SIUC to consider tuition increase, other options

By Christine Leninger
Administration Writer

SIUC officials have not decided a tuition increase is the answer to the University's fiscal problems, President John C. Guyon said Tuesday.

"I am considering the options available to the University and any mention of a tuition increase is strictly premature at this point," he said.

Guyon has been forced to consider several proposals from a budget advisory committee to help alleviate the University's financial burdens, he said.

Among the proposals are a tuition increase of an undetermined percent, a tuition increase of 6 percent, a removal of the tuition cap, a lowering of the tuition cap to 12-15 credit hours, differential tuition costs, reallocation of university funds and University budget cuts.

The advisory board meets today to discuss options for dealing with the budget crisis.

"Students need to take a look at the proposals and realize what each proposal would mean to them," said Student Trustee Bill Hall.

A tuition increase combined with reallocations and budget cuts seems to be the most likely solution to SIUC's financial woes, said Albert Meione, chairman of the budget advisory committee.

"A 15 to 20 percent tuition increase

Budget plan gets approval

By Todd Welwart
Politics Writer

The General Assembly approved Gov. James Edgar's revised budget Tuesday night, softening cuts to education and public aid and leaving higher education with the same deep budget cuts.

The Senate voted 37-15 to pass the compromise between Edgar and Democratic leaders. The measure passed the House by three votes.

Higher education will sacrifice $49 million with SIUC and SIUE splitting a $5.3 million loss. Most federal agencies in Illinois will feel the crunch of the $273 million cut, losing 7 percent of their budgets for the remaining fiscal year, which ends June 30.

The revised budget returns $40 million to elementary and secondary schools, which will lose only $60 million. Public aid cuts are limited to $57 million rather than the $91 million for which Edgar asked.

The revised budget also allows the state to borrow up to $500 million from the federal government to cover unpaid Medicaid bills. The new loan would be repaid in October, using federal funds.

"I can't believe we can afford more cuts in higher education," said Sen. Ralph Dunn, R-Du Quoin.

Dunn was the only Republican who objected and voted "present."

Edgar's original plan called for the General Assembly to slash 3 percent from every state agency

SIUC forced to give back $3.7 million

By Brandi Tipps
Administration Writer

The University will have to return $3.7 million to the state as part of a 3-percent rescission SIUC officials have feared since the governor called for drastic cuts in the budget last fall.

"We're stalled right now. We have a lot less money than we thought we were going to have and we have commitments," said William S. Capie, vice president for financial affairs.

SIUC President John C. Guyon said SIUC and the School of Medicine have no choice in returning the $3.7 million.

The amount of rescission money jumps to $5.3 million when the Edwardsville campus and the Chancellor's Office is included, he said.

A rescission is money an organization asks back from the budgets of its sub-levels. The state can ask for money back from the University, which can pass on the rescission to colleges and schools.

Because fiscal year '92 is more than half over, school officials are finding it difficult to come up with the money.

Workers continue repair of roof as weather conditions improve

By Christy Gutowski
General Assignment Writer

Water continued to leak into parts of the Communications Building on the first day of spring semester, as workers took advantage of unseasonably warm temperatures to make repairs to the damaged roof.

Roofers tried to finish repairs during Christmas break, but harsh conditions aggravated the situation, said Jim Ray, Communications Building custodian.

"Cold temperatures caused cracks in the roof, which led to more leaks," he said.

Glue or cement is used to support the new roof, but the cement is unable to stick when temperatures drop below 40 degrees.

"The type of materials we're working with are volatile to weather conditions," said Mia Jazo, spokeswoman for the Capital Development Board in Springfield.

The original contract allotted

Vaughn Roofing of Marion $204,148 and 84 days to finish the project, but the company has been given an extension.

Contractors were delayed in getting bonds and insurance approved, and money for repairs was tied up with the state budget crisis.

"We had to wait until relief funds were available," Jazo said.

The money was appropriated by

U.S. marks 19th anniversary of Roe vs. Wade

By Sherri L. Wilcox
General Assignment Writer

Almost two decades ago a young pregnant woman went before the U.S. Supreme Court and changed history.

The court decided in the now landmark Roe vs. Wade decision that a state cannot restrict a woman's legal right to an abortion.

Today marks the 19-year anniversary of the decision.

The 1973 judgement granted women the right to medical abortions within the first six months of pregnancy, forcing 46 states to rewrite their abortion laws. It did allow, however, for state regulation of abortion after the first trimester of pregnancy.

And almost since the very day the court handed down its opinion, groups have united to persuade the court to reverse its decision, making abortion illegal once again.

In recent years, many states have moved toward more regulation on abortion procedures, primarily involving notification of the spouses of married women and of the parents of minors seeking abortions.

Illinois, at this time, does not require spousal or parental notification for in-state abortions.

Tom McAfee, SIU professor of law, said in general, it still is the case that a mature person should somehow be able to avoid parental notification for abortion.

"The problem is the maturity of an individual changes from case to case," McAfee said. "You can't just say all those over a certain age are mature enough and all those under that age aren't."

Sabatini reaches Aussie semifinal

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — Jennifer Capriati, beginning to feel some grown-up pressure as she completes her second full year on the tour, lost in straight sets to Gabriela Sabatini Tuesday in the quarterfinals of the Australian Open.

Capriati, 15, made 42 unforced errors, including six in the tie-breaker, as fell to the third-seeded Argentine 6-4, 7-6 (7-1).

"I missed some easy shots," said Capriati, the fifth seed. "Sometimes I played really well, but in the tie-breaker it just wasn't there."

Top seed Monica Seles also won in straight sets, beating Germany's Anke Huber 7-5, 6-3. Seles, the defending champion, now has 26 consecutive matches in Grand Slam competition.

Joining Seles and Sabatini in the semifinals are No. 4 Arantxa Sanchez Vicario and No. 7 Mary Joe Fernandez. Sanchez advanced when No. 9 Manuela Maleeva-Fragniere withdrew with a foot injury, and Fernandez, the only American to reach the final four, defeated American compatriot Amy Frazier 6-4, 7-6 (8-6). In the semifinals it will be Seles vs. Sanchez and Sabatini vs. Fernandez.

The men's quarterfinals were set for Wednesday. Top seed Stefan Edberg was paired against No. 5 Ivan Lendl; John McEnroe played South African Wayne Ferreira in a duel of unseeded players; No. 2 seed Jim Courier faced Amos Mansdorf of Israel, and No. 4 Michael Stich faced unseeded Richard Krajicek of Holland.

