Campbell Hill bank robber gets 55-year sentence

By Jeff Wilkinson
Staff Writer

An accomplice in a crime spree that ended with the armed robbery of a Campbell Hill bank on Dec. 1, 1983, was sentenced Friday in Jackson County Circuit Court to 35 years in a state penitentiary.

Cathy Lynn Cremer, 27, of Marion, entered a negotiated plea of guilty to charges stemming from three incidents in three Southern Illinois counties. She will appear Monday in U.S. District Court in Benton on federal charges resulting from the same incidents.

As part of the negotiated plea, Cremer agreed to testify against her alleged accomplice, Richard McCue, 33, of New York, in exchange for dropping several charges filed against her. Among the charges dropped were armed violence and aggravated kidnapping charges in Jackson County and armed violence and battery charges in Williamson County.

The charges Cremer pleaded guilty to and the sentences she received were one count of armed robbery in Jackson County, 30 years; one count of armed robbery in Randolph County, 25 years; and one count of home invasion in Williamson County, 25 years to be served concurrently. Under Illinois law, one day will be taken off the sentence for every day Cremer serves in the state penitentiary, so actual time served for state charges could be half the sentence.

Cremer will also receive credit for time spent in the Jackson County jail since her arrest on Dec. 1.

Cremer and McCue were charged with the armed robbery of the First State Bank of Campbell Hill, in northwestern Jackson County, on Dec. 1. They were captured after a shootout with police on the Ava blacktop northwest of Murphysboro. The two also were charged with robbing The Apothecary, a pharmacy in Randolph County, on Nov. 30, 1983, and with invading the home of Kenneth Baltz, of Energy, on Nov. 27, 1983.

Cremer had served two years in a state penitentiary on a forgery conviction and said that since her release she had been trying to find work. She said she met McCue through a phone conversation the day before Thanksgiving.

Before sentencing, Circuit Judge Richard Richman told Cremer that although she had help becoming involved in the crime spree, she had "chosen (her) own friends."

Tuck Tape employees strike, wage negotiation set Monday

By Phil Milano
Staff Writer

Negotiations between striking workers of Tuck Industries in Carbondale and company officials will begin 2 p.m. Monday, with a disputed three-year wage increase plan one of the main topics of discussion.

The strike at the Tuck Tape plant on North Illinois Avenue, one of the nation's largest manufacturers of pressure-sensitive tape, and one of Carbondale's largest employers, is the plant's first in its 23-year history.

The approximately 500 employees represented by International Laborers Union Local 994, AFL-CIO, voted 3-1 in favor of a strike last Friday after reviewing a new three-year contract approved by the union's negotiating committee on Wednesday. Picket lines were established midnight Friday after talks failed to produce an agreement.

Striking workers said they knew the contract was being written, but were not informed of its contents until Thursday, which gave them only 24 hours to discuss it and take a vote.

Union spokesman Martin Alexander said the workers would stay on strike "as long as it takes" to get what they want.

The company's offering of a 90-cent hourly wage increase over a three-year period, down from the $1.05 three-year increase of the last contract, did not satisfy the workers, Alexander said. He said the increase the union wants will be discussed at a union meeting 10 a.m. Monday before negotiations begin.

"With cost of living increases, we simply can't pay our bills.

The company is doing a lot better than it did last year," he said.

Matthew Maier, plant manager, said the overall package offered, including fringe benefits which he would not divulge, was more than the offer of three years ago.

Percy backs local candidates

By John Racine
Staff Writer

U.S. Sen. Charles Percy came to the Student Center Friday to instill a little campaign fervor in Jackson County Republicans.

Percy, who faces his first primary challenge, did not act like an incumbent. Instead, he spent the evening endorsing local hopefuls, voicing his support of President Reagan and fueling the GOP's spirit downstate.

"We're gonna win and we're gonna win big," exclaimed Percy while cheerleading 265 supporters at the Jackson County Central Committee's Lincoln Day dinner in Ballroom D.

Percy, often accused by his Republican opponent U.S. Rep. Tom Corcoran of being too liberal and too lackadaisical in his support of the president and Republican positions, displayed a button on his lapel that espoused "Reagan '84."

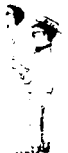

During a fiery 16-minute speech, the senator praised the Reagan Administration for its efforts in the areas of cutting inflation, lowering unemployment and working to bring down the deficit while building defense.

To insure victory for himself, the president and others in November, Percy prescribed increased voter turnout and more work by Republicans. "No Republican has ever been elected to the presidency without the support of Illinois," he reminded the crowd.

Hart leads primary votes, not delegates

By Rod Stone
Staff Writer

Sen. Gary Hart may have won more primary votes than former Vice President Walter Mondale so far, but Hart is trailing far behind in the more important race for delegates to the Democratic presidential convention.

As of Feb. 29, Mondale had 126 convention delegates, while Hart and Sen. John Glenn were tied for second place with 17 delegates each, according to the Associated Press. A candidate needs 1,967 delegates to win the nomination.

While Hart hasn't had any trouble closing the early gap in popular votes between himself and Mondale, making up the difference in delegates may prove a more difficult task for Hart because he has not filed a full slate of delegate candidates in many states, including Illinois.

To many, winning delegates may seem secondary to winning primaries, and in some aspects, such as obtaining media attention, it is. But at the Democratic convention this June in San Francisco, delegates will be the deciding factor, not primary finishes.

John Jackson, professor in political science, said that in the Illinois primary on March 20 voters will have two decisions to make. The first, he said, will be the "beauty contest," in which the voters will pick the candidate most to their liking.

"The second, and in many ways more important, decision is who will be the delegates," Jackson said. He said that although this contest is fought farther down the ballot than the "beauty contest," it is the key battle.

"The beauty contest will get a lot of media attention but the bottom line is who's going to get the delegates," Jackson said. Illinois will send 194 delegates to the Democratic convention—116 of them elected in the primary and the remaining 78 chosen by party leaders.

In Illinois, delegates are chosen by congressional district. Jackson said voters in the 22nd Congressional District will elect six delegates to the convention. Each presidential candidate had until Jan. 18 to file in each district a slate, or list, of delegate candidates to represent him on the ballot in the Illinois primary.

