Irish prisoner Sands dies on 66th day of fast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Irish Republican Army guerrilla Bobby Sands died early Tuesday in the 66th day of his hunger strike at Belfast's Maze prison, the British Northern Ireland Office reported.

It said the 27-year-old Sands, who had campaigned from his jail cell and was elected to the British Parliament on April 9, died at 1:17 a.m. (7:17 p.m. EDT Monday) in the prison's hospital wing.

His death was expected to bring a new storm of violence to this British province, torn by a decade of bloody underground warfare between Roman Catholic and Protestant extremists.

Sands was the 13th Irish nationalist hunger striker to die in British jails this century, and the first to perish in Northern Ireland.

The Northern Ireland Office issued a statement saying "Mr. Robert Sands, a prisoner in the Maze prison, died today at 1:17. He took his own life by refusing food and medical intervention for 66 days."

Sands lapsed into a coma early Sunday and never regained consciousness.

His family had been at his bedside along with a Catholic priest.

Mobs of rioting Catholic youths had staged sit-and-run attacks against Belfast police and British troops with firebombs and acid-filled milk bottles Monday night as the emaciated Sands was sinking toward death.

Ignoring pleas for calm from Protestant and Catholic leaders, Sands' family and Irish nationalist activist Bernadette Devlin McAliskey, roaming gangs of up to 300 youths stoned police and troops throughout the day in the Falls Road section of West Belfast.

The area once was dubbed "ambush alley" by British soldiers and is the heart of Catholic militancy and Irish Republican Army sympathy.

Firebombs were hurled at police patrols in another Catholic area, the Short Strand, where there were two arrests. Police said mobs overturned and burned two trucks, and one policeman was injured.

ISSC votes to delay cuts in scholarships

By the Associated Press and the Daily Egyptian

The Illinois State Scholarship Commission voted Monday to delay any reductions in this semester's state scholarships pending legislative action on a proposed appropriation increase.

A bill that has cleared the Illinois House and is pending in the Senate would take $3 million from next year's commission budget and allocate it to this year's to eliminate a deficit, according to Constance Lindsley, director of the state's student grant program.

The commission voted last week to reduce all grants to students by 10 percent. The reduction would have affected 1,800 SIU-C students and 81,000 students statewide. However, when the panel took that action it did not know about the pending bill, Lindsley said.

The delay in the scholarship reductions temporarily grants a reprieve to SIU-C award recipients, most of whom received full ISSC grants this semester and would therefore have owed the University $46.81.

At Monday's meeting, the panel decided that if the bill fails to clear the Senate, it would reduce second-semester and third-quarter grants by $100, but only to those students with unmet needs of $800 or less, Lindsley said. That move would affect about 33,000 students statewide.

The commission is faced with a deficit of between $2.7 million and $3.2 million.

The ISSC bases its state budget request on the number of applications it expects to receive and on how many award recipients it expects to leave school after the fall semester.

'Lifeline' rates support shown at ICC hearing

By Scott Canon Staff Writer

Supporters of "Lifeline" utility rates testified at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing in Murphysboro Monday that rate reform is needed to provide equity to the poor.

About 20 people addressed the hearing. All of the witnesses urged the ICC to adopt lifeline rates, which would change the way consumers are charged for utilities.

Lifeline rates, a rate structure that provides reduced electric prices for basic amounts of energy, have been implemented in 13 states.

The commission, which regulates utility rates, is holding a series of hearings throughout the state to determine if a lifeline structure would work in Illinois. Steve Claggett, ICC hearings examiner, said, William Holton, Southern Counties Action Movement spokesman, testified that the time has come for lifeline rates in the state.

"The ICC and the utility companies have sought to maintain the status quo, preferring a rate structure which favors large industrial users," Holton said. "Those least able to pay shoulder a higher burden of the cost."

Lifeline rates, by reducing energy costs for the poor, could serve as a partial alternative to public aid, Holton said. Some sort of program is needed to help low-income people cope with utility bills, he added.

"Southern Counties Action Movement favors equity, not welfare," Holton said.

John Stevardson, coordinator for the Western Egyptian Economic Opportunity Council, said lifeline rates provide a positive alternative to public aid, because the rate reform lacks the negative stigma inherent with welfare.

He added that public aid programs are subject to government funding. "Lifeline would better protect the county's low-income people because it is aimed at everyone and not subject to political whims."

Gus says if CIPS tosses the poor folks a lifeline, there'll probably be a charge in it.

New studio may ease broadcast tension

Editor's note: This is the second part of a series examining the controversy over the separation between SIU-C's Radio-Television Department and the Broadcast Service.

By Karen Gullo Focus Editor

A PROPOSAL to build a second studio which would be used primarily by the Radio-Television Department for instruction, may ease the tensions between the department and Broadcast Service.

The cost of renovating the studio, located next to the studios of Channel 8 in the Radio-Television Department, was estimated by the University physical plant at $35,000. This includes air conditioning, heat ducts and wiring—the basics necessary for a studio, said Sam Swan, assistant professor in radio-television. The money would be state appropriated, he said.

HOWEVER, ESTIMATES of the cost for broadcast equipment haven't been ironed out yet, Swan said. A task force, formed to inventory available equipment, proposed that surplus equipment from the Broadcast Service could be used to outfit the new studio.

"There are funds for a new switcher and character generator, fundamental features for a control room," Swan said Monday. "The rest would be surplus equipment from the Broadcast Service."

A switcher is the part of a video control board which cuts, fades or dissolves one picture to another and regulates the brightness of images. A character generator controls electric graphics, such as titles.

Swan said the estimates for equipment would allow the department to equip the studio with "conservative, but reliable, low maintenance equipment."

"WE DON'T HAVE enough money for state-of-the-art equipment or new equipment," Swan said. "We will have to rely on the old equipment that is not being used by the Broadcast Service."

New equipment would cost between $125,000 and $150,000, and state-of-the-art equipment could run up to $500,000, he said.

Swan said the primary purpose of the second studio is to ease the tension between the department and the Broadcast Service. Presently, the department uses the facilities of the Broadcast Service for instruction. Student production groups also use the facilities for student produced programs and projects.

Tension between the department and the Broadcast Service developed last fall over the separation of the two units. The service maintains that its primary function is public service, while the department, which relies on the service for its broadcast facilities, sees its primary function as instruction.

SWAN SAID IF the available equipment at the Broadcast Service is in fairly acceptable condition, the second studio could dissolve some of the differences between the department and the service. But if the equipment needs constant maintenance, it won't help the situation, he said.

Syria refuses to withdraw surface missiles from Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria defied the Reagan administration and Israel Monday and refused to withdraw surface-to-air missiles from eastern Lebanon, demanding instead that Israel be pressured into halting all military activities in this war-scarred nation. Western diplomatic sources said.

The embattled peaks that overlook the Christian-held Mediterranean coast north of Beirut, and Zahle, 30 miles east of Beirut, were quiet for a fifth day Monday. But there were sporadic exchanges of sniper fire and rocket propelled grenades along Beirut's Moslem-Christian demarcation line.

