The Daily Egyptian, July 07, 1999

Daily Egyptian Staff

Follow this and additional works at: https://opensiuc.lib.siu.edu/de_July1999
Volume 84, Issue 162

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Daily Egyptian 1999 at OpenSIUC. It has been accepted for inclusion in July 1999 by an authorized administrator of OpenSIUC. For more information, please contact opensiuc@lib.siu.edu.
ATTENTION

THESE DOCUMENTS ARE FILMED EXACTLY AS THEY WERE RECEIVED. IN SOME CASES, PAGES MAY BE DIFFICULT TO READ. SOME PAGES APPEAR TO HAVE OVERLAPPING DOCUMENTS. BUT THEY WERE PHOTOCOPIED IN THIS MANNER.

SANDRA MASON
DIRECTOR OF RECORDS MANAGEMENT
SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY
MICROGRAPHICS DEPARTMENT
CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS
President's office explains laptops for BOT, Sanders

Molfese: Psychology professors leave SIU after 27 years.

Trustees as well as SIU Board $300,000 spent on computers said.

Gus Bode

Trustees as well as SIU Board

SIU Board of Trustees as well as SIU President Ted Sanders. Jack Dyer, an administrative assistant to Sanders, said it was misleading to characterize the technology outlays as only being for the president and the SIU Board of Trustees.

"There are more than 40 people involved here," Dyer said.

Dyer pointed out the differences in computing expenses for the many may disagree with specific decisions in the president's office as far as technology is concerned." Sanders said, "We have a long way to go in fundamentally providing connectivity to all students."

"When I first came here, we started the process of modernizing the president's office as far as technology is concerned," Sanders said, "We have a long way to go in fundamentally providing connectivity to all housing buildings on campus." Students acknowledged that many may disagree with specific budget adjustments, but said people still have the chance to voice their opinions.

"One can always question where the priorities are in spending the budget," Sanders said. "This is why we have an open budgeting process."

Vice chancellor to be named this month

Killing rampage sparks local fears

FRIGHTENED: Students fear for personal safety after racist attacks.

Justice: Trials of alleged murderers to begin this summer.
Corrections

Readers who spot an error in a news article can call the Daily Egyptian Accuracy Desk at 536-3311 ext. 228 or 229.
Psychology professors step down

KARL LANGLEY
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Reminiscent about the research he and his wife, Victoria, have pursued in the last 27 years at SIUC, Dennis Molfese talks about the experience while standing in front of a slide show bound with acres of photographs showing smiling faces—all past research participants.

"You feel you are having an effect, and I think that is something we all want to feel—that we make a difference," he said.

According to many people acquainted with the Molfeses and their work, their contributions have made a difference, and their presence at the University will be missed when they leave SIUC July 16.

"Their departure is a major loss to the Department of Psychology," Stephen Dollinger, director of clinical training, said. "The research they have done is so beneficial to the field of psychology and future applications for helping young children than much of what is done across the country."

Dollinger said their impact is astoundingly huge with all the graduate and undergraduate students they have taught in various courses on developmental psychology the 27 years they have been at the University.

Dennis Molfese left the University in 1972 to study at the University of Louisville where he will be chairman of the Psychology Department.

Victoria Molfese, who leave the University July 16, will transfer to the University of Louisville, where she will be an endowed chair, an honor position that allows her to have faculty for research.

The Molfeses arrived at the SIU Department of Psychology in 1972 after both received doctorates in psychology at Pennsylvania State University.

"Very soon after they arrived at SIU, they began a program of research that has just continued in strength and importance—they have sustained that funded research program for a quarter century," said Alan Veaux, chairman of the Psychology Department.

The Molfeses said they were very pleased they could remain professors in the same department and noted the reality of this dual arrangement of spouse and career and made it possible at this time.

"We had the luxury of independent and joint research. It also has been helpful to share commons interests," they said. "From the student standpoint, it provided models to show students that you could have a career and a family.

"They worked very hard on their careers and were not mutually exclusive, as they understood from the promising research they have published.

"Their research has dealt with identifying early predictions of child development, particularly predicting language and cognitive development, assessing the neurobiological performance of infants," Veaux said.

Dennis' main research focus has been on human electrophysiology, which is the study of how the brain processes information by studying the brain's electricity.

Victoria's main research has focused on the assessment of cognitive abilities, namely intelligence, language abilities and problem solving.

Both have studied participants from early infancy outward. The Molfeses said they had had about 8,000 participants from the Southern Illinois area during their time at SIU.

Since 1996, the Molfeses have engaged in a joint project studying language and cognitive abilities from a grand on the National Institute of Health.

Morris Library to reopen browsing rooms July 17

DESHAE REETER
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The newly renovated browsing room of Morris Library will be reopened July 17 at a ribbon-cutting ceremony in honor of the late Delcy W. Morris and his widow, Dorothy.

The SIU Alumni Association worked with the Friends of Morris Library to redesign the browsing room, which is on the southwest corner of the library's first floor.

"It's a quite a bit different than it was just a few short weeks ago," said Ed Burger, C, executive director of the Alumni Association.

"Hopefully, it will be something that everyone can appreciate."

Associate Dean for Public and Collection Development Services Jim Fox said the browsing room is now usable to "provide a comfortable place for students and others to read."

Fox said he revamped the browsing area which will look much better.

The flooring, furniture, rugs and "just about everything but some of the windows," has been replaced, according to Fox.

"I think they'll be impressed," he said. "It's a very attractive room to sit in."

Fox said books more likely to appeal to the general interests are chosen for the browsing room and can be checked out for a shorter amount of time so they remain available. He believes the room will also raise awareness about the benefits of having an active alumni association.

"It's something to encourage students to join the alumni association in the future," he said. "They made all of this possible."

Fox said he is looking forward to seeing students use the room.

"It's taken too long, but it's finally done and it's worth it," Fox said.

