suffer in New York," Giants Coach Bill Parcells said. "Simms has matured to the point that he understands he won't please everybody. He knows the only people he has to please are his teammates and his coaches."

Elway received a friendlier greeting. In 1983, the strong-armed Stanford product was selected by the Colts as the draft's top pick. Elway, a minor-league baseball player, pressured the Colts to trade him to Denver. Bronco fans saw him as a savior.

He started immediately and Coach Dan

Reeves admits he pushed him too fast. Elway was not ready for NFL defenses, and the media and fans let him know what they thought: "Boo."

"I learned all about expectations as a rookie," Elway said. "I just can't worry about the expectations."

Simms missed the end of the 1980 and '81 seasons because of shoulder separations. In 1981, Scott Brunner quarterbacked the team to its first playoff appearance since 1963. Simms was sidelined in 1982 with a knee injury. In 1983, Parcells, in his first year as head coach, named Brunner the starter.

With the team struggling, Parcells played Simms, who promptly fractured his thumb. The Giants finished 3-12-1.

Simms, bolstered by a weight program, came back next season to set team records for completions, attempts and yards. He led the Giants to the playoffs and played 16 games. He has done that each of the last three seasons.

Once known for injuries, Simms has started the last 48 regular-season games. Parcells calls Simms — a workaholic with films and weights — his "lunch-pail" quarterback.

"He's the toughest guy on the team," tackle Brad Benson said. "Our offensive line identifies with him, likes him. He's just a blue-collar worker."

Still, early this season, with receivers injured and running back Joe Morris carrying the load, Simms heard a familiar sound: "Boo."

Simms, 30, was playing tentatively and Parcells told him loosen up. He responded with clutch completions and big games in what became an 11-game winning streak to the Super Bowl.

"Phil always knew he had the ability, but to be honest we didn't have good enough talent around him," Benson said. "We didn't give him enough protection and he was banged up a lot. Even this year when it was obvious we were on track for the Super Bowl, there was booing. But we know Phil Simms is a winner."

Elway, in the eyes of many, was not considered a winner despite a 40-19 record as a starting quarterback. Over the last three seasons, the 26-year-old is tied with Miami's Dan Marino as the quarterback with the most victories (34).

But Denver failed in the playoffs, losing the wild-card game in 1983, losing in the first round in 1984 and becoming the first team in NFL history to miss the playoffs with 11 wins.

This year, Denver started 6-0 before finishing 5-5 and limping to the AFC West title. This year, Elway guided a 22-17 victory over New England on a sprained ankle.

In the AFC title game against Cleveland, he directed an astonishing 98-yard drive in the closing minutes. The wind was whipping in his face and the Cleveland Stadium crowd rocked in a chant of "Defense." He completed 6 of 8 passes, including a 5-yard touchdown throw to Mark Jackson with 37 seconds left, forcing overtime in a game Denver won 23-20.

"People have been waiting for him to do something like that," guard Mark Cooper said. "Now, I think, they can say he is there."

can make the grade. So far, he said his team's biggest problem is rebounding, or more accurately, the lack of it.

"We're just terrible rebounders," Garner said. "I don't know if it's because of our lack of size or what. Maybe we just don't have skilled rebounders."

The Bulldogs front line measures just 6-6, 6-6 and 6-4, so it will be one of the few games in which Rich Herrin's Salukis will match up size-wise.

The lack of rebounding, Garner says, places more importance on the Bulldog's shot selection and field goal percentage, which puts them in a similar boat as Herrin's squad.

Another feature of the Bulldog lineup is assistant coach Moe Iba, who last year guided Nebraska to a 20-10 mark and a first-ever NCAA appearance. Iba quit after the Huskers lost to Western Kentucky and was picked up by Garner to aid in recruiting.

Poor defense hinders men cagers

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

With a four-game Missouri Valley Conference losing streak, hoop coach Rich Herrin hopes his team shoots better and plays more aggressive defense at 7:35 tonight when SIU takes on Drake at Des Moines, Iowa.

"We're leading the Valley in defense, but from the wrong end," Herrin said of his squad allowing 83.0 points per game. "We've just got to be able to stop people at least part of the time."

