Nine Building Projects Listed For Expansion By Building Committees

Plans for Southern's extensive building program have been formulated. A building program listing nine principal construction projects essential to the development and expansion of the University is under consideration by the Board of Trustees. The local Long Range Planning Committee, the Board Advisory Committee, and the Teacher's College Board building committee. As yet, the actual cost of the program has not been determined.

Following are the nine projects which the local committee have found to be drastically needed.

1. Completion of the new training school.
2. Completion of service shops, store house, and power plant.
3. Library.
4. Completion of the land acquisition program.
5. Site development.
6. Industrial buildings.
7. Community Service.
8. Student union building.
9. Field House.

Students Should Plan Program Wisely

For the information of freshmen and other students not thoroughly familiar with grade posting, counseling, and program changes, Dean Henry J. Rehn of the College of Vocations and Professions, gives the following points:

All final term grades will be posted by each instructor outside the classroom or office of the instructor. Each student is expected to look up these grades. It will be assumed at the time of registration that each student has determined his grade average for the term and knows whether or not he is on probation. If the student is on probation, he should inform his counselor of the fact and make the necessary changes in his pre-registration program. No student on probation is allowed to take more than 14 credit hours.

Dean Rehn stated that many program changes are made each term which could have been avoided had the student planned his program more carefully at registration time. Some students find after registration that they have not allowed for lunch hour in their schedule, or they are taking 18 hours and want to make a change in their schedule. Others have signed for technical courses in a field when they should be taking the survey course, and some find they are taking a course they do not want.

Mr. Stowe began his career as a foreign correspondent in Paris for the New York Herald Tribune in 1926. He saw fascism coming to power in Germany in 1932, watched the Italian Fascist and German Nazi intervention in the Spanish civil war in 1937-38, and followed the political struggle for domination of pre-war France. In 1940 he saw the Nazis taking control of Hungary, Bulgaria, Romania and Yugoslavia, and observed the communists using similar tactics in 1946.

Dinner Given For President Morris

President and Mrs. D. W. Morris were guests of honor at a dinner party given by the members of the English department at Hotel Marion Tuesday evening at 7.

Notice To Householders

Due to the numerous requests for room vacancies for the winter term, all resident students not having their room set up are asked to contact their householder or the housing office. Rooms and apartments for married couples are greatly needed.

The speakers for the program will include President D. W. Morris, Dr. Norman W. Caldwell, a former student of Prof. Lentz and a present colleague, Dale Kittle, representing the student body, and if possible Ed Stolar, high school teacher of Prof. Lentz. In addition to these speakers will be representatives of various civic groups and fraternal organizations of which Prof. Lentz is an active member, also friends and relatives. Harold Hines and the Maroon band will provide music for the program.

Prof. Lentz came to Southern in 1915 as a member of the English department. He was assigned to the history department in 1916, and is still connected with that department.

Prof. Lentz was appointed Dean of Men and held that office until 1946. As Dean of Men, Prof. Lentz, had more direct contact with the students and came to be respected by them.

In 1946, President Chester F. Lay invited him University historian to write a history of the University for publication on the occasion of the University anniversary which occurs in 1949-50.

Although busy with his teaching, writing, fraternal groups, public speaking, church work, and civic enterprises, Prof. Lentz is never too busy to take time out to talk and give advice to anyone who might drop in his office.

Attention is being notified of the program and classes will be dismissed to enable the students to attend this program. The cafeteria and the Canteen will be closed at this time to pay tribute to Southern's first "University Professor."

The University Farm at Southern is a State Game Preserve, according to Dr. Henry J. Rehn, dean of the College of Vocations and Professions.

Information has been received by Dean Rehn from the State Game division of the Department of Conservation that "Under the Illinois state game laws all state owned property within the state of Illinois, whether or not otherwise designated, is automatically a State Game Preserve."

"There should be many advantages from having game protected in this area," Dean Rehn pointed out. "Both those sportsmen who are interested in the supply of game and those who wish to study game under protection will benefit from the fact that the University Farm is now protected."

Success Secrets

Would you like to have six success secrets to give you a clue as to what you would like to do in life?

Here are six such rules which one of America's leading businessmen formulated for his own children. He is C. E. Wilson of General Motors. Here are the six, magic rules of General Motor's president:

1. Self-control—the necessity of developing will power and determination so that you can do the things you want to do or should do, rather than being controlled by your immediate environment and the impulses of the moment.
2. The necessity of developing a tolerance of other people and of the opinions and activities of others.
3. Proper respect for truth and fact. In other words, the scientific approach to a problem, rather than the dogmatic or superstitious one.

4. The importance of keeping promises and commitments. Our modern business world and most of our relations in modern society are based on commitments, and people are judged, perhaps more than in any other time in history, by the number of promises they keep. People are really judged not only on what they say, but on what they do as well.
5. A willingness to work and a realization that to work is a reasonable part of life and not a means to an end. Each of us should be willing to make a social contribution in proportion to the social reward he expects.
6. The importance of not being hindered, of being able to maintain your morale, to push ahead with the adventures of life in spite of upset plans and temporary disappointments.