Capriati, who missed an easy smash on break point in the fourth game of the second set, is not the same wide-eyed and carefree youngster she was in 1990, when she made the semifinal of the French Open in her first Grand Slam tournament.

McEnroe steals seeds' thunder in quarterfinals

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — Even though longtime rivals Stefan Edberg and Ivan Lendl played Wednesday for a berth in the Australian Open semifinals, their duel will be overshadowed by a match between two unseeded players.

John McEnroe, the star of the show thus far, returns to action against South Africa's Wayne Ferreira, and eager Melbourne fans have assured a sellout crowd of 15,000 for their night match.

Edberg, the top seed and No. 5 Lendl meet for the 25th time to open the day's action at Flinders Park.

Second-seeded American Jim Courier has yet to meet a seeded player, and that trend continues in his quarterfinal against 65th-ranked Amos Mansdorf of Israel. In the other quarterfinal, fourth-seeded German Michael Stich, the Wimbledon champion, takes on another unseeded player, the dangerous Dutchman Richard Krajicek, in a battle of big serves.

McEnroe has dominated the headlines throughout the tournament, creating further excitement as he dethroned defending champion Boris Becker and then outlasted Spain's Emilio Sanchez in a five-set epic.

Women swimmers whirl past Cyclones for win

By Cyndi Oberle
Sports Writer

The men's and women's swimming and diving teams have not strayed from their consistent performances despite a topsy-turvy season.

The women, who took eight firsts Sunday, fell one short of that accomplishment, but proved their depth by winning a Monday meet against Iowa State 128-115. The Salukis now claim a positive winning percentage with a 6-5 mark in dual meets.

Men sink to 7-4 after dropping dual meet to Iowa State

Head coach Doug Ingram said he was pleased with the women's consistently strong performances.

"Iowa and Iowa State have quality programs," he said. "For our ladies to swim head to head with them is a statement on our program."

"We won seven and eight events out of 16. It is a definite confidence builder to know they can compete with No. 19 Iowa and Iowa State."

Only two men placed first in events in Sunday's meet against Iowa, and they again took firsts against Iowa State.

Even though the men won more events against Iowa State, it was still not enough to conquer the Cyclones. The Dawgs lost 134-109 to bring their season mark to 7-4.

Freshman Robert Weger and sophomore Rob Siracusanu walked away with firsts in the 1,000-yard freestyle and in the one- and three-meter diving respectively.

Weger also finished second in the 200 free and the 200 butterfly.

Other Saluki winners were senior Todd Edison in the 200 free and freshman Dan Workman in the 200 breaststroke. Edison also captured second in the 500 free.

Senior Deryl Luebner took two seconds in the 100 free and the 50 free to add to the Dawgs' depth. Sophomore Greg Bever also finished second for SIUC in the 200 individual medley.

Ingram said the men's team could have swum more competitively against Iowa State.

"They took us out," he said. "We have put in some hard work to date, and we need to capitalize on that. Hopefully in this weekend's meet against Nebraska we will be more competitive."

For the women, many who took firsts against Iowa returned from Iowa State winners as well.

Senior Tonia Mahaira finished first in the 200 freestyle and second in the 100 free. Senior Julia Hosier took first in the 200 individual medley, and senior Nancy

Touted freshman quickly adapting to women Salukis' up-tempo style

By Norma Wilke
Sports Writer

The SIUC women's basketball team has a new face on the squad making great strides for Saluki basketball.

Freshman Racquel "Rockey" Ransom, a highly recruited 6-1 forward from East St. Louis Lincoln High School, has made an immediate impact for the Salukis, averaging 7.5 points and 4 rebounds a game.

Ransom's height in junior high school led her into her basketball career. She said she likes SIUC's up-tempo style of play.

"At SIUC I have to be more focused and dedicated and work harder," Ransom said. "I'm in good shape, and I'm working on my rebounding."

Coach Cindy Scott said Ransom has made an impact, but she has a lot to learn about all phases of the game.

"She brings to the team great athleticism and quickness when she comes into the game," Scott said. "We're able to utilize that quickness in terms of rebounding and transition games. When she learns the game better and starts executing our stuff better, she'll be that much more effective."

"We have had freshman who

played in the past," she said. "It is rare in this day and age for a freshman to contribute a lot, just because it takes awhile to make that adjustment from high school."

As a senior at Lincoln, Ransom led her team to a 25-2 record and a second place finish in state. She was named a USA Today honorable mention high school All-American. She also was named All-State, All-Metro and Class AA Player of the Year as a junior.

Ransom chose SIUC after visiting Illinois, Iowa State and South Alabama. She said she chose SIUC because she liked the coaching staff and campus.

Coach to stiffen conditioning for out-of-shape track team

By James T. Rendulich
Sports Writer

After placing third in the Annual Indoor Saluki Invitation during the weekend, it is obvious most of SIUC's women's track team need to get back into shape after the holiday break.

Head coach Don DeNoon said he went into the meet not sure how much work his squad had put in during the five week break, but felt that it probably was in relatively good shape and would fare well.

But after seeing his athletes perform he said his team was far from being in top physical form.

"As a team we are in pretty sad shape right now," DeNoon said. "There were some good personal performances, which showed that some people did put in their work over break. However, overall we need to do a great deal of conditioning and refining before we're a real track team."

Student coach Leonard Vance said it is human nature to relax during break and the team should be back into shape soon.

"When you go on break it is just that, break, and the athletes might train for the first week but after that they just get lazy like everybody else and do less and

City council delays decision to grant new liquor license

By Teri Lynn Carlock
City Writer

The Carbondale City Council delayed a vote Tuesday night to establish a new liquor license category that would prohibit persons under 21 from admission into bars maintaining the new license.

The councilmen said the definitions of "food" and "admission fees" in the proposed ordinance were not clear, and some council men disagreed on whether another liquor license is needed in Carbondale.

Councilman Keith Tuxhorn said the council needs to "tighten up" the ordinance before considering a new liquor license category.

"We are trying to make a distinctive license," he said.

The idea to establish a new liquor license was first noted at a city council meeting Jan. 7 when Peoria resident Dan Schmechel voiced his thoughts of wanting to open a comedy club in Carbondale.

He asked the city council to consider establishing a new liquor license because Class "B2" licenses, which are strictly bar licenses, have been tapped in Carbondale.

The city council requested that City Attorney Mike Wepsiec draft an ordinance to establish the new Class "A3" license.

Bars such as the comedy club Schmechel proposed will not hurt financially because of the over twenty-one limit, Wepsiec said.

