Full Quarter for Freshmen This Summer

Students enrolling at SIU as freshmen in June will have to end a full 11-week quarter instead of the regular eight-week summer session, Raymond Dey, dean of the summer session, said today. All other students will have choice of attending the regular eight-week session, the two weeks, or a combination of the two, he added. Both programs begin June 1. However, the eight-week session ends August 10. The 11-quarter will close August 1. The fall term does not end until September 24. Dean Dey said that SIU has been wanting a full summer session for some time but is not received appropriations previously. The Board of Trustees recently gave its approval to an 11-week summer quarter for freshmen on a trial basis.

The plan is for the summer program to be extended a full quarter in the summer of 1963 for sophomores, the next year for juniors and the following for seniors if it is a success this summer. Classes for freshmen level courses will be 50 minutes long, the same as the regular school year. The first 30-minute class will begin at 8 a.m. Students attending the eight-week session will have 30-minute long classes with the first one starting at 8:30 a.m.—the traditional summer class length and starting time.

"There are a few 100 level courses scheduled for the eight-week program to meet the needs of seniors graduating in August, 1962," Dean Dey explained, "but these will be open to anyone except graduating seniors."

Students attending the eight-week session will be permitted to carry a maximum of 2 hours while those attending the full quarter will have an 18-hour maximum.

According to Dean Dey, it is anticipated that enrollment during the summer will exceed the more than 5,000 students who attended summer session last year.

THE MOMENT of truth is practically at hand and the little man peeking over the stack of books above obviously depicts the feeling of many of his fellow students who will spend this last week end before finals close to the books.

Pan - Am Festival Will Feature Conference On US - Latin Trade

A two-day conference on Midwestern trade relations with Latin America will highlight the Ninth Annual Pan-American Festival on campus April 9-14.

The festival is sponsored annually by the Latin American Institute to stress the close ties between the U.S. and Latin America.

Cooperating with the Institute in sponsoring the trade conference on April 11 and 12 will be SIU's Transportation Institute, Small Business Institute, Community Development Institute and the School of Business.

Ugly Man Title Sought By Eight

Eight contestants will vie for the title of ugliest man on campus tonight at the annual Ugly Man Dance in the Roman Room of the University Center.

Top government, business and Latin American specialists will be featured during the two-day trade conference, according to B.C. Hedrick, assistant director of the Institute.

The idea of the conference originated with the Institute, Hedrick said, as a result of increased American emphasis on Latin America through President Kennedy's Alliance for Progress program.

Albert J. Powers, chief of the Caribbean Section of the Commerce Department's Bureau of International Programs, will be the keynote speaker at the conference April 11.

Other speakers will be John C. Duncan, executive vice president, W.R. Grace & Co.; H.A. Shelby, treasurer, John Deere Intercontinental Ltd.; and Richard I. Phillips, public affairs advisor on Inter-American Affairs for the State Department.

Salukis Will Seek Crown In Tonight's Playoff Game

By Tom McNamara

EVANSVILLE, Ind. --- SIU breaking from the post early rolled past Union College of Jackson, Tenn., 78-56 last night in the first round of the NCAA college division South-Central regional tournament.

Coach Harry Gallatin's Salukis meet the winner of the Evansville-North Carolina A & T game tonight at 9 p.m. for the NCAA south regional championship and a berth in the NCAA college championships in Evansville next weekend.

Council Votes Student Study

An educational affairs conference to "evaluate and define the role and responsibility of students in the educational community" was approved by the Student Council at its meeting last night.

The Council approved unanimously a recommendation by Student Body President Dick Childers that such a conference be held. The purpose, Childers said, will be "to develop a more active concern among students." He said he had hopes that a report could be drafted from the conference, scheduled for about May 15.

The Council heard a letter from the Jackson County Health Officer expressing interest in a joint meeting between the Health Department, Carbondale city officials and the University.

Southern jumped out to an early 24-5 lead with less than nine minutes remaining in the first half.

At half-time SIU led by a comfortable 46-22 margin.

However, the second half saw Union College whittle away at Southern's lead until the Bulldogs trailed only 62-54 with five minutes left to play.