Area murder trials set to begin this summer

DAVID FERRARA
ACADEMIC AFFAIRS EDITOR

Two area men accused in the separate murders of an SIU student and an SIUC student during the spring semester are scheduled to begin their trials this summer.

A man accused of stabbing and beating SIUC associate professor Louis Yates to death in February is scheduled to appear in Jackson County Court Aug. 6 for a pre-trial and a jury trial has been set for Aug. 10 at 9 a.m.

Sasso, who was a sophomore in administration of justice, died from 19 stab wounds in a room behind the Molfeses' home.

Crutchfield allegedly broke into a home in Herrin and killed Swag, who was an acquaintance of Crutchfield's ex-wife Trenie Crutchfield.

Crutchfield will appear in Williamson County Court Aug. 6 for a pre-trial and a jury trial has been set for Aug. 10 at 9 a.m.

Both men are in state colleges is because of affirmative action."

The Vietnamese Embassy refused to meet the protesters and about 100 riot police blocked them from entering the embassy compound.

There were no reports of violence or arrests.

Rum Borsuth, 23, representative for the protesters, said the students wanted to "meet with Vietnamese Embassy officials to express their demand of respect for Cambodian territory."

The Vietnamese Embassy wanted to "meet with Vietnamese Embassy officials to express their demand of respect for Cambodian territory."

A Thai Foreign Ministry official in Bangkok dismissed Thursday's protest, saying "the Thai government is currently discussing demarcation of an area that is not a border in Bangkok."

Vietnam's Foreign Ministry said "respects Thai territorial integrity," read one banner carried by the students.

A Thai Foreign Ministry official in Bangkok dismissed Thursday's protest, saying "the Thai government is currently discussing demarcation of an area that is not a border in Bangkok."

Vietnam's Foreign Ministry said "respects Thai territorial integrity," read one banner carried by the students.
Fame is not particularly hard to come by.

Look What You Did
Mary McGlasson

Fame is not particularly hard to come by; just ask anyone who works for a tabloid. The problem is Fame is a sneaky fellow who can, and will, slip away at the first opportunity if someone better comes his way.

There are no real criteria Fame uses to choose his companions; anyone can be famous if they will it. In this respect, Fame is like Elton John, who is attracted to both men and women. Fame does not discriminate by race, creed, religion or gender. Perhaps it seems that most of Fame’s non-criminal clients are endowed in some ways — such as beauty, intelligence, or wealth — but as they say, anyone can make it. The only question pertains to how long Fame stays with them.

The most common customer of Fame is the person who only keeps his company a short time. What these people do not understand is that if you wish to become truly famous, you must entice Fame to stay by your side longer than 15 minutes. In this respect Fame is much like a cat: if you wish it to stay with you, you must feed it well and expect nothing in return.

Fame’s attention span is also roughly comparable to that of a cat, so you must keep him occupied, lest he leave you for someone who has better toys and who cleans the litter box more than once a month. Many people speak of the road to Fame as if it were a place. In a way, that is true. Many people must find Fame, while he is drawn like a magnet to some, those who are said to be destined for Fame.

For those who must seek Fame, there are two ways to find him. The first, and by far the most appealing to most, is the highway. Robert Frost would most definitely not have taken this way, the road Constantly Travelled. Traffic there is in an eternal state of gridlock (much like Carbondale while the trains come through, but still there is a steady stream of people, jostling each other as they inch along. There are several exits on the Highway, as there must be on all highways, and Fame calls each home in some way.

There is “15-Minutes,” the kind of short fame; “Notoriety,” mostly inhabited by criminals, general weirdos, and Kate Hartin; “Hollywood,” the generic land of media fame; and Death, which is usually a surefire roseo, especially if time has been spent in Hollywood first.

Getting off the Highway is easy — the only need is a desire to find Fame. Intelligence is not a requirement, although it may come in handy when the seeker is inevitably dumped by Fame for someone else.

The second road to Fame is the Backroad, rocky and full of mud and potholes. This is quite the frustrating road to travel because it meanders back and forth and has an alarming tendency to ruin the journey with every pitfall imaginable. Unlike the Backroad, the prerequisites include intelligence, but not common sense, for anyone with common sense would not subject themselves to such trials when the Highway is just a few minutes away.

People who take the Backroad often suffer from what is commonly known as Integrity, which is a horrible ailment to befall any Fame-seeker. When Integrity is present, Insanity can not be far behind, it is said.

So go, children. Find Fame. Bend him to your will gently while his back is turned. In this respect, Fame is like a typical human being. If you work your wiles on Fame covertly and speak the right words at the right time, you can get him to do anything you wish him to do. When the ego is being worked on, the brain generally shuts down.

Thought for the Day, as seen yesterday on a bumper sticker: “Open Your Mind, Not Your Bible.”

Reader Comments

EGYPTIAN editorial stance

Dear Editor,
The discussion across campus on Jo Ann Argengaler’s dismissal has been one of high emotion and strong debate. I simply want to commend the editorial staff of the DAILY EGYPTIAN on its editorial position. In the midst of such a strong topic, they cut to the heart of the matter and focus on the real issues.

Great job and continue the good work.
Jim Morris
Director of Development, College of Education and Liberal Arts

Business behind closed doors not tolerable

Dear Editor,
The discussion across campus on Jo Ann Argengaler’s dismissal has been one of high emotion and strong debate. I simply want to commend the editorial staff of the DAILY EGYPTIAN on its editorial position. In the midst of such a strong topic, they cut to the heart of the matter and focus on the real issues.

Great job and continue the good work.
Jim Morris
Director of Development, College of Education and Liberal Arts

Mailbox

Get your clicks...

www.dailyegyptian.com

Egyptian live camera... sober journalists in action.
Curriculum provides stepping stone for degree completion

OUTREACH: Program aides military, corporate students in degree achievement.

Anna Beth Traynor Daily Egyptian Reporter

Hundreds of students from various military bases and corporations who attend and graduate from SIU never set foot on campus.