"The Class 'A3' license is intended more for a bar that is oriented toward an older crowd," he said.

Wepsiec said the advantage of the new license is the easy process of maintaining the license, such as with the Class "A1" and "A2" licenses.

"A person may maintain his or her license merely by showing that 51 percent of their gross revenue comes from sources other than the sale of liquor," he said. "The only detriment would be that no one under twenty-one (would be allowed on the premises)."

Councilman John Yow said he has mixed feelings about the idea of a new liquor license.

He said if the city council allows Schmechel to open his comedy club under the Class "A3" license, "it will encourage new requests for other types of classifications for licenses, for other businesses." Yow said another liquor

Police searching for male suspect in brutal murder of Marion woman

By Scott Wuerz
Poir Writer

Illinois State police investigators have released a composite drawing Tuesday of a man they believe may have murdered a Marion woman.

A witness described the suspect as a white male, believed to be between 30 and 35 years of age. He is about 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs about 220 pounds.

When last seen, he was wearing blue work pants, a blue work shirt, brown boots, a red plaid vest jacket and a blue skull cap.

Capt. Richard Barrett of the Illinois State Police Division of Criminal Investigation said his organization, Herrin Police and the Williamson County Sheriff's Department have teamed up in the investigation of the murder of Marion native Kathy A. Woodhouse at a Herrin business.

Woodhouse, 40, was discovered

Saturday by Herrin Police at Fox's Laundry and Dry Cleaners, 713 S. Park Ave. in Herrin after police received a 911 report from an unidentified caller, Barrett said.

An autopsy report from Dr. John Heidingsfelder of Evansville indicates Woodhouse died of a compound skull fracture because of blunt force injuries to the head.

Anyone with information about the murder should contact the Herrin Police Department at 942-4132 or the Illinois State Police Division of Criminal Investigation at 997-9431.

Mapping quagmire work of party politics

WHILE EDUCATION AND HEALTH CARE are being sliced to the bone, state politicians are spending millions figuring out how the Illinois redistricting map should look.

After the census every 10 years, the Illinois Constitution requires the state to be redivided into legislative districts so that each district contains an equal number of residents.

The process of redistricting seems simple enough: a little mathematics, a map of Illinois, a marker and the census figures. But as with most political activities, redistricting has become a battle between political parties.

EACH PARTY HAS ITS OWN SECRET ROOM where staff members realign districts to best ensure its candidates re-election. When the obvious disagreement about which map to use occurs, the dispute is sent to a eight-person commission of four Democrats and four Republicans.

"When this process ends in failure, the name of a Republican and a Democrat are placed in a hat or bowl and the secretary of state draws the tie-breaking vote.

The Republicans had the luck of the draw and had their map approved. The Democrats filed suit and appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court. They lost again.

Costing taxpayers upwards of $3 million, the battle rages on. The Democrats have appealed again to the Illinois Supreme Court and are threatening action on the federal level if they continue their losing tradition.

TO THE LAYMAN this process borders on ridiculous. To the politicians it could determine whether they face a stiff campaign battle or float through cushy elections in familiar districts. In the age of incumbents serving until death, redistricting is their ticket to continuing in public office.

Also at stake is political control in the Legislature. If the Republican map stays legitimate, the face of politics in Illinois will change drastically. With both houses of the General Assembly controlled by the Democrats, the Republicans will be trying to take away their majority in an effort to eventually control the Legislature.

The Senate is predicted to fall from Democratic control, and high powered Democrats such as House leader Mike Madigan, D-Chicago, are worried the House won't be far behind.

EACH SIDE ARGUES that it isn't right for the other to have total control over political policy-making. Forgotten are the burdens of a budget drowning in red ink or the tedious task of representing citizens. These people are afraid of losing their jobs.

It would do most of them some good to spend time in the unemployment line with workers displaced because of budget cutbacks. As the state plummets deeper into the red, the politicians should be concerned with more than getting re-elected. The decisions concerning the future of state political control should be conducted in a more professional manner than drawing straws or flipping coins.

IT IS BECOMING OBVIOUS the two parties can agree on very little. Rather than wasting more of the taxpayers' money the redistricting map making needs to be taken out of the politicians hands. Instead of running up the bills with court costs, a constitutional amendment that provides for the hiring of an independent agency to conduct the redistricting process should be considered.

Constitutional amendments aren't easy to obtain, but then again, neither is $3 million.

Champaign-Urbana

Musician Paul Simon learned the hard way how difficult it is to go home—especially when it wasn't yours to begin with.

Last week, Simon was the target of criticism and the potential victim of violence as he embarked on a concert tour in South Africa, which is still torn by apartheid despite reform efforts.

Although the cultural boycott in South Africa was lifted last year, the armed wing of the Black Consciousness Movement of Azania held strong objections to Simon's presence, and violence was threatened as a result.

While the threat still loomed and a promoter's office was bombed, the concert went along as planned, with 30,000 to 40,000 people—mostly white—in attendance.

During the same week, Academy Award-winning actress Whoopi Goldberg was also threatened for her appearance in the South African musical "Sarafina!"

Violence is nothing new in South Africa, and while specific threats against anyone's life are abhorred, Simon and Goldberg's presence should be rightfully challenged by Americans and South Africans.

Because many of Simon's musicians are black South Africans—some of whom were exiled and hadn't been home for more than 25 years, like Miriam Makeba—his performing in South Africa served one purpose.

On the other hand, for Simon to sum up his visit by saying that it was not politically motivated and that "everyone should just put their differences aside and enjoy the music" is incredibly naive and insulting.

It also goes against everything he has previously said in speaking out against the South African government, ever since using black South African musicians on his 1986 "Graceland" album.

The fact that the African National Congress supported Simon is no excuse not to challenge him.

The ANC may well be recipients of a payoff for their financially struggling organization.

While American performers are legally free to perform there, they must keep in mind that they are sending out misleading signals by making people believe that simply putting aside differences will cure South Africa's woes. Simon himself must admit that the problem goes much deeper than that.

American entertainers who perform in South Africa have a responsibility to pressure the government to continue reforms.

Letter to the Editor

U.N. necessary for peace, global cooperation

Now is the time to invest new confidence and hope in the United Nations, through which the nations of the world can seed greater mutual security, cooperation, freedom and welfare.

Ever since President Gorbachev helped end the cold war and China was prepared to cooperate with the West, the U.N. Security Council and the previous U.N. Secretary General, Javier Perez de Cuellar, have been able to work toward peace in many areas, without the threat of a veto: notably in Angola, Namibia, Afghanistan, Nicaragua and most recently in Cambodia, El Salvador and Yugoslavia.