The diplomatic sources, who declined to be identified, said U.S. Embassy officials in Damascus have been in daily contact with the Syrian government in an effort to have the SAM-6 missiles removed from eastern Lebanon to dispel the threat of a Syrian-Israeli military showdown.

But the Syrians remained adamant, contending that the deployment of the missiles last Tuesday was an act of self-defense after the shooting down of two Syrian helicopter gunships by Israeli jets near east Lebanon's embattled Christian city of Zahle, the sources said.

Syria's hard-line stance was underscored by a state radio commentary that said Syria would pay no heed to any Israeli "red line," beyond which the Syrians were not to venture, and by Syrian President Hafez Assad's charge that the United States was helping establish "Israeli hegemony in Lebanon."

President Reagan, in a cable Monday to Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, asked for more time to solve the Syrian-Israeli crisis by diplomatic means.

At the White House, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes confirmed that Reagan had sent a message in which the United States urged all parties "to maintain the restraint, which we welcome, which has been shown in the past week."

Reagan soft-sells budget proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan applied his soft-sell approach to Democratic congressmen Monday, assuring them their concerns about specific items in the budget would be addressed after a crucial House vote on the overall spending proposal.

Reagan appeared to be having some success and the outcome appeared less and less in doubt. Several who had made no commitment previously emerged from the meeting fingering gift boxes of presidential cufflinks and indicating they would support the administration.

U.S. nuclear talks intent disclosed

ROME (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. announced to the Western alliance Monday that the United States intends to start negotiations with the Soviet Union by the end of the year to limit nuclear forces in Europe.

Haig also said at a private meeting of 15 NATO foreign ministers that President Reagan sent a lengthy handwritten letter to Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev responding to a letter from Brezhnev in March.

Suspected killer eludes manhunt

CHICAGO (AP) — A man sought by Maryland authorities in connection with the fatal shooting of six people, including his wife and two of his daughters, eluded police Monday despite an intensive manhunt.

Police said the man named in murder warrants, Ronald Q. Ellis, 34, of Camp Springs, Md., was believed to have had money and may have left the Chicago area.

Maryland officials said an autopsy was being performed on the victims by the Maryland medical examiner's office in an effort to determine the type of weapon that had been used in the killings.

Kaplan conversion up for vote

By Mike Anton
Staff Writer

Plans to reconvert two buildings currently being used to house the School of Law to dormitories and a plan to make improvements on four University parking lots are scheduled to be voted on when the Illinois Board of Higher Education meets Tuesday in Chicago.

If approved, the plan to convert Kaplan Hall and the school's current law library, both located in Small Group Housing, is estimated to cost $300,000 and should be completed by January, according to Allen Haake, supervising architect engineer for the physical plant.

Architectural and engineering plans would be handled by physical plant, and bids for the project's construction would go out by July, he said.

The two buildings, along with Kesner Hall, were originally converted from dormitories to a temporary facility for the school in January 1974. Construction on the new Law Building, located across the street from the two buildings targeted for reconversion, is expected to be completed this summer.

The reconversion plan would create a total of 80 single-occupant rooms, Haake said.

The IBHE also is expected to vote on a $382,000 plan for resurfacing and general improvements to a total of 590 spaces in University parking lots 13, 18, 49 and 52.

Dawn Pritchett, outreach specialist for the Williamson County Programs on Aging, said the lifeline rates would benefit the elderly. She said many senior citizens are on fixed incomes and a new rate structure, like lifeline, could help them make ends meet.

The present rate structure, she said, is unfair because it charges residential customers too much.

"How pathetic that an 83-year-old woman sits in the dark and swelters in the heat because she can't afford to pay her electricity bill," Pritchett said.

Robert Gustafson, Murphysboro resident, said utility companies cater to large customers and discriminate against those who use less energy.

Financial VP choice upcoming

By Mike Anton
Staff Writer

President Albert Somit is expected to select a vice president for financial affairs Thursday. Tom Busch, assistant to the president said Monday.

Busch said that all three of the remaining candidates for the job were recommended to Somit by the search committee, headed by John Darling, dean of the College of Business and Administration.

The finalists are Warren

Buffum, acting vice president for financial affairs; Harold Richard, director of institutional research and studies; and Donald Vaughn, assistant dean of the College of Business and Administration.

Bartholomew Basi, chairman of the Department of Accountancy, withdrew from the search Friday.

The position became open in January with the resignation of Robert Gentry, who left SIU-C to become vice president for financial affairs at Seton Hall University in New Jersey.

Transit system would be a bargain

A long time ago, in a town far away, I enrolled in a management concepts course to fill a graduation requirement. One of the many things I learned was that most people will resist any change, for better or worse. That point has been given marvelous illustration by a story on the front page of the April 20 Daily Egyptian. For those who've forgotten, the headline of the story read "Transit Plan Voted Down."

It surprised me that only 3,670 people bothered to vote on this subject, which, one way or another, means so much to all SIU-C students. For those of you who have no idea what the "transit plan" is, let me explain. The proposed SIU-C transit system would use six buses, all of the modern "transit-bus" style, rather than school buses or reconditioned vans. Each bus would hold approximately 45 passengers and would drive a route including residence areas on campus and certain predetermined areas of interest in the Carbondale-Murphysboro region. Each bus would repeat its run three times per hour, 17 hours per day, five days per week, 40 weeks per year.

The funding for this project, I am informed, would come from a student-paid fee of $10 at the beginning of each year.

It is easy to imagine the thoughts that ran through the 1,941 heads as they voted against the transit system. "Another $10 fee?" "I don't have that kind of money; it's cheaper just to drive my car!"

"Transit buses, huh? How many people would actually ride 'em, anyway?"

Although I can appreciate the sentiment behind the first thought, I do not feel that this is "just another fee." During the course of this year I have paid many, many fees: health insurance, property insurance, damage charges on material goods I never even used, athletics fee for events I had no intention of attending. My health is exceptionally good and has been all year. None of my property was stolen or damaged. Not one of the above expenses has shown me the least bit of return. They each comprise "another fee."

The transit system, however, would show direct, useful returns by giving me a cheap, easy and efficient mode of transportation. There would be no doubt that my $10 was going to good use. As for it being cheaper to drive, baloney! If you have a car with a 10-gallon tank that gets 15 miles per gallon, it costs you between $13 and $14 to buy a full tank of gas. If you drive 30 miles every day, you use two gallons per day and it costs you anywhere from $2.60 to $2.80 to get where you want to go. Even if you cover considerably less distance, you'd almost have to push the thing down the road to match the daily cost of the six proposed buses, as derived by dividing $10 by 200 operating days in one full school year. That equals five cents. A nickel a day. One lousy tax-free quarter for each five-day operating week. A can of Pepsi costs almost twice as much and doesn't even last as long.

How many would make use of the system? According to the SIU-C Parking Division, a total of 9,998 vehicle stickers were sold this year to students. Since I would assume that one only needs one sticker per car, and that some small part of that number could have been bought to replace stickers lost, stolen or otherwise invalidated, that means there are approximately 9,000 student-operated automobiles on and around campus. Since there are nearly 23,000 students registered at SIU-C, where does that leave the 14,000-odd students remaining?