Mondale is the only candidate to have filed a full slate of delegate candidates in all of Illinois' congressional districts, according to Joyce Deet, a member of the Mondale campaign staff in Springfield. Lloyd Haims, coordinator of the Hart campaign in the 22nd District, said Hart has filed delegate slates in 10 of Illinois' 22 congressional districts, including the five southernmost districts.

Hart has only 42 delegate candidates on the Illinois ballot, while Mondale has a full slate of 116. Haims said this was a strategic decision made by the Hart campaign.

"We decided not to spread ourselves too thin and concentrate on those districts we think we can win," Haims said.

Haims said that despite Hart's weak delegate position, he was confident about Hart's chances of doing well in Illinois. Jackson, however, said the advantage lies clearly with Mondale because of his delegate situation.

Since Sens. Alan Cranston and Ernest Hollings along with former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew dropped out the race for the nomination, their delegates have been eagerly sought after by the remaining candidates, especially Hart, who is scrambling to make up for his lack of delegate candidates.

The Chicago Tribune reported Friday that 35 delegate candidates from other campaigns have defected to the Hart camp, while the Associated Press said many of the 91 Cranston delegate candidates in the Illinois primary have switched their allegiance

F-Senate to discuss tuition hike

By Anne Flasz
Staff Writer

The Budget Advisory Committee's recommendation to boost tuition 10 percent to fund a 7 percent salary increase for faculty will be a main point of discussion at the Faculty Senate meeting on Tuesday.

A resolution outlining salary increase distribution may also be acted upon at the meeting slated for 1 p.m. in the Illinois Room of the Student Center, Herbert Donow, faculty senate president, said.

The BAC recommended last week that the 6.5 percent proposed tuition increase for fiscal year 1985 be increased to 10 percent to fund a higher salary increase. Under the recommendation, Donow said, funds within the University would be reallocated and some positions would be cut. According to Donow, about 20 positions within Academic Affairs would be lost.

"It's obviously a troubling situation," Donow said. "The much needed increase in salaries must be balanced against a tuition increase and a possible loss of positions."

Donow said that salary levels of SIUC faculty do not compare favorably with other institutions in Illinois.

"And when you make a comparison to other peer group institutions on a wider level, the difference is almost embarrassing," Donow said.

Donow said the senate would make some indication of its position on the EAC recommendation at the meeting.

The senate may also act on a resolution by its executive council calling for 50 percent of salary increase funds received for FY 85 to be distributed to colleges for merit salary increases. The resolution seeks 25 percent to be distributed across the board in a flat dollar amount and 25 percent to be distributed across the board by percentage.

Donow said the resolution is less complicated than, but substantially the same as, the salary increase distribution recommendation passed by the senate last year.

The senate may act on a resolution by the Library Affairs Advisory Committee which urges that Morris Library receive high priority against cutback, in appropriations and services.

A report showing the effects of inflation and decreasing appropriations on Morris Library will be presented by a subcommittee of the Library Affairs Advisory Committee.

By examining levels of inflation, appropriations, materials purchased and services offered, the subcommittee found that Morris Library falls far below the median for other American Research Libraries in most of these areas.

News Roundup

Hart edges ahead in Maine caucus

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Gary Hart held a small lead Sunday in his first head-to-head struggle with Walter Mondale, a duel for supremacy in Maine's Democratic presidential caucuses and momentum in the delegate-rich states to follow.

The lead went back and forth as returns came in from Maine's 412 cities and towns. With 177 caucuses reporting, Hart had 3,840 votes, or nearly 49 percent, to 3,585 for Mondale, or nearly 46 percent.

As the long count continued, both sides sought to put the best face on the results.

Mondale told reporters that Hart moved ahead of him in Maine earlier in the week because of a surge created by his upset victory in the lead-off New Hampshire primary. "We've made substantial progress the last three days," Mondale said as he departed for more campaigning in Boston. "I feel very good about the progress we made."

Gemayel to scrap troop accord

BEIRUT (AP) — A senior member of the Lebanese opposition said Sunday that President Amin Gemayel will abrogate the troop withdrawal accord with Israel within "the next few hours" in return for agreement from Lebanon's feuding factions to meet in Geneva March 12.

"We are very, very happy," said Assem Kanso, secretary general of the pro-Syrian Lebanese Baath Party, after he emerged from a meeting in Damascus with Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Alim Khaddam.

He said the meeting was attended by Druse leader Walid Jumblatt and Shiite Moslem leader Nabih Berri. The two rebel leaders met earlier in the day with Lebanese Prime Minister Elie Salem.

Congress to tackle deficits, prayer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two highly charged election-year issues — how to handle prayer in public schools and what to do about enormous federal budget deficits — will dominate Congress this week.

Senate Republicans are finishing work on a $150 billion package they hope can be used to revive bipartisan deficit-reduction talks this week between the White House and Congress.

Meanwhile, backers of a constitutional amendment to permit voluntary prayer in public schools begin their effort and predict they have the best chance in years for success.

City gets early start on state funds

By Paula J. Finlay
Staff Writer

The time between the announcement of available state grants and the due date for applications is often short, so Carbondale's Community Development Department is trying to get a head start.

"Traditionally the state doesn't give much notice between the announcement of grants and the due date for applications," Donald Monty, community development director, said Thursday at a public hearing.

Final guidelines for Community Development Assistance Program grants from the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs are expected to be issued March 19, Monty said, and the first of six grant application deadlines is April 15.

The Citizens Community Development Steering Committee held a hearing Thursday to begin the application process by getting input on what Carbondale's housing and community development needs are. Other than the committee and representatives of the news media, three people attended the hearing.

Another meeting will be held March 22 to determine specific community projects to request funds for after the guidelines have been determined.

Monty said that Carbondale can compete for grants in three categories: up to $500,000 for economic development programs, up to $500,000 for public facilities or housing programs or up to $50,000 for central business development.