When Iraq, with the world's fourth largest army under the control of Saddam Hussein, moved to take over the oil resources of the Middle East, the Security Council was able to mobilize most of the world against this aggression.

This was possible in part because the United States was willing to accept the leadership in this undertaking. What the U.N. can do depends upon the support of individual nations, and the United States is particularly essential to success as the strongest and freest power. It is vital that Congress follow through quickly in its pledge to pay $500 million in unpaid back dues to the United Nations.

The U.N. has been particularly successful in sending Peacekeeping Forces to police cease-fires; they are currently in the Golan Heights, southern Lebanon, Cyprus, Iraq, Kuwait, and are preparing to move into Yugoslavia. A U.N. mediator, Italian-born Giandomenico Picco, was a key to the recent release of the hostages in Lebanon.

The 15-nation Security Council plans to hold a special meeting on Jan. 30 to consider plans to strengthen peace and security. The new Secretary General, Boutros Ghali of Egypt, will probably be asked to play an active role in "preventive diplomacy"—identifying trouble spots in advance.

A major task of the 166-nation General Assembly is to supervise and strengthen the work of the U.N.'s Specialized Agencies and other groups which promote international cooperation in dealing with global problems—such as the global environment, disarmament, international trade and much more.

A special U.N. Conference on Environment and Development is scheduled for June 1992 in Brazil.

The Southern Illinois Chapter of the United Nations Association is cooperating with the U.N. Association's Iowa Division in sponsoring a special preparatory teleconference in February.

This piece is prompted in part by two letters to the Daily Egyptian last fall: one on Dec. 9 urging the United States to withdraw from the U.N., and one on Oct. 21 warning against the "U.N.'s unwavering purpose... to become an all-powerful world government."

This is not true. The U.N. is only a necessary means for nations to work together for the benefit of all, in this nuclear age of interdependence, closeness, and rising mutual respect and concern.—Frank L. Klingberg, political science emeritus professor.

BUDGET

and department, but Democratic leaders balked at the plan.

One SIUC economist said Edgar's idea for tightening the belt during economically tough times may not be the right tool to bring the state out of a recession.

"We are in this recession because of consumers not spending enough," said associate economics professor Michael Shields. "This is when the government should be spending, not cutting."

The cutbacks are similar to a dog chasing its tail in a downward spiral, he said.

"The government cuts back, people are laid off and go to public aid, which will increase the burden," Shields said. "During the bad times we need the government to spend more to make up for the consumers, this is not the time to tighten the belt."

Edgar's plan to borrow money for the Medicaid payments, however, may be on track.

"It's a step in the right direction," Shields said. "We should be doing more than that. In the bad times you should borrow and in the good times you should run a surplus to pay off those debts. I think he (Edgar) doesn't have the faith in the (state) government's ability to run a surplus, instead of paying they will spend."

"Somebody will die because of this bill," Rep. Paul Williams, D-Chicago, said in an ironic reference to the cuts.

Sen. Howard Brookins, D-Chicago, said "Illinois is not a friendly state. It's going to be mean to those who need it the most."

Edgar commended the general assembly for negotiating and said all parts of state government had to take a hit.

"If you listened to the debates, sometime the coverage sounds like the only things that were cut were welfare and education. In fact, they had less cuts than the other parts of state government," Edgar said.

Most of those voting against the plan were democrats from Chicago, but several downstate democrats voted no also because of the education and other reductions.

Although a regulation can be designed to promote thoughtful behavior, it also can be used to move a state closer to complete prohibition of abortion.

"One problem of the past is that any law that has impact on abortion freedoms was viewed as being hostile, and that's not true," he said.

"A lot of the regulations are pretty heavy-handed, and there are almost always competing values at stake, but there are lots of folks who want a balance," he said. "Not all the way back to prohibition, but rather regulations that may influence people to at least consider options other than abortion, encouraging thoughtfulness."

"Either way, the whole point is to lessen the overall number of abortions," he said.

In the Roe vs. Wade decision, the court ruled that a woman's right to terminate her pregnancy was is, in most cases, a "fundamental" constitutional right, and states have to pass a "strict scrutiny test" to place regulations on that right.

But in the long run, McAfee said any good that may come from more regulations and even the possible reversal of Roe vs. Wade decision in the future would be that the people involved—mothers, parents and spouses—would be forced to come to "meaningful compromises."

"I would like to see us not prohibit, but rather to encourage and develop other options," he said.

In the court's 1989 Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services ruling, anti-abortion forces claimed a victory as the court gave great leeway to states in imposing new restrictions on abortions.

Pro-abortion groups such as the American Civil Liberties Union and Planned Parenthood, in turn, have vowed continuously to pressure not only the court but also President Bush and congressional leaders, many who face re-election this year.

And in the latest struggle to resolve one of the most dividing issues of the time, the court now will have to decide a Pennsylvania abortion case in which a lower court ruled that women no longer have a "fundamental" right to an abortion.

The justices accepted the case on the eve of Roe vs. Wade anniversary.

The court technically can use the Pennsylvania case to over turn Roe vs. Wade, but it can also further define ways in which states can restrict abortion without making it illegal.

Statement from the SIUC Budget Office, the impact of a recession on academic affairs would result in the reduction of 22 positions and budget deductions totaling $840,879.

Summer session funding would be cut by $209,322 as a result of the recession, "thus eliminating required offerings and resulting in students postponing planned summer graduations," according to the statement.

The reduction also may cause some students to fulfill graduation requirements at other institutions, it stated.

Gerald Stone, dean of the College of Communications and Fine Arts, said he is trying to respond to the recession with whatever he can.

CCFA will handle the recession by leaving open positions, by holding non-salary dollars in reserve and by cutting funds from summer school, he said.

"There's not much left to cut but summer school," he said, adding that most of the money probably would come from vacant positions. The summer school budget for fiscal year '92 is only about one-fourth of the entire summer school budget. The rest of the funding comes from fiscal year '93 money. Even if all the fiscal year '92 money were taken from the budget for summer session it would not be enough, Stone said. But it would mean cutting a lot of courses that usually would be offered.

Russell Dutcher, dean of the College of Science, said his department had not yet heard the dollar amount for cuts or where the cuts would be made.

A reduction in equipment purchases for the College of Science and Morris Library would be in the sum of $274,792.

This would have a "direct impact on classroom instruction and library computer access," according to the impact statement.