The SIU Outreach Program is designed to help them in the workforce earn a degree that will help them with their responsibilities. It started in 1975 at Travis Air Force Base in California.

James Orr, director of the College of Engineering's Outreach Program, has been involved with the program since 1979.

Through the SIU Outreach Program, the Air Force pays for 75 percent and the student pays 25 percent of the costs involved with attending SIU.

Participants mostly are involved with the program work to earn a bachelor of science in manufacturing, a degree that will immediately help those in the workforce earn a degree that will help them with their responsibilities.

"One of the primary benefits of the program is that participants have opportunities to receive promotions faster, Orr said.

SIU students can be found on several bases, including those in Maryland, California, Arkansas and Illinois. Civilians from local base communities can also attend.

One of the primary benefits of the program is that participants have opportunities to receive promotions faster, Orr said.

"One of the primary benefits of the program is that participants have opportunities to receive promotions faster," Orr said.

SIU students can be found on several bases, including those in Maryland, California, Arkansas and Illinois. Civilians from local base communities can also attend.

"One of the primary benefits of the program is that participants have opportunities to receive promotions faster, Orr said.

SIU students can be found on several bases, including those in Maryland, California, Arkansas and Illinois. Civilians from local base communities can also attend.

"One of the primary benefits of the program is that participants have opportunities to receive promotions faster, Orr said.

SIU students can be found on several bases, including those in Maryland, California, Arkansas and Illinois. Civilians from local base communities can also attend.

"One of the primary benefits of the program is that participants have opportunities to receive promotions faster, Orr said.

SIU students can be found on several bases, including those in Maryland, California, Arkansas and Illinois. Civilians from local base communities can also attend.
Ruby Jung, owner of Hillside Nursery, 1900 W. Sycamore St., looks at her vines of passion flowers Tuesday afternoon. The Hillside Nursery features many species of exotic plants, including several varieties that are on both the state and national endangered species lists. Ruby and her husband Jim have been at their location behind Denny's four years now.

FEAR continued from page 1

"Student Affairs said because of cultural differences international students are not accustomed to, it is understandable students might be fearful of the free speech made by hate groups," Wells said.

"We have a lot of students that come from different environments, and their reactions to things will be pre-determin- ed based on their cultural experiences, not necessarily ours," Wells said.

"Yet they are living predominantly in our culture, where the Matt Hale of the world can say these sorts of things," Hong said.

"I have sense in my heart because of this," he said. "I hope people really start thinking about what happened."

"It is a possibility that it could happen in Carbondale," he said. "We need some kind of action to protect innocent persons."

"There are a lot of reactions that come from different environments, and their reactions will be pre-determined based on their cultural experiences, not necessarily ours," Wells said.

"We have a lot of students that come from different environments, and their reactions to things will be pre-determined based on their cultural experiences, not necessarily ours," Wells said.

"Yet they are living predominantly in our culture, where the Matt Hale of the world can say these sorts of things," Hong said.

"I have sense in my heart because of this," he said. "I hope people really start thinking about what happened."

"It is a possibility that it could happen in Carbondale," he said. "We need some kind of action to protect innocent persons."

"There are a lot of reactions that come from different environments, and their reactions will be pre-determined based on their cultural experiences, not necessarily ours," Wells said.

"We have a lot of students that come from different environments, and their reactions to things will be pre-determined based on their cultural experiences, not necessarily ours," Wells said.

"Yet they are living predominantly in our culture, where the Matt Hale of the world can say these sorts of things," Hong said.

"I have sense in my heart because of this," he said. "I hope people really start thinking about what happened."

"It is a possibility that it could happen in Carbondale," he said. "We need some kind of action to protect innocent persons."

"There are a lot of reactions that come from different environments, and their reactions will be pre-determined based on their cultural experiences, not necessarily ours," Wells said.

"We have a lot of students that come from different environments, and their reactions to things will be pre-determined based on their cultural experiences, not necessarily ours," Wells said.

"Yet they are living predominantly in our culture, where the Matt Hale of the world can say these sorts of things," Hong said.

"I have sense in my heart because of this," he said. "I hope people really start thinking about what happened."

"It is a possibility that it could happen in Carbondale," he said. "We need some kind of action to protect innocent persons."

"There are a lot of reactions that come from different environments, and their reactions will be pre-determined based on their cultural experiences, not necessarily ours," Wells said.

"We have a lot of students that come from different environments, and their reactions to things will be pre-determined based on their cultural experiences, not necessarily ours," Wells said.

"Yet they are living predominantly in our culture, where the Matt Hale of the world can say these sorts of things," Hong said.

"I have sense in my heart because of this," he said. "I hope people really start thinking about what happened."

"It is a possibility that it could happen in Carbondale," he said. "We need some kind of action to protect innocent persons."

"There are a lot of reactions that come from different environments, and their reactions will be pre-determined based on their cultural experiences, not necessarily ours," Wells said.

"We have a lot of students that come from different environments, and their reactions to things will be pre-determined based on their cultural experiences, not necessarily ours," Wells said.

"Yet they are living predominantly in our culture, where the Matt Hale of the world can say these sorts of things," Hong said.

"I have sense in my heart because of this," he said. "I hope people really start thinking about what happened."

"It is a possibility that it could happen in Carbondale," he said. "We need some kind of action to protect innocent persons."

"There are a lot of reactions that come from different environments, and their reactions will be pre-determined based on their cultural experiences, not necessarily ours," Wells said.

"We have a lot of students that come from different environments, and their reactions to things will be pre-determined based on their cultural experiences, not necessarily ours," Wells said.

"Yet they are living predominantly in our culture, where the Matt Hale of the world can say these sorts of things," Hong said.

"I have sense in my heart because of this," he said. "I hope people really start thinking about what happened."

"It is a possibility that it could happen in Carbondale," he said. "We need some kind of action to protect innocent persons."

