Lack Of Quorum Delayed Council Action On Sit-In Resolution

A resolution supporting the recent sit-in demonstration attempts at Cairo had to be tabled because a quorum was not present at the special Student Council meeting Saturday.

The resolution will be discussed at the first meeting fall quarter when all council members are present. Dick Childers, last year's student body president, Carolyn Kruse and Wendell O'Neal proposed a resolution asking the Student Council to support the actions of the Cairo Non-Violent Freedom committee in its fight against discrimination in the Cairo community.

The resolution asked the council to commend those SIU students and other individuals who have given support and guidance to the Cairo action. It also asked the Council to call upon civic, religious and political organizations to affirm and support the principles of racial non-discrimination and to actively assist in the realization to this end.

Linda Brummett and George Graham also signed the resolution while Bob Gray and Gary Howe abstained from signing because of questions they wanted to ask.

A contingency fund of $500 was appropriated to be used at the discretion of Bill Fenwick, student body president; the Spirit Council received a $100 appropriation and any other expenses up to $200 at the three-hour council meeting.

The council also appropriated $100 of the contingency fund for use by the home economics department to conduct a price study of food and clothing in Murphysboro, Hermin, Anna, Marion and Carbondale.

A booth at The Wheels Night program in September was also approved with all costs being paid by the council.

Study Of 'No Shows':

Money, Lack Of Housing Keep Some From SIU

Principal reasons for the "no show" at college - the student who applies but doesn't show up at registration time - are lack of adequate housing facilities, lack of financial resources, and scholarships offered by another institution, according to a study by Will Venerable, acting director of admissions at SIU.

Venerable noted that "college enrollments are increasing at an alarming rate . . . and the fear of not being accepted at a given institution has prompted many students to submit three, four, even more applications for admission to assure being accepted by at least one."

SIU, for example, received 5,761 applications for the fall quarter of 1961, 4,731 were accepted for admission but 1,716 of these failed to register.

Other oft-mentioned factors for not going through with enrollment at SIU, Venerable reported, included securing employment, getting married, or being drafted.

"The number of 'no shows' is causing considerable concern among college admissions officers," Venerable said. On the basis of his study, he recommends high schools and parents of high school students take "a more realistic approach to college admission." This, he said, should involve a thorough investigation of an institution, its possibilities and its requirements before an application is submitted.

He also recommended students be encouraged to make applications at an earlier date.

$785,000 Addition To Power Plant Being Constructed

Construction of a $785,000 addition to the SIU power plant began last week. The project is scheduled for completion in November, 1963.

Installation of two 40-foot high boilers is expected to meet the university's additional heat needs arising from present construction projects.

Plans call for the installation of a third boiler at a later date, according to Willard C. Hart, construction supervisor.

The addition, 26 by 52 feet, will cost $433,000. It is being constructed on the north side of the present power plant south of McAndrew Stadium.

The two vertical boilers cost $352,000, Hart said. They have already been constructed and will be installed in the building.

NSF Gives $13,208 Grant For Research Programs

An institutional grant of $13,208 has been awarded to SIU by the National Science Foundation to defray administrative costs of University-wide research programs.

John Anderson, director of research and projects at SIU, said the grant will be used mainly to help pay costs of supervising research operations, which are financed by more than $2 million yearly in outside grants alone. It marks the second such institutional grant to SIU since the Foundation began the program two years ago.

'The Enchanted' Will Open At Playhouse Tomorrow

A biological study, "The Enchanted," framed in a contemporary setting, is the theme of the third presentation on the Southern Players Summer Playbill 8 p.m. Wednesday in the SIU Playhouse.

The fantasy, written by Jean Giraudoux, was adapted from his "Intermezzo" by Maurice Valency. Giraudoux is perhaps better known to theatre audiences for "The Madwoman of Chailott" which ran on Broadway during the 1950-51 season.

The adaptation is spliced from a brief but crucial moment in a young girl's life. The fable focuses on the point when this girl, Isabel, played by Frances Goodwin, changes from love of mankind to the love of a kind of man.

Under the direction of Sherwin F. Abrams, associate professor in the theatre department, the play will run through Sunday.

Other principal characters include: William McHughes, Soby Kalman, Howard Estes, Dave Davidson, and Virginia Derus.

Completing the SIU student cast will be Mickey Carroll,

David Shafer, J. David Hillton, and James Pettit.

Five elementary school girls from Carbondale will also play an important role in this week's production. The youngsters making their first appearance on the Playhouse stage are: Vicki Volk, Nancy Martin, Becky Etherton, Gretchen Hartzog, and Pattie Hartlage.