The DCCA will award about $10 million in economic development grants which have four application deadlines: April 15, June 15, September 15 and December 15, Monty said. The city can compete for a grant every quarter until one is funded. Applications for a part of about $12 million of public facility and housing grants are due July 15, and central business development grant applications are due July 1.

Curt Kohring, volunteer president of Resource Reclamation Inc. of Murphysboro, said that with additional funds, the business could provide employment opportunities for House of G ass residents.

Kohring, who is also Jackson Community Workshop executive director, said that independent living facilities for the handicapped are another community need.

to Hart.

But two Cranston delegates from the 22nd District, Nick Rion and Joyce Fry, said they are uncommitted to any of the remaining candidates.

Rion, of Anna, said the nuclear freeze would be the most important factor in his decision and he doesn't know enough yet about the candidates to make a decision.

Fry, also of Anna, said she is leaning toward Hart in her support, but is "waiting to be asked." Neither of them had been contacted by local campaigns as of Thursday.

Jackson said that although delegates can switch their support from one candidate to another, they must appear on the ballot with the name of the candidate who they supported originally. The Hart campaign's biggest problem, he said, will be to publicize which of the other candidates' delegates now support Hart.

"Their problem is to teach the people what it means to vote for Cranston," Jackson said. "This will not be impossible, but it will be very difficult. I'm not sure it can be done."

Jackson said this year's convention will be different from the 1980 convention in that it will be a "brokered convention." This means, he said, that delegates will be bound for the first vote or until they are released by the candidate, whichever comes first. This leaves room for a lot of dealmaking, he said.

"If someone doesn't get it on the first vote, it's going to be a slugfest. It'll be total chaos," Jackson said.

Jackson said that because Illinois' 194 delegates will be the fourth largest delegation at the convention, the state's primary will be very important. He said it is conceivable that Hart could win the popular vote and Mondale could run away with the delegate battle. He said the opposite is also possible, but much less likely.

contract include the company's stipulation of mandatory Saturday work days during the company's busy fall, and a decrease of lunchtime from a half hour to 15 minutes. Maier said the company cannot deliver its orders on time during the busy fall months unless the employees work six days a week.

"They're getting overtime pay on Saturdays. You'd think they'd think it was good that we're offering them a chance to make more money," he said.

Alexander said, "If you work six days a week for two months in a row, you can't keep other commitments you might have for a Saturday. And if you don't work, you might get written up or have your job threatened."

The union wanted a guaranteed 40-hour work week, so the company offered to pay for a 15-minute lunch and have the employees work seven and three-quarter hours five days a week. Currently, the employees work seven and one-half hours and receive an unpaid half hour lunch break.

"Where can you go for lunch in only 15 minutes?" Alexander asked.

Maier said he would agree to stay with the seven-and-one-half hour, five-days-a-week schedule.

The union is also attempting to shorten the amount of time it takes for new employees to obtain the standard contract wage for their jobs. The new contract calls for an employee to work at the plant 33 months in order to be eligible for the standard wage. The old contract called for employees to work 16 months in order to become eligible.

Maier said no independent laborers had been hired to fill the gap made by the striking workers.

"I hope we can come to a settlement before it comes to that," he said.

Alexander said the local construction union working on an 83,000 square-foot addition next to the plant had agreed to honor the picket lines, and that local truck unions would not make pickups.

Council to hold public hearing on Cablevision rate increase

By Bruce Kirkham
Staff Writer

A public hearing on a rate increase for Carbondale Cablevision subscribers will be held at the City Council meeting 7 p.m. Monday.

The public hearing will focus on the report of a special negotiating team, which proposed a $2.75 rate increase and expansion of service to provide a 20-channel selection.

After the hearing, the council will evaluate the proposal. The council must pass an ordinance approving any rate increase for cable subscribers.

The negotiating team, composed of Mayor Helen Westberg, City Manager Bill Dixon and Cable Television Commission Chairman Charles Klasek, also recommends Carbondale Cablevision be required to provide 26 hours per week of local-origination programming.

The team's report recommends a rate increase not go into effect until customers are provided with the proposed 20-channel selection. Carbondale Cablevision would be allowed one year to upgrade cable systems to provide the expanded service.

Additional recommendations would require Cablevision to provide an annual audited financial statement and would delete requirements to carry three Evansville, Ind., channels, two St. Louis channels and two local-origination channels.

The proposed 20-channel lineup would maintain currently-provided stations WSIL, KSDK, WPSD, ESPN, WSIU, WDDD, WGN, KPLR, KFVS and the time and weather station.

New stations would include Nickelodeon, independent Channel 17 WTBS, independent Channel 23 KBSI, Cable News Network, Nashville Network, Music Television, Cable Health Network, USA Network, C-Span and Christian Broadcast Network.

Pay channel options would be expanded to include Cinemax, Showtime and the Disney Channel in addition to currently-offered Home Box Office.

The council will also determine tentative funding levels for outside social service agencies. The council reviewed the requests, which totaled $139,251, at last Monday's informal meeting.

City Finance Director Paul Sorgen said the budget ceiling for the outside agencies for fiscal year 1984-85 is $75,690, which is the amount allocated to outside agencies last year.

The council has the option of distributing to other agencies funds formerly allocated to the agencies to the city's Comprehensive Health and Comprehensive Child Care programs, which will receive city funding cuts in FY 1984-85.

Rail project on track

THE BEST LAID PLANS of the Carbondale Railroad Relocation Project have begun to wander astray lately, thanks to some untimely and unwelcome help from City Councilman Keith Tuxhorn and from the chairman of the board of Illinois Central Gulf, Henry Bruce.

Tuxhorn, taking an unusual reactionary bent, said at the most recent City Council meeting that the location of a temporary railway through some parking lots while the rail depression is being constructed would harm, and possibly close, some of the businesses dependent upon those lots.

That may be true. Any construction downtown is likely to disrupt surrounding businesses in the short run, but that doesn't justify placing a moratorium on new construction. And the long run benefits from the relocation are what should be the measure of the projects validity.

