Panel reviews SIU minority hiring practices

By Monroe Walker
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Citizen Review Committee heard testimony Friday from 13 persons including SIU President David R. Derge, regarding minority hiring practices at SIU.

The five member team, chaired by State Senator Richard H. Newhouse, D-Chicago, conducted a public hearing in Ballroom A of the Student Center.

Newhouse said the committee "undertook this assignment with the understanding that the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) will accept the recommendations that we take back to it."

After listening to some of the participant's testimony, Newhouse said that it appears that there is a "serious lack of communication between the University and the community. Perhaps the administration will see fit to cure that gap right away."

The hearings started at noon with Derge as the first witness.

He said the University has an Affirmative Action Program for its Civil Service employees and that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) had been here for a compliance review of the Affirmative Action program.

"We are in the process of formulating a written Affirmative Action program for the University," he said.

Newhouse asked Derge if he evaluated the Affirmative Action Program and if he was happy with it.

"No," Derge answered, "I am not satisfied with it because we need an extension of this into the academic area." He explained that the Affirmative Action Program applied only to civil service and not to faculty. He said that Malvin Moore, professor of Education Administration and Foundations, "has been instrumental in identifying minority persons for recruitment."

"How much cooperation is the recruiter getting?" Lila Teer, committee member, asked.

Derge answered that "this can probably be better answered by (Jerry) Lacey and (I.P.) Brackett. Generally, we are doing all right in the civil service area." He said that scheduled for next year is an increase of minority participation while generally there is a decrease in University employment.

Jerry Lacey, assistant to the president for the Affirmative Action Program, was the second witness. He explained the mission of the SIU Affirmative Action Program.

Director: bands might end if money stops

By Randy Thomas
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU's marching band and the basketball pep band will probably be dropped if the School of Music Activity Fund does not receive a student activity fee allocation, Robert House, director of the School of Music, said Friday.

House made the comment in response to a recent move by the Student Senate to reallocate the Music Activity Fund's original allocation to help pay for an increased allocation to the Black Affairs Council.

"I think it's only fair that people be made aware of what will happen if we don't get this money," House said.

Though he wasn't sure, House said he thinks even with a $15,000 allocation the two bands might have to be dropped. Altogether, the School of Music Activity Fund—which includes seven choirs, two orchestras and four bands—requested $53,847. The Student Senate Finance Committee recommended that the group get $15,000. Last year, all three categories, which were funded separately, received about $30,000.

A major complaint of the senate against funding the School of Music Activity Fund is a lack of student control over the various groups involved and a limited benefit to the majority of students on campus.

John Conlisk, Finance Committee chairman, said he felt the original request of the organization was "padded." He was not, however, in favor of giving the group no funds at all.

The Finance Committee recommended that a student representative board composed of members from the orchestras, the University bands and the choirs, be formed to "enhance student control of the organizations."

Mel Siener, director of the University Bands, said all the organizations have already instituted a great deal of student control.

"Everything I purchase must be approved and signed by student finance officers," he said. "I really don't know what else can be done to obtain more student control."

Siener estimated nearly 800 students participate in the bands, choirs and orchestras. He said about 25 concerts are presented yearly by the groups, not including football and basketball games.

Also protesting the activity fee allocations on Friday were the Judo Club, Zero Population Growth (ZPG), and the Southern Illinois Veterans Association.

Paul Armetta, speaking for the Judo Club and ZPG, called the Senate Finance Committee totally incompetent and charged that the senate as a whole voted on the budget under false assumptions.

Armetta said the justification for not

IBHE hears New York plan

Educator seeks resource - sharing

Sharing of facilities and resources between universities can make higher education dollars go farther, but there must be real commitment to the idea and not just lip service, a New York educator told a session of the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) at SIU Friday.

John S. Toll, president of the State University of New York at Stony Brook, suggested Illinois might follow New York's lead in establishing a system of regional cooperation in which universities, junior colleges and technological schools are organized into coordinating areas and subregions.

