Tuck Tape employees strike, wage negotiation set Monday

By Phil Miliano
Staff Writer

Negotiations between striking workers of Tuck Industries in Carbondale and company officials will begin 2 p.m. Monday, with a disputed three-year wage increase plan one of the main topics of discussion.

The strike at the Tuck Tape plant on North Avenue, one of the nation's largest manufacturers of pressure-sensitive tapes, and one of Carbondale's largest employers, is the plant's first in its 37-year history.

The approximately 500 employees of Tuck Industries represented by International Longshoremen's Union Local 1994, AFL-CIO, voted 5-1 in favor of a strike last Friday after reviewing a new three-year contract proposal by the union's negotiating committee.

The union was without an established agenda and Alex Alexander, who said the workers voted for the strike "as fast as it takes to get what they want."

The company's offer of a 90-cent wage increase over a three-year period, down from 107 cents previously. A 3 percent increase of the last contract, did not satisfy the workers, Alexander said. He said the increase would be disputing the meeting at 6 a.m. Monday before negotiations.

"With cost of living increases, we simply can't pay our bills and the strike a necessary one," he said.

Hart leads primary votes, not delegates

By Rod Stone

Sen. Gary Hart may have won more primary votes than former Vice President Walter Mondale in New Hampshire, but the race appears to be trailing far behind in the more important delegate race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

As of Feb. 29, Mondale had 126 convention delegates, while Hart and Sen. John Glenn had 124 and 122, respectively, according to the Associated Press. Mondale needs 1,967 delegates to win the nomination.

While Hart hasn't had any trouble closing the early gap in popular votes between himself and Mondale, making up the deficit of the Democratic vice presidential candidate had until Jan. 18 to file in each district a slate, of delegate candidates to represent him on the ballot in Mondale because of his failure to do so.

Hart had only 42 delegate candidates in 22 congressional districts, while Mondale has a full slate of 116. Hart said this was a strategic decision made by the Hart campaign. "We decided not to spread ourselves too thin and concentrate on those districts we think we can win," Hart said.

Haims said that despite being in the same race, he was not confident about Hart's chances of doing well in Illinois. "I think it's going to be a close race," Haims said. "The advantage lies clearly with the incumbent and the perception of the president's delegate situation.

Percy backs local candidates

By Dave Wake
Staff Writer

U.S. Sen. Charles Percy came to the Student Center Friday to instill little campaign fervor in Jackson County Republicans. Percy, who faces his first re-election contest, did not act like an incumbent. Instead, he came up with a new concept: partying hard, hopeful, voicing his support of President Reagan and the GOP's spirit.

"We're gonna win in Illinois," exclaimed Percy, while cheering 26 supporters at the Jackson County Central Committee's Lincoln Day dinner in Brookville.

City gets early start on state funds to Hart. But two Cranston delegates from the 22nd District, Nick Run and Joyce Fry, say they are uncommitted to any of the remaining candidates.

Rion, of Anna, said the nuclear freeze would be the most important factor in his decision and he doesn't know enough yet about the candidates to make a decision.

Fry, also of Anna, said she is leaning toward Hart in her support, but is "waiting to be asked." Neither of them had been contacted by local campaigns as of Thursday.

Jackson said that although delegates can switch their support from one candidate to another, they must appear on the ballot with the name of the candidate they supported originally. The Hart campaign's biggest problem, he said, will be to publicize which of the other candidates now support Hart.

"Their problem is to teach the people what it means to vote for Cranston," Jackson said. "This will not be impossible, but it will be very difficult. I'm not sure it can be done."

Jackson said this year's convention will be different from the 1980 convention in that it will be a "brokered convention." This means, he said, that delegates will be bound for the first vote or until they release by the candidate, whichever comes first. Then leaves a room for a lot of dealmaking, he said.

"If someone doesn't get it on the first vote, it's going to be a slugfest. It'll be total chaos," Jackson said.