"There are a lot of reactions that come from different environments, and their reactions will be pre-determined based on their cultural experiences, not necessarily ours," Wells said.

"We have a lot of students that come from different environments, and their reactions to things will be pre-determined based on their cultural experiences, not necessarily ours," Wells said.

"Yet they are living predominantly in our culture, where the Matt Hale of the world can say these sorts of things," Hong said.

"I have sense in my heart because of this," he said. "I hope people really start thinking about what happened."

"It is a possibility that it could happen in Carbondale," he said. "We need some kind of action to protect innocent persons."

"There are a lot of reactions that come from different environments, and their reactions will be pre-determined based on their cultural experiences, not necessarily ours," Wells said.
Technology makes fake IDs look more real

LEIF B. STRICKLAND
KNOWLEDGE NEWSSTATION

DALLAS — Joseph smiled at the bartender, asked for a beer and, when he heard the familiar request for an ID, pulled his Connecticut driver’s license from his wallet. The 20-year-old had breezed through the drill dozens of times, but on this Friday night, it seemed to be taking too long. Then the bartender pulled a book from behind the counter and flipped to a picture of a Connecticut ID.

"But freaked me out," said Joseph, who attends a university in the Northeast and is working in Fort Worth, Texas, this summer. "I thought he was going to realize it was a fake and would throw me out."

But a few minutes later, Joseph, who spoke on condition that his last name be not used, was sipping a beer. His nearly flawless ID, which he had designed on a computer and passed together in about 30 minutes, had yet again passed the test. Young people have used forged licenses as long as laws have prevented them from drinking. But what separates students such as Joseph from the generations of counterfeiters before them is the deftness of their fraudulent work.

Using computer technology widely available at universities, they are able to make fake IDs so advanced that even veteran officers are duped.

"I don’t know where they’re getting them, but the quality is just amazing," said Maj. Dexter Simpson of the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission. "The only way we can catch them is to use digital scanners."

"If we, as law enforcement officials, cannot tell by sight alone, how can we expect bar owners to?"

On college campuses, students say, getting an ID can be as easy as walking down the hall to visit the resident computer nerd. Police officials at several local universities say they believe some print shops also sell the illegal cards.

Another source is the Internet, where dozens of Web sites offer a wide selection of state IDs, sometimes sold as "novelty cards." Most of the pages instruct people to send a money order or cash — from $20 to more than $100 — to a post office box. When the money arrives, the sites’ operators claim, they’ll drop the card in the mail.

---

KVM COMPUTERS, INC.

Repairs • Upgrades • Sales

20% Student Discount On Labor

Now offering instruction classes for the Internet/e-mail, Adobe Photoshop, Windows 95/98, Excel, and Microsoft Word

Phone: (618)549-8430
Fax: (618)549-4026

624-B Eastgate Mall Carbondale, IL

Email: murraydavid@usa.net

---

STUDENT TRAVEL

London........$676
Paris...........$763
Amsterdam....$769
Rio de Janeiro...$868
Sydney........$1132

On any trip, students, faculty and guests receive a student discount. Car rental is also included. Call for a free brochure.

(800) 777-0112
STA TRAVEL
WE’VE BEEN THERE.
WWW.STATRAVEL.COM

---

STA TRAVEL

WE’VE BEEN THERE.
Shooting suspect known in school and community for racist leaflets

EVEN CORDO & DIAM DRUZER

KHODHER-REDI NEWSPAPERS

CHICAGO — One day last November, a crowd of 500 residents and students in Bloomington, Ind., marched through town in opposition to a campaign of racist leafleting directed at the local school district. As it snaked its way down the college town’s main boulevard, the group faced a lone proponent who was wielding a placard that read, "No hate speech means no free press."

The bearer of the placard was Benjamin Nathaniel Smith. That a sophomore at Indiana University, Smith acknowledged he was responsible for the pamphlets, according to people who knew of him on campus.

On Sunday, Smith, who also was alleged to have distributed racist literature earlier this year in Willsite, Ill., the town where he grew up, emerged again: He was charged with an arrest warrant with the shooting death of a student in Bloomington, and police said that incident is linked to a series of shootings in two states that appear to be racially motivated.

Late Sunday, federal and Chicago authorities said the search for Smith ended with his death in downtown Salaman, Ill.

While it remains unclear why a student from the North Shore turned to the white supremacist group, his group paper trail over the past two years and other bits of evidence known to the police indicate he was committed to the cause. Smith, 21, was a member of the Church of the Creator, a white supremacist group based in East Peoria, Ill. The group advocates white power, though it does not condone violence, according to the group’s leader Mark Haefer.

Police were charged with littering with Willsite police in connection with the distribution of racist fliers after. After a June appearance at the Cook County Circuit Courthouse, Smith argued that his campaign was protected by the First Amendment.

"They’re saying we can’t put out this literature," Smith, whose case was pending, said in an interview with the Chicago Sun-TimesDaily. "It’s just the right to freedom of speech."

Original English majors, Smith later switched a criminal justice, according to Richard McKeach, vice chancellor and dean of students. "He said he felt his actions racially oriented," he wrote, "but to label them racist, bigoted or prejudiced demonstrates an approach to the figure we have another 15 years ahead of us to see if we can come up with a cure."

Dennis Molfese received his bachelor’s in psychology from Oklahoma City University in 1986, his master’s in psychology from Pennsylvania State University in 1970 and his doctorate in psychology from Pennsylvania State University in 1972.

Before his departure, Dennis was a professor of psychology and chair of the Psychology and Social Services Department at the School of Medicine. He currently is the editor-in-chief of “Developmental Psychology: A Journal of the American Psychological Association.”

Dennis Molfese also has directed his research in psychology at San Francisco State College in 1984, her sister’s development mental psychology in 1970 and her doctorate from Pennsylvania State University in 1972. Smith was well-known as a fierce proponent of “separation of church and state.”