There are the six rules that insure success. They'll work if you work them. And C. E. Wilson says they will work today better than ever before.

Most people are looking for the government to support them or give them what they need. Therefore, there are greater opportunities than ever before for those who really want to get ahead and don't mind working at it. They have less competition. (This article, written by Elmer Wheeler, is copyrighted, 1948, by General Motors Corporation, and reprinted by permission.)

After a night of election returns, coffee, and four hours of sleep, the history class of an eastern university walked into its class on Nov. 3. Opening their tired eyes, the students saw the message scrawled across the board by their professor:

"Go home, listen to the radio, and learn the greatest lesson in American democracy."

The Time Is Gone

Western Union is an efficient organization. For a nominal sum they will install electric clocks, keep them set automatically on the correct time, repair and replace these clocks if necessary at no special costs to the renter and pay the yearly rental. Worries of time over trains, buses, and classes are over. Needy business is well aware of this helpful service as are many other types of organizations which are in need of time schedules.

Southern is now a university. Universities are diligent over all things trivial. "From little drops of water the mighty ocean grows."

Attention students! If your father or brother is an antique dealer ask him if he would be interested in buying about two dozen genuine "Louis XIV" clocks which will make someone a nice timepiece on sunny days.—F.O.C.

Letters to The Editor

We really got a kick out of those new style poems found hanging a round the Egyptian's columns these days. Hope the fellows who write them get as much a bang out of them as we do.

We thought we went on all the latest looks, books, and hooks, but this poetry is definitely something that has just arrived and it's over our heads. Our question is—what are these fellows aiming at when they start slinging these fancy words that shouldn't be found outside a dictionary? What does this unifying poetry expression—what is it trying to say?

It's not down to earth, straight from the shoulder or from writing and hitting notes on the clouds, up among the ivory castles and rainbows. It seems to float just in-between. But some of it is definitely out-of-this-world—and that's where it should stay.

Things look pretty black to us, too, at times, but when the pink elephants and purple alligators start chasing us, we close the door on them. We don't put them on parade to scare other people. We don't want to send anyone else to the hospital. We're not condemning all the stuff found in The Poet's Corner. In fact, some of it is fresh and sincere. And somehow it is not quite so fresh. What soul-searching and haunting notes these people must have gone through to produce those wild words that are running loose in these poems? It's terrifying to think that such shoulish, fops and snake-pits hunt the corridors of some people's craniums.

So, come on fellows, give us the dope, and if we like the tone, we'll get on your bandwagon. But just tell what all the shenanigans are about. We admit we're pretty unversed in poetry, but we'd like to know just the same. Otherwise we'll have to conclude that you're collaborating with the communists to spread gloom in this country, or that you're all Republicans.

Any way, give us the lowdown on this high-born stuff.

Sincerely,
S. D. N.

Dear Editor:

Your Editorial "Do Movie Ads Pay?" was excellent, and commendable. It expresses the views of several people, who are asking questions.

However, there are a few questions I should like to raise. What is the average weekly income from movie ads? If theatre managers did not divert part of their income from movie ads, would the price of admission have to be raised? I have often heard you say ads bring the advertisers' products right up to the extent that movie advertising pays for its own expense, there is something which should have been included in the editorial. Having to sit through trailers (previews) is also very boring to me. When I go to a show I like to enjoy it without having to sit through a lot of such tripe as ads, previews, trailers, etc.

Sincerely yours,
Fred W. Fritzinger

Class Clashes

Tentative class schedules are out for the winter quarter, and, as usual, means are heard from many students concerning conflicting schedules.

It isn't a matter of a few isolated cases, but large groups are affected by the lack of overall coordination of class periods. Schedules for classes are made up individually by each department. If students were taking all subjects from only one department, the situation would be ideal—but that is not the case.

Several subjects are given in only one section due to an insufficient demand for a larger number of classes. Oftentimes, the single section courses are scheduled for the same hour in several departments, necessitating the student's taking only one of several courses he wants or needs. One example out of many is the case of several music students who must either drop orchestra or English Literature 216, both of which are needed for graduation in their particular field.

We should like to make two suggestions: 1. That there be a group of persons designated to check the schedules for such conflicts when they are sent in by the departments, and try to eliminate as many of the clashes as possible, and 2. when the tentative class schedules are printed, why not have the courses listed according to the hours when they are offered as well as by departments?—H.R.

Know Your Game

Now that the duck and goose season is in, maybe the museum will be receiving more visitors. If anyone should want to know exactly what they have shot or shot at, they might look at the exhibit of stuffed ducks in the museum in Parkinson Laboratory.

The arrangement of these feathered immigrants is unique. There is a female Red-breasted Merganser looking coyly toward a male Shoveler and a male Pintail. Perched above her, with a possessive gleam in his eyes, is a Ring Neck duck. These are but a few of the ducks. Also, there are one Canadian goose present.

Why not stop in and find out what you hit—or missed.—I. D.