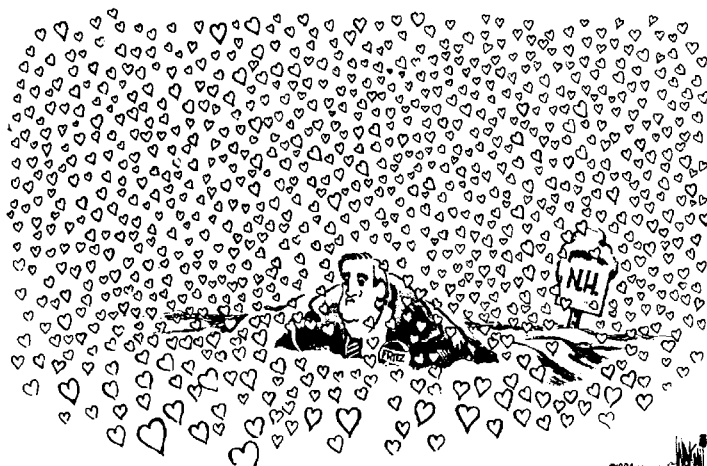

Top among the plusses of the rail relocation is the possible influx of about $90 million in federal money into the area, for about a $2 million investment of city funds.

THE TRACK DEPRESSION will also help beautify the downtown area, increasing the city's ability to draw new businesses. One can empathize with the businesses that would be hurt in the construction, but Tuxhorn, as a city council member, should be concerned with the city's future development, not with simply maintaining the status quo. Still, Tuxhorn's critical voice is a good reminder that the project is not without some non-monetary costs.

Bruce's attack on the project stems from the fact that part of its original justification was based on the prediction that freight traffic on the line would be increasing due to a higher demand for Illinois coal, increasing the daily cross-town traffic delays. Bruce recently said that since the traffic in the near future probably won't increase as much as earlier predicted, the expense of the depression is not justified as far as the railroad is concerned.

But Bruce did not did he specify what he meant by "the near future."

For the present, Carbondale has the opportunity to pursue a large block of federal money—an opportunity that expires within the next two years, along with the law that started the project. In a state that ranks dead-last in getting a return on the money it sends to Washington, and a city in dire need of a viable plan for redeveloping, the railroad relocation is too good to pass up.

Creationism hurts public education...

After reading Greg Lamanna's mindless comments about evolution and Satan, I've finally decided that "I'm mad as hell and I'm not going to take it anymore!" I ask you Lamanna, do you really expect us to opt for your "answer," creationism?

It is relatively easy for scientists and science educators to refute the absurdities of creationism as preached by the doctrinaire fundamentalists. They're doing a good job of it in scientific journals and at conventions of scientists and science teachers—even though they have to keep doing it again and again. Lamanna, I ask you to do your homework and go to Morris Library and research the subject of evolution—provided you are open-minded enough to do so and are not shackled by your religious convictions. It is only then that you will discover, as is accepted by the majority of scientists of our time, that evolution is indeed a fact, not a theory.

It is because of the mentality of individuals like yourself, which smacks of the Moral Majority, that this country's public educational systems are regressing, not progressing. What are the designs of the new right for the public schools? It's leaders want to imbue the education of each child with religion—preferably Christian-protestant. They want to inject into each child's curriculum large doses of biblical material. They want to manage all subject matter so that it will transmit facts, concepts and attitudes on the rightness of Victorian morality, free enterprise and militarism. They want to isolate educational thought, theory, and practice from new ideas—from investigation, experimentation, innovation.

The leaders of the new right aim to weaken and eventually eliminate our compulsory system of education; to breach the constitutional wall between church and state; to create rival and competing educational operations that will bleed the public schools of finances, students, teachers and community support.

They aim at nothing less than rubbing out the patterns of American public education developed since Thomas Jefferson's day. They aim to change—now and forevermore—the ways in which American children are to be educated!—Michael R. Johnson, Senior, Music Business

A LAMMANA LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Emotionalism won't end poverty

In a recent letter to the Daily Egyptian I commented on the increased need for soup kitchens and food lines in the United States. It was my position that the tendency to emotionalize this issue may prevent us from identifying those policies that will create the job opportunities which will enable people to leave the soup kitchens and return to the work place.

It is a regrettable and unwelcome irony that the letter of Robert T. Phillips has lent credence to my argument. Mr. Phillips, who has suffered the indignity of poverty, feels "bitter and vindictive" toward the opinions expressed in my letter. Nowhere in my letter did I speak disparagingly of those in the food lines, yet such sentiment is ascribed to me merely for bringing up the issue. It would seem that those who do less than patronizingly commiserate with the poor are labeled heartless and cruel. Wringing of hands, however, will not solve the problem. Mr. Phillips' highly emotional response, while not helpful in effecting a solution, is understandable given his position. There are those, however, who simply ought to know better.

This brings me to the other response to my letter, written by Economics Department Chairman Robert J. Ellis. Mr. Ellis, who has taught poverty-related courses, says he has never heard of my figure which states that, "If all of the federal money that is supposed to go to the indigent went to them directly, with no government middlemen, each poor household would receive around $40,000 per year." Two of the many sources where this figure can be found are George Gilder's "Wealth and Poverty" and Charles Hobbes' "The Welfare Industry."

Hunger and poverty are issues ripe with the potential for demagoguery. Yet those who attempt to emotionalize the issue in the name of the poor are often defenders of solutions which are not only grossly inefficient, but which ultimately do not help the poor anyway. It would be a national tragedy to allow private sector jobs to be destroyed, and to force even more people to rely on soup kitchens, by expending our national resources on a "poverty bureaucracy" more concerned with its own survival than that of the poor. We cannot feed a nation on the fruits of destructive emotionalism.—Eugene Doherty, First Year Law

...isn't based on science or history...

Once again the editorial staff of the Daily Egyptian has printed another out-of-context, illogical and nonsensical letter about the theory of evolution. It does not bother me that this person has this opinion but that you print unfounded arguments like this in the newspaper of a university.

