Leaders of industrialized powers open summit; cooperation discussion begins

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Leaders of the Group of Seven industrialized powers opened their annual summit Monday with their individual economic and political problems looming over: discussions of international cooperation and aid to the former Soviet Union.

The need to jumpstart the G-7 and world economies figured in nearly all the discussions from the moment. German Chancellor Helmut Kohl officially welcomed his counterparts from the United States, Canada, Britain, France, Italy and Japan to the tightly guarded palace known as the Residenz, once used by the dukes of Bavaria.

The leaders met for separate bilateral talks Monday morning and official summit sessions began later in the day.

Mach of the summit interest, and part of the agenda, focused on the planned arrival Tuesday night of a non-member of the G-7 — Russian President Boris Yeltsin.

Yeltsin is coming to Munich, as Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev traveled to the 1991 summit in London, seeking help for an economy crippled by seven decades of communism and struggling with the transition to a market system.

German government spokesman Dieter Vogel said Yeltsin arrived earlier than expected Tuesday evening for dinner then with the G-7 leaders. He had previously been scheduled to meet the leaders only Wednesday afternoon after the official close of the summit.

But Vogel added that as far as Germany was concerned it was "too early" to discuss admitting Russia to the group to form a "G-8," an idea President Bush raised last week.

Yeltsin said before the summit that he would seek more Western support for his economic reforms...

Passing on the word: Churches battle AIDS

By Lynelle Marquardt

The leaders of local churches distribute AIDS information, but lack outreach or prevention programs to help in the fight against AIDS.

The Rev. B. R. Hollins of Rockhill Baptist Church in Carbondale said local churches do not have AIDS programs because sex is an aspect of the AIDS problem.

"One of the major reasons is that many churches find it difficult to deal with human sexuality, period," Hollins said.

Churches do not like to deal with any sexually transmitted diseases, he said.

"We're learning to deal with sexuality from a biblical perspective," Hollins said.

Local church leaders say it is important to give out information, and they are active in this area.

"We use our church bulletin and newspaper to disseminate information," Hollins said.

Because AIDS is a disease of the same proportions as polio and other diseases once were, correct information needs to be provided, he said.

GTE to give county officials new 911 installation charge

By John McCadd

The General Telephone Company North will present Jackson County 911 officials with a lower system installation charge following a billing error with the county 911 board.

GTE spokesman James Manis said the charges will be presented at the next 911 board meeting July 20.

Manis said GTE mistakenly charged the local rates from a tariff proposal not yet approved by the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The actual rate, approved in 1988, was significantly lower, Manis said.

"We really thought the rate was at a certain level," Manis said. "When we found out the rates were too much, we told Jackson County that we would revise them as soon as possible."

The corrected rate is $15,222, down 82 percent from the initial rate of $85,367.20. Jackson County 911 Vice-Chairman William Crawshaw said a similar billing error has somehow occurred in several other counties statewide.

The widely expected decision — the first realignment since 1993 — was announced Monday that four teams will make the National League geographically correct, Commissioner Fay Vincent said Thursday.

The Giants took yet another turn.

The East — Atlanta, Cincinnati, Florida, Montreal, New York, Philadelphia and San Francisco.

The ruling, designed to reduce travel, immediately drew sharp rebuke from the Cubs, who fear a loss of television revenue to their superstition because of more West Coast divisions on their schedule. The Cubs threatened to contest the decision.

In a terse statement attributed only to the team's legal counsel, the Cubs said: "We believe the commissioner's decision is wrong, bad for baseball and especially bad for baseball fans here in the Chicago area. We are presently considering alternatives available to us."

Vincent said in a statement that the commissioner's powers are "broad enough to permit me to act in these areas." However, NL President Bill White took exception, stating the ruling violated his league's constitution and could result in a delay of the 1993 schedule.

"I am very disappointed with the commissioner's extraordinary decision to override the National League constitution," White said.

"By this act, the commissioner has jeopardized a longstanding, working document which has governed the National League for decades. Although we worked to attain realignment, we did so within the guidelines of the constitution."

Cubs General Manager Larry Himes, on field before Monday night's game at Wrigley Field, argued: "We cannot elaborate on what the club meant by pursuing 'alternatives,' although baseball rules prohibit a lawsuit against the commissioner.

