Official: Economy warming but 'glacial'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan said Tuesday the nation's economy is out of the recession, but he described the recovery as "glacial."

"I think we are already out of it. The question is what happens from here," Greenspan told the congressional Joint Economic Committee.

"Rarely have I seen a recovery as anemic" as the current one, Greenspan said, calling it "little more than glacial."

Greenspan attributed the slow rebound to the fact that the "extent of the decline has been quite small." He said the spring of 1991 probably was the low point of the recession.

The recession probably was unavoidable, Greenspan said, given the long period of sustained economic growth during the 1980s. He said the possibility of continuing without "some form of adjustment...was almost non-existent."

He said the specific trigger for the

Salad replaces 'melting pot' on teaching menu

By Sherri L. Wilcox
General Assignment Writer

SIUC student Scott Winston is part Irish, French, Native American, African and Russian—and he was raised Jewish.

Winston said he believes in the melting pot theory, the idea that the United States attracts a multitude of ethnic people, mixes them together and creates a multi-cultured

American.

"I am not just one thing," said Winston, a senior in advertising from Skokie. "I am many things combined into one."

But some educators no longer teach the idea of a melting pot, saying the theory is, at best, outdated.

Many professors now teach their students to compare the United States to a tossed salad, said James Jackson, SIUC professor of curriculum and instruction.

This country should not be thought of as a "melting pot" because the concept of many cultures melting into one suggests that people must "melt and reform" giving up many of the traits which should be enhanced, he said.

The tossed salad idea suggests while cultural groups combine with others to create a better final product, they still can hang on to their own cultural diversity without being smothered in another, he said.

"In a salad, a tomato is a tomato," he said. "No matter how you slice it, dice it, or mix it with other ingredients, it's still a tomato."

But Winston said the tossed

Senate committee approves loan bill

Banking lobbyists influence senators to soften legislation

By Todd Welvaert
Politics Writer

A watered-down version of a bill designed to restructure the current guaranteed student loan system and eliminate the role of banks passed through the Senate Finance Committee Tuesday.

The legislation has been scaled down from the original plan to a test, mostly a result of heavy lobbying from banking institutions.

The proposal now is a test available to 500 colleges nationwide. The colleges would be on a volunteer basis. The U.S. Department of Education is choosing volunteers to participate.

"We are positive there will be no lack of volunteers for the program," said Sen.

Simon, D-Makanda in a press release. "The new program benefits students and schools a great deal."

SIUC financial aid administrators have supported the proposal but say they will have to take a careful look at how the test program will provide for students.

"SIUC will certainly consider it," said Pamela Britton, SIUC financial aid director. "It will depend on the particulars but it is something we will definitely look at."

Banking and secondary markets lobbied heavily against the legislation to save the $4.8 billion GSL market. GSLs represent the third most lucrative loans banks award behind credit cars and automobile loans.

The American Bankers Association called the plan "inefficient and expensive," citing the plan would cost taxpayers and students more in the long run because students would have up to 25 years to repay the loan.

"The purpose of the federal student loan program is to help provide access to higher education," Sen. Durenberger, R-Minn said

Council hears debate for Springfest, Halloween

By Teri Lynn Carlock
City Writer

City Council members say Springfest has become the ghost of Halloween's past.

The City Council initiated discussion of the Staff Liquor Advisory Committee's six recommendations for controlling the 1992 Halloween and Springfest celebrations.

SLAC members recommended early closing hours for all liquor establishments, a ban on the retail sale of kegs and a restriction on morning liquor sales. The committee also requested a ban on the sale of glass containers and changing the year-around closing time for liquor sales from 2 a.m. to 1:59 a.m. to avoid the problem of extended liquor hours when the time changes the last Sunday of October.

Councilman John Yow said he is in favor of all six recommendations made by SLAC.

"This will be the first time we can make a dent in the problems arising from Halloween and Springfest," he said. "I think the recommendations of SLAC are well-thought out and well presented."

But SIUC's Undergraduate Student Government is concerned the proposed recommendations will back fire, said Brad Cole, USG chief of staff.

"We fear that some of the recommendations might solicit more activities than in the past," he said. "We want to better understand these matters and get our opinion across before action is taken."

Councilman Keith Tuxhorn said the Carbondale community has not been unified enough on the issues of Halloween and Springfest in the past.

"SIUC students are our bread and butter, and when we consider these propositions we have to look at them through the eyes of 20 year-olds," he said. "There's no way in hell you're going to stop Halloween because we have forces outside of Carbondale."

The City Council needs to consider students want to be part of a group activity, Tuxhorn said.

"I think if you're going to stop the sales at 10 p.m., then students will be out on the streets earlier," he said. "I think if you're going to stop sales, stop them at midnight instead of throwing everyone out on the street with four to five hours left to party."

English team returns to Italy 7 years after fatal soccer uprising in Brussels

GENOA, Italy (UPI) — Shadowed by memories of the 1985 soccer tragedy in Belgium, the English club Liverpool plays Genoa Wednesday in the quarterfinals of the UEFA Cup.

Liverpool will be playing its first game in Italy since the night at Heysel Stadium in Brussels when 39 fans, mostly Italians, died in a stadium riot. The deaths came before the start of the European Champions Cup final between Liverpool and Juventus.

The European Football Union (UEFA) banned all English clubs from European competition until 1990. Liverpool however, remained in exile an extra year.

"Almost seven years have passed," Italy's leading sports newspaper La Gazzetta dello Sport said in an editorial. "There are wounds which can never be set aside, and sadnesses which remain and which crop up again at the mention of that name."

"But now that Liverpool is returning, there is also a desire that today is another day and that the hooligans are less hooligan after the hard and serious battle conducted by the English authorities against this plague."