I know creationists feel a divine mandate to challenge the theory of evolution because of their literal interpretation of the creation story in Genesis. But creation "science" is to religion what astrology is to astronomy and alchemy is to chemistry. The chapters of Genesis are far from being either a historical chronicle or a science course. The writers knew nothing of how things really were in the beginning and their understanding of science was inferior even to that of kindergarten students today. If people understand the beautiful story in Genesis as a religious presentation of the creation of the world, conceived with the limited historical and scientific perceptions of the authors, then evolution and the creation account of Genesis can be comfortable companions. Creationists, however, use this same creation account as a literal historical and scientific recording of how the world came to be. To use this single source and misconceptions of the claims and procedures of science as arguments against the theory of evolution is ridiculous.

It seems to me that inherent in the creationist position is a fear of knowledge, lack of logic and an obvious lack of biological understanding in their opinions. The Daily Egyptian is not the place for the presentation of this kind of argument or opinion, for thinking and learning are the main purposes for college education and should be a concern of college students and newspaper editors. Can't the editors of the Daily Egyptian find or generate something more sound and worthwhile to print or at least read and screen letters a little more intelligently? Or are you just trying to fill space with more responses like this one?—Steve Reilly, Graduate Student, Zoology

...shouldn't be taught as science

Greg Lamanna has an incredibly insightful description of evolution which he presented in his Feb. 21 letter to the Daily Egyptian. Where he got the idea that evolutionists use only similar appearance to suggest similar ancestry is beyond me. Perhaps he took an introductory zoology course—no, that would have taught him something about evolutionary theory. If we are going to believe a Radio-Television major's interpretation of evolution, we might as well let former actors solve our economic problems.

Creationism is a religious belief, as is the existence of heaven and hell. No concrete scientific evidence to support creationism exists; therefore, creationism should not be taught under the discipline of science. Faith is the only evidence to support creationism; therefore creationism should be taught under religious studies in appropriate schools.

Am I mistaken, or didn't our forefathers say something about the separation of church and state? Oh well, I'll leave that question for the law students and political scientists—or maybe the engineering students would like to interpret the Constitution.—Steve Holzman, Senior, Zoology

Musicians, merchants thanked

On behalf of the Mid America Peace Project, we would like to extend warm thanks to the following merchants and musically inclined individuals for their generous donations of time, goods, energy and talent for the benefit of MAPP and in hopes of a non-nuclear future.

For making our Jan. 30 benefit at Hangar 9 a success we thank Jonathan, Jon, Pete, Beth, and Eugene (you dog) of Uncle Jon's Band and Russ, Joey, Joe, Doug, and Anita (can she sing the blues) of Rare Form.

For their performances at our Feb. 19 coffeehouse at the Wesley Foundation we thank Rick and Tom Naas, Donna Adler, Kathy Livingston, Kathleen Shafner, and Brett and "Grateful" Greg Miller.

We also appreciate the help of John Zakhar, owner of John Dough's, and Jay Stemm, owner of Makanda Java, for their generous contributions for our coffeehouse.—Andrew J. Leighton, Junior, Political Science and Bruce Stapley, Mid America Peace Project

'Fledermaus' strong on music, weak on interest in story line

Play Review

Revenge was sweet for "The Bat" in McLeod Theater this weekend when the Theater Department and the School of Music combined talents to present the 100-year-old operetta, "Die Fledermaus."

The operetta was the largest production McLeod has presented this season, with a 35-member orchestra conducted by Michael Hanes, and a large cast elaborately costumed.

The operetta, about a doctor's revenge on a man who caused him public humiliation, was the third of 15 operettas by Johann Strauss Jr. This English performing edition was adapted and directed by School of Music faculty member Michael Blum.

The difficult opera-style book was virtuously performed and articulated by the leads: guest performer Randall Black, who played Gabriel von Eisenstein, Lindsey Van de Kirk, who plays von Eisenstein's wife, Rosalinda and Cecilia Wagner portrayed their chambermaid, Adele. John Scott Sikon played Dr. Falke, "the bat," in Friday's and Sunday's performances while Greg A. Coutts played the same part Thursday and Saturday.

The only less-than-convincing role was Alfredo Dodipetto, an Italian tenor, played by Henry Linares, who sounded more

The comedic operetta, set at a resort in the Austrian Alps, provided entertainment with song and well choreographed dances even in difficult situations.

However, the weak story line of the operetta and its length, over two and a half hours with two intermissions, detracted from the fine performances. The second act was particularly long for the action involved.

The storyline involves the revenge of Dr. Falke, who was nicknamed "the bat" for being found one morning dressed as a bat in the town square where von Eisenstein left him in a drunken slumber the night before.

The performance opens with Falke explaining the situation to the audience, which is a technique not usually implemented. But it provided much of the humor in this story as characters revealed their true feelings to the audience while being quite deceitful on stage.

This light-hearted comedy also generated humor as the characters made fun of the opera style they were singing.

In the second act a powerful vocal blast by one character blew over a few party guests.

As the performance opens, von Eisenstein has just been sentenced to eight days in jail for denouncing a political leader, and Falke is trying to persuade him to go to a party a Russian prince, Orlovsky, is having that night.

Falke successfully baits his comrade with the promise that an abundance of champagne and beautiful women will be at the party. Falke secretly invites von Eisenstein's wife and chambermaid, and all three attend the party under false identities.

The weak resolution of this play makes the operetta disappointing, especially after almost three hours of attention. After von Eisenstein behaves exactly as Falke thought he would by playing up to a beautiful, but masked woman who is really his wife, von Eisenstein is subjected to the humiliation Falke once suffered when the truth comes out. But nothing comes of his embarrassment. His wife forgives him and everyone toasts to champagne.

The beautiful score by Strauss is showcased by the talents of the orchestra which performed particularly well, was never overbearing and always complemented the vocal performance.

Anti-Khomeini students hold vigil

Nine protest Iran-Iraq war

By Dave Saelens
Staff Writer

Although the snow drove most people indoors last week, nine Iranian students gathered at the north end of the Student Center Friday in a peaceful demonstration to protest the Iran-Iraq war.

The small band of protesters, from the Supporters of Moslem-Iranian Student Society, stood silently in the snow from 11 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. holding signs with phrases such as, "Join us to condemn Khomeini's atrocities," and "Condemn the war between Khomeini and Iraq."