Manager Jim Lefebvre, initially ordered not to comment, c.lled the matter a "political issue.""

"If I do know one thing," he said, "wherever we go, there will be Cubs fans, whether it's West Coast, East Coast or the Midwest."

The Cubs players appeared to take the move more calmly than their employers did.

NL receives revamping

Cubs, Cardinals to switch divisions in '93

NEW YORK (UPI) — In an effort to make the National League geographically correct, Commissioner Fay Vincent announced Monday that four teams will switch divisions beginning in 1993.

The Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals will move from the East Division to the West Division, and the Cincinnati Reds and Atlanta Braves will move from the West to the East.

The widely expected decision — the first realignment in the NL since division play began in 1969 — came in response to business news over the winter season — the Florida Marlins and Colorado Rockies.

The two-team divisions will look like this:

East — Atlanta, Cincinnati, Florida, Montreal, New York, Philadelphia and San Francisco.

West — Chicago, Colorado, Houston, Los Angeles, St. Louis, San Diego and San Francisco.

The ruling, designed to reduce travel, immediately drew sharp rebuke from the Cubs, who fear a loss of television revenue to their superstition because of more West Coast divisions on their schedule. The Cubs threatened to contest the decision.

Quakes continue to shake California—Four significant aftershocks from last week's major earthquake raked parts of Southern California over a 24-hour period. Two aftershocks, each measuring 4.2 on the Richter scale, rocked San Bernardino County Monday morning, and two aftershocks measuring 5.5 and 4.5 shook the area Sunday. Scientists said the intense aftershocks to the 7.4 Landers quake, which occurred June 28, were not unusual.

Shuttle Launches New Flight Record —The Columbia astronauts, who set a new record for the longest shuttle flight Monday, tried in vain to hail the Russian Mir space station and raced to complete a battery of experiments in time for landing Wednesday. Columbia's five-man, two-woman crew set a new endurance record at 9:14 a.m. EDT when they surpassed the 10-day, 21-hour mark set by the crew of a 1990 mission. See story page 6.

Largest Asbestos Trials Delayed —Out-of-court settlements continued Monday to shrink the number of defendants in the nation's largest consolidated asbestos trial, leaving just six to defend themselves in court. Closing arguments were delayed Monday as the attorneys representing the 8,555 plaintiffs reopened their case to introduce additional evidence. The defendants are accused of failing to warn pre-1960s shipyard and steel workers about the hazards of asbestos fibers.

C.I.S. Force to Help Restore Order —Leaders of the Commonwealth of Independent States agreed to create a peace-keeping force to help restore order in the bloody regional conflicts en-tangling the former Soviet republics, and to create an economic court to solve trade disputes. The agreements highlighted a one-day C.I.S. summit focusing on many of the same economic and military issues that the republics have struggled with since forming their alliance last December.

U.N. Mission Persists Despite Turmoil —Fighting flared Monday around Sarajevo and other areas of war-torn Bosnia-Herzegovina as U.N. officials announced plans to deploy sophisticated artillery-spotting radar in the capital to protect its humanitarian aid operation based at the airport. The humanitarian relief airlift entered its second week with more than a dozen aircraft from nine countries arriving with desperately needed food and medicines.

Asian 'comfort women' acknowledged —Japan officially acknowledged it organized the recruitment during World War II of Asian girls, women and girls for the comfort of its frontline soldiers but said there was no evidence they had been forced into slavery. Fireworks weekend safe, residents relatively calm

By Jeremy Finley and Ronn Byrd
Special Assignment Writers

Carbondale officials reported a relatively calm and uneventful Fourth of July.

Don Strom, Carbondale Police Chief, said nothing significant happened during the holiday.

“There were no major problems of underage drinking or anything that I am aware of,” Strom said.

“Historically, the Fourth is not a real busy time for us, and this year proved that again,” he said. Strom said members of the club had to call the ambulance and do a resuscitation on a person.

Robert Harris, SIUC security director, said the festivities went especially well.

“There were no problems with underage drinking,” Harris said. Harris said the only problems were with illegal fireworks in the crowds.

“We had to confiscate some fireworks,” he said. “We even had a case of two girls, seven or eight years old, with some firecrackers. That is ridiculous.”

Harris said there was no problem with traffic around campus.

