Supreme Court decision keeps abortion legal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court reaffirmed its commitment to keep abortion legal Wednesday, ruling 5-4 that abortion is a fundamental right and states may not "intimidate women into continuing pregnancies."

The decision, which was delivered from Pennsylvania was a major blow to the Reagan administration and anti-abortion groups which had hoped to pressure women to seek an abortion, and secured a victory for personal-choice lawmakers that the Constitution’s promises of individual liberties apply to women as well as men.

Justice Harry Blackmun, who wrote the majority opinion in Roe vs. Wade, also wrote for the court that a state may not enact a statute that requires abortion to be performed by a physician. The law was declared a violation of Roe, which Blackmun called a landmark decision.

Dental coverage: a first for state

By Catherine Edman

Dental insurance will be offered for the first time to all Illinois state employees, including the SIU-C employees, effective Oct. 1. The coverage will be introduced in a three-year phase-in, said William Capie, SIU-C Personnel Services director.

Dental coverage will be phased-in differently for state employees and their dependents, explained Terry Stoica, manager of benefits for the State of Illinois Department of Central Management Services.

Coverage for state employees the first year will include teeth cleaning, x-rays and minor tooth repair such as fillings, Stoica said. The second year, she said, employee coverage will expand to oral surgery and root canals will be added the third year.

Dependents covered on employee policies will receive teeth cleaning and x-ray coverage the first year, she said. Coverage for tooth fillings is added the second year. Oral surgery and root canals are added in the third year, Stoica said.

A phase-in approach was taken, Capie said, because the state insurance program administrators are unsure exactly how much the new coverage is going to cost. Insurance companies are going to be flooded with claims in the first three to six months, he said, because this is the first time the coverage is going to be implemented.

Water rate increase to put drain on students

By Toby Eckert

Starting July 1, the University will experience a significant increase in water and sewer bill because of the 23 cent per thousand cubic feet increase enacted by the Carbondale City Council in March. The University's bill will increase by about $325,000, and University officials still await a certain where the money to cover the rate increase will come from. "It's going to have to wait and see how things come down," said John Baker, SIU-C budget director.

University Housing will bear a significant portion of the rate increase, and the cost will eventually be passed to students. According to Sam Rinella, director of University Housing, the combined water and sewer bill will increase by $150,568, which equates to a $30 rate increase per student resident.

Since it is too late to include the increase in the its 1987-88 fee schedule, housing will lose "a hefty sum" of money this year, Rinella said. He added that housing would take the loss out of its working capital.

"We'll just have to readjust the budget," he said. "We will be preparing our study for a proposed rate increase in September to begin in the Fall of 1987." Baker raised the possibility of undertaking conservation measures to lessen the impact of the rate increase. Although Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, had raised the question of refining some of the University's bonds in order lessen the sting of the increase, Baker said bond refinancing was a "very distant alternative at this time.

"My understanding is that the condition of its bond market in the past few years make it.

Report suggests options for health services

By Nola Cowsert

A report to President Albert Sondel, submitted by a committee from the Student Health Services at SIU-C, has recommended new options for the delivery of student health services at SIU-C.

The report, submitted in May, was written by Ramon V. Robertson, assistant dean of Regional Medical Programs; Connie Staley and John Record, also Regional Medical Programs; Dr. Penslope Tippie, director of Carbondale Family Practice Residency Program; and Iris Nickel, assistant dean and chair of the Department of Family Practice.

The report outlined the committee's rationale for recommending new options and made recommendations to implement the new proposals made by the committee.

To continue providing quality health care services to students and save money for the University and students, the report recommends implementing the National Health Service Ambulatory Clinic to the Family Practice Center in Carbondale. The School of Medicine operates a residency program with the University and Carbondale Memorial Hospital.

According to the report, moving the Health Service to the Family Practice Center would enable the University to provide effective and efficient, quality-controlled health service at a convenient location, at the most reasonable cost.

The goals of the report were to conduct a management review of Student Health Service programs, placing particular emphasis on improving efficiency of operations and cost effectiveness; to make recommendations on the feasibility of alternative delivery options for the provision of Student Health Services; and to provide specific recommendations on the feasibility of affiliating the Student Health Service with the Family Practice Residency Program.

The committee noted in the report that no specific attempts were made to review the quality of services currently delivered.

Sam McVay, director of Health Services, said Sondel, Bruce Swinburn vice president for student affairs, and John Baker, executive director of planning and budgeting, will meet to discuss the possibility of revising student health programs.