The institutions share programs, professors, computers, health services and other resources, he said.

"We are doing it very informally, with a minimum of bureaucracy," Toll said.

The New York official spoke at a meeting of nearly 300 Illinois higher education leaders who discussed establishment of a statewide cooperative university as proposed in an IBHE Collegiate Common Market task force report.

In concluding remarks, James B. Holderman, IBHE executive director, said he felt the candid discussion indicated a mandate to proceed with the proposal.

Toll said regional cooperation is becoming a must for financial reasons.

"Costs are rising more rapidly than means of support," he said, "and this has been accentuated by the economic recession. The recession dramatized what was inevitable anyway."

However, Toll said that the money crisis is not the prime reason for regional cooperation. "The principal advantage," he said, "is in finding new ways of accomplishing our job in higher education."

He said Illinois has been a leader in developing new technology for education and he cited a computer instruction system developed by the University of Illinois as an example. Toll said cooperation between universities is necessary to make such advances economically feasible.

Newhouse asked, "What sanctions do you have from the University?"

"At the present time," Lacey said, "we can put a hold on the filling of positions."

He explained that the system did not allow the Affirmative Action office to do the job that is required but that the "best way is to identify specific classifications and goals and see that these criteria are met."

Isaac Brackett, assistant to the president, explained recruitment procedure. He said, "Malvin Moore has attended meetings and transmitted information to numerous universities, but his efforts have not resulted in significant employment as I had hoped."

Norvell Haynes, Citizen Participation Director of Northeast Community, said that hiring practices of the University are discriminatory.

He said that the University offers nothing to the community and "just as I don't have any teeth in my mouth, they ain't got none in their Affirmative Action Program."

George Mace, Student Affairs Division, gave an overview of the accomplishments of his office and explained that "we have already gone beyond the 10.5 per cent minority participation required by the Affirmative Action office, but we will not stop there, we will continue to hire on the basis of qualifications."

Seymour Bryson, of Minority Student Programs, said black students are having difficulty and that this is reflected in the low retention rate and the high attrition rate. He cited reports by William Miller of Counseling and Testing and by Institutional Research and also a master's thesis by Michel Livingston saying that they prove that black students are having financial and academic problems.

Bryson also said, "Dr. Mace (assistant to the president for student affairs) informed me that he was going to transfer development skills to the Office of Specialized Services."

"Developmental Skills is the only real program for blacks," he said, "I don't think it should be given over to some umbrella scheme to solicit federal monies."

He said that under the present situation, it is difficult to support the Affirmative Action Program.

Gene Peebles, vice president for business affairs, said that the University has a goal of 11.5 per cent for minority participation and that they presently have 11.2 per cent.

Frank Hartman, director of the Personnel office, said that his office has 20 to 22 per cent minority employees.

In addition to Sen. Newhouse, the Citizen Review Committee was comprised of Lila Teer, coordinator of SIU Services to East St. Louis; Jerry J. Sheehan, personnel manager of Caterpillar Tractor Company, Peoria; Rev. Edward W. O'Rourke, Peoria; and Richard J. Nelson, president of Northern Illinois University.

The committee was established by the Illinois Board of Higher Education to review minority employment practices within Illinois public institutions.

Budget allocations knocked

funding the Judo Club was totally inaccurate. The Finance Committee justified their recommendation by saying the club still had a great deal of money in its account at the end of April. Armetta claims the group had only $2.21.

Armetta was extremely critical of the finance committee for listing ZPG as fourth priority organization, which is termed by the committee to mean the group is a special interest organization that is inwardly directed.

Health board discusses SIU role

By Sue Millen
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A clarification of the University participation in the comprehensive health service system was called for at a meeting of the Health Advisory Board (HAB) Friday afternoon.

John Beverly, member of HAB, said that he thought the responsibilities of the University and the Shawnee Regional Health Maintenance Organization (SRHMO) were unclear.