Six buses with a capacity of 45 persons each, running three times an hour, 17 hours a day. Such a system could move 810 students every hour, or 13,770 in a single day.

What it all boils down to is that a mass-transit system was recently proposed for the direct benefit of 13,770 students who lack other means of transportation, who would like to see what Carbondale looks like or at least be able to go shopping every now and then, and who dervest the thought of trudging along for hours carrying heavy, uneven loads through busy streets and inclement weather. It means that because of short-sightedness, apathy, and a classic inability to handle kitchen mathematics, over half of the students at SIU-C must continue to walk for at least another year.—Michael W. Thorsen, Junior, Cinema and Photography.

Ethics law may be in danger

In 1977, Congress passed strong codes of conduct. The codes were designed to curb conflicts of interest as a result of Watergate, Koreagate and the unethical activities of several individual congressmen. Two years later, without committee hearings, advance public notice or a recorded vote, nine senators deferred for four years the code's limit on earned outside income. The Senate Ethics Committee is now considering revisions of the code. It's chairman is Malcolm Wallop (R-Wyo.) He is one of the nine senators mentioned above. To help insure the code is not weakened further, I ask those interested to write Senators Percy and Dixon and ask them, to support provisions in the Senate Code of Conduct which will: 1) prohibit lobbyists from giving gifts of more than $100 to senators; 2) prohibit the establishment of unofficial office accounts "slush funds" and; 3) establish strong conflict

Boycott salad bar

Salad lovers unite! We formally protest the unusually small size of the plate that we are given at the Student Center Cafeteria to use for the salad bar. For $1.80 we are given a very small seven-inch plate to fill once!

Let's do some comparison shopping. The Old Main Restaurant in the Student Center has an unlimited salad bar for $2.90. Western Sizzlin Steak House near the University Mall has an unlimited salad bar for $2.49. Sirloin Stockade in Carbondale has an unlimited salad bar for $1.99. Wendy's in Carbondale has an unlimited salad bar for $1.79! We believe that $1.80 is a pretty high price to pay.

Salad lovers unite! Boycott the Student Center Salad Bar!—Marcia A. Mason, Chief Clerk, School of Agriculture.

Crowe review poor

Despite several protests from letter writers and the unsolicited views of countless frustrated readers, Bill Crowe is still writing reviews for the Daily Egyptian. His grossly unfair review of Michael Cimino's "Heaven's Gate" has forced me to write once again in an attempt to right a terrible wrong.

First of all, Crowe spends the first third of his review informing us of the film's past, which would normally be totally irrelevant but in the case of "Heaven's Gate" does, admittedly, deserve mention. Unfortunately, his information is grossly inaccurate and incomplete. He implies that Cimino wanted the original four-hour version of the film released and that he did not want any more editing done. In general, he makes Cimino out to be an obnoxious, egotistical slob.

If Crowe had done a little more research, he would have known that the film was originally five and a half hours long, and that Cimino labored feverishly to edit it down to the four-hour version that United Artists demanded to have premiered for the December release. Cimino made it clear at the time to anybody who was listening that the film was not ready, and that more editing needed to be done. But these statements were eclipsed by the premature remarks by Vincent Canby, et. al.

So it is important to view "Heaven's Gate" not as a film with a controversial past, but as a brand new finished product to be judged on it's own merits.

With that in mind, I would like to say that I hated "The Deer Hunter," and I was waiting anxiously to tear apart "Heaven's Gate." But even though I went to the film to hate it, it still knocked me clear off my feet.

Mr. Crowe writes that the screenplay is "plodding" and "without much focus." First of all, Crowe cannot even write a small review so how can he criticize a screenplay as broad and complex as "Heaven's Gate?" I found the story line very easy to follow, and despite the "flaws" that Mr. Crowe mentioned, found the drama of the film very compelling.

Mr. Crowe states that Kris Kristofferson is a wooden actor. This would not be so bad if Crowe stated this as a fact. Because he obviously knows nothing of good acting or good criticism, how can he make such an outrageous remark? It was obvious to me that all the performances in the film were toned down on purpose to give more emphasis to the story.

Crowe says the film is "obviously" sharply edited. How can he tell? I saw none of the "abrupt scene-shifts" that he mentioned. The film ran like a well-oiled machine.

Finally, Mr. Crowe insists again and again that the film is boring. Well, all I can say is that I saw the exact same film and neither I nor the person with me found it boring in any way.

But Mr. Crowe is not concerned with being a fair, objective critic; he wants to be just like the big boys and trash a perfectly good film with his poorly written, misinformed review. Take it from someone who was looking forward to hating it: "Heaven's Gate" is a masterpiece, and Mr. Crowe's "reviews" should be shunned by one and all.—Todd Alcott, sophomore, English and Kent Desiderio, senior, Cinema and Photography.

Similar plot and scare tactics make 'Friday' a violent rehash

By Bill Crowe
Staff Writer

Without a doubt, "Friday the 13th Part II" is a terrible film in all of the essential filmmaking aspects—writing, directing, acting, etc., etc. However, the worst crime it commits is its unoriginal and reprehensibly generic approach to scaring an audience.

Aside from a different cast of body of Jason, the child. "Part II" tells the story of his revenge five years later on a new group of counselors on a training session in the same woods.

However, plot differences aside, director Steve Miner's filmmaking technique is quite similar to that used by "Part I" director Sean Cunningham. It's so similar, in fact, that I've compiled a list of things from "Part II" that are distressingly close in approach to the original. Here's a few of the similarities:

—the same breathy sound effects which are obnoxiously dubbed in every time the killer is stalking a victim.

—a similar variety of machetes, kitchen knives, spears and other sharp instruments which make those emotionless stars and a slightly different plotline than its disgusting 1980 original, this is nearly the same film—lots of flashing sharp instruments, things jumping in and out of camera range that are supposed to scare you and a disturbing fascination with bloody violence.

The simple-minded plot of the original concerned a crazed mother (Betsy Palmer) taking revenge on a bunch of summer camp counselors who let her young son drown in a lake 20 years earlier. Palmer kept hacking her merry way through an endless stream of victims until she finally got her comeuppance in a disgusting decapitation scene.

However, the film's climax showed the final camp survivor being attacked by the rotting —the same crazy decrepit old man riding his decrepit bike and warning the kids about the danger to no avail.

Student Center to sponsor buffet for Mother's Day

The Student Center is sponsoring a Mother's Day buffet from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sunday in the Student Center Ballrooms.

Advance tickets, priced at $6.75 for adults, $4.75 for students and senior citizens and $2.50 for children under 10, are available at the Central Ticket Office. Tickets may be purchased at the door at $7.95 for adults, $5.95 for students and senior citizens and $3 for children under 10.

The buffet will feature entrees of carved beef, fried chicken, baked ham and macaroni with side dishes like new boiled parsley potatoes, corn in sour cream and green beans. A number of salads, appetizers, rolls, deserts and drinks will also be included.