Better Swim At Right Time, Place : Dean

Students attending SIU this summer are reminded by Joseph Zaleski, assistant dean of student affairs, not to abuse the privileges that the lake-on-campus offers.

At 3:30 a.m. Sunday, several adult students were found swimming in Thompson Point Lake. Zaleski said the act could result in suspension for the students involved. He continued by saying that students should take notice of the times when the campus beach is open and swim only in the designated area.

Said Zaleski, "The swimming regulations for the campus lake will be strictly adhered to. We have already had one drowning last summer and that is one too many."

Freshmen Say They Like 12-Week Summer School

Spending 12-weeks in summer school doesn't seem to bother a number of the freshmen enrolled in SIU's first full summer quarter.

In fact, freshmen questioned in an informal survey by Egyptian reporters indicated that they rather welcomed the idea -- for a variety of reasons.

Of course, they may change their minds come August 10 when the regular summer term ends and the bulk of the students vacate the campus. Nevertheless, here's what they have to say about it now!

Sharon Foster, 18, a physical education major from Sharon, Mass.: "I think summer school's profitable. I enjoy it here and I don't mind spending the whole summer at school. But if I were not here I'd be home doing something of equal importance."

She added that she likes the 50-minute classes because "you don't get as tired of listening to the professor."

Cindy Quayle, 18, from Olney, Ill., obviously welcomed the opportunity to spend 12 weeks in school this summer.

"I don't mind at all," she said. "It's better than sitting home and doing nothing."

"I feel I am spending my time wisely because I'll graduate sooner," Cindy added. "If I were at home I wouldn't be doing anything at all."

Pricilla Grant, a freshman from Ziegler who wants to be an elementary school teacher, said she likes the idea of a 12-week summer quarter because "it will be to my advantage" to get a degree sooner.

And Linda Pittman, an education major from Casne, Ill., commented: "I like the 12-week quarter because I won't have to cram so much into eight weeks."

Two freshmen interviewed had mixed emotions about the full summer quarter. They like the idea from an educational stand point but it is presenting practical problems for them.

Laura Hertter and Ann Dark, education majors from Mt. Vernon, explained their dilemma this way:

"We love it, but we have a problem, you see, we commute every day from home and we have a ride for eight weeks, but not for the last four weeks."

Rita Davenport, 18, a Home Economics major from Harrisburg, Ill., was the only student questioned who said she would prefer "longer class periods and be finished at the end of eight weeks."

However, she added that "you can take more classes in the 12-week program and the longer period gives you an opportunity to get better acquainted with the school."

The 50-minute classes also appeal to her. And the fact that she will graduate sooner makes the extra four weeks in August really worth while, she commented.

President Of British Editors To Visit SIU

Mrs. Gordon Clemetson To Deliver Annual Sigma Delta Chi Lecture

The first woman president of the Guild of British Newspaper Editors has been picked to deliver the annual Sigma Delta Chi lecture at the International Conference of Weekly Newspaper Editors which begins Sunday.

She is Mrs. Gordon Clemetson, editor-in-chief of the five newspapers in the Kent & Sussex Courier chain.

Mrs. Clemetson will arrive on campus tomorrow and visit here for several days before going to Pere Marquette State Park, scene of this year's conference which will be attended by editors from England, Canada and 12 states.

Headquarters for the conference are at SIU's Department of Journalism. The conference was founded at SIU in 1955.

Mrs. Clemetson got into journalism some 30 years ago almost by accident.

"Having taken a course in shorthand and typing, I answered a box number advertisement for a bookkeeper," she explained. "It turned out to be in a newspaper office -- my present paper -- and I soon got bitten with the idea of working for the editorial instead of the accounts department."

Bookkeeping lost its charm after the editor finally took her up on her repeated offer to "help." He sent her out on a story and she never went back to bookkeeping.

From then on it was weddings, funerals, council meetings, Women's Institute gatherings, harvest festivals and baby shows. In time she began working as a sub editor and shortly after the end of the war she was given her first editorship.

"I took over the Tunbridge Wells Advertiser, one of the papers in the Courier group," Mrs. Clemetson said, "and in 1946 I was asked to edit the parent paper, the Kent & Sussex Courier, and to take charge of the group."

She now is editor-in-chief of five papers, each with its own local editor, with a total circulation of more than 60,000.

Mrs. Clemetson became associated with the Guild of British Newspaper Editors in 1946, the year it was formed by editors of provincial daily, evening and weekly newspaper editors. She has served as its representative on the National Council for the Training of Journalists since its early years and is chairman of its vocational committee.

