Lucrative chain letter scheme broken

By Dan Hofmann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A variation of the illegal chain letter which recently made money for several local residents has been broken up by a public information campaign by Attorney General William Scott.

The scheme brought around $300 on a $37.50 investment to at least nine people in the area, according to one of those who made nearly the money.

The person, who wished to remain unidentified, said he didn't realize the scheme was illegal until Scott declared last month that it violated Illinois Consumer Protection Statutes and federal Mail Fraud Statutes.

"I wouldn't do it again," said the person.

Called "Bicentennial Bunco" by Scott, the scheme asked people to pay $37.50 for a packet containing an $18.75 U.S. Savings Bond, instructions and a list of 10 names. The purchaser mailed the bond to the person in whose name it was caused, made a new list of names, left off the name in the first position, moved all the other names up a notch, and added his own name to the list.

The purchaser then bought two $18.75 bonds in the name of the person who was then first on the list and made up two packets to be sold to acquaintances.

Scott said the scheme violated consumer protection statutes because it misrepresented the likelihood of a great return of money, the problems of selling the packets when an area is overworked, and the likelihood of the scheme being broken.

The person who made $300 on the scheme said Scott may have deemed the packet's headline, "Sit back, relax, make $50,000," misleading, but he was happy with a $300 return.

He also held the attorney general responsible for breaking the chain because "The thing that irks me most is that the government said 'We'd protect people by making it illegal.'"

"By declaring it illegal they have in effect insured the break down in the investment plan. They've made a lot of money, and those people who were holding their bonds are in the position now where they are going to take a loss."

"The government has done the opposite of what it set out to do in relation to the people involved in the plan," said the person.

SPRINGFIELD (AP) -- A new statewide citizen's organization called Tuesday for the Illinois Senate to vote soon on the federal Equal Rights Amendment, the step-child of the current legislative session.

The ERA has languished on the Senate calendar since the session began, with Senate President Cecil A. Partee saying he would call it to order when he had the votes to win approval.

"Most of the members of our organization would like to have a vote on record, because ERA is essentially dead after the session ends on June 30," said Dennis Conant of Glenview, president of ERA Illinois.

Conant said ERA Illinois is a coalition of more than 50 state organizations, including the Illinois Education Association, League of Women Voters and Illinois Business and Professional Women.

It was formed in April to launch an extensive campaign for passage of the ERA in Illinois, she said.

She predicted the group might spend up to $500,000 on the effort, saying the drive will be "as expensive as any campaign to run a statewide candidate."

"We're going to run ERA like a statewide candidate," said Conant.

The federal ERA, which bars discrimination on the basis of sex, is to be ratified by 38 states by March 25 and become a part of the U.S. Constitution.

So far 34 states have ratified, with two of them voting later to rescind their ratification.

ERA has been an issue in Illinois each year since Congress passed the amendment in 1972. The Illinois House approved the amendment last year, but the Senate needs all eight votes short of the 38 needed to pass.

Since then the measure has been on the Senate calendar, awaiting the call for a final vote.

If the Senate does not pass it before the new General Assembly takes office next year, the House's approval will be nullified and supporters will have to start all over again to gain passage by both houses.

Conant said it is unlikely that the State would take the measure up during its fall session, which is primarily devoted to consideration of gubernatorial vetoes.

That's why the organization wants a Senate vote before the spring legislative session ends June 30, she said.

"If it doesn't pass before June 30, we'll try to set up for a long-term campaign," she said.

The importance ERA backers place on Illinois was illustrated last month, when an estimated 10,000 persons came from across the country for a rally in Springfield in support of ERA.

Gertrude Miller of Chicago, Republican co-chairwoman of the bipartisan organization, said: "There is still pervasive discrimination in employment, salaries and job opportunities for women."

"Anybody who wants to work can pretty well work," James Moore, assistant director of student work and financial assistance, said Tuesday.

"I don't know of anyone who is desperately looking for a job who I can't place," Moore said. If there are any students like that around, Moore said he hasn't heard from them.

Work-study jobs, will be almost the only type of financial assistance still available to SIV students for summer.

Summer scholarship funds have been committed or will be given to students who have already applied.

The application deadline for the Illinois Guaranteed Loan for summer is June 18.

Students who want to work on campus this summer must have a current ACT Family Financial Statement on file at the student work office and must be full-time students.

The student work office is looking for typists and has more jobs open for clerical help than any other category, Moore said. A typist is anyone who can type accurately at a speed of 40 to 45 words per minute, Moore said.

There are also jobs open for ambulance drivers, lab workers, key punchers, accountants and parking lot attendants, Moore said.

Utility companies say deposits insurance policy against loss

By Steve Hahn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

When utility companies are asked to turn on the gas, connect the electricity, or open the water valves, the cost to the consumer will not only be for the use of the service but also for service charges and deposits amounting to approximately $10 for the average customer.

Several guidelines are set by area utility companies, their reasoning for the down payments is obvious—protection. They say deposits are a kind of bond policy against the nonpaying consumer.

For natural gas and electricity, Central Illinois Public Service Co. (CIPS) charges new customers with no credit rating, two and one half times the average monthly bill of the previous owner or renter of the property.

"Just off the top of my head, I would say the average deposit we ask for is $70 to $75," said Fred Davis of CIPS.

He said all deposits remain the customer's money unless, of course, they fail to pay the bills—and a 2 percent per year interest rate is added for the use of the funds. He estimated residential deposits range from a minimum of $10 to a high of $175.