Then Southern's two Interstate Conference All-star members, Dave Henson and Ed Spila took command and moved the Salukis to the final margin of 78-56.

Union College's 6-2 guard Joe Aden from Southern Illinois took game scoring honors with 19 points. Aden, from Dongola, Ill., caused the Salukis some anxious moments in the second half. Aden Basketball Coach Harry Gallatin has been rumored as the next coach of the St. Louis Hawks.

However, he refused to confirm or deny the rumor.

"Any announcement of my possible position in St. Louis must be made from the St. Louis Office," he told The Egyptian.

"Until I turn in my resignation to President Morris, I am still a member of the SIU athletic coaching staff."

scored five straight points to pull the Bulldogs within four points with about eight minutes to go in the game.

Southern had four boys in double figures. Ed Spila led the way with 15. Henson followed Spila with 14. Harold Hood and Eldon Bigham chipped in with 13 and 12 points respectively.

Southern Illinois took a 10-0 lead before Union could manage a field goal. After that, it was all Southern.

Scoring: Southern--Spila 15, Henson 14, Hood 13, Bigham 12, Gualdoni 9, Needham 4, Lentfer 4, Pratte 2, Linder 3, Blythe 2. Total 78.

Linda Goss Named '63 Obelisk Editor

Linda Goss, a junior from Mt. Vernon, has been named editor of the Obelisk for the 1962-63 school year.

Other appointments include: Jerry Lawless, Charles Rahe and Betty Katz, associate editors.

Miss Katz will serve as layout editor. The duties of Lawless and Rahe have not been assigned.

Steve Wilson was named business manager of the SIU year book by the Journalism Council.

SIU Explores Housing Potential

Murphysboro representatives will meet with SIU officials today to discuss potential off-campus housing in Murphysboro.

The meeting has been tentatively scheduled for 10:30 a.m. in the office of Vice-president for Operations John E. Grinnell.

In addition to Grinnell, John E. Rendleman, executive director of business affairs, and I. Clark Davis, dean of student affairs, will represent the University. Meeting with them will be Marion Nash, executive secretary of the Murphysboro Chamber of Commerce, and two other representatives.

At a previous meeting Feb. 20, Murphysboro Chamber of Commerce officials requested that the University sponsor a bus service so that students could be housed in Murphysboro.

SIU probably could not bear the cost of such a service alone, they were told.

The use of Murphysboro housing to relieve the Carbondale overflow was first examined in an "exploratory" meeting in December following a report by the Housing Office that local off-campus housing is "nearing the saturation point."

About 100 non-resident students now live in Murphysboro. Most are married.

"It might take four or five years," Davis said, although he would like to see some SIU students in Murphysboro by the fall term. There could be 275 or more students renting rooms in Murphysboro this September and 400 or more the next year, he said.

Officials estimate that Murphysboro might eventually be able to house 1,000 students.

Everything From 'Soup to Nuts' Handled By SIU Auxiliary Services

Food, Jammed Typewriters, Dirty Laundry Are All Part Of Day's Work For Paul Isbell

Dirty Laundry, vending machines, jammed typewriters, food services, and housing-maintenance are among many of the daily problems encountered by Paul Isbell, director of Auxiliary and Service Enterprises.

"We are responsible for financial and physical operation of those units that primarily serve the customer for cash," said Paul Isbell. Isbell explained that these units are classified into two different categories. One being that of auxiliary units and the other services.

Under the classification of auxiliary units is the physical and financial operation of the textbook service, University Laundry, University Center, Housing, and Southern Acres Food Service.

The services Isbell's office is responsible for are the Post Office, vending machines, Office Machine Repair Service and Stenographic Service.

To clarify the functions of the office, Isbell cited the example of the vending machine operation. When there is any mechanical difficulty with machines his office is informed of the difficulty and he in turn notifies the company of the failure. He also explained that if one of the departments has a typewriter that is in need of repair, he is called and notifies the Office Machine Repair Service.

As a part of their financial operations, the Auxiliary and Service Enterprise's office is active in setting price standards. In the case of University Housing, Isbell and his staff attempt to set dormitory rental rates so as to be able to make adequate payments on the loans that have been necessary for the construction of housing.