Under the new comprehensive health service physicians would contract with the SRHMO, while the University would still be collecting the student health fees. The plan is devised so that the University would have no other function in the system other than to collect the fees and to participate on a health advisory board.

Dr. Walter Clark, director of the Health Service, said if the present Health Service did not have to work through the University there would be much less red tape.

"We operate on a budget that it knows will never work and then at the end of the year somebody else ends up picking up the tab. That's no way to operate a business. We don't know from day-to-day what we can do," he added.

It was then decided that three subcommittees should be set up to study the revised DuBois plan concerning the comprehensive health service.

John Beaumont, student representative to HAB, will be the chairman of the Benefit Package committee. Beverly was appointed chairman of the Administrative Structure Relationship committee. Dr. John Taylor, director of Doctors Hospital, will chair the Staff Pattern and Responsibility committee.

HAB decided that Beaumont's committee should also study the finances of the project. At that point he informed the group that the SHCC would not compromise on its earlier statement that they could not support the project if the present fees were not restructured.

Alden Hall, temporary chairman of HAB, said that he didn't see how any future plans for the system could be made, unless HAB decided to ignore the students' statement.

"We have no jurisdiction over that matter; it will have to be taken to the Board of Trustees. Possibly in the future we could support that amendment but HAB simply has no authority to act on it," he added.

Another meeting to discuss the subcommittee's findings was set for noon, Friday, June 9.

GSC head unhappy with allocations

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Graduate Student Council (GSC) president Friday asked that as many graduate students as possible attend Saturday's special Student Senate meeting concerning the allocation of student activity fees.

Joe Camille made the request at a meeting of the GSC. Camille told the council that graduate students pay $50,000-$60,000 a year in activity fees, but have only been allocated about $3,000 a year by the Student Senate.

"This just isn't my idea of fairness," Camille said. "In the past, we have really gotten a shaft. If the GSC is to become a viable organization, we will need money." Camille said he has been sitting in on a committee's hearings concerning the allocation at which he asked for $14,500 for the GSC. Camille said he was surprised when he attended the hearings because he thought he would have a vote on allocations, but didn't.

Peter Gorham, a representative from economics, said, "I don't like hassling with the undergraduates for our money. I think we should have our own appropriations committee."

Camille said graduate students would have two alternatives if their allocation was not granted. Since fees are not mandatory for graduate students, they could refuse to pay the fees. Secondly, Camille said, he would try to talk with President David R. Derge concerning the allocation if it was not granted.

The senate meeting is scheduled for 10 a.m. in Ballroom B of the Student Center.

In other business, Chris Jensen, former GSC secretary, presented an ad hoc committee report dealing with unionization.

The toll from a rash of thefts from dormitory washing machines mounted Friday, with over $650 reported stolen.

Police said machines on the second, third, fourth, seventh and eighth floors of Neely Hall were entered, while machines on the fourth and ninth floors of Schneider Hall were hit.

Jensen told the council the committee has obtained an endorsement from the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers (CFUT) executive council on three principles. The union membership has yet to ratify the principles.

Under the principles, the union would recognize graduate assistants who join CFUT as a semiautonomous constituency of the total union membership. The assistants should be represented on all negotiating committees in proportion to the percentage of assistants in the union. No contract should be approved by the union unless a majority of each constituency approves.

Jensen said if the CFUT approves the principles, the ad hoc committee will recommend that the GSC advise all graduate students interested in joining the CFUT to sign pledge cards, and that pledge cards be issued to all GSC representatives to distribute.

Schwegman reflects on term as city manager

By Barry Cleveland
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

He didn't really want the job. And he's not sure that he would take it again. But when Carbondale Mayor Neal Eckert approached him late last year with the idea of taking on the position of acting city manager, Bill Schwegman didn't hesitate—much.

Schwegman took the helm of the city January 1 on the heels of the resignation of Bill Schmidt. At times his "temporary" status must have seemed awfully permanent, for the city council did not name a new manager until April 11—more than three months after Schwegman took over.