Another $301,747 would be cut from instructional commodities and contractual services, both of which have been underfunded for the past three years.

Joe Foote, chairman of the radio and television department, said his department is scheduled to lose one faculty position.

Because of this loss, Television Criticism-RT340, which is required for graduation, cannot be offered, he said.

"It has not been taught for two years because we lost that faculty position last year, too," he said.

The department has had to waive the requirement for graduation and also waive the course as a prerequisite to other courses, Foote said.

The radio and television department also is offering six fewer classes this term, Foote said.

Margaret Winters, chairwoman of the foreign language department, said she still is waiting to hear the numbers from John S. Jackson, dean of the College of Liberal Arts.

A meeting is scheduled for Feb. 5 to discuss dollar amounts, but another meeting will probably take place prior to then, she said.

establishment is unnecessary because of the other 49 in Carbondale.

"The last six years this council and previous councils have discussed putting a cap on Carbondale and finally did so not long ago," he said. "If we establish a new license it is going above the cap."

The building at 315 S. Illinois

Ave. that Schmechel wants to purchase for a comedy club has been vacant for eight to ten years, and Yow said he feels some people want to agree to a new license just to sell the building.

Yow said that is not a reason to go above the cap.

"Liquor is liquor—I don't care what classification the license is, it is still alcoholic beverage," he said.

Schmechel said his attention is centered on the comedy, not the liquor.

"Liquor is one of the items we would offer," he said. "But the main purpose of my business is entertainment."

Further discussion of the ordinance will be addressed at the next City Council meeting on Feb. 4th.

Illinois Seniors tell miner stories in history booklet

By Ronn Byrd
Entertainment Writer

Senior Citizens who remember the old days of coal mining have some stories to tell—the SIUC Coal Research Center is helping to share a bit of their history.

The center sponsored an essay contest in 1990 for seniors statewide to tell stories of the early days of coal mining. The culmination of the contest is "Tell Me A Story: Memories of Early Life Around the Coal Fields of Illinois."

The booklet is a collection of essays about life in the coal mines of Illinois from the late 1800s to the 1950s.

John Mead, director of the SIUC Coal Research Center, said the book will give a picture of what life was like for the miners.

"They tell about the mines, about the women's roles, about the mining towns, about the strikes and violence," Mead said.

The contest was during Coal Awareness Week. Of the essays contributed by senior citizen's organizations statewide, 51 were selected.

The publication of the booklet, which will be released by the end of January, was supported by $10,000 in grants from the Illinois Humanities Council, the National Endowment for the Humanities and Illinois legislature.

Foreign exchange program seeks American students, host families

By Jeremy Finley
General Assignment Writer

Coordinators of a worldwide program dedicated to promoting and exchanging cultural ideals is searching for supporters not only to learn about other cultures, but also to give a part of their world to others.

Spanish Heritage, an exchange program that promotes the spread of Hispanic and Spanish cultures in North America, has been in the service of sending and receiving volunteers from different countries since 1971, said Jodi Schmidt, director of SHE.

"The program started in the United States and Spain by Rev. Manuel Rodriguez and now works in Mexico and English Canada, along with the U.S. and Spain," Schmidt said.

SHE searches for volunteers to serve as host families for exchange students and high school students who are willing to travel to other countries.

Foreign students are brought in to live with American families to learn about American culture and to teach their host families about their own country, Schmidt said. American high school students do the same when they travel to the foreign countries.

Students who travel must be 15 to 18 years old, have a B average and a C plus average in summer and must be interested and enthusiastic about the country they are visiting, she said.

Michelle Garcia, co-director of SHE, said program costs cover the whole gain.

The cost is $2,200 for a summer program or six weeks to Spain, and $4,400 for a school year or 10 months.

For the 10-month program, the cost includes round-trip air fare from New York to the country the student is visiting, full health, accident and travel insurance, a 10-day language camp, family recruiting and screening and a supervisor's salary, Garcia said.

"Students can apply for scholarships that pay for the entire program, but those are available to only five students," she said.

The program extends to all parts of the United States, so foreign students have the chance to see different parts of the country.

"I think the program is a good thing," said Carmen Underwood, a Spanish teacher at Carbondale Community High School. "I am a new representative of SHE and we are just starting the program here, but we have had an exchange program at our school that started six years ago.

"The program is a good way for students to learn about other countries instead of just reading about them in books," Underwood said.

Underwood's job as a representative will be to screen the homes of the families who will have the host students, and find students and families that are interested in the program, she said.

About four years ago two students came to CCHS and two CCHS students went to other countries," Underwood said.

No real guidelines are set for the families, but all families are screened by local representatives.

State representative urges U.S. to get tough on trade

By Teri Lynn Carlock
City Writer

Rep. Terry Bruce, D-Olney, is urging the United States to get tough with trade negotiations with Japan.

"It's time for us to take care of our own," he said. "I will introduce to Congress a plan to adopt a tough stance with Japan in the future."

Bruce gave a press conference Tuesday at Williamson County Airport to address his feelings about President Bush's recent trip to Japan.

He blasted Japanese government and business leaders for renegeing on trade agreements reached earlier this month.

The United States has gained successful foreign trade in the past following tough negotiations, Bruce said.

"From 1985 to 1990 we got tougher with Japan—we had a 275 percent increase of our exports to Japan," he said. "This included aluminum, medical equipment and semi-conductors."

Today we face a trade barrier everytime we ship something to Japan and no more will we have a free market for their goods in our country, Bruce said.

Faculty artists display talent in University Museum snow

By Ronn Byrd
Entertainment Writer

22 faculty artists from SIUC's School of Art and Design will display their works from Jan. 21 through Feb. 28 at the University Museum.

The annual show ranges from scenic design, sculpture and costumes to photography, painting, jewelry and printmaking.

Assistant Curator of Art, Benjamin Meeker said the show's estimated value is more than $50,000 and includes various works of all different styles and mediums.

"My job is to try to make some sense of this," Meeker said about the large amount of artwork. "To try to make it all look like some kind of show."

Museum Director John Whitlock said Meeker is doing excellent work.

"We feel good about the display of the faculty talents. It gives the public an opportunity to see the new directions they are addressing."

Some of the pieces in the exhibit include Herb Fink's "The Queen of Sheeba," a brown and white painting of a semi-nude woman seated on a throne and Joel Feldman's woodblock painting, "Yugoslavia 1941."

Feldman, from Murphysboro is an SIUC professor in print-making. His "Yugoslavia" is a black mural in black and white depicting images of war, showing battling puppets controlled by a dominant figure.