Jackson said that because Illinois' 104 delegates will be the fourth largest delegation at the convention, the state's primary will be very important. He said it is conceivable that Hart could win the popular vote and Mondale could run away with the delegate battle. He said the opposite is also possible, but much less likely.

Council to hold public hearing on Cablevision rate increase

By Bruce Kirkham Staff Writer

A public hearing on a rate increase for Cablevision Cablevision subscribers will be held at the City Council meeting, 7 p.m. Monday.

The public hearing will focus on the request for a special negotiating team, which proposed a $1.75 rate increase and expansion of service to provide a 26-channel selection.

After the hearing, the council will evaluate the proposal. The council must take formal action approving any rate increase for cable subscribers.

The negotiating team, composed of Mayor Helen Weeberg, City Manager Bill Dixon and Cable Television Commission Chairman Charles Klasek, also recommends Cablevision Cablevision be required to provide 26 hours a week of local-originating programming.

The team's report recommends a rate increase not go into effect until customers are provided with the proposed 26-channel selection. Cablevision Cablevision would be allowed one year to upgrade cable systems to provide the expanded service.

All recommendations would require Cablevision to provide an annual audited financial statement and would delete requirements to carry certain channels. For example, for Fox channels, two St. Louis channels and two local-originating channels.

The proposed 26-channel lineup would maintain currently-provided stations WSIL, KSOK, WPUD, ESPN, WFLD, WRDI, WGN, KPLT, KFVS and the time and weather stations.

New stations would include Nickelodeon, independent Channel 27 WTVS, independent Channel 23 KBSI, Cable News Network, Nashville Network, Music Television, Cable Health Network, USA Network, C-Span and Christian Broadcast Network.

Pay channel options would be expanded to include Cinemax, Showtime and the Disney Channel in addition to currently-offered Home Box Office.

The council will also determine tentative funding levels for outside social-service agencies. The council reviewed the requests, which totaled $139,231, at last Monday's informal meeting.

City Finance Director Paul Sorgen said the budget ceiling for the outside social-service agencies the council reviewed was $150,000.

The council has the option of distributing to other agencies funds formerly allocated to the agencies to the city's Comprehensive Health and Comprehensive Child Care programs, which will receive city funding cuts in FY 1986-87.

contract include the company's stipulation of mandatory Saturday work days during the company's busy fall, and a decrease of lunchtime from a half hour to 15 minutes. Maier said the company cannot deliver its orders on time during the busy fall months unless it offers seven and one-half hours work seven and one-half hours five days a week.

Currently, the employees are allowed to take an unpaid half hour lunch break. "They're getting overtime pay on Saturdays. You'd think they'd think it was good that we were offering that extra to make more money," he said.

Alexander said, "If you work six days a week for two months in a row, you can't keep other commitments you might have for a Saturday. And if you don't work, you might get written up or have your job threatened."

The union wanted a guaranteed 40-hour work week, so the company offered to pay for a 15-minute lunch and have the employees work seven and three-quarter hours five days a week. Currently, the employees work seven and one-half hours and receive an unpaid half hour lunch break.

"Where can you go for lunch in 15 minutes?" Alexander asked.

Maier said he would agree to stay with the seven-and-one-half hour, five-days-a-week schedule. The union is also attempting to shorten the amount of time it takes for new employees to obtain the standard contract wage for their jobs. The new contract calls for an employee to work at the plant 30 minutes in order to be eligible for the standard wage. The old contract called for employees to work 16 months in order to become eligible.

Maier said no independent laborers had been hired to fill the gap made by the striking laborers. He said, "I hope we can come to a settlement before it comes to that."

Alexander said the local construction union working on an 80,000 square-foot addition next to the plant had agreed to honor the picket lines, and that local truck unions would not make pickets.

The proposed 26-channel lineup would maintain currently-provided stations WSIL, KSOK, WPUD, ESPN, WFLD, WRDI, WGN, KPLT, KFVS and the time and weather stations.

