No change

Student aid not likely to modify

By Christiann Baxter
Staff Writer

No big changes are predicted for federal student financial aid when the Higher Education Act is reauthorized, said an SIUC official.

Director of Financial Aid Pamela A. Britton said she recommends that grant eligibility and funding be increased, the financial aid process be simplified and the College Work-Study program be administered with more flexibility.

Selective service registration and drug abuse statements on financial aid forms are unnecessary, Britton said.

"Our nation can ill afford to limit federal financial aid opportunities when education should be viewed as an investment in our economic future, rather than an expenditure," she said.

More than 19,000 students at SIUC received financial aid in the 1990-91 school year.

The Higher Education Act of 1965 established federal programs for student financial aid. The act must be reauthorized every 4 years, and changes can be made at this time. Congress has until Sept. 30 to make the reauthorization, but the legislature will give itself a one-year extension.

"This is the authorization of the programs themselves," Britton said. "It's not supposed to be based on budget, but it is."

"Attention will be given to increasing grant assistance to low-income students and measures to address student loan defaults. They'll clamp down on institutions with high default rates."

The Bush administration has its own ideas about changes that need to be made, said Robert Shireman, U.S. Sen. Paul Simon's top aide on the Education Subcommittee.

"Bush isn't talking about new resources in education, but about transferring funds from one program to another," Shireman said.

Simon, D-Makanda, hopes to give more aid to middle-income students, increase grant programs and simplify the financial aid process, Shireman said.

Report: State $1.1 billion in red from unpaid taxes

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

Poor systems, records make most of it impossible to collect

State residents and businesses owe Illinois nearly $1.1 billion in taxes, but inadequate systems and records make it impossible to collect the money, according to a recent report.

A management and program audit report done by the Office of the Auditor General states the record-keeping systems at the Department of Revenue have not been updated to a level where an accurate dollar amount of owed taxes can be figured.

The report signed by Auditor

General Robert G. Cronson states that the Department of Revenue reported $1.088 billion in total sales and income taxes owed to the state, of which an estimated $868 million were uncollectible.

According to the report, there are four major problem areas in the Department of Revenue's collection procedures.

■ Sales and income taxes receivable are maintained on five separate, nonuniform reporting systems.

■ The Department of Revenue's largest computerized tax system, the sales tax system, is its least reliable and has not been redesigned since 1971. The Department of Revenue began redesigning that system in November 1988, but the portion of the system that relates to taxes receivable has not been implemented.

■ The Department of Revenue could not fully document the methods used to estimate uncollectible accounts and could not replicate the procedures used to estimate uncollectible taxes because of incomplete records and reliance on a single preparer. Therefore, taxes receivable reports may not be as reliable as they should be.

■ The Department of Revenue has not systematically analyzed the adequacy of its collection staffing levels. Existing data do not show a relationship between more staff and more

Carbondale Police honored with national accreditation

By Wayne Frazer
and Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writers

The Carbondale Police will join a select group of forces this summer with a national accreditation.

The operations of the police were tested by members of The Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies Inc. Carbondale Police Chief Don Strom said the scope of the inquiry was tremendous.

Strom said the police force must meet more than 900 standards and for a department the size of Carbondale's, some standards are mandatory.

Beth Denniston, director of communications for the commission, said of the 911 standards a police force must meet, the first standard is the most important.

"Here at the agency, our first requirement is the force must state its mission and its goals," Denniston said.

"We regard the mission and goals as the essence of every organization and that is why it is our first standard."

Only 170 of the 40,000 police forces nationwide are currently accredited. Of those, only 14 are in the state of Illinois. Strom said Carbondale has reason to be proud.

"Other than the Illinois State Police, the rest of the accredited forces in Illinois are suburbs of Chicago," Strom said.

"We're the representative of the other end of the state. The whole

Prosecutors push tough drug bill

By Leslie Colp

State prosecutors may soon join forces against drug dealers.

Jim Leach, spokesman for Attorney General Roland Burris, said a bill now before the Illinois Senate, if passed, would make possible a state-wide grand jury for multi-county narcotics cases.

State's attorneys now only have jurisdiction within their own county.

"These drug dealers are very sophisticated and most local prosecutors don't have the time and resources to devote to it," he said.

Leach said many state's attorneys thought if other crimes were included in the bill the grand jury might become too powerful.

Jackson County State's Attorney Charles Grace was not available for comment.

Statewide grand juries already are in nine states including Arizona, Colorado, Florida and South Carolina. Leach said there was no way to tell how much Illinois could benefit if the bill passes. South Carolina, which has had a state-wide grand jury for two years, took in about $2 million from the sale of property used for drug trafficking.

South Carolina spent $600,000 to operate the state wide program during that time.

The bill, as sent to the full senate, would give 60 percent of the proceeds to law enforcement, 25 percent to community drug prevention programs and treatment and 15 percent would go to the attorney general's office to fund the program.

State Sen. Ralph Dunn, R-Du Quoin, said he is not strongly in favor of the bill and will decide how to vote only after hearing more debate.

"I want to be sure it is not a political move for Burris to get more power," he said.

Earth First! trio guilty

By Wayne Frazer
Staff Writer

Three Earth First! members were found guilty of criminal charges at Jackson County Courthouse Wednesday in Murphysboro.