A sculpture by glass artist Bill Boyesen called "The Grand Vessel" is made of glass and rusted steel, and is valued at $850.

"David's Dream" by sculptor David Montese is the largest exhibit in the display, weighing 500 pounds. It is a part of a series of pieces he will be showing at Murray State University, and was inspired by three friends Montese grew up with. Each piece represents a friend. His sculpture is a six-foot high black wheel with the words "the man and the man and the man" raised on it's surface.

Other exhibits in the show include Richard Mawley's "Garden Stars" jewelry pin, and M. Joan Lintault's "The Flower Thieves," a fiber structure composed of leaves.

Jan Roddy and Nancy Drew planned to show a piece titled "True Stories From the Heartland," but were unable to complete it for the show. "True Stories" was to be a running slide show depicting various natural disaster areas in Southern Illinois along with other environmental photos. Roddy will show instead a black and white transparency lit from behind.

The artists will be present during a public reception taking place at 5 p.m. Jan. 24 at the museum. Exhibition hours are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays and 1 p.m. Sundays.

applied over a number of years is what is needed to help SIUC's situation," Melone said.

But several University organizations are arguing wha. decision would placate the most people.

"It is a nightmare now," said Jack Sullivan, USG president and a budget advisory committee member. "The University is way behind in civil service and faculty salaries at the same time other funds are needed to protect academic costs and students have problems meeting increased college costs. We have a big problem that needs to be solved fast."

The Illinois Board of Higher Education recommended a 4-percent increase in tuition for all Illinois public universities.

Vice President for Financial Affairs William S. Capie said maintaining the quality of the University is most important and "a double-digit-increase in tuition is needed to make up for the loss of state funding."

Sullivan, too, said the 4-percent increase would be acceptable but unrealistic.

"Four percent (tuition increase) would add only $65 to tuition, but it is really unrealistic in terms of the amount of money the University needs," Sullivan said. "On the other hand, the 20-percent increase the University realistically needs would add $327 to tuition and is too much for many students to afford."

"If SIUC instituted a 10-percent increase, it would be a compromise with which I could live," he said.

But not all University officials agree a hefty tuition increase is the answer to SIUC's financial woes.

"Tuition has gone up 172 percent over the past 10 years at Illinois public universities, yet undergraduate instruction has decreased in constant dollars. Therefore, money has gone from student's pockets to administrator's pockets," Hall said.

Capie said the idea the money has gone to administrators is a gross over-simplification.

"The University has a greater administrative burden than 10 years ago and that burden has been added to by the state budget cuts. When such drastic cuts have been placed on the administration, it is forced to make the University self sufficient by focusing on patching its existing budget rather than planning for the future," Capie said.

Guyon is expected to present his decision to the Board of Trustees at its March meeting.

the state legislature and administered through the Capital Development Board.

Equipment damages sustained in the Communications Building were minimal, but heavy damages have resulted on the building itself, said Walter Jachnig, director of the School of Journalism.

Workers of Vaughn Roofing finished replacement of all but two portions of the roof. The areas over the Daily Egyptian and the far north end of the building still are being repaired.

"Work has been completed on 60 percent of the new roof," Jachnig said.

The new roof in the Communications Building is made of rubber, unlike the previous plastic one. The plastic was originally meant to be used as a shield which covered the roof and was held down by 150,000 to 200,000 pounds of rock.

Local kidney center receives activities grant

By Trumier Camphor
General Assignment Writer

The only kidney dialysis treatment center in Southern Illinois has received a $9,000 grant from the American Kidney fund.

The grant will be used to fund a project titled "Educational and Therapeutic Programs for Kidney Dialysis Patients."

Beverly Danhof, administrator at Bio-Medical Applications, 725 S. Lewis Lane in Carbondale, said getting the grant especially was important to Southern Illinois because of the circumstances surrounding many of the patients from the area.

"Many of the patients are isolated geographically and limited in their capacity to get out of the house and there's not much public transportation available for them," she said.

"One of the exciting things about the project grant is that patients will get to do things that they haven't been able to do in years."

Suzie House, a dialysis patient from Murphysboro, said she likes the prospect of being able to go to the Mississippi River to fish and watch river barges.

Danhof said the agency needs money for people like House-money that will go for more than their treatment.

"The grant money will be used for everything from transportation for the patients to just everyday things that most people do," Danhof said.

"Social activities like going to a movie and then maybe dinner afterwards or even going to St. Louis during the holidays to see the Christmas lights are some of things that we will be able to do for our patients," she added.

The original idea for the program grant came from a survey passed out by BMA to its patients.

The results of the survey indicated the patients wanted more educational and recreational activities.

Plans to implement programming for the grant will begin in April.

Polar Bear Club carries out ritual, dives into freezing Campus Lake

By Casey Hampton
General Assignment Writer

The water temperature in Campus Lake Tuesday afternoon was a chilly 32 degrees—not exactly swimming weather.

But Brad Gantt, a graduate student in aviation administration from East Moline, stripped down to his swimming trunks and jumped into the frigid water anyway.

"It's a crazy, stupid thing to do—it hurts and is very painful," Gantt said. "But it's so much fun."

Gantt, a four-year veteran of the annual dip, was one of seven members of the SIUC Polar Bear Club who found out how thick-skinned they actually were after jumping into the water.

The club had to break a three-inch sheet of ice to get to the chilly waters.

Lee Yarger, a freshman from Belvidere in administration of justice, said the club assumed he would take a jump.

"I was in the Marine Corps, and you're supposed to be nuts when you get out of there," he said.

The Polar Bear Club consists of a group of lifeguards who have made a ritual of taking an unseasonable dip in the Campus Lake at noon on the first day of classes every spring semester.

The chilly swim is the club's lone activity.

Most of the participants are rookies because the only requirement to participate is being a lifeguard.

Drew Gilliland, an equities graduate assistant from Plainville, Ka., said the swim is an attempt to appease the spirits in the lake.

"I don't know if there is an exact purpose except that it will bring us good luck for the rest of the season," he said. "If we don't do this, evil spirits will invade the lake."

The idea for the icy frolic was initiated in 1986 and taken from the annual event of a club by the same name in Chicago, which takes an annual dip in the frigid waters of Lake Michigan.

Bill McMinn, assistant director of Intramural-Recreational Sports, has been with the club since its start.

"I've been doing this since the beginning six years ago," he said. "And still foolish enough to do it again."

McMinn said the swim is very quick because of the sudden impact of the freezing water.

The swim Tuesday lasted 10 to 15 seconds.