USED OIL WANTED

CHICAGO (AP) — In a move the firm said is aimed at conserving energy and reducing pollution, Sears, Roebuck and Co. announced Monday that more than 800 of its stores will begin accepting waste oil from the public for recycling.

"We hope our move will encourage others to begin reclamation programs," said Joseph Batogowski, a Sears vice president.

Sears will offer the waste oil to certified recyclers to ensure it is used properly, the statement said.

—the same idiotic kids who say how scared they are one minute and then walk off into the woods alone the next. To personalize these kids to a predominantly young audience, they also drink beer, have sex and smoke joints (just like in real life).

There's just not much to admire about a film which simply barfs up tried and true formulas with no innovation, especially considering the glut of women-in-danger flicks and cheap shock films we've been exposed to in the past couple of years.

The original "Friday" film was a surprise summer hit in 1980. This sequel will also probably do good business. It's just too bad that filmgoers are spending their good money for gratuitous violence and audience manipulation and calling that entertainment? No way.

Thieves give students a day off from school

GAGES LAKE (UPI) — The school buses did not make their normal runs in Woodland School District 50 Monday because thieves stole the batteries from all 25 buses. Lake County sheriff's police said.

Classes were canceled for the 2,100 students in the northwest suburban Chicago District. Classes also were called off at St. Patrick's and St. Gilbert's parochial schools.

The batteries were stolen sometime during the weekend while the buses were parked in a lot, police said. School officials said they expected to have the buses back on the road Tuesday.

ARTHRITIS --- THE CRIPPLER

BY DR. ROY S. WHITE

Doctor of Chiropractic

The days of the snake oil salesman and their fantastic promises of a panacea have long since passed.

Unfortunately, the health conditions that caused people to look for instant relief are still with us, and the arthritic, with constant pain, is easy prey for the modern day hucksters.

"EXTRA STRENGTH" and "ARTHRITIC STRENGTH" analgesics may deaden the symptoms but do nothing about the chronic inflammation or the calcium "spurs".

Can arthritis be corrected? ---Chiropractic approaches arthritis from a cause standpoint. It is directed to the restoration of normal nerve function; allowing the natural healing processes of the body to operate. This is accomplished by restoring misaligned vertebrae to their correct alignment and hence, removing the pressures on nerves.

Dr. White

Your Doctor of Chiropractic has the training and experience to treat arthritis and relieve the discomforts of the condition. Chiropractic is not a panacea to solve all the ills of the world. But, if the systems of the body are allowed to function normally and correctly there is a greater chance of "health". Contact your Doctor of Chiropractic to determine if we can use the "home court advantage" in the game of health. The "home court advantage" is catching health problems before they become major. Remember the five most dangerous words are, "MAYBE IT WILL GO AWAY".

Do you have a question? Write or call.

Effects of affirmative action viewed as both good and bad

By Robbie Cox
Student Writer

As graduation nears, many companies are seeking minority women fresh out of college for entry-level positions. Pressed by government affirmative action programs, these women may help fill the hiring quotas required of organizations which do business with the federal government.

Opinions on the effect of affirmative action differ with the individual. While some see affirmative action as offering opportunities to those who otherwise might not get a chance, others see it as personally degrading to think that an employer hires an employee on the basis of race.

"I feel affirmative action builds a bias in employers," said Doris DeShazo, a senior in radio and television. "I haven't sought employment, but I know I don't want to be used for filling someone's quota."

DeShazo said she views the affirmative action policy as offensive to both whites and blacks.

"It limits the realm of hiring for qualifications, not the quotas," DeShazo said. "Employers don't ask about your qualifications, but just view you as the perfect way to get the government off their backs."

Karen Moore, senior in advertising, agreed with DeShazo's views on affirmative action.

"Today it isn't what you know but who you know," Moore said.

Depression-era architecture to be part of exhibit, talk

Exhibits of photographs, drawings and narratives of Depression-era architecture, and an exhibit of student-made ceramics begin this week in the Student Center.

The exhibit of public buildings, murals, sculptures and parks built with Public Works Administration money during the Depression is on display in the Gallery Lounge of the Student Center beginning Wednesday. The exhibit runs until May 27.

In addition to the exhibit, a lecture by Craig Zabel, who has researched architecture of the period, will be given at 7 p.m. Thursday in Student Center Ballroom C.

The other exhibit to be held in the Student Center features ceramic work of SIU-C undergraduates in the Museology 447 class. The ceramic pieces will be in the display cases on the second floor from Wednesday until May 14.

adding that many of her acquaintances have secured employment by "name dropping."

However, Cynthia Black, a senior in clothing and textiles, believes there are positive aspects of affirmative action. Black said she feels that affirmative action helps minorities, especially black women.

Ad-hoc committee develops plans for energy conservation

By Bill Turley
Staff Writer

Developing an energy conservation program to save the University money is the purpose of the Ad Hoc Committee on Campus Utilities, according to Clarence Dougherty, vice president for campus services and chairman of the committee.

Dougherty said the first step is to make the University community aware of the need to conserve energy. He said campus utility bills have increased tremendously.

Thon as Engram, utilities superintendent, said the University's utilities bill—the total paid annually for electricity, coal, fuel oil, liquid petroleum gas, natural gas and water and sewage service—has jumped more than 126 percent since 1973, from about $2.5 million to about $5.7 million.

After the 1973 Mideast oil embargo, the Physical Plant instituted several conservation measures on its own, like setting thermostats higher in the summer and lower in the winter, cutting down on lighting inside and outside of campus buildings and installing a computerized monitoring system for electricity, Engram said.

Also being installed is a computer system, budgeted at $300,000, to monitor and control the electric power demand of the campus heating, ventilating and air conditioning systems.

Despite these moves, Engram is concerned that many students, staff and faculty members do not seem to see energy conservation as their problem. He said some staffers who got cold during the winter brought in their own electric heaters or tinkered with thermostats or even replaced light bulbs removed for energy conservation.

Dougherty said he realizes this and said, "It is very difficult to put out orders for conservation. We have got to get people interested in it."

Dougherty said he plans to use the local media, in addition to signs and posters around campus, to motivate people to conserve. Also, the members of the committee, which come from all campus constituency groups, go back to their respective groups and spread the word, he said.

Some of the measures the committee is considering are moving wall ornaments and furniture from supply and return air grills to help the flow of air, asking for lab equipment to be turned off when not in use and using a minimum number of lights for night cleaning.

Dougherty also is asking the University community for its suggestions on how to conserve energy. He said the committee and the Physical Plant "don't claim to have any monopoly on good ideas."

Attorney General limits access to federal files

By Michael J. Sniffen
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's new restrictive policy on opening its files to citizens is a further hint the Reagan administration is more inclined than its predecessor to press for broad changes in the Freedom of Information Act.

Attorney General William French Smith sent a memo to the heads of all federal agencies Monday rescinding a policy established by the Carter administration's first attorney general, Griffin B. Bell.

Four years ago, Bell told agencies not to use technical exemptions to disclosure in the act and to release requested documents unless that would be "demonstrably harmful" to the government.