Rene Cook of Pomona was found guilty of criminal trespass. Thomas "Trey" Herd of Carbondale was found guilty of obstruction of a peace officer, and John Wallace of rural Makanda was found guilty of disorderly conduct.

Alan Morris was cleared on a charge of criminal trespass.

The three were arrested last September protesting the sale of timber from the Fairview area of the Shawnee National Forest.

Wallace said he was unhappy with the way the trial was handled.

"We had been hoping to get more evidence in, but the judge did not admit it," he said. "We requested the necessity defense but it was rejected."

The necessity defense allows the defense to fight charges on the grounds the action was necessary to stop a greater criminal act.

Bulls head off Lakers as Chicago watches

CHICAGO (UPI) — The world won't stop in Chicago Wednesday night. It may only seem that way.

Police are expecting emergency calls to be down. Hospitals say fewer people will visit emergency rooms and eat-in restaurants fear a big drop-off in business.

The reason: A lot of people will be stricken with Bulls fever.

The Chicago Bulls are on the brink of capturing their first National Basketball Association championship.

Symptoms include eyes that remain glued to a television set and legs that won't walk away from the tube unless a commercial is on. Crime probably won't stop, but it may slow down.

"Everything was down Sunday during the Bulls game. There were just fewer people on the streets," Chicago Police Gang Crimes Section Commander Robert Dart said.

There was also a dramatic decline in 911 calls in the city.

"We saw a 20 to 50 percent reduction in the number of admissions" during Friday night's Bulls game, said Mike Maggio, a spokesman for Loyola University Medical Center in Maywood.

Missouri golfer wins tourney

Childress of SIUC captures fifth place

By Jackie Spinner
Sports Editor

Former University of Missouri golfer Barbara Blanchar clinched the 6th Annual Signe Solverson Memorial Golf Tournament title Wednesday at the Jackson Country Club in Murphysboro.

The 23-year-old golfer is a familiar face at the tournament. This was her sixth appearance in the memorial tournament, which honors Solverson, a Carbondale native and member of the SIUC women's golf team who was killed in an auto accident in 1985.

Blanchar shot two over the par-71 course both Tuesday and Wednesday to clinch her second Solverson tournament title with a two-day score of 146.

She fell shy of a tournament title last year against first-timer Erica Firmhaber, who beat Blanchar in a sudden death playoff.

Blanchar won the tournament in 1989 with a 153 two-day total after placing second, fourth and second respectively in her early appearances.

Solverson's mother, Ginny, said the tournament attracts some of the area's best women golfers, some of whom have gone on to play professionally.

"We're trying to promote junior golf for girls ages 14 to 26," Solverson said. "It gives the college girls another year or so to play, and a number of golfers have now gone on to be pros."

Firmhaber now is playing on the Women's Future Tour as an amateur. Cindy Mueller of Belleville, the 1988 winner, also is playing on the Future Tour and has played in two U.S. Opens.

Saluki golfer Anne Childress tied for fifth in the tournament with a two-day total of 159.

The junior golfer from Noblesville, Ind., said the field of golfers in the tournament is fairly competitive.

"The divisions are real close," she said. "It seems like everyone has chance and that there are no favorites."

The only other Saluki golfer to play in the tournament was Laura Stefanich of Indiana. She shot a 176 two-day total to finish 14th in the tournament.

Jen Cully, 22, of Bloomington took second in the tournament with a two-day total of 151.

Angie Moore, 21, of Decatur and a member of the Illinois State University women's golf team placed third with a two-day score of 153.

University of South Alabama golfer Jen Shillington, 20, placed fourth with a two-day score of 157. Her Alabama teammate Maria Palozola, 20, tied Childress for fifth place at 17 over par.

Owners give endorsement

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — Baseball's ownership committee unanimously agreed Wednesday to recommend the addition of Denver and Miami as National League expansion franchises to the full body of owners.

In what was regarded as the next-to-last hurdle before the cities gain approval to join the National League for the 1993 season, the committee endorsed the Denver ownership group, headed by Steve Ehrhart, and H. Wayne Huizenga's effort in Miami.

The National and American leagues then met separately, but a vote on the two cities after a presentation by the expansion committee was not likely by the close of the first day of the two-day quarterly owners meetings.

"The ownership committee's function is completed," said ownership committee chairman Fred Kuhlmann, president of the St.

Louis Cardinals. "The matter is now in the hands of the expansion committee and the leagues themselves."

The expansion committee, headed by Pittsburgh Pirates chairman Douglas Danforth, announced their recommendation of the Miami and Denver groups on Monday.

An expansion city must receive approval from nine of the 12 NL owners and a majority of the 14 American League owners. Baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent has

Three Saluki baseball players drafted to majors

White Sox, Tigers, A's sign on Saluki players

By John Sommerhof
Staff Writer

Saluki Baseball coach Sam Riggleman says it's not a college coach's job to turn out p ballplayers.

"Sometimes it just happens.

Three Saluki players were drafted into the major leagues after their 1991 season at SIUC.

Sean Bergman, Kurt Endebrook and Al Levine were all chosen by major league teams in the June 1991 draft.