Davis said full payment of the deposit may be deferred for 90 days, but CIPS prefers a 60 day limit, with half the deposit being paid each 30 day period. After one year, if the customer has not made more than three late payments, the money is refunded with its accumulated interest.

A new home is required to pay a deposit however. In good standing with CIPS, a customer can vouch for a new customer by signing a statement saying unpaid bills will be covered. New customers with established credit, determined by CIPS, are not required to pay deposits and no charge is made in any customer for going in service, unless special work is needed.

At Southern Gas Co., the amount of the deposit is based on projected customer use. A $60 payment is required if the new customer has a gas stove, water heater and furnace. A $25 with gas stove and water heater, and $20 for a gas stove only. Customers receive no interest on their deposits, and they are returned only when service is discontinued.

If a holding tank for the fuel is required, the fee is $85.95, which covers the installation charge and a leasing fee. This charge is not a deposit and is not refunded. According to Southern Gas, many landlords have previous agreements with the company, making usage costs the only charge for some customers.

For city residents using the municipal water service, a base deposit of $150 will be charged. If there are more than two persons living in one residence, another $5 is charged for each additional person.

For sewer usage only, a flat $15 deposit is required. If there are no outstanding bills, all deposits are returned after two years of continuous service. Municipalities are not required to pay interest.

General Telephone also charges other fees for installing phones or connecting the service from the office. It will cost a new customer $10 to connect a non-exisiting phone on the property. $11 for a service call for the home in which the phone is connected, and $26 if no phone exists on the property.

Deposits plus 7 percent annual interest are returned after one year, unless special work is required, providing there have been no more than two late payments.

$80,000 offered in bias suit

The Federal government has apparently dropped plans which could have cost Shl nearly $80 million in funds due to a sex discrimination case.

Marina Can-Amoros, a former Shl family member, is presently considering terms of settlement offered by Shl in a sex discrimination suit filed with the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

"The settlement between Shl and HEW included agreement in an estimated monthly bill, which comes to an average of $20 to $40 for most users, according to John Youngblood, the service manager.

General Telephone also charges other fees for installing phones or connecting the service from the office. It will cost a new customer $10 to connect a non-existing phone on the property. $11 for a service call for the home in which the phone is connected, and $26 if no phone exists on the property.

Deposits plus 7 percent annual interest are returned after one year, unless special work is required, providing there have been no more than two late payments.

Chain letter violates statutes

The person who was involved in the scheme said he realized it was a gamble and that he never expected to make $50,000.

"I've been involved in a lot of bad if they someone who bought a package just sat on their own," said the person.

"That's kind of it, but I'd rather be people who have done that," said the person.

He said he didn't buy a package until he was sure he could sell the bonds. He said he never helped those who were lower on the list sell theirs.

"If you're willing to work you can make a lot of money on it and make sure it works. Basically, you have a better chance of making it than on the (Illinois) lottery. If you don't sell your bonds you're out $50,000," he added.

He agreed with Scott that the chain had broken. He said he had sold to six people—16th of the people below him had many people in the chain, but he still got $50.

The chain letter author was actually a second cousin of McKay's, a former employee of the Illinois Attorney General's office.

"We felt our function in this case was to make sure the people didn't do not yet have sufficient evidence to proceed against the instigator. We are not going to have any widespread prosecution of participants because the participants were victims themselves," said Wadsworth.

He said he would be most interested in finding out who brought the chain into the area. The attorney general believes the scheme, which was rumored in Southern Illinois, had apparently spread to Idaho and Indiana.

The person involved in the chain here was a former ISU graduate and that several of those who came were listed after him on the chain were college educated. He said he had received a bond from a veterinarian.

"It's not a horrible rip-off scheme and it can work," he said.

Commission finds state lax with heroin control

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Illinois must take a more active role in cracking down on heroin being shipped into the state through a so-called "Mexican connection," a legislative investigation commission asserted Tuesday.

The commission said in a report that more than 37,000 heroin addicts in Cook County consume nearly three quarters of a ton of pure heroin a year, almost all of it from Mexico. That amounts to 6000 million a year at street level prices, said the Illinois Legislative Investigation Commission, ordered by the Illinois House, had found a "lack of sufficient cooperation and coordination between federal, state and local authorities in fighting the problem."

The commission witnessed a considerable amount of competition, jealousy and even hostility among the numerous drug enforcement agencies," the report said. "Such practices as competition for informants and for number of dealers serve only to divide the efforts of the agencies," the report said, titled "The Heroin Highway."

The report quotes one customs agent in Chicago as saying the reason authorities aren't winning the fight against drug traffickers is that "the other side is organized—organized and stronger than we are."

The report portrays a complex supply network leading from illegal opium fields in Mexico, to remote kitchens refining laboratories, across the U.S. border, and into northern Illinois.

Once centered in Chicago, big-time dealers have now moved their activities into the suburbs to escape law enforcement agencies in the city, the report said.

City council denies request by shopping center developer

By Steve Hahn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A strong change recommendation by the Carbondale Planning Commission would allow the construction of a shopping center on the west side of the city if the council would consider an investigation of the proposed structures impact on the environment.

The Planning Commission had recommended that the Council accept the request by Gordon Parish to rezone land bounded by New Era Road, 85th and a portion of Little Crab Orchard Creek from agricultural, to a business designation.

The council's denial at least a temporary halt to Parish's plans for the shopping center which would extend over 150,000 square feet of farm and pasture land.

