In 'eye of storm,' North takes stand amid speculation

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Lt. Col. Oliver North, a name unsung until last November, breaks his public silence today to describe what he knows about President Reagan's role in the Iran-Contra scandal.

With the eyes of the nation riveted upon him, the Marine at the center of the worst storm of the Reagan presidency faces 216 lawmakers designated to question North in a ritual immunity from prosecution in return for his testimony. His public appearance will last all week.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said, "We have no idea what he is going to say. We assume he'll tell the truth and the truth will be helpful."

"The president is interested in getting the facts out and hearing the other side of the story," Fitzwater said.

On Capitol Hill, Sen. Paul Tribe, D-Va., a Senate panel member, was discussing four lawmakers designated to question him extensively, said he wouldn't question on Oliver North and the American people will know a lot more about the man and what drives him after hearing his testimony.

WSIU to broadcast North's testimony

Lt. Col. Oliver North's long, legal and congressional testimony will be broadcast to the public in four programs.

The station will be broadcasting National Public Radio's gavel-to-gavel coverage of North's testimony from 8 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 4 p.m. today through Friday, said Jak Tichenor, WSIU-FM news and public affairs director.

"North is the person people have been wanting to hear from, especially in light of the alleged shadow government," Tichenor said. The Miami Herald reported Sunday that some of President Reagan's top advisers were operating a secret government.

"We'll stick with them as long as North is testifying, but it's hard to predict how long he'll last," Tichenor said.

"Live coverage of the hearings gives the public a breath and depth of coverage they expect," said Neal Conan, acting director of news and information for NPR.

According to the Herald, North was said to have drafted a secret conspiracy case called a "declaration of martial law, suspension of the Constitution, turning control of the United States over to the Federal Emergency Management Agency, and appointment of military commanders to run state and local governments."

Myriad of campus problems face newly selected Guyon

By Jackie Hampton

It was a hectic day and John C. Guyon was finishing his lunch, an extra-large soft drink, at 2 p.m.

Earlier in the day Guyon, 56, had been appointed president by Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit. Although he won't officially assume office until his selection is ratified by the Board of Trustees Thursday, as acting president Guyon is in the midst of tackling some tough problems. The flurry of activity surrounding Pettit's announcement was added to an already hectic schedule.

For instance, there is the 1987 budget, which is essentially at the 1987 level by the General Assembly. The budget faces further cuts by Gov. James R. Thompson's line-item veto.

University officials spent the weekend working on plans to deal with a variety of cuts without knowing how much the governor plans to reduce the budget, Guyon said.

John C. Guyon's selection as president marks the first time the top administrator was promoted from within the University system.

"North is going to come off fairly well and he will say that he did, at least from former national security adviser John Poindexter's point of view," North has been called a "hero" by Reagan and operatives in the Iran-Contra affair dubbed him "Blood and Guts."

Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit said that it was "about time," a president was picked from within the University system.

Simon celebrates July 4th 'back home' in Steeleville

By Deedra Lawhead
Staff Writer

Presidential hopeful Sen. Paul Simon of Makanda came "back home" to Steeleville to participate in its Independence Day parade. Riding in the parade along with his wife Jeanne, Simon smiled and waved to hundreds of cheering spectators.

"We had invitations from every corner of the country to participate in July Fourth events," Simon said. "But it is a Simon family tradition to be in the Steeleville parade, so we came back home."

One of eight Democrats seeking the party's 1988 nomination, Simon described the campaign trail as hard work. He has traveled to 18 states since mid-April. "But I'm a workaholic," he said. "And the receptions have been great.

Simon, who characterizes himself as a "traditional, old-fashioned and independent Democrat," said his campaign is going well.

"I am in second or third place in all the national polls and moving up faster than any other candidate," he said.

"I'm in second or third place in all the national polls and moving up faster than any other candidate." — Paul Simon

Simon said there was no clear winner of the nationally televised debate with the other Democratic candidates July 1 in Houston.

"We all had pretty soft gloves on," he said. "The real winner was the American public who got a chance to look at all the candidates."

Later in the day Simon traveled to Des Moines, Iowa, where Democratic precinct caucuses kick off the presidential primaries Feb. 6. Simon admitted he was behind in Iowa but moving ahead.

"We have to concentrate our efforts there, but also reach the rest of the country," he said.

Simon has raised a little over $910,000 from May 1 to June 30. Although he does not have as much money in his campaign coffers as other candidates, he said he isn't expecting any fundraising problems.