PERSONALITY SPOTLIGHT

By PHYLLIS LEE

Recently many people were studying up to the third floor of Old Main. Suddenly they began to duck, to flinch, and to look furtively around for an abandoned air raid shelter. And the reason for their distress? A small, brown haired girl was bumping and bumping down the stairs, not in the customary manner, but in a way now known as the "Fearside Bounce." All due credit for the performance can go to Mary Fearnside, a junior from Mt. Carmel. According to Mary, this was her first, embarrassing moment.

MARY FEARNSIDE
 Mary has done stenographic work for Dean E. G. Lentz.

Mary is enrolled in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences; she has an English major and a history and mathematics minor.

Although Mary has been in the spotlight, she has the reputation of being a quiet girl on the campus. She is secretary editor of the Egyptian, treasurer of the Junior Women's Student Union, and secretary-treasurer of Kampus Kapers. Last year she was editor of the Candlebeam, the campus bulletin. Besides all this, she is also a member of Girl's Italy, Little Theatre, Mu Tau Pi, and the weekly dance committee.

Mary particularly enjoys dancing, movies, and good books which are read for pleasure, not as an assignment. She also collects stamps, coins, and caskets, which are large seals placed on the envelope to commemorate the first new stamp issued on a certain post office.

With only 30 more shopping days left, Christmas, a big problem of the local beau is what to get his girl.

Recently a Chicago newspaper conducted a poll to determine what girls want for Christmas. It was discovered that the girls who were asked preferred such luxuries as silk and nylon neckties, gowns, and other unmentionables. Since we don't have too much faith in polls any more, we decided to conduct another one here at Southern and see if the results were the same. Our poll shows that the Southern coed is somewhat more practical in her Christmas gift wishes.

Girls still ranked first, but skirts, blouses, shoes, and coats were preferred to silk or nylon. Only in one case was the coat to be of fur. Hats, hose, and formal shoes were listed.

One coed would settle for a diamond but two others weren't satisfied with that. They wanted the moon. Other items of jewelry seen to be popular. This includes watches, watch bands, and rhinestone necklace and bracelet sets.

Music High On List
 Music ranks high, being represented by three requests for recording combinations, one for records and album, one for a music box, and one for the initiation fee for Mu Phi Epsilon, national music sorority.

Evidently, traveling is in the minds of a few. Some asked for cash (with gas tanks full), one wanted luggage, and one wanted motorcycle or horse—either will do. There was even one request for a

PROCEDURE FOR RETURNING BOOKS TO BOOKSTORE AT END OF TERM

1. Hour: Tuesday through Friday of examination week. 8 a. m. to 11:50 a. m. 1 p. m. to 4 p. m. Tuesday and Wednesday 4 p. m. to 6 p. m. Thursday and Friday.
- Note: As has always been our practice, you will remain open after 5 p. m. on Friday if there are students waiting in line at our door wanting to turn in books.
2. Two lines should form at the inside door to the Bookstore. A-L should line up at the left-hand door when facing East. M-Z should line up at the right-hand door when facing East.
3. When inside the door, A-L students go to the first counter on left. The M-Z students go to second counter on left.
4. Be sure that you wait to see that your books are checked off your card or properly recorded as returned.
5. After your books are checked in, leave through the East door of the Bookstore.
6. The student is free to return one book or all of his books at a time, whichever is more convenient.
7. We feel that by remaining open until 5 p. m. during the last two days of examination week that the student will work part time will have time to return their books by the last day of the term.
8. All students who fail to return their books by closing time on Friday, December 3, 1948, will be fined the costs for late return. (Exception to No. 8: Those undergraduate students enrolled in Dr. Charles Nenn's education 470 and Miss Florence Deany's health education 350. These two undergraduate classes meet Saturdays and on the final examination in these two courses are held on Saturday, December 4, the student will have until 12 noon on Saturday, December 4, to return his book without penalty. However, if these two examinations are held on Saturday, December 4, the books will be due on Friday, December 3.)

What's In a Name?

One of the great evils in the use of language is the tendency to label something or someone by using a highly abstract word or phrase. We have come to know this dangerous practice as name calling, using it when we dislike or do not understand something. It's so easy to associate all things one does not like with some person or group, so easy to find a word for this something or someone.

We have long been fond of using derogatory terms to express our distaste for certain racial groups. Too, others have exploited the meaning of terms applied to political parties or religious orders. For some reason, we fail to judge for ourselves the value of a name as an individual or for the group for its actual work in the community. We are satisfied to breed our own prejudices upon generally unreliable gossip or propaganda because we WANT to believe the name being used actually does apply to the individual or group in question. We are feeding a habit that is primitive, unreasonable and completely wrong.

During this election year, name calling certainly reaches a resonant peak. However, if you are a good citizen, you will not judge on prejudices and names; you will seek to know all men as they are individually, not as a strange thing associated with what is nothing more than a highly abstracted verbal symbol—"State Press," Tempe, Arizona.

So You Did Him a Favor?

So you think you're doing your friend a favor? Well, now, maybe you aren't. Stop and think a moment.