"None of these players had been drafted out of high school, so something we did in the years they were here with us made them progress," Riggleman said. "We like to think it was a statement of our instruction and the environment we put them in."

The highest drafted player was ace right-hander Bergman, who was drafted in the fourth round by the Detroit Tigers.

Bergman finished the 1991 season with a 4-6 record and 99 strikeouts, which made him No. 3 in career strikeouts for one season at SIUC.

He was the Saluki baseball team all-time

Top high school Wisconsin player joins baseball roster of new recruits

After sliding off a disappointing 1991 season, the Saluki baseball team is rebuilding for next year with a roster of top recruits.

Wisconsin Baseball Player-of-the-Year Mike Blang is the Salukis top recruit.

The 6-foot-4-inch, 214-pound pitcher from Manona, Wis., signed a national letter of intent to play at SIUC.

"He is a big strong kid and can throw in the mid-80 mph range" said Saluki baseball coach Sam Riggleman. "We didn't see many kids this spring that could throw much better than him."

Riggleman said he has no plans to redshirt the in-coming freshman.

leader in innings pitched (272.2) and finished third in overall career strikeouts with 202.

Endebrook was drafted in the 16th round by the Oakland A's. He was a versatile infielder for the Salukis and finished the 1991 season with a .266 batting average.

The junior stole 22 bases in the 1991 season and had a career total of 56.

Endebrook had a career batting average of .301 and finished his SIUC career fourth in at-bats with 700.

Juniors Bergman and Endebrook are leaving SIUC a year early for the pros.

Riggleman said being drafted as a junior is the time when a player is the most marketable.

It also gives young, junior players the chance to bargain, he said.

"We encourage kids to finish their degrees, but there is a prime time for kids to take the opportunity of the pros," Riggleman said. "In this particular instance these two are ready to go."

Saluki pitcher Levine declined an offer from the San Diego Padres last year so he could finish his degree.

But by staying to finish his degree at SIUC last year, Levine didn't miss his chance to be drafted into the majors.

Levine was drafted in the 11th round by the Chicago White Sox.

The senior standout was the ace reliever for the Salukis and led the Missouri Valley Conference with a 1.71 ERA.

He finished the 1991 season with a 5-5 record and six saves. He holds the SIUC career record for saves with 19, and his 54 games pitched is second in the record books.

"Not everyone is coming out of here is a pro player but there are those getting a chance," Riggleman said. "We must be doing something correct."

Russians vote in first direct election of leader in history

MOSCOW (UPI) — Russians voted Wednesday in the first direct election of a leader in the history of the Soviet Union's largest republic and were expected to give Boris Yeltsin a strong popular mandate to challenge central Communist rule. While Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev said after casting his ballot he will work with whoever is elected to run the republic, a victory for Yeltsin would be seen as a clear vote for more radical reform and less central government control. There were 105 million eligible voters.

Saddam orders executions of trapped Shiites

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Iran said Wednesday that Iraqi troops continued to kill Shiite Muslims trapped in marshes along the Iranian border and a German diplomat said Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein ordered mass executions of his Shiite opponents. Tehran Radio quoted refugees as saying Iraqi troops began their offensive in the marshes on Monday with armored vehicles, artillery, boats and infantry. The radio, monitored in Athens, said Iraqi troops massacred hundreds of Shiite refugees and captured hundreds of others.

100 victims believed to be buried in secret grave

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — Guatemalan officials are searching for a secret graveyard where at least 100 victims of political killings are believed to be buried, police said Wednesday. Police said the investigation is based on complaints by the National Coordination of Guatemalan Widows, mostly Indian widows of victims of the 30-year-old civil war that has taken about 120,000 lives. The widows allege the bodies of at least 100 Indian men and women are buried in a secret graveyard in Quiche Province, 60 miles northeast of the capital.

U.S. warns China against giving missiles to Syria

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State James Baker warned China Wednesday that delivering missiles to Syria would create "potentially profound consequences," and said the Soviet Union may be undergoing the "most important revolution in this century." Testifying before a Senate Appropriations subcommittee, Baker responded to reports that the Chinese were selling Syria surface-to-surface missiles that could hit Israel. He said the United States did not have any evidence that missiles had been delivered to Syria.

Bush party pooper for birthday celebration

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Bush turned 67 Wednesday, declaring any celebrations of his birthday off limits. "Nothing planned," said White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, relaying the presidential order. "He has requested that there not be any celebration of his birthday." So what about the 1,000 people invited to hear a domestic policy speech on the South lawn in the evening? Are they just going to ignore the event? No cake, no ice cream? The spokesman was asked. "It's the honest-to-God truth that as of this morning there was nothing scheduled or planned."

Testimony heard to choose site for nuclear waste facility

MARTINSVILLE (UPI) — A three-member commission Wednesday began listening to testimony in its effort to decide if a 300-acre parcel of land in southeastern Illinois is safe for the state to build a low-level nuclear waste storage facility. Illinois must have a radioactive repository built by 1993 or face serious financial penalties and the panel is hearing testimony from witnesses for five weeks about a site in Clark County. At the first day, about 100 people showed up in the town where the state wants to buy land to locate the facility. Some residents attending the courtroom-style hearings were wearing "No Dump."