Emotionalism

Musicians, merchants thanked

The BEST LAID PLANS of the Carbondale Railroad Relocation Project have been rendered unrealistic thanks to some untimely and unwelcome help from City Councilman Keith Tusshorn and from the chairman of the board of Illinois Central Gulf, Henry Brown.

Tusshorn, taking an unusual reactionary bent, said at the most recent City Council meeting that a temporary trainway through some parking lots while the railroad depression is being constructed would cost, and possibly close, some of the businesses that are concerned.

That may be true. Any construction downtown is likely to disrupt commerce, but Tusshorn, as a city council member, should be concerned about his future development, not with simply maintaining the status quo. Tusshorn’s critical voice is a good reminder that the project is not without some non-monetary costs.

Bruce’s attack on the project stems from the fact that part of its original justification was based on the prediction that freight traffic on the line would be increasing due to a coal-fired power plant, increasing the daily cross-town traffic delays. Bruce recently said that since the traffic in the near future probably won’t increase as much as expected, the problem of the depression may have been justified as far as the railroad is concerned.

Bruce did not, however, specify what he meant by “the near future.”

For the present, Carbondale has the opportunity to pursue a large block of federal money which is available within the next two years, along with the law that started the project. In a state that has already suffered from the job opportunities which will enable people to leave the poor suburbs of Washington, and a city in dire need of a viable plan for redeveloping, the railroad relocation is too good to pass up.

...isn’t based on science or history...

Utilitarianism

In a recent letter to the Daily Egyptian, the author points out that hunger and poverty are issues ripe with the potential for emotionalism. He attempts to emotionalize the issue. The name of the poor often becomes synonymous with the problems which are not only grossly exaggerated, but are often used to help the poor. It would be a national tragedy to allow private sector jobs to be destroyed, and to force even more people to become hungry, by expending our national resources on a “poverty bureaucracy” more concerned with its own survival than that of the poor. We cannot feed a nation on the fruits of its intellectual elitism. In the words of Economics Department’s Professor Robert E. Lamb, “The Welfare Industry.”

Reverso was sweet for "The Bat" in McLeod Theater this weekend when the Theater Department and the School of Music combined talents to present the 100-year-old operetta, "Die Fledermaus."

The operetta is the largest production McLeod has presented in a season, with a 30-member orchestra conducted by Michael Hanes, and a large cast elaborately costumed. The operetta, about a doctor's revenge on a man who caused him public humiliation, was the third of 15 operettas by Johann Strauss Jr. This English performing edition was adapted and directed by School of Music faculty member Michael Blum.

The difficult operetta style was virtuosically performed and articulated by the leads: guest performer Randall Black, who played Gabriel von Eisenstein, Linares, who played von Eisenstein's wife, Rosalinda and Cecilia Wagner von Orlovsky, is having that night. In the second act a powerful vocal blast by one character blew over a few party guests.

As the performance opens, von Eisenstein has just been sentenced to eight days in jail for being a spy. The performance opens with Falke explaining the situation to the audience, which is a role McLeod has cast elaborately costumed. Falke successfully baits his wife and friends with the promise that on abundance of champagne and beautiful women will be at party. Falke secretly invites von Eisenstein's wife and chambermaid, and all three attend the party under false identities.

The weak resolution of this play makes the operetta disappointing, especially after almost three hours of attention. After von Eisenstein behaves exactly as Falke thought he would by playing up to a beautiful, but masked women who is really his wife, von Eisenstein is subjected to the humiliation Falke once suffered when the truth comes out. But nothing comes of his embarrassment. His wife forgives him, and everyone toasts to champagne.

The beautiful score by Strauss is showcased by the talents of the orchestra which complemented the vocal performance.