Last October she became the guild's 15th and first woman president. Following her election to the office, the Manchester Guardian, in a feature article on Mrs. Clemetson, commented that her election "was a well-merited honour."

"In a world which is very much a man's world, Kay Clemetson has climbed the ladder rung by painful rung," the Guardian noted.

The Guardian described Mrs. Clemetson as "an enthusiast: a fighter-for-cause; a taker-up of odd, unorthodox cults and activities. Long before it was fashionable she learned to play the guitar and with a group of musical friends collected folk-ballads. With equal ardour and persistence she pursues such diverse subjects as the truth about flying saucers and free will."

In 1932, while still a reporter, she wrote a parody on a Children's Corner -- called it "The Peanut Club" and herself "Aunt Agatha." It appeared in a newspaper published by the Courier editorial staff to raise money for the Tunbridge Wells hospital building fund. In it she offered a bag of peanuts to anyone bringing along twelve pennies. One small girl took the column seriously and turned up, clutching her pennies, asking to become a Peanut. The Peanut Club became a permanent feature in the Courier.

Today it has a million members in all parts of the world and Mrs. Clemetson laments that "I no longer have the time to organize all the fun-fairs, fetes and village meetings which in those old days, took up so much of my life."

Her husband, Gordon, is a medical photographer in charge of the photographic department at the hospital which was made famous by the great work of the late Sir Archibald McIndoe who burned airmen both during and after World War II.

Mrs. Clemetson and her husband live in what the Guardian described as "the smallest cottage, with the largest garden, on the Kent-Sussex border -- a one-bedroomed lodge, set in 37 acres of informal garden and woodland."

Mrs. Clemetson said that she and her husband are "busy replanting our valley with many kinds of forest trees -- a task which keeps us sane!"

Blose To Lecture To Math Teachers

William Blose of the SIU Computing and Data Processing Center will give the National Science Foundation lecture for mathematics teachers at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in Browne Auditorium.

He will discuss the use of computers in high school mathematics programs.

The lecture is part of a series sponsored this summer by the National Science Foundation for teachers of mathematics.

It is open to the public.

The Department of Music will present Carol Ann Carruthers, organist, in a graduate recital at Shryock Auditorium, Sunday, July 15, at 4 p.m.

The recital, given in partial fulfillment of requirements for the Master of Music degree, include these selections by Bach, Hindemith, and Dupre:

Bach's Toccata and Fugue in D Minor; Chorale Prelude: "Es ist gewisslich an der Zeit," and Toccata in F Major.

The Hindemith section of the recital is Sonata I: "Maszig schnell - Lebhaft," "Phantasie, frie," and "Rubig bewegt." The Dupre selection is Prelude and Fugue in G Minor.

At the University Center Cafe, Friday, July 20, the Department of Music will present a summer band concert, under the baton of Donald Canedy, conductor. The concert will start at 7 p.m.

Dr. Herbert Stack, visiting professor of safety education in SIU's Safety Center, will be a featured speaker during a "Professional Seminar in Safety in Driver Education" at the State University of Iowa in Ames Thursday and Friday Activities at the Student Christian Foundation this week include a picnic and a discussion.

Koinonia group meet tonight at 7 to study the Biblical understanding of the Church. Don Coats is the discussion leader.

Wednesday the Foundation will hold its weekly picnic at Giant City State Park. Cars will leave the group's parking lot at 5 p.m. The picnic is open to all students.

Research Shows Teacher's Emphasis Effects What Art Students Learn

Industrial arts students tend to learn about certain subjects depending on the importance the teacher places on them, according to a doctoral dissertation by Bryce D. March, of Jackson, Mo., who was granted his Ph.D. degree from SIU.

March, who received a B.S. in Education from Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau, Mo., and his M.S. in Education from SIU, researched and assessed "informational achievement in industrial arts."

The July meeting of the Faculty Couple's Bridge Club will be held today at 7 p.m. in the family living laboratory of the Home Economics building.

The meeting, originally set for Tuesday July 3, was changed because of the Independence Day holiday. Mr. and Mrs. James Benziger will host the session tonight.

Some 15 couples are expected to take part in the play. A decision on whether to hold an August meeting of the group will be made at the meeting. The Club meets regularly on the first Tuesday of every month. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Benson are chairmen for the current year.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Wes Gentry of Cartersville have announced the engagement of their daughter, Jennifer, to Herman Waltemate Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Waltemate of Steelville.

Miss Gentry, a 1960 graduate of Cartersville Community High School, is a student at SIU and a member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority.