It flowed very well. There was no major problems,” he said.

Carol Hammerman, corporal for the Campus Police, said there were no problems on SIUC’s campus during the fireworks.

There was no report of underage drinking or major problems, Hammerman said.
Poshad should drop support of Hayes bill

U.S. REP. GLENN POSHARD, D-Marion, faces a muddling process for his support of an environmental bill that would alter the protected status of 50 percent of the nation's wetlands.

The bill, sponsored by U.S. Rep. Jimmy Hayes, D-Louisiana, proposes to balance the preservation of wetlands with the rights of property owners. To achieve this balance, the legislation would list wetlands under three categories: high priority wetlands, which would receive additional protection and would receive the same level of protection as provided by the current law; and low priority wetlands, which would be virtually unregulated.

BY ESTABLISHING THESE categories, the legislation tries to narrow the current definition of wetlands, which includes land where water is found 18 inches below the soil for seven consecutive days, and which some legislators consider too broad. But it is erroneous to assume that a regulation like the Hayes bill, which narrows the definition to lands which are flooded for 21 consecutive days during the growing season, will bring long-term solutions to a delicate problem.

THE PROPOSED LEGISLATION permits activities in low priority wetlands to be undertaken without authorization. The problem is that the definition of these wetlands does not only take into consideration the ecological value of the land, but also its economic value. Under this definition about 50 percent of the existing wetlands in the United States would lose existing protection provided under the current law.

The bill would remove the Environmental Protection Agency, which currently reviews the environmental permits awarded for activities regarding wetlands, from the wetlands evaluation and classification process, eliminating the federal government from the supervision of ecological evaluations of the areas.

POSHERD ARGUES THAT BY supporting the bill he is trying to find a middle ground in the debate between ecologists and land developers. But the Hayes bill goes too far in removing the hand of the federal government from protecting valuable lands. The definitions of wetlands proposed in the amendment are based more on short term land use considerations than on the long term protection of an irreplaceable part of the ecosystem.

Besides providing a habitat for wildlife, wetlands replenish ground water reserves, aid in flood control by absorbing rain water from the soil and filter pollutants from the water. Of the original 8.2 million acres of Illinois wetlands only 1.2 million remain. The passage of the Hayes amendment would contribute to the destruction of even larger portions of these valuable environmental assets.

Under current legislation 300,000 acres of wetlands are lost every year, mostly to agricultural activities. If Poshard wants to take a stand on environmental preservation, he should take a cue from the seven members of Congress who already have removed their names from the bill.

It's just the evening news. "I know. And I don't want to hear it no more."

But you've always been inconsiderate. Stats is a good employee, the boss. "No anymore. They're letting too many goons on the news now."

Do you have anything specific in mind? "Yes, yes. Like there was just somebody on who was complaining that not a single black guys are shooting each other."

Then it is a serious social problem. "I know that. Everybody knows that. When people shoot each other, it's always a serious social problem, especially for the guys who get shot."

So you are sitting here angry and I'm about to shoot you. "No, I'm sitting here angry because I see people selling TV and the news is to blame for something like that."

Well, should we? "Who, me? Am I gonna do something, besides duck when the shooting starts?"

I meant society as a whole, More specifically, our representatives in government. "See? You're as big a pain as the guy on TV. Maybe you ain't figured it out, but there ain't a lot that society or the government can do to prevent goofs from shooting each other if goofs decide to shoot each other."

Well, there is the movement for stricter gun laws. Joke. "You know where most of these people get shot?"

In the chest, I believe. "No, I mean in what part of the country, I'll tell you where. In the places where they already got the strictest gun laws. New York, New York. And out where they got the softest gun laws — in those cowboy states like Wyoming, they mostly shoot snakes."

So you don't believe in gun laws? "Sure do. I want to get guns taken away."

Yeah, like one thing they can do is have the big city cops kind of lean on the gangs. When they see them hanging out on the corners or in the streets or around the schoolyards, they should do something."

But something has to be done. "Yeah. Like one thing they can do is have the big city cops kind of lean on the gangs. When they see them hanging out on the corners or in the streets or around the schoolyards, they should do something."

Well, should we? "Yes, I want to do something about that."