At this point, McVay said, the Health Service is not moving off-campus, and if it does, it will not move before next year.

The committee's report is due by the end of this week and the committee report will be received within the next few weeks, McVay said. His report will be finished soon after that, he said.

McVay said this year is an excellent time to look at the program because of current changes in health care services across the United States.

Support group formed for elderly

Shawnee Alliance for Senior Citizens is planning to develop a support group for caregivers of people over 60. The first meeting will be held at the Franklin County Skilled Care Facility, 201 Bailey Lane, at 6:30 p.m. on Monday.

Any interested persons are welcome to attend. The purpose of the group will be to provide mutual support and identify specific needs and concerns of caregivers.

At the time the rate increase was enacted, the University Legal Counsel questioned whether the city was acting without authority and was researching the matter. Richard Riggerson, reached at the council's office on Monday, refused to say whether the study is continuing.

and personnel, charging $2.50 per meal per week.

The City Council approved that raise increasing the monthly rate from $22.68 to $25.71, which is a 1.4 percent increase.

According to the increase, the water bill for an average family of four in the city will increase 22 percent, from $4,265 to $5,262.

The increase will be charged a rate of $1.94 per 1.000 gallons, with a minimum charge of $65.00 for a private residence.

The increase will take effect July 1, water customers using more than 1,000 gallons will be charged a rate of $1.94 per 1.000 gallons.

City Manager Bill Dixon said Monday that the increase was needed to generate matching funds for a state grant for sanitary sewer rehabilitation, to cover increases in city insurance costs and to offset rising capital expenditures in the city's water and sewer department.

The committee report is expected to be received within the next few weeks, McVay said. His report will be finished soon after that, he said.

SALT on the wound as the race goes on

PARANOLA IS A TRAIT often associated with the Soviet Union, and an examination of Soviet history will yield many examples of why they are what they are—centuries of invasion from foreign powers and a long list of oppressive leaders have tempered the Soviet mentality.

One of the most recent of these is a matter of concern. The United States has signed a treaty that will escalate the arms race out of the ordinary, and sooner or later we will be forced to face the reality of the situation.

The treaty, signed by the United States and the Soviet Union, will allow the construction of more missiles. This, in turn, will drive up the cost of defense and increase the risk of an accidental nuclear war.

One of the major concerns is the risk of a global nuclear war, which could result in the destruction of the world as we know it. This is a sobering thought, and one that should be considered when weighing the pros and cons of such a treaty.

The United States has signed this treaty without fully understanding the implications. This is a mistake that will be difficult to reverse, and it will be up to future generations to deal with the consequences.

In conclusion, the SALT treaty is a step in the wrong direction, and we should work towards a more peaceful world. This can only be achieved through diplomacy and cooperation, and we should not forget the lessons of the past.

Pompous ceremony

On May 10 I attended "graduation" at 4 p.m. for University Studies and the College of Liberal Arts. Usually graduation is for the students who have completed the required studies toward a degree, but not at SUU. Instead of the usual academic ceremony entered to "Pomp and Circumstance," the pompous instructors entered and then spent 20 minutes introducing themselves and their own selves. There were five minutes each of them, giving a total of 20 minutes to speakers who were interesting, and the people who should have had more time.

Next came a 25-minute talk that rambled in the past, and, I quote, "not having a point or conclusion," with the instructors on the stage in gowns, shoes and cowboy boots, trying to look the role of interested bystanders.

Many parents, family and friends drove hours each way to what was hoped to be another step in our graduates' lives. I hope my tax dollars and students' tuition are spent for something better than this.

I don't need a degree card. I'd rather have a badge of merit representing the years I've spent in school. But I understand that this is SUU, not Harvard. - Marilyn Michel, Highland Park.

Give some credit where credit's do

Editor's note - The following letter is a response to letters from Cairo residents that appeared in the May 1 Daily Egyptian.

It seems amazing that nowadays people will do anything rather than say "thank you." Why discourage and not give credit where credit's due, namely to Newman Center students? For years they have been willing to sacrifice a week of their summer vacation, pay their own living expenses and pick up the tab for the cost of materials needed to make repairs on your house.

Stop discouraging young people from doing what is right. Appreciate them and give them some recognition. - Laura R. Cutler, Carpinteria, California.

Senator blasts arms plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's arms control policy is under the influence of 'right-wing advisers' who want to destroy SALT II and the whole framework of nuclear arms limitations, Illinois congressman, Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., said Wednesday.

But President Reagan did not take the calculated risk in controversial arms control decisions, Stevenson said on the Senate floor.