Waltemate is a 1958 graduate of Steelville Community High School. When he completes military service in December he will resume his studies as a senior at SIU. He is a member of Theta Xi social fraternity.

Wedding plans are indefinite.

The Department of Music will present Bong Hi Cho, pianist, in a graduate recital, Sunday, July 22, at 4 p.m. in Shryock Auditorium.

Diorama Shows Life In Campus Lake

Two technicians on the staff of SIU museum have completed the museum's first large size natural science diorama. It is a view of Lake-on-the-Campus and illustrates plant and animal life found in the lake.

Eight months of research, including several days spent skin diving in the lake, were needed to prepare the display. The fish shown are plaster casts of the bass and bluegill found in the lake and the plants are plastic replica wired for position and painted to give the natural color of the plants.

A special spray has been used on the front glass of the diorama to give an underwater effect. The technicians, Harry Segedy and Myron Vourax, explained the necessity of realism in museum work and the choice of colors used in the display.

Teachers Brush Up Their German At SIU's Summer Language Institute

"Weren't they speaking German?"

Many students have asked this question as they overheard conversations in a language other than English on campus this summer.

The German-speaking people are participating in the National Defense Educational Act Summer Institute in German from June 25 until August 10. Participants are required to speak German from the time they begin their activities in the morning until the end of activities for the day.

The German Institute is provided for under the NDEA to improve the proficiency in German of the participants who are or who will be German teachers in public schools. Dr. Hellmut Hartwig, professor in the foreign language department, is director of the German Institute.

Forty German teachers from 19 states are attending the German Institute.

This evening the participants in the German Institute will attend a lecture by Dr. Douglas Rennie, an assistant professor in the sociology department. Dr. Rennie will speak on the topic, "The Sociological Approach to Language Learning."

Morrises Can Finally Put Suitcases Away

SIU's First Family Returns Ladened With Souvenirs

The world-traveling Morrises finally can hang up their hats for a while.

Soon after they returned from their two and a half-month world tour, they departed to Seattle to see the 1962 World's Fair. The President and his wife, Dorothy, are now finding their Carbondale residence a very relaxing place.

"Think of a mode of transportation and we probably used it," says Mrs. Morris, "all the way from the fastest, most-modern jet liner to the most common method -- feet."

During their stay in the Orient, Mrs. Morris found the rickshaws and the pedi-cabs a real change from the smooth-riding American automobiles.

"We also experienced various kinds of water travel," she adds.

While in Kashmir, they rode in a shikara, a long, narrow canopy-covered boat manned by two men. Homeward bound found the Morrises on the luxury liner the U.S.S. Independence.

While visiting Far Eastern countries, Mrs. Morris did not try the elephant or camel rides.

"One of the points of interest at the Seattle Fair was the ride on the monorail, an elevated-car system that journeys to the activities area in 90 seconds," she adds.

Throughout the entire world tour, Mrs. Morris found the people "very delightful and extremely friendly."

"One of the nicest things is to meet other people and to try to understand their cultures. Their cultures are so different from ours and it is really an experience. We can learn to appreciate a little more our world problems," she says.

The two-week stay in Japan found the Morrises visiting the many temples and gardens in Nara, Kyoto, and Osaka. "In Japan, the women do manual labor--from concrete work to work in the rice and tea fields," says Mrs. Morris, "it is unusual to see the women doing the same jobs as the men."

Other highlights of the tour were the trip to the top of Tiger Hill in Darjeeling to see the sun rise over Mt. Everest; their stay in a houseboat in Kashmir; the visit to the boxing matches in Thailand where the feet and knees are used as much as the hands; the scenic wonders of Egypt; and a view of the palace home of Grace Kelly in Monaco.

No trip would be complete without the many remembrances and souvenirs. From their stay in Saigon, she brought back a marble fish and some decorator pieces done in lacquer.

Mrs. Morris has two native costumes--one from Japan and one from Viet Nam. From Tibet, she brought back a fur-trimmed hat. Many other items of their tour decorate their home.

At the World's Fair the Morrises especially enjoyed the "Needle." This is a restaurant which completely revolves every 90 minutes. "You feel only a very slight vibration and the various sights are beautiful," she says.

MRS. MORRIS SHOWS SOUVENIRS OF HER WORLD TOUR

AAUW To Host Graduate Women

Graduate women students will be entertained at a Coke hour on the lawn of Wheeler Hall from 9:30 to 11 a.m. today by the American Association of University Women.

Graduate women were urged to attend the function between classes or whenever they have time. AAUW spokesmen said the annual event also serves to help the graduate women become acquainted with each other.