GTE to apply for a rate increase

ask the G-7 to defer payments on $74 billion inarc debt, most of it left over from the Soviet era, for at least two years. The proposal brought criticism from the Japanese and added to the list of outstanding issues at the threeday Munich meeting.

On Sunday there was evidence of the lack of agreement between the IMF and Russia on an economic reform program, with the IMF pushing for more drastic reforms and Yeltzin arguing he cannot subject the Russian people to more economic pain. Details of Sunday’s agreement were not released.

Germany is pushing for more multilateral aid to the former Soviet Union, complaining that it is bearing too much of the burden itself, but it is meeting reluctance from other G-7 countries, especially Japan, which wants the Kuri Reikis back from Russia before any large-scale assistance is provided.

Japan also was objecting to a German push for a multilateral program to improve the safety of nuclear power reactors. A Japanese trade official told the Kyodo news agency the issue “is an area of major disagreement.”

But as officials from the German and French delegations made clear, massive amounts of aid to the former Soviet Union depends on world economic growth as well as political decisions.

Manis said all GTE customers will benefit from these proposed reductions.

“Some people will see reductions in their monthly bill, and others will see reduction in long-distance rates,” he said.

Spokesmen for the Pritzker and the Raleigh-Galata areas of Southern Illinois will see a reduction in their monthly bills, Manis said, since those areas are served by Airtel.

“People will see reductions in their monthly bill, and others will see reduction in long-distance rates,” he said.

“Being properly informed about it is the first step,” Holms said. “It can become a very big situation around colleges and in our homes.”

“I think as a nation, we need to direct resources toward educating the public,” he said.

The Rev. Robert Buchanan of Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church in Carbondale said he believes churches have some influence over their congregations.

“We can bring information to them on how dangerous AIDS is,” he said.

Buchanan said good information is coming out of the area schools as well.

Although Buchanan’s church does not have a specific program in place for persons with AIDS, he said his church would help them.

“We would do all we can to help, even to help financially because it is a crisis,” he said.

Buchanan said his congregation tries to do as much as they can locally.

The Rev. Richard Paddon of the First Presbyterian Church-US in Carbondale said he hopes his congregation would accept and help someone with AIDS.

“If we were all willing, quite a number of them might come to our church,” he said.

Crawshaw said a decision by GTE to apply for a rate increase would not change the board’s decision because their surcharge funds have a medical or emotional difficulty,” he said.

The Rev. Norman Greer of New Zion Missionary Baptist Church in Carbondale said his church does not have any programs at this time, but in the future it would be a possibility.

Greer also said he has some AIDS-related training.

Holms said he does not have any training specifically for AIDS and his congregation does not have any AIDS programs, but he hopes that they will be able to expand their efforts in the future.

Crawshaw said churches deal with the moral aspect of human life, and AIDS falls in that category.

Buchanan said his church is reaching out to anyone who needs help, and people will not have to worry about AIDS.

Paddon said the churches’ teaching of moral and ethical issues can be helpful.

“Churches can always do a better job affirming the traditional notion of abstinence before marriage and fidelity during marriage,” he said.

These church leaders all agree that AIDS is a serious problem in the nation as well as locally.

Jackson County has a cumulative total of 1.2 reported AIDS cases as of May 1992.

Illinois has a recorded cumulative total of 504 persons with AIDS.

Gold medalist leads parade, ribbon-cutting for State Fair

Three-time Olympic speed skating gold medalist Bonnie Blair will be the Grand Marshal of the 1992 Illinois State Fair Twilight Parade. Blair, who grew up in Champaign, won her first gold medal in the 500-meter event at the 1988 Calgary Olympics, where he set a world-record time of 39.1 seconds. That record still stands today.

At the Alberville Olympics earlier this year, Blair repeated her gold medal performance in the 500-meter race, beating her nearest competitor by 18-hundredths of a second to become the first women in Olympic history to win consecutive gold medals in the event.

The Illinois State Fair Twilight Parade will begin at 6 p.m. Aug. 12 in downtown Springfield.

Former Exon security officer charged with felony murder

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (UPI) — The former Exon security officer accused of abducting and murdering Sherry Slade was charged Monday with felony murder by allowing Rezo to die alone in a rented storage locker, suffering from a untreated blood clot.

A state judge set $5 million bail on Arthur Scale, already being held on a fugitive arrest warrant for a federal magistrate.