Anti-Khomeini students hold vigil
Nine protest Iran-Iraq war

By Dave Saclens
Staff Writer

Although the snow drove most people indoors last week, nine Iranian students gathered at the 5:00 p.m. until 6:30 p.m. Center Friday in a peaceful demonstration to protest the Iran-Iraq war.

The small band of protesters, from the Supporters of Moslem-Iranian Students, stood on the snow from 11 a.m. until 1:30 p.m., holding signs with phrases such as "Join us to condemn Khomeini's atrocities," and "Condemn the war against Khomeini and Iraq.

Yousef Aharchi, spokesman for the group, said the protesters are student representatives of the Modjabedin, an Iranian group which is the major opposition to Khomeini's regime.

Aharchi said the leader of the Modjabedin, Massoud Rajavi, is currently in France and recently wrote to Jarring, vice-president and minister of foreign affairs of Iraq, requesting a halt to the war. He said the war is causing "tremendous destruction in the region - the Iranian war is a war of defenselessness.

"The leader of the Modjabedin is fighting to stop the billion-dollar-a-day war and the killing of innocent people," he said.

Aharchi, standing next to a sign reading "Peace, peace, freedom, Death to Khomeini," said the group of protesters is trying to make students aware of Khomeini's atrocities.

One of the protesters, a student who did not want his name mentioned, said that demonstrating on campus is a risk for Iranian students.

"There are some Khomeini student agents on campus who send the names of demonstrators back to Iran," he said, "and the names are then put on Khomeini's blacklist.

Students who have been blacklisted often have their funding cut off, he said.

"we have a police threat to those demonstrating against Khomeini, claiming that 10,000 blacklisted students were killed in an Iranian air attack as they returned home from the United States."

"A leader of the Modjabedin, Aziz, said there is also some physical threat to those demonstrating against Khomeini, claiming that 10,000 blacklisted students were killed in an Iranian air attack as they returned home from the United States."

The snow did not deter the group, which stood silently in the cold, waving their signs.

Percy urged students to get more involved in the electoral process.
He said only one out of four students register to vote, while 65 percent of people at least 60 years old register and vote.

"That's why students don't have much clout," he said. Williamon County States Attorney Randy Patchett, who is running unopposed in the primary for the U.S. House of Representatives, also spoke to the audience.

Patchett said the GOP's reputation as the party of the rich needs to be changed, and added that Republicans are not anti-women and anti-minorities.

Singling out women as an example, he said it was the Republicans, and not Democrats, who have provided women with opportunities.

The winners will be announced at 3:30 p.m. Monday.

Percy said he has always been an advocate of the amendment. Both the audience and Percy agreed that there was a need for a balanced budget amendment. Cuts were needed in the area of defense, he added.

Percy, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, pulled from his pocket a piece of white paper and an example of how the government does not spend money wisely.

Percy said investigators were sent to two separate places: one to a hardware dealer, the other to a defense contractor.

The defense contractor bid part of $7,142 while the hardware dealer said it would cost him more to make out a bill than to give the part away free.

Citing his recent work with the Governmental Affairs Committee, Percy said that companies such as Hughes Aircraft payroll former governmental and military officials to improve the chances of bringing defense contracts to Illinois.

On allowing voluntary prayer in schools, Percy said he is against allowing audible prayer in public schools, but he said he is for voluntary prayer in public schools.

Although the audience overall was against allowing audible prayer in public schools, it was nearly unanimous in letting the Congress legislate a moment of silent prayer into schools.

The senator said he would let his constituents know whether he would vote for a balanced budget amendment.

Another Panther guard, Pat Hanahan, was made to feel the same mold — short, quick, and with springboard leaping ability. She had 26 of her 37 points in the first half.

The Panther guards had trouble holding onto the ball, turning to Eastern with 27 turnovers, even though Scott was far from impressed by her team’s defensive effort. SIU-C had to scramble for position, while Memphis did not.

with them into the weekend.