Reports of the worst stadium hooliganism in two years in Birmingham and London during two English League games last weekend added to police apprehensions in Genoa.

Working with British police, the Genoa police and city council announced elaborate precautions aimed at minimizing the risk from the visiting Liverpool fans, arriving in Genoa aboard seven special planes and in buses.

These include herding the most suspect Liverpool fans into a city square on the Genoa waterfront, under special police watch. There will be extra police guards at tourist sites and other places fans are likely to visit.

The local governor of Genoa issued an order Tuesday night banning the sale of alcohol throughout the city all day Wednesday.

The city council, with the collaboration of Rogan Taylor, founder of the Liverpool Football Supporters' Association, is arranging meetings between groups of Liverpool and Genoa fans before the game.

Swiss beats rain, Australian to advance in tennis tourney

INDIAN WELLS, CALIF. (UPI) — Switzerland's Jakob Hlasek, the No. 16 seed, defeated Todd Woodbridge of Australia 7-5, 6-4 Monday night after steady rains washed away most first-round play at the $1 million Newsweek Champions Cup.

Two unseeded Spaniards also advanced into the second round. Javier Sanchez defeated Olivier Delaitre of France 6-3, 6-0 while Francisco Clavet beat wild-card entry Brian MacPhie of San Jose, Calif., 6-4, 6-3. In a battle of wild-card entries, Australia's Richard Fromberg defeated Richard Krajicek of The Netherlands, 7-5, 6-4.

Only four of the 14 first-round matches were played and they began after 6 p.m. PST after showers subsided. Hlasek was the only seed to play.

No. 11 Sergi Bruguera of Spain, No. 12 Michael Chang of Placentia, Calif., and No. 13 Magnus Gustafsson of Sweden were the seeded players whose matches were postponed. They were rescheduled for Tuesday.

The 56-player draw includes top-ranked American Jim Courier, No. 3-ranked Pete Sampras, reigning Wimbledon champion Michael Stich and Guy Forget of France.

MaliVai Washington, of Swartz Creek, Mich., ranked No. 25 on the ATP computer, withdrew from the tournament Monday with an elbow injury.

Washington, 22, won his first ATP title in Memphis three weeks ago.

"It's hard to say how long I'll be out,"

Washington said. "It can either be a few days or a few weeks. The pain has come and gone."

"I've been playing a lot the last few weeks and I've been advised to take a rest. Hopefully I'll be able to play at Lipton (next week)."

No. 1 Dawgs to battle WSU in first round

THE SALUKIS go into the Missouri Valley Conference tourney Saturday in St. Louis as the No. 1 seed, just as they did two years ago.

In the 1990 tournament the Dawgs lost in the finals to Illinois State at Normal and finished with a 26-7 record. They were snubbed by the NCAA tournament selection committee for an at-large bid.

Coach Rich Herrin said his club, which finished the regular season first try to top the No. 8 seed Wichita State Shockers, and then worry about its next opponent.

"You always have to be concerned about a team like Wichita," Herrin said. "They are playing some really motivated basketball right now."

'Tark the Shark' might bite back with own investigation of UNLV

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — How's this for a bizarre and ironic twist? Jerry Tarkanian is now demanding an investigation of UNLV.

Tarkanian, the embattled and embittered basketball coach at Nevada-Las Vegas, who may or may not have coached his last game at UNLV Tuesday night, is requesting that "somebody outside of Nevada" conduct an investigation of the school's actions that led to his decision to rescind his resignation last month.

This from a man who has been investigated by the NCAA almost from the time day he began coaching at the school in 1973. It's almost like Don King asking Congress to investigate boxing.

Tarkanian wants "the truth" about his basketball program exposed because he says, "some of the of the things that have happened to Rebel basketball are rather unusual."

"The issue is to get at the truth," Tarkanian said at a Monday news conference. "When the truth gets out, then I'll make a decision as to what I'm going to do."

Recently, Tarkanian has been rumored to be considering the coaching job at San Diego State and there has been talk of him moving on to the NBA.

There are more than a few Tarkanian detractors out there who want the coach to sever all his ties to both the school and Las Vegas community. Chief among them, UNLV President Robert Maxson.

Although Maxson is publicly cautious about comments directed toward Tarkanian, Maxson has made it quite clear he wants Tarkanian out—the sooner, the better. Maxson acknowledges that his university is at a "crossroads" and that Tarkanian's presence can only do further damage to the school's already corrupted image.

"This has been a very long basketball season, we don't need to make it any longer," Maxson said Monday.

FORMER PRIME MINISTER HAS HEART ATTACK — Menachem Begin, the only Israeli prime minister to sign a peace treaty with an Arab country, suffered an apparent heart attack Tuesday and was reported in critical but stable condition at a Tel Aviv hospital. Doctors at Ichilov Medical Center, where Begin, 78, was rushed from his home early Tuesday, first thought the Nobel Peace Prize winner had suffered a stroke, but instead found evidence of heart damage.

BOSNIA VOTES FOR INDEPENDENCE — Bosnia-Herzegovina election officials said Tuesday the multi-ethnic republic's voters overwhelmingly approved independence, and Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic said he will seek international recognition of the republic's sovereignty. The results of the weekend referendum, which was boycotted by the Serbs who want to maintain a Yugoslav federation, were issued a day after Serbs paralyzed the capital, Sarajevo, with roadblocks.

PRAVDA ANNOUNCES PRINTING CUT BACK — Pravda, the once-mighty daily oracle of the Soviet Communist Party, announced Tuesday it is being forced to cut back to only three days a week because of financial problems in an emerging free market. In a front-page appeal for donations, the newspaper known for its support of a totalitarian system said it was being run out of business by a "pre-planned strangling of the free independent press including Pravda."