Parish has been granted a flood plain occupancy permit by the city, and, according to Director of the Planning Commission James Rayfield, complied with recommendations for land elevation and water runoff control.

However opposition to building on the plain was voiced by counselor Hane Fisher. Fisher cited a study by the Jackson County Soil and Water Conservation District which stated the Parish's plan represents serious misuse of the flood plain. A statement presented on behalf of the League of Women Voters expressed concern that the construction would have adverse social and economic effects on landowners in the area and might cause flood damage in upstream areas.

Costs for compiling an environmental impact statement would have to be incurred by Parish said Rayfield. A civil engineer representing Parish said the statement would be prepared following the renunciation at the time the final plan for the site is submitted to the council.

The Council agreed to hear a formal request from the Southern Illinois Hospital Corp. concerning the city financing of five proposed parking lots surrounding the Memorial Hospital of Carbondale.

Top Italian Red prefers NATO

ROME (AP) - Communist party leader Enrico Berlinguer was quoted Tuesday as criticizing Americans for trying to influence Italian elections, but saying he preferred Italy in NATO than in the Soviet-bred Warsaw Pact. "I feel only on this side. But I also see that on this side there are serious attempts at limiting our autonomy," Berlinguer said in an interview published in Milan's Corriere della Sera, Italy's largest newspaper.

Elections set for Sunday and Monday could lead to Communist participation in Italy's government, a development which Washington has concluded would force a reassessment of U.S. relations with Italy.

Congratulations, now... get out!

By Arthur Hoppe

Hiram M. Scroggs University held its 98th Commencement Exercises last week in its hallowed Great Hall. Forty-seven persons were injured.

The trouble began during the Commencement Address, which was entitled, "From These Falling Hands We Flung the Torch." It was delivered by President Hiram M. Scroggs IV, who began, "As you go forth from these cloistered halls into the world of today..."

Scroggs said later that the only reason he stopped speaking at this point was that he could think of nothing further to say.

The somewhat awkward silence was finally broken by a group of activists in the class of '76 who folded their arms, sat in the aisles and started chanting, "Hell, no!

At first, President Scroggs attempted to plead with them. "Look, it won't be too bad," he wheedled. "Some of you will even find jobs... if you are female members of a minority group."

When this proved ineffectual, Scroggs reluctantly resorted to force. "Aardvale, James," he called out, reading from the class roster.

Campus police promptly overpowered James Aardvale, Z, and carried him kicking and screaming up to the rostrum where President Scroggs served him with a diploma, saying, "Congratulations, Aardvale." as decorum demanded. Aardvale was then thrown bodily out the Main Gate.

Aardvale's example, unfortunately, served to pacify the remainder of the class of '76 who fled in all directions, rending garments, overturning the Martha Scroggs Memorial Bench and demolishing the traditional daisy chain.

The largest group holed up in the Albert Scroggs Botany Building where they staged a sit-in, locking all the doors and announcing a list of 47 "non-negotiable demands" - the first being for the right not to graduate if they didn't want to.

President Scroggs gave them 24 hours to surrender. His ultimatum was rejected, "What have we got to lose?" Their radical leader, Mario Hoffman, said defiantly. So they had to be routed from the building with tear gas and herded out the gate with fire hoses. After 72 hours, President Scroggs said confidently he felt the 99th Commencement Exercises will go off without a hitch and "but three members of the class of '76 have been round up and heaved out."

In the meantime, we expect to let them up any minute in our inch-by-inch search of the campus.

Scroggs said privately that unless conditions in the outside world changed radically, he planned to replace next year's 99th Commencement Exercises without a surprise fire drill.

Liberalism's death - a foothold for 1984

By Jim Santori

Editorial Page Editor

Political observers have likened American political preferences to that of a pendulum. In a period of years, the mood shifts from conservative to liberal and back again.

We have had our heavy conservative years of Eisenhower and McCarthy's 'Red Scare'. Then came the liberal 60's with the emphasis on humanistic ideals, such as civil rights, the war on poverty and the War on Poverty. But lately, we have seen a decrease in campus activism, the war on poverty ended with heavy losses and civil rights is no longer becoming a battlefront.

Now with the last of the liberal hopes, Morris Udall, throwing his support to conservative Jimmy Carter, the Democrats are left with a unity behind the Cheshire-like candidate, the official mourning of liberalism's death may now begin.

The Democrats, once synonymous with liberalism, are now concerned with getting any Democrat, even a conservative, into the top seat at all costs.

The U.S. press reported an announcement by the regime of the Shah of Iran that 18 revolutionary intellectuals had been killed at the hands of the Shah's police. Only the day before, a similar announcement had disclosed that 11 other Iranian patriots had been murdered by the Shah's agents. This brings the number to at least 60 of Iranian revolutionaries who have been known to have been shot dead in the streets or murdered under torture or executed by the Shah's repressive forces since January 25, 1976.

During the recent waves of workers' strikes, the Iranian regime's police and military forces responded to the people's just demands for better living conditions and higher wages with bullets. There are now more than 50,000 political prisoners in Iran (the French newspaper "Le Monde" puts the number close to 100,000) who are being systematically tortured, many to death.

Police lax in handling assault complaint

Separate police officers about pressing charges and have gotten nowhere. It seems that if I don't have their names nothing can be done about the incident. My roommate and I were assaulted and no one that has the power to help us gives a damn. I have been beaten, arrested, and treated as though I am making unjustified complaints. We have people who witnessed the incident and will make statements. I guess what we need is money or some political connections.