Organizers expect big crowd for boardwalk festival

By Allan Towell
Staff Writer

Members of the Makanda Boardwalk Association are hoping to see the population of their village double or even triple this weekend.

The third annual Makanda Fest, an arts, crafts and music festival, will take place in downtown Makanda on June 15 and 16.

Anita Abney, festival chairperson, said she was anticipating a good turnout this year.

"Last year we were very pleased with the number in attendance despite 100 degree weather," Abney said.

There will be no admission or parking fees for the two-day festival, which will feature exhibits by local and national artists, craft demonstrations including blacksmithing, rug weaving and bent willow furniture making and continuous live music.

The musical stage, which will be in the parking lot across from the boardwalk, will feature a variety of musical styles, including blues, folk and gospel performers, in addition to a 16-member barbershop choir.

"This year we'll have a tent set up in front of the stage so spectators can enjoy the bands from a comfortable, shaded area," said Abney.

Between bands, tapes of Makanda folk singer Doug McDaniel will be played and donations will be taken in his memory for the benefit of his family.

Aldon Addington, associate professor in the School of Art and Design, will be one of the artists demonstrating at the festival. Addington, a sculptor who works with stainless steel, said he is looking forward to participating in his first Makanda Fest.

"I'll have examples of my work on display, and in addition I'll be setting up a coal-fired forge which I'll use to heat up metal in order to show how different sculpture techniques are accomplished," he said.

A coal-fired forge is a metal oven used to heat the steel to a temperature at which it is pliable.

Addington has demonstrated his techniques at colleges and art festivals across the country, and said he enjoys introducing spectators to the mechanics of his craft.

Cobden resident Rory Jaros also will be demonstrating his craft. Jaros builds chairs out of ring-porous hardwoods, such as oak and hickory.

"They're going to have a nice set-up at the festival this year. I'm really looking forward to it," said Jaros, who has participated in Makanda Fest for the past two years.

While the music and the arts and crafts will appeal primarily to adults, there will be activities to keep children occupied, also. Kite flying demonstrations and face painting, activities sure to appeal to younger festival-goers, will be offered.

Food, including gyros, corn dogs, ice cream and lemonade, will be available.

Makanda is located eight miles south of Carbondale off of U.S. Highway 51. The downtown boardwalk area is located near the west entrance to Giant City State Park.

'Sun spot storm' effects unknown

By Christine Leninger
Staff Writer

Wednesday night's geomagnetic storm, caused by Monday's solar flares, was taken in stride by local broadcasters.

Arnold Killian of KFVS-TV in Cape Girardeau said that no precautions were being taken to avoid damage to their operation.

Killian said if there is interference with the satellite during a geomagnetic storm, CBS will prompt them soon enough so that KFVS could accommodate by switching to their second satellite.

As of 3:45 p.m. yesterday afternoon, CBS had not yet prompted the television station to any dangers.

Killian also said that this type of storm, a "sun spot storm," usually occurs twice a year.

Clouds preventing visibility of the northern lights, flashes or glows in the sky, were the only interference that probably occurred Wednesday night.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration—Air Force Environment Services said the northern lights were supposed to be visible from as far south as a line extending from Norfolk, Va., through Tulsa, Okla., to just south of San Francisco.

University ID cards not used to potential

WHEN THE UNIVERSITY TOOK student photos for the new magnetic identification card they told us a debit purchasing feature was being planned for the summer or fall of 1991. The Carbondale Chamber of Commerce has asked the University to delay those plans and that is wasting University money.

The University already has leased the equipment needed for the debit card system. Right now that equipment is stored away doing nothing. The University has wasted $23,885 dollars on the equipment in the past six months. If a plan for the system isn't put into action in another six months, the total amount thrown away would be more than $47,000.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE opposes implementation of the debit card system. However, if the University goes with the system, the Chamber board would like to see the city involved. SIUC President John Guyon, trying to maintain good relations with the city, is holding off on the debit system for an indefinite amount of time to look at the problems.

ACCORDING TO THE CHAMBER board, the cost of leasing machines to use the card—$3,170 for the first year and $1,109 for each year after—would be too much for many small businesses. The Campus Debit-Card Focus Group composed of four city representatives and 10 campus representatives, has determined that if SIUC goes ahead with the plan, 710 Bookstore should be included in the system. 710 Bookstore has said it would be willing to invest the money to try the system. The system could prove to be beneficial to area businesses and may not be harmful to some small businesses. If open dialogue between the city and the University is maintained, problems the city finds have a chance on being worked out. Guyon has shown willingness to listen.

THE CHAMBER BOARD ALSO pointed out to Guyon that the proposed Vali-Dine debit system may prevent the University from taking advantage of emerging technology that interfaces with the banking industry and may be less expensive. This technology would allow students to use their automatic teller machine cards at businesses. Not all students have ATM cards; all students have Vali-Dine cards. The University spent close to three years investigating systems and found the Vali-Dine system to be one of the most flexible, up-to-date systems available.