CHOLERA INFECTS MASSES IN EL SALVADOR — Cholera has infected more than 2,000 people in El Salvador, including 45 people who died, since the outbreak was first recorded in the country six months ago, a Health Ministry official said Tuesday. El Salvador's first case of the disease was recorded on Aug. 19, and the outbreak has since continued unabated in the tiny Central American country. Last week five cases were reported in lake Coatepeque, 25 miles east of the capital.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index was ahead 49 to 228.69 while Standard and Poor's 500-stock index rose 1.19 to 413.64.

BUSH, YELTSIN PLAN SUMMIT — President Bush announced Tuesday that he and Russian President Boris Yeltsin will hold a formal summit meeting in Washington June 16-17, their first since the Christmas collapse of the Soviet Union. Bush said the meeting will be a follow-up to their Feb. 1 talks at Camp David, which produced a post-Cold War declaration stating that their two nations are no longer "potential adversaries," but instead allies.

OFFICIAL SAYS TAX HIKE NECESSARY — Illinois lawmakers will have to approve a major increase in the state income tax if they want to halt a slide in the quality of education, according to State School Superintendent Robert Leininger. He said Monday that higher taxes are inevitable if Illinoisans want to provide the state's schoolchildren with proper educational programs. "We're going to have to have a substantial increase in the income tax," he said.

COURT CANDIDATE GETS NEGATIVE RATING — A Southern Illinois candidate for the Illinois Supreme Court says he's not surprised he received a negative rating from his fellow attorneys. An Illinois State Bar Association poll released Monday reveals that members rated Republican Don Weber a "strongly not recommend" to serve on the state's highest court. He was one of three Supreme Court candidates who received the lowest possible rating.

Center receives grant for abuse awareness

By Christine Leninger
Administration Writer

The SIUC Wellness Center has received a $117,000 federal grant to help increase awareness of alcohol and drugs on campus between students and faculty.

The Drug Prevention Grant is designed to educate faculty to recognize a drug or alcohol problem in a student and refer them to someone who can help.

Karen Freitag, project coordinator for the grant, said she has heard from many faculty and students that if the other cared enough to mention a problem, it would be appreciated and not scorned.

"Our main goal is to help faculty help students with drug and alcohol problems and educate both groups enough so the faculty can effectively handle such a situation without anyone being on the defensive," Freitag said.

Freitag and Barb Fijolek, coordinator for drug and alcohol awareness education, have been speaking to various University groups about the grant in seek of support and participation from the SIUC community.

Freitag said response to their speeches has been great and various personnel within the University have expressed an interest in participating in the project.

"Faculty members were asked to show support for the grant in one of three ways," Freitag said.

"Interested members could either get involved in a think-tank that would design the game plan for implementing the program, join an advisory group to mind the grant money or to become a trainer for faculty showing them how to handle certain situations in relation to the project."

"Most of the interested faculty have opted to participate in the think tank or the advisory committee," she said.

Freitag and Fijolek will survey the faculty and staff about their awareness and attitudes toward substance abuse and education to try to formulate a plan that would work best for students and employees.

Fijolek hopes the program will reduce the risks of crime, injury and assault to students while increasing their success within the University, she said.

"The Wellness Center already has many student services regarding education and counseling, and with money being so tight these days, the grant will help by adding to the services we can offer," Fijolek said.

Ange Bruns, director of the employee assistance program, said she is pleased to be working with the Wellness Center on this project.

"This program is designed to help both the faculty member and student for assessing a problem and referring all kinds of substance abuse to someone who can help with the situation," Bruns said.

Many faculty members have been frustrated in the past to notice a student with a problem and not know what to do about it, said Ed Thompson, head trainer of the SIUC athletic department.

Cable TV regulation a gift of election year

THANK HEAVEN FOR ELECTION YEARS. One gets the sense that without them, no official would ever act in the voters' interests. When their careers are at stake, politicians are more likely to pay attention to the needs and wants of the common citizen, cobbling together "consumer protection" bills and other legislation to tickle the interests of the voters.

This election year brings one piece of legislation voters can be thankful for—the Cable Television Consumer Protection Act, a long-overdue bill to protect the pocketbooks of cable TV viewers, including those in Southern Illinois, from the rampant fee increases of the past decade. If passed in the House of Representatives, the bill—already passed in the Senate—would redress some wrongs done by the cable industry over the years.

The cable industry has taken consumers for a ride over a period of years. When the cable boom began in the early 1980s, companies wired communities for the service and then began a 10-year rate-increase spree. Without rival cable suppliers to compete for viewers, the monopolizing local companies ran amok.

From 1981 to 1990, cable rates jumped by a whopping 200 percent in some communities in the Southern Illinois region. Carbondale has been more fortunate than some cities: Rates charged by TCI, Carbondale's cable monopoly, have only jumped to $18 from a 1981 rate of $6.

But add to the list of grievances the spotty service, the slow repair and the programming that is almost uniformly poor, and the consumer grudge against cable becomes easier to understand.

The Cable Television Consumer Protection Act gives local governments the power to regulate cable rates when competition proves ineffective in keeping prices low, as it has proven almost universally. When one cable company holds all the cards in a given city, that city deserves a say in how much its residents pay for the service.

Reagan-era media deregulation, which helped foster communications monopolies through lack of government controls, kept the cable providers sailing on the subscribers' tabs throughout the 1980s. Perhaps this bill bodes well for a new age in which government actively keeps an eye out for citizens' best interests.

Probably not. It is only an election year, after all, but the voters will take what they can get.

Opinion from Elsewhere

U of I racial attacks spur action

The Daily Illini
Champaign-Urbana

About 15 attacks on small groups of white men by larger groups of black men in Campustown have been reported since Mid-January, according to Champaign Police officials.