This office also works in cooperation with the University Center in setting prices. When asked about the complaints of the high prices levied for food and recreation at the University Center, Isbell said, "We are trying to make the prices fair as possible. Our objective is to try to charge less than the other establishments in the community and certainly not more. Our price standards are in constant review."

The lower bowling rates and food prices announced recently by the University Center is an example of this policy.

Isbell explained, "We have tried to organize our system through comparing prices and procedures with other universities. He further explained that the University Center is in capable hands under the direction of Clarence Dougherty, who served in a similar capacity at Ohio State.

Isbell came to SIU in 1952 after serving as assistant director of Housing at the University of Illinois. The reason for the establishment of this office was to coordinate these various services. Before his arrival all the services operated independently. However when Isbell accepted the position services were limited to the physical and financial operation of Anthony Hall, which at that time was the only women's dormitory, Dowdell Halls, Chataquo Housing, the University Book Store and text book service.

According to Isbell SIU has the only janitorial operation managed exclusively by student workers. "You could probably go to ten colleges a nine of them would tell you this system would not work," said Isbell. "We are quite proud of the success we had had with our maintenance crew," he added.

There are 200 full time employees and 800 student employees working on the staff of the Auxiliary and Service Enterprises.

Time To Turn In Textbooks Again

The Textbook Service will be open for the return of books Monday thru March 19, the second floor of Morrill Library, according to Hein Stroman, manager of text book rental.

All textbooks must be turned in by noon, March 19, said.

The hours to check the books in are: Monday, March 11 thru Thursday, March 15, 7:50 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.; Friday, March 16, and Saturday, March 17, from 7: a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

Freshman English and Physical Education handbooks do not have to be turned in this time.

According to Stroman, failure to turn the textbooks by the allotted time will result in a one dollar fine per book.

PAUL ISBELL, director of Auxiliary and Service Enterprises, is shown in this montage surrounded by symbols of the various services his department provides for Southern Illinois University. Dirty laundry, vending machines, jammed typewriters, food services and housing maintenance are just a few of the daily problems encountered by Isbell and his staff.

'Aida' Stars Next Step - New York

Joe Thomas Jr. and Tom Page, SIU music majors, who recently starred in the production of "Aida" left Thursday by air for auditions in New York City.

Both men were named as "potential winners" in the recent Metropolitan Opera regional audition critiques. The winners of that contest were chosen over the two men because of more experience.

If the students are picked as winners of the New York auditions, they will study at the International Opera Center in Zurich, Switzerland for 40 weeks under the direction of Herbert Graff, director of the center who staged many performances of Miss Marjorie Lawrence, head of the SIU Opera Workshop and former Metropolitan Opera star.

"The SIU Workshop is very proud of these two young men," said Miss Lawrence.

Grinnell Urges Closer SIU-Latin American Cultural Ties

A two-month vacation by Dr. and Mrs. John E. Grinnell, may pay off in more cultural ties between SIU and Latin American universities.

During his winter vacation, Dr. Grinnell, vice-president in charge of operations, discussed possible co-operative efforts with educators in Mexico, Jamaica, Panama, Trinidad and Costa Rica.

One of the first fruits of the trip may be an exchange of official bulletins and announcements, Grinnell said. He explained the University of Panama is already sending its bulletins here in an informational program.

But the educator feels the university should exchange bulletins with many foreign schools. The lack of this type program is "one of the things that makes us provincial," he said.

He feels the exchange might also point out the benefits of SIU's programs for foreign students planning on studying in America.

Grinnell, who has a keen interest in Latin America, discussed possibilities of sending two or three specialists from SIU to Jamaica as educational consultants. The proposal was discussed with an Administration of International Development director.

In Trinidad, he talked with government officials considering establishing a university there. Trinidad formerly used facilities at the University of the West Indies in Jamaica, Grinnell said, but since withdrawing from the British West India Federation, it will found its own school.

Possibilities of exchanging students and faculty with the graduate school of the Organization of American States were also considered.