In the new policy, Smith reminded agencies that the guiding principle of the act is to disclose documents but only "subject to the specific exemptions provided by Congress."

Smith also said the Justice Department would develop proposed amendments to remedy what he said were problems with the act, which he said many people are using in ways Congress did not intend.

As a consequence, informants are more reluctant to share information with enforcement agencies, foreign intelligence services are more reluctant to share information with U.S. intelligence agencies, companies are reluctant to provide reliable information to the government," Smith said.

He said the cost of administering the act has reached almost $45 million a year. At the FBI alone, 300 employees work on Freedom of Information requests at a cost of about $10 million a year, he said.

The Carter administration also was studying possible changes to the act, but did not make any formal proposals before leaving office.

FBI Director William H. Webster has proposed that a seven-year delay be allowed before his agency must release closed investigative files which now can be released when the cases are closed.

The CIA has been seeking a complete exemption from the act. Civiletti had said he was inclined to relax the impact of the law on the CIA, but did not favor a total exemption for the spy agency.

The law now allows exemptions for criminal investigative material, national security matters, internal agency manuals, pre-decision memoranda, and several other categories of information.

Smith's action appears to signal that the Reagan administration is more inclined than the Carter team to suggest broad new exemptions to the act. But the effect of Smith's policy Monday was unclear.

The department's only means of enforcing policy was to refuse to defend an agency in court, but few FOI requests lead to court cases.

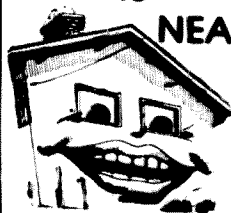

But Jack C. Landau, director of the Reporters' Committee for Freedom of the Press, said, "Unfortunately for the public and press, this unwarranted action by the Reagan administration will severely restrict the public's right to know government information under the federal Freedom of Information Act and will send a clear message to all government agencies: 'When in doubt, keep it secret.'"

GREETING SET

CHICAGO (UPI) — Space shuttle astronauts Robert Crippen and John Young will be greeted by one of their predecessors during Chicago's salute to the space shuttle crew this week, Mayor Jane Byrne said Monday.

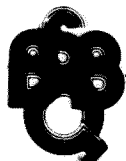

Former astronaut James McDivitt, who blasted into space in the Gemini IV mission in 1965, will conduct a question and answer session Wednesday at the Museum of Science and Industry.

Agriculture Department says poor countries buy more food

WASHINGTON (AP) — Poor countries are the United States' fastest growing cash customers for food, which is this country's most important sales item, the U.S. Department of Agriculture says.

The Agriculture Department points out that although poor countries are usually thought of as getting food in the form of aid, U.S. food aid to them amounted to $1.4 billion in the year that ended last Sept. 30, while commercial sales reached $12.3 billion.

Before World War II, the poor countries were big exporters of basic foods, but their populations have grown so fast since then that they are now big importers. U.S. exports have been booming. They hit a record $41.3 billion in 1960 and a new record is due this year.

In the 1970s, U.S. sales to the richer countries multiplied five-fold, and to the poor countries 10-fold.

The April issue of the Agriculture Department's monthly "Foreign Agriculture" explained that food is so urgently needed in poor countries that it takes up a large part of any increased income.

"In India," it said, "when family income rises by one dollar, more than half is spent on food and fiber."

With a 10 percent income rise, according to the department's studies, food consumption in poor countries goes up three times as fast as it does in rich ones.

By far the biggest buyer of U.S. farm products in the year ending Sept. 30 was China with $1.94 billion worth. It took over the top spot from the Soviet Union because of the partial embargo on U.S. grain to the Soviets, which has now been lifted.

America's next best customers were: Indonesia, $339 million; Nigeria, $331.5 million; Philippines $292.7 million; Egypt, $269.8 million; India $258.6 million; Thailand, $170.8 million; Bangladesh, $163.6 million; Pakistan, $166.2 million; and Haiti, $50 million.

Badly in debt because of climbing bills for oil and food, many countries are trying to become self-sufficient. But in the poorest countries, production of food is increasing more slowly than population.

Some do not have the right growing conditions, the Agriculture Department points out. For example, wheat is important to Nigeria, Indonesia and the Philippines, but they cannot grow it in any quantity.

Oil producing countries are promising customers because of their big growth in income, but the Agriculture Department points out that China and Thailand also have potential to be better customers of the United States.

WIDB to present special three-days worth of music

More than three days of music with minimal commercial interruption is what WIDB and its sponsors will be offering to listeners in gratitude to student patronage over the last school year, according to Tom Buehrer, promotions director for the station.

The event, titled "Final Vinyl," will start at 8:00 p.m. Wednesday with a different artist featured every four hours. After the WIDB show at Gatsby's Friday night a special edition of "Blues Power" will come on the air. At 4:00 a.m. soul music will take its usual weekend spot with special emphasis placed on the music of the past year.

During the special the station's sponsors will limit themselves to short name mentions to show appreciation for this year's business. The student-run radio station has increased its listenership in the past year, making it one of the best years in its 11 year history, Buehrer said.

Admission to the 90-minute program is $1 for students and $2 for the general public.

Marvin Kleinau, acting chairperson of the Department of Speech Communications and co-chairman of the University's "Task Force on Academic Priorities," will be the speaker at the Phi Kappa Phi honor society meeting from noon to 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Corinth Room. Kleinau will speak on "Assessing the Priorities."

The College Democrats will meet at 9:30 p.m. Tuesday at Pinch Penny Pub. Topics of discussion will include voter registration drives, future guest speakers, summer meeting schedules and state and national conventions of the Young Democrats of America.

Committee rejects Reagan's peanut price support plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Agriculture Committee rejected President Reagan's peanut price support plan Monday as it began drafting the commodity programs of the 1981 farm bill.

Following the Senate Agriculture Committee's lead of last week, the House panel voted 24 to 11 to ignore the administration plan and concentrate on its own program to maintain peanut prices into 1985.

As in the version tentatively adopted by the Republican-dominated Senate committee, the peanut program of the Democratic-controlled House committee will include higher loan rates than Reagan wants, acreage allotments he wants ended and production quotas the president wants cut by more than a third.

"I do not feel there is much prospect of amending the current program," said Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., who has taken the lead in pushing the administration's farm proposals.

Several Democrats on the committee warned their colleagues that if the cost of the total farm bill substantially exceeds the budget targets now being set by Congress, the bill will have to be revised and price supports cut back somewhere.

The Senate committee's program for farm price supports over the next four years is already billions of dollars above the administration's spending targets.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., committee chairman, has said cuts will have to be made to bring the cost back into line with budget restraints.

The quickest way to get emergency money.

An emergency stop for repairs can wipe out even the best-heeled traveler. Luckily, all you need is the price of a phone call to get you the money before your car gets off the lift. Here's what to do when you need money in a hurry.

1. Call home. Report the situation, and tell the folks they can get emergency cash to you fast by phone.

2. Ask them to call Western Union's toll-free number, 800-325-6000 (in Missouri, 800-342-6700), anytime, day or night. They charge the money and the service fee to their MasterCard® or VISA® card. A Western Union Charge Card Money Order, up to $1,000, will be flashed to the Western Union office or agent nearest your emergency.