Yousef Aharchi, spokesman for the group, said the protesters are student representatives of the Modjahedin, an Iranian group which is the major opposition to Khomeini's regime.

Aharchi said the leader of the Modjahedin, Massoud Rajavi, is currently in France and recently wrote to Tariq Aziz, vice-premier and minister of foreign affairs of Iraq, requesting a halt to the bombardment of Iran cities. Aharchi said the war is causing deaths among defenseless civilians.

"The leader of the Modjahedin is trying to stop the billion-dollar-a-day war and the killing of innocent people," he said.

Aharchi, standing next to a sign reading "Peace, peace, freedom; Death to Khomeini," said the group of protesters is trying to make students aware of Khomeini's atrocities.

One of the protesters, who did not want his name mentioned, said that demonstrating on campus is a risk for Iranian students.

"There are some Khomeini student agents on campus who send the names of demonstrators back to Iran," he said, "and the names are then put on Khomeini's blacklist."

Students who have been blacklisted often have their funding from home cut off, he said. He said there is also some physical threat to those demonstrating against Khomeini, claiming that 10,000 blacklisted students were killed in an Iranian airport as they returned home from the United States.

Percy urged students to get more involved in the electoral process.

He said only one out of four students register to vote, while 85 percent of people at least 65 years old register and vote.

"That's why students don't have much clout," he said.

Williamson County States Attorney Randy Patchett, who is running unopposed in the primary for the U.S. House of Representatives, also spoke to the audience.

Patchett said the GOP's reputation as the party of the rich needs to be changed, and added that Republicans are not anti-women and anti-minorities.

Singling out women as an example, he said it was the Republicans, and not Democrats, who have provided women with opportunities.

"The only woman on the Supreme Court was appointed by a Republican," he said, "and every legislator in Washington who is a woman is also Republican."

Candidates for local, state and national offices, as well as delegate candidates for the Republican National Convention, were also present to do some politicking.

In a reception hosted by members of Students for Percy held in the Illinois Room, the senator took informal audience polls on issues ranging from voluntary prayer in schools, to a balanced budget amendment to the Equal Rights Amendment.

The audience, composed mostly of students, turned thumbs down on the ERA, but Percy said he has always been an advocate of the amendment.

Both the audience and Percy agreed that there was a need for a balanced budget amendment. Cuts were needed in the area of defense, he added.

Percy, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, pulled from his pocket a three-inch long piece of wire. He identified the wire as an antenna assembly dowel pin, and an example of how the government does not spend money wisely.

Percy said investigators were sent to two separate places: one to a hardware dealer, the other to a defense contractor.

The defense contractor bid the part at $7,142 while the hardware dealer said it would cost him more to make out a bill than to give the part away free.

Citing his recent work with the Governmental Affairs Committee, Percy said that companies such as Hughes Aircraft payroll former governmental and military officials to improve the chances of bringing defense contracts to Illinois.

On allowing voluntary prayer in schools, Percy said he is trying to get a consensus from Illinoisans on the issue since it will be voted on in a few weeks.

Although the audience overall was against allowing audible prayer in public schools, it was nearly unanimous in letting the Congress legislate a moment of silent prayer into schools.

The senator said he would let his constituents know well in advance how he would vote.

16 artists compete for award

The Allyn Building will be transformed into an art gallery Monday as 16 seniors in art compete for a share of the $20,000 Rickert-Ziebold award — the School of Art's largest and most prestigious award.

The 16 artists to display their best works were chosen from all graduating seniors in art who submitted slides of their work in February. An undetermined number of students will share the cash award, but an average of five students have been selected in the past. Winners are selected by the entire School of Art faculty.

Phillip Dees, Mark Klaisner, Mark Kretzmann, Sheila Lamberson, David Ryan, Steve Sams and David Wilson will present paintings and drawings; Anthony Balloti and Teresa Floe will present ceramics; Richard Bazan and Roy Wolfe will present prints; Luc Fidler, Scott McDonald will present sculpture; Patrice Turner will present works in fiber; Joseph Crossetto will present charcoal drawings and sculpture; and Dale Travous will present sculpture and prints.

The winners will be announced at 3:30 p.m. Monday.

Another Panther guard, Pat Hamilton, was made from the same mold — short, quick and with springboard leaping ability. She had all nine of her points in the first half.

The Panther guards had trouble holding onto the ball, though. Eastern had 31 turnovers, even though Scott was far from impressed by her team's defensive effort. SIU-C had 24 turnovers.

The officiating also made the game less than a classic affair. At one point the normally quiet Plab was driven to laughter by a call. Another time, Scott motioned to an official, drew him aside, and tried to set set things straight.

"I told him we were getting hacked inside," she said.

SIU-C outshot Eastern 58 percent to 54 percent and won the rebounding battle 28 to 24.

SIU-C plays Indiana State Monday night and Illinois State Wednesday night. The Salukis could probably offer a repeat performance and still handle the Sycamores Monday.

But Illinois State — "No way," said an incredulous Scott. "We wouldn't come close."

SIU-C won three of four events, losing out on the uneven parallel bars to SEMO, 44.65 to 44.20. Surprisingly, SIU-C won the balance beam (43.10), an event that has been a major pitfall throughout the Saluki season. SEMO scored 42.15 on the beam, while Memphis State scored 40.65.

SIU-C's Lori Steele, winner of the all-around last week in a triangular, captured second place with 35.65 points. She edged out teammate Jennifer Moore, who scored 35.60 points. Moore claimed third place in the meet.

and couldn't bring it back. She fell off and got back on again, but she couldn't get going."

"We did not do bars well at all."

The Illini outscored SIU-C 178.75 to 178.15.

"We didn't take advantage of our opportunities," Vogel said.

The Salukis led by 1.6 points after the vault, but Illinois narrowed the gap to .55 points after the uneven parallel bars.

SIU-C continued to lose ground, being outscored 43.00 to 42.20 on the balance beam.

"It was not a matter of who was better on the beam. It was a matter of who was worse," Vogel said. "They were bad and we were bad."

Illinois sealed the win by scoring 45.50 points in the floor exercise, compared to SIU-C's 45.15.