Carroll J. Fry, a 57-year-old native of Missouri who has been city manager of Winona, Minn. since 1968, will become Carbondale city manager Monday, and Bill Schwegman will return to his permanent post—director of public works for the city.

Schwegman took time early Friday morning to discuss his 156-day tenure at the city helm, an experience he has called "anything but dull" and even "terrifying."

The personable native of Metropolis disclaimed credit for most important developments during the past five months, but he listed the initiation of the Cedar Lake project and the reorganization of the Urban Renewal Division as perhaps the most notable events.

"We should begin to see some results at Cedar Lake by next spring," he said. "Only a couple of years ago our water supply situation looked pretty shaky, to the point where, if it weren't solved, we might wake up some morning, turn on the faucet and nothing would come out."

The contract for construction of the 1750-acre facility was let earlier this year, with an agreement for archaeological salvaging in the area reached with the University Museum.

The reservoir is expected to be ready by 1975 and will not only furnish water for the city and other water districts but may also be a prime site for recreational development.

Schwegman also credited Urban Renewal Director Eldon Gosnell with a fine job in reorganizing the division following the council's dismissal of then-director Bill Burns in January.

A development for which Schwegman takes some credit is the settlement of the railroad crossing situation in downtown Carbondale. The Illinois Central Railroad two weeks ago agreed to repair five crossings, and work on the Oak, Jackson, Main, Walnut and College street intersections may be completed by fall, Schwegman said.

Settlement of the problem followed nearly five years of unsuccessful city attempts to spur the railroad into action.

Although the past five months have brought much progress to Carbondale—(annexation of SIU living areas into the city, the Cedar Lake project, recognition as an All-America city, new pay plans for city employees, reorganization of city administrative agencies and the revitalization of the Human Relations Commission)—Schwegman admits that there have been disappointments.

Principal among them are the city council's reaction to two problems, Schwegman said: fiscal problems and city government reorganization.

The city has encountered severe financial difficulties in the past few years, with people demanding more services and the city having no funds available, he said. Even so, the city council seems to believe that the services should be provided but won't authorize the necessary measures to raise the revenue, he said.

Schwegman cited the council's rejection of a proposed wheel tax and its negative reaction to the idea of floating city bonds to finance an underpass beneath the railroad tracks as examples of that body's reluctance to provide more fund sources.

A related problem is the council's reluctance to use its full powers, he said. The city may become a home rule unit, which under the 1970 Illinois constitution, would give the council expanded powers, including powers to tax.

"They're not using all the powers they have now," he said. "So I can't say that the home rule powers will be any more effectively used."

Schwegman said a change to a seven-member council or a combination ward-at-large system for electing councilmen should be considered.

The outgoing manager predicted that his successor will face his most serious problems in two areas: finding new sources for money and gaining the acceptance of the people of Carbondale.

The city has come to rely on federal funds for about half of its total revenue, he said, which means that local sources are grossly inadequate. In the event that federal funding is cut back, the city will be faced with the necessity of cutting its services or finding totally new revenue sources, he said.

"One woman told me that if the city would get rid of me that would solve all our problems," he said. "Well, it might solve some of them but it's going to take more than that."

Schwegman cited the newly-created Industrial Development Division of the city as an important step in strengthening the local economic situation.

"We do have a definite need for new industry, though not necessarily the kind that belches smoke into the air," he said. More retail establishments of the type recently constructed in the city would help by providing jobs and sales tax revenue, he said.

Gaining the acceptance of Carbondale citizens and city employees has been a real problem for all of the city's managers, he said. "It's hard for someone to come into the community and, right away, gain the confidence of the people," he said.

"I have had such problems at times, despite the fact that I've lived here most of the time since 1948."

Schwegman moved to Carbondale that year when his father, Virgil, took a job with SIU. The elder Schwegman is still with the University, in the key control division of the Security Office.

After graduating from the now-defunct University High School, Schwegman put in two years at SIU before finishing his college education at the University of Illinois, where he received a degree in aeronautical engineering in 1958.