3. Pick up your money—usually within two hours—at the local Western Union office or agent. There are 8,500 nationally, except in Alaska. Conveniently, about 900 locations are open 24 hours. It's that easy.

Be sure to remind your parents about our toll-free number. It's all they need to call Western Union to the rescue.

Labor secretary raids 2 alleged sweatshops

CHICAGO (AP) — U.S. Labor Secretary Ray Donovan on Monday led a raid on two alleged "sweatshops" but then declined to identify the firms even though he was accompanied by television crews.

Donovan, who was joined by agents from the Labor Department's Strike Force, said at a news conference that both garment-manufacturing firms had been cited by the department last year for cheating their workers and had later agreed not to violate the law.

The visit to the shops, he said, was designed to "see if they had cleaned up their act." But Donovan said Labor Department agents found "many of the same kinds of violations disclosed less than a year ago."

The infractions, Donovan said, involve wage, child labor and overtime violations.

Donovan repeatedly refused to disclose the names of the firms even though television crews were present. The labor secretary said he asked the crews to leave but officials of the garment firms apparently agreed to allow them inside.

Donovan also said the investigation was ongoing and he had been advised by his attorneys not to identify the companies.

However, officials of Delafe Apparel and Lee Ives Industries Inc., confirmed that Labor Department officials had visited their firms. Spokespersons at both firms denied any wrongdoing at their companies.

Mary Diaz, whose mother is a partner in Delafe Apparel, said workers are paid overtime and the federal minimum wage and no children work at the company.

Li Ives, an owner of Lee Ives Industries, also denied any wage violations exist at his company.

Donovan said in last year's visits, the federal agents found workers at one company were being cheated out of $11,000 while employees of the second firm were being cheated out of $20,000. He did not say which firm was responsible for the larger violation.

He said in Monday's visits, labor officials found one firm appeared to have "cleaned up its act" even though some violations still existed.

Donovan said labor officials were told Monday of overtime and salary violations by one employee. However, he said other employees may be fearful to report infractions to federal officials.

But, he said, "It's the books that tell the story. That's the thing that ripped my heart."

Donovan, who was in Chicago to speak at the American Newspaper Publishers Association meeting, said as many as 100,000 people in a six-state Midwestern region may be working in "sweatshops."

Venezuelans get answers from the top

By Eduardo Gallardo
Associated Press Writer

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuelans who need help getting a job or running water for their neighborhood or a pardon for a jailed son can go straight to the top — a meeting with President Luis Herrera.

Every Monday afternoon Herrera holds a "collective audience" at the presidential palace with ordinary citizens who have applied to see him.

Generally, they come to ask favors. One young man just wanted "an exchange of philosophical views" with the president. He got it.

Herrera, a 56-year-old Social Christian, says the Monday meetings are the best way "to the people's participation in government."

"The objective is to give people the opportunity to explain to me their communities' problems, to offer me suggestions on the political situation and even describe some of their personal problems," Herrera said after collective audience No. 100 took place recently.

Opposition politicians say the weekly meetings — which often take the entire afternoon — are demagogic and useless.

"That's not so," counters Olga Rodriguez, the presidential commissioner in charge of scheduling the audiences. "You can ask the people who have come here and got what they wanted. They certainly don't think the program is useless."

Herrera said the program "has helped me greatly in ruling the nation. The audiences give me the opportunity to hear different points of view from those of government officials and COPEI (the government party) leaders."

During Herrera's first 109 weeks in office, he held 100 Monday audiences, attended by 5,430 people.

Fifty applicants are selected every Monday from among "thousands of candidates who request to see the president." They see the president privately.

A foreign correspondent was recently allowed to attend one such meeting, in which a group of sports officials asked the president's help in starting a professional baseball league in western Venezuela.

"What can the government do for you?" Herrera asked. The sports group asked for a three-year tax exemption to help get the league started, for free broadcast of their games by state television and for free use of a government-owned stadium.

The president wrote down each request and told the officials the tax exemption request would be studied by the Internal Revenue Service and the television manager would be told to study the broadcast request with "sympathy."

"As for the stadium request, it is granted... as long as you pay maintenance expenses. The government will charge no rent."

The visitors happily accepted.

Group protests brown lung review

WASHINGTON (AP) — Armed with pamphlets and placards, about 250 union members marched outside the Labor Department Monday to protest a Reagan administration review of a 1980 regulation designed to protect textile workers from brown lung disease.

"Let us in," they chanted, as police barricade blocked their path to the department's front door. "Are you listening, Mr.

Donovan? You've got to let us in."

Their target, Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan, was out of town.

But Thorne G. Auchter, the recently appointed head of the department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration, sent word he would meet with six of their members to discuss the complaint.

The protesters included members of the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers, AFL-CIO, and the Brown Lung Association. Several association members, including victims of the disease in wheelchairs, arrived here by bus on Sunday from North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Virginia.

The protest began Sunday night with a memorial service for brown lung victims at St. John's Episcopal church here.

Swan said he hasn't seen all of the available equipment and didn't know its condition. He said that the fate of the new studio depended on state funding.

John Guyon, acting vice president for academic affairs and research, said last week that he hopes the second studio can be ready for use next fall. He said there was a "good chance" that the Legislature would approve the funds for next year.

Meanwhile, students and faculty have expressed concern that the available equipment is not up to even minimal standards. One faculty member said the cost estimates for the new equipment, which have been rumored to be around $17,000, are "unrealistic."

A student who is employed by the Broadcast Service said the available equipment is "pretty bad, but it's the basic stuff in the industry."

"It was state-of-the-art equipment 10 years ago," the student said, "but the service just can't keep up with it."

Another student who works in television production said the estimates for the second studio are "way off."

"They just want to hit the rummage sales, put together a studio and tell us to stop complaining," the student said.

The proposal for the new studio is one of three recommendations made by a joint task force formed last fall to address the structural and organizational problems between the department and the service and to make recommendations to the dean of the College of Communication and Fine Arts.

The six-member task force, composed of the heads of the Broadcast Service and the Radio-Television Department, a service staff member, a radio-television instructor and an appointed student who is employed by the service, said in a memorandum to Dean C.B. Hunt last month that "the addition of a second studio would enable both units (the department and service) to meet their primary goals simultaneously."

"The second studio could be equipped for instruction purposes at a nominal cost to the University," the task force said.

The task force also recommended that the decision regarding the future administrative structure for both units should be made by the dean and the vice president of academic affairs.

Convicted robber sentenced

A Murphysboro man convicted of armed robbery was sentenced to concurrent 10- and six-year sentences Monday by Circuit Judge Richard E. Richman in Jackson County Court.

Bobby Griffin, 18, pled guilty on March 19 to robbing the Hand-Dee Mart convenience store in DeSoto on Nov. 17, 1980. Over $280 cash, a carton of cigarette papers and a cashier's wallet were taken.