THE STUDENTS ARE LOSING out because of the fears of the city and the timidity by University decision makers. The University should not stop two-thirds of the way into a $231,000 ID system that has two to three years of planning behind it and has proven itself capable at other institutions.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors. The letters space will be a forum for discussion of issues of public interest. Open, civil dialogue is the aim. Letters may be edited for length and content. Letters of fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Letters will be limited to 300 words. Letters that the editors deem objectionable because of potentially libelous material or because of extraordinary bad taste will not be published. Access to the letters space will be afforded to as many writers as possible to encourage diversity of points of view. Editors may impose, at their discretion, a limit on the frequency of publication of letters by an author. When a multitude of letters on the same subject are received, editors may select a few letters that are representative of those letters for publication.

Every letter must be signed and submitted in person by its author or authors. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department, others by address and occupation or position appropriate to the nature of their letters. Letters for which authorship cannot be verified will not be published.

Dollars fly; minds change

I am a strong supporter of President George Bush and my support of his presidency is dwindling these days due to recent developments unfolding in Washington D.C.

During the campaign, he promised a kinder and gentler nation and conformity to acceptable professional standards of conduct among elected officials and those in the civil service.

The recent news that White House Chief of Staff, John H Sununu has spent about $30,000 (within 2 years in office) in tax payer money on air force jets on mostly private trips is unjustified. It has also been reported that Vice President Dan Quayle took a $27,000 on weekend golfing trip to Augusta, Georgia with the transportation secretary, Samuel Skinner.

To me and many other students, all these expensive trips are not justified most especially at a time when educational funds are being cut and public infrastructures are in bad shape.

May I ask where the president stands on these free, private but public sponsored trips by his aides?

Do these events tally with the ethical conduct expected of highly placed people in his administration?—Jeremiah Elugbadebo, graduate student unclassified.

Priest's humane acts needed

This letter is in response to comments made by Mr. William D. Curtis (DE June 11, "Priest criticized for helping fellow man").

Father Joe Van Leeuwen has done exceptional community work and has served his fellow mankind well. There is nothing wrong in being "people oriented". It is refreshing to note in the increasingly materialistic era we live in, there are people who are not consumed by this rat-race, but dedicate their lives to humanitarian needs.

I wonder if Mr. Curtis objects to the works of Mother Theresa. Serving the community is an excellent way of doing service to God.

I find Mr. Curtis criticisms to be in bad taste and I'm sure scores of Carbondale residents would wholeheartedly agree with me. Might I add that the large turnout for his farewell party at Newman Center is proof of recognition and appreciation of Father Joe.

Mr. Curtis is obviously well versed in the readings of the bible. But it seems the verses he quoted were chosen simply to suit his weak arguments, a poor interpretation of the Good Book.—Vinod Mionon, sophomore, electrical engineering.

Clergyman's compassion supported

With Monday's letter about a priest at the Newman Center, will we begin another round of letter writing about who is or is not following the Bible?

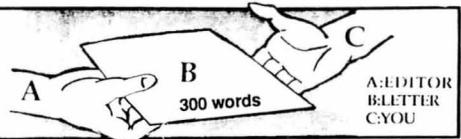

Perhaps we can agree with Coleridge. In "The Rime of the Ancient Mariner," the poet says that anyone "prayeth best who loveth best, all things both great and small."

Priest or not, if someone does this; it should be enough.

There is one serious disagreement I have with this center! It reports, in "The Newman News," that some of those attending a ceremony there had "glassy eyes."

This condition is usually a fixed stare resulting from boredom or fatigue. If what they say is true, they'd better do something about the length of their sermons! Or did they mean to say "misty eyed?"—Larry Roemer, junior, English.

taxes collected. Department of Revenue spokesman Kevin Johnson said the department agreed with the findings, but things are not as bad as they seem since the process of updating systems has already begun.

Of the total amount owed, Johnson said one third of it is uncollectible because it is under legal dispute and nothing can be done until a ruling is made.

"If we could collect it all it would help the state's financial status, but it's just not possible," Johnson said. "You are always going to have people who are deadbeats and people who die and people in the military."

If a taxpayer is deceased and leaves behind no assets, the chances are slim that owed taxes will ever be collected, he said.

Illinois, however, is able to collect over $.98 of every tax dollar, Johnson said.

Although the department is efficient at collecting taxes, the amount of uncollectible taxes keeps growing because of penalties and interest.

"If we can't collect the original debt, we sure as hell can't collect the increasing penalties and interest," he said.

Once a debt remains for more than three years, it is considered uncollectible because of the additional charges, Johnson said.

Unlike banks and lending institutions, the Department of Revenue can't write off unpaid debts.

Once a debt reaches uncollectible levels, banks can write them off thereby making the total amount owed to the institution more realistic.

The Department of Revenue is working for more liberal write-off standards and developing studies to determine when it is in the best interest of the state to pursue additional collection actions and when accounts should be written off, Johnson said.

Currently accounts of less than $1,000 that are considered uncollectible can be written off, but the Attorney General's Office must approve write-offs of accounts larger than $1,000.

Between Fiscal Year 1981, the first time write-offs were used, and Fiscal Year 1990, a total of nearly $70 million has been written off by the Department of Revenue.

department is very proud of the accomplishment."

Dennison said it is the agency's goal to accredit every force in the nation and, currently there are about 900 forces in the accreditation process.