Scale, 45, appeared at a brief hearing wearing a jacket and tie. But he was shackled hand and foot under police guard.

While the cause of Rezo's death has not been determined, he was killed either from the effects of being shot in the arm during the abduction April 29 or from asphyxiation or hypothermia, Morris County Prosecutor Michael Murphy told a news conference after Scale's hearing.

It's with a mix of emotions, ranging from despair to frustration to anger, that I know what I mean, so it's not really that bad.

Junior Richards, 45, and Meade, 41, Columbia are co-pilot Kenneth Seale's former roommates. Baker, 38, Bonnie Danbar, 45, and civilian researchers Lawrence DeLucas and Eugene Trush, both 41.

If all goes well, Richards and Rowse do not have to take the airspace to a landing Wednesday at 6:08 a.m. PDT at Edwards to close out the 13-day mission, one of the most productive and profitable SpaceLab science flights yet.

Since blustern June 25 from the Kennedy Space Center, the astronauts have been working around the clock in two shifts to study the effects of microgravity on materials, people and biological processes.

Rieves, Bowersox and Baker also have been chatting with "hot line" scientists around the world using amateur radio gear.

Monday afternoon, Richards tried to contact two cosmonauts aboard the Mir space station, whose flight path passes about 70 miles from each other over South America. Richards engaged flight controllers: "There's just a lot of traffic over South America on this frequency. If I called, he probably was buried amongst much stronger transmitters."

Arthur A. Logue, former bookstore manager at SIUC, died Wednesday, June 24, in Fair Hope, Alabama.

Logue, a native of Carbondale, came to work at SIUC in 1963 as a book store attendant and became a computer manager of SIUC's University Bookstore.

He transferred to Morris Library as bookstore manager one year later and was also responsible for all student book rental and textbook rental responsibilities.

SIUC discontinued the textbook rental service in 1974, and Logue assumed the duties of building supervisor at the library.

Ralph McCoy, library director, said, "Arthur was very efficient in his job as supervisor because of his prior relations with other offices concerning the care of the library." he said.

Don Wood, Serials Department librarian at SIUC said Logue primarily did work concerning the care of the building.

"Mr. Logue took good care of the building and expedited any requests because he had good cooperation with the Physical Plant," he said.

Logue retired from SIUC in 1985.

He is survived by his wife, Effie Vera Newberry, now residing in Carbondale. His stepchildren include four daughters Susan Logue, Daria Hinson, who currently works at Morris Library as supervisor of the Conservation of Manuscripts and Rare Books, and the care of the Manuscripts and Rare Books Library, and two sons, Jack Logue of Stroud Services during World War II. He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church, both in Carbondale.

There will be no burial service.

U of Chicago administering new research cancer drug

CHICAGO (UPI) — The University of Chicago Hospitals Monday administered a new cancer research drug to a construction project manager suffering from advanced colon cancer in the first human test of the drug derived from bacteria round in Brazilian soil.

The cancer drug, given to Conrad Miller, 57, of DeKalb, whose cancer has spread to his lungs and liver. Miller was diagnosed with colon cancer four years ago and has undergone operations in which parts of his colon and liver were removed.

Doctors said standard treatments have been ineffective against Miller's disease, while another experimental drug, amonafide, succeeded only in slowing the cancer.

"It's been a bit sobering to know you'll be the first person ever to take any drug that's gone through the first to take every drug out there," Miller said before beginning the administration of the drug.

"I'm not exactly gung ho about this, but given the option, I told them, 'Let's go for it.' This may be the one that does the job.

Cancer specialist Dr. Mark Ratain said Miller will receive five doses over five days. The drug is administered intravenously.

Ratain said Miller has been informed about possible side effects, including nausea; vomiting; diarrhea, bone marrow, kidney and liver damage, and even death. If his tumor responds to the treatment, he will receive subsequent doses every 28 days.

Ratain said before the drug is administered a second time, researchers will assess the severity of side effects. Before it is administered a third time, Miller will undergo a CAT scan to determine whether the tumor's size has decreased.

There were no immediate side effects, Ratain said. Re-searchers said fostriecin has been effective in fighting human cancer cells in culture and animal models and has been particularly effective against colon cancer cells, human lung, breast and colon cancers. They said the drug even appeared effective against cancer cells that had been resistant to other treatments. Ratain said it appears to be a very promising new anti-cancer drug," said Ratain, associate professor of medicine and director of the university's cancer drug research program.