At the same time he pled guilty to holding up the Huck's Store in Murphysboro on Nov. 6, 1980.

Griffin, who will be sent to Menard State Prison in Chester for committing the Class X felonies, was prosecuted by Michael C. Carr, assistant Jackson County state's attorney. Dennis Waks, Jackson County public defender, handled Griffin's case.

Brady 'doing fine'

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House Press Secretary James Brady is "doing fine" and there has been no evidence of air or spinal fluid leakage into his brain, a hospital spokesman said Monday.

Dr. Dennis O'Leary, spokesman for George Washington University Hospital, said Brady "spent a good weekend and remains in satisfactory condition. He is doing fine."

All antibiotics were discontinued last Friday, and Brady's temperature has remained normal, O'Leary said.

Prosecutor says that Lang needs to be committed

CHICAGO (AP) — The 16-year legal battle surrounding deaf-mute Donald Lang moved into a new phase Monday with prosecutors trying to convince a judge that Lang — charged with the 1971 stabbing death of a prostitute — is dangerous and should be committed.

"Donald Lang is a person who can hurt himself and those around him because of the mental illness from which he suffers," Henry Fauser, an assistant state's attorney, said at the outset of a civil commitment hearing.

Lawyers said they expect the hearing to last up to three weeks as a variety of witnesses, including psychiatrists specializing in treating the deaf, are called.

Stiff competition strikes tracksters

By Cindy Clausen
Staff Writer

There were few bright moments for the women's track team at the Illinois State Invitational in Normal Saturday. One first place was all the Salukis' could muster against the 14 team field.

Illinois State, on the other hand, proved it will be a threat to take the state championship title Western Illinois has held for the past three years, as the Redbirds won the meet by 4.5 points. ISU scored 116 points to WIU's 111.5.

SIU-C took sixth place with 35 points. The team's only first place points came from Lindy Nelson in the 5,000-meter run.

Nelson, who runs uncontested in the event in many of the season's meets, was challenged in the first half of the race by Drake's Letha Davis. Davis won both the 1,500- and 3,000-meter run earlier in the day, setting meet records in both events.

Nelson pulled away from the visibly fatigued Davis in the fifth lap of the 12.5 lap race.

The 680-yd. medley relay team gave Coach Claudia Blackman the biggest reason for excitement.

The team of Marla Harrison, Jennifer Bartley, Nina Williams and Debra Davis shaved .9 seconds off the old school record and placed second to Eastern. Eastern will not participate in the state meet next weekend.

The same foursome will be competing in the 200-meter dash at the state meet and will combine efforts in the 400-meter relay.

In order to enter more than three competitors in a state event all four must break a set qualifying time. Bartley was Blackman's fourth hopeful to enter the 200-meter dash, but had not broken the 26.6 time. Bartley clocked a 26.2 in the event this weekend.

The accomplishment by the four sprinters in the medley relay was marred by two missed handoffs in the 400-meter relay.

Harrison and Davis choked on the first exchange then Williams and Bartley followed suit.

"It was almost as if they said 'Well, if we're going to have a bad day, let's have it together,'" Blackman said. "The only good thing about it is they (the teams at the state meet) won't be worried about us and hopefully it means we've got the bad handoffs out of the way for next week."

Jean Meehan placed second for the Salukis and matched her personal best time in the 1,500-meter run.

Meehan ran in fourth position for most of the race. In the last lap she overtook runners from Indiana and Drake, but could not catch Drake's Davis.

Karen LaPrte tied for second place in a close 400-meter hurdle race.

Astros kayo Cubs on Cruz' homer

CHICAGO (AP)—Jose Cruz's three-run homer in the first inning powered Joaquin Andujar and the Houston Astros to a 5-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs Monday.

The triumph was the seventh in the last eight games for the Astros, while the Cubs suffered their 16th loss of the season against only three victories.

Terry Puhl opened the first inning by reaching on an error, and Danny Heep drew a walk before Cruz smashed his fifth homer on a 3-2 pitch off loser Mike Krukow, 1-2.

Houston added a pair of runs in the sixth inning.

Ruggers end regular season by clobbering SEMO, 44-0

The SIU Men's Rugby Club thrashed Southeast Missouri State, 44-0, last Saturday on the SIU-C rugby pitch. It was the second match that the teams have played this season, and improved the SIU-C record to 6-3.

Player-coach Dave Hanetho led the onslaught for the home team by scoring the first two tries, and said he was happy with the team's strong scrum play which has led to its recent success.

"It was very rewarding to come home and put on such a pleasant performance for the home fans," Hanetho said.

Hanetho, however, was not the only player on the SIU-C team who excelled Saturday.

Second row player Dean Tisch also contributed two tries, and fullback Mike Campbell, playing only his second season, scored 12 points with one try and four kicks.

Other players scoring tries were Don Burda, Glen Frank, Jim Trofimuk and Mike Murphy with one try apiece.

SEMO, which only was able to cross midfield four times, was kept at bay by a SIU-C defense that featured strong play by wing-forwards Tim Enright and Bernie Lewis. Hanetho said SIU-C's defensive play helped it control the tempo of the game.

The club will end its opening season at noon Saturday with former SIU-C players returning to Carbondale to compete in the traditional "Old Leads Game."

said. "There is no question that we have a long way to go.

"We did steal 32 bases out of 35 attempts, but you can't steal first and it is difficult to steal home," Brechtelsbauer added.

"We could have had a weaker schedule and come up with a good won-lost record, but that isn't my philosophy. We lost a lot of games by one and two runs."

Jarrett can't bolster golfers in Valley

By Mike Anthony
Staff Writer

Saluki Rich Jarrett placed 14th in the individual competition as the SIU-C men's golf team finished seventh in the 72-hole Missouri Valley Conference tournament held Thursday through Saturday at Las Cruces, N.M.

New Mexico State won the tournament for the second year in a row with a nine-over-par score of 1,161. Tulsa finished second with 1,182, and Indiana State placed third. Wichita State, Bradley and Illinois State finished fourth, fifth and sixth, respectively.

"New Mexico State ran off with the field," Saluki Coach Jim Reburn said. "They played well the whole tournament and finished 21 shots ahead of Tulsa."

On the basis of their first place finish, the Aggies will advance to the NCAA championships May 27-30 at Stanford University.

Steve Haskins of New Mexico State won the individual competition with a one-year par score of 289. Jarrett finished at 365.

"Jarrett could have possibly finished in the top five," Reburn said. "I think he was a little dissatisfied with his performance. He's a fine player who's been fairly consistent and we've counted every round of his this season."

The tournament was SIU-C's last one of the season, and according to Reburn, the Salukis' seventh place finish with a 1,260 score was typical of SIU-C's play all spring.

"I felt we should have been in the fifth-place spot," Reburn said. "We've been haunted all year by mental mistakes and execution errors, and we never did get things clicking the way we should have."

Salukis Tom Jones and Doug Clemens both had scores of 319. Their teammates, John Schaefer and Robert Hammond, finished at 324 and 325, respectively.

Jones, a freshman, has only played in three tournaments this season.