After their meeting, Smith wrote in a letter to Smith’s father that Smith called minorities “mud people,” Alexancler said. "He really knew him indicate that he was uncomfortable," said Tyrese

Another neighbor who identified himself only as David said he confronted Smith about his hate speech last fall, and Smith responded by telling him to stop writing about the group because he knew he was uncomfortable. "He’s not going to stop,” the neighbor said. "He’s going to res­

"Their contribution to SIU has been enormous. Both are excellent teachers and super­scholars."

MAJOR VAUX

PSYCHOLOGY DEPARTMENT CHAIRMAN

For Smith ended with his death in the School district. Smith was enrolled at the School district. Smith was well-known as a fierce proponent of "separation of church and state." Smith was well-known as a fierce proponent of "separation of church and state."

Another neighbor who identified himself only as David said he confronted Smith about his hate speech last fall, and Smith responded by telling him to stop writing about the group because he knew he was uncomfortable. "He’s not going to stop," the neighbor said. "He’s going to res­

"Their contribution to SIU has been enormous. Both are excellent teachers and super­scholars."

MAJOR VAUX

PSYCHOLOGY DEPARTMENT CHAIRMAN

"They’re saying—we can’t put out this literature," Smith, whose case was pending, said in an interview with the Chicago Sun-TimesDaily. "It’s just the right to freedom of speech."

Original English majors, Smith later switched a criminal justice, according to Richard McKeach, vice chancellor and dean of students. "He said he felt his actions racially oriented," he wrote, "but to label them racist, bigoted or prejudiced demonstrates an approach to the figure we have another 15 years ahead of us to see if we can come up with a cure."

Dennis Molfese received his bachelor’s in psychology from Oklahoma City University in 1986, his master’s in psychology from Pennsylvania State University in 1970 and his doctorate in psychology from Pennsylvania State University in 1972.

Before his departure, Dennis was a professor of psychology and chair of the Psychology and Social Sciences Department at the School of Medicine. He currently is the editor-in-chief of “Developmental Psychology: A Journal of the American Psychological Association.”

Dennis Molfese also has directed his research in psychology at San Francisco State College in 1984, her sister’s development mental psychology in 1970 and her doctorate from Pennsylvania State University in 1972. Smith was well-known as a fierce proponent of “separation of church and state.”

After their meeting, Smith wrote in a letter to Smith’s father that Smith called minorities “mud people,” Alexancler said. "He really knew him indicate that he was uncomfortable," said Tyrese

Another neighbor who identified himself only as David said he confronted Smith about his hate speech last fall, and Smith responded by telling him to stop writing about the group because he knew he was uncomfortable. "He’s not going to stop," the neighbor said. "He’s going to res­

"Their contribution to SIU has been enormous. Both are excellent teachers and super­scholars."

MAJOR VAUX

PSYCHOLOGY DEPARTMENT CHAIRMAN

"They’re saying—we can’t put out this literature," Smith, whose case was pending, said in an interview with the Chicago Sun-TimesDaily. "It’s just the right to freedom of speech."

Original English majors, Smith later switched a criminal justice, according to Richard McKeach, vice chancellor and dean of students. "He said he felt his actions racially oriented," he wrote, "but to label them racist, bigoted or prejudiced demonstrates an approach to the figure we have another 15 years ahead of us to see if we can come up with a cure."

Dennis Molfese received his bachelor’s in psychology from Oklahoma City University in 1986, his master’s in psychology from Pennsylvania State University in 1970 and his doctorate in psychology from Pennsylvania State University in 1972.

Before his departure, Dennis was a professor of psychology and chair of the Psychology and Social Sciences Department at the School of Medicine. He currently is the editor-in-chief of “Developmental Psychology: A Journal of the American Psychological Association.”

Dennis Molfese also has directed his research in psychology at San Francisco State College in 1984, her sister’s development mental psychology in 1970 and her doctorate from Pennsylvania State University in 1972. Smith was well-known as a fierce proponent of “separation of church and state.”

After their meeting, Smith wrote in a letter to Smith’s father that Smith called minorities “mud people,” Alexancler said. "He really knew him indicate that he was uncomfortable," said Tyrese

Another neighbor who identified himself only as David said he confronted Smith about his hate speech last fall, and Smith responded by telling him to stop writing about the group because he knew he was uncomfortable. "He’s not going to stop," the neighbor said. "He’s going to res­

"Their contribution to SIU has been enormous. Both are excellent teachers and super­scholars."

MAJOR VAUX

PSYCHOLOGY DEPARTMENT CHAIRMAN

"They’re saying—we can’t put out this literature," Smith, whose case was pending, said in an interview with the Chicago Sun-TimesDaily. "It’s just the right to freedom of speech."

Original English majors, Smith later switched a criminal justice, according to Richard McKeach, vice chancellor and dean of students. "He said he felt his actions racially oriented," he wrote, "but to label them racist, bigoted or prejudiced demonstrates an approach to the figure we have another 15 years ahead of us to see if we can come up with a cure."

Dennis Molfese received his bachelor’s in psychology from Oklahoma City University in 1986, his master’s in psychology from Pennsylvania State University in 1970 and his doctorate in psychology from Pennsylvania State University in 1972.

Before his departure, Dennis was a professor of psychology and chair of the Psychology and Social Sciences Department at the School of Medicine. He currently is the editor-in-chief of “Developmental Psychology: A Journal of the American Psychological Association.”

Dennis Molfese also has directed his research in psychology at San Francisco State College in 1984, her sister’s development mental psychology in 1970 and her doctorate from Pennsylvania State University in 1972. Smith was well-known as a fierce proponent of “separation of church and state.”