"There are 170 accredited forces in the nation and 18 of those are forces that went through the process for the second time," Dennison said. "A force is accredited for five years and after that time it must reapply for accreditation."

"Any force which is accredited should be proud. There are very few accredited forces in the nation." The accreditation team read all the department's files on practices and policies. Some changes had to be made, but Strom said the police force is a different organization than it was a few years ago.

"There were changes we made," he said. "We've become more involved with recruitment and drafted a more thorough disaster plan. We also rewrite all the policies and standards files."

Strom said he hopes Carbondale citizens use the accreditation to reinforce their faith in the police.

"It's a way the town can verify its police force is operating at its highest efficiency and holding the highest standards," Strom said.

The results of the study will be given to the national committee at its quarterly meeting later this summer in Springfield.

The committee is expected to go along with the recommendation.

"You can't say it's a done deal, but the committee tends to go along with the recommendation," Strom said.

Chief Strom, accreditation manager Chuck Doan and several other representatives of the force will answer the committee's questions.

Astronauts play with rats in space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The Columbia astronauts took Earth-bound viewers on a tour of their medical research lab Wednesday and began a final push to wrap up studies on the effects of weightlessness as the flight winds down toward a Friday landing.

In case the mission is extended for any reason, the astronauts were asked to put small water packs into 12 cages to make sure 29 lab rats do not run out of water before the animals are removed from the shuttle after touchdown.

Otherwise, the hard-working astronauts spent the day pressing ahead with a battery of ongoing experiments to learn more about the medical effects of weightlessness, research that could help pave the way for future flights to Mars and beyond.

On board was commander Bryan O'Connor, 44, co-pilot Sidney Guiterrez, 39, Tamara Jernigan, 32, James Bagian, 39, Margaret Rhea Seddon, 43, Millie Hughes-Fulford, 45, and cardiologist Andrew "Drew" Gaffney, 45.

With a final full day of data collection on tap Thursday, program scientist Ron White described the success of the 41st shuttle flight as "absolutely remarkable," adding that, "I never dreamed that a Spacelab mission could be this solid."

"We have a little more than a day's worth scientific activity to go on the mission and then we batten up and come home," he said by telephone from the Johnson Space Center in Houston. "We're all pleased here and very excited about the results that people are getting."

While he declined to speculate on just how much of their planned research the astronauts might actually complete, he said all of the mission's primary objectives would be met if all goes well.

"I can tell you flat out we're over (100 percent) by a significant amount," White said.

Well rested after a light day in orbit Tuesday, the astronauts Wednesday took time out to beam down a recorded television tour of Columbia and the bus-sized Spacelab module mounted in the ship's cargo bay where most of their medical research is being conducted.

Live TV later showed the shuttle researchers busily working inside the 23-foot-long laboratory, making a final push to wrap up their pioneering research before packing Thursday for the long glide back to a California landing Friday around 8:40 a.m. PDT at Edwards Air Force Base.

Physicians Bagian and Seddon, along with cardiologist Gaffney and Hughes-Fulford, a biochemist, will remain at Edwards for a full week, duplicating the experiments they carried out in orbit to chart how their bodies readapt to Earth's gravity.

"The reason that we're doing that is the physiological readjustments back to Earth's gravity are as important to understand as the readjustments that took place when we went into space," White said. "In some sense, they're a mirror image of those initial adjustments that took place."

Joining Columbia's human crew are the rats and 2,478 jellyfish. One group of rats will be killed shortly after landing for detailed microscopic studies of bone, muscle, blood and organ tissues. The rest will be put to death about 10 days after touchdown to find out how they readapted to gravity.

As for the jellyfish, scientists plan to study the tiny creatures after touchdown to find out how weightlessness affected the development.

Creativity in motion

Area school cultivates artistic talents through styles of dance

By Jennifer Kuller
Staff Writer

Kathleen Geis wants to set in motion the best of the creative talent already existing in the area.

Geis owns Motion Systems School of Dance, where she has instructed classes in ballet, modern dance and creative movement for two years.

"Southern Illinois doesn't usually strike one as being strong in the arts. But there's a lot going on, and we want to make it stronger," Geis said.

She said she tries to encourage everyone to participate in expressive endeavors such as dance.

"There are some people who may not be strong dancers, but who have some other real innovative and creative aspects to add," Geis said.

She said she hopes to use local artists from many different areas of specialization, such as music and costume design.

"We want to take what's best out of the community and give back to it," Geis said.

Geis said she encourages people to take both classes in ballet and modern dance because important things can be learned from each.

"Ballet is good for discipline. It provides a necessary framework for becoming a good technical dancer," said Geis, who has taught dance for six years.

Geis explained that ballet was developed from folk dances and became more structured in royal courts. As a result, its more structured style of movement doesn't always express things people experience in modern society, she said.

"Modern dance is freer. It allows people to explore their creativity."

Geis also teaches classes in creative movement for children between ages 5 and 12. The class touches on fundamentals of ballet and modern dance and improvisation. People of all ages participate in ballet and modern dance classes. The cost of the classes is $25 a month for children, and $35 for seven adult classes.

Woman jailed for attempting to transmit AIDS to trooper

BELLEVILLE (UPI) — A 35-year-old woman charged with attempting to transmit the AIDS virus by offering to have sex with a state trooper was jailed Wednesday in lieu of $50,000 bond.