Mrs. David Ray is chairman of the annual event which seeks to acquaint the women graduate students with AAUW and provide them with membership information. Membership literature will be available and members of the local chapter will answer questions about the organization.

John O'Neal Elected President Of Student Freedom Committee

John O'Neal has been elected president of the newly organized Student Non-Violent Freedom Committee.

Other officers elected at the group's organizational meeting Sunday include Wendell O'Neal and Jim Adams, vice presidents, and Ethel Fletcher, secretary treasurer.

William Williams, a representative of the Illinois Human Relations Commission, spoke at the group's meeting Sunday in the Student Christian Foundation.

Williams discussed the work of the commission and the efforts it has made to encourage peaceful anti-segregation activity.

He told the group that the chairman of the commission and several others had been in Cairo, scene of recent attempts to integrate restaurants, to talk with interested parties in an attempt to peacefully settle the matter.

According to O'Neal, the committee will coordinate activities against any racial discrimination it might find in Southern Illinois.

About 50 persons attended Sunday's meeting. Many of them had attended a meeting in Cairo earlier in the week to hear leaders of the sit-in demonstration attempts there explain plans for further activity.

Hospital Administrators Study How To Battle Germs

Hospital administrators are meeting in Morris Library Auditorium to learn more about keeping their hospitals germ free.

The two-day Hospital Administrators Workshop began Monday under the direction of Miss Frances Ginsberg, visiting professor in the SIU department of nursing.

Miss Ginsberg holds two degrees from Boston University. She has been an instructor at Yale, Boston University, and Boston College. She has conducted workshops during the summer for many years. The University of Minnesota has called her back to conduct a summer workshop for the past ten years straight.

Author of a column that appears monthly in "Modern Hospital," Miss Ginsberg is also a consultant in aseptic practice for the Bingham Associates Fund in Boston.

100 Nurserymen Meet On Campus

Approximately 100 Illinois Nurserymen are on campus learning the newest methods on production, nutrition, and maintenance of trees and shrubs.

Under the direction of James Moorhead, chairman, the three-day course will have 16 speakers from SIU and surrounding territory. Lloyd Sherwood of plant industries is representing SIU and is one of the speakers slated to speak at Muckelroy auditorium.

Student Council Fails

The Student Council failed to pass a resolution supporting the Cairo Non-Violent Freedom Committee in its campaign against discrimination Saturday in a three-hour meeting. Only Gary Howe's initiative prevented the council from setting a precedent that would have been terribly wrong. Howe called for a quorum when it became obvious that the council was trying to railroad through the resolution. Once it was established that a quorum was not present the meeting dissolved.

Before the meeting even got under way a quorum was not present. However, Steve Karr later was represented by proxy making it possible for the meeting to proceed.

The council failed to appropriate $300 for the Spirit Council because the members didn't want to jump into anything that might later prove harmful. Yet these same members tried to pass a resolution supporting the Cairo demonstrations without the entire council present or without even a quorum. How can the council justify such action?

The council should not jump into the question of discrimination without knowing the entire story of the demonstrations. This is not meant to say the council was wrong in wanting to pass the resolution, but it was wrong when the council tried to transact such important business without adequate representation. Apparently the council forgot they are representing the students and not their own feelings.

Library Will Remain Closed

Until enough students demand that the University library remain open Sundays it will remain closed, according to Ralph E. McCoy, director of the University library. Students have been complaining about the library not open on Sundays.

But these same students are not taking advantage of the library during the regular hours offered, so why should it open on Sundays. McCoy says the library is open on Saturdays and there are more staff members in the building than there are students. How can college students go through an entire quarter without visiting the library to study or find some assigned readings for classes and still make good grades? It has been suggested that instructors should assign more work to keep college students busy. This, it is hoped, is not the answer to the problem of getting students to use the library.

Since so few students take advantage of the library facilities McCoy can not see opening the library on Sundays. He does not object to keeping the library open on Sundays if students will actually take advantage of the facilities. In the past the library remained open and students failed to take advantage of the Sunday opening.

If the library was to open on Sunday's more full-time staff members would have to be added as well as several part-time students. The added expense is not the reason why McCoy hasn't opened the library on Sundays. It is the students lack of use. It seems students should be able to study during the time offered before demanding for another day. The library is open from 7:15 to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Graduate students are the only ones who might have reason enough to want the library open Sundays. The majority of graduate students, according to McCoy, are commuters which takes them away from the University Sunday's.

Student Wage Increase Needed

Editor:

Mr. Donald R. Kenyon's letter to the editor in the June 29th issue of the Egyptian is a gross condemnation of a current issue being campaigned by the Student Council and the student body at SIU. I think that it is a reasonable and very pressing problem which can only be solved by an increase in the student basal wage scale.