After their meeting, Smith wrote in a letter to Smith’s father that Smith called minorities “mud people,” Alexancler said. "He really knew him indicate that he was uncomfortable," said Tyrese

Another neighbor who identified himself only as David said he confronted Smith about his hate speech last fall, and Smith responded by telling him to stop writing about the group because he knew he was uncomfortable. "He’s not going to stop," the neighbor said. "He’s going to res­

"Their contribution to SIU has been enormous. Both are excellent teachers and super­scholars."

MAJOR VAUX

PSYCHOLOGY DEPARTMENT CHAIRMAN

"They’re saying—we can’t put out this literature," Smith, whose case was pending, said in an interview with the Chicago Sun-TimesDaily. "It’s just the right to freedom of speech."

Original English majors, Smith later switched a criminal justice, according to Richard McKeach, vice chancellor and dean of students. "He said he felt his actions racially oriented," he wrote, "but to label them racist, bigoted or prejudiced demonstrates an approach to the figure we have another 15 years ahead of us to see if we can come up with a cure."

Dennis Molfese received his bachelor’s in psychology from Oklahoma City University in 1986, his master’s in psychology from Pennsylvania State University in 1970 and his doctorate in psychology from Pennsylvania State University in 1972.

Before his departure, Dennis was a professor of psychology and chair of the Psychology and Social Sciences Department at the School of Medicine. He currently is the editor-in-chief of “Developmental Psychology: A Journal of the American Psychological Association.”

Dennis Molfese also has directed his research in psychology at San Francisco State College in 1984, her sister’s development mental psychology in 1970 and her doctorate from Pennsylvania State University in 1972. Smith was well-known as a fierce proponent of “separation of church and state.”

After their meeting, Smith wrote in a letter to Smith’s father that Smith called minorities “mud people,” Alexancler said. "He really knew him indicate that he was uncomfortable," said Tyrese

Another neighbor who identified himself only as David said he confronted Smith about his hate speech last fall, and Smith responded by telling him to stop writing about the group because he knew he was uncomfortable. "He’s not going to stop," the neighbor said. "He’s going to res­
Mobile Home Lots

LOTS BE NEMO MOBILE HOMES, $225 per month, lease message, call 652-2307.

HELP WANTED

BARTENDERS, PEPPE MALE, will train, also like to work in bars, excellent pay, hurry, call 549-7528.

EXPERIENCE w/ task & exp for building maintenance person, all around handyman, and truck helpful, Call 549-2792.

RESPONSIBLE & Energetic Full Time helper needed for insurance agency. At least 2 yrs college w/ 6 hrs in Oshkosh Management major. Please Call 339-1551.

SE坑H UNIV. RESEARCH, Internet company building for outdoor nautical college-oriented website on campus. Excellent communication skills are greatly desired. Knowledge of "W" computers linked to other "W" computers, required. Ship in campus organization preferred. Focus is marketing, time flexible, 20-30 hrs. Contact: Brad Flood at 549-2786, Fax 549-2754.

EXCEPTIONAL HELP WANTED: a: any position you're a s a person, b: with an eye for detail, c: very dependable, d: honest, a: a good person. Knowledge of "W" computers linked to other "W" computers, required. Ship in campus organization preferred. Focus is marketing, time flexible, 20-30 hrs. Contact: Brad Flood at 549-2786, Fax 549-2754.

ABSENTH DE WINKEL, need position in general bookkeeping, 549-2873.

BROKEN A/V wanted, 652-2300.

KITTIES OR PUPPIES to help study? Two young, well-behaved, roommates need a furry friend. Excellent people skills a necessity, must be a real animal lover, apply to Midwestern University, Office of Student Affairs, July 9, 9:20 A.M., 7:30 A.M., 6:30 A.M. Please contact: midwestenuid.edu or call 549-5321.

LOST, YOUNG BLACK neutered cat, male, 6-10 weeks old, blue eyes. Please coll 652-9397.

EXCEPTIONAL HELP WANTED: a: any position you're a person, b: with an eye for detail, c: very dependable, d: honest, a: a good person. Knowledge of "W" computers linked to other "W" computers, required. Ship in campus organization preferred. Focus is marketing, time flexible, 20-30 hrs. Contact: Brad Flood at 549-2786, Fax 549-2754.

ABSENTH DE WINKEL, need position in general bookkeeping, 549-2873.

BROKEN A/V wanted, 652-2300.

SAD LOST, 6-30-99, small, brown, white, cat, friendly, lost around 15th and Washington, 652-457-0965.

FOUND, BLACK LAB PUPPY, brown, 3-6-99, very friendly, between 3 & 6 mo old, please call 652-9397.

ATTENTION STUDENTS, FACULTY, STAFF: The 5th Annual Student Supply Sale, July 9, 9:20 A.M., 7:30 A.M., 6:30 A.M. Please contact: midwestenuid.edu or call 549-5321.

Announcements

ATTENTION STUDENTS, FACULTY, STAFF, Fisher Bookstore is having an end of the semester sales event on Saturday, July 9, 9:20 A.M., 7:30 A.M., 6:30 A.M. Please contact: midwestenuid.edu or call 549-5321.

CAMPUS BARK PARK located at the Center for Student Life and Leadership. It is open daily from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. The park is available for all students, staff, and faculty to enjoy and relax during their breaks from classes.

GRAND OPENING of NEW drive through restaurant, July 9, 9:20 A.M., 7:30 A.M., 6:30 A.M. Please contact: midwestenuid.edu or call 549-5321.

ATTENTION STUDENTS, FACULTY, STAFF, Fisher Bookstore is having an end of the semester sales event on Saturday, July 9, 9:20 A.M., 7:30 A.M., 6:30 A.M. Please contact: midwestenuid.edu or call 549-5321.

Announcements

ATTENTION STUDENTS, FACULTY, STAFF: The 5th Annual Student Supply Sale, July 9, 9:20 A.M., 7:30 A.M., 6:30 A.M. Please contact: midwestenuid.edu or call 549-5321.

CAMPUS BARK PARK located at the Center for Student Life and Leadership. It is open daily from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. The park is available for all students, staff, and faculty to enjoy and relax during their breaks from classes.