Most of these attacks are similar in character to last semester's rash of attacks in Campustown.

The Police-Student Advisory Committee formed a subcommittee to deal with last semester's attacks. The committee cannot simply say it has no control and push the problem back onto the police. It must dig deeper to find the source of the problem and quickly take concrete actions to eliminate that cause.

The committee can start by sponsoring discussions and by promoting interaction between community youth and university student leaders.

They can also remind student that no one, whether male or female, should be walking alone in the middle of the night.

Students shouldn't be holed up in their ivory towers, and they have to realize there's an entire community outside of the campus; it's entirely different from the campus, but one that cannot be ignored or taunted.

Letters to the Editor

To hell in a handbag

Homosexual behavior not a tool of Satan

Recently many people have been expressing "God's" views on homosexuality. It is now time to hear from the opposition.

Satan is greatly distressed about the growing trend of pawning off homosexuals on her. She does not want them. Not only don't they qualify—loving the "wrong person" hardly constitutes sin—but there is little demand in hell for florists, hair stylists, or interior decorators.

After all, there are only so many ways of arranging poison ivy, crabgrass, and marijuana; everyone's hair is either burnt off or reserved for Jerry Falwell's post-mortem toupee; and the only souls in hell that want wallpaper are the Bible-thumping hypocrites who are always climbing the walls in the hope of escaping their equally self-righteous brethren with whom they are confined.

Normally, Satan does not grant such luxuries, but she feels wallpaper may help calm them down. She is afraid one may work himself into a frenzy and get away. Once loose, he might talk to other ex-sinners.

If the politicians, lawyers and generals learn they could be trapped with Jim Bakker, their present eternal damnation would no longer seem as bad.

Satan does not want anyone to get the wrong idea. She is still very much in favor of fag-bashing. Hatred, violence and ignorance never go out of style.

She just doesn't want heaven to stick her with a hundred million gay souls, many of which repulse her because of their devotion to truth, self-awareness, and non-violence.

So please remember, unless you are absolutely sure of getting past the pearly gates, you may be spending a lot of close, intimate time with the very souls Satan knows you want in hell.—M. Dante, grad student, microbiology.

'Bible-thumping' tires reader; zealots oppose free thinking

Over the last few weeks, fundamentalist Christian zealots have invaded the DE with narrow-minded, "Bible-thumping" opinions. I was so revolted by this flagrant disregard for other views and lifestyles that decency forced me to write this letter.

I and countless other trusting individuals have been bombarded by this sort of religious tripe ever since our parents first indoctrinated us into their religious activities.

For many, religion is a "clean-cut" decision. "Believe the way I believe, or be damned! Sin and be damned!"

Further, they believe in a vindictive sort of God, not a loving one. The most inquisitive of us are able to reason past this smoke-screen of control to find our own true beliefs.

Advocates of such closed-minded, fundamentalist Christian dogma attempt to hide the fact there have always been people who are different.

Just because someone is different, does that mean we can discriminate against and degrade them?

Enough is enough! Many do not share your opinions on strict bible interpretation, sexual orientation, and God's forgiving capacities. Stop attempting to "beat the Bible" into us. Everyone has a right to believe whatever they wish. Your theories on how humankind should live and interact are worthless to me.

We are free individuals. We encounter difficulty in living a fulfilled life only when we listen to closed-minded, fanatical persons. They attempt to subvert the true meaning of most religious teachings. These truths are, namely, love and understanding; not hate and blindness.

Making the world into a better place than when we originally entered it should be our major goal. One of the best ways to do this is to love others for who they are, not who (or what) you would like them to be.—Terry R. Fisher, senior, advanced technical studies.

Deviant society lacks devotion to God's word

I have read with great interest the surge of letters following Wayne Helmer's letter on Marvel Comics' homosexual hero. Although not surprised by the "outrage" of the more liberal "free thinkers," I was saddened by society's moral decline.

Homosexuality, abortion, etc. arouse passionate responses. But look at the bottom line. Homosexuality is abnormal, condemned biblically, and recognized as learned behavior by leading sex researchers, Masters and Johnson.

Abortion, whether you are pro-life or pro-choice, is in the rawest light, murder. Most of us are informed, educated, literate people. We are aware that at the moment of conception, life has been conceived. Let the pro-choice faction rally around their cause, but do us the favor of recognizing they are rallying to support legalized murder.

Now, I have no doubt this letter will create a lot of flak. But I feel it is important for Christians to speak out. The ills of our society cannot be solved overnight, but great strides toward preserving "ONE NATION UNDER GOD" can be made by informed Christians ready to take a stand.

I salute Dr. Helmer and his efforts to inform and educate. We cannot legislate morality, but we can spread the "good news" that God, although a God of love and mercy, is also a God of judgment.

To everyone who may read this letter, read your Bible. Get into it seriously and see what God says about our world and our society. —Sheila Middleton, Office Systems Assistant III, civil engineering.

Simon said in a press release that the plan would save students $1.4 billion a year in fees and administrative costs associated with banks. Simon, who proposed the legislation, said the plan would reduce defaults on the loans, which have cost taxpayers $11.5 billion since 1987.

The Income Dependent Education Assistance Credit would replace the role of banks in the current system with grants from the federal government. The plan called for $17.4 billion of the fiscal 1992 federal budget. The plan called for borrowers to repay the salad concept leaves no place for a person like himself with such a diverse background.

"Everybody should take on a little bit of other people's culture, because the best way to understand a culture is to be a part of it," he said.

The change in concept began as a result of emphasis on multicultural education. This movement enforces the idea that not only should no one have to change their culture to fit another, no one ever really has.

"Chicago is a great example of this," Jackson said. "There are pockets of ethnic neighborhoods within the city that function independently."