"We face the functional equivalence of a national emergency in the context of our strategic policy," Biden told the chamber.

"His anti-arms control advisers are well under way to create a new arms-control policy that could inflict severe damage on the national security interests of the United States," he said.

"Today, Sen. Biden and Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, have introduced a bill to place SALT II's limits on nuclear warheads and launchers into law. The House is considering similar legislation."

Ambassador Paul Nitze, one of Reagan's key arms control advisers, said the legislation would force the United States "to tie its hands" to conform with an agreed-on SALT II Moscow is violating.

In criticizing Reagan's advisers, Biden, a potential candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1988, mentioned only Richard Perle, an assistant secretary of defense.

Honda eyes Midwest for new plant

DETOUR (UPI) — An Illinois congressman said Wednesday that a Honda auto manufacturing plant in the Midwest could be a prime contender for a new Honda manufacturing plant in the United States.

Rep. Terry Bruce, a Democrat, said Honda is currently conducting a feasibility study to decide if it would build an additional plant or a plant manufacturing plant in the United States.

But Bruce said Honda had decided to conduct such studies to see if it would build an additional plant, either adjacent to its current one in Marysville, Ohio, or somewhere in the Midwest.

"If the study proves positive, Honda will build a new plant in the Midwest," Bruce said in a statement. He said he spoke with Susan Insley, vice president for corporate planning at Honda.

"We are focusing on the Midwest and I would anticipate some decision to be made by the end of the year or early next year," said Insley.

"We've had many, many, many inquiries from a number of states and communities," Bruce said.

Bruce said the Honda plant in Ohio includes Danville and the Champaign-Urbana area, and the new plant, if there is one, would be the same size as the Marysville plant.

"That would mean an investment of about $500 million would be made to build a plant on a site between 800 and 500 acres. The plant would provide up to 3,000 new jobs in the selected area, producing the Honda Accord model. Several hundred thousand of the new cars would be produced in the plant within five years," Bruce said.

Honda is a natural for a second plant because it would would be in the Accord model, which was announced last year.

"We welcome Honda's Accord model, which is one of the most expensive Japanese cars currently sold. Bruce said the criteria for the plant selection allegedly would include the availability of a skilled work force, infrastructure and quality of life.

Baptist leader promotes end of church factions

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Rev. Adrian Rogers, newly elected fundamentalist leader of the Southern Baptist convention, appeared Wednesday before the Senate's church faction committees but said "there are some things we can't be diverse about."

"I believe in our seminaries," he said, but they should be teaching less intellectual subjects and more of the biblical instruction of right and wrong.

"I think God for diversity, for there are some things we can't be diverse about," he said.

"But there are some things we can," he said.

"Never, never, get soft on the faith; it's not up for grabs."

Study looks at camping areas, costs

How much do campers pay to pitch a tent or hook up a motor home at different private campgrounds across the United States? Douglas N. McEwen, associate professor of recreation, will answer such questions after a study of campgrounds around the country funded jointly by the National Campground Owners Association and Woodall Publishing Co.

McEwen sent questionnaires to 2,000 of the nation’s 9,000 campgrounds asking for information on rates, camp site sizes, tent and trailer rentals, conveniences such as grocery stores and laundries, and activities planned for the campers.

Profiles of each campground’s income sources and costs also will be gathered to see what makes a campground profitable, McEwen said.

He plans to have a report aimed at campground owners prepared by August.

McEwen said camping has changed a lot in the past 20 years. These days, friends planning a weekend camping trip need to know what camping means to each other, he said, otherwise one family may show up equipped for a rustic weekend while the other drives up in a motorhome equipped with all the comforts of home, including television and a microwave oven.

Cars without decals currently may park at four designated on-campus lots without campus parking decals: Lot 59 near Leeser Law Building; Lot 100, north of Washington Square; Lot 106, on South Wall Street; and Lot 56, on the gravel lot south of the Arena. Council fighting to reform state's insurance industry

By Toby Eckert

The insurance industry blames the current crisis in liability insurance on an explosion of litigation and faulty government regulation, says the Illinois Public Action Coalition. Chicago-based consumer advocacy group that is in the forefront of a fight for reform of the state's insurance industry.

IPAC, which bills itself as "the voice of the average consumers and taxpayers of Illinois, the average American, and your government," has opened a regional "satellite" office in Carbondale. The office will conduct IPAC's annual door- to-door membership support drive in the region. John Boehm, IPAC canvass director said that the group hopes to attract 600-700 new members in the area, netted 860 new members, he said.