GRAND OPENING of NEW drive through restaurant, July 9, 9:20 A.M., 7:30 A.M., 6:30 A.M. Please contact: midwestenuid.edu or call 549-5321.

ATTENTION STUDENTS, FACULTY, STAFF: The 5th Annual Student Supply Sale, July 9, 9:20 A.M., 7:30 A.M., 6:30 A.M. Please contact: midwestenuid.edu or call 549-5321.

CAMPUS BARK PARK located at the Center for Student Life and Leadership. It is open daily from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. The park is available for all students, staff, and faculty to enjoy and relax during their breaks from classes.

GRAND OPENING of NEW drive through restaurant, July 9, 9:20 A.M., 7:30 A.M., 6:30 A.M. Please contact: midwestenuid.edu or call 549-5321.

ATTENTION STUDENTS, FACULTY, STAFF: The 5th Annual Student Supply Sale, July 9, 9:20 A.M., 7:30 A.M., 6:30 A.M. Please contact: midwestenuid.edu or call 549-5321.

CAMPUS BARK PARK located at the Center for Student Life and Leadership. It is open daily from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. The park is available for all students, staff, and faculty to enjoy and relax during their breaks from classes.

GRAND OPENING of NEW drive through restaurant, July 9, 9:20 A.M., 7:30 A.M., 6:30 A.M. Please contact: midwestenuid.edu or call 549-5321.

ATTENTION STUDENTS, FACULTY, STAFF: The 5th Annual Student Supply Sale, July 9, 9:20 A.M., 7:30 A.M., 6:30 A.M. Please contact: midwestenuid.edu or call 549-5321.

CAMPUS BARK PARK located at the Center for Student Life and Leadership. It is open daily from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. The park is available for all students, staff, and faculty to enjoy and relax during their breaks from classes.

GRAND OPENING of NEW drive through restaurant, July 9, 9:20 A.M., 7:30 A.M., 6:30 A.M. Please contact: midwestenuid.edu or call 549-5321.

ATTENTION STUDENTS, FACULTY, STAFF: The 5th Annual Student Supply Sale, July 9, 9:20 A.M., 7:30 A.M., 6:30 A.M. Please contact: midwestenuid.edu or call 549-5321.

CAMPUS BARK PARK located at the Center for Student Life and Leadership. It is open daily from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. The park is available for all students, staff, and faculty to enjoy and relax during their breaks from classes.

GRAND OPENING of NEW drive through restaurant, July 9, 9:20 A.M., 7:30 A.M., 6:30 A.M. Please contact: midwestenuid.edu or call 549-5321.

ATTENTION STUDENTS, FACULTY, STAFF: The 5th Annual Student Supply Sale, July 9, 9:20 A.M., 7:30 A.M., 6:30 A.M. Please contact: midwestenuid.edu or call 549-5321.

CAMPUS BARK PARK located at the Center for Student Life and Leadership. It is open daily from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. The park is available for all students, staff, and faculty to enjoy and relax during their breaks from classes.

GRAND OPENING of NEW drive through restaurant, July 9, 9:20 A.M., 7:30 A.M., 6:30 A.M. Please contact: midwestenuid.edu or call 549-5321.

ATTENTION STUDENTS, FACULTY, STAFF: The 5th Annual Student Supply Sale, July 9, 9:20 A.M., 7:30 A.M., 6:30 A.M. Please contact: midwestenuid.edu or call 549-5321.

CAMPUS BARK PARK located at the Center for Student Life and Leadership. It is open daily from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. The park is available for all students, staff, and faculty to enjoy and relax during their breaks from classes.

GRAND OPENING of NEW drive through restaurant, July 9, 9:20 A.M., 7:30 A.M., 6:30 A.M. Please contact: midwestenuid.edu or call 549-5321.
Senior hooper takes off to Africa

GEORGE TRUDEAU
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Editor's Note: This story is being reprinted in its entirety.

Melanie Bardley is going to Africa.

The 6-foot-2, 200-pound center from the USC women's basketball team left Saturday to spend six weeks in Ghana, Africa, as part of the University's travel abroad program.

Growing up in Gary, Ind., where she attended Westside High School, Bardley has always wanted to search for her own personal growth.

Now a senior, the trip to Africa will give her that opportunity.

Bardley enrolled in a study abroad opportunity offered by the Black American Studies program here at SIUC.

The program offers the opportunity to experience the culture of Ghana and the people of Africa.

After Bardley was awarded the Chancellor's Undergraduate Research Grant, her dream to see Africa quickly became a reality, but not without some hard work. Bardley said she believes being in a company that shares her ethnicities will be the perfect backdrop for her.

"I've always wanted to go to Africa," Bardley said. "I've always wanted to look around and see people of my own ethnicity."

When Bardley arrives for the six-week-hour course, she will not have much time to be a tourist. Majoring in political science with minors in Black American Studies and English, Bardley seems perfectly suited for the trip.

"I want to see visually, firsthand, the beauty of the land," Bardley said.

She also submits that being aware of the history of Africa would be helpful in the learning process during her six-week stay. When Bardley returns in mid-August, she thinks she will be a much richer person. "I think the experience itself is a trip from the start. With a little creativity, she managed to get the perfect opportunity offered by the Chancellor's Undergraduate Grant to cover the cost. She did not have to sell collecting cookies and cookbooks and participating in other fund-raising efforts.

"Bardley's stick-to-itness does not surprise. SILC women's basketball coach Jake Beck one said.

"Melanie is the type of person who has 100 irons in the fire at any one time," Beck said. "She's that person who, after you meet her, a year down the line, she'll recognize you.

The effort needed to attend the University was difficult, with the support of friends, family and the SILC coaching staff; the opportunity for this growth experience has become a reality. Bardley thanks all those who have helped.