Devie Davis of East St. Louis, who was originally arrested on suspicion of prostitution, allegedly "offered to engage in intimate contact" last Thursday with Illinois Trooper Casswell Cawson, a warrant said.

The charge of attempting to transmit the AIDS virus is a felony punishable by up to five years in prison.

The charge of knowingly transmitting a deadly disease is unusual but not unprecedented in the state. Prosecutors in Marion last year used it to convict a male AIDS carrier charged in a sexual abuse case involving his brother.

Davis became the second woman from the Illinois side of the St. Louis metropolitan area to be charged this spring with trying to transmit the AIDS virus.

Felicia Ann Horton, 21, of Alton was charged with the same offense in April for allegedly offering sex to an undercover police officer in Alton. Authorities said Horton was a prostitute who knew she carried the AIDS virus and allegedly had tried to infect others.

Under an agreement with prosecutors, Horton was quarantined in late April at an undisclosed institution in northern Illinois but she walked away from the facility last month and remains at large.

Police said they were continuing their search for Horton, who is considered a public health threat. Court documents filed in the case allege Horton has shared hypodermic needles with other intravenous drug abusers.

Man commits suicide murder plan revealed

NORTH ADAMS, Mich. (UPI) — A self-employed mechanic, who killed himself after two boys escaped his detailed plan to mutilate and murder them, had built an elaborate torture chamber in garage, authorities said Wednesday.

The boys, ages 10 and 12, had spent the night with William Edwin Shaw, a 56-year-old bachelor, in his mobile home Friday night, as they apparently had several times in the past, Hillsdale County Prosecutor Michael Smith said.

The managed to flee and Shaw committed suicide Saturday morning as authorities closed in, authorities said.

Investigators later discovered a handwritten plan on a note pad in which Shaw outlined in gruesome detail how he planned to torture the boys on a pulley-type device in his garage and then kill them.

Both boys were specifically mentioned by their first names in the torture plan, said Hillsdale County Prosecutor Michael Smith.

"He had a plan of castrating both boys, mutilating their genital area with razor blades and also anal areas. It's quite detailed," Smith said.

Smith said the plan did not say why he picked those boys in particular, nor did it list any other potential victims.

They told police their ordeal began when Shaw woke them about 12:45 a.m. Saturday and bound and gagged them.

Shaw dragged the boys down to the garage area, where the older boy managed to escape and hid in a vehicle, he said.

Shaw put the younger boy in van and began searching a rural road for the older boy.

"The second boy convinced him to remove the gag and binds, and as soon as he (Shaw) did, he took off. Shortly thereafter, both boys heard a gunshot."

When police arrived, they found Shaw dead of a rifle wound to the head.

A subsequent investigation turned up the note pad detailing a 29- to 31-step process of torture, mutilation and murder, Smith said.

"On the bottom of the sheet it said, 'Kill both boys,'" he said.

Smith said Shaw, who had lived in the small southern Michigan farming community for more than 10 years, frequently entertained young boys at his home.

Last Wednesday evening, an investigator went to Shaw's home to question him about allegations that he had molested a 13-year-old Toledo, Ohio, boy.

At that time, there was no evidence of a torture device in Shaw's garage, Smith said.

"He allowed the officer to look around. The officer saw nothing at that point," he said.

The Inquisition-style device included a pulley system hanging from the rafters of the garage and secured to the garage floor.

Wires attached to a 2-by-4 board were used to bind the feet, with the hands tied by a rope attached to the pulley, Smith said.

Smith said there was no evidence that Smith had tortured other children, but he said investigators were examining his property carefully to determine if there were any previous victims.

Investigators also were trying to determine if there were any missing children — either locally or elsewhere — "to determine whether it's necessary to unearth any buried bodies."

(But) at this point there is nothing to conclude there are missing children."

Smith said a search of Shaw's home turned up plaques indicating that Shaw may once have been a foster parent.

Hillsdale County Sheriff Gerald M. Hicks said Wednesday investigators planned to interview "a number of the juveniles of that area we believe may have had some type of contact with Mr. Shaw."

Physician forced two abortions

ANDERSON, Ind. (UPI) — A jury convicted a doctor early Wednesday of seven criminal counts of performing abortions on two former girlfriends against their will and attempting to do so on a third.

Dr. Pravin Thakkar, 40, of Frankton could face maximum penalties of 40 years in prison and a $30,000 fine when he is sentenced July 31. Madison County Prosecutor William Lawler asked that Thakkar's bond be revoked because his office had information that Thakkar had used an alias to apply for hospital jobs in Africa and Canada.

Testimony in the trial indicated Thakkar fathered at least two of the three fetuses.

One of the women testified Thakkar, who is married, told her she must not have the child because it would bring shame on his family in India.

Thakkar showed no emotion at the verdicts and left the courtroom without comment but the women who said he bedded and then abused them were downcast.

The convictions were no cause for celebration, said Carmen Singer, 36, of Anderson, who had testified that Thakkar drugged her and delivered her 8-month fetus in his home in October 1983.

She said he told her it was stillborn, although she is sure she heard it cry briefly as she was emerging from anesthesia.