These "pockets" often have their own dialect, language and media, he said.

"We are not going to become one culture," he said.

The concept of equality, though, does not mean everyone should be treated the same way, Jackson said.

"If you treat everyone the same, those who are different will not benefit," he said. "We have to be tolerant of the differences."

"You are a tomato, and I am a carrot," Jackson said. "Together we make the salad what it is."

Nancy Schmitt, a senior in elementary education from Crest Hill, is a student in Jackson's class. She said when the tossed salad concept first was introduced, she was apprehensive.

"Most of us grew up with the melting pot theory, and I thought it would be difficult to get people to think so differently," she said.

Jackson said the whole idea of the melting pot is a mind-set. He said focusing on ethnic holidays and emphasizing bilingualism will help bridge the gap of understanding between cultures.

"If we teach people about specific days and language differences we'll change attitudes," he said.

The emphasis on multicultural education began in the '60s, Jackson said, but has gained new life from the current economic setting.

"The economy affects everyone, so we can think of it as the dressing on the salad," he said.

Schmitt said that while everyone holds on to his own culture and individuality, there still is an element of "Americanism" that affects everyone who lives in the United States.

"If the cultures are the different ingredients in the salad, and the dressing represents issues that affect us all, then I guess the salad bowl would be the United States," she said. "We are all in the same bowl."

"If they want to make this country a 'tossed salad,' they'd better put it in a blender," Winston said.

The course Jackson teaches is called "Disadvantaged Education," but he said this stereotypical title is soon to change.

"We're going to call it 'multicultural education,' and it will be open to all majors," he said.

"We're on our way," Jackson said. "Multiculturalism is the going thing now."

the Senate. The bill still must pass debates in the House-Senate Committee and be passed by the president. Bush said he would veto the original House bill before the changes were made.

"This bill is different and right now all the action is taking place in the Congress," said Simon press aide, David Carle. "We are taking it one step at a time and we are extremely pleased with the turn around the bill has had. With this new packaging things will start to come together."

Carle said Simon was not surprised by the changes in the bill. "Sen. Simon has always been a political realist. He views this as a transition. At the present time this is the most possible."

recovery," he said.

"Nonetheless, we will remain sensitive to signs that the anticipated pickup in business activity is not emerging and will be prepared to adjust money growth, as well as our stance in reserve markets, should the need arise," he said.

Greenspan called the recent news on inflation "quite favorable" and said that with "appropriate economic policies ... the inflation trend should extend into 1993."

because the more restrictions, the more rebellion."

Padgett said if the University and City Council give support, students will act as responsible citizens.

"If it can be proven to the students that you're not our enemy and you're on our side, students will be more responsible."

City Manager Steve Hoffner and Carbondale Police Chief Doh Strom will meet with Jack Sullivan, USG president Monday to discuss the proposed recommendations.

The City Council will continue discussion of the SLAC's recommendations at its next regular meeting March 17.

recession was the Gulf War and the accompanying rise in oil prices.

Greenspan reiterated his opposition to short-term economic stimulus packages being pushed in Congress.

The House, after rejecting President Bush's economic plan last week, approved a Democratic tax package and the Senate Finance Committee worked on another version Tuesday.

"We should forego short-term fiscal stimulus unless it appears it is needed," Greenspan said, adding that he would vote against all the various tax proposals being debated by Congress if he had a vote.

He warned of adding to the budget deficit with the various tax proposals and said the markets are "highly sensitive" to that danger.

Greenspan indicated the Fed does not plan any further easing of credit.

"The adopted growth ranges for the monetary aggregates should support our projections for economic activity, and could accommodate an even stronger

"I've heard the council's discussions and the recommendations aren't in stone, but they're solidifying very quickly."

Hall said students need to be involved more to help the student activities.

Jason Padgett, a sophomore in speech communications from St. Charles, said from looking at the celebrations in the past years, there are going to be a lot of problems if the recommendations are enforced.

"The students will get around the limitations somehow because it's Springfield," he said. "The best thing is to have the University and City Council support the students,

SIUC to sponsor poster conference to display faculty research to public

University News Service

Scholars specializing in everything from fish genetics to gender bias in media sports coverage will tout their research billboard-style in Southern Illinois University at Carbondale's first-ever poster conference.

Set for 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday, March 10, in Ballroom B of the SIUC Student Center, the conference represents the work of some 93 researchers on 46 projects in both hard and social science.

Biotechnologist John E. Preece, president-elect of SIUC's 200-member Sigma Xi chapter, organized the event, styling it after the increasingly popular "poster sessions" featured at many national professional meetings.

"Having a poster conference like this should allow communication among scientists on campus and allow students and others to see what kind of work we do," Preece said.

"It really fits the philosophy of Sigma Xi, which is a national society emphasizing scientific research," Preece said.

Poster sessions feature simple research summaries on large boards.

The scholars who did the work stand are ready to answer questions and offer further details.

"At a large meeting where a person gives a talk, you might be able to ask one question," Preece said.

"Poster sessions give people the ability to interact one on one with the researcher. That's good for the researcher, who might get some new ideas, and it's good for you, because it enhances your learning," Preece said.

While SIUC administrators place great emphasis on scholarly work, students tend to think of their professors mainly as instructors, Preece said.

"We have two personas," Preece said. "We hope this will let our students see us as researchers."

"The program will set up a referral network that will help faculty and staff handle problems and also help the student see where an SIUC employee is coming from when a problem is addressed," Thompson said.

The program also will help students be aware of certain indicators that point toward a substance abuse problem so they can refer themselves or a friend to a reliable source of assistance.

The grant was awarded by the U.S. Department of Education in November.

Spring break brings money, arrests to vacation getaways

By Christy Gutowski
General Assignment Writer

Students who converge on coastal beaches and sunny resorts during spring break bring both business and headaches to the areas.