The group also intends to seek recruits for its Legislative Action Network, which Boehm described as "a quick response network" of 5,000 people who have pledged to write or call their representatives in Springfield and voice their concern about specific issues. IPAC is seeking them to do so.

BOEHM SAID IPAC's main action this summer will be in Springfield on issues of concern to Illinois consumers. The main theme of the group's plan, said lobbyist in the state capital, is "a two-year, dual-frontal attack. IPAC attempts to influence federal actions affecting the state, and the Citizen Action Network, a loose grouping of public action groups from 25 states. CAM is currently leading the fight against the Social Security Act, Social Security Act of Living Adjustments."

ALTHOUGH IPAC does not get involved in local issues, Boehm said the group does provide local leadership or announce for local organizations. "They can organize their communities better than we can. However, on the state scale, we can still lead the 'Gale than they are."" There is work being done on several bills before the Illinois House and Senate that would fundamentally change the nature of the insurance industry in the state.

HOUSE BILL 3232 focuses on increasing the Ohio State, if passed, the bill would require insurance companies to justify rate increases in excess of 15 percent or more. The new rule would not go into effect until the Illinois Department of Insurance approved the increase or decrease.

Boehm said the bill was designed to stop insurance companies from making unwise investment decisions such as the ones that IPAC contended led to the crisis in liability insurance. When interest rates were high in the early 1970s, insurance companies used their "almost bargain basement prices" to increase the amount of premium money available for investment in the lucrative real estate market and high interest bonds, Boehm said.

AND WHEN interest rates decreased, the insurance companies found they were not making enough on their investments and raised their premiums again, he said.

Although the insurance industry claims the recent rise in premiums was brought about by an increase in litigation and an increase in jury awards to defendants, Boehm contends that the number of suits filed per capita has remained fairly constant since 1959. And taking inflation into account, he said, the amount of money awarded to damaged parties has remained constant as well.

"THERE ARE more claims, there are bigger claims," Boehm concedes. "But over the past 30 years the ratios have not changed any. There are still the same amount of suits brought by a person. Because the population is greater there are more suits. But the average award is comparable to what has been awarded in the past."

The dramatic rise in liability premiums in the past few years in four Illinois municipalities, park districts and school districts particularly hard, Boehm said. "Many communities have seen their insurance coverage declining or their coverage canceled."

TO ALLEVIATE the pressure on governor's actuarial force need passage of Illinois House Bill 3234, which would allow local governmental bodies to obtain excess insurance coverage from a pool formed by the bodies. The pool would cover certain liability rate increases in excess of $1 million, Boehm said.

IPAC is also working with both groups in both Illinois Senate, Senate Bill 2839 would abolish joint and several liability, thus forcing an uninjured party to sue all wrongdoers involved in the suit individually rather than just the party that's the most responsible. Illinois' strict product liability laws, and limit punitive damage awards to economic losses, such as money that could have been lost wages.

IPAC WAS FOUNDED in 1975. The group claims 80,000 members, in addition to 50,000 supporters in the various affiliated groups. In addition to its lobbying activities and the behalf of insurance regulation, IPAC has campaigned for reform of the public utility industry.

In 1985, the group succeeded in getting the General Assembly to approve a revision of the Public Utilities Act that changed the structure of the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs, the state's staff on utility regulation.

THE REVISION split the DCCA staff into two groups, a research and a basic research and forecasting staff. Following the review of the act, Boehm said, the DCCA was not doing any long-range forecasting of Illinois' energy needs. That task was left up to the utilities.

Boehm said IPAC was also campaigning for reform of state laws governing the compensation of public utilities. Under law, utilities are guaranteed a set profit every year, regardless of the level of energy use.

Two students join ranks of Peace Corps

Two SIUC-C students are joining the ranks of the Peace Corps and working to help relieve the world of its burdens of hunger, illiteracy and disease.

Kenneth S. Hawkins of Carbondale will leave for the Peace Corps in July to instruct future English teachers. He will be working at the University of Antananarivo, a teacher's college in Malagai, Ilamaka.

Paige, who received a bachelor's degree in political and natural sciences and majored in agricultural education and mechanization, already has left for Ghana, where she will work as a nutritionist. She is a maternal and child care health care clinic.

Hawkins said he has planned to join the Peace Corps since he was 7 and heard John F. Kennedy challenge college students to help people themselves.

Paige, who lived in Nepal with her parents from 1969 to 1972, has returned to the country several times to teach Khmer in Cambodia. Her father, Donald Paige, a professor of education at the University, was sent by SIU to improve teacher education in the country.