After a stint with McDonnell Aircraft in St. Louis, Schwegman returned to Carbondale, where he took a job at the Illinois Division of Highways.

The retired Army Reserve captain noticed an opening in the public works department in 1967 and applied for it, along with 14 other applicants.

"I learned later that I was the city's second choice, but the other guy took a look around the city and decided he didn't want the job," Schwegman took over as public works director in December, 1967.

Would he be interested in a permanent position as city manager? "I don't think so," Schwegman said, smiling. "I thought when I took the job originally that I wouldn't want it permanently, and I haven't wanted my mind. But it has been valuable experience."

Schwegman cited continued expansion of the city, the recruitment of new industry, possible relocation of U.S. 51, continuance of the Urban Renewal and Model Cities programs and the proposed construction of an underpass beneath the tracks as possible developments in the next few years.

Will he be here to see them happen? "Well, I don't know. My wife and I are content right now, but I can't say what will happen when the kids get out of school."

'Tales' seen as clever horror flick; 'Calcutta!' wallows in futility

By Glenn Amato
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"Dracula," "Frankenstein," "The Mummy"—these great old horror films are, along with the best of Fellini (who directed the "Toby Dammit" sequence in "Spirits of the Dead," another graveyard tale) and Truffaut, who emulated Hitchcock in "The Bride Wore Black," the only films that will never be considered transient, of the here-today, gone-tomorrow variety.

The reason for this is simple. These films are a shade removed from reality; one can't pin them down and say that they belong to or are representative of any era. They drift from generation to generation and their stories are timeless, because suggestions of supernatural doings and just plain evil have always intrigued and attracted movie audiences.

"Tales From the Crypt," an adaptation of four old comic book stories, seems a little campy to a modern movie audience (or at least Thursday's audience at the Saluki, where the film is playing). Director Fred Zesch's style is often tongue-in-cheek rather than in earnest, but the stories themselves are so satisfyingly scary, each terminated with a genuinely clever twist, that the directorial flightiness isn't crippling.

The subject matter is, of course, murder. A crypt keeper, played by, of all people, Ralph Richardson, introduces the stories. There is a scrape with a psychotic disguised as Santa Claus, a man who dreams about his violent death and then lives it, some business about a magical statuette, a man who rises from his grave on Valentine's Day for revenge, and the ultimate super-horror, a man trapped in a maze lined with razor blades, a crazed German Shepard at his heels.

The violence quotient is, naturally enough, high; still, there is a certain joy and fascination to be found in the suspense leading up to the murders. Averting one's gaze when he thinks that "it" is about to happen is a pretty fair indication that the suspense elements are strong, and there are plenty of opportunities in "Tales From the Crypt" for the weak-stomached to look away. The reason this film was taken from are considered underground classics. The film may not be any kind of classic—it might even go the route of countless other transient horror flicks—but it is a neat example of a genre that was cheapened after the original "Dracula's" and "Frankenstein's" were released years ago.

A Review

"Oh! Calcutta!"

Of "Oh! Calcutta!," which plays Tuesday through Thursday at the Varsity, I can only note that this film version of the stage revue was a financial disaster the first time around—and deserved to be.

The skits were written by, variously, Sherman Yellin, John Lennon, David Newman and Robert Benton, Kenneth Tynan and so on. It is an impressive list, but what passes for wit is sleazy and dull, the kind of stuff one can find scribbled on the walls of any washroom stall around campus.

"Oh! Calcutta!" was hailed in its time as the first nude revue. Seldom has the human body, clothed or otherwise, been put to such inane use.

Senate tables vote on black faculty seat

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The University Senate Thursday night tabled until its next meeting a proposed amendment to the campus governance document which would include two representatives from the Black Faculty and Staff Council (BFSC) on the senate.

The amendment was proposed at the May meeting by Tony Catanes, graduate student representative. The amendment would allow the BFSC to establish its own procedure of selecting the two representatives. The vote was 19 to 6 in favor of tabling.