SIU-C won three of four events, losing out on the uneven parallel bars to SEMO, 44.65 to 43.10. Surprisingly, SIU-C won the balance beam (43.10), an event that has been a major pitfall throughout the Saluki season. SEMO scored 42.15 on the beam, while Memphis State scored 40.65.

SIU-C’s Lori Steele, winner of the all-around last week in a triangular, captured second place with 35.65 points. She edged out teammate Jennifer Moore, who scored 35.60 points. Moore claimed third place in the meet.

Syclamn won three of four events: the vault (9.5), the uneven parallel bars (9.53) and the floor exercise (9.65).

Saluki Pam Turner and Memphis State’s Maureen Hall tied for first-place honors on the balance beam, with 9.8 marks. For the second time in three meets, Turner did not compete in all-around action. She did not perform on the uneven parallel bars Sunday, and she scored just a 7.7 on the bars in Saturday’s loss.

“Maybe not be competing on bars again (this season),” Vogel said.

Against the Illini, Vogel said, “Pam started her routine badly and couldn’t bring it back. She fell off and got back on again, but she couldn’t get going.”

“We did not do bars well at all,” said the Illini outscored SIU-C 178.75 to 178.15.

“We didn’t take advantage of our opportunities,” Vogel said.

The Salukis led by 16 points after the vault, but Illinois narrowed the gap to 35 points after the uneven parallel bars. SIU-C continued to lose ground, being outscored 43.00 to 42.30 on the balance beam.

“Not a matter of who was better on the beam. It was a matter of who was worse,” Vogel said. “They were bad and we were bad.”

Illinois sealed the win by scoring 45.50 points in the floor exercise, compared to SIU-C’s 45.15.

Spillman won the all-around, scoring 35.65.

Men gymnasts beat Illinois

By George Pappas
Staff Writer

CHAMPAIGN — An Illinois mistake on the parallel bars paved the way for the Salukis' 15th straight victory this season, as SIU-C's men's gymnastics team beat Illinois 275.45 to 273.65 Saturday at Champaign.

The win made the fifth-ranked Salukis 12-1, and the loss for the ninth-ranked Illini dropped them to 8-3.

Illini Gilberto Albuquerque made two major mistakes on the parallel bars and scored just a 7.5, putting Illinois behind 12th straight victory this the parallel bars and scored 9.45 and 9.55, respectively, for the Salukis, which were better than Albuquerque's 7.5 and Steve Juengter's 8.6 for Illinois on the same event.

The event was won by three gymnasts, Brendan Price, David Lutterman, and the Illinois' Charles Lakes, who all scored 9.55.

Lakes had a bad day performing all-around. A 57-point scorer, Lakes could contribute only 50.45, including a 9.2 on the high bar. Lakes started the day with an 8.7 on the floor exercise and an 8.95 on the pommel horse.

"Right off the bat, Lakes' routine kind of ruined our rhythm," Illinois Coach Yoshi Hayasaka said. "We never could come back after that."

But the Illini did close to within 30 with a 9.7 vault routine compared to the Saluki's 46.60 mark. But that's when the Illini parallel bars showing turned it around again.

Saluki Lawrence Williamson won the floor exercise with a 9.7. Illini Joe Lewora scored a 9.45 and beat Saluki Herb Voss on the pommel horse. Voss fell off the horse during a handstand and he scored his second worst mark of the season on the pommel horse, a 9.06.

The rings event was won by Illini David Luyando as he beat Saluki Greg Upperman 9.45 to 9.40. Illinois' Gilmarc Sanches won the vault with a 9.7 and Lakes was captain of the team with a 9.9. His 9.9 was off of his own school record. Saluki senior John Levy, 20, finished short of Lakes total, 50.45, to finish second in the all-around.

Women cagers struggle past Eastern

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

It was more of a mess than a basketball game Saturday night at Davies Gymnasium, as the SIU-C women staggered past Eastern Illinois 72-61.