Bernie Taupin is recognized lyrics writer for Elton John

By Mary Campbell

AP Newsfeatures

I'm probably the most recognized unrecognized face in existence.

That's Bernie Taupin talking, lyricist for composer-performer Elton John, considered by many to be the most popular figure in rock music. Taupin doesn't appear on stage with John, doesn't perform on his records and doesn't give interviews very often. But he is recognized on the street.

"It never ceases to amaze me," he says. "It's unusual for a writer to be treated like a star, but I get sort of mobbed.

My picture is always on the albums. Obviously, that's where people recognize me from. I have it as much recognition as I could possibly want. I think it's a very nice feeling.

And the great thing with Elton is that he always gives me credit. Whenever he talks about a record he says we've got a new album, always up. He says we wrote this song.

Taupin sounds quite satisfied as he begins a two-week swing through America, giving interviews this time, promoting his new book "Elton, Taurpin, the True Who Writes the Words For Elton John," further subtitled "Complete Lyrics from 1968 to Goodbye, Yellow Brick Road." It's a compilation of lyrics to all of John's songs.

Their relationship is better than ever. Taupin says, and he thinks their songs are better than ever. Taupin doesn't write lyrics for anyone else and John doesn't set anybody else's lyrics to music.

Through there is no contract binding them to that arrangement Taupin says he knows nobody could do better by his lyrics than John and he thinks John is too lazy to work on anybody else's words. Lony is a word Taupin applies fairly accurately to Elton John.

They write in the same way they have since they met: when both answered an ad for song writers. Taupin writes the words, then gives them, or sends them if John isn't in the same country, to John. Then John sets the words to music.

Usually, Taupin says, he sits down at a desk and meditates. 'I tell myself... write a lyric, write a song at once... Sometimes I feel a bit guilty. I know that everything that is coming out of Elton's mouth is my feelings and my ideas. Sometimes I try to write for him. I feel if he were writing them, that is what he would feel or want to say. I have written autobiographical songs, though, and when they come out of his mouth it sounds like they are about him.

He has never dreamed up as a writer. Taupin says, though there are some periods that are more productive than others.

Other singers don't record Elton John-Taupin songs as much as they record, and Taupin wishes they would. "Nobody wants to tackle it. Everybody says they can't do them better than Elton. They could treat them differently.

Mount Vernon exhibit offers prints by Kent

An exhibition of 85 prints and nine preliminary drawings by noted American artist Rockwell Kent will be on display at the Mitchell Museum at Mount Vernon from June 20 to June 21.

Highlighting the opening of the exhibit will be a special preview of the display for the "Friends of the Museum" on Saturday, June 19. Guest of honor will be Dan Baroe Jones, a friend of Kent and author of "The Prints of Rockwell Kent."

One June 20 at 1:30 p.m., Jones will present an illustrated lecture entitled "The Multi-Faceted Career of Rockwell Kent." The lecture is open to the public and there is no admission charge. Autographed copies of Jones' book will also be available for purchase.

The distinctive style of Rockwell Kent made him one of the most popular artists of his day and his long career spanned one of the most exciting periods in American art.

Known primarily as a praitmaster and illustrator, Kent's early work shows a deep feeling of mysticism and romanticism, which later evolved into a deepening social consciousness.

Since its publication in October, 1929, Jones' book has won three major awards and was praised as one of the best art books in 75 by the Art Libraries Society of North America.

It has also been listed among the best books of the year by the American Institute of Graphic Arts and the American Association of University Presses.

The Mitchell Museum is open free to the public from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. every day except Monday and national holidays.

Giant City State Park plans interpretive programs throughout the day's events. A natural foods pet luck supper will occur at 7 p.m. Diners are asked to bring their own eating utensils and one other side dish to share with others.

The evening will be topped off with a "Presence" puppet show at 8:30 p.m. Both supper and show will be held at the Visitor Center.

For the more dedicated outdoor enthusiasts who haven't quite had enough, a second hike is planned on the Devil's Standtable Nature Trail at 2 p.m. In the event of rain, all programs will be cancelled. The Visitor Center is open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

Four parking lots will be designated for temporary 24-hour parking of unregistered automobiles during the first five days of each academic term, according to new parking rules approved by the S.U. Board of Trustees.

Unregistered automobiles parked elsewhere on campus will be subject to parking tickets. The four lots are:

- Lot 42, at the corner of Grand Avenue and Wall Street.
- Lot 56, south of the SIU Arena.
- Lot 63, at Chautauqua Road and Oakland Avenue.
- Lot 100, immediately north of Washington Square.

th一年一度Davis and Thavu realized something had to be done to improve the building. They drew up five or six plans and recently decided on one plan that would maximize efficiency.

The master control room, where they broadcast the music, will now be partitioned into two small rooms. It will be equipped to one large room shut off from the remaining building with a large glass window.

There will be five double-pane windows that are 80 per cent larger than the old windows. Thavu said, "Cutting the room in two and smaller windows makes for a more efficient sound room. The sound won't leak because it will reflect better.

Adjacent to master control is the news room, formerly broken into two areas, after construction there will be three separate booths. There will be a booth for recording news stories, hourly five-minute newscasts and one for rewriting and preparing radio and talk shows.

Formerly news production could not be done while they were broadcasting the news. Thavu said they will now be handled simultaneously.

When improvements are completed the production room will revert to its commercial production purpose. WIDB began collecting sales revenue 18 months ago to increase self-sufficiency. They receive some support from student activities.