Speaking in favor of the amendment, Catanes said it would "show the University community that the University Senate is a representative body."

Malvin Moore Jr., professor in educational administration and foundations and current president of the BFSC, said the senate would "negate the true spirit of the University" if the amendment was not approved. Moore said the University has established a mechanism which allows only a minimal possibility of a black being in a decision making position. "Black people will no longer accept their former role," Moore said. "It is a flagrant violation of democratic procedure to exclude blacks."

The report from the ad hoc committee looking into the status of women on campus was deferred until the next meeting.

The governance committee also was assigned the task of reviewing the senate's voting requirements in relation to attendance.

Wind disallows 9.9 time

Ivory ties world 100-meter mark, but...

By Mike Klein
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The short legs of a short man with dynamic power nearly burst into worldwide track prominence Thursday afternoon, but a "friendly" wind gave cause to disallow Ivory Crockett's world record-tying mark in the 100-meter dash.

SIU's Crockett motored to a 9.9 seconds finish in the 100 meters during Thursday's preliminaries of the NCAA track and field championships in Eugene, Ore.

A wind in excess of eight miles per hour pushed Crockett forward so his time was excluded from those up for international record consideration. The wind also helped Don Quarrie of Southern California who, like Crockett, ran a 9.9.

As Ivory paced his heat across the 100-meter mark, there was excited speculation that he'd shattered, not tied, the world mark.

The Bulova electric timer had Crockett winning in a sizzling 9.59 seconds, a feat equal to Bob Beamon's 29-foot plus long jump in the '68 Olympics.

But it didn't hold up. All official stop watches had Crockett at 9.9 so the electric timer was judged inaccurate.

Record holder or not, Crockett's given another indication that he's ready for all comers in quest of an Olympic berth and, ultimately, a gold medal at the '72 Games later this summer in Munich, Germany.

The pocket rocket from Webster Groves, Mo., also won his heat in the 200-meters although three other runners in different heats bettered his time of 20.4 seconds.

In order, they were Willie Decker (20.2) and Leon Brown (20.3) of Southern California plus Warren Edmondson (20.3), quickest of the UCLA medium distance sprinters.

It's been a field of fast times at this spring's sunny, warm weather meet in Oregon where 7,000 fans watched Thursday night with expected crowds of 18,000 Friday night and Saturday.

Aside from the 9.9's registered in the 100-meters by Crockett and USC's Quarrie, three sprinters finished just one-tenth of a second behind.

Running 10 flats were USC's Decker, UCLA's Edmondson and Cliff Branch of Colorado. Other top clockings in the 200 meters were a pair of 20.4's by Purdue's Larry Burton and Harold Williams from Texas-El Paso.

The surprising Saluki also qualified their 440-yard relay team of Crockett, Eddie Sutton, Terry Erickson and Stan Patterson for Friday night's semifinals. Last competition in most event will be held Saturday.

SIU ran a 41 flat on a wind-sliced track. The top time was Memphis State's 39.9 with Southern Cal. just behind at 40.1. The USC Trojans have a season best of 38.8, two-tenths behind their world record of five years back.

Mike Bernard, one of two Saluki entrants in high jump, made it through Thursday's preliminaries. Bernard leaped 6-11 but freshman teammate Bill Hancock ended his season with a non-qualifying 6-9 leap.

Notably absent from the high jump entrants is Pat Matzdorf, world record holder. Matzdorf, of Wisconsin, sustained injuries during last weekend's Big Ten championships. His world record is 7-6 1/2.

No team standings were available late Friday afternoon but it appears two Pacific Eight rivals—USC and UCLA—will wage the fiercest war for the NCAA trophy.

USC might have the upper edge because the rival Bruins dropped the baton during their 440-yard relay preliminaries, resulting in non-qualification.

The UCLA fumble marked the fourth consecutive NCAA meet in which the Bruins have dropped the apparently elusive baton.