The main theme of Simon's campaign includes jobs, education, arms control, long-term care for older persons and no deficit spending.

When asked if he had received the endorsement of Sen. Dale Bumpers', D-Ark., Simon said Bumpers was waiting to see if Arkansas Gov. William Clinton was going to run.

"He (Bumpers) has been very generous in his remarks about me," Simon said. "And I am very grateful to him."

U.S. Senator and Democratic presidential candidate Paul Simon and his wife Jeanne were received warmly in Steeleville's Fourth of July parade Saturday.

Group drafting plan to blow out smoking

By Michelle Eskins
Staff Writer

A smoke-free campus is the eventual goal of the Civil Rights Council, Donald Paige, chairman of a clean-air committee said.

The policy being drafted by two committee members would tentatively restrict smoking in hallways, offices and staircases.

The committee, formed to achieve a clean-air environment, is being hampered by the diversity of smoking policies already in effect at the university, Paige said. University smoking policies "an inch thick" have been compiled and each unit has its own policy, he added. For example, the SIU School of Medicine will completely restrict smoking by the middle of next year.

The committee would like to establish a standard smoking policy for the entire campus, Paige said.

"Instead of advocating a no-smoking policy, Paige said he would like to see smoking allowed only in designated areas."

"Right now, people look for no-smoking signs," Paige said. "I would like to see that changed to where people look for smoking signs."

Illinois Clean Air Act of 1986 is passed, the matter might be taken out of the committee's hands.

"As a state agency, we have the right to breathe clean air is greater than the right to pollute it," he said.

C. Everett Koop, Surgeon General, has taken a strong stand against smoking in the past few years. Reports detailing the dangers of second-hand smoke have encouraged non-smokers to speak up about the issue.

Currently, SIU's general smoking policy forbids smoking in classrooms, laboratories, Shryock Auditorium and the Arena.

George Reynolds was leaving a bar in the 200 block of North Washington street and was found in an ambulance by police. A man came from around a corner and stabbed Reynolds in the left shoulder and fled, police said.

Reynolds drove to Carbondale Clinic and was found in his car by a security guard in the clinic's parking lot, police said. The guard called an ambulance to take him to the emergency room at Carbondale Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Police said Reynolds did not know why he was stabbed.

The suspect was described as a black male, 5 feet 9 inches tall, 150 lbs., with long sideburns and a beard.

Increasing tuition would be a mistake

THE ILLINOIS BUDGET process is in turmoil, which means the SIUC budget process is in turmoil. Gov. Thompson is threatening a 3.5 percent cut in the state’s budget, so University administrators are trying frantically to find ways to deal with the inevitable loss of funds in such a scenario.

A tuition increase is the most-talked-about solution, although the administration is saying it hopes to avoid one. We hope so, too. More than that, we hope that some options that have been discussed — like a mid-semester tuition hike — won’t be implemented.

INCREASING TUITION in the middle of a semester, or even a school year, will wreck havoc with financial aid and upset people’s financial planning. Will the government give more money to those who receive financial aid? Or will those people be left out in the cold? The University should think about these things before they raise tuition.

But that isn’t the only place the administration should think before doing. Had they planned for a situation like this one during the budget-making process, the problem could have been averted. The University simply shouldn’t have tried to predict what the Legislature would do.

Now the administration is walking around with its hands in the air saying “oops” and threatening a tuition hike. Students would be asked to make up for the budget shortfall if tuition is raised. Students weren’t the ones too short-sighted in their planning, and they shouldn’t have to pay for the University’s mistake.

Guyon should try to appease faculty

THE HOOPLA IS over and John Guyon has been selected the new president.

The table wants to maintain a quality undergraduate program and increase research funds for the graduate program.

These are important things to do. We hope Guyon will do them. The University needs to maintain the proper climate for getting research funds. The best way to get more funds is to use them wisely and effectively, and the University should try to ensure that happens.

BUT THE MOST important building block for improving the University is improving the relationship between the administration and the faculty.

The faculty needs to feel it can work with the administration, not that it must work against it.

Don’t rap Greeks

In the editorial titled “Thompson Woods in a Sad Situation,” Marc Cohen said, “I feel sad for all the hundreds of trees that were needlessly cut down to make room for picnic tables so that the Greeks can party more easily by the lake.”

I am a Greek and I am getting sick and tired of Greeks getting a bad rap. It’s not like we called up Clarence Dougherty and told him to start chopping so we would have a place to “party.”