The peak weeks of spring break are March 9 through 29 in which 200,000 to 400,000 students typically visit the central east coast of Florida.

But the current trend for vacation destinations is Panama City, said Robin Phillips, of the Florida Department of Commerce.

"It seems Daytona Beach and Fort Lauderdale are giving away their business due to unruly behavior from visitors," she said.

Local officials refer to this time of the year as the beginning of an eight-week spring break period in which hundreds of thousands of students and vacationers flock to destinations for sunny skies and warm temperatures, bringing their business with them.

A representative of the Greater Fort Lauderdale Convention and Visitors Bureau said the agency used to market the city to U.S. and international families and conventioners.

Many Gulf Coast communities advertised as a destination spot for families, but adding college students to the mix has helped business.

Students injected $169 million into the Fort Lauderdale economy in 1990, Phillips said.

The 250,000 spring breakers expected on the Texas island this year will have a $75 million impact, said Larry Updike, executive director of the South Padre Island Convention Bureau.

But some spots in Florida are offering incentives for students to choose their destinations for break.

More college students have chosen Lake Buena Vista, Fla., to visit Walt Disney World in the past three years, said Jennie Hess, a publicist for Walt Disney World.

Dazzling lights, majestic music and radiant costumes make "Spectromagic" one of the most thrilling parades in the Magic Kingdom at Walt Disney World in Florida.

While the resort was unable to release spring break turn-out statistics, it reported that the response it has received from college students, especially in the Northeast, for spring break has been growing.

"We have a lot of rides and special prices geared toward the student-age population," Hess said.

Since spring break 1991, three theme parks have added attractions to motivate students to visit the facilities.

But along with the fun and business spring break attracts, trouble sometimes results.

In 1989, about 500,000 vacationers came to Daytona Beach, Fla., 100,000 more than the spring before.

The police arrested 1,514 people by Feb. 12, 1989.

Charges included under-age drinking, disorderly conduct and drinking alcohol in public.

In 1985, Fort Lauderdale cleared up its image as a party town by building a wall to curb cruising, adding police patrols and restrictions along one beach and pulling advertising from campus.

Spring break lures students away; some local business sales shrink

By Christy Gutowski
General Assignment Writer

Busy cash registers at local businesses that target specific student consumers take a break during retail vacation.

Many retail stores, depending on the segment of population toward which their product is marketed, are affected by the absence of students during break periods.

Businesses that sell primarily to a consumer group such as students, will experience a drop in sales when that market is eliminated and demand is down, said Gregory White, associate dean for SIUC College of Business and Administration.

Sales of products distributed to the general population in Carbondale only fluctuate slightly, he said.

Businesses such as Guzzall's Apparel at 609 Illinois experience a decline in sales because a large portion of the store's output is geared toward fraternity and sorority students, many who leave town, said David Haghaj, a store manager.

When the students leave, they take their business with them.

Local stores that are dependent on them normally experience a decline in sales.

But store managers who have products for diverse markets say they are less affected when one segment of the population leaves.

Sales at retail stores such as Ruthie's at 702 S. Illinois remained stable during past break periods because it had a diverse market of patrons, making it less dependent on a particular segment.

Prom season is one reason sales will remain constant, said retail store employee, Maria Padilla.

Many local high school students are looking for dresses, keeping the demand for merchandise stable, she said.

During times of break, some local businesses experience a drop in sales and cutbacks in personnel.

The Corner Diner is one example, said Shawn Wilson, a manager of the restaurant.

"Business really diminishes over spring break," he said.

He said though the restaurant does experience less business during break, no layoffs will occur.

More local consumers visit the restaurant during the break period than normal, Wilson said.

Movie sales also become vulnerable during spring break, said Paul Seiler, a manager of Varsity Theatres.

The main age group of the movie-going population is between 18 and 24 years of age, he said.

Some bars located on the strip in Carbondale close during spring break, a reflection of their dependence on student patronage.

Gatsby's and T-Birds will remain open, but Frankie's closed last year because of a lack of business.

The American Tap will be open the weekend of the beginning of spring break, but manager Chris Goodson said he has not decided whether it will be profitable to keep the bar open for the duration of the break.

Stix Bar & Billiards is not affected by students leaving during spring break because an older crowd typically attends the bar, said Manager Gary Brooks.

Although most students will be gone, the bar is as busy, if not more so during the break period, Brooks said.

"We get more of a local, older crowd over the break because they don't have to fight the big crowds," he said.

Broadcasting Service looking for logo in contest

By Jeremy Finley
General Assignment Writer

The deadline for entries in a design logo contest for the SIUC Broadcasting Service has been extended.

The contest calls for logo designs for five individual units of the broadcasting service, said Ed Hedden, art director for broadcasting services.

The units are WSIU-TV 8,

WSIU-TV 16, WSIU-FM 91.9, WSIU-FM 90.3 and Television Learning Services.

"We are looking for a design for the broadcasting service umbrella and for the operating units," Hedden said.

"The logos must individualize each unit but in some way tie all of them together," he said.

Entries must be in before March 11, and the contest is open to viewers and listeners of WSIU and WUSI and SIUC alumni, staff, students and family members.

School of Art and Design and Broadcasting Service full-time staff cannot enter the contest.

The winner of the contest will receive $500 in cash or a tuition waiver for those who qualify, Hedden said.

Primo Angeli, Ann C. Saunders and Gil Cowley are judging the entries, he said. They are some of the best in their fields.

Angeli, creative director and designer for Primo Angeli Inc., has received more than 300 awards in designs. These awards have been given from the Art Directors Club of New York, the Western Art Directors Club and the Package Design Council.