Music school recruiting for choral union

By Kristi Rominger
Entertainment Editor

Some students in a course offered by the School of Music will drive 20 to 30 miles next Monday to start off on the right note.

Together the students in the course will make up the SIUC Choral Union.

And John Mochnick, director of choral activities at the School of Music, said the course is "the only one of its kind in the area."

"Some people drive 20 or 30 miles to get here because it is the only chorus in the area which sings with accompaniment by a live orchestra," he said.

The SIUC Choral Union is a "regional" college-community chorus that specializes in the performance of extended masterworks with the accompaniment of an orchestra.

Interested students may earn one credit hour for participation with the union through the SIUC School of Music.

Students must have previous choral experience and a desire to sing with orchestral accompaniment.

Anyone interested should purchase their music at 710 Bookstore, Mochnick said.

A $12 registration fee will be collected at the first rehearsal.

Interested students may contact the School of Music at 536-7505.

State funeral directors turn to cities to compensate cuts

By Todd Welvaer
Politics Writer

Illinois funeral directors have joined the long list of groups upset with Gov. James Edgar's proposed budget.

Funeral directors are concerned with Edgar's public aid cuts, and the amount they receive for burying people on welfare will decrease. The proposed budget also cuts funds for people with no money saved for burial and who are not on state aid.

Funeral directors will have to turn to townships and cities for reimbursement with no guarantees for repayment.

Funeral directors receive $945 from public aid to cover funeral costs, but many funeral directors say it is not enough.

"It costs me around $3,100 for a low-end funeral and that doesn't include my operating costs," said James Walker, owner-operator of the Jackson Funeral Home in Carbondale. "I've got a Sears catalog filled with accounts receivable."

Deadline nears for business scholarships

By Jeremy Finley
General Assignment Writer

The College of Business and Administration is offering business students a deal they can hardly refuse—free money.

But the deadline for scholarships is only three days away.

Deadline for applications is 4 p.m.

Friday at Rehn Hall 121, said Rebecca Fournier, associate dean for COBA.

"There are many scholarships available; students need to realize that they are here for them," Fournier said.

The scholarships are available only to graduate and undergraduate business students.

The requirements for the scholarships vary, as does the money available, Fournier said.

"Since 1987, the number of scholarships available have increased 400 percent," she said.

Many of the scholarships come from SIUC alumni, but many companies just select SIUC and give the money, Fournier said.

$4,000 recovered in Chicago River by city water crew

CHICAGO (UPI) — It's not unusual to find a dollar or two floating in the Chicago River, but a $100 bill — 400 of them?

A metropolitan Water Reclamation District crew was on routine debris patrol along the river's North Branch Tuesday when they found a $100 bill floating near Diversy, about 3 1/2 miles north of the Loop.

"We don't really know where it came from or how far up in the North Branch it was deposited," said Roberta Harper, a spokeswoman for the district. "We've scooped it up and notified police. We'll be turning it over to them."

Harper said about $4,000 was recovered from the water. She said the bills were collected over a six-mile stretch and some of the money still was floating around Chicago's Loop.

"Maybe it's funny and maybe it's real," she said. "There's still some out there."

Theater students to present self-developed plays

By William Ragan
Entertainment Writer

Auditions for "Equus" the story of a disillusioned psychiatrist, and "The Evening of New Plays," new work by SIUC students, will be at 7 tonight and Thursday in McLeod Theater in the Communications Building.

Anyone interested in auditioning should arrive at 6:30 p.m. to fill out audition forms. Those auditioning should prepare one or two monologues totaling no more than two minutes. Modern, contrasting pieces are suggested.

Those auditioning for "Equus" and "Wild Asses of the Devil" should prepare one monologue with a British dialect.

"Equus," the controversial play by Peter Shaffer, is the story of a disillusioned psychiatrist who tries to help a troubled youth whose compulsive fetish for horses drives him to madness and violence. "Equus" will be performed in April.

Original student works comprise "The Evening of New Plays," which includes "Wild Asses of the Devil" by Kevin Mace, "Henry's Manhattan Cloak and Suior" by Jennifer McMaster, "Out On a Ledge" by Mick Sokol and "The Marriage Bed" by Robert Kennitz.

Kennitz is a senior in playwrighting, and the other writers are graduate students.

The plays were selected from a contest within the theater department and are produced entirely by students.

Mike Morris, coordinator of performance, selected the directors from graduate and undergraduate-level directing classes.

"The Evening of New Plays" gives students in the theater department a chance to apply knowledge gained from the classroom, Morris said.

Satan, God and a shape-shifting horse are some of the exotic characters in "Wild Asses of the Devil" by Kevin Mace.

The play, directed by Tim Fink, tells the story of a man who marries a woman who turns out to be a horse in human form and a minion of the devil. She ignores Satan's command to return to hell, preferring the life of a housewife to the fires of purgatory.

By the simple act of exerting her will, she discovers self-sufficiency, illustrating the underlying message of the play—there are worse things than being human.

"She finds that she prefers being human, that she can do and say whatever she wants," Mace said. "It's a plea for humanism."

"Out on a Ledge" is a dialogue between a man and a woman who become stranded in a car in the mountains. Through this potentially life-threatening situation, they finally come to understand each other.

"The guy is a redneck, and the girl is a sick New Yorker," said playwright Mick Sokol. "They're pretty much opposites."

Jason Fabiani will direct the play, and Sokol said he trusts him to make casting decisions.

"I'll let him call the shots himself," Sokol said. "It's his thing now."

Robert Kennitz's "The Marriage Bed," directed by Heather Curry, concerns the sexual relationship of a recently married couple. Kennitz said the play also deals with barriers to communication and inexperience in relationships.

"It's a fast-paced comedy, but at the same time very real," he said.

"Henry's Manhattan Cloak and Suior" by Jennifer McMaster tells the tale of an author who is locked in her hotel room by her publisher and forced to produce a story. The character she creates comes alive and introduces her to five of her former lovers in an effort to entice her to write the story.

McMaster described the play as "a comedy with a bite" and said she and the director, Claire Sachs, will be open-minded in selecting actors for the production.

"I'm looking for people who have a good sense of comic timing and don't have a sick midwestern accent," McMaster said.

"The Evening of New Plays" will be performed in the spring.

Judge allows FBI evidence in Tyson trial

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) - A judge hearing the Mike Tyson rape case Tuesday rejected a defense motion to bar evidence collected by the FBI in its investigation of the former heavyweight champion.