Next fall Davis said, they plan to heavily emphasize station promotion. Their letters and logos will be involved and found in more programs.

Davis said, "There will be no programs, and announcements highly beneficial to the student. We hope to increase sales revenue and the audience."

Also on the agenda of WIDB improvements is completion of the stereo signal. The station is now operating with an eight channel board. On the board there are four and four stereo channels. Thavu designed and rebuilt the board and soon it will be completely stereo.

In the near future WIDB will begin automation from 6 a.m. until 7 a.m. They now broadcast live from 7 a.m. until 1 a.m. With automation the station will mechanically turn itself on at 7 a.m. and the jockey will arrive and begin the live broadcasting.

WIDB is student owned and operated during the semester they have a staff averaging 50 people.

Synergy receives grant for counseling in rural schools

By Tim Powers
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Synergy, a crisis intervention and counseling center in Carbondale, received $6,000 from the Illinois Dangerous Drug Commission for training for teachers in four rural counties of Southern Illinois.

This six-week grant, scheduled to begin July 1, will center on the teachers of junior and senior high school students primarily in the schools of Marion, Herrin, Du Quoin, Dongola, Elkville, and Harrisburg. Although the schools are expected to be reached.

The social coordinator of the program said that many of the teachers in their rural areas have difficulties which sometimes stem from their ignorance of drugs and lack of expertise in dealing with student-drug problems.

Vierek said that a lack of expertise in drug counseling will be offered to the teachers, enabling them to establish a drug curriculum.

This program is different in that it not only looks at the chemical variables, "effect on the users' body," but also the social and psychological variables.

Vierek went on to say that, too often the social variables involved are neglected, whether it be driving a car, and the psychological variables are not mentally unbalanced, are not considered in the drug curriculum, for high school students.

This holistic approach to drug counseling was first developed by John Sawin, past psychology professor at SIUE, which termed the PIE approach to drug counseling, using the symbol of a pie cut three segments to symbolize the integration of the three concepts into one whole.

Vierek said that they will be teaching the teachers to use this approach in their lectures to their students along with the Synergy philosophy of "drug neutrality." The concept that the evil is not necessarily in the drug, but rather in the drug's misuse.

Common root promotes cell growth but is questioned as an aphrodisiac

CENTRALIA, ILL. (AP) — Let it be known at the outset there is absolutely no scientific proof acceptable to the federal government that ginseng is an aphrodisiac.

Now be advised that the plant, common to North American hardwood forests, is worth up to $5 a pound to people who don't care. On the strength of the hope that the plant prolongs male sexual endurance, it has become a fad in the ten, food additives, vitamins, herbs, and spices list. It's probably another fad but while it lasts, the market can go nowhere but up. And it grows wild even in such exotic places as Illinois.

Panax ginseng, the proper name of the ginseng, is a medicinal herb and popular panacea since the Indian day. In China the plant has been renowned since lustful emperors reserved its use to themselves.

In the late 18th century ginseng cultivation bloomed in the United States, annual exports to the Far East reached $700,000.

Ginseng is a Chinese name. Translated into English it means "blood."

Lester Arnold, a 32-year-old researcher at the Dixon Springs Agricultural Center in Southern Illinois, has been hunting ginseng as a hobby since he was a boy.

There are several tricks, he said, "other than keeping your eyes open and knowing what it looks like. It prefers deep woods, soil and shade. The leaves turn bright yellow and the fruit bright red. You can spot it from several yards," he said.

A symmetrical plant, it grows clusters of three to five oval-shaped leaves that come to a point. Before you start hiking, please know that it takes a lot of root to add up to a pound. "The price sounds like a lot," Arnold said, "but if you get in an area where ginseng is and spend eight hours a day hunting it you might make $45 or $50 an hour. Sometimes you'd be lucky to make the federal minimum wage.

Much of the crop is exported.

About 15 million of the American harvest was sold last year in Hong Kong.

Investigators in Russia, Sweden and Japan concede the root is useful as a tranquillizer and promotes cell growth, apart from its salutary effect on impotence. Tradition holds it cures almost everything from the common cold to diabetes.

None of that is good enough for the Federal Food and Drug Administration. That agency reports it is "unaware of any adequate scientific studies that demonstrate medical properties for ginseng."

By the same token, there is no evidence known that ginseng is harmful.

Bribe scandal investigation goes on

CHICAGO (AP) — A former federal prosecutor issued Tuesday that the government, in effect, allowed prominent attorney Albert E. Jenner Jr. to take over some of the investigating duties in the ready-mix, bribe-conspiracy case.

The witness, former assistant U.S. Atty. Howard Stone, said the government never abandoned normal investigative practices in the case which led to the trial of eight men, including six current and former state legislators, on bribery and conspiracy charges.

The defendants are charged with being part of a group that plotted to split up as $200,000 slush fund to put ready-mix legislation through the House and Senate. The bill passed but vetoed, would have eased weight limits for concrete trucks.

Stone said the immunity was granted to Material Service Corp. and its executives after the attorney Jenner, told the government they had "information" that would lead to criminal charges against state legislators.

The giant ready-mix concrete company received the immunity, along with several of its executives, in exchange for evidence against members of the Illinois General Assembly in the bribery case, the government said.

Mister Roger suggests new show for elderly

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The residents of Mister Rogers' Neighborhood will be getting older, much older, if a proposed new public television series gets off the ground.

With his long-running children's program, "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood," now in reruns, Fred M. Rogers will shed his title "Mister" as host of the new program, "Old Friends, New Friends," which will be aimed at retired persons.