Angeli's designs are in permanent collections in exhibitions worldwide, including the metropolitan Museum of Art in New York and the San Francisco

Museum of Modern Art.

Cowley, director of creative services at the Discovery Channel, is a founding member and past president of the Broadcast Designers Association.

He has served as graphics manager at ABC affiliate WJLA-TV in Washington, D.C., and art director at WJIZ-TV in Baltimore.

Entries should be sent to the SIUC Broadcasting Service. A handling fee of $5 is required.

Coal Center book captures stories of senior citizens

By Ronn Byrd
Entertainment Writer

Retired coal miner Dayton McReaken has something to leave his grandchildren.

The Coal Research Center has captured the story of his days as a Southern Illinois coal miner and put them in a collection of essays by older citizens.

"The fact that my grandkids can read it after I'm dead and gone and see what it was like makes it special," he said.

McReaken's essay as well as other older citizen's will be read in public libraries across the state this spring to introduce the recently published booklet titled "Tell Me A Story: Memories of Early Life Around the Coal Fields of Illinois."

Sarah Jane Alexander, head librarian for the West Frankfort Library, said the library was happy to have the readings.

"I think it is a real honor for these people," she said.

The booklet is a collection of essays about life in the coal fields of Illinois from the late 1800s to the 1950s. The essays were selected from a 1990 older citizen's contest sponsored by the Coal Research Center at SIUC.

McReaken said he got the idea for his essay from his grandson, a journalism graduate. His grandson interviewed him about his mining experiences, and McReaken decided to write his own story and enter it into the contest.

McReaken said he was surprised that his essay was selected for the book, but his essay contains a good story.

"I don't mean to sound boastful," he said. "But I'm a pretty fortunate person; I've probably had a more diversified mining experience than anyone in Southern Illinois."

McReaken worked 47 years as a safety director, a state mining inspector, a federal mining inspector, the director of mines and minerals for Illinois and a member of the state mine rescue team.

"I just happen to be in the right place at the right time," McReaken said. "It wasn't that I was any smarter or any better. I was just lucky."

The booklet was distributed free to Illinois schools, libraries and historical societies.

Some of the library readings include:

- West Frankfort Public Library at 7 p.m. March 12. Essays to be read are "A Nostalgic Look at Coal Mining in the Depression Years" by Louise Mills and "A Lifetime of Coal Mining: The Change of Dayton McReaken" by Dayton McReaken.

- Chester Public Library at 2 p.m. March 20. Essay to be read is "Illinois Mining: A First Person Account" by Katie Fiene Birchler.
- Caricage-Schuyler Library in Pima at 7 p.m. March 26. Essay to be read is "A Day in the Mine with My Father, Thomas Morton, in the Years 1900 to 1929" by Chester Morton and

- Sparta Public Library at 7 p.m. April 3. Wanda Ashley's essay.

magazines across the country.

In 1986, officials passed strong ordinances to limit alcohol use.

Many business owners take extra measures to protect their investments during spring break as well, Phillips said.

Most hotels ask for security deposits from spring breakers to protect against damages. Some prices range as high as $150 a room at the Southernmost Hotel in Key West and $250 at the Holiday Inn Beachside.

At South Padre Island, Texas, an estimated 150,000 vacationers visit the town in the first three weeks of March in 1989.

More than 430 people had been arrested in that time period. Some injuries occurred as well, said Capt. Tom Atkinson of the South Padre police department.

In 1989, two people were injured after falling off hotel balconies, and 11 people were killed in traffic-related accidents, Atkinson said.

In 1989, business owners in Brownsville, Texas, had posted a $10,000 reward for information on the whereabouts of a student from the University of Texas at Austin who disappeared while at a bar in a Mexican border town.

Officials in Palm Springs, Calif., estimated almost 1,640 people were arrested of the 20,000 vacationers that visited the area in a 10-day period in March.

"There is a perception among college students that nobody wants them," Updike said. "We want them."

This year, officials in Daytona are promoting a safer vacation, marking the 30th anniversary of spring break, said Mayor Lawrence J. Kelly in a statement.

"We encourage students to enjoy our hospitality, swim in our beautiful ocean and bask in the warm sunshine and rejuvenate themselves before returning to the arduous studies of campus life," he said.

The spring break market was weakened by the recession.

Northwestern keeps tuition increase low

EVANSTON, (UPI) — For the second year in a row Northwestern University is holding tuition increases to under 5 percent, an accomplishment in this era of soaring college costs.

Tuition for the 1992-93 academic year will increase from $14,370 to $15,075 for the fall term, a hike of $705, Northwestern University President Arnold Weber said.

While $15,000 a year seems high — and is — it's not the highest tuition among Chicago area colleges and universities.

That dubious honor goes to the University of Chicago, where tuition rises 7 percent to $17,346 in September.

The cost for undergraduates living on the University of Chicago Hyde Park campus will be $23,286 this fall, including tuition, room and board and fees, $3,381 more than Northwestern undergrads will pay. "This is the seventh consecutive year that our tuition increase has been at or below 6 percent, significantly less than the national average for major private teaching and research institutions that are comparable," Weber said.

Northwestern's tuition increases have averaged from 4.7 percent to 6.3 percent while the average increase at 15 similar institutions during the same period ranged from 6.8 percent to nine percent.

Weber said the cost for room and board will go up 4.2 percent — about $194 — for undergraduates on a 13-meal-per-week plan from $4,636 to $4,830 bringing the total cost for undergrads to $19,905.

SIUC geologists observing planet to predict quakes

By Kara Grover
General Assignment Writer

The SIUC geologists are continuing work started last fall with a satellite network that measures crustal movement to assist scientists in determining the size and location of future earthquakes.

SIUC research specialist Harvey Henson is part of a 50-member team from nine universities that began research last year using the Global Positioning System to study crustal formations in the New Madrid Zone.