Beyond USC and UCLA, Texas-El Paso and Oregon are contesting the stiffest battle for third and fourth places.

Some individual upsets have already been registered at the three-day meet while other old dependables of recent years are again displaying championship form.

Defending javelin champ Cary Feldmann failed to get past preliminaries with his 225-7 throw. Last spring, Feldmann bested the field at 259-0.

Another defending champion—Bouncy Moore in the long jump—finished 11th in a field of one dozen qualifiers for Friday night's semifinals.

Moore, of Oregon, jumped 24-10 3/4. Before semi-finals, the leader was Randy Williams of USC at 26-7 3/4.

Highly-regarded sprinter John Smith of UCLA has apparently locked up an individual title in the 400-meters. Texas-El Paso's Steve Williams, considered Smith's most serious opponent, pulled up lame Thursday.

Meanwhile, hometown favorite Steve Prefontaine of host Oregon stepped away from Wisconsin's Glenn Herold in 5,000-meter preliminaries. Prefontaine triumphed in 14:01.4, better than eight seconds ahead of Herold.

2 swimmers and gymnast sign letters

Three high school athletes have signed national letters of intent to attend SIU. The trio consists of two swimmers and one gymnast.

SIU swimming coach Ray Essick said Mark Henry of Olympia, Wash., and Paul Schultz of Riverside, have agreed to attend SIU.

Both swimmers are breaststrokers and are on the verge of being top collegiate swimmers, Essick said.

In gymnastics meanwhile, coach Bill Meade has added Ross Olson of Elmhurst to his NCAA championship squad.

Olson was Illinois State horizontal bar champion this past season while competing for York High School.

"Olson is by far the classiest horizontal bar performer from Illinois in recent years," Meade said. "With reasonable progress, he should be a serious contender for national honors as a freshman."

Handball ace wins title

The intramural handball tourney ended after three weeks with Jay Latona emerging victorious out of the field of 18 contestants.

Latona beat Tom Fowler two of three games to win the championship. He lost the first, 24-21, but came back to take the final pair, 21-8 and 21-9.

The title was Latona's second in a row. He won the 1971 IM title last summer quarter.

ABA head quits ; merger is reason

NEW YORK (AP)—Commissioner Jack Dolph of the American Basketball Association resigned Friday, pointing to the impending merger with the rival National Basketball Association as the critical factor.

"I believe," Dolph said in a prepared statement, "that a merger between the two leagues is only a matter of time and Walter Kennedy will be the commissioner of the single expanded league. It, therefore, behooves me to look to my own future and certain opportunities that are available to me at the present time."

Whether Dolph's statement implied that congressional sanction for the merger was imminent or that Dolph was just making an assumption was not known. Dolph was not available for comment beyond his statement.

But, in his statement, Dolph said he would actively aid the league in finding a replacement as commissioner when his resignation becomes effective at the end of the third year of his contract in October.

Dolph, who succeeded George Mikan as commissioner of the league formed in 1967, drew praise around the league from club officials.

"We recognize the contribution that Jack has made in the early years of the growth of the league—he should be commended for his accomplishments," said Carl Scheer, president of the Carolina Cougars.

"Jack has done a tremendous job in the three years he's been in the league," said Bob Vanata, general manager of the Memphis Pros. "There are certainly a lot of pluses due to the commissioner's effort during this time."

Dolph, 44, took over the struggling ABA in October, 1969, after 19 years as a television executive at CBS. During his tenure the ABA gained national prominence, acquired a national television contract and battled the old, established NBA in a wild bidding war for player talent.

Dallas Chaparrals general manager Bob Briner said he wasn't surprised to hear of Dolph's resignation, given the "chaotic situation that exists in professional basketball today."

He said he was "personally sorry" to see Dolph go, but that the resignation might "lead to better things for our league." Briner said he believed Dolph's resignation would "push the merger harder."

Briner didn't have any ideas on who might take Dolph's place, but said he would have to have the "wisdom of Solomon."

"Where do you find a guy like that?" he asked.