Grinnell said he discussed this with the school's staff members at Turrialba, Costa Rica. The school specializes in agriculture and biological science. A high percentage of the faculty speaks English, so there would be little language trouble for our students who might go down there, Grinnell said.

During the Grinnells' good-will mission through Latin America they shot yards of movie film, he said.

His discussing an exchange program with various universities is not part of a definite university policy, he said. "There has been a big tendency for Latin American students to go to Argentina, Brazil and Mexico to study because of the language factor, he said.

"The more they send this country, the better our relations will be," the educator said in explaining why plugged SIU's facilities.

First Daily Edition To Highlight J-Day

The highlight of this year's Journalism Day will be the printing of the first issue of SIU's daily Egyptian, Dr. Howard Long, chairman of the department of journalism said.

The 10th annual Journalism Day is slated to begin with the Lovejoy Lecture at freshman convocation Thursday April 19, at 10 a.m. with Kenneth Medly, a graduate of SIU and currently associate editor of "Nation's Business Magazine," delivering the lecture.

In the afternoon a panel made up of SIU journalism graduates will discuss their experiences with SIU's current crop of Journalism majors.

The Journalism Day dinner will begin at 6 p.m. at the Elks club where Don Hecke, another SIU graduate who is presently Editor-Publisher of the Sun Prairie Star Countryman, will speak.

Long said that this year special emphasis will be on returning SIU grads who will put out the Egyptian's first daily newspaper.

Journalism Day was started in 1953 as a means of recognizing students contributing to the publication of the Egyptian and the Obelisk.

The Egyptian, now a semi-weekly paper, was printed on campus until this month. It will be published on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays on the new web-off set press which was recently acquired.

Faculty Interview:

Optimistic View Expressed Concerning Future Of UN

How does the future of the United Nations look?

Pretty good, says Dr. Frank Klingberg, government professor and advisor of the International Relations Club.

Klingberg detects a change in the pulse of the UN from an anti-communist body to a group of nations developing high moral ideals.

The United States, he feels, shifted from tendency to fight communism through the UN to a tendency to build a better life for the world through cooperation late in the 1950's.

He discounts worries about the United States being outvoted in the 104-nation organization. He feels the newly admitted neutral nations will vote for furthering peace and the UN. Klingberg cites the vote on the election of U Thant (80-0) as one example.

diplomatic relations with Cuba," he said, explaining the Cuban embassies were hotbeds of communist propaganda and agitators stirring up troubles in various countries.

Although pessimistic about Red China's virulent communism, Klingberg is rather optimistic about Russian Communism. "Russia was once a Christian nation," he said. There are signs, he feels, that Russia is becoming more liberal and may seek an accommodation with the West.

Although optimistic about the success of the UN in helping keep the world out of a nuclear holocaust, Klingberg feels the United States will not, necessarily, remain with the UN.

"The United States, of course, could not remain in the United Nations if its decisions went against our country's national interests--nor could any country for that matter," he said.

However, Klingberg doesn't see that situation arising.

Although some Congressmen appear hesitant about buying $100 million in UN bonds, Klingberg thinks the country will back the bond issue proposal. "A recent Gallup poll showed 80 percent of the people endorsed the UN," he said. This support will be reflected by the Congress, he feels.

UN Success Formula

The rapid-speaking professor admits to believing the basis for a successful UN lies in a moral and religious spirit; a spirit which would tie the countries together in an effort to improve mankind by attacking poverty and disease and solving space and disarmament problems.

"A supreme effort will be needed from the US and the free world for the next few years--mobilizing their physical and spiritual strength--to determine that men will be free and secure for the coming century," he told a group of educators last fall.

So far, he says, the UN has prevented Korea, Suez and Congo disputes from erupting into World War III. But we need the "spirit of the nations" working in accord with the high ideals of the UN Charter to make the UN stronger.

Klingberg feels the nations will show this spirit.

Powerful Moral Force

"Even the Russians felt they couldn't oppose the moral force of the neutral nations who know the UN needed a single head," he said.

Klingberg, who has closely watched the UN since its birth, feels strongly that Red China should not be admitted to the UN.

The first reason is that Red China would gain in prestige and other nations would then establish diplomatic recognition.