When you do a favor for someone, do they feel that they must return it or else be eternally grateful to you? If they feel that way, then you haven't done them a favor. You might as well ask for it.

Before you promise to do someone a favor, check yourself on these points and decide if you will be doing them a favor or asking them to sign their lives away.

1. Don't give up once you have started to do someone a favor, and even if it does turn out to be more work than you bargained for, make it seem that it is really nothing.
 2. Don't run around subtly mentioning it or take superior attitudes toward the person just because you were in a position to do him a favor.
 3. Don't expect payment for a favor—even in the form of gratitude from the person who accepted it. Don't keep reminding him of the favor.
- Remember—you can build friendships on favors, but only if it is a real favor and not a weapon of blackmail.—"The Maverick," Northern Oklahoma Junior College.

EXCEPTIONAL

The sergeant strode into the barracks and shouted, "O. K. you lazy 'F-'s! 'Shup to and fall in!"

The soldiers grabbed their hats and lined up—all except one, who lay on his bunk blowing smoke rings.

"Well," roared the sergeant. "Well," said the soldier, tapping the ashes off his cigar. "There certainly were a lot of them, weren't there?"

You won't find many success rules that'll work unless you do.

"You are right, sergeant," said the C. O., "that new man is skinny. Put him to work cleaning rifles."

"Yes, sir," said the sergeant, "shall we push him through, or pull him through?"

"What did he run for?"

"The Mexican border."

Poet's Corner

REMINISCENCE OF DR. GEORGE GALLUP (Bowing humbly to that great poet, A. E. Houffman)

Way back in 1932
 When I was wondrous wise,
 I hit upon a method
 To eradicate surprise;
 I would poll the minds of people,
 Tell what the vote would be;
 Oh, I was wondrous wise then;
 No use to talk to me.

Way back in 1932
 I heard a wise man say,
 "To probe the people's hearts there is No scientific way;
 "Twill cost you sighs a-plenty;
 This Poll you'll surely rue;
 And now 'tis 1948;
 And oh, 'tis true! 'Tis true!"
 —E. C. Coleman

THE HURT

The Hurt, Oh, the hurt,
 Through the afternoon, the covering night,
 Lower I cower:
 My substance atrophies, and the scattered soul-flumps sink down.
 Earlier floums from passion's pinnacle.
 As the firm-leashed ensigns of faith.
 As smaller microoliths that clubbed the cozened-born.
 Little love-animals in ancient caves,
 So comes chaos in my inner rooms.
 Chaos raddles chaos.
 Down these corridors, this maze,
 Wonder begins the search for his beleaguered children.
 He will find dun hair, Iris eyes, and human wit,
 But they have all died.
 Alpine Beast!
 Silt the skins, baste them on a stick.
 Flimsy, gray sheets by fevering blows rieve.
 They dance in metamorphosis.
 Wonder's neroids flee, and certain Night recedes.

Best Letter On Sweet or Swing Music Wins California Airline Trip

For the past 11 years, college students have danced to the music of Freddy Martin at the Coconut Grove in Los Angeles. And for the same number of years Woody Herman has been playing for the jazz enthusiasts. Loyal supporters of the more orthodox method of music presentation claim that they enjoy hearing a pure interpretation of the melody. The more progressive music fans prefer arrangements which, in part, disguise and supplement the original tune.

MARTIN AND HERMAN

Sweet music fans like their music rich, warm and soothing. Swing fans prefer it strong, exciting and non-conforming. Freddy's followers want to dance to his sweet strains. Many of Woody's worshippers would rather just listen.

Jimmy Crouse was winner in this week's contest sponsored by the campus women's music club. The group held a food sale on the corner of University and Grand Monday. Membership in the organization is open to all women on campus who are interested in music, regardless of whether they are majoring or minoring in music or not.

President's Work Is Of Great Variety

When Dr. Delyte W. Morris became president of Southern, here's betting he didn't think one of his duties would be mopping floors. However, that is exactly what he was doing Tuesday morning soon after 5 30 a. m.

Mrs. Grace Thompson, a morning cook at the University cafeteria, was unable to reach the stove when she went to work Tuesday morning because of the great amount of water on the kitchen floor due to mopping late in the night. Mrs. Thompson called on President Morris who immediately came out to the cafeteria.

Soon after this, President Morris and janitors from various parts were mopping floor of the cafeteria. As a reward for their efforts, the cooks received breakfast for President Morris and the janitors.

Byrd's 'Operation High-Jump' Included Southern Student

By ROMOLO BOSSI

Since the beginning of time, boys have dreamed of penetrating the jungles of Africa, or of a trip across the great expanses of the frozen North. These dreams, however, disappear with the growing pains which also plague young boys at this time. To every rule, however, there is an exception. Richard L. Brown, a freshman from Granite City, became that exception when he was accepted as a member of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's "Operation High Jump," which was an expedition to the wastelands of Antarctica.