Other than defensive let-downs that leave Herrin scratching his head, the second-year coach says the Salukis need to improve shooting to hold games within range to the end.

"Our shooting is so important. If we can keep close, we might be able to win a game or two on our outside shooting skills," Herrin said.

SIU's one-two punch of Doug Novsek and Steve Middleton will need to bounce back from a subpar, 31-point combined effort against Wichita State. When the pair combined for more than 37 points, the Salukis posted four wins.

After scoring more than 17 points in eight of SIU's first nine games, Novsek's scoring average slipped to 16.1 ppg. In his last seven outings, Novsek broke the 17-point barrier just twice.

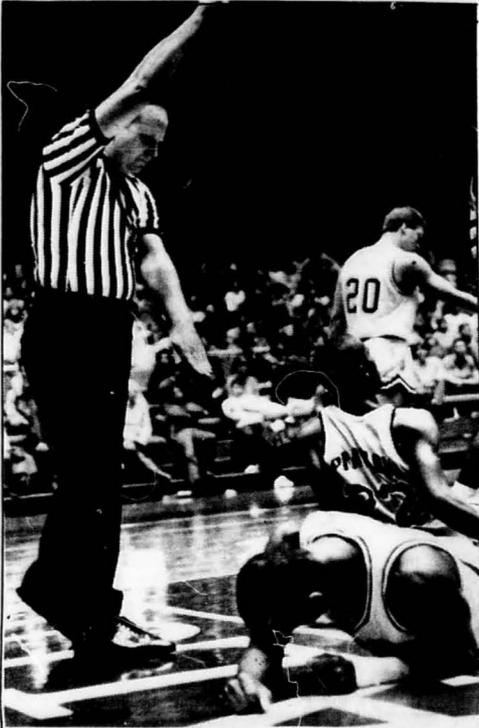

"It didn't take teams long to figure out our strengths," Herrin said. "Doug has really been getting some tough defense the last few games and we'll all have to adjust."

Randy House, who missed the last five games because of pneumonia, will not make the trip to Des Moines and is still questionable for the home game Saturday against Creighton. Because of the illness, House probably will not reach full strength by the time he reappears in the Saluki lineup.

An all-freshmen Valley selection last season, House's aggressive style of play is sorely missed by the Salukis. Herrin's team has depended on the Benton native's intensity-instilling performances off the bench.

In the absence of House, sophomores Billy Ross and Todd Krueger will continue to split time.

Saluki center Tim Richardson, the tallest starter in the contest, needs to improve his intensity and consistency, Herrin says, to notch a big day against the Bulldogs. Richardson currently contributes 9.1 points and 6.8 rebounds per game.

U.S., Australia to battle for cup

By Ruth Youngblood
United Press International

FREMANTLE, Australia — Stars & Stripes and Kookaburra III, preparing for their duel at sea, battled on land Wednesday for the support of New Zealand, each camp convinced a fiberglass ally is a strategic key to winning the America's Cup.

While telephone calls and telegrams poured into the Kiwi compound urging the losing team to "back Australia," syndicate chief Michael Fay met with Stars & Stripes Chairman Malin Burnham. The 37-year-old merchant banker then rushed to the Kookaburra III compound, where the newly-crowned defenders sought his support to help keep the prized trophy in the southern hemisphere.

Amidst the wooing by the Cup rivals, Fay indicated a choice was tough despite the calls and messages from members of the KZ7 Supporter's Club.

The staunch fans with long memories reminded Fay of Stars & Stripes skipper Dennis Conner's three-month crusade against the fiberglass entry, maintaining the boat was illegally light in the extremities, thereby giving it a speed advantage. Conner even suggested New Zealand cheated in constructing the Twelve.

"This is not just my decision to make," Fay said, noting he will announce his choice Thursday. "We're going to have to give the matter a lot of thought. There are points to be made for both sides."

Bradley braves SIU Underdog Braves to test women cagers

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

It's not the Super Bowl, but if fans could bet on the SIU-Bradley women's basketball matchup, the odds would favor the Salukis.