What has been done to Thompson Woods has been done and nobody can make the trees reappear. I think it’s about time to forget this incident once and for all. I’m sure there are better things to do this summer than to constantly worry about the trees in Thompson Woods, isn’t there? — Todd Lawley, Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity.

‘Doc’ is not alone

Doc Dougherty deserves praise, not harassment. If the critics would have their way, the campus would be a jungle of poison ivy and mosquitoes.

Apparently the critics are not aware that the Lake-On-The-Campus is an artificial lake as is the sand beach and the path around the lake. When President Morris and John Lomax had difficulty to drain the lake, fix the shoreline and build the beach etc., the critics were everywhere.

Cooer up Doc. You are in good company. — Howard H. Olson, professor, food and nutrition.
Limbs fall, trees uprooted as winds batter Carbondale

By Michele Ekins
Staff Writer

Southwest sections of Carbondale sustained storm damage Sunday, said Jeff Derge, acting director of the Emergency Services and Disaster Agency.

Severe winds tore branches from trees, and in some cases uprooted entire tree trunks. The most extensive damage was from the Freeman Street area and the Hill Street area.

Two houses on Surrey Lane were damaged by trees. One annex of D dormitory received minor damage to the roof and eave area.

No one was injured, Doherty said.

Reports of uprooted trees came from residents at the corner of Freeman and Surrey Lane.

The National Weather Service did not issue a severe wind warning or watch for the Carbondale area, although a watch was in effect for Southeast Missouri. A storm watch was issued after the storms went through Carbondale.

Many branches fell on homes and private property. The city is responsible for damage done only to public property, Doherty said.

The city's main priority is clearing streets which may have been blocked after storms, and locating and reporting downed powerlines, he added.

SIU reported no damage to University grounds or buildings. However, tree limbs were blown down on campus, Jim Moake, grounds foreman said.

Tree branches had to be removed from libraries lawn and Morris Library lawns.

"We're planning how to deal with it if it happens," he said. "I don't know that the governor is going to do, so we don't know exactly what we will have to do."

The president's office also is working on budget matters for the 1989 fiscal year, including the Resource Allocation and Management System. The RAMP guidelines require the administration to consider what changes in the considerable background needs, according to a recent proposal prepared for the Board of Trustees. Consideration of the committee's RAMP guidelines is on the Board's agenda Thursday.

and self confidence of the University."

Petit said he was quite confident that Guyon's appointment would be ratified by the Board of Trustees Thursday. He met with the board Friday in Chicago to work out the terms of Guyon's employment, including salary. He said the salary will be set by the board Thursday.

Of the recent presidents, David R. Derge came from Indiana University and remains on the faculty here.

Construction of new research buildings, one of his priorities at an open meeting during the presidential search, is still in the planning stages and is at least 3 to 4 years away, he said.

One construction project could link a needed improvement to the Physical Plant to a major research project and would be the first step in any of the building projects, he said.

"Increasing our steam plant capacity has to be a major priority," he said. "We can't add another major building until we increase the capacity of our heating and cooling systems."

"The difference is that we've had to deal with an attorney by Seyforth and Shugerman's, he said. "There were 41 hearing days in the SIU hearings. Out of those, most of the administration testified 211 days or 70 percent of the time.

The administration claims, however, that its legal fees were incurred this year because it had to defend itself against unfair labor practice charges filed by the Illinois Higher Education Labor Relations Board.

"Thus far we don't believe any of these charges have foundation," Britton said. They were filed principally after the hearings were over.

The charges claim that the University was "terms of employment" for some employees but does not make the charge that these employees came because of union activities, he said.

Zucker also has repeatedly called Seyforth and Shaw a "union busting" firm, a charge the administration disputes.

"There's a select number of people that know how to fight," Derge said. They've handled our cases, and we're getting a good return on our investment."

Film to look at how war affects those at home

By Mary Candie
Entertainment Editor

The destructive effects of war on the home is the subject of a film soon to be produced in Southern Illinois.

Based on 12 poems by Illinois poet Carl Sandburg, "Honey and Salt" is the literal title of Edgar Barens, a graduate student in cinema and photography at SIUC, and will be produced by Borderline Films, a Carbondale-based independent film production company co-founded by Barens in 1985.

"I would call it a soft protest film," Barens said. "I want to show the destruction of war, the casualties that can go off the battlefield." He added that "Honey and Salt" is unique as a more subtle and poetic treatment of a more traditional documentary or narrative.