Mr. Kenyon is very much like a certain man who stuck his neck out with accusations about the 'corruption' at SIU during his visit to our campus last spring. I think this man was hanged in effigy during the restless after effects of his accusations. He had to back down and apologize for his statements. Mr. Kenyon, a student who is holding down "one of the more responsible jobs on campus" gets out on a limb quite like the man mentioned in this paragraph earlier when he states or tries to state an argument against the proposed increase in pay for SIU student workers.

First, Mr. Kenyon is very grateful to the University for allowing him to hold a job so he can continue his education. I, too, as a student worker, am grateful to the University for providing me with a job so I can get my education but I also have to hold down another job on the weekends to come any where near paying for half my expenses.

Secondly, concerning the University of Illinois' students wage scale, Mr. Kenyon says, "But do they realize how few students Illinois actually employs?" Well, I wish that Mr. Kenyon had included this number in his letter so we could judge for ourselves and not have to take his word for it which is very hazy and unclear from the very start. Also, how can a person base an argument on this problem here by inserting examples like the University of Missouri and Southeast Missouri State Teachers College which are located in removed places from Carbondale. Not with the intent of insulting the state of Missouri, I hope that by his article that he did not mean that Missouri could possibly be on the same level as Illinois is especially comparing their southern parts.

Mr. Kenyon is constantly jumping away from the subject throughout his letter. He says that "increased cost-of-living" does not constitute a wage scale raise, without telling us why he thinks this way. He, then jumps to the off-campus jobsituation, saying that one cannot earn more by working off campus. I have inquired at several places where students are employed and the basal pay has not touched below $1.00 per hour yet. Of course, Mr. Kenyon, again, "shelves" this matter without justification being explained.

Mr. Kenyon says that one civil service worker can "replace more than eight student hours of help." True, but not for $.80 per hour! One civil service worker can probably replace 10 or 12 student hours of help but I would put more faith in the student's work than in the work of the civil service employee after seeing several water sprinklers working during a heavy rain storm last spring. I know personally of a job which was originally held by four students who made a total of $256 per month between them. A civil service worker was hired along with two student helpers to take over these four students' job. The civil service worker makes $475 per month. The two student helpers make a total of $128 per month. Now, it doesn't take a mathematical genius to conclude that the University is losing $347 per month with the hiring of the civil service employee when the four original students were doing the job efficiently as possible in the first place. Senseable?

In conclusion, let me say that I think that Mr. Kenyon has spoken out in his letter without due consideration to the facts, and has, in fact, fallen into his own sweeping pattern of being "meaningless and irritating."

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"ONE THING—PROF SNARE TEACHES YA TO THINK FOR YERSELF—I'VE JUST DECIDED TO DROP THIS COURSE."

Whose Responsibility Is It?

Is it right for Southern Illinois University to take it upon itself to back the Cairo demonstrations? The indication that the Student Council may give student backing to this series of incidents is one which I certainly question. I do not feel that this is a matter which the University, by way of the Student Council, should take upon its shoulders.

Granted that the rights of mankind are at stake, granted that this has taken place in other towns, granted that this may be a worthy cause, will it be in the best interest of the University for the few persons who feel they need to go to another town to stage demonstrations to have the backing of the student body by a Student Council resolution

John O'Neal (from the South?) "Said they then plan to survey other places in the area" to determine what steps should be taken about the elimination of segregation." By what rights? Have the other places asked for this help, or is this group the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, going in unasked to do its bit of rabble-rousing? Again, by what right? And, why should those of us who do not wish to do this thing have our selves associated with the committee because we chose to come to SIU this summer

Jim Adams Day??

Joseph Zaleski, dean of student affairs, has said, "We are concerned with the conduct of students both off and on the campus."

What occasioned his making this statement was the fact that James Adams, an SIU student, was arrested in Cairo, Illinois, for "trespassing" on the parking lot of a Presbyterian church. Adams was so accused by the Presbyterian minister. Later the charge was dropped and the charge of improper license plates was instituted.

I am assuming, of course, that James Adams will be commended for his role in the Cairo sit-in demonstrations. This being the case, I take pride in the fact that an office of the university is recognizing such an overt display of human interest and compassion on the part of ex-GI Adams in his attempt to see that fellow human beings are treated with dignity, respect, and accorded that which is only properly and legally theirs.