However, the game in Davies Gym at 7:35 tonight could provide the Gateway Conference with its biggest chance for an upset of the league leader.

Despite Bradley's 8-7 overall, 4-3 GCAC mark, SIU coach Cindy Scott believes the Braves possess three qualities that could make the score a toss-up.

"They have plenty of talent inside, they can run the ball and they're aggressive," Scott said. "Anybody who thinks some Gateway teams can't play is sadly mistaken."

First-year Braves' coach Lisa Boyer inherited a relatively veteran squad, but at this point in the season she's shuffling the lineup to work around a few injuries and illnesses.

The Braves leading scorer and a preseason all-GCAC pick, Michelle Braud, suffers from a right ankle injury. The 5-9 guard-forward should start, but in the two games since the injury, her point totals dropped below double digits. Braud usually scores 12.9 points per game.

Braves senior point guard Lori Rogers also has ankle trouble. If Rogers, the Braves' three-point leader, can't go the distance, junior guard Nancy Zoros should fill in.

Audrey DeClue, a 5-10 junior forward, missed the last two games because of flu. Boyer said DeClue, who averages 11.8 ppg, should regain her health by gametime.

A pair of tough freshmen should see plenty of gametime.

A 5-11 forward, Karin Nicholls, holds the third-best Brave average at 10.9 ppg while 5-9 guard Carol Baresch hits 7.0 ppg.

"All their kids play hard and don't let up," Scott said. "They're willing to pay the price to get a victory."

The Salukis enter the contest in fine health with a 13-game season winning streak and a 26-game conference streak. SIU flip-flopped in the national polls, with a 17th place in the USA Today and No. 16 in the Associated Press.

"(The polls) aren't going to worry us. The important thing is to keep winning and if so, hope the NCAA recognizes us as a strong team so we can get a good seed (in postseason play)," Scott said.

Boyer certainly recognizes SIU as a strong team, but takes an attitude of optimism into the game.

"Anything can happen," Boyer said. "We can't worry about their record, winning streak and ranking. We must take to the court ready to play basketball very hard for a full 40 minutes."

Small gym will adapt to seat all

By Wendell Young
Staff Writer

Only once last year did Gary Carney have to accommodate a capacity crowd for a women's basketball home game at Davies Gym. He would like that challenge again.

Carney, assistant athletics director for promotions, said continuous capacity crowds would be a "real nice" problem for the athletic department of the 16th-ranked Saluki hoops-sters to solve.

"An overflow of fans is readily encouraged," Carney said, adding that the fan support would boost the program.

Carney said the limited-seating concern from last year hasn't gone unnoticed this year.

"We have borrowed stands from the Student Recreation Center that have expanded seating, while making it comfortable for the fans," Carney said. The bleachers will go back to the Rec in early February.

The maximum capacity for admission to basketball games at Davies Gym was 1,500 during the 1985-86 season. However, the seating capacity has been decreased to 1,200 for the 1986-87 campaign.

The decrease is accredited to the fired-up, standing-room-only crowd of 1,500 that packed Davies Gym last spring to witness the GCAC championship dogfight between the Salukis and the Bulldogs of Drake. The Salukis won the contest and captured the GCAC crown.

Underrated Drake starts out strong

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

Preseason picks can be misleading and a year ago, first season coach Gary Garner surprised the Missouri Valley Conference by finishing in a second-place tie with Tulsa.

A one-point, second-round tourney loss to Tulsa, the eventual MVC champions, and a first-round loss to Marquette in the National Invitation Tournament ended the Bulldogs' winningest season in a decade.

Picked fifth in the Valley this season, the Bulldogs are off to another surprising start, with a 2-2 league record and 12-7 overall mark.

And all that against some pretty tough competition.

The Bulldogs lost to No. 1-ranked Iowa, Big Eight frontrunners Missouri and Iowa State, along with Western Athletic Conference favorite Wyoming. Garner said he thinks such "quality" losses will help his club down the stretch in the MVC race.

"That kind of experience always helps," Garner said. "Of course, looking back I think we could be two or three wins better, but we could have lost a couple of close ones, too."