"We lost babies. We lost parts of us," she sobbed.

Man battles for child custody with wife, kills two sons before officers retaliate

HOUSTON (UPI) — A 37-year-old man involved in a custody argument with his wife killed his two young sons before police shot him to death.

Jose Millan Sr., who died early Wednesday at Ben Taub Hospital, was shot numerous times by officers when he turned his gun on them Tuesday night after killing his 6-month- and 22-month-old sons.

Millan had used the boys as shields, and officers could not get a clear shot at him earlier in the standoff, police spokesman Richard Retz said.

The incident began when Millan argued with his wife and took 6-month-old Chris and 22-month-old Jose Jr. hostage in a van and began firing at the family's home. Police talked to Millan for about 10 minutes before he shot the 6-month-old boy, Retz said.

"Just prior to him exiting the van, we believe he took the 6-month-old baby, placed it against his chest and shot the baby one time in the chest with a large-caliber handgun," Retz said.

"The suspect then opened the door and basically fell out of the van, then stood back up holding the 22-month-old baby by the hair in front of him, at which time he placed a large-caliber handgun to the back of the baby's head and fired one time."

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING POLICY

Please Be Sure To Check Your Classified Advertisement For Errors On The First Day Of Publication

The Daily Egyptian cannot be responsible for more than one day's incorrect insertion. Advertisers are responsible for checking their advertisements for errors on the first day they appear. Errors not the fault of the advertiser which lessen the value of the advertisement will be adjusted.

All classified advertising must be processed before 12:00 Noon to appear in the next day's publication. Anything processed after 12:00 Noon will go in the following day's publication. Classified advertising must be paid in advance except for those accounts with established credit. A 25¢ charge will be added to billed classified advertising. A service charge of $7.50 will be added to the advertiser's account for every check returned to the Daily Egyptian unpaid by the advertiser's bank. Early cancellation of a classified advertisement will be charged a $2.00 service fee. Any refund under $2.00 will be forfeited due to the cost of process, ng.

All advertising submitted to the Daily Egyptian is subject to approval and may be revised, rejected, or cancelled at any time.

The Daily Egyptian assumes no liability if for any reason it becomes necessary to omit an advertisement. A sample of all mail order items must be submitted and approved prior to deadline for publication. No ads will be misclassified.

South Africa close to joining Olympics after 21-year ban

BIRMINGHAM, England (UPI) — South Africa is close to being re-admitted to the Olympics, International Olympic Committee President Juan Antonio Samaranch said Wednesday.

Samaranch, speaking at the official opening of the 97th IOC session, said South Africa was close to meeting the conditions for re-admission to the Olympic Movement.

South Africa has been banned from the Olympics since 1970 because of its apartheid government, which practices racial segregation. But the IOC in March granted conditional recognition to the Interim National Olympic Committee of South Africa subject to the abolition of the apartheid laws in the near future.

Samaranch credited the Olympic movement with helping to make strides against apartheid in South Africa. The IOC Apartheid and Olympism Commission, which was created in 1988 under the chairmanship of Judge Keba Mbaye of Senegal, has made progress towards the elimination of apartheid in sport.

"It is our duty to fight against all forms of discrimination affecting the Olympic Movement and apartheid in sport is unacceptable to us," Samaranch said.

The session, officially opened by Queen Elizabeth, begins work Thursday.

Elsewhere, restaurants that rely on delivery are expected to do all right but eat-in eateries will likely suffer.

Mark Donaway, owner of a Homewood restaurant said he fears championship-hungry fans will keep his cash registers virtually silent.

The Organic Theater on the city's North Side has even canceled a performance of a play to avoid competing with the NBA finals.

However, the Arlington Heights Community Band will perform as planned, a comedy club on Chicago's North Side expects a full house and Village of Romeoville trustees are still holding a scheduled workshop.

The Bulls hope to clinch the NBA championship with a win over the Los Angeles Lakers in their best of seven series. If not, game 6 is scheduled for Chicago Friday. The Bulls lead the series 3-1.

called the process a formality.

Vincent expects the owners to put off voting while they take time to review the selections.

"We don't expect a vote at these meetings," said Rich Levin, a spokesman for Vincent.

The final vote could come by mail or telephone within two weeks.

Kuhlmann said there was little opposition in the ownership committee meeting.

"It was discussed for 1 1/4 hours, but I can't say there was much debate," he said "Questions were asked and answers were given."

If approved, Denver and Miami will have beaten out four other finalists — Buffalo, N.Y., Washington and the Florida entries of Orlando and Tampa-St. Petersburg.

The entry fee will be $95 million.

The cost to the winners will rise by an estimated $25 million when the price of players, managers, coaches, equipment, front-office personnel and a farm system is taken into account.

pitcher from Crowder Junior College.

"We're fortunate to get Lemieux," Rigglema said. "He suffered back injuries his first year at Crowder and pitched last year.

"He still has three years of eligibility left," the coach said.

"I would still like to get another player from the junior colleges because of the experience they have," he said.

Riggleman still has two more positions to fill his roster.

He will have 10 new players on the Saluki baseball team before the start of the next season.

Riggleman said with all the young players who are coming in, he plans on getting back to fundamentals and stressing the basics.