PRODUCTION COSTS for the film will be partially funded through a grant from the Illinois Arts Council allocated to Barens before he returned to school this fall after an unexpected two-year leave.

The poetry of Carl Sandburg, a native of Galesburg, was picked as the basis for the new film because Barens had heard that the Illinois Arts Council would be more receptive to grant requests for projects concerning the state. Barens himself knew very little about Sandburg when he started doing research for the project.

UPON IMMERSING himself in his poetry, however, Barens soon found an inspirational voice in Sandburg's pacifist leanings and down-to-earth imagery, and "Honey and Salt" began to take shape. Eventually Barens chose 12 of Sandburg's poems and wove a story around them to become the basis of the film.

The story of a farm couple growing up in rural Illinois, the action follows the two through their youth to their marriage and eventual separation due to the imposition of war, exploring the cycles that must continue after war has taken its toll.

"IT'S A VERY visual film," Barens said, adding that "Honey and Salt" will have no dialogue, instead using images, sound effects, action and occasional verse to define the story.

With filming scheduled to start July 11, the majority of shooting will take place in a farmhouse outside of Chester, renovated by production designer Cheryl Francis into 1940's style with the help of donations from area antique and resale shops. Other filming locations will include Carbondale, Murphysboro and Jacob.

"We're in here I want to explore the area," Barens said. "It really is beautiful.

MOST OF THE cast and crew for "Honey and Salt" are locally based, consisting of alumni, faculty and students of the SIUC Department of Cinema and Photography and area residents. Playing the title female role will be Jeanne Sweeney, a student in design at SIUC, with the male role now in due to an unexpected emergency. "Honey and Salt" will be the fifth film Barens has produced, but the first film in which he has worked with actors.

"EVERYTHING YOU see on the screen is there for a reason, a bar of soap, anything. You have to think about that," Barens said. "But you have the advantage of being able to shoot out of time and space."

After production, Barens hopes to get "at least statewide distribution" on public television stations through the Illinois Arts Council, adding that it could be a useful tool for high school or college instructors by offering a visual interpretation of Sandburg's poetry.

Polka band rolls barrel without beer

By Winnie Stone

The polka has long been associated with mass quantities of beer, tubas, lederhosen and good times.

All those elements, except beer, were at Turley Park Friday night at the second Sunset Concert of the season, where the Waterloo German Band performed to a small crowd.

The concert by the Waterloo, Ill., polka group was the first of three Sunset Concerts scheduled at Turley Park under an alcohol ban.

Approximately 350 persons, both students and community people, attended the concert, a low figure in comparison to other Sunset Concerts, said Jim Dmek, graduate assistant with the Student Programming Council. He attributed the low attendance to the hot heat of July weekend and the alcohol ban handed down by the Carbondale City Council earlier.

No police officers were visible to enforce the ban, and consumption of alcohol wasn't obvious to the casual observer.

Scott Munsen, with the Student Center Media Services, was operating the sound board for the band. He said he thought the alcohol ban was "pretty crazy," considering the ban on polka-based music was mostly about beer.

Polka fans will have their chance to drink beer and dance when the Waterloo German Band brings its unique act back to town at Gatsby's Wednesday night.

Bradley named as postseason host

By Darren Richardson
Staff Writer

Bradley University was awarded the 1988 Missouri Valley Conference postseason PAN's basketball tournament. The tourney will be held March 4-6 in the All-14 next Carver Arena at the Peoria Civic Center.

"We are elated for the city of Peoria and Bradley basketball fans," Ron Ferguson, Bradley athletics director said. "I've always felt we have the most loyal fans around and it is a tribute to them and our community that we were selected to host the tournament."

Presidents of the eight MVC schools voted in favor of Peoria and Bradley basketball fans. "I've always felt we have the most loyal fans around and it is a tribute to them and our community that we were selected to host the tournament."

The presidents' decision returns the conference tournament to a single site, which was the format two years ago when all tournament games were played in Tulsa.

Drug penalties remain stiff, PASO to be 'impecable'

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) - The penalties for using improper drugs at the Pan American Games will be as harsh as in 1983 when 12 athletes were stripped of medals, the president of the Pan American Sports Organization said.

"We will be impecable - it's a hard word but that is what it is - on the use of drugs at the Pan American Games," PASO President Vazquez-Rana said through an interpreter.

"In Caracas, we had the misfortune of taking back medals because of failing drug tests."

Vazquez-Rana said the heavy punishment is aimed at educating athletes about the dangers of some performance-enhancing drugs.