Spillman won the all-around, scoring 36.05

Spillman won three of four events: the vault (9.5), the uneven parallel bars (9.5) and the floor exercise (9.65).

Saluki Pam Turner and Memphis State's Maureen Hall tied for first-place honors on the balance beam, with 9.0 marks.

For the second time in three meets, Turner did not compete in all-around action. She did not perform on the uneven parallel bars Sunday, and she scored just a 7.7 on the bars in Saturday's loss.

"She might not be competing on bars again (this season)," Vogel said.

Against the Illini, Vogel said "Pam started her routine badly

Men gymnasts beat Illinois

By George Pappas
Staff Writer

CHAMPAIGN — An Illinois mistake on the parallel bars paved the way for the Salukis' 12th straight victory this season, as SIU-C's men's gymnastics team beat Illinois 275.45 to 273.65 Saturday at Champaign.

The win made the fifth-ranked Salukis 12-1, and the loss for the ninth-ranked Illini dropped them to 8-3.

Illini Gilberto Albuquerque made two major mistakes on the parallel bars and scored just a 7.5, putting Illinois behind by almost two points late in the meet.

Albuquerque's mistakes were two of many that occurred in the meet between the two best gymnastics teams in the state.

"Today was a day of a comedy of errors," Saluki Coach Bill Meade said. "Even though we scored only 275, we still won, so we'll take it."

The Salukis put on a decent performance in every event except the parallel bars. Kevin Mazeika and Murph Melton scored an 8.45 and an 8.55, respectively, for the Salukis, which were better than Albuquerque's 7.5 and Steve Juengerta's 8.6 for the Illini on the same event.

The event was won by three gymnasts, Brendan Price, David Lutterman, and the Illini's Charles Lakes, who all scored 9.35.

Lakes had a bad day performing all-around. A 57-point scorer, Lakes could contribute only 55.45, including a 9.9 on the high bar. Lakes started the day with an 8.7 on the floor exercise and an 8.95 on the pommel horse.

"Right off the bat, Lakes' routine kind of ruined our rhythm," Illinois Coach Yoshi

Hayasaki said. "We never could come back after that."

But the Illini did close to within .30 with a 47.2 vault routine compared to the Saluki's 46.60 mark. But that's when the Illini parallel bars showing turned it around again.

Saluki Lawrence Williamson won the floor exercise with a 9.7. Illini Joe Levora scored a 9.45 and beat Saluki Herb Voss on the pommel horse. Voss fell off the horse during a handstand, and he scored his second-worst mark of the season on the pommel horse, a 9.05.

The rings event was won by Illini David Luyando as he beat Saluki Greg Upperman 9.45 to 9.40. Illinoi's Gilmarcel Sanches won the vault with a 9.7 and Lakes won the high bar with a 9.9. His 9.9 was .05 off his own school record. Saluki senior John Levy, 55.35, fell short of Lakes' total, 55.45, to finish second in the all-around.

Women cagers struggle past Eastern

Petra Jackson challenges Panther guard Melanie Hatfield during SIU-C's 75-61 win Saturday. Hatfield scored 32 points.

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

It was more of a mess than a basketball game Saturday night at Davies Gymnasium, as the SIU-C women staggered past Eastern Illinois 75-61.

The Salukis led 40-24 at halftime, but were losing ground in the second half.

The game had 55 turnovers (31 by Eastern), numerous strange calls and non-calls by the officials, and 49 points from four Panther guards, who tore by and jumped over the usually airtight Saluki player-to-player defense.

"We're very disappointed," SIU-C Coach Cindy Scott said. "I thought that we played very poorly. This game just set us back."

SIU-C prevailed, though, because of the reliable duo play of guard D.D. Plab and forward Char Warring.

Warring had one of her typical games — 20 points on eight of 13 shooting and four free throws, five rebounds, five steals, two assists and only one turnover in 32 minutes of action. She has led SIU-C in scoring in seven straight games.

Plab had a classy day too. She hit eight of 11 shots — layups and long jump shots — and finished with 17 points. For much of the game, Plab played off-guard and delegated her playmaking chores to guard Eleanor Carr, who had seven assists but six turnovers.

"We wanted to look at her at point and D.D. on the wing where she could get more shots," said Scott, who will decide Sunday whether the experiment is worth continuing.

Guard Ann Kattreh was the only other bright spot for SIU-C. She scored 10 points, shaking off the lingering effects of the illness which had kept her out of practice this week.

But the play of center Connie Price typified the Saluki effort, which Scott viewed with resignation for much of the second half. Price scored only four points, and touched the ball less than five times on the offensive end during the second half.

"Connie is not being an offensive threat," Scott said. "She's not moving and she's not wanting the basketball."

Petra Jackson is in an offensive slump too, but she might have broken out of it by scoring 13 points on six of 11 shooting.

"Petra hit her last two shots so we'll take that as an omen," said Scott, not sounding all that confident.

Scott said Jackson's entire game is off, not just her shooting touch.

"She used to put the ball on the court and do something," Scott said. "Now she's putting the ball down and traveling."

The Salukis seemed out of synch Saturday night, and Scott shuffled players in and out of the lineup at a frenetic pace.

"We were trying to get people to play," she said. "We just never got into the flow of the game."

SIU-C jumped to a quick 7-0 lead by forcing early Panther turnovers, and continually extended the lead in the first 20 minutes. In the second half Eastern traded baskets with SIU-C. The Panthers, outmanned inside, were sparked by guard Melanie Hatfield.

Hatfield scored 23 of her game-high 32 points in the second half, putting the ball on the floor and working hard for 10-to-15 foot jumpers. She sank 13 of 17 shots.

SIU-C, Drake share Gateway lead

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

The Saluki women's basketball team plays Indiana State Monday night at Davies Gymnasium, looking to pick up some momentum for Wednesday night's season finale against Illinois State.

SIU-C and Drake, both 14-2, are headed for a possible playoff game Friday night. Drake plays at Southwest Missouri Monday and at Wichita State Wednesday. Illinois State is 13-3, with a slim chance of forcing a three-game playoff.