Tyson is scheduled to face trial Monday on charges of raping a beauty pageant contestant last summer when he visited Indianapolis to take part in the Black Expo.

Judge Patricia Gifford rejected a defense motion to bar evidence collected by FBI agents during their investigation of the case. Defense attorneys had claimed the FBI lacked jurisdiction. Most of the motions being considered were filed by attorneys Vincent Fuller of Washington and James Voyles of Indiana.

They said the 13 special FBI agents from 10 field offices who interviewed 22 witnesses in 12 states acted outside their jurisdiction and in violation of FBI policy because no federal crime has been committed.

Another motion asks that the indictment be dismissed because, the defense claims, minorities are not equally represented on Marion County juries. Jurors cross-section of the community, the motion states. Tyson is black.

The defense says Tyson's constitutional rights under the 6th and 14th amendments have been violated and he should not stand trial.

The defense also maintains one potential grand juror, who is black, was improperly excused from duty because he was associated with Indiana Black Expo as a volunteer.

Another defense motion asks that 11 new witnesses, including three experts, be added to the defense witness list.

However, the 32-year-old American tempered public expectations as he shots for his first Grand Slam title since 1984.

"I play a guy who's a young kid and doesn't know the word fear right now, he said of Ferreira.

"In order to really win the event, you probably would have to beat three of the top five guys. I'm still a long shot in the tournament."

Scheduling the match at night, when the heat will have abated, suits McEnroe, who needed a saline intravenous drip to rehydrate after dueling with Sanchez for nearly five hours in heat well over 100 degrees.

Ferreira, 20, exceeded last year's performance in the Australian by ousting 15th-seeded American David Wheaton on Sunday.

"I'll have to return really well against McEnroe," he said. "So far, I've managed to do what I wanted to."

'less," Vance said. "Give us two weeks and we will definitely be ready."

Because of the schedules of the other schools in the Saluki Invite, DeNoon said his team was put at a disadvantage.

"Alabama, who won the invite, started back to school on the Jan. 9 and didn't break until a few days before Christmas," DeNoon said. "Unlike us, they really didn't have enough time to get out of shape."

DeNoon said his team is fortunate because it will have two weeks until it competes again at the Illinois Quadrangular in Champaign on Feb. 1. The five team field consists of Illinois, Michigan State, Iowa, Western Illinois and SIUC.

It will be equally as difficult as the Saluki Invite, DeNoon said.

"All of these Big 10 schools have very strong programs and I'm sure will be in excellent form," he said. "I expect three of the teams will be around the talent level of Georgia Tech."

Georgia Tech competed in the Saluki Invite and finished second behind Alabama.

In addition to getting better conditioned, the team will mature, said senior Jamie Dashner.

"Right now we have quite a few freshman athletes and they need to learn to calm down and they will do better," Dashner said.

Dashner, who has earned All-Gateway track and field honors the last three years in the javelin, is one of only five seniors on the team and is just recovering from a bout with influenza illness she contracted during break. She was unable to compete in the Saluki Invite and is questionable for the Illinois Quadrangular.

Dashner said she agrees that most of the team came back out of condition and feels that is also part of the growing up process the younger athletes will have to go through.

"A lot of our younger runners don't realize the importance of training at this level," Dashner said. "If you look at the top performers at this level they are all people who train hard year round."

OPEN, from Page 20

"I think there is a lot of pressure from everyone—it's becoming more serious now," she said. "I guess it's because I have the chance to become higher than I am. It's still fun, but I really have to concentrate, settle down and think about it."

After Sabatini won the first two games of the match, Capriati swept four in a row. However, Sabatini just as swiftly won the next four games to take the set. Sabatini empathized with her opponent.

"Everyone has to go through those moments," she said. "It was pretty difficult, too, at one time. I had doubts about playing tennis before winning the U.S. Open (in 1990). I kept working hard, was patient and everything started to open."

SWIMMERS, from Page 20

Schmidtkofer placed first in the 50 free.

The Salukis also claimed the first in the 400 medley relay. Freshmen Kelly Krogh and Liz Duncan placed first and second in the 500 free respectively.

Krogh also captured second in the 1,000 freestyle. Freshman Sara Schmidtkofer took first in the 200 backstroke and teammate junior Cheryl Davis took second.

Ingram said the women's meet was exciting because it came down to the last relay between the two teams.

"It was good to know we reacted well under a pressure situation and came out on top," he said. "That was a great accomplishment for us."

The teams will next see action at 7 p.m. Friday at the Recreation Center against Nebraska.

can come and watch me play," she said. "I like the student body at SIUC, and it's easy to meet new people. SIUC's athletic program also helps a lot academically."

Although Ransom has averages 18.4 minutes a game, which is the fifth highest average on the team, Scott said she has no intentions of starting Ransom. She does expect her playing time to increase significantly during the conference season.

"I feel very comfortable bringing her in off the bench because I think she gives the team such an added spark," Scott said. "She has proven to be very valuable to the team and obviously will be a mainstay in the future of our program."

"I think she has the ability to get her rebound average up, and I think she will once she has a better understanding of the game and the execution."

◆ Save when you fly ◆

By using Student Privileges Travel Certificates*, Student Cardmembers can fly roundtrip for less than $100 each way anywhere Continental Airlines flies in the 48 contiguous United States. ◆ Now, save when you call ◆

Once you're a Student Cardmember, we'll give you a new advantage: *up to 30 minutes** of long-distance calling on MCI every month for an entire year—absolutely free.* That could be a savings of over $44 when you use the American Express® Card as your calling card. You don't even have to change your current long-distance carrier. Also, because your calls will be billed to the Card, you can make calls from anywhere and you'll find it easy to keep your calls separate from your roommates'. To enroll, just fill in a four-digit PIN number on the application below.

◆ And save in all kinds of ways ◆

You'll also receive our student magazine, American Express® Card CONNECTIONS, with great articles, plus valuable certificates from some of your favorite retailers and restaurants. Use them and save even more.

What's more, through our special student program, you can apply as long as you're at least 18 years old and a full-time student at a four-year college, or a full-time graduate student, and don't have a negative credit history.

For just $55 a year, the American Express® Card for students is a great value. So why wait? Apply today.

*To be eligible, you must be approved by July 31, 1992. And you must charge your tickets to the Card within 14 days of travel. See important terms and conditions on reverse.
**A credit of up to $3.70 will appear on each billing statement for 12 months after enrollment.
$3.70 is equal to the charges for a domestic 30-minute night/weekend MCI Card Computability call and appropriate surcharges. You must enroll by December 31, 1992.