Yet the producer of the proposed series sees a direct relationship between it and Rogers' old show, which was immensely popular with children.

"There seems to be some similarity between the young and the elderly," says Clark Santee, who is a producer in Rogers' production company, Family Communications, Inc.

Youth people and old people often face similar problems, such as reassurance that they have purpose, yet Fred can practice much more freedom with an audience that is mature," Santee said.

Santee said the Borough of Ligonier in Westmoreland County is planned to be home to the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) series. Some segments of a pilot were already videotaped there on Nantucket Island, Mass., in Pittsburgh, California and Florida.

The only thing holding up the project is funding, and Santee doesn't believe that's going to be a major problem.

"We're getting more and more confident that we will be preceding in the fall," he said in a telephone interview Monday.

However, Rogers, though not available for direct comment, said through a spokesman that funding is a delicate matter and still the major obstacle in getting the series on the air. "It's far from being settled," he said.

"We'd like to have a series based in a village. Ligonier provides us with a comfortable, familiar setting. It wouldn't be identified, but Ligonier is where most of it would be shot," Santee said.

Meanwhile, "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood" continues to be seen on public television. Before new production of that program ended in 1975, Rogers had compiled a library of 400 tapes, enough for almost two years of viewing without reruns.

"They will continue to be on the air, hopefully for generations to come," said a spokesman for Rogers. "We have no intention of ending that."

Santee said the idea for the 13-week new series 26 programs evolved when production on Mister Rogers Neighborhood was ending.

"Fred began thinking about what direction he wanted to go," said Santee, "and he has been concerned about the lack of programming for the elderly."

Bill provides funding for Basic Grants

A bill allocating $791 million for the Basic Education Grant program has provided full funding for the program during the 1976-77 academic year.

President Ford signed the bill after it passed the Senate by a 77-14 vote and cleared the House 352-30.

The Basic Grant program had received $54 million in bills passed in 1975. This figure plus the $791 million gives the program $831 million, enough for full funding next year.

The House Appropriations Committee had recommended funding the program at a level which would have reduced students awards by 30 per cent.

But Wisconsin Rep. David Obey introduced an amendment which increased the appropriation to the full funding level.

Boston citizens must accept busing; Supreme Court will not review plan

BOSTON (AP)—The U.S. Supreme Court's decision Monday not to review the busing plan for school integration in Boston means residents are given the chance to accept it, two key figures on each side said.

"The decision is against us and threatens an 'American car show,'" said Thayer Fremont-Smith, attorney for the Boston Federation of School Associations, which had sought the high court review.

"The people of Boston will have to learn to live with the decision and make the schools as good as possible," he said.

"This decision marks the end of challenges to desegregation in the city," said William Thomas Atkins, president of the Boston branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. "We hope it also marks the beginning of a willingness on the part of the people who brought the challenges to work together.

In 1974, U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. ruled on a quip by black parents that the schools had been segregated by actions of public officials.

That decision, upheld earlier by the Supreme Court, was followed by detailed orders to desegregate the city's 182 schools. The plans required busing 17,000 students in 1974 and about 21,000 in 1975-76. Public school enrollment in Boston this year is about 18,000. The Supreme Court's decision upheld Garrity's plans and rejected alternatives.

But some anti-busing leaders were defiant and others expressed fear the school busing fights would continue in the streets.

"The finality of the Supreme Court decision spells doom for the city of Boston," said James M. Hicks, head of the Boston South Boston Information Center, an anti-busing group.

"Fear, apprehension and hatred will continue as long as there is forced busing in this city," Hicks said. "Violence and racial confrontations are unavoidable.

Boston's bitter division over school integration and busing has erupted in violence before. High schools in the white neighborhoods of Hyde Park, South Boston and Charlestown have been plagued with frequent fights.

Despite the trouble inside some high schools and middle schools in three white neighborhoods, most residents of Boston's black community have been relatively peaceful. There has been virtually no resistance to integration in black neighborhoods.

Leslie Hicks, president of the Boston City Council and an anti-busing leader, said, "I am now up to the people to decide through their votes whether or not they will accept what they will now take as a decision that is forced on the people from the apostles of urban neglect, the brokers, the Kennedys, the Levis and the Fords."

She was referring to Massachusetts' two senators as well as the U.S. attorney general and the President. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who has supported Garrity, said in a statement released by his Boston office, "It is my hope that a new effort, in bringing reason and understanding into this difficult situation will be made" aimed at restoring Boston.

Antique cars to participate in race

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—Four American antique cars, the youngest of which was headed west from the continent-spanning Bosphorus Bridge Tuesday, headed for Vienna.

The event, originally billed by its sponsors as an "American Auto Race" and a replay of the 1908 race from New York west to Paris, was curtailed in a drive through Europe and across the United States when the Soviet Union refused to cooperate.

The race's first leg runs from Istanbul to Athens, Edirne, Bulgaria's frontier. Then the cars will cross the Bosphorus Bridge, which was chosen for the race because it links several civilizations that reigned in Asia Minor centuries ago.

At a starting ceremony on a platform at the bridge's center, said Chairman ChipSTONE at the Bosphorus Bridge's organizing committee, "We are an intrepid nation compared to the world revolutionary that reigned in Asia Minor centuries ago.

Another race organizer, noting that the race began on one bridge and will end on San Francisco's Golden Gate, said he hoped the race "will contribute to bridging gaps between countries."