Plans for the expedition were prepared in the early part of 1946. At that time Brown, a member of the United States navy, was convalescing in a navy hospital. When he learned that his ship, the Mount Olympus, was chosen as the flagship of the expedition, he suddenly discovered that he had sufficiently recovered from his illness.

and was allowed to rejoin his ship. Asked to Make Will. All men of his ship's complement were questioned, and were given a rigid physical examination. This was done because one of the purposes of this expedition was to subject newly designed equipment, clothing and machinery, to the extreme temperatures of the South Pole. Only men in top physical condition were allowed to accompany Admiral Byrd. In addition to these precautions, all men were asked to make out a will. Too, Admiral Byrd issued an order that every man would have has less than $10,000 insurance. Since the complement of the expedition was composed solely of volunteers, Admiral Byrd notified the men that their chances of returning alive were slim, and if they so wished, their names could still be removed from the list. The list remained unchanged.

Mountains of Ice
On Dec. 2, 1946, the expedition, consisting of 13 ships and one submarine, steamed out of Norfolk, Va., with radiofilm Brown aboard Admiral Byrd's flagship, Panama was reached several days later, and the men had what they honestly thought was their last look at civilization. The ship's engines began to hum, and continued to do so, until the ice pack in the Antarctic ocean was sighted. Here, the ship equipped to act as the ice-breaker had to take the lead to blaze through the solid mass of ice. The personnel began to realize just why they were told that their chances of returning to their states were slim when their ship had to turn sharply to avoid crashing into an iceberg which "loomed up as big as a mountain" not more than 100 yards ahead.

Ship Wedged in Ice
At this point, the ice-breaking ship had to turn back to rescue the submarine, which had been sending frantic SOS messages. The sub could not navigate through the ice-infested water and was in desperate need of assistance. The result of this maneuver was that in the ice and remained there for 30 days. During its imprisonment, the ice, seven of the ship's frames were broken, and the converging ice mass had ruptured the hull in two places. The ship was finally freed and it completed its journey to Little America.

Upon landing in Little America, the section of the expedition of which Brown was a member immediately began to build the important air strips which would enable the planes to take off and begin their immense task of charting Antarctica. Charting this unexplored territory was the immediate purpose of the expedition.

Little Life
"The only life on the continent," penguins, seals, and many whales," Brown said. Several of these penguins were brought back to the states, some of them four foot tall. Among the discoveries was a fresh water oasis and an assortment of vegetation. This was an amazing find because the temperature average was 75 degrees below zero during their stay. Too, when Admiral Byrd left Antarctica five years ago, he left every bit of equipment behind. This was all recovered intact and did not show signs of deterioration from rust. Also left behind was a quantity of meat, cookies, and various other edible after five years! As proof of this almost unbelievable phenomenon, Brown has one of those cookies.

Three Months in New World
After charting more than three-fourths of Antarctica, the expedition broke camp and began its long journey homeward. On March 15, 1947, after three and one half months of living in the new world, the group landed in Washington. Operation High-Jump was successfully terminated, but not without loss of life. Five airmen were lost in a crash which occurred while the men were mapping a section of the frozen continent.

While in Antarctica, Brown acted as Byrd's personal yeoman, and thereby had an ideal opportunity to become personally acquainted with him. When asked his opinion of Admiral Byrd, Brown said, "I believe Admiral Byrd is one of the finest gentlemen I have ever met. He has a pleasing personality, and commanded the respect of all the men."

Sleeping Student Is Awakened From Deep Sleep

By GEORGE A. CASTLETON

The bell awoke me from my slumber, and I awoke with a start and prepared to leave the classroom for the Cafeteria, a smoke and coffee. But on awakening I found I had missed little white deerskin shoes, three-fourths of the assignment immediately following the bell.

Needless to say, my notes were scanty, and probably many important points were missed because of the impossibility of covering so much in so little time.

Snails in Illinois
While strolling north down the hall of Old Main, I asked a wide-awake scholar what I had missed when the librarian professor had put me to sleep. His answer was that I had missed hearing about snails growing in Illinois, a second-hand job, the price of a shoe string in Carbondale, and an argument between a student and teacher which was broken up by the bell. The answer left me wondering what I had missed and nothing about the course and I thought surely the price of shoe strings in Carbondale will not be asked on the first.

Sits in Back Row
I entered my next class, fresh and content after the refreshing sleep and took my seat on the back row. Not being an Einstein, it disturbed me and when the math professor wrote numbers on the board, I noted that I could not see his body was a good solid obstruction between the numbers and me.

I was content with this until the professor asked me to recite the numbers of the Fibonacci sequence. I could not see his body was a good solid obstruction between the numbers and me.

I was content with this until the professor asked me to recite the numbers of the Fibonacci sequence. I could not see his body was a good solid obstruction between the numbers and me.

Council Corner

Note: the following is the first in a series of columns dealing with the activities of your student council.

Suggestions by students concerning campus problems are welcomed by the council.

Among matters discussed at this week's meeting of the student council was ratting system for the various houses in which Southern students room. Under a plan presented to Mrs. Mabel Pulliam, director of housing, houses would be rated A, B, C, D, or E on the basis of the quality of the university's housing regulations, and the student could have easy access to them.