Diplomatic recognition is not so bad in itself. But it would allow dozens of Chinese Communists to operate propaganda and subversion centers in the free world. "This is why the Latin American nations broke off

'Operation Carbondale'

The Student Council has given its blessing to a general clean-up day--"Operation Carbondale"--sponsored by the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber has asked for help from students in the April 28 project, which will include street, lawn and sidewalk cleaning over the entire city of Carbondale.

Students comprise some 5,000 of Carbondale's total population of about 15,000, as per the census. In addition, since the Census Bureau counts only half of a community's student population as such, there are another 5,000 students in Carbondale, or approximately one-half of a total dynamic population of about 20,000. So it stands to reason that students should be expected to contribute to the cleanliness and general well being of the community. Then too, of course, that part of the community not made up of students can be expected to contribute to the general well being of the students.

"Operation Carbondale" is an excellent chance for SIU students, especially through various campus service organizations, to show Carbondale that students are willing to pitch in and do their part toward helping the community of which they should be considered a part.

The All-Faiths Chapel

Definite steps have been taken to formulate some kind of plans for a chapel on campus. An Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity projects committee is currently working with various student organizations in an effort to find out what is needed and desired.

Plans thus far proposed call for an all-faiths chapel, for members of all the many faiths represented at SIU. Such a chapel could and should be much more than a place of worship. It could be an international gathering place, and perhaps help to bring closer together all races, creeds and nationalities.

Questionnaires will be passed out at the Textbook Service at the beginning of next term. Ideas are needed, and it is hoped that everyone will cooperate in making an all-faiths chapel an "all campus evolution".

Culture

Some people spend a lot of time worrying about America's cultural values and trying to do something about them. Maybe we'd do the same, if we were dead certain what culture is.

Even the dictionary wanders all over the lot trying to define culture. It speaks of "enlightenment and refinement of taste acquired by intellectual and aesthetic training." It mentions, sweepingly, "the intellectual content of civilization." And it talks about "the complex of distinctive attainments, beliefs, traditions, etc., constituting the background of a racial, religious, or social group."

So culture seems to be a little hard to pin down. It's obviously made up of many things we inherit from our fathers, grandfathers and people who lived thousands of years ago. And it's something that's being made or remade right now.

Sometimes people associate culture with white tie and evening gown assemblages at concert halls or museums. That's part of our culture. But part of our culture is some young man in a sweat shirt painting on canvas ideas we may not understand. Or, for that matter, approve. Parts of our culture are foreign to refinement; they're lusty, rowdy, brassy as a trumpet blown in some dark gin mill.

Culture is molded in strange places. Amid the granite of New England. In noisy tenements. On the back stoop of a mountain shack. In rooms where old silver gleams. Out on the flat plains. And it's molded by some strange people, some fine and strong, and some not. They aren't thinking about culture; they paint, act, compose, sing, write for one reason, which is that they somehow must.

What prompts these thoughts is news that the White House has established a new office, charged with coordinating our marvelously diffuse and unpredictable culture. When that work is completed, perhaps the White House could have a try at coordinating the ocean currents, and the waves and the winds. THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

Save Only One Seat

Editor:

I would like to bring up the subject of personally reserving seats for public events, better known as saving seats.

It is my understanding that the seating policy of the University is on a first come first served basis at events where no admission charge is made. However, at the opera "Aida," when the auditorium was rapidly filling, seats were being saved for people who obviously weren't there yet. I recall one person who sat at the end of a row "saving" about six seats in the row. Seat saving was also practiced at the football games last fall and became an annoyance.

Of course, I have no complaint against the saving of seats for someone who has already occupied a seat and has had to leave for some reason. But I do complain about those who save seats for friends who aren't present yet, and in some instances never show up, with the result being an empty seat (or seats) which probably would have been filled. In the future I hope people will be more considerate and limit their seat saving to one seat--their own.

SIU Agency Promotes Area Economy

By Jack Roberts

Southern Illinois University has been instrumental in developing the recreational facilities of Southern Illinois in hopes of enhancing a million dollar tourist industry to uplift the economy of the area. Programs coordinated through the office of the Area Services in connection with the University have benefited efforts to convert the formerly untouched, scenic Ozark mountain area into a recreation industry that would be a boon to tourists.