Garner says fifth was an accurate projection for his club, which lost two starters from last year including Melvin Matthias, Drake's all-time leading rebounder and second all-time scorer. One can understand a less-than-last-year pick by Valley coaches.

A 53-52 win over Illinois State, an upset of Wichita State and losses to Tulsa and Creighton leave the Bulldogs even in Valley play so far.

Garner isn't banking on the MVC tournament yet, but would like to think his squad

Strange happenings omens of women's wins

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

Most teams feel grateful to play at home.

But often the road brings the Saluki women's basketball team so much excitement and adventure, there might just be an element of luck involved.

For instance, if Saluki coach Julie Beck had walked into the men's bathroom BEFORE the Memphis State game, the women's basketball team might be undefeated.

Beck, in a most embarrassing faux pas, said she wondered why the McDonald's bathroom had urinals. When she finished changing clothes in the stall and came out, the sight of a man answered her question. Ooops!

Coincidence has it that the Salukis have good luck on the court if something off the court goes drastically wrong before the game. Can we attribute the road victories to road mishaps?

The Beck-bathroom incident happened after the Salukis lost.

But take the trip down to Western Kentucky, for example. What would normally end up at the maximum as a four-hour journey, wound up as a seven-hour marathon of bus trouble. Scariest still, one time the bus broke down by Eddyville, Ky., which, as Kentuckian Marialice Jenkins informed everyone, is home to the worst state prison.

On the previous trip to 'sunny' California, the sun shined when the plane landed and when the plane took off. In between, San Diego got its first rainstorm in four months. What luck! The only daylight among the cloudbursts shined indoors as the Saluki winning streak started.

The two Gateway-opening wins meant at least two things went right on the trip to Wichita State and Southwest Missouri. The adventure began when the team warmup suits and Jenkins' luggage disappeared somewhere between St. Louis and Wichita, Kas.

Despite an odd pregame appearance in sweatshirts, the Salukis looked sharp on the court. A taxi pulled up five minutes after the win, delivering the lost apparel. Jenkins must've needed her lucky underwear, for she didn't hit a three-pointer until the Saluki beat Southwest Missouri State.

But Beck should've borrowed something lucky the night before, as she scraped the length of a rental van by parking it along an unseen pole. Double oops!

During the game, the Saluki bench received one of many technical fouls thus far in the season. Why? Because the bench itself extended beyond the coaches box—a nifty trick that requires teamwork between the home coach, janitors and referees.

As if the Salukis' second Gateway win was too much good luck, three sleeping Salukis were burglarized sometime between 6 and 8 the next morning. Senior forward Cozette Wallace, who paced the Salukis off the bench with 15 points, awoke because she felt cold.

Wallace, upon discovering the patio door open, said, "Spanky" (Jenkins nickname), if you were hot, you didn't have to open the door!"

Jenkins woke up and said she didn't open the door. Sophomore Dana Fitzpatrick hadn't opened the door either. They all said, "Uh-oh," and began checking their stuff.

Fate made up for Jenkins' earlier lost luggage, as she had nothing missing. But Wallace lost her Gucci watch and her purse, and Fitzpatrick also discovered her purse missing.

The rest of the Salukis breathed a huge sigh of relief, saying they were glad their teammates didn't wake up while the criminal was still in the room.

The journey to the closest Gateway opponent proved to be the worst road hazard. Hit by the first decent snow of the year, the Salukis embarked for Eastern Illinois at Charleston at 10:45 a.m. They arrived in more than twice the normal travel time, at 5 p.m. One eight-mile stretch took 45 minutes to traverse. But the 40 minutes on the court paved another win.

However, the bad-luck, good-luck theory got blown to bits on a nearly uneventful trip to Illinois State and Indiana State. The only bizarre occurrence came late in the game against the Sycamores.

Indiana State seating arrangements included the lineup of a fraternity group perpendicular to the Saluki bench at the endcourt. The guys' snide remarks and shaking of the basket during free throws failed to keep the Salukis from thrashing the Sycamores.

It all adds up to the strange, unusual or bizarre way luck seems to balance out. Either that, or the Salukis' adventures belong in the Twilight Zone.