"We are not against athletes, he said. "What we are against are drugs athletes use sometimes without really knowing what the drugs do to them."

More than 4,000 athletes from 32 nations will compete in 30 sports Aug. 9-33. The Pan American Games will involve testing random urine samples from up to 1,200 athletes.

Michael threatens scuffles payback

CHICAGO (UPI) - If the National League doesn't act soon, Chicago Cubs Manager Gene Michael said Monday he would tell his pitchers to purposely walk batters.

Michael, ejected Sunday for throwing a pitch at San Francisco's John Valls for arguing about alleged dodging of balls by Giants pitcher R ichie Zisk, said he was hopeful the league would act to curb scuffing of balls.

"But if they don't, we might as well have our pitchers do it," Michael said. "You've got to be competitive."

"I think it's tremendous disadvantage for the clubs if the [National League] doesn't do anything," he said. "I don't do it. No one has ever complained about a member of the Cubs giving the [National League] a scuffing."
Cardinal fortunes soar; Mets play catch-up

When the World Series ended last year, a lot of New York Mets fans were already blaming about dominance in the National League East for several years to come. Cardinal fans had to endure this groundless bubble all through the off-season, and on opening day, the Mets were 3-5 picks to repeat as National League East champions.

But as the season swings into the all-star break, the dreams of a Mets dynasty have been swallowed in a battle for second place with the Cubs and Expos while the Cardinals return to the form that sent them to the full classic in 1983. What could be better? Fans in thenorthern Illinois! Dwight Gooden's cocaine troubles, Gary Carter's hitting woes and Darryl Strawberry's budding musical career getting in the way of playing time. America is the year before. 1987 is different. The ball is in the air. Jack Clark is healthy. And Andre Dawson plays half his games in Wrigley field while the Mets play at a clip 142 points lower than they finished in 1986. The Cardinal lead has grown since they beat the Phillies 5-3 June 34 on a two-out, eighth-inning home run by Terry Pendleton. They own the best record in baseball at 49-29, 1½ games up on Montreal entering Monday's game. But with John Tudor expected back on the rotation by mid-August, things are looking up.

And if pennant races are won on optimism, the Cards seem to have a pretty certain fix on the NL East. Just Sunday, Cardinal broadcaster and former third baseman Mike Shannon said, "The Cardinals are on the way to another championship," after Todd Worrell picked up his 18th save to complete a sweep of the Atlanta Braves in Fulton County Stadium.

It's not out of the realm of possibility, of course, that Mr. Shannon's judgment was influenced by an ice-cold Budweiser (or several), but the Cardinals continue to do what it takes to win.

Now the Mets have to come to Atlanta and face a team hungry for revenge and good enough to get it. Add in the fact that probable all-star center fielder Dale Murphy went on the DL for 8 in the three games against St. Louis, and the Mets' work seems doubly tough with such a powerful bat waiting to exploited.

Meanwhile, Herzog's troops play the struggling Dodgers with 40,000 fans or more to root them on at each game. A team that can win ten straight games in the NL and has been playing better baseball, and a pairing with Mr. Murphy could have expected coming into the campaign.

So things are relatively bright in Clayton County these days. Even the age-old Cards-Wheaties rivalry seems a little strained since St. Louis handled Chicago never out of 12 times this season, and that Darryl Strawberry sprints into "Mets' Manager Davey Johnson's doghouse. Cardinal fans can't help but Mull over the faint chorus of "We are the Champions" beginning under the Arch.

Simonson, a native of Marion, Ill., graduated from the University of Illinois with a master's degree in sports administration in May of this year. Former SIU-E tennis stars win at Wimbledon

By Darren Richardson

Former SIU-Edwardsville national doubles champions Ken Flach and Robert Seguso captured the men's doubles title at Wimbledon this weekend, spreading the Spanish team of Juan Carlos Ferrero and Emilio Sanchez 3-6, 6-7, 7-6, 6-4.

Seguso, who attended SIU-E 1981-1983, is the only person ever to win both the singles and doubles tournament. Seguso attended SIU-E in 1981-83, and was a Division II finalist in singles competition in 1982. In 1983 he was beaten by Flach for the Division II singles championship in San Marcos, Texas.

Flach and Seguso teamed up for the Division II doubles championship in 1982 and won the national honours. Peter Doohan and Pat Serret of Arkansas were Division I singles champions before dropping the championship match to Alex Miller and Ola Mahon of Georgia. Still going strong