If two teams tie, a coin flip will decide the site of the playoff game that would crown a champion and send a Gateway representative to the 32-team NCAA tournament. If three teams tie, a draw would establish the site and seedings for a playoff — two teams would play Thursday and the winner would meet the third team Friday night.

The Salukis will use Monday's game as a tuneup for Wednesday's game against Illinois State. They should have little trouble with Indiana State, 5-21 overall, and 2-14 in the Gateway. SIU-C won the last game 72-64.

The Sycamores have floundered without standout guard Lori Dust, who was lost early in the season with a wrist injury.

Salukis draw WSU in MVC opener

The Salukis will play at Wichita State in Tuesday's opening round of the Missouri Valley Conference basketball tournament.

SIU-C's 7-9 conference record was good for a fifth-place tie with Bradley, but the Braves won the deciding coin flip, earning them the fifth seed and a game at fourth-place Creighton (8-8). Thus the Salukis, seeded sixth, drew third-place Wichita State (11-5).

"We really didn't have a preference who we'd play," Saluki Coach Allen Van Winkle said. "Creighton and Wichita State are two bad choices. Both teams have good talent and we'd be outsized against either one."

The Salukis split their two games with Wichita State this year, losing 73-63 in Wichita Jan. 14 before winning at home 84-79 in double overtime Jan. 21.

In other tournament matchups, No. 1 seed Illinois State plays host to No. 8 Drake and No. 7 Indiana State is at No. 2 Tulsa. The winner of the Saluki-Wichita State game will play the winner of the Tulsa-Indiana State contest in the semifinals Thursday.

The Illinois State-Drake winner will play the winner of the Creighton-Bradley game. The highest seeded team will receive the home-court advantage throughout the tournament.

The home court has been advantageous in the tournament's seven-year history. Visiting teams are 7-39, and 3-25 in the opening round.

The Salukis have had their troubles on the road this season. They are 1-10, 1-7 in the MVC, on enemy territory. SIU-C has won just one of its last 23 road games. At home this season, SIU-C is 12-2, 6-2 in the MVC.

Last year, SIU-C opened on the road against eventual tournament champion Illinois State, bowing 64-54 in a game that was closer than the score indicated. Illinois State pulled away in the final minute as Michael McKinney hit seven free throws.

Illinois State earned the top seed this year despite having the same 13-3 record as Tulsa, by virtue of its two wins over the Hurricane during the regular season. The Redbirds defeated Tulsa 91-81 Saturday.

The 15-12 Salukis, who finished the regular season with their first winning season since 1978-79, do not appear to be peaking at this point. They have won two of their last nine games.

To their credit, though, one of those wins was a 105-98 victory over Illinois State Feb. 23, and they've played the past three and a half games without a healthy Nate Bufford, one of their top players.

Bufford, who played just a few minutes in SIU-C's 77-70 loss at Drake Thursday, practiced Saturday and Sunday and "is slowly looking better," Van Winkle said.

Wichita State, 17-10 overall, closed out its season Thursday with a 95-82 loss at Creighton. The Shockers were victimized by 64 percent Bluejay shooting in that game.

Wichita State has dropped three of its last five games. The Shockers lost on the road to Creighton, Southwestern Louisiana (78-61) and Tulsa (105-97). They defeated Drake in Des Moines (68-53) and West Texas State at home (61-59).

The Shockers are 13-1 in the noisy Henry Levitt Arena, where they have the highest average home attendance in the MVC — 10,124.

Spillman wins all-around as women take Saluki Quad

The Saluki women's gymnastics team bounced back from its disappointing loss at Illinois Saturday to win the Saluki Quad Sunday afternoon.

SIU-C, 7-11, scored 179.90 at the Quad to defeat Southeast Missouri State (177.20) and Memphis State (170.75). Iowa State, the fourth team in the meet, did not compete because of weather conditions that restricted the Cyclones' traveling.

Saluki Michelle Spillman added another all-around title to the collection that she has amassed, scoring 37.55 points, the second-highest total in SIU-history. Spillman's 38.20 mark earlier this season ranks No. 1 on the all-time charts at SIU-C.

Spillman upped her four-meet average to 37.45, another Saluki record. More importantly, though, it should increase her chances of making the NCAA championships with an at-large bid if SIU-C doesn't qualify as a team.

"It's good, that'll help her a lot," Saluki Coach Herb Vogel said. "It just locks it (the bid) in further and further."

The Salukis raised their season average, also, with the win. SIU-C's average is at 179.50, up from the 178.4375 average the Salukis carried

Tracksters qualify high jumper

Some successes and disappointments may be the best way to describe the Saluki men's track team's fortunes at the Last Chance Invitational Saturday in Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Coach Lew Hartzog took a number of athletes to the meet in an effort to get more NCAA qualifying performances before the nationals are held Mar. 9 and 10 in Syracuse, N.Y. As it turned out, one Saluki qualified, another narrowly missed and one was injured.

High jumper Stephen Wray was the only one who qualified. Wray, the Missouri Valley Conference high jump champion for four consecutive years, had a 7-foot-3 jump. The NCAA standard is 7-2.75. Wray's previous best during the season was 7-1. Wray's jump was also a meet and Fieldhouse record. Edison Wedderburn narrowly missed the standard in the two-mile run. Wedderburn's time of 8:40.14 was just a shade over the 8:40.00 requirement.

Hartzog was given a scare when pole vaulter John Sayre missed the pit on a vault attempt and hit his left leg on a standard. Sayre, already qualified for the NCAA's, went to the invitational to stay sharp.

"We thought we'd lost him for the year," Hartzog said. "It turned out to be a bad bruise. Whether he'll be ready to vault at the indoor meet, we don't know."

Hartzog said the injury was at first believed to be a broken leg. But after a doctor examined Sayre, it was determined that there was no break or fracture, but that there might be a severed nerve.

The mile relay team of Parry Duncan, Tony Adams, Mike Franks and Elvis Forde bettered their world best mark of 3:08.94 by running a 3:08.34. Hartzog said he was pleased with the progress of Duncan since he injured his ankle at the MVC championship a week earlier.

"He ran pretty well," Hartzog said. "Now it's just a matter of another week of work."