The need for a ratting system was pointed out by a survey which showed that many students by the ratting system. Overcrowding is clearly indicated by the number of people staying in a room, and this is many as four or six.

Due to the shortage of suitable housing, the housing office cannot adequately enforce housing regulations, and many students are set up as dropped from the approved list, but the lack of space prevents standard from being as high as desired.

Several suggestions for the use of electrical space and radios. Some sort of a standard rate for electric appliances was suggested. Suggestions resulting from the meeting will be presented at the next meeting of the housing committee by members of the council.

Agricultural Future of Southern Illinois Is Subject of Discussion

Monday, Nov. 8, Miss Lorena Drummond, director of the University Information service, conducted the fifth in the series of eight round table discussions exploring the possibilities of the resources of this region, Southern Illinois.

The discussion was broadcast simultaneously over radio stations WCIL-PM and WJPF at 7:45 p. m. Miss Drummond had as her guests three experts on the agricultural resources of this region: Dr. Lowell Tucker, executive director of the agriculture department at Southern, Harvey Hartline of Carbondale, secretary of the Southern Illinois Horticultural society, and W. C. Anderson, farm adviser for Jackson county, Illinois.

Agriculture Most Important
Dr. Tucker stressed the importance of the agriculture in the region. He pointed out that in this region agriculture is the most important single enterprise, historically, distributively and economically. He said that Southern Illinois was the first portion of the state to develop agriculture, and as a result more agricultural products are produced financially than the people of this area can use. He also stated that the range of products produced is much more numerous than in many other portions of the United States.

Mr. Hartline told of the fruit growing industry development which started after the completion of the Illinois Central railroad to Chicago. He pointed out the state to develop agriculture, and that it into national patterns of marketing tie in with the use of refrigeration that originated here, has given our industry national importance. He gave the importance of crops, Illinois produce, about 3 percent of the apples and about 3 percent of the peaches grown in this region.

Developed Markets
Miss Anderson said that with the development of markets, Southern Illinois farmers have adjusted to the type of livestock, best suited to their needs. During the past ten years, he said, the development of enterprises in the area have resulted in the increased dairy cattle population. He pointed out the importance of the Dixon Springs experimental station projects with the development of beef and sheep projects. He said, "Much of our land is best adapted to hay and pasture, and livestock fit naturally into the picture of Southern Illinois."

These programs each Monday evening at 7:45, are given in the

Maroons Succumb To Eastern 38-0 In Finale

Martinmen Pushed Into Depths of I. I. A. C. Cellar With 0-4 Record

The Southern Illinois Maroons added the final chapter to a genuine hard luck story last Saturday as the merciless Eastern Panthers topped them 38-0 before a large homecoming crowd at Charleston. The Maroons finished the season with a 0-4 record, a far cry from last year's chronicle of scores which boasted a once defeated (and tied) conference record and a thorough 38-13 whipping of the Panthers.

It Can't Happen Here?
This year, however, the shoe was on the other foot. Coach Glen (Abe) Martin gave a pre-season prediction that the Maroons would be good to finish fourth in the conference; everybody thought he was just "talking in his beer." Even the most pessimistic of observers, however, could not have foreseen one of the most severe injury jinxes ever to hit this institution.

At any rate Eastern gained ample revenge and also fell heir to the I. I. A. C. crown with an undefeated record. A C. O. Bowl game with Illinois Wesleyan is also in the offing.

The Sad, Sad Story
The Panthers opened up in the first quarter with two touchdowns, put thirteen more points to their total in the second, and then let up a trifle, scoring a measly seven in the third and six in the final stanza.

The Panthers' heavy line made possible an effective ground attack. They only needed one back to turn the tide of victory. His name was Don Johnson and if his performance the other afternoon is any criterion of what he's done last season, he's a cinch for all Conference honors. Incidentally, the feat foisted also accounted for three touchdowns himself. If you like statistics, (we don't) the Panthers racked up 882 yards in the contest as compared to 95 for the losers.

It Can't Happen Here?
This year, however, the shoe was on the other foot. Coach Glen (Abe) Martin gave a pre-season prediction that the Maroons would be good to finish fourth in the conference; everybody thought he was just "talking in his beer." Even the most pessimistic of observers, however, could not have foreseen one of the most severe injury jinxes ever to hit this institution.

At any rate Eastern gained ample revenge and also fell heir to the I. I. A. C. crown with an undefeated record. A C. O. Bowl game with Illinois Wesleyan is also in the offing.

The Sad, Sad Story
The Panthers opened up in the first quarter with two touchdowns, put thirteen more points to their total in the second, and then let up a trifle, scoring a measly seven in the third and six in the final stanza.

The Panthers' heavy line made possible an effective ground attack. They only needed one back to turn the tide of victory. His name was Don Johnson and if his performance the other afternoon is any criterion of what he's done last season, he's a cinch for all Conference honors. Incidentally, the feat foisted also accounted for three touchdowns himself. If you like statistics, (we don't) the Panthers racked up 882 yards in the contest as compared to 95 for the losers.