The Area Services division, headed by the capable Dr. William J. Tudor, who is also president of Southern Illinois Incorporated, provides the area with numerous invaluable services.

For instance, the division furnishes facilities for area conferences held by the SIU or the Southern Illinois Recreational Council. The division also coordinates various activities concerned with off-campus relations.

Rex Karnes heads the recreational phase for the Area Services. Karnes is also secretary of the recreational council. He says that SIU has worked extensively with various area and county recreational committees in attempting to promote the area as a beacon to the tourist trade. This tourist trade is worth 800 million dollars in this state alone.

For the students at SIU and residents of the area to realize the possibilities of such a venture, Area Services has printed and distributed thousands of folders and maps outlining state and national parks, scenic spots and national forests within the area.

Locations of camp grounds, picnic areas and lakes are cited on these maps.

Also, SIU has developed a program for the public in which the football field is turned into a camping area with an actual outdoor atmosphere.

The University has employed recreational sites in its work with public school children, adult cerebral palsy victims, crippled children, children afflicted with speech and hearing defects, the mentally retarded and underprivileged.

Work with these groups takes place at camping sites at Giant City State Park and Little Grassy Lake during the summer. During camps of several weeks in duration, groups camp, boat, swim, tour the beauty spots of the area and work with native materials.

Area Services also arranges scenic and historical tours and furnishes guides for organizations interested in folklore or the natural beauty of the Ozarks. Weekend tours of the campus are also available to the public.

This division has worked creditably with the state and federal governments in erecting and maintaining state and national monuments throughout the area.

Karnes reports that the division is planning, along with federal authorities, a proposed highway that would extend across Southern Illinois. This highway would hit all the scenic spots in the area and would run from Grand Tower to Cave-in-Rock.

"Recreation ranks highly as an industry," Karnes says, "tourists spend about 35 billion dollars annually. It is hoped that Southern Illinois will soon be attracting some of this trade."

Dr. Tudor, Karnes and others in the Area Services are doing a service to the area's economy by promoting the new recreation-tourist industry. Indeed, this would benefit the economy of the area which has been on a downward trend for many years.

10 Weightlifters Win Intramural Trophies

Ten Southern musclemen won trophies in the first annual weightlifting tournament sponsored by the intra-mural athletic office.

Respective champs and their weight classifications are: Tom Trevena, 123 pound; Bob Monaghan, 132 pound; Gordon Reynolds, Jim Shaffner and Ray Hosner finished in that order in the 148 pound class; Gary Carpenter and Frank Phelps, 165 pound class; Eddie Lewis, 181 pound; Jim Templeton, 198 pound and George Woods, heavyweight.

The spring intra-mural program will get underway April 9 with volley ball competition. Team rosters must be in by that time.

Other intra-mural activities scheduled for the spring term include tennis starting April 18; softball starting April 19 and horseshoes on May 11.

Martin said there will be intra-managers competition in track and field and swimming during the spring term. The dates will be announced later.

The intra-mural athletic office free-throw tournament winds up today in the men's gym.

Abe Martin, director of intra-murals, announced that all managers should turn in their selections for the all-opponent teams by Saturday.

SIU Wrestlers Favored For NCAA Title

SIU's wrestling team is a favorite to win the NCAA college-division wrestling championship meet today and Saturday at DePauw University, Greencastle, Ind.

If the wrestlers win the meet, it will be the second NCAA college-division athletic championship taken by an SIU squad this year. Southern's cross-country team won the NCAA championship last fall.

Coach Jim Wilkinson's squad won its fourth straight Interstate Conference title last weekend and took seven individual weight titles and two runners-up in the meet.

Frank (Chico) Coniglio was voted most outstanding wrestler at the Interstate meet. He won the 130-pound championship.

Coniglio and Ken Houston will lead the wrestlers in the NCAA meet in Indiana. Others competing will be Eddie Lewis, Don Millard, Larry Meyer, Roger Plapp, Izzy Ramos and Pat Coniglio.