Although geologists cannot predict earthquakes, it is generally thought that damaging earthquakes will occur again in the future. GPS will allow the most precise measuring device, Henson said.

"We're positioning each location into millimeters," he said. "It could take years. While we don't see a lot of our results in terms of plate tectonics activity right away, we're satisfied that we are building a data base that will be used by geoscientists for decades to come," he said.

GPS is "revolutionizing geology by allowing geologists to measure small motions of the earth over periods of a few years, in contrast to previous methods which could only measure motions averaged over a few million years," according to release from Department of Geological Sciences in Evanston.

The GPS study in which SIUC is involved is "one big project where everyone contributing has a goal to measure the strain in the New Madrid seismic zone," said John L. Sexton, professor of geophysics.

The New Madrid Zone, which covers parts of Missouri, Arkansas, Tennessee, Illinois and Indiana, is of particular interest in the geology field because it is highly seismic, Sexton said.

"The New Madrid fault started to separate 600 million years ago but stopped," he said. "After the initial rifting, we have fractures and faults because of the motion of the plates."

"Today, the plates are squeezing the interior of North America and a strike slip fault is happening," he said. "GPS can be used to measure the strain and will allow an estimate of the magnitude of future earthquakes."

This zone of present day earthquakes gave rise to the great earthquakes that shook the Midwest and "destroyed" New Madrid in 1811 and 1812, Sexton said.

In this survey, 16 satellites are in orbit above the earth, each of which transmits radio signals that can be picked up by special receivers.

their last four games, including a 63-42 win over Bradley Monday night.

THE SIUC-WSU game will be the inaugural game of the 1992 MVC tourney. The two teams are slated to tip off at noon.

Other first-round games slated for Saturday include:

■ No. 4 Indiana State (12-6 in the Valley) against No. 5 Tulsa (12-6) at 2:30 p.m.

■ No. 2 Illinois State (14-4) against No. 7 Northern Iowa (6-12) at 6:08 p.m.

■ No. 3 Southwest Missouri (13-5) against No. 6 Creighton (7-11) at 8:30 p.m.

The winner of the SIUC-WSU game will face the winner of the Indiana State-Tulsa game Sunday at 1:08 p.m. The winner of the ISU-UNI game will face the winner of the SMSU-Creighton game at 3:30 p.m.

The championship game, which will be televised on ESPN, is at 8:38 p.m. Monday.

THE DAWGS' WIN Monday night against Northern Iowa put their home record at 12-1 on the season.

Herrin said the game showed the Salukis' strengths as well as their weaknesses.

On the positive side, SIUC played its typical stellar defense for most of the game. The Dawgs continued on its pace of holding opponents to a low shooting percentage. SIUC defenders give up about 41 percent shooting to their opponents, second-best in the league. The Panthers shot just 18.5 percent in the first half and 39.7 percent for the game.

The top rebounding team in the league by far, SIUC grabbed 39 boards Monday night, three less than its season average.

But the Dawgs missed their first five free throws and shot just 50 percent for the game.

Herrin said the Salukis, who are ninth in the league from the charity stripe at 63.8 percent, are weak from the line.

"If it hadn't been for (the low percentage), we would have been in great shape at halftime," he said.

But he said his team shows its competitive spirit by making up for its shortcomings.

"If we turn the ball over, we'll get that extra rebound. If we miss a free throw we'll find a way to steal the ball," Herrin said. "It shows that our team has character."

IN ADDITION, Herrin said the league's No. 1 scoring offense, which averages 75.5 points a game, is beginning to pick up the pace. The Salukis solved the UNI zone defense, which collapsed around leading scorer Ashraf Amaya.

"They started out doing a good job on him, but (sophomore point guard) Chris Lowery did a great job on penetration," he said.

Lowery, who finished with 13 points, scored the first 6 points of the game for the Salukis, all on lay-ups after slicing the UNI defense.

Lowery's activity, along with good SIUC passing, eventually freed up Amaya, who led all scorers with 25 points.

In addition, the Dawgs got several transition buckets off UNI turnovers and defensive rebounds.

Junior guard Tyrone Bell, who led the fast break several times and finished with a game-high six assists, said the Salukis really tried to perfect their running game.

"We were at our best in the open court," Bell said. "And our guys worked hard to get downtown quickly on the break."

For a while this season, our offense has been sporadic, but we're starting to pick it up."

AMAYA, A 6-8 JUNIOR who was picked to win the MVC Most Valuable Player award before the season started, won the Valley regular season scoring and rebound races.

He had been battling Creighton senior guard Duan Cole all season for the scoring title. Amaya finished with an overall average of 19.3 points a game, and Cole finished with a 19.1 average. In MVC games only, both players averaged 18.5 a game.

Amaya, who has been named MVC Player of the Week three times this season, won the rebounding race long ago. He finished averaging 10.5 boards a game, and his nearest competitor, Wichita State freshman John Smith, finished with 7.4 a game.

Amaya moved into 13th place on the SIUC all-time scoring list Monday, as he upped his total to 1,257 career points. He moved past Randy House, who played for the Salukis from 1986 to 1989.

ALL-TIME LEADING scorer Charlie "Chico" Vaughn was honored Monday night for his efforts from 1959 to 1962 in a Dawgs' uniform.

Vaughn, who scored 2,088 points in his career, had his number 20 retired in a pregame ceremony.

Former Salukis' and St. Louis Hawks' head coach Harry Gallatin, who coached Vaughn at SIUC and at St. Louis, was on hand for the ceremony at the Arena as well.

A charter member of the SIUC Sports Hall of Fame, Vaughn returned to the University in the mid-1980s to complete his bachelor's degree. He now works with young people in the Cairo area.