Civil Service Council officers elected

Max Valdron of the Physical Plant was re-elected chairman of the Civil Service Employees Council for 1986- 1987.

Other newly elected members seated June 1 at the Civil Service Council meeting were: Edvige O'Mara, vice chairman; Henrietta Miller, finance officer; and Janie Miller, treasurer.

COUNCIL members representing the Academic Affairs Council are Marka, Barbara Humphrey, Geraldine Kelley, Bonnie Long, Miller and Saunders. Campus Services is represented by Edwin Bryant, Jamie Coffey, Ray Furrill, Roger Hines and Waldron.

Jacqueline Nicholson and Kay Hamilton represent University Relations.

Saluki volleyball camp attracts 454 campers

By Steve Koulou
Sports Editor

Winning isn't the top priority of the 11th Annual Saluki Volleyball Camp says Debbie Hunter, the camp director and SIU-C head volleyball coach. "We let the campers compete but we don't want it to get too out of hand," Hunter said. "We encourage them to do things and see things as correctly as possible.

Overall, 454 campers are enrolled in the three-day sessions, which started Sunday night at the Arena and run through June 30. Hunter said most of the campers come from Central and Southern Illinois.

"Usually we have well over 500 kids enrolled," Hunter said. "This is the first time we haven't had to turn people away in four or five years." Hunter and her staff completed its first three-day session Wednesday, which consisted of high school campers. The five remaining sessions this month include: a high school camp of 14 teams (June 19-21); a junior high novice camp (June 19-21); a high school elite camp (June 19-23); and two high school camps (June 22-26 and 27-30).

Hunter said the two main goals of the camps are to improve the quality of high school volleyball, which in turn helps the college game, and to expose the Saluki volleyball program to the public.

"It gives the campers a technical view of the skills they are trying to learn," she said. "We try to make sure they have a mental view of what they are doing." Hunter and her staff distributes three awards during the camp sessions: one for the camp team champion, camp hunter awards (individuals who display the most effort), and camp kangaroo awards (individuals with the highest vertical jumps).

Even though some former Saluki volleyball players, including Jill Brooker and Chris Boyd, have attended the camps when they were in high school, Hunter said the camps don't play a major role in her recruiting.

The women's sports that received increases are basketball (19 percent), field hockey (1 percent), softball (11 percent) and track-cross country (8 percent).

Losers in the women's department are women's gymnastics, which is being dropped as an intercollegiate sport (18 percent), swimming (1 percent), tennis (See BUDGET, Page 10)

Summer all work and no play for Saluki gymnasts

By M.J. Starshak

While many SIU-C athletes are getting some much-needed rest and relaxation this summer, members of the Saluki men's gymnastics team will be busy traveling to exhibitions and continuing their year-round training.

Saluki coach Bill Meade took his athletes to the University of Iowa May 15-19, where they took part in the United States Gymnastics Federation Mideast Regional Trials. The top gymnasts from the trials qualified for the Championships of the U.S.A.

Out of a field of 154 gymnasts, only 72 athletes qualified for the championships. Four of those 72 athletes hailed from SIU-C. Former Saluki Brian Rabboock, John Levy, David Luterman and Brendan Price will advance to the competition in Indianapolis on June 19-22.

Meade commented that he was quite pleased that Price was the first time that the

Pompon routines abound for 4-day cheerleader camp

By Mary Winiarski
Staff Writer

High school cheerleaders, pompon squads, dance and drill teams have been learning and polishing routines since Monday at the Universal Cheerleading Association's summer camp being held at Thompson Point.

The four-day program is sponsored by Universal Dance Camps, Inc., headquartered in Memphis, Tenn.

Professional instructors of Universal Dance Camps, Inc., an affiliate of UCA, are offering private coaching and holding seminars for the all-girl group of about 80.

Instructor John Conrad, Jr., said male cheerleading is gaining popularity at the college level, but co-ed squads in high schools are still relatively rare.

"Male cheerleaders use sharper, more masculine moves and serve as the bases for partner stunts," Conrad explained. "I'll bet in two years, co-ed cheerleading in high schools is going to really catch on," he said.

Conrad, former head cheerleader from the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana, said special emphasis will be put on "spotting," a safety procedure in which participants observe each other for proper form.

Still smiling after a demonstration of the shoulder-straddle technique, he said new cheers, pyramids, dances, and sideline stunts will be included in the training.