Coping with a tragic boat accident

GEORGE TRUDEAU
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Mike Vukovich stars in the face of adversity and is surviving in his determination. Vukovich lost the lower half of his left leg in a boating accident in Georgia in May.

An undecided sophomore from Rockwell, Ga., Vukovich returned home for the summer after spending the spring as a redshirted freshman on the Silki men's basketball team.

On May 24, Vukovich and some of his friends from Lanier High School, where Vukovich graduated from in 1998, went to the local Rockwell watering hole, Lake Raburn, located outside of Atlanta.

Vukovich and his friends were trailing behind a boat when his tube hit rough water and caused him to be thrown from his flotation device. Seeing that Vukovich had fallen, the driver turned the boat around to pick up Vukovich.

"After I fell off the tube," Vukovich said about the accident. "I saw them make their way back to me, and it looked like they were coming right for me."

By the time they had gotten close to me I realized I had lost my leg and was going to die, Vukovich said.

"...but I had my life preserver on, so I didn't get drowned," Vukovich said.

Vukovich felt a shredding pain from his lower left leg. His right leg was caught in the spinning blades of the boat's propeller.

Vukovich was airlifted from the accident site to the nearest hospital, in South Carolina. But doctors could not save his lower left leg.

But after 13 hours of surgery, surgeons were able to save his right leg. Doctors removed muscle from Vukovich's stomach and applied the tissue to the right side of his right leg. With a couple of skin grafts, the surgery performed on Vukovich's right leg was a success.

Vukovich will be fitted for a prosthetic leg, but will not be able to wear it yet because of a serious infection where the leg was amputated.

"It's a miracle it even happened that it can be," Salisbury baseball coach Dan Callahan said. "I would like to see him come back and get his degree. I hope he decides to further his education and finish here at SIU, or wherever."

Vukovich has more than that in mind.

"My plan for the future is to get the prosthetic leg, come back to SIU, and work to get my spot back on the baseball team," Vukovich said.

It will not be hard to find help when Vukovich returns to SIU.

"The university is concerned about this," Callahan said. "I love even had some football coaches come up to me and ask about him."

Vukovich will not let this set back slow him down, though.

If the prosthetic process goes according to plan, things should be close to normal for Vukovich. He will return for the fall semester and plans to resume his regular school and athletic activities.

Camp help schools rank best of the best

FRANK BURLISON
LOS ANGELES TIMES

TEANECK, N.J. - Nearly every high school basketball player that will be drafted in the next two weeks is chosen by local scouts to compile dossiers on a number of NBA franchises to send to college coaches.

The list of scouts each school or traveling team program is sponsored by either of the shoe companies.

Among others at Nike are seniors John Sanders and Cedric Bozeman of Mater Dei. Among others at adidas are seniors Steve Scoogin (who attended the Nike camp a year ago) and juniors Matt Samson and Cedric Byrd.

And in Indianapolis this week are senior Mike Iver (who attended the Nike camp a year ago) and juniors Matt Samson and Cedric Bozeman of Mater Dei. Several others at adidas are expected to be Wesley Stokes (Long Beach Poly), Travon Bryant (Long Beach Poly), and Andrew Zahn, considered the three best college prospects in the Southern California Class of 2000, and junior center Tyson Chandler of Dominguez.

Among the 16 Southern California players scheduled to be invited to Indianapolis this week are senior Steve Scoogin (who attended the Nike camp a year ago) and juniors Matt Samson and Cedric Bozeman of Mater Dei.

"You find out because you experienced it. With 20 years for me now, I've seen a lot of situations occur. But until you lived them or gone through them, you don't know. And that's where other people, if they haven't been at the NCAA level, that's the tough part."
Boilermakers on probation after violating NCAA rules

PAUL WALEKINSKI
SPORTS EDITOR

If the NCAA had the ability to launch intensive investigations into all its member schools, every athletic program would be in the same situation faced by Purdue University today.

Purdue was placed on probation last week by the NCAA after an intensive four-year investigation into the basketball program, which revealed violations involving assistant men's basketball coach Frank Kendrick.

"There are too many schools now that the NCAA can't really chase everybody down and find everything out," said SIUC men's basketball coach Bruce Weber, who was an assistant at Purdue when the violation occurred.

"Years ago, people feared turning in minor violations. Now it's looked upon as a positive with the NCAA, because that means you are policing yourself."

The initial investigation into Purdue's basketball program began when an assistant coach for the women's team drove a recruit from the campus in West Lafayette, Ind., to a hotel during an official visit. As a result, the NCAA continued its investigation into both the men's and women's basketball programs.

The NCAA committee on infractions cited violations including recruiting, extra benefits and ethical conduct.

The verdict released last week resulted in the NCAA removing a scholarship from the men's team, limiting recruiting visits to the school and recommending that Purdue pay a penalty of more than $340,000.

The Boilermakers will, however, be able to participate in postseason tournaments and are not restricted on television appearances. The NCAA did not cite head coach Gene Keady or former assistant coach Bruce Weber. Purdue is currently appealing the violations.

"[The NCAA] did an intensive investigation into the program and over four years," Weber said. "I guess I was happy, or proud, or whatever, that my name never came up."

"If you go into any program, I don't care where you go, and you spend enough time and money, you're going to find something. There's just too many rules."

There are so many rules that the NCAA rule book is about the size of the Carbondale phone book. While the NCAA requires all coaches to complete an open book test on the NCAA regulations, there is still too much information for anybody to memorize.

"The rule book is so big that it is next to impossible to know everything," said SIUC assistant coach Matt Painter, a former Boilermaker and an assistant at Eastern Illinois University for four years.

"You just try to keep up with all the rule changes and stay on top of it. You just try to cover your bases."

When questions do arise, coaching staffs throughout the athletic programs contact the campuses' NCAA Compliance Officers. SIUC's officer is Nancy Bundy. Bundy's duties include educating the staff, other school employees and contributors about the NCAA rules, maintaining coaches' recruiting files and...