Traffic on the busy span was halted briefly and an official of the Turkish Highways Department

Florence M. Foote, acting chairman of the Department of Zoology, is retiring this summer after 32 years at SIU. Of them spent in her husband's shadow because of his discouraging husband-and-wife profession.

Matthew Freund, from the New York State University, replaces Mrs. Foote as the department chairman on July 1. Mrs. Foote will officially retire at the end of August.

From 1913 to 1943, the year her husband retired, Mrs. Foote, a graduate of zoology, did. Her work was given only occasional assignments to teach. Some years she spent in research with her husband. Some years she had no position at SIU.

"This was the University's "nepotism" policy," she explained. "They didn't want husband and wife teachers. I may have had a good case for sex discrimination, but then it wasn't illegal. Since it has become illegal, I haven't been discriminated against."

Spend a golden summer at Merlin's Disco. Presented by SUI's only women physiology professor to retire

Florence M. Foote

Florence M. Foote, from 1933, received rapid progression in the physiology department. She received a continuing appointment that year as an associate professor, although her previous tenure was not counted. In 1966, she became a full professor, and since that time, she has twice served as acting chairman of the physiology department, from 1971 to 1972, and during this past school year.

In May, 1975, Mrs. Foote was one of a select group named by President Brandt to receive SIU's special International Women's Year Award.

True, she never applied to become a permanent chairman, preferring to spend more time in research and teaching rather than in administration. She teaches undergraduate courses in anatomy, and classes at the medical school.

A Vermont farm girl, Mrs. Foote studied physiology, zoology and sociology at Mt. Holyoke College, emerging from school at the height of the Depression with an M.A. in physiology. She eventually received her Ph.D. from the University of Iowa.

Mrs. Foote admits she didn't want to struggle in her career, although she received encouragement from her mother, who had graduated from college in 1902 with a mathematics degree, and from her attendance at Mt. Holyoke, a women's college, where "distinguished women could do outstanding things."

While she was job-hunting after receiving her Doctorate, she remembered receiving a letter from a department chairman who said he did not believe in giving graduate assistance to women.

Once, after doing A work in a graduate course, she ended up with a B for a final grade. The professor explained that he couldn't give her only A to the only girl in class.

At the University of Iowa, where she did receive an assistantship after some initial worry there about how a woman colleague could cope with a freshman class of Iowa country boys, Mrs. Foote was chairman of the department for a year.

When the Foote's arrived at SIU in 1947, there were only four professors in the zoology department, and no physiology department.

The only woman in the physiology department, Mrs. Foote is pleased about the change there, and "grateful for some role in bringing it about".

"I thought I'd like to retire while I was still good enough...to do things and enjoy things," she said. "It's much nicer to go out before they decide to get rid of you." She added with a laugh.

"I can use her skills in Volunteers in Mission, a Peace Corps-like program of the Presbyterian Church. An initial request was to teach in Indonesia for two years, but she turned it down. "I would have done it for one year, but not for two," she said.

She also plans to audit some classes, maintaining an unattached involvement with SIU. "I think a University town is the most interesting place to retire."

Referring to the saying that as you get older, you do more things for the sake of the younger things for the first time. Mrs. Foote added, "I think it's time to think about doing some things for the first time."

HOUSTON (AP)—Horse theft is increasing in Oklahoma, where there are approximately 250,000 horses and the horse industry is valued at more than $100 million.

Dr. Wendell Sullivan, president of the Oklahoma Horsemen's Association, said the problem was once primarily a rural one, but now thefts occur at stables closer to metropolitan areas.

And where do those stolen horses go? Law enforcement officials believe their most probable destination is the slaughterhouse.

Justice Department takes action to halt criminal use of identification

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Justice Department task force has anointed a host of actions, including the matching of birth and death certificates, in an effort to ease a nationwide identification crisis costing at least $20 billion per year. The task force, established in 1974 to search for ways to halt the growing criminal use of false identification, instead favored steps such as:

- Tighter, uniform standards for identification of welfare and Social Security applicants, and the direct deposit of benefit checks to the recipient’s bank account where practical.
- To prevent business crimes, the use of electronic funds-transfer systems instead of exchanging paper checks for forgery and counterfeiting.
- The matching of birth and death certificates, on an interstate basis, so that dead persons’ names cannot be assumed by criminals.
- Tougher federal and state penalties for false identification crimes.
- Air travel, Richard L. Thornburgh, whose criminal justice sponsored the study, said the most important proposals were aimed at living birth and death certificates together. "The crime-bred document is the birth record," he said. "And there are an awful lot of dead people walking around committing crimes."

Most states now make little or no effort to verify the identity of a person applying for a copy of a birth certificate, which makes it easier for criminals to obtain the identity of a dead person to preclude the possibility of crossing paths with the real individual," Thornburgh said.

Family dies in flames
HOYELTON, ILL. (AP) — Two young girls, their parents and their grandparents perished Tuesday morning when flames swept through the second story of their frame home.

Just the day before, officials said, the family had gathered to celebrate the first birthday of the youngest victim.

One child, a boy sleeping downstairs on a couch, escaped unharmed.

Dead are Carl Mauck, 33, his wife Patricia, also 33, daughters Julie, 14, and Amy Jo, 11; Naomi Mauck, 67, and Mrs. Cathryn Jackson, 46.

Mrs. Mauck, Carl’s mother, lived in Hudson, and Mrs. Jackson, his mother-in-law, lived in Bloomington.