Cage Drills Stepped Up By Holder; Eddie Only Vet

Despite the loss of two first-stringers from last year's squad—Bob Colborn of Flora and Joe Hughes of West Frankfort, the prospects for the 1947 cage season are not too dim.

Coach Lynn Holder now has more than 30 boys going through daily workouts in preparations for the season's opener at Beloit, Wis., on Dec. 4. Several more were added to the squad since the conclusion of the football season. Others have been working out for several weeks.

From last year's first five Jack Eddie of West Frankfort is the only one available for immediate service. Colborn is expected to return about the first of the year while Hughes will probably be out the entire season.

To fill in these gaps Holder has several new newcomers from last year's squad, including such veterans as Jack Long, Charlie Cox, Galen Davis, Bob Kiskack, Eric Boszarth, Don Glover and Truman Hill.

To go with these men Southern has several promising freshmen, including Frank (Pud) Gladstone and Tom Miliken of last year's championship Finckneyville quintet. Bob Rinehart, of Carbondale, L. High, and Ed Bryan of Mounds.

Southern last year won the IAC and the NIAB district championships in running up an impressive 22-4 record. Since they also won the conference crown two years ago, the Maroons will be shooting for their third straight triumph this season.

The Morning After

by John DeLoanardo

WE'RE SORRY WE MISSED the scoring prediction for more reasons than our own feelings. Had we guessed more accurately, the team and school would not have had to suffer the last two humiliating defeats. We believe, however, that our venture into the unknown would have been more accurate had not the injury list been so populated.

A BRIEF PICTURE OF A BAD picture: Southern won two games and lost six, the last five consecutive: one of the worst seasons in its history. Final score tally: Southern 80; opponents, 196.

OFF THE LOCAL scene for a minute. We were rather glad to see that Northwestern gave Notre Dame such a good show. Army barely got past Penn, but Michigan proved to us beyond any doubt that it is the No. 1 team of the country.

WE HAVE A LITTLE red notebook with us at all times, and while looking thru it, we came across a few scribbles that were rather important at one time, but now are obsolete. Here are a couple: "Bill Perry intercepted Fly's pass on the 45 and ran for TD. PAT was good." "Helm brought cheer on 18 yard, arranged in 1st qt." "Hains came just after quiet started." "Find out about Corn's head injury." "Colborn minutes to go and Southern can't get possession of ball." "The gun—Luis No. 2 for Southern."

DOWN THE TWELVE TOUCH-DOWNERS: The Maroons made all the touchdowns in their 22-4 extra point went good for eight of the 13 for an average of .667. The most noteworthy average on the squad was the fine punting of Fred Brenzel. For the 42 times he kicked he maintained an outstanding average of 38.5 per kick.

Highlights of Prep Sports

By BILL HOLLADA

Although nearly all Southern Illinois prep squads have closed their seasons the argument, "Who has the best football team?" continues.

Murphyboro and Harrisburg are generally conceded to be the two best teams in this area, but from there on the argument is almost impossible to decide.

Murphyboro probably holds a slim edge on the basis of its 12-1 victory over Harrisburg in the first game of the season. Harrisburg fans, however, contend that their Bulldogs have improved since that time and could beat Murphyboro. Harrisburg asked Murphyboro for a game, but Murphyboro said that it was too late in the season to play.

Harrisburg won its first South Missouri championship this year while Murphyboro not only took first place honors in the Southwestern Exposition conference, but also extended its victory string to 25 straight games—the longest victory string in the state.

To do and the argument, why not call the two teams co-champs of Southern Illinois? About the third best team in this area is Flora, who easily captured the North Egypt crown.

In games played against Day, Du Quoin ran over Packerknipp. Sparta trounced Chester, Harrisburg drubbed Benton, West Frankfort downed Centella, Salem slipped past Vernon, 24-6, in a surprising upset, which kicked out Mt. Carmel. Eldorado crushed Carmel, Murphyboro drubbed Carbondale, and Johnston City edged out Zeigler.

Two Southern Illinois teams—Zeigler and Marion—closed the season with a unique unblemished record—no victories.

In the only two grid games remaining in Southern Illinois, Carmel plays at West Frankfort Friday night and West Frankfort plays at Benton on Thanksgiving afternoon.

'Off Sides'

with Bob Brayfield

The largest crowd ever to see professional football game packed into Cleveland's Memorial Stadium to see the Cleveland Browns defeat the San Francisco 49ers, Sunday, 85,769 saw the contest. This record gives the Browns the highest attendance mark in professional football and baseball.

The largest diamond crowd in history convened there for the fifth game of last year's World Series. This crowd numbered 85,288.

These Cleveland Browns certainly have a record. In the three years the All-American professional football conference has been organized the Browns have won 96 games, tied one and lost three. They won the league's championship twice, and seem to be headed for another crown this year.

The experts were fooled when the Detroit Tigers named "Red" Rolfe their manager for next year. "Bucky" Harris and Paul Richards were to be the top candidates.