I hope Dean Zaleski will not be too censorious of the Presbyterian minister or whose parking lot James Adams "trespassed." Somewhere, some time, I heard or read a phrase that sticks in my mind. It goes something like this: "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us." But I suppose it's unfair of me to expect the minister to have heard of it too. And it is even more unfair of me to think he would be impressed by the thought.

Again, I am delighted and looking forward to the commending of James Adams. I don't suppose we need to go so far as to have his picture in the paper with an interview, plus having the mayor declare a "Jim Adams Day" in Carbondale.

Come to think of it, it would be nice.

Coaching Assignments:

Don Cross Named To Varsity Post

Don Cross has been switched from his post as freshman football coach to offensive line coach for the varsity.

The change in Cross' assignment was announced by Armen Piccone, head football coach.

Piccone also announced their assistant coaching assignments for the fall. Harry Shay will coach the offensive backs; Harold Maxwell will handle the ends; and Bob Franz will be the offensive line coach.

Replacing Cross as freshman coach will be Norman walk, a graduate assistant from Clarion, Pa., Piccone said. Don Shantz of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., will be his assistant.

This will be the first year the Saluki's will be playing as an "independent" team. IU withdrew from the IAC conference at the end of the spring quarter after dominating the conference for a number of years.

The Saluki's open this season September 15 at Texas & I near Corpus Christi and they will play at Drake and Central Michigan on successive weekends before making their first home appearance -- October 12 -- against Hillsdale, Michigan. On the successive weekends, SIU faces Lincoln University and Illinois State at home. The Lincoln game will be sponsored by the Shrine clubs of Southern Illinois.

The football season will go on the road again for a game November 3 against Northern Michigan and on November 10 will be host to a team from Hart Campbell, Ky.

The Saluki's will face Bowling Green University November 17 in its last game away from home for the season. Bowling Green has beaten SIU for three consecutive years.

Final home game will be November 24 in McAndrew Stadium against North Texas State.

Last year SIU finished first in the IAC with a 5-1 record and had a 7-3 overall record for the year. They lost only to Drake, Western Illinois and Bowling Green.

SIU's Adult Education Programs Are Feeling Effects Of Current Enrollment Explosion

Today's enrollment explosion isn't confined to youth attending public schools and colleges; it has reached the adult education programs of SIU, too, according to Harry Bauerfeind, assistant dean of the SIU Division of Technical and Adult Education.

Bauerfeind's records show 8,537 persons were enrolled in noncredit adult short courses offered by SIU division during the year ending July 1. This is a 31 per cent increase over last year's total and a record for programs offered by the Carbondale campus office, he said. His records do not include extensive adult programs in the Alton-East St. Louis area administered by SIU's Edwardsville campus.

Four hundred and fifty short courses were offered by the Carbondale office, ranging from one or two-day on-campus special, to classes meeting one or two evenings each week for 10 to 18 weeks. The year's activity hit a peak in January when 105 new classes were started. Most courses are offered in southern Illinois communities in cooperation with local schools or other community agencies.

Major emphasis is on programs to aid adults in improving occupational skills for job advancement or new positions, Bauerfeind said. However, short courses appealing to almost any cultural or hobby interest of adults also are offered at the request of a responsible group if competent instructors are available.

One of the year's most popular new programs has been a series of review courses in English and mathematics fundamentals, reading comprehension and constitution review to help non-high school graduates planning to take General Education Development tests for high school equivalency certificates. More than 400 persons enrolled in the courses which were offered in cooperation with area schools and county superintendents of schools.

In addition to the ever-popular noncredit night classes in typing, shorthand, bookkeeping or welding, the adult education division has conducted many kinds of specialized short courses during the year, such as waitress training, marine financing management, DC-AC circuitry for employees of the Electric Energy plant at Joppa, industrial quality control, certified professional secretary and life insurance underwriters refresher programs and specialized training for small airport managers, restaurant managers, school lunchroom workers, bankers, cosmetologists, practical nurses, and hospital accountants.

Article By Voges Discusses Need For Reliable Data

Access to reliable information on local needs, problems and issues is vital to progressive community leadership, Henry B. Voges, consultant for SIU's department of community development, points out.

Voges, writing in the current issue of "Community Development Newsletter," said if all groups in a community are to make real contributions toward solving local problems, they must have an opportunity to share their ideas, goals and programs with each other in a collaborative rather than a hostile or competitive situation.

He said often the quality of a decision is determined by the amount of information shared among members of a group.

Koskovich Death Ruled Accidental

The investigation of the death of John Koskovich, Albuquerque, N.M., officially ended Saturday when a coroner's jury ruled it accidental.

Koskovich, a prospective SIU student, drowned June 27 at Crab Orchard Lake after a boat he was riding in capsized.