Julie Wright, seventh-grader from Thompsonville Junior High School, said she joined the camp simply because she wanted to "cheer next year." Marilyn Harris, group sponsor, said the training camps help raise the competition level among cheerleaders.

The girls work from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. and are divided into intermediate, advanced, beginning cheer, and pyramid squads.

A second cheerleading camp will be held July 9-12. Call Jeannie Bortz at 436-7751 to register.

Bicycle decal enforcement to begin, violators will pay

Starting June 20, bicycles parked on campus without campus decals will be confiscated by the University Police, says Marilyn Hogan, campus parking manager.

Police will lock unregistered bicycles to bike racks and place notices on them informing violators that they have 24 hours to contact a police officer to unlock it.

If the police are not contacted, lock will be cut and the bicycle will be taken to the Security Police Department. In either case, returned bicycles will cost $3 for impoundment, $5 for non-registration, and $2 for registration.

Decals can be obtained by bringing bicycles to the Parking Division Office in Washington Square. Bicycles taken there will be checked for reflectors on both tires.

Instructors named judges for 1986 NCTE awards

Two SIU-C instructors have been appointed to act as regional judges for the 1986 National Council of Teachers of English Achievement Awards in Writing.

Professor Bruce C. Appleby and Mr. Roy Weshinskey will work under the direction of state coordinators.

Approximately 800 high school seniors are cited for excellence in writing and are recommended to colleges and universities for admission and financial aid each year through this nationally recognized competition.

The NCTE is made up of more than 90,000 teachers and institutional members from elementary school through graduate college.

Cemetery recognized for Memorial Day rites

By Carolyn Schmidt
St. Louis

Woodlawn Cemetery in Carbondale gained national historical recognition because it was the first cemetery in Illinois and one of the first in the United States to hold a community-wide Memorial Day celebration.

The cemetery, 406 E. Main St., was placed on the National Register of Historic Places by the United States Department of the Interior last year. Sites and structures placed on the register must have national historic significance and are assured preservation by the Department of the Interior.

Carbondale Mayor Helen Westberg said Woodlawn was chosen for the register because of its close association with John A. Logan, a native of Southern Illinois who was the speaker at the first Memorial Day Service on April 29, 1866.

Logan was so moved by the ceremony that he was compelled to issue the General 11 Order, which asked citizens to decorate the graves of soldiers and commemorate Memorial Day with a national observance, Westberg said.

This year's Memorial Day services at Woodlawn, which were attended by about 150 to 200 people, gave special attention to the honor, as Westberg unveiled a plaque stating Woodlawn's placement on the register.

The placement was a culmination of a year-long effort by Westberg, other city officials and citizens. Westberg said they had to demonstrate Woodlawn's historical significance to the Illinois Historical Advisory Committee, which then voted unanimously to recommend to the National Register in Washington that Woodlawn Cemetery be placed on the register.

"Cemeteries are not normally eligible, so we know in the beginning that we had to have a strong case to make the list," she said.

Michael McNerney of the American Resources Group and former member of the Illinois Historic Advisory Council, directed the preparation for the application to the National Register. Tischener, a doctoral student in art, prepared the application, Westberg said.

Elisabeth Leigthy, a former city clerk; John Wright, an area historian; Frank Bridges, a great-grandson of Daniel Brain, who was a founder of Carbondale; and Janet Vaugh, city clerk served as the cemetery register was a matter of community pride.

Mayor Westberg said having the ceremony register was a matter of community pride.

LaRouchites nixed from speakers list

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) -- Supporters of right-wing extremist Lyndon LaRouche were not allowed to speak at this Saturday's Illinois Democratic Party convention, the state Democratic chairman said.

LaRouche supporters who held spots on the Democratic ticket during the primary election will attend the convention.

Demuzio said he's not even sure the party officials will allow Mark Fairchild and Janice Hart inside the Springfield union hall where the convention will be held, much less allow them to address the gathering. Fairchild was the surprise victor for lieutenant governor and Hart was the upset winner for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state.

"It's a small hall," Demuzio said. "They're not Democrats. We're not going to give them any credibility."

Many students who were not covered under the state basic and dependent dental plans will now be offered.

Dental coverage was added to the state employees' insurance as a result of contract negotiation with employee unions, he said.

Capie said the coverage will automatically be added to all of the new state basic and health maintenance organization plans. Dependents who were not covered on employees' insurance plans will not be able to be included now, he said, unless the insurance company has accepted proof of insurability on the dependents.

Capie said that all dependents covered on the employees' insurance, however, will receive the dental coverage.