The drug is derived from a bacteria called Streptomyces pallidogens, which is found in soil samples from Brazil. The drug inhibits synthesis of new DNA by preventing the rapid cell division common among cancer cells.

"Fostriecin is particularly interesting because tumor cells that are able to resist the effects of several other drugs remain susceptible to this drug," Ratain said.

Ratain said Miller will help determine the drug's side effects and unexpected complications. He called the risks "significant" but said researchers are "searching for ways to manage them and (are) hoping for a good response."

Rambo-like convict eluded police for two months with survival tactics

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (UPI) — An escapee convict who eluded police for nearly two months by using Rambo-like survival tactics pleaded innocent Monday to 12 counts of kidnapping, attempted murder and armed robbery.

Danny Ray Horning, 23, told Superior Court Judge Michael Froumney he would represent himself and said he was "fairly cooperative" in court on Monday compared to his initial court appearance Sunday morning.

"He acted real smart (on Sunday)," Verkamp said. "He told the judge, 'Can you let me out for 24 hours so I can raise the $2 million?'"

Under Arizona law, suspects have a preliminary hearing within 24 hours of their arrest so they can be read their rights. The arraignment is generally held the following day.

"Horning was serving three life terms for child molestation, armed robbery, aggravated assault and kidnapping when he escaped from a maximum-security prison in Florence, Ariz.

Law enforcement officers, including FBI agents, chased him throughout the state and into the Grand Canyon, where last week he allegedly kidnapped at least two tourists and fired several shots at park rangers.

Horning is also suspected of killing a Stockton, Calif., man in 1990.

Before his capture, Horning threatened to kidnap a random collection of tourists. In a taped message, he said he would demand $1 million in ransom and the release of his brother, Jerry Horning, who is serving a 20-year sentence for child molestation.

Authorities to investigate holding of deaf-mute man for two weeks

DALLAS (UPI) — Authorities said Monday they will investigate why a 28-year-old deaf mute was held in the county jail for two weeks while his distraught family searched the city for him.

Jail officials initially said Brice was unable to identify him and had nicknamed him, "Howard the Duck."

Brice's family demands a full investigation.

"I want to know why the system let him down," said Vanessa Brice, his aunt. "We really and truly do not believe that they did anything whatsoever to help get him back to his family."

Dallas County Commissioner John Wiley Price promised that no officials would get to "the bottom of the incident.

We cannot allow one of our citizens to have this kind of misfortune," he said. "We want to get to the bottom of it, whether it's the city or the county, or the sheriff's responsibility."

Price said he had heard similar cases similar to Brice's in the past.

Brice left the family's apartment after midnight June 20 and was arrested in a Lindsay Street area, 2200 block Terminal about 4 a.m. He was charged with public lewdness and failure to identify himself.

Handgun becomes best seller at show after courthouse shooting last week

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — Nine millimeter Glock hand guns, the type police said George Lott used in killing two people in the Tarrant County Courthouse last week, were the best sellers at a weekend gun show.

"There's no doubt the incident at the courthouse got everyone talking about bearing a a bearing on the sales,</g

Agassi's transformation fitting end to Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — The Wimbledon Championships that Andy Agassi so毅然决然 produced a man's championship appealing to approach expectations and a woman's winner returning to her

André Agassi's transformation from she would recommend a player to a man's championship's - three times a loser in Grand Slam finals, he stood tall in the face of the onus. From service in Croatia Goran Ivanisevic in Sunday's U.S. final to win his first major title in five sets. Steffi Graf's return to 2e type of dominance she enjoyed for four years ago was reflected in the ease of her final triumph over Monica Seles, who has replaced Graf as the year's top-ranked woman.

Agassi's crowning moment came long after Jim Courier's chance at a Grand Slam title slipped away in the second round. After Australian and French Open champion lost at Wimbledon in the fourth round.

On the women's side, Seles' march through Grand Slam matches reached its conclusion as she got to Graf, who in 1988 had become the last woman to sweep the four majors. U.S. Open, the final leg of the Slam, will be played Aug. 31-Sept. 10.