Timothy Mauck, 10, was the sole survivor of the tragedy.

Fire Chief Carl Rommelman said he believes the blaze probably began in some electric wiring in the attic. He said he was sure the flames originated in the attic and doubted anything else in the area could have touched off the fire.

Rommelman said a passerby spotted the flames at about 2:30 a.m. He roused a neighbor and both attempted a rescue. Heat and smoke forced them back after they faced Timothy.

Firefighters said there was no sound from persons in the building when they arrived and they were unable to climb the stairs until the flames were beaten back. It took about two hours to bring the fire under control.

Rommelman said one of the women in the home apparently attempted to summon aid by telephone before she died. “I called for an ambulance and I must have lied the same operator,” he said.

Hospital gets new name for public

The name of Doctors Memorial Hospital has been changed, George Maroney, hospital administrator, announced Tuesday. Effective immediately, the hospital will be known as the Memorial Hospital of Carbondale.

Maroney said “the primary purpose of the name change is to increase public support and to improve the public image of the Hospital.”

Maroney said he felt the Carbondale community had become disenchanted with the hospital, due in part to the name. “I think the community felt it was not their hospital, and that doctors owned it,” he said. “We want to emphasize that this is our hospital.”

Grad school dean search down to three

An SIUC dean is among three candidates to be interviewed for the position of associate vice president for research and dean of the Graduate School.

John Guyon, dean of the College of Science, was recommended by the search committee to be among the finalist candidates for the position, according to a memorandum released Friday.

The other two candidates to be interviewed are W. H. Maichett, chairman of the Department of Botany at Washington State University, and J. Musacchia, associate dean of the Graduate School at the University of Missouri at Columbia.

If none of the three come to an agreement, a new search will be conducted, four other individuals on the search committee will be contacted, the memorandum said.

The interviews are scheduled for July.

Canada gives gift book

CHICAGO (AP) — "Between Friends-Entre Amis" is Canada's million-dollar bicentennial gift to its neighbor, the United States.

It is both a book and an exhibition of 220 color photographs of life and the scenic grandeur along both sides of the 3,500-mile border between the nations.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau is scheduled to present a copy of the lavish book to President Ford in Washington Wednesday.

An exhibition of the photographs opens Friday at the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago.

The book and exhibition are projects of the Film Board of Canada, backed with a subsidy of $1.1 million from the Canadian government.

A project team headed by Lorraine Monk, a film board executive, commissioned 32 photographers to record impressions along the border from the northwestern Ontario-Saskatchewan area to the southeastern Ontario-New York state line.

Some 60,000 photographs were taken, from which the 220 were selected.

The book and exhibition also feature quotations in English and in French from writers, poets, public officials and others emphasizing the peaceful, cooperative relationship which has existed between the two nations.

In a foreword, Trudeau writes that the book is "a celebration—joyful recognition—of that striking triumph of the human spirit reflected in the atmosphere of peace and friendship which pervades the many relationships between two proud and free nations."

Cycle Club to sponsor ride to Giant City

The SIU Cycle Club is sponsoring a bicycle ride for anyone interested to Giant City State Park June 26.

Riders should meet on the east side of Shryock Auditorium at 9 a.m. The ride will go down Giant City Backstop to the park. It is designed so that riders of all abilities can participate.

It is hoped that this will begin a series of rides of various lengths and difficulties. If it rains the ride will be canceled.

'Christmas tree' bill adds new ornament

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A school aid formula bill that one lobbyist called a "Christmas tree" because it contained so many changes picked up a big ornament Tuesday for the financially strapped Chicago school district.

Sponsored by Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Schaumburg, the bill already passed the House containing numerous plums for downtown as well as suburban Chicago school districts.

From an amendment by Sen. Michael Brady, D-Chicago, was added to the bill in the Senate Education Committee Tuesday and the measure was sent to the full Senate.

Brady's amendment would substantially reduce the $65 million that Chicago is going to be penalized for shutting down its schools 16 days early this year due to lack of money.

Generally the bill permits the Chicago district to spread impact of the $65 million penalty over a five-year period. But more significantly, it permits the district to deduct from the penalty the difference between what it should receive under the school aid formula and what it actually receives, a figure estimated at $20 million this year.

Due to the financial crunch facing the state, schools were given less money this year than they would be entitled to if the formula were fully funded.

This is the best compromise I can see that we have worked out," Brady said.

But Sen. Jack Schaffer, a Republican from suburban Cary, said the amendment is "nothing more than a one-sided raid" by the state's major city on the state treasury with both hands out to guarantee the votes from downtown.

The Brady amendment also would help some downstate districts by lowering them from $1.85 to $1.92 the local tax rate that elementary districts must impose to qualify for maximum state aid. And it would permit districts to increase their real estate taxes above the amount required for maximum state aid without being penalized.

The measure as it passed the House contained a mixed bag of formula changes designed to help distribute school aid more equally.

Women's intramurals plan full schedule

By Scott Burnside
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The women's intramural department has scheduled a full slate of events this summer for students from horseshoe pitching to a more traditional softball pitching.

Intramural coordinator Jean Paratore said 12 events have been scheduled for the summer. Three of these events, a bike contest, a horse pitching contest, and a bowling contest, are all new items on the intramural menu.

The other events are a bowling league, a canoe race, a golf tournament, a racquetball tournament, a 16 inch softball tournament, a softball team, a swimming meet, a tennis tournament, and a track and field meet.

Some of the sporting events from last year were discontinued this year because of a lack of participation.