"I think Jones did a good job," Reburn said. "He handled the situation quite well because the conference tournament is a pressure tournament and our biggest tourney of the year."

Reburn, coaching his first spring season for the Salukis, said that overall it was a disappointing season.

"I still feel that we had more potential than we showed," he said. "I believe everybody felt that sooner or later we would cut down on our mistakes, but it just didn't happen."

Jarrett, senior, will be the only the Saluki leaving the team, and Reburn said he expects SIU-C to have a "building year" next season and should improve on its seventh-place finish.

"Schaefer is going to do a good job for us next year," Reburn added. "He showed us that he's definitely a Division I player."

Reburn said that Mark Young, the 1980 Illinois State High School association golf champion, has signed a national letter of intent to attend SIU-C for the 1981-1982 school year.

Young, who attended Petersburg Porta High School, should be able to step right into the Saluki golf program, Reburn said.

13th inning is lucky for SIU's Kempton

By Dave Kane
Associate Sports Editor

Gary Kempton stood in the SIU-C dugout following the Salukis' 7-6, 13-inning victory over Indiana State in the first game of Sunday's doubleheader. He had just hit his seventh home run of the season off ISU's tough luck pitcher, Terry Lachak, to win the game.

Indiana State also fell in Sunday's second game, 4-2, to give the Salukis a four game sweep and breathing room in the Missouri Valley Conference's Eastern Division race.

As Kempton munched on his Snickers candy bar, teammate Kurt Reid, who had driven in Scott Bridges with a ground-rule double in the sixth to cut ISU's lead to 5-4, and later scored to make it 5-5 on Kevin Weaver's bunt, spared words of praise for Kempton, and politely kissed the gap-toothed catcher on the cheek.

"Hey, cut it out," Kempton said. "At least not here. You don't want them writing about that kind of stuff, do you?"

Maybe Reid's action was appropriate. It was an anything-goes kind of weekend at Abe Martin Field, and the unexpected became commonplace.

With a makeshift lineup caused by injuries, the Salukis had entered the series hoping to win at least three of the four games, but thanks to some clutch hitting, steady defense and sound pitching, things that have seldom come in the same weekend, or SIU-C this season, Lachak's team came out even better than expected.

With a 6-2 record in the MVC East, SIU-C needs to win only one of four games at Bradley this weekend to clinch the title. The Salukis would then advance to the MVC's best-of-three championship series against Western Division champ Wichita State May 15-16 in Wichita, Kan.

Kempton, one of the injured Salukis, was listed as doubtful for the series because of pulled tendons in his left hand and wore a portable cast all last week. He was limited to a pinch-runner's role in Saturday's first game, and ended up scoring the first of three runs on Bobby Doerr's game-winning double in the bottom of the seventh. On Sunday, he was again involved in late-inning heroics with the home run as well as scoring the tying run in the 11th on Doerr's sacrifice fly.

"I've never really won a game with a home run," Kempton said. "We're not a long-bail team this year anyway, at least not on a consistent basis. But that one really felt great. I loved it."

Kempton admitted that the hand still gave him some pain when he swung the bat, and proved it when he declined to be the designated hitter in Sunday's second game. Sophomore Joe Richardson, a natural catcher who was moved to third base this season, has filled in for Kempton since the three-game series April 25-26 at Kentucky. Richardson's bat has come alive since then, and he collected seven hits in 11 at-bats over the weekend.

"There's not a team in the country that wouldn't take one of our catchers," Jones said. "But the best part is, there's no jealousy on this ball club. Kempton showed that when he said he didn't want to hit in the second game."

The Salukis won that second doubleheader. Wysocki, who has had arm troubles, pitched from the sixth through the 10th innings, allowed five hits and walked two.

contest as Rob Clark pitched a complete game to improve to 7-1. SIU-C, 26-13 overall, will play a doubleheader at SIU-Edwardsville Tuesday before returning to Abe Martin Field Wednesday for a 1:30 p.m. doubleheader against Illinois

Punchless softball team's season ends

Saddled with a lackluster offense, the Saluki softball team lost two straight games and was eliminated from the Illinois AIAW state tournament Saturday in Exanston.

Illinois State won its second consecutive state title with a 7-1 win over Western Illinois. Northern Illinois finished third. SIU-C ended the season with an 11-22 record.

It was the same old story for SIU-C as it mustered only 10 hits and two runs and lost to WIU, 4-1, and Northwestern, 2-

1. The Westerwinds bombed freshman pitcher Meredith Stangel for three runs in the first inning and one in the second inning. Stangel was the loser and pitched 1-1/3 innings, giving up all four runs and five hits. Her record dropped to 3-3. Stengel was relieved in the second inning by freshman Sunny Clark, who gave up no runs but three hits. Marcia Burroughs was the winning pitcher.

The Salukis scored their lone run in the second inning. Kim Whitney led off with a single and went to second on a throwing error. Val Upchurch singled, sending Whitney to third. Donna Dapson grounded out, but Whitney scored on an infield out by Clark.

SIU-C swept a doubleheader from the Westerwinds two weeks ago, but Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said the Westerwinds seemed flat at the time. Friday, Western played its typical hard-hitting style. Brechtelsbauer said,

"Western came out banging that ball, which is typical for a Western team. . . ."

Brechtelsbauer said. "They hit the ball hard throughout the game. I put Sunny in the second inning and they hit some shots off her right after that."

In a closer game in the loser's bracket, Northwestern scored two runs in the third inning, but SIU-C only put one run on the scoreboard and was eliminated.

The Wildcats hammered out six hits to the Salukis' four. Ellen O'Keefe was the winning pitcher, giving up no hits or walks and striking out four in 3-1/3 innings. She relieved Tammy Malo, who struck out three and allowed the only Saluki run, an earned run, in 3-2/3 innings.

Clark took the loss and gave up six hits, one earned run, walked none and struck out three.

NU scored in the third inning on three singles and a passed ball by Upchurch. The Salukis scored in the fourth inning, as Pat Stang and Karen Koltrow rapped back-to-back singles. Kathy Clements sacrificed Stang over to third, but Whitney flied out. Upchurch belted a two-out single to score Stang. The Wildcats held the Salukis off for three more innings and knocked SIU-C out of the tournament.

Brechtelsbauer said the team knew it had to hit going into the tournament and played about as well as it was capable of. She said she was not disappointed by the season, but realized the team did not have the hitting to win more games, although the pitching and defense was sufficient.

"Pat Stang was our only legitimate offensive threat," Brechtelsbauer said. "The pitching and defense were good. My No. 1 priority in recruiting is a legitimate, established hitter who can step right in and hit .300."

"We had the weakest hitting team in the state, but our pitching was second only to Illinois State," Brechtelsbauer said. "Our defense was somewhere in between."

Stang was the team's top hitter this season with a .223 average and was second last season with a .347 average. Unfortunately, Stang is graduating, but she is the only player who will be lost. The team is composed of freshmen and sophomores, and Brechtelsbauer said some changes are in order for next season. She added, however, that not every player had her job on the line.

"We've played 33 games and haven't moved our hitting that much," Brechtelsbauer