Speaking about being fooled, the Off-Side column was fooled on four of its fifteen articles for next week. This is an average of 73%. I promise to quit when my average gets as low as my shoe size. This week's games:

MICHIGAN AND OHIO STATE
The Wolverines' last obstacle before the conference crown, Ohio State is always up for this one, but Michigan is far too superior, and will defeat Ohio State by three or more touchdowns.

ILLINOIS AND NORTHWESTERN
Northwestern is only one step away from the Rose Bowl. The team are not the team to trip the Wildcats. Northwestern by two touchdowns.

PURDUE AND INDIANA
A hard game to pick. Neither team has very much, but this is a traditional game for both of the Hoosier schools, and is always hard fought. Purdue has failed six several times this season, but we believe she has enough to defeat Indiana.

MINNESOTA AND WISCONSIN
Minnesota needs this one for third place in the conference, and Wisconsin needs a victory badly. Look for a close game, but the Gophers should down Wisconsin.

NORTH CAROLINA AND DUKE
Another old rivalry between two fine North Carolina schools, and will be very close. We will pick Carolina because of Choo Choo Jackson.

OKLAHOMA AND KANSAS
This one is for the Big Seven crown. We will take Oklahoma on the basis that anyone who can defeat Missouri is tough.

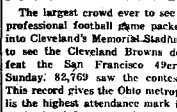

PENN STATE & PITTSBURGH
We were wrong when we picked Penn State to lose to Penn. We are very sorry, and will humbly take State to down Pittsburgh.

HARVARD AND YALE
A truly old rivalry. Harvard should win.

SIDNEY H. BAYLOR
SMU in a close one.
Missouri over Nebraska; Southern California over UCLA; California to defeat Stanford; Dartmouth to defeat Princeton; Michigan State over Washington State.

Lovin Voted 'Most Valuable Player' By Teammates

with Jim Lovin

James Lovin, 22-year-old right guard from Benton, was chosen captain of the 1949 grid team by his teammates Tuesday night. Lovin, one of Southern's mainstays this year, received another honor Saturday following the Eastern game when his teammates voted him "Most valuable player."

For the past two years Lovin has been picked on the All-Conference teams. In his freshman year at Southern he was chosen "Most valuable man"—the same honor he received Saturday.

Lovin entered Southern in 1946 and was immediately sent into the Maroon starting lineup as a tackle. Last year Lovin switched to the guard position while this year he has played both tackle and guard.

He has seen more action this year than nearly any other regular as he has played the full 60 minutes in most of Southern's games. In the Eastern game Lovin played 60 minutes despite a facial injury which he received on the second play of the game. After the game, the cut on his face required three stitches.

Lovin, with his 200 pounds, formed a strong point in the Southern line which was rattled by injuries this year.

A navy veteran and a physical education major, Lovin played with the 1943 championship Benton high school team. During that same year he was chosen All-Conference and All-State.

GINGERSNAPS

By Dolan Giager

We have tried to stay in our own back yard this year in this space in which we try to report campus athletics and so on. Last year we "looked" at high school sports in the immediate area and still have blood on the hands left from views at that time. This is now in Holland's line but we would like to spend out two cents this week in looking over this season's grid standstill.

Almost all agree that Murphyboro and Harrisburg have the two Southern powerhouses. Murphy defeated the Bulldogs in the season opener by one point in a game that found Harrisburg ahead of Southern in the final minute of the game.

Because of a kick missed by Harrisburg, the two teams are classified as an undefeated team and a once defeated team. By statistics that is so, but take a look at what is said by outstanding coaches that have seen both play. Murphy has a terrific line but is somewhat weak in the backfield, although he has two outstanding stars in Harry and Conzague. The Eastern county crew has a lighter line but seems to be more agile and has a faster moving outfit. Nothing can be proved by making the plot any deeper... we'd pay plenty to see a return match of the Red Devils and the Bulldogs... on a neutral field... say McAndrew Stadium?

Now comes that time of the year when the All Conference, All Section and All State selections are made. In our eyes there is a crop not seen by this pair of blues since '41 when Eddlemann, Franks, Hunsinger, and Levanti ran amuck in the Big Seven. We mention this in the hope that Southern may garner a few to bring about another "Bov" contender in the near future. Take the crop: Johnny Vander Puyin, Frank Conzague, Les Finkham, and John Bauer. Add to this Max Hooper, Mt. Vernon, Jackson of Du Quoin, Cooley of Eldorado, Reno of Carbondale, Appino of Christopher and Larry Fulk of West Frankfort. There is a crop that would make Frank Leahy stop the first minute for celebration.

Joe Hall, Jim Wright, Jim Catlin, Lou Bokka, Tom DePriest, could easily be added to the forward wall.

Harlan Hodges told us last year that if he could get Southern Illinois stars to come here and play-ball he would play ANYBODY in the country, including Notre Dame.

According to Anna's Abernathy, should some adjustment be made, he could easily be persuaded to attend Southern next year. A fine quarterback that boy! Cape would really miss him.