The Salukis led 40-24 at halftime, but were losing 49-40 with just over 13 minutes left in the game.

The game had 15 turnovers (21 by Eastern), numerous steal attempts, fouls on both teams, and not one of the officials, and 48 points from four Panther guards that by and large over the usually athletically gifted player-to-player defense.

“We're very disappointed,” SIU-C Coach Cindy Warrington said. “I thought that we played very poorly. This game just set us back.”

SIU-C prevailed, though, because of the Midwestern guard of D.G. Plah and forward Cindy Scott.

Warrington had one of her typical games — 20 points on 9-of-13 shooting and four free throws, five rebounds, five assists and only turnover in 32 minutes of action. She has led SIU-C in scoring in seven straight games.

Plah had a classy day too. She hit eight of 11 shots — layups and long jump shots — and finished with 17 points. For much of the game, Plah played off-guard and delegated her playmaking chores to guards Eleanor Carr, who had seven assists but six turnovers.

“Honestly, I wasn’t at point and D.D. on the wing when she was doing most of the shots,” said Scott, who will decide Sunday whether the Salukis can keep him.

Guard Ann Kattreh was the other four-pointer for SIU-C. She scored 16 points, shooting off the bench and coming in when Eastern had no practice with Illinois.

“We were trying to get people to the line and not getting them in the line,” Scott said. “We couldn’t get them in the line of the flow of the game.”

SIU-C jumped to a quick 7-0 lead by forcing early Panther turnovers and that led to 10-of-14 shooting overall, and ISA in the game. SIU-C won the last game, 62-59.

The Midwesterners also forced the two teams to shoot from the outside and also would load the triple-shot threat.

The Salukis carried WSU's momentum into their MVC opener

By Daryl Van Schouwen
Staff Writer

The Salukis will play at Wichita State in Tuesday’s opening round of the Missouri Valley Conference basketball tournament.

SIU-C’s 7-9 conference record was good for a fifth-place tie with Bradley. The Braves won the deciding coin flip, earning them the fifth seed and a game at fourth-place Creighton (8-8). Thus the Salukis seeded sixth, drew the third-place Wichita State (11-5).

“Realistically, we didn’t have a preference who we’d play,” Saluki Coach Allen Van Winkle said. “Creighton and Wichita State are two bad choices. Both teams have good talent and we’d be outmuscled against either one.”

The Salukis split their two games with Wichita State this year, losing 73-83 in Wichita Jan. 14 before winning at home 84-79 in double overtime Jan. 21.

In other tournament match-ups, No. 1 seed Illinois State plays host to No. 5 Drake and No. 7 Indiana State is at No. 2 Tulsa. The winner of the Saluki-Wealth State game will play the winner of the Tulsa-Indiana State contest in the semifinals Thursday.

The Illinois State-Drake winner will play the winner of the Creighton-Bradley game. The highest seeds’ team will receive the home-court advantage throughout the tournament.

The home court has been advantageous in the tournament, with teams like Creighton and Virginia teams being 7-3 and 3-5 in the opening round.

Both teams have had their troubles on the road this season. They are 1-6-1 in the MVC, on enemy territory.

SIU-C has won one of its seven road games. At home this season, SIU-C is 12-2, 6-2 in the MVC. The Salukis opened the road against eventual MVC champions Creighton in Des Moines (68-53) and West Louisiana (78-61) and Tulsa has dropped three of its last five games.

The Shockers were victimized by 64 percent Bluejay shooting in that game.

The Shockers are 13-1 in the nation when they have the highest home court advantage, but that may be a confidence booster.

The mile relay team of Parry Duncan, Tony Adams, Mike Steward and Tyrone Douglass turned in 3:34.90, the team’s best mark of the season, and also the team’s best against the MVC.

“Wichita State is a very, very good team,”说道. “We have to be at our best to beat them.”

They did beat them 73-63 in Wichita last year.