At Wimbledon, the sizzling sunshine that blessed the $8.2 million tournament for the first week. Wet weather even dragged the tournament into the second week. John McEnroe turned back the years to win the men's doubles for the fifth time, this time in partnership with German Michael Stich. The unseeded pair beat fourth-seeded Hubbard and Richey Reneberg in five hours, one minute.

The growing depth in the men's game was emphasized as not one of the top four seeds progressed to the semifinals. Former champions. Stefan Edberg, Boris Becker and Stich were all eliminated after Courier, Seles and Graf turned back the world's top Russian qualifier Andrei Oliharovsky in one of the biggest upsets in tennis history.

At the end it came down to Agassi against Ferreira, a tall Croatian who served another 37 aces in the final for a record tournament total of 206. But ironically his serve was also his downfall, as two double faults in the deciding game of the five-set final ailed the tide.

Agassi's triumph provided the tournament with its most memorable moment. He threw the grandson of the first American man's champion at Wimbledon in 1937. McEnroe won his third Grand Slam in 1984.

"A million dollars were running through my mind — Wimbledon champion, a Grand Slam winner, months and years of people doubting me and I thought of those who have believed in me," said Agassi, who turned 26 in his fourth Grand Slam final after two French and one U.S. Open runner-up finishes.

"It's the greatest title in the world and it's the greatest achievement of my career.

Two-time decathlon champ given final shot at Olympics

LONDON (UPI) — Two-time Olympic decathlon champion and world record holder Daley Thompson of Great Britain will get one change to qualify for the trip to the Summer Games.

Thompson, 33, has not competed in the decathlon since finishing fourth at the 1988 Olympics due to string of injuries. Thompson, a member of this year's British Olympic Team last Monday with the lone chance he believes he has to make the Olympic qualifying standard of 7,580 points by July 10.

Thompson attended a meet in Norway last weekend but was ruled out of the meet because he was not to qualify and withdrew after four events.

Thompson will be at a specially arranged event in London on Friday, where a grand prix meet will be held the same day.

The Brit never has competed in a decathlon in his home country.

NY Jets kicker Leary retires after 18 seasons with club

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — New York Jets kicker Carmen Leary, the third-leading scorer in NFL history, announced his retirement at age 40.

Leary, a member of the Jets club because of a chronic sciatic nerve condition, retired. Leary finished his career with 1,470 points — trailing only Hall of Famer Jan Stenerud (1,748 points) and Jan Stenerud (1,699).

Leary was entering the final year of his two-year contract. But General Manager Dick Steinberg said the two parties agreed on a settlement. Leary was granted free agency through the 1974 season when Buffalo Bills' safety Kenelsey and went on to set an NFL record for most consecutive years kicking for one team. Leary is the record player in the NFL last season.

"Numerical statistics may always be misleading, but Leary is someone in the future," Leary said in a statement, "but the statistic of which many fans forget is the fact that I have survived and prospered for 18 seasons in a city that can devour an athlete."

In an injury-shortened 1991 he was sixth in the AFC with 108 points. He connected on all 30 extra points and 26 of 37 field-goal trials. For his career, Leary was 558 for 584 on extra points and 304 for 420 on field goals.

"It's really not a huge change," first baseman Mark Grace said. "It's more of a mental flagpole."

Grace was involved in a variety of activities, particularly one with the New York Mets, another sticking point with Cubs management, but star second baseman Ryne Sandberg was not overly distraught.

"I'm not surprised that we will have to start over and are now again," he said. "As long as we have games to play and we have quality control, we are able to recover."

Added Reds Manager Lou Pinella: "It doesn't matter to me. Ownership is the one that concerns me.

Cardinals spokesman Jeff Wollkind said the baseball was "good" in terms of its impact on the Cardinals, "but the team viewed the move as "illogical" and the "best interest of baseball."

We view ourselves as the Midwest," he said. "We don't think they (the Cubs) have any thought themselves as being in the East or West. It was the Midwest.

"For many years we were the southernmost and westernmost franchise in baseball. One of our concerns has been to be "good" in the Midwest and with the addition of the Cardinals we are closer than before. We were always a good following in California."

This new alignment could face disarray as soon as next year should the Giants move from San Francisco. If they do, Tampa, Fla., is considered the front-runner.