The operator, Ed Lewis, a student here, was fined $35 by a Marion justice of the peace for operating the boat without the owner's permission.

Lewis told Williamson County Coroner Paul Litton the boat overturned so quickly neither had a chance to grab a life jacket.

Coroner Litton told the jury at the Marion inquest he was unable to get a pathologist to determine whether Koskovich drowned or was fatally injured when the boat overturned.

Watermelon Feast Set At 10 Tomorrow

Students are invited to try their hand at speedily spitting seeds--watermelon seeds that is--at a watermelon feast sponsored by the Activities Development Center at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

The watermelon feast will be held on the lawn in front of the Office of Student Affairs. The feast will last until the watermelon is gone.

American Gymnasts 6th At Prague World Games

Fred Orlofsky and his fellow gymnasts on the American team chalked up enough points to jump from 13th to 16th place in the world gymnastics championship team competition in Prague, Czechoslovakia.

The American team scored 14.05 points in team competition. They were 160.06 points behind Japan's team which took first place and 159.10 points behind the second place Russian team.

Orlofsky earned a berth on the team by finishing in the top seven American qualifiers. Orlofsky won two spots in the second All-American gym team this year. He was picked as the top side-horse man and top all-around gymnast on the second team.

He also placed on the All-American team the year before and was rated sixth in all-around competition at the AAU meet in Los Angeles last April.

Before returning to the U.S., Orlofsky and members of the American team will tour throughout Europe and appear in various other athletic events. Their trip is sponsored by the Amateur Athletic Union.

Teaching Machines Taught As Course

The controversial world of teaching machines is being explored by students in a graduate-level course offered this summer for the first time at SIU.

Grosvenor Rust, instructor, said the 12-week course involves a study of programming material for instruction and the use of teaching machines.

Programmed instruction is the complete arrangement of what has to be learned so that the student can learn from a book or a machine, said Rust. It can be used to teach specific facts, vocabulary, and general knowledge for communication purposes, but it cannot be used to teach such things as specific skills, attitudes, or anything involving opinions.

Although a beginning psychology course could be taught by a teaching machine, a higher level course involving thought and debatable concepts could not be taught by the machine, he said.

Programmed instruction is an information dispenser, but it will not do away with the teacher, Rust said. The idea behind such instruction is to relieve the teacher from acting like a "candy machine" which just gives out standard information. Instead, the teacher's time and knowledge can be concentrated toward helping individual students with specific problems.

Schools throughout the country are experimenting in instructional programming on all grade levels. The instructional materials department at SIU has received three research grants amounting to over $100,000 for study in this area. The first grant was issued in December, 1959 and research began in January, 1960. Rust received a second grant to do research in a specific area in November, 1961. Just last week a third grant was issued to the department from the U.S. Office of Education.

SIU Summer Flight

Departs For Europe

SIU STUDENTS and faculty members are shown boarding a chartered plane at Lambert Field in St. Louis recently for the first leg of their summer flight to Europe. Some 102 persons made the trip. Many of them will just travel and sight see but others are taking courses for credit at various European colleges and universities. The group will depart from Paris enroute home on August 31. Plans are underway for a similar flight next summer.

Tracer Talk Confuses Iranian Official

The Chief of Iran's national police force left Carbondale after a visit to SIU's Center for the Study of Crime and Corrections, a tour of the new federal prison site near Marion, and some involved discussion about tracer bullets.

Maj. Gen. Nematollah Nassiri, touring U.S. prison sites and conferring with penal officials under a project sponsored by the International Cooperation Administration, ran into a language barrier when told by Myrl Alexander, head of the SIU Center, that guards in the new Marion prison towers will use all tracer ammunition. At present, Federal prison guards use one round of tracer for every four rounds of ordinary ammunition.

Capt. Kazen Nassehi, the General's interpreter, said there isn't any Iranian language equivalent of "tracer," and could he please elaborate? Alexander got no further with "phosphorus" tipped and finally said "some people don't like tracer bullets because they burn as well as wound." The message got through.

Nassiri's visit is part of an Iranian movement to improve law enforcement services and get outside advice on building a new security prison. Iran's National prison administration is under the police force headed by Nassiri. The country has 1 prisons, none of them as large as the Marion installation with a scheduled capacity of 720

Nassiri said he was most impressed with the diversity of American penal institutions and the emphasis given to education and industry inside prison walls. He told Alexander he had learned "more about corrections in 48 hours at SIU" than he thought he would on the 10-week U.S. trip. He left for a westward swing that would include a visit to Alcatraz.