Sigma Kappa Crowned Basketball Champions

Sigma Kappa Sorority squeezed out a 23-21 victory over Colonial House to end the season undefeated and win the Women's intramural Basketball trophy.

The Sig Kaps ran up a strong lead early but had to work hard in the final minutes to come out on top.

Meg Leahy of Colonial House lead scoring with 10 points followed by Sig Kap's Ellen Bricker and Betina Crawshaw, who scored eight points each.

The first place trophy will be presented to the Sigma Kappa team at the Intramural Sports dinner in the spring.

A mock match between Sigma Kappa and Sigma Pi, men's intramural basketball champs, is planned for next term.

RUSTY MITCHELL, leading point-winner on SIU's gymnastic team, is recovering from an ankle injury that knocked him out of the last half of last week's Interstate Conference meet. He will compete in the NCAA meet later this month.

Mitchell Will Be Ready For NCAA Meet

Rusty Mitchell, SIU tumbling star, should be ready for the NCAA national gymnastic meet March 28 despite an ankle injury suffered last week in the Interstate Conference gymnastic meet.

"He will have to take it easy in practice for a week or more," Coach Bill Meade said, "but I think he will be ready for the meet."

Mitchell, one of the few gymnasts in the country who does a double back flip without help, has been SIU's leading point-winner this season with 153 1/2 in eight dual meets. He has taken 18 firsts and eight seconds in 34 events.

Mitchell and his teammates will go to the national meet in Albuquerque, N.M., with an unblemished collegiate record for the year. The only team to defeat Southern this year was a special AAU squad composed of former stars from several universities who competed in the Midwest Open.

Track Coach To Speak

SIU track coach Lew Hartzog, will address a White County Alumni meeting at 6:30 p.m. on March 31 in the Corner's Hill Top Restaurant, Carmi. Hartzog will discuss his team and its prospects of a winning season at the meeting.

Fighting, Feuding And Fussing- Anything To Win, Says Gallatin

"I believe in fighting, feuding and fussing, anything to win," says Southern's basketball coach Harry Gallatin, "but not worrying about the outcome of a game. Someone's going to win and someone's going to lose. We just try our best to be listed among the victors."

Gallatin in four years at SIU has made the Salukis into a nationally-recognized club, even to the extent that twice this season Southern has advanced in national polls after having lost recent games.

Although somewhat disappointed in Southern's late-season performances which have included five losses in seven road games, Gallatin early this week said, "we've got a fine bunch of boys and I've got a feeling they're about due to snap out of their slump."

"I'd have to rate this year's outfit as one of the finest groups I've had since coming to Southern. There's a great deal more to coaching than just winning and as long as my boys give me everything they've got I'm satisfied."

Gallatin admits he loves to win, but doesn't believe that winning is the only important thing involved. "I get a great deal of personal satisfaction by messing up the opposition from the bench and I believe every other coach feels the same," Gallatin said.

By 'messing up the opposition' he means making changes in Southern's strategy and offensive patterns after watching the opposition's reaction to certain situations early in the game.

"If a coach calls for an option off of one of his regular set plays and it results in a hoop, he's bound to get just as much thrill out of the play as the guy that gets the dummy," Gallatin said and quickly added, "at least I do."

Known for his quick recoveries after losing close decisions, Gallatin asks "Why feel bad after losing to good teams, even if it is by a couple of points or so? The only time to feel bad is when your club doesn't hustle or you allow yourself to get so excited on the bench that you are unable to make the proper decisions."

SOMETHING ON the basketball court obviously didn't please Coach Harry Gallatin when the photographer took this picture. Gallatin was named to the National Basketball Association's all-star team eight times when he was playing professional basketball.

Gallatin feels Southern's cage future is bright. "We have had some difficulties in recruiting top high school players in the past, but once our new building is available I believe the situation will improve," he said.

"Actually we can almost always get our little men, the ball-handlers, right here in Southern Illinois," Gallatin claims, "but you've got to go north to get the big men and you just can't go too far in high-class competition without the big boys on the boards."

And for Gallatin, who at 6-7, 225 pounds, a former rebound record-holder and the endurance to play in 741 consecutive NBA games as a pro, the statement was a natural.